MEDLEY

CAPITAL CORPORATION

Dear Stockholder:

I am writing to you on behalf of the board of directors (the “MCC Board”) of Medley Capital Corporation (“MCC”) to ask for your vote to approve the adoption of an Agreement and Plan of Merger, dated as of August 9, 2018 (the “MCC Merger Agreement”), by and between MCC and Sierra Income Corporation (“Sierra”), pursuant to which MCC would merge with and into Sierra, with Sierra continuing as the surviving company in the merger (the “MCC Merger”). MCC is an affiliate of Sierra, as the investment managers of both Sierra and MCC are controlled (directly or indirectly) by Medley Management Inc. (“MDLY”), a publicly traded asset management firm. In addition, the closing of the MCC Merger is contingent upon MDLY merging with and into Sierra Management, Inc., a wholly owned subsidiary of Sierra (“Merger Sub”), with Merger Sub as the surviving company in the merger (the “MDLY Merger”). We refer to the MDLY Merger and the MCC Merger collectively as, the “Mergers” (as defined below), and Sierra and Merger Sub, as the surviving companies in the Mergers, as the “Combined Company” (as defined below).

Subject to the terms and conditions of the various agreements related to the Mergers that are described in the accompanying joint proxy statement/prospectus (the “Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus”), the Mergers will effectuate the following:

- In the MCC Merger, each share of common stock, par value $0.001 per share, of MCC (“MCC Common Stock”) issued and outstanding immediately prior to the MCC Merger effective time, other than shares of MCC Common Stock held by MCC, Sierra or their respective wholly owned subsidiaries, will be converted into the right to receive 0.8050 shares of common stock, par value $0.001 per share, of Sierra (“Sierra Common Stock”). In addition, MCC’s stockholders (“MCC Stockholders”) are expected to continue to receive regular MCC dividends prior to closing of the MCC Merger, consistent with the current MCC dividend policy.

MCC Merger Consideration (per share of MCC Common Stock)	Amount
Sierra Common Stock (dollar equivalent based on the pro forma Combined Company’s net asset value per share of $7.06 as of September 30, 2018)	$ 5.68
Total	$ 5.68

- MDLY would, on the terms and subject to the conditions set forth in the Agreement and Plan of Merger, dated as of August 9, 2018, by and among MDLY, Merger Sub, and Sierra (the “MDLY Merger Agreement”), merge with and into Merger Sub, with Merger Sub continuing as the surviving company in the merger (the “MDLY Merger” and together with the MCC Merger, the “Mergers”). In the MDLY Merger, each share of class A common stock, par value $0.01 per share, of MDLY (“MDLY Class A Common Stock”), issued and outstanding immediately prior to the MDLY Merger effective time, other than Dissenting Shares (as defined in the MDLY Merger Agreement) and shares of MDLY Class A Common Stock held by MDLY, Sierra or their respective wholly owned subsidiaries, will be converted into the right to receive (i) 0.3836 shares of Sierra Common Stock; plus (ii) cash in an amount equal to $3.44 per share. In addition, MDLY’s stockholders (the “MDLY Stockholders”) will have the right to receive certain dividends and/or other payments.

MDLY Merger Consideration (per share of MDLY Class A Common Stock)	Amount
Sierra Common Stock (dollar equivalent based on the pro forma Combined Company’s net asset value per share of $7.06 as of September 30, 2018)	$ 2.71
Cash from Sierra	$ 3.44
Cash from Sierra; First Dividend Shortfall Amount	$ 0.35
Cash from Sierra; Second Dividend Shortfall Amount	$ 0.30
Total	$ 6.80

The Mergers would occur simultaneously, with Sierra and Merger Sub continuing as the surviving companies (collectively, the “Combined Company”).

Your vote is extremely important. At a special meeting of MCC (the “MCC Special Meeting”), MCC Stockholders will be asked to vote on: (i) the approval of the adoption of the MCC Merger Agreement; and (ii) the adjournment of the MCC Special Meeting, if necessary or appropriate, to solicit additional proxies if there are not sufficient votes at the time of the MCC Special Meeting to approve the adoption of the MCC Merger Agreement. In order to complete the MCC Merger, MCC Stockholders are required to vote on the proposal to approve the adoption of the MCC Merger Agreement.

MCC urges you to promptly fill out, sign, date and mail the enclosed proxy card or authorize your proxy by telephone or through the Internet as soon as possible even if you plan to attend the MCC Special Meeting. Instructions are shown on the proxy card. If your shares are held in the name of a bank, broker or other nominee, please follow the instructions on the voting instruction card furnished to you by such record holder. If you have any questions about the MCC Merger or need assistance voting your shares, please call Alliance Advisors LLC, which is assisting MCC with the solicitation of proxies, toll-free at (833) 814-9451.

The MCC Board established a special committee comprised solely of its independent directors (the “MCC Special Committee”), which was assisted by an independent financial advisor and independent legal counsel, for the purpose of assessing the merits of the proposals to be presented at the MCC Special Meeting. Based upon the recommendation of the MCC Special Committee, the MCC Board unanimously recommends that the MCC Stockholders vote:

- “FOR” the approval of the adoption of the MCC Merger Agreement; and
- “FOR” the adjournment of the MCC Special Meeting, if necessary or appropriate, to solicit additional proxies if there are not sufficient votes at the time of the MCC Special Meeting to approve the adoption of the MCC Merger Agreement.

The accompanying Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus describes the MCC Special Meeting, the Sierra special meeting, and the MDLY special meeting, as well as the Mergers, the MCC Merger Agreement, the MDLY Merger Agreement, the other documents related to the Mergers and related transactions and other related matters that MCC believes a MCC Stockholder ought to consider before voting on the proposals described herein and should be retained for future reference. Please carefully read this entire document. You also can obtain information about MCC, Sierra, and MDLY from documents that each has filed with the SEC. See “Where You Can Find More Information” for instructions on how to obtain such information.

Sincerely,

Brook Taube
Chairman of the Board of Directors and Chief Executive Officer

The SEC has not approved or disapproved the Sierra Common Stock to be issued under the Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus or determined if the Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus is accurate or adequate. Any representation to the contrary is a criminal offense.

The date of the Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus is December 21, 2018 and it is first being mailed or otherwise delivered to MCC Stockholders on or about December 21, 2018.

NOTICE OF SPECIAL MEETING OF STOCKHOLDERS
TO BE HELD ON FEBRUARY 8, 2019

To the Stockholders of Medley Capital Corporation:

Notice is hereby given that Medley Capital Corporation, a Delaware corporation, ("MCC"), will hold a Special Meeting of the stockholders of MCC (the "MCC Special Meeting"), on February 8, 2019 at 9:00 A.M., Eastern Time, at the offices of Eversheds Sutherland (US) LLP located at 1114 Avenue of the Americas, 40th Floor, New York, New York 10036 for the following purposes:

1. To consider and vote upon a proposal to approve the adoption of the Agreement and Plan of Merger (the "MCC Merger Agreement"), dated as of August 9, 2018, by and between MCC and Sierra Income Corporation ("Sierra"), pursuant to which MCC will merge with and into Sierra, with Sierra continuing as the surviving company in the merger.
2. To consider and vote upon a proposal to approve the adjournment of the MCC Special Meeting, if necessary or appropriate, to solicit additional proxies if there are not sufficient votes at the time of the MCC Special Meeting to approve the adoption of the MCC Merger Agreement.

Only the holders of record of shares of MCC common stock at the close of business on December 21, 2018 will be entitled to receive notice of and vote at the MCC Special Meeting.

It is important that all MCC stockholders participate in the affairs of MCC, regardless of the number of shares owned. Accordingly, MCC urges you to promptly fill out, sign, date and mail the enclosed WHITE proxy card or authorize your proxy by telephone or through the Internet as soon as possible even if you plan to attend the MCC Special Meeting. Instructions are shown on the proxy card.

You have the option to revoke the proxy at any time prior to the meeting or to vote your shares in person if you attend the MCC Special Meeting and are the record owner of the shares.

Based upon the recommendation of a special committee of the MCC board of directors (the "MCC Board"), the MCC Board has unanimously, (i) determined that the MCC Merger Agreement and the transactions contemplated thereby, including, without limitation, the MCC Merger, are advisable and fair to, and in the best interests of, MCC and the MCC Stockholders, (ii) approved and declared advisable the MCC Merger Agreement and the transactions contemplated thereby, including, without limitation the MCC Merger, (iii) resolved to submit the MCC Merger Agreement to the MCC Stockholders for its adoption, and (iv) recommended that the MCC Stockholders approve the adoption of the MCC Merger Agreement, and unanimously recommends that MCC Stockholders vote "FOR" the approval of the adoption of the MCC Merger Agreement, and "FOR" the adjournment of the MCC Special Meeting, if necessary or appropriate, to solicit additional proxies if there are not sufficient votes at the time of the MCC Special Meeting to approve the adoption of the MCC Merger Agreement.

By Order of the Board of Directors,

Richard T. Allorto, Jr.
Secretary

New York, New York
December 21, 2018

YOUR VOTE IS IMPORTANT!

MCC URGES YOU TO PROMPTLY FILL OUT, SIGN, DATE AND MAIL THE ENCLOSED WHITE PROXY CARD OR AUTHORIZE YOUR PROXY BY TELEPHONE OR THROUGH THE INTERNET AS SOON AS POSSIBLE EVEN IF YOU PLAN TO ATTEND THE MCC SPECIAL MEETING. INSTRUCTIONS ARE SHOWN ON THE PROXY CARD. If your shares are held in the name of a bank, broker or other nominee, please follow the instructions on the voting instruction card furnished to you by such record holder.

The accompanying joint proxy statement/prospectus (the "Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus") provides a description of the MCC Merger Agreement, including the transactions contemplated thereby, and the matters to be considered at the MCC Special Meeting. MCC urges you to read the Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus and its appendices carefully and in their entirety. If you have any questions concerning the MCC Merger Agreement, including the transactions contemplated thereby, or the matters to be considered at the MCC Special Meeting or the Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus, would like additional copies of the Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus or need help voting your shares, please contact MCC's proxy solicitor:

ABOUT THIS DOCUMENT

This document, which forms part of a registration statement on Form N-14 filed with the SEC by Sierra (File No. 333-228216), constitutes a prospectus of Sierra under Section 5 of the Securities Act, with respect to the shares of Sierra Common Stock to be issued to the MCC Stockholders and the MDLY Stockholders in connection with the Mergers.

This document also constitutes a joint proxy statement of Sierra, MCC, and MDLY under Section 14(a) of the Exchange Act. It also constitutes a notice of meeting with respect to the Sierra Special Meeting, the MCC Special Meeting and the MDLY Special Meeting.

At the Sierra Special Meeting, Sierra Stockholders will be asked to vote on (1) the approval of the MCC Merger; (2) the approval of the MDLY Merger; (3) the issuance of the shares of Sierra Common Stock to be issued pursuant to each of the MCC Merger Agreement and the MDLY Merger Agreement at a price below its then current NAV per share, if applicable; (4) the adoption of the Sierra Incentive Plan; (5) the adoption of the Sierra Charter Amendments; (6) the approval of the Combined Company Investment Advisory Agreement; and (7) the adjournment of the Sierra Special Meeting, if necessary or appropriate, to solicit additional proxies if there are not sufficient votes at the time of the Sierra Special Meeting to approve the foregoing proposals.

At the MCC Special Meeting, MCC Stockholders will be asked to vote on (1) the approval of the adoption of the MCC Merger Agreement and (2) the adjournment of the MCC Special Meeting, if necessary or appropriate, to solicit additional proxies if there are not sufficient votes at the time of the MCC Special Meeting to approve the adoption of the MCC Merger Agreement.

At the MDLY Special Meeting, MDLY Stockholders will be asked to vote on (1) the approval of the adoption of the MDLY Merger Agreement and (2) the adjournment of the MDLY Special Meeting, if necessary or appropriate, to solicit additional proxies if there are not sufficient votes at the time of the MDLY Special Meeting to approve the adoption of the MDLY Merger Agreement. Information about each of the Sierra Special Meeting, MCC Special Meeting, MDLY Special Meeting, and the Mergers is contained in this document.

You should rely only on the information contained in this document. No one has been authorized to provide you with information that is different from that contained in this document. This document is dated December 21, 2018. You should not assume that the information contained in this document is accurate as of any date other than that date. Neither the mailing of this document to Sierra Stockholders, MCC Stockholders, or MDLY Stockholders nor the issuance by Sierra of the Sierra Common Stock to be issued pursuant to each of the MCC Merger Agreement and the MDLY Merger Agreement will create any implication to the contrary.

This document does not constitute an offer to sell, or a solicitation of an offer to buy, any securities, or the solicitation of a proxy, in any jurisdiction to or from any person to whom it is unlawful to make any such offer or solicitation in such jurisdiction.

Except where the context otherwise indicates, information contained in this document regarding Sierra has been provided by Sierra, information contained in this document regarding MCC has been provided by MCC, and information contained in this document regarding MDLY has been provided by MDLY.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS ABOUT THE SIERRA SPECIAL MEETING, THE MCC SPECIAL MEETING, THE MDLY SPECIAL MEETING, THE MERGERS, AND RELATED MATTERS

The following are some questions that you may have regarding the Sierra Special Meeting, the MCC Special Meeting, the MDLY Special Meeting, the Mergers and the proposals being considered at those meetings, along with brief answers to those questions. The questions and answers below highlight only selected information from this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus. They do not contain all of the information that may be important to you. You should carefully read this entire Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus to fully understand the MCC Merger Agreement, the MDLY Merger Agreement, the Mergers, the Sierra Incentive Plan, the proposed Sierra Charter Amendments, the Combined Company Investment Advisory Agreement, and related matters, and the voting procedures for the Sierra Special Meeting, the MCC Special Meeting, and the MDLY Special Meeting.

Q: Why am I receiving this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus?

A: The Mergers are dependent upon the satisfaction of certain conditions, including but not limited to, the approval of the Mergers by the Sierra Stockholders, the approval of the MCC Merger by the MCC Stockholders, and the approval of the MDLY Merger by the MDLY Stockholders. Sierra, MCC and MDLY are sending this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus to their respective stockholders to help them decide how to vote their shares of Sierra Common Stock, MCC Common Stock, and MDLY Common Stock at the Sierra Special Meeting, the MCC Special Meeting, and the MDLY Special Meeting, respectively.

Q: What will happen in the Mergers?

A: Pursuant to the MCC Merger Agreement, MCC will, on the terms and subject to the conditions set forth in the MCC Merger Agreement, merge with and into Sierra, with Sierra as the surviving company in the MCC Merger. Pursuant to the MDLY Merger Agreement, MDLY will, on the terms and subject to the conditions set forth in the MDLY Merger Agreement, merge with and into Merger Sub, with Merger Sub as the surviving company in the MDLY Merger. Prior to the MDLY Merger, all outstanding Medley LLC Units (other than those held by MDLY) will be converted into MDLY Class A Common Stock such that, in the MDLY Merger, Sierra will acquire 100% of the outstanding equity of MDLY and Merger Sub will continue its existence as a wholly owned subsidiary of Sierra. As a result of the Mergers, the investment portfolios of Sierra and MCC will be combined and the investment management function relating to the operation of the Combined Company will be internalized. See “— What will the Combined Company look like following the completion of the Mergers” (page 15 of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus).

Q: What will the MCC Stockholders and the MDLY Stockholders receive in the Mergers?

A : MCC: In the MCC Merger, each share of MCC Common Stock issued and outstanding immediately prior to the MCC Merger Effective Time (other than the Excluded MCC Shares) will be converted into the right to receive 0.8050 shares of Sierra Common Stock (collectively, the “MCC Merger Shares” and, such ratio, the “MCC Exchange Ratio”). The MCC Merger Shares and such cash payable in lieu of fractional shares of Sierra Common Stock is referred to collectively as the “MCC Merger Consideration.”

MCC Merger Consideration (per share of MCC Common Stock)	Amount
Sierra Common Stock (dollar equivalent based on the pro forma Combined Company's NAV per share of $7.06 as of September 30, 2018)	$ 5.68
Total	$ 5.68

MDLY: In the MDLY Merger, each share of MDLY Class A Common Stock issued and outstanding immediately prior to the MDLY Merger Effective Time (other than “dissenting shares” (as discussed below and under “Description of the MDLY Merger Agreement — Appraisal Rights”) and Excluded MDLY Shares) will be converted into the right to receive (i) 0.3836 shares of Sierra Common Stock (collectively, the “MDLY Merger Shares” and, such ratio, the “MDLY Exchange Ratio”); plus (ii) cash in an amount equal to $3.44 per share (the “MDLY Merger Cash Consideration”); plus (iii) the right to receive certain dividends and/or other payments.

MDLY Merger Consideration (per share of MDLY Class A Common Stock)	Amount
Sierra Common Stock (dollar equivalent based on the pro forma Combined Company's NAV per share of $7.06 as of September 30, 2018)	$ 2.71
Cash from Sierra	$ 3.44
Cash from Sierra; First Dividend Shortfall Amount	$ 0.35
Cash from Sierra; Second Dividend Shortfall Amount	$ 0.30
Total	$ 6.80

Q: How will MCC Stockholders and the MDLY Stockholders receive the MCC Merger Consideration and the MDLY Merger Consideration, respectively?

A : Following the Mergers, if you are a MCC Stockholder or MDLY Stockholder at the MCC Merger Effective Time or the MDLY Merger Effective Time, respectively, you will receive a letter of transmittal and instructions on how to obtain your portion of the MCC Merger Consideration or the MDLY Merger Consideration, as applicable. You will receive your respective portion of the MCC Merger Consideration or the MDLY Merger Consideration after the exchange agent for the Mergers receives your properly completed letter of transmittal and/or such other documents that may be required by such exchange agent.

Q: What happens if the market price of MCC Common Stock or MDLY Class A Common Stock changes before the closing of the Mergers?

A: No change will be made to the MCC Exchange Ratio or MDLY Exchange Ratio, as applicable, if the market prices of MCC Common Stock or MDLY Class A Common Stock change before the Mergers. Because the exchange ratios are fixed, the value of the consideration to be received by MCC Stockholders and MDLY Stockholders in the Mergers will depend on the market price of Sierra Common Stock immediately following the closing of the Mergers.

Q: Is the exchange ratio subject to any other adjustment?

A : MCC: If, between the date of the MCC Merger Agreement and the MCC Merger Effective Time, the outstanding shares of Sierra Common Stock are increased, decreased, changed into or exchanged for a different number or kind of shares or securities as a result of a reclassification, stock dividend, stock split, reverse stock split, or other similar change (excluding sales of Sierra Common Stock, sales of Sierra equity-linked securities, and issuance of Sierra Common Stock pursuant to Sierra's distribution reinvestment plan (the "Sierra Distribution Reinvestment Plan") or otherwise in lieu of a portion of any cash dividend declared by Sierra), an appropriate and proportionate adjustment will be made to the MCC Exchange Ratio.

MDLY: If, between the date of the MDLY Merger Agreement and the MDLY Merger Effective Time, the outstanding shares of Sierra Common Stock are increased, decreased, changed into or exchanged for a different number or kind of shares or securities as a result of a reclassification, stock dividend, stock split, reverse stock split, or other similar change (excluding sales of Sierra Common Stock, sales of Sierra equity-linked securities, and issuance of Sierra Common Stock pursuant to the Sierra Distribution Reinvestment Plan or otherwise in lieu of a portion of any cash dividend declared by Sierra), an appropriate and proportionate adjustment will be made to the MDLY Exchange Ratio.

Q: Will the Sierra Common Stock be listed on a national securities exchange following the Mergers?

A : Yes. If the Mergers are successfully consummated, Sierra Common Stock will be listed on the NYSE under the symbol "SRA" and is expected to be listed on the TASE, with such listings expected to be effective as of the closing date of the Mergers. The Combined Company does not currently intend to continue to conduct the quarterly tender offers conducted by Sierra prior to the Mergers, and the Combined Company Common Stock may trade at a discount to NAV.

Q: When and where are the stockholder meetings?

A: Sierra: The Sierra Special Meeting will take place on February 8, 2019 at 1:00 P.M., Eastern Time, at the offices of Eversheds Sutherland (US) LLP located at 1114 Avenue of the Americas, 40th Floor, New York, New York 10036.

MCC: The MCC Special Meeting will take place on February 8, 2019 at 9:00 A.M., Eastern Time, at the offices of Eversheds Sutherland (US) LLP located at 1114 Avenue of the Americas, 40th Floor, New York, New York 10036.

MDLY: The MDLY Special Meeting will take place on February 8, 2019 at 3:00 P.M., Eastern Time, at the offices of Eversheds Sutherland (US) LLP located at 1114 Avenue of the Americas, 40th Floor, New York, New York 10036.

Q: What is happening at the Sierra Special Meeting, the MCC Special Meeting, and the MDLY Special Meeting?

A: Sierra: Sierra Stockholders are being asked to consider and vote on the following matters at the Sierra Special Meeting:

- a proposal to approve the MCC Merger;
- a proposal to approve the MDLY Merger;
- a proposal to approve the issuance of the shares of Sierra Common Stock to be issued pursuant to each of the MCC Merger Agreement and the MDLY Merger Agreement at a price below its then current NAV per share, if applicable;
- a proposal to adopt the Sierra Incentive Plan ;
- proposals to adopt the Sierra Charter Amendments;
- a proposal to approve the Combined Company Investment Advisory Agreement; and
- a proposal to approve the adjournment of the Sierra Special Meeting, if necessary or appropriate, to solicit additional proxies if there are not sufficient votes at the time of the Sierra Special Meeting to approve the foregoing proposals.

MCC: MCC Stockholders are being asked to consider and vote on the following matters at the MCC Special Meeting:

- a proposal to approve the adoption of the MCC Merger Agreement; and
- a proposal to approve the adjournment of the MCC Special Meeting, if necessary or appropriate, to solicit additional proxies if there are not sufficient votes at the time of the MCC Special Meeting to approve the adoption of the MCC Merger Agreement.

MDLY: MDLY Stockholders are being asked to consider and vote on the following matters at the MDLY Special Meeting:

- a proposal to approve the adoption of the MDLY Merger Agreement; and
- a proposal to approve the adjournment of the MDLY Special Meeting, if necessary or appropriate, to solicit additional proxies if there are not sufficient votes at the time of the MDLY Special Meeting to approve the adoption of the MDLY Merger Agreement.

Q: How do I vote?

A: Sierra: If you are a holder of record of shares of Sierra Common Stock as of the close of business on the Sierra Record Date, you may vote on the applicable proposals by:

- attending the Sierra Special Meeting in person as specified on the enclosed proxy card;
- accessing the Internet website specified on the enclosed proxy card;
- calling the toll-free number specified on the enclosed proxy card; or
- signing and returning the enclosed proxy card in the postage-paid envelope provided.

All shares of Sierra Common Stock represented by properly executed proxies received in time for the Sierra Special Meeting will be voted in the manner specified by the Sierra Stockholders giving those proxies. Unless your shares are held in a brokerage account, if you sign, date and send the enclosed proxy card and do not indicate how you want to vote on a proposal, your proxy will be voted for each of the Sierra proposals.

If you hold shares of Sierra Common Stock in the name of a broker, bank or nominee, please follow the voting instructions provided by your broker, bank or nominee to ensure that your shares are represented at the Sierra Special Meeting.

MCC: If you are a holder of record of shares of MCC Common Stock as of the close of business on the MCC Record Date, you may vote on the applicable proposals by:

- attending the MCC Special Meeting in person as specified on the enclosed proxy card;
- accessing the Internet website specified on the enclosed proxy card;
- calling the toll-free number specified on the enclosed proxy card; or
- signing and returning the enclosed WHITE proxy card in the postage-paid envelope provided.

All shares of MCC Common Stock represented by properly executed proxies received in time for the MCC Special Meeting will be voted in the manner specified by the MCC Stockholders giving those proxies. Unless your shares are held in a brokerage account, if you sign, date and send the enclosed proxy card and do not indicate how you want to vote on a proposal, your proxy will be voted for each of the MCC proposals.

If you hold shares MCC Common Stock in the name of a broker, bank or nominee, please follow the voting instructions provided by your broker, bank or nominee to ensure that your shares are represented at the MCC Special Meeting.

MDLY: If you are a holder of record of shares of MDLY Common Stock as of the close of business on the MDLY Record Date, you may vote on the applicable proposals by:

- attending the MDLY Special Meeting in person as specified on the enclosed proxy card;
- accessing the Internet website specified on the enclosed proxy card;
- calling the toll-free number specified on the enclosed proxy card; or
- signing and returning the enclosed proxy card in the postage-paid envelope provided.

All shares of MDLY Common Stock represented by properly executed proxies received in time for the MDLY Special Meeting will be voted in the manner specified by the MDLY Stockholders giving those proxies. Unless your shares are held in a brokerage account, if you sign, date and send the enclosed proxy card and do not indicate how you want to vote on a proposal, your proxy will be voted for each of the MDLY proposals.

If you hold shares of MDLY Common Stock in the name of a broker, bank or nominee, please follow the voting instructions provided by your broker, bank or nominee to ensure that your shares are represented at the MDLY Special Meeting.

Q: What constitutes a quorum at the stockholder meetings?

A: Sierra: The presence, in person or by proxy, of the holders of one-third of issued and outstanding shares of Sierra Common Stock as of the Sierra Record Date will constitute a quorum for the purposes of the Sierra Special Meeting.

MCC: The presence, in person or by proxy, of the holders of a majority of issued and outstanding shares of MCC Common Stock as of the MCC Record Date will constitute a quorum for the purposes of the MCC Special Meeting.

MDLY: The presence, in person or by proxy, of the holders of a majority in voting power of MDLY Common Stock issued and outstanding as of the MDLY Record Date will constitute a quorum for the purposes of the MDLY Special Meeting.

Q: How do the boards of directors of Sierra, MCC and MDLY recommend that I vote?

A: Sierra: Based upon the recommendation of the Sierra Special Committee, the Sierra Board unanimously recommends Sierra Stockholders vote “FOR” each of the Sierra proposals.

MCC: Based upon the recommendation of the MCC Special Committee, the MCC Board unanimously recommends MCC Stockholders vote “FOR” the approval of the adoption of the MCC Merger Agreement and “FOR” the adjournment of the MCC Special Meeting, if necessary or appropriate, to solicit additional proxies if there are not sufficient votes at the time of the MCC Special Meeting to approve the adoption of the MCC Merger Agreement.

MDLY: Based upon the recommendation of the MDLY Special Committee, the MDLY Board unanimously recommends MDLY Stockholders vote “FOR” the approval of the adoption of the MDLY Merger Agreement and “FOR” the adjournment of the MDLY Special Meeting, if necessary or appropriate, to solicit additional proxies if there are not sufficient votes at the time of the MDLY Special Meeting to approve the adoption of the MDLY Merger Agreement.

Q: What Sierra Stockholder vote is required to approve the Sierra proposals?

A: With regard to Sierra Proposal #1 (approval of MCC Merger), and Sierra Proposal #2 (approval of MDLY Merger) the holders of a majority of the outstanding shares of Sierra Common Stock as of the Sierra Record Date must affirmatively vote “FOR” in order for it to be approved. Because the vote on each proposal is based on the total number of shares of Sierra Common Stock outstanding, abstentions and “broker non-votes” will have the same effect as voting “AGAINST” the approval of the proposal.

With regard to Sierra Proposal #3 (issuance of Sierra Common Stock pursuant to each of the MCC Merger Agreement and the MDLY Merger Agreement), under the Investment Company Act, Sierra is not permitted to issue shares of Sierra Common Stock at a price below the then current NAV per share unless such issuance is approved by a majority of the holders of (1) the outstanding shares of Sierra Common Stock and (2) the outstanding shares of Sierra Common Stock held by persons who are not affiliated persons of Sierra. The vote of holders of a “majority,” as defined in the Investment Company Act, means the vote of the holders of the lesser of (1) 67% or more of the outstanding shares of Sierra Common Stock present or represented by proxy at the Sierra Special Meeting if the holders of more than 50% of the shares of Sierra Common Stock are present or represented by proxy or (2) more than 50% of the outstanding shares of Sierra Common Stock. In order to issue shares at a price below NAV pursuant to this approval, the Sierra Board would need to make certain determinations as required under the Investment Company Act. Abstentions and “broker non-votes” will have the effect of a vote “AGAINST” the proposal. See “The Special Meeting of Sierra—Vote Required” (page 253 of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus) for more information on Sierra Proposal #3.

With regard to Sierra Proposal #4 (adoption of the Sierra Incentive Plan), the majority of the votes cast by the holders of Sierra Common Stock as of the Sierra Record Date present or represented by proxy at the Sierra Special Meeting must affirmatively vote “FOR” Sierra Proposal #4 in order for it to be approved (meaning the number of shares voted “FOR” a proposal must exceed the number of shares voted “AGAINST” such proposal). Abstentions have the same effect as votes cast against the proposal, while “broker non-votes” will not be included in determining the number of votes cast and, as a result, do not affect the outcome.

With regard to Sierra Proposal #5 (adoption of the Sierra Charter Amendments), the requisite Sierra Stockholder approval is dependent on the particular Sierra Charter Amendment being considered, as described below.

- The holders of shares of Sierra Common Stock entitled to cast a majority of all the votes entitled to be cast as of the Sierra Record Date must affirmatively vote “FOR” the approval of each of Charter Amendment Proposals #5(A)(i) through (A)(xi) in order for it to be approved. Abstentions and “broker non-votes” will not count as affirmative votes cast and will therefore have the same effect as votes “AGAINST” each of Charter Amendment Proposals #5(A)(i) through (A)(xi).
- The holders of shares of Sierra Common Stock entitled to cast a majority of all the votes entitled to be cast as of the Sierra Record Date must affirmatively vote “FOR” the approval of Charter Amendment Proposal #5(B). Abstentions and “broker non-votes” will not count as affirmative votes cast and will therefore have the same effect as votes “AGAINST” Charter Amendment Proposal #5(B).
- The holders of shares of Sierra Common Stock entitled to cast a majority of all the votes entitled to be cast on the matter as of the Sierra Record Date must affirmatively vote “FOR” the approval of Charter Amendment Proposal #5(C). Abstentions and “broker non-votes” will not count as affirmative votes cast and will therefore have the same effect as votes “AGAINST” Charter Amendment Proposal #5(C).
- The holders of shares of Sierra Common Stock entitled to cast a majority of all the votes entitled to be cast on the matter as of the Sierra Record Date must affirmatively vote “FOR” the approval of Charter Amendment Proposal #5(D). Abstentions and “broker non-votes” will not count as affirmative votes cast and will therefore have the same effect as votes “AGAINST” Charter Amendment Proposal #5(D).
- The holders of shares of Sierra Common Stock entitled to cast at least two-thirds of all the votes entitled to be cast as of the Sierra Record Date must affirmatively vote “FOR” the approval of Charter Amendment Proposal #5(E). Abstentions and “broker non-votes” will not count as affirmative votes cast and will therefore have the same effect as votes “AGAINST” Charter Amendment Proposal #5(E).

With regard to Sierra Proposal #6 (approval of the Combined Company Investment Advisory Agreement), a majority of the holders of (1) the outstanding shares of Sierra Common Stock as of the Sierra Record Date and (2) the outstanding shares of Sierra Common Stock as of the Sierra Record Date held by persons who are not affiliated persons of Sierra, each must affirmatively vote “FOR” the proposal in order for it to be approved. The vote of holders of a “majority,” as defined in the Investment Company Act, means the vote of the holders of the lesser of (1) 67% or more of the outstanding shares of Sierra Common Stock present or represented by proxy at the Sierra Special Meeting if the holders of more than 50% of the shares of Sierra Common Stock are present or represented by proxy or (2) more than 50% of the outstanding shares of Sierra Common Stock. Because the vote on the proposal is based on the total number of shares outstanding, abstentions and “broker non-votes” will have the same effect as voting “AGAINST” the approval of the proposal.

Q: What MCC Stockholder vote is required to approve MCC Proposal #1 (approval of the adoption of the MCC Merger Agreement)?

A: A majority of the outstanding shares of MCC Common Stock as of the MCC Record Date must affirmatively vote “FOR” MCC Proposal #1 in order for it to be approved. Because the vote on the proposal is based on the total number of shares of MCC Common Stock outstanding, abstentions and “broker non-votes” will have the same effect as voting “AGAINST” the approval of the proposal.

Q: What MDLY Stockholder vote is required to approve MDLY Proposal #1 (approval of the adoption of the MDLY Merger Agreement)?

A : The holders of a majority of the voting power of the outstanding shares of MDLY Common Stock as of the MDLY Record Date must affirmatively vote “FOR” MDLY Proposal #1 in order for it to be approved. Because the vote on the proposal is based on the total number of shares of MDLY Common Stock outstanding, abstentions and “broker non-votes” will have the same effect as voting “AGAINST” the approval of the proposal. As a result of the voting control of Medley Group LLC of 97.7%, the approval of the adoption of the MDLY Merger Agreement by MDLY Stockholders is assured.

Q: How were the actual and potential conflicts of interests addressed in consideration of the approval of the Mergers?

A : Various safeguards were implemented to protect against actual and potential conflicts of interests in light of the fact that the Mergers required agreement among Management and three affiliated, separate and distinct public entities, one of which, MDLY, is controlled by Management through majority equity ownership and two of which, Sierra and MCC, are managed by subsidiaries of MDLY. In order to mitigate such conflicts, each of the Sierra Board, the MCC Board, and the MDLY Board formed a special committee, comprised solely of independent directors of each respective board. Each of the Sierra Special Committee, MCC Special Committee and MDLY Special Committee exercised the authority, granted by each respective board, to hire advisors that it deemed appropriate, including in each case its own independent legal counsel and independent financial advisor. For a more detailed discussion of the processes undertaken to mitigate Management’s conflicts of interests and role in the Mergers, see “Special Factors—Background of the Mergers—Management’s Conflicts of Interests and Role in the Mergers” (page 60 of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus). For a more detailed description of the process undertaken by each of the Sierra Special Committee, the MCC Special Committee, and the MDLY Special Committee, see “Special Factors — Background of the Mergers — Sierra” (page 61 of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus), “Special Factors — Background of the Mergers — MCC”, (page 71 of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus), and “Special Factors — Background of the Mergers — MDLY” (page 74 of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus).

Q: Did the Sierra Special Committee, the MCC Special Committee, the MDLY Special Committee, and the MDLY Board receive opinions from financial advisors regarding the merger consideration?

A : Sierra: Yes. For more information, see “Special Factors — Opinion of Financial Advisor to the Sierra Special Committee” (page 94 of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus).

MCC: Yes. For more information, see “Special Factors — Opinion of Financial Advisor to the MCC Special Committee” (page 104 of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus).

MDLY: Yes. For more information, see “Special Factors — Opinion of Financial Advisor to the MDLY Special Committee” (page 112 of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus), and “Special Factors — Opinion of Financial Advisor to the MDLY Board” (page 124 of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus).

Q: Who is responsible for paying the expenses relating to completing the Mergers, including the preparation of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus and the solicitation of proxies?

A : In general, Sierra, MCC, and MDLY will each be responsible for its own fees and expenses incurred in connection with the MCC Merger Agreement and the MDLY Merger Agreement and the transactions contemplated thereby, including the completion of the MCC Merger and the MDLY Merger, as the case may be, irrespective of whether the Mergers are completed. However, the costs and expenses of preparing, filing, printing and mailing this Registration Statement on Form N-14 and related Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus, all other filing fees and amounts paid to the SEC in connection with the Mergers, and the fees of any filings under the HSR Act, will be borne equally by Sierra, MCC, and MDLY. See “Description of the MCC Merger Agreement — Transaction Expenses” (page 282 of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus) and “Description of the MDLY Merger Agreement — Transaction Expenses” (page 307 of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus).

Q: Will I receive dividends after the effective time of the MCC Merger and the MDLY Merger?

A : To the extent Sierra, as the Combined Company, declares and pays dividends on the Sierra Common Stock, all holders of Sierra Common Stock (including former holders of MCC Common Stock and MDLY Class A Common Stock) as of the relevant record dates will be entitled to receive such dividends. However, no dividends or other distributions declared with respect to Sierra Common Stock to stockholders of record on or after the MCC Merger Effective Time or MDLY Merger Effective Time will be paid to the holder of any unsurrendered certificate of MCC Common Stock or MDLY Class A Common Stock, as applicable, unless and until the holder thereof has surrendered such certificate in accordance with the terms of the relevant merger agreement. Subject to the effect of applicable abandoned property, escheat or similar laws, following surrender of any such certificate, the record holder of such certificate will be entitled to receive, without interest, (i) the amount of dividends or other distributions with a record date after the effective time theretofore payable with respect to the whole shares of Sierra Common Stock represented by such certificate and not paid to the relevant stockholder prior to the date of surrender, and/or (ii) at the appropriate payment date, the amount of dividends or other distributions payable with respect to whole shares of Sierra Common Stock represented by such certificate with a record date after the effective time (but before such surrender date) and with a payment date subsequent to the surrender date. For a history of the dividends and distributions paid by Sierra, MCC, and MDLY, see “Market Price, Dividend and Distribution Information” (page 394 of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus).

Q: Are there any conditions to the MCC Merger Closing that must be satisfied for the MCC Merger to be completed?

A: Yes. In addition to the approvals of the Sierra Stockholders and MCC Stockholders described herein, there are a number of conditions that must be satisfied or waived for the MCC Merger to be consummated, including but not limited to: (a) obtaining an exemptive order from the SEC in connection with the Mergers, (b) approval of the SBA for the debentures issued by the SBIC Subsidiary to remain outstanding, (c) expiration or termination of any applicable waiting period (and any extension thereof) under the HSR Act, (d) receipt of certain third party consents and approvals relating to joint venture arrangements of Sierra and MCC and certain consents relating to private funds and managed accounts of MDLY, and (e) confirmation from the SEC that Merger Sub will, following the MDLY Merger be treated as a portfolio investment and will not be consolidated on the Combined Company’s financial statements. See “Description of the MCC Merger Agreement—Conditions to the MCC Merger” (page 283 of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus).

Q: Are there any conditions to the MDLY Merger Closing that must be satisfied for the MDLY Merger to be completed?

A: Yes. In addition to the approvals of the Sierra Stockholders and MDLY Stockholders described herein, there are a number of conditions that must be satisfied or waived for the MDLY Merger to be consummated, including but not limited to: (a) obtaining an exemptive order from the SEC in connection with the Mergers, (b) on (and not sooner than) the MDLY Merger Closing Date, conversion of all issued and outstanding Medley LLC Units (including Medley LLC Restricted Units that have vested) other than Medley LLC Units held by MDLY, into MDLY Class A Common Stock in accordance with the Exchange Agreement, (c) execution, delivery and effectiveness of the Tax Receivable Termination Agreement, (d) MDLY obtaining written consents relating to the continuation, following the MDLY Merger Effective Time, of the advisory relationship with private funds and managed accounts representing 65% of MDLY's total revenues from private funds and managed accounts for the 12-month period ended as of June 30, 2018, (e) confirmation from the SEC in a manner reasonably acceptable to the parties that the equity of Merger Sub will, following the MDLY Merger, be treated as a portfolio investment of the Combined Company and reflected in the Combined Company's consolidated financial statements at fair value for accounting purposes, and that Merger Sub's financial results will not be consolidated into the Combined Company's financial statements, and (f) entry by specified executives into employment agreements, effective at the MDLY Merger Effective Time, on terms set forth in the MDLY Merger Agreement. See "Description of the MDLY Merger Agreement — Conditions to the MDLY Merger" (page 307 of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus).

Q: How will the Combined Company be managed following the completion of the Mergers?

A: On November 6, 2018, the Sierra Board took the necessary actions to appoint individuals to serve as directors and executive officers of the Combined Company. Effective as of the closing of the Mergers, the following actions will occur with respect to the Combined Company Board: (1) Seth Taube will resign from his positions as a director and Chief Executive Officer of Sierra, (2) Brook Taube will be appointed as Chief Executive Officer and Chief Investment Officer of the Combined Company and Chairman of the Combined Company Board, and (3) Karin Hirtler-Garvey and John E. Mack, each of whom are currently independent directors of MCC, will become independent directors of the Combined Company. The current independent directors of Sierra, Oliver T. Kane, Valerie Lancaster-Beal, and Stephen R. Byers, will continue as directors of the Combined Company Board.

Effective as of the closing of the Mergers, the following persons will serve as the Combined Company's executive officers or key employees in the following capacities:

Name	Position(s) Held
Brook Taube	Chief Executive Officer, Chief Investment Officer and Chairman of the Combined Company Board
Seth Taube	Vice Chairman, Senior Executive Vice President, and Senior Managing Director
Jeff Tonkel	President
Richard T. Allorto, Jr.	Chief Financial Officer, Treasurer, Senior Executive Vice President, and Senior Managing Director
John D. Fredericks	General Counsel, Chief Compliance Officer, Secretary, Senior Executive Vice President, and Senior Managing Director
Samuel Anderson	Head of Capital Markets & Risk Management, Senior Executive Vice President, and Senior Managing Director
Christopher Taube	Head of Institutional Fundraising, Senior Executive Vice President, and Senior Managing Director

For more information regarding the management of the Combined Company, see "Information about the Combined Company — Management" (page 678 of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus).

Q: How do Sierra’s investment objective and strategies differ from MCC’s investment objective and strategies?

A: The following table presents a comparison of Sierra’s and MCC’s investment objective and strategies:

	Sierra	MCC
Investment Objective	To generate current income, and to a lesser extent, long-term capital appreciation by primarily lending to and investing in the debt of privately-owned U.S. middle-market companies	To generate current income and capital appreciation by lending to privately-owned middle market companies, primarily through directly originated transactions
Investment Focus	First lien senior secured debt, second lien secured debt and, to a lesser extent, subordinated debt	Senior secured first lien loans and senior secured second lien loans
Investment Range	Investment sizes will vary as Sierra’s capital base changes and will ultimately be at the discretion of SIC Advisors subject to oversight by the Sierra Board	Between $10 million and $50 million
Target Borrower	U.S. companies operating in a broad range of industries with annual revenue between $50 million and $1 billion	U.S. companies operating in a variety of industries with enterprise or asset values between $25 million and $250 million
Equity and Equity-Related Investments	May make equity investments in companies that Sierra believes will generate appropriate risk adjusted returns, although Sierra does not expect such investments to be a substantial portion of its portfolio	In connection with some of MCC’s investments, MCC receives warrants or other equity participation features

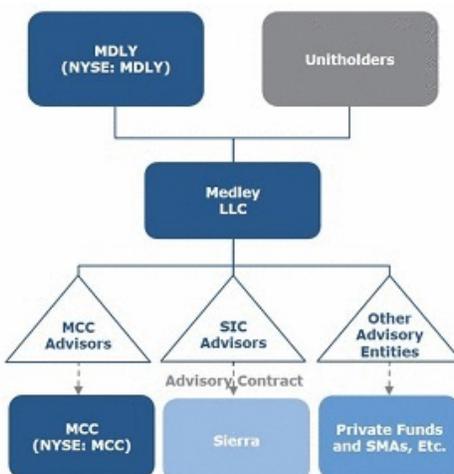

Following the completion of the Mergers, the Combined Company’s investment objective and principal investment strategies will be the same as Sierra’s current investment objective and principal investment strategies, as described above. In connection with the Mergers, neither Sierra nor MCC expects to sell any investments in order for such investments to comply with the Combined Company’s investment objective and principal investment strategies.

SIC Advisors currently serves as the registered investment adviser of Sierra, MCC Advisors currently serves as the registered investment adviser of MCC, and, following the consummation of the Mergers, MCC Advisors will serve as the wholly owned registered investment adviser of the Combined Company.

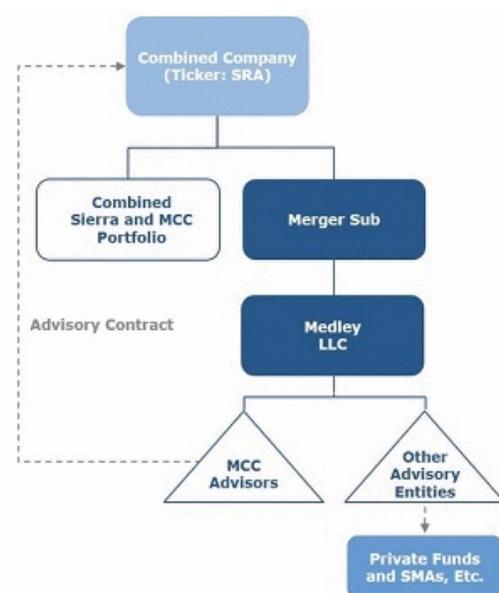

Q: What will the Combined Company look like following the completion of the Mergers?

A : Upon the completion of the Mergers, the investment management function relating to the operation of the Combined Company will be internalized and Merger Sub, as the surviving company in the MDLY Merger, will be a wholly owned subsidiary and wholly owned portfolio company of the Combined Company.

Simplified Structure before the Completion of the Mergers

Simplified Structure Following the Completion of the Mergers

The following table presents the mix of investments for Sierra and MCC as of September 30, 2018 and pro forma for the Combined Company as of September 30, 2018:

	Actual Sierra	Actual MCC	Pro Forma Combined Company
Senior Secured First Lien Term Loans	50.8%	60.3%	54.5%
Senior Secured Second Lien Term Loans	18.7	7.5	14.2
Senior Secured First Lien Notes	4.4	2.9	3.8
Subordinated Notes	8.0	—	4.8
Unsecured Debt	—	0.5	0.2
Sierra Senior Loan Strategy JV I LLC / MCC Senior Loan Strategy JV I LLC	9.0	11.9	10.2
Equity/Warrants	9.1	16.9	12.3
Total	100.0%	100.0%	100.0%

For information about Sierra’s and MCC’s total assets, total liabilities and NAV per share as of September 30, 2018 and the pro forma Combined Company’s total assets, total liabilities and NAV per share as of September 30, 2018, see “Unaudited Pro Forma Condensed Consolidated Financial Statements” (page 330 of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus).

Q: What is expected to happen to annual expenses following the completion of the Mergers?

A: As is shown in more detail in “Comparative Fees and Expenses,” the Companies expect that the estimated pro forma combined expenses, as a percentage of NAV, will be lower than MCC’s historical expenses and higher than Sierra’s historical expenses. Specifically, the estimated total annual expenses, as a percentage of NAV, is projected to be 8.52%, 17.68%, and 10.59% of a stockholder’s investment in Sierra, MCC, and the pro forma Combined Company, respectively. The expense comparisons do not take into account the operating expenses of Merger Sub, which are not consolidated into the Combined Company’s financial statements (but which are indirectly borne by the Combined Company’s stockholders). Following the completion of the Mergers, the Companies expect that the Combined Company will achieve certain cost savings and synergies when the investment portfolios of Sierra and MCC are integrated and the businesses and administrative operations of Sierra, MCC, and MDLY are integrated. Such cost savings and synergies include the benefit of reduced expenses due to the elimination of duplicative expenses of approximately $3.5 million consisting of professional fees associated with audit, tax, valuation and legal services, transfer agent fees, board of director fees, director and officer insurance, administrator expenses, and other public company expenses, which are reflected in the pro forma Combined Company expenses set forth in the “Comparative Fees and Expenses” table.

Q: What percentage of the Combined Company Common Stock will Sierra Stockholders, MCC Stockholders, and MDLY Stockholders own following the consummation of the Mergers?

A : If the Mergers are completed, based on the number of shares of Sierra Common Stock issued and outstanding as of September 30, 2018, Sierra Stockholders will own approximately 60.5% of the outstanding Combined Company Common Stock, MCC Stockholders will own approximately 31.2% of the outstanding Combined Company Common Stock, and MDLY Stockholders will own approximately 8.3% of the outstanding Combined Company Common Stock.

Q: Are the Sierra Stockholders, the MCC Stockholders, and the MDLY Stockholders able to exercise dissenters’ rights or appraisal rights?

A : Sierra: Sierra Stockholders will not have the right to exercise dissenters’ rights of appraisal in connection with either the MCC Merger or the MDLY Merger.

MCC: MCC Stockholders will not have the right to exercise dissenters’ rights of appraisal in connection with the MCC Merger.

MDLY: MDLY Stockholders are entitled to appraisal rights under Section 262 of the DGCL in connection with the MDLY Merger, provided they follow the procedures and satisfy the conditions set forth in Section 262 of the DGCL. A copy of Section 262 of the DGCL is attached as Appendix L to this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus. Failure to strictly comply with Section 262 will result in the loss of appraisal rights. A proxy or vote against the MDLY Merger proposal will not be deemed an appraisal demand. Due to the complexity of the provisions of Section 262 of the DGCL, any MDLY Stockholder considering exercising its appraisal rights under Section 262 of the DGCL is urged to consult his, her or its own legal advisor. See “Description of the MDLY Merger Agreement — Appraisal Rights” (page 290 of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus) and “Appraisal Rights of MDLY Stockholders” (page 711 of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus).

Q: When do Sierra, MCC, and MDLY expect to complete the Mergers?

A: While there can be no assurance as to the exact timing, or that the Mergers will be completed at all, Sierra, MCC, and MDLY anticipate that the MCC Merger and the MDLY Merger will close in the first quarter of 2019. Sierra, MCC, and MDLY currently expect to complete the Mergers promptly following receipt of the required approvals at the Sierra Special Meeting, the MCC Special Meeting, and the MDLY Special Meeting and satisfaction of the other closing conditions set forth in the MCC Merger Agreement and the MDLY Merger Agreement, and as described above and in this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus.

Q: Is the MCC Merger expected to be taxable to stockholders?

A: For U.S. federal income tax purposes, the parties intend for and expect the MCC Merger to be treated as a tax-free reorganization. As a result, MCC Stockholders generally should not recognize gain or loss as result of the MCC Merger except to the extent that they receive cash in lieu of fractional shares of Sierra Common Stock. Holders of MCC Common Stock should consult their own tax advisors concerning the tax consequences of the MCC Merger to them in light of their own unique circumstances.

Q: Is the MDLY Merger expected to be taxable to stockholders?

A: For U.S. federal income tax purposes, the parties intend for and expect the MDLY Merger to be treated as a tax-free reorganization. Holders of MDLY Class A Common Stock should consult their own tax advisors concerning the tax consequences of the MDLY Merger to them in light of their own unique circumstances.

Q: What happens if the Mergers are not completed?

A : If the Mergers are not completed for any reason, including failure to receive the necessary stockholder approvals at the Sierra Special Meeting, the MCC Special Meeting or the MDLY Special Meeting, the MCC Stockholders and MDLY Stockholders will not receive any payment for their respective shares in connection with the Mergers. Instead, each of Sierra, MCC and MDLY will remain a separate public company. In addition, if the Mergers are not completed, the ongoing businesses of Sierra, MCC, and MDLY may be adversely affected due to negative reactions from the financial markets and from their respective customers if the anticipated benefits of the Mergers are not able to be realized. See “Risk Factors — Risks Relating to the Mergers — There can be no assurances when or if the Mergers will be completed” (page 138 of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus), and “Risk Factors — Risks Relating to the Mergers — If the Mergers do not close, neither Sierra, MCC, nor MDLY will benefit from the expenses incurred in its pursuit” (page 142 of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus).

Under the MCC Merger Agreement, Sierra and MCC may be obligated, under certain circumstances, to pay the other party a termination fee of $6,000,000 in cash (the “MCC Merger Termination Fee”). See “Description of the MCC Merger Agreement — Termination Fees” (page 286 of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus) for a discussion of the circumstances that could result in the payment of a termination fee under the MCC Merger Agreement. Under the MDLY Merger Agreement, Sierra and MDLY may be obligated, under certain circumstances, to pay the other party a termination fee of $5,350,000 in cash (the “MDLY Merger Termination Fee”). See “Description of the MDLY Merger Agreement — Termination Fees” (page 310 of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus) for a discussion of the circumstances that could result in the payment of a termination fee under the MDLY Merger Agreement.

Q: What do I need to do now?

A : Sierra, MCC, and MDLY urge you to read carefully this entire Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus, including its appendices, and vote your shares. You should also review the documents referenced under “Where You Can Find More Information” and consult with your accounting, legal and tax advisors.

Q: If I am a Sierra Stockholder, MCC Stockholder or a MDLY Stockholder, what happens if I sell my shares before the Sierra Special Meeting, the MCC Special Meeting or the MDLY Special Meeting, respectively?

A : The record date of the Sierra Special Meeting, the MCC Special Meeting, and the MDLY Special Meeting is earlier than the date the Mergers are expected to be completed. If you transfer your shares of Sierra Common Stock, MCC Common Stock, or MDLY Common Stock after the record date but before the closing of the Mergers, you will retain your right to vote at the applicable special meeting, but a MCC Stockholder or a MDLY Stockholder will have transferred the right to receive the MCC Merger Consideration or the MDLY Merger Consideration, as the case may be, payable for each share of MCC Common Stock or MDLY Common Stock, as the case may be. In order to receive the MCC Merger Consideration or MDLY Merger Consideration, as the case may be, you must hold your shares of MCC Common Stock or MDLY Common Stock through completion of the Mergers.

Q: If I want to change my vote, what can I do?

A : You may change your vote at any time before the Sierra Special Meeting, the MCC Special Meeting and the MDLY Special Meeting, as applicable, takes place. To do so, you may either complete and submit a new proxy card or send a written notice stating that you would like to revoke your proxy. You may also change your vote by calling the proxy solicitor or via the Internet pursuant to the instructions shown on the proxy card and simply authorizing a new proxy to vote your shares. The last recorded vote will be the vote that is counted. In addition, if you are a record holder or a beneficial holder who obtains legal proxy, you may elect to attend your special meeting, and vote in person, as described above.

Q: If I am a MCC Stockholder or a MDLY Stockholder and my shares are represented by stock certificates, should I send them in now?

A: No. MCC Stockholders or MDLY Stockholders should not send in their stock certificates at this time. If the Mergers are completed, Sierra's exchange agent will send former MCC Stockholders and MDLY Stockholders a letter of transmittal explaining what they must do to exchange their shares of MCC Common Stock or MDLY Class A Common Stock, as applicable, for the MCC Merger Consideration or MDLY Merger Consideration payable to them.

Q: Whom can I contact with any additional questions?

A: Sierra and MCC:

Q: Where can I find more information about Sierra, MCC, and MDLY?

A: You can find more information about Sierra, MCC, and MDLY in the documents described under "Where You Can Find More Information" (page 721 of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus).

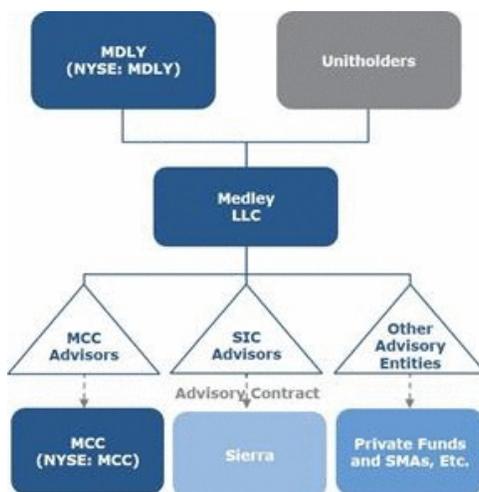

SUMMARY

This summary highlights some of the information contained elsewhere in this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus. It is not complete and may not contain all of the information that you may want to consider. Sierra, MCC and MDLY urge you to read carefully this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus, its appendices and the documents referred to herein, including “Risk Factors” beginning on page 138 of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus, for a more complete understanding of the Mergers and the various proposals you are being asked to consider at your stockholder meeting. See “Where You Can Find More Information” on page 721 of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus. Each item in this summary includes a page reference directing you to a more complete description of that item.

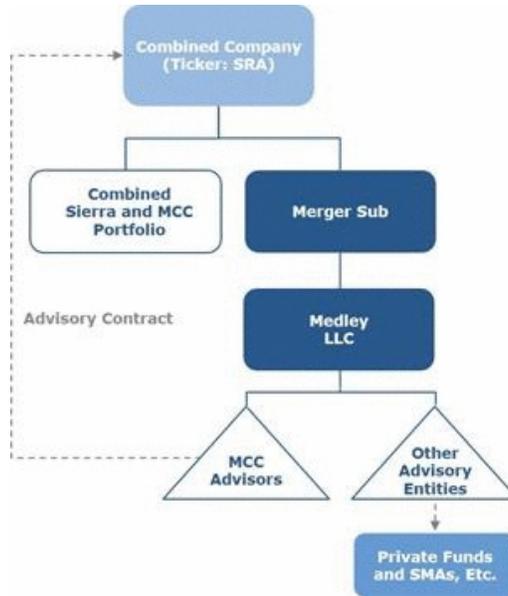

Sierra and MCC Propose a Merger of MCC with and into Sierra and Sierra and MDLY Propose a Merger of MDLY with and into Merger Sub (see page 56 of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus)

Subject to the terms and conditions of the MCC Merger Agreement and the MDLY Merger Agreement, the Mergers will result in the formation of an internally managed BDC, which will in turn wholly own a registered investment adviser. In the MCC Merger, MCC would, on the terms and subject to the conditions set forth in the MCC Merger Agreement, merge with and into Sierra, with Sierra continuing as the surviving company in the MCC Merger. In the MCC Merger, shares of MCC Common Stock will be converted into the right to receive 0.8050 shares of Sierra Common Stock. In the MDLY Merger, MDLY would, on the terms and subject to the conditions set forth in the MDLY Merger Agreement, merge with and into Merger Sub, with Merger Sub continuing as the surviving company in the MDLY Merger. In the MDLY Merger, each share of MDLY Class A Common Stock issued and outstanding immediately prior to the MDLY Merger Effective Time (other than Dissenting Shares and Excluded Shares) will be converted into the right to receive (A) 0.3836 shares of Sierra Common Stock; plus (B) cash in an amount equal to $3.44 per share. In addition, the holders of MDLY Class A Common Stock issued and outstanding on the applicable record dates will have the right to receive $0.35 per share of the First Special Dividend (or other payments) and $0.30 per share of the Second Special Dividend (or other payments), to the extent and as described more fully below, as well as regularly scheduled dividends through closing of the MDLY Merger. Each share of MDLY Class B Common Stock issued and outstanding immediately prior to the MDLY Merger Effective Time (other than Dissenting Shares) will be canceled without consideration therefor.

Simplified Structure Following the Completion of the Mergers

If the Mergers are completed, based on the number of shares of Sierra Common Stock issued and outstanding as of September 30, 2018, Sierra Stockholders will own approximately 60.5% of the outstanding Combined Company Common Stock, MCC Stockholders will own approximately 31.2% of the outstanding Combined Company Common Stock, and MDLY Stockholders will own approximately 8.3% of the outstanding Combined Company Common Stock.

The MCC Merger Agreement and the MDLY Merger Agreement are attached as Appendix A and Appendix B to this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus, respectively, and are each incorporated by reference herein in its entirety. Sierra, MCC, and MDLY encourage their respective stockholders to read each of the MCC Merger Agreement and the MDLY Merger Agreement carefully and in its entirety, as it is the principal legal document governing the MCC Merger and the MDLY Merger, respectively.

The Parties to the Mergers

Sierra Income Corporation

At the Sierra Special Meeting, Sierra Stockholders will be asked to consider and vote on the following proposals:

- 1) a proposal to approve the MCC Merger;
- 2) a proposal to approve the MDLY Merger;
- 3) a proposal to approve the issuance of the shares of Sierra Common Stock to be issued pursuant to each of the MCC Merger Agreement and the MDLY Merger Agreement at a price below its then current NAV per share, if applicable;

- 4) a proposal to adopt the Sierra Incentive Plan;
- 5) a proposal to adopt the Sierra Charter Amendments;
- 6) a proposal to approve the Combined Company Investment Advisory Agreement; and
- 7) a proposal to approve the adjournment of the Sierra Special Meeting, if necessary or appropriate, to solicit additional proxies if there are not sufficient votes at the time of the Sierra Special Meeting to approve the foregoing proposals.

For more information, see “The Sierra Special Meeting.”

The MCC Special Meeting (see page 258 of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus)

The MCC Special Meeting will take place on February 8, 2019 at 9:00 A.M., Eastern Time, at the offices of Eversheds Sutherland (US) LLP located at 1114 Avenue of the Americas, 40th Floor, New York, New York 10036.

At the MCC Special Meeting, MCC Stockholders will be asked to consider and vote on the following proposals:

- 1) a proposal to approve the adoption of the MCC Merger Agreement; and
- 2) a proposal to approve the adjournment of the MCC Special Meeting, if necessary or appropriate, to solicit additional proxies if there are not sufficient votes at the time of the MCC Special Meeting to approve the adoption of the MCC Merger Agreement.

For more information, see “The MCC Special Meeting.”

The MDLY Special Meeting (see page 262 of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus)

The MDLY Special Meeting will take place on February 8, 2019 at 3:00 P.M., Eastern Time, at the offices of Eversheds Sutherland (US) LLP located at 1114 Avenue of the Americas, 40th Floor, New York, New York 10036.

- 2) a proposal to approve the adjournment of the MDLY Special Meeting, if necessary or appropriate, to solicit additional proxies if there are not sufficient votes at the time of the MDLY Special Meeting to approve the adoption of the MDLY Merger Agreement.

For more information, see “The MDLY Special Meeting.”

Distributions (see page 394 of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus)

In connection with the Mergers, on November 6, 2018, the Sierra Board approved a distribution guidance framework that set forth a target distribution rate for the Combined Company. In that regard, the Sierra Board determined that for each of the twelve months following the consummation of the Mergers, and subject to legally available funds, the Combined Company expects to pay monthly cash distributions to the holders of the Combined Company Common Stock equal to 5.500 cents per share, which will consist of a regular base distribution per share of 4.500 cents and a supplementary distribution per share of 1.000 cents and which is an increase from the monthly distribution of 5.334 cents per share currently paid by Sierra. Thereafter, the distribution will be determined subject to the Combined Company’s distribution policy and such distributions could decrease after the twelve month period.

In connection with the Mergers, Sierra intends to amend the Sierra Distribution Reinvestment Plan (the “Amended Sierra DRIP”) to, among other things, modify the terms pursuant to which shares are issued under the Sierra Distribution Reinvestment Plan.

Annual Expenses Expected Following the Completion of the Mergers (see page 51 of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus)

As is shown in more detail in “Comparative Fees and Expenses,” the Companies expect that the Combined Company’s estimated pro forma combined expenses, as a percentage of NAV, will be lower than MCC’s historical expenses and higher than Sierra’s historical expenses. Specifically, the estimated total annual expenses, as a percentage of NAV, is projected to be 8.52%, 17.68%, and 10.59% of a stockholder’s investment in Sierra, MCC, and the pro forma Combined Company, respectively. The expense comparisons do not take into account the operating expenses of Merger Sub, which are not consolidated into the Combined Company’s financial statements (but which are indirectly borne by the Combined Company’s stockholders). Following the completion of the Mergers, the Companies expect that the Combined Company will achieve certain cost savings and synergies when the investment portfolios of Sierra and MCC are integrated and the businesses and administrative operations of Sierra, MCC, and MDLY are integrated. Such cost savings and synergies include the benefit of reduced expenses due to the elimination of duplicative expenses of $3.5 million consisting of professional fees associated with audit, tax, valuation and legal services, transfer agent fees, board of director fees, director and officer insurance, administrator expenses, and other public company expenses, which are reflected in the pro forma Combined Company expenses set forth in the “Comparative Fees and Expenses” table.

Sierra and MCC intend for the MCC Merger to Qualify as a Tax-Free Reorganization (see page 315 of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus)

Sierra and MCC intend for the MCC Merger to qualify as a tax-free reorganization for U.S. federal income tax purposes. The completion of the MCC Merger is conditioned upon the receipt of an opinion (the “MCC Merger Tax Opinion”) from Eversheds Sutherland (US) LLP or other acceptable counsel, dated the MCC Merger Closing Date, substantially to the effect that the MCC Merger will qualify as a “reorganization” within the meaning of Section 368(a) of the Code.

For more information concerning the U.S. federal tax consequences of the MCC Merger, see “Material U.S. Federal Income Tax Consequences — Tax Consequences of the Mergers.” Holders of MCC Common Stock should consult their own tax advisors to determine the U.S. federal, state, local, and foreign tax consequences of the MCC Merger in light of their own unique circumstances.

Sierra and MDLY intend for the MDLY Merger to Qualify as a Tax-Free Reorganization (see page 315 of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus)

Sierra and MDLY intend for the MDLY Merger to qualify as a tax-free reorganization for U.S. federal income tax purposes. The completion of the MDLY Merger is conditioned upon the receipt of an opinion (the “MDLY Merger Tax Opinion”) from Eversheds Sutherland (US) LLP or other acceptable counsel, dated the MDLY Merger Closing Date, substantially to the effect that the MDLY Merger will qualify as a “reorganization” within the meaning of Section 368(a) of the Code.

The MCC Merger will be Treated as an Asset Acquisition (see page 314 of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus)

The MCC Merger will be accounted for in accordance with Accounting Standards Codification (“ASC”) 805, Business Combinations, which requires the determination of whether the transaction should be accounted for as a business combination or as an asset acquisition. The MCC Merger will be treated as an asset acquisition. See “Accounting Treatment — The MCC Merger.”

The MDLY Merger will be Accounted for as a Business Combination and Sierra will Reflect its Interest in Merger Sub as an Investment at Fair Value (see page 314 of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus)

Sierra will account for its acquisition of its interest in MDLY as an investment at fair value on its statement of assets and liabilities, in accordance with ASC 946-320, “Financial Services – Investment Companies – Investments – Debt and Equity Securities.” Sierra will apply the guidance in ASC 946-810, “Financial Services – Investment Companies – Application of Consolidation Guidance” in determining whether to consolidate an investee that is not an investment company. Consistent with the guidance in ASC 946-810, the Combined Company will not consolidate Merger Sub following the Mergers based on the fact that Merger Sub will not be an investment company and the initial determination that Merger Sub will not be providing substantially all of its services to the Combined Company following the Mergers.

Reasons for the Mergers

As set forth below, each of the Sierra Special Committee, the MCC Special Committee and the MDLY Special Committee conducted a thorough analysis of a variety of factors that formed the basis of each committee’s decision to recommend that their respective board of directors approve the MCC Merger Agreement and the MDLY Merger Agreement, and the transactions contemplated thereby, as applicable. For a more detailed discussion of the processes undertaken to mitigate Management’s conflicts of interests and role in the Mergers, see “Special Factors—Background of the Mergers—Management’s Conflicts of Interests and Role in the Mergers.” For a more detailed description of the process undertaken by each of the Sierra Special Committee, the MCC Special Committee, and the MDLY Special Committee, see “Special Factors — Background of the Mergers — Sierra,” “Special Factors — Background of the Mergers — MCC”, and “Special Factors — Background of the Mergers — MDLY.”

Sierra’s Reasons for the Mergers (see page 84 of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus)

The Sierra Special Committee unanimously determined that the MCC Merger Agreement, the MDLY Merger Agreement and the transactions contemplated thereby, including, without limitation, the MCC Merger and the MDLY Merger, are advisable and fair to, and in the best interests of, Sierra and the Sierra Stockholders.

In recommending that the Sierra Board approve the MCC Merger Agreement, the MDLY Merger Agreement and the transactions contemplated thereby, including the MCC Merger and the MDLY Merger, the Sierra Special Committee considered the terms of the MCC Merger Agreement, the MDLY Merger Agreement and the other transactions and agreements relating thereto. As part of its evaluation, the Sierra Special Committee considered the financial terms, risks/challenges, timing and uncertainties of alternatives available to Sierra, as well as financial information prepared by Management. The Sierra Special Committee consulted with outside financial and legal advisors and Management, and took into account a number of reasons, including, among others:

- the Mergers will increase the assets under management of the Combined Company, offering the potential for greater diversification and scale;
- the Mergers are expected to be accretive to Sierra's NIL, return on equity, and NAV;
- the Mergers offer the potential for achieving cost savings, operational efficiencies and synergies;
- the public listing of the Combined Company will provide liquidity for the Sierra Stockholders, and the market for the Combined Company's shares is likely to be superior to what would be expected if Sierra merely listed its shares;
- the Mergers will result in the internalization of management of the Combined Company, providing for greater control by the Board of the Combined Company and closer alignment of interests of Management and the Combined Company's stockholders;
- the fact that the Sierra Special Committee actively negotiated the terms of the Mergers and the final terms were materially different from the terms initially presented as a potential framework around which a transaction could be consummated;
- the renegotiation of the Tax Receivable Agreement is expected to provide benefits to the Combined Company because the Combined Company will no longer be contractually obligated to share substantially all of the tax savings associated with its tax basis step-up with Medley LLC Unitholders;
- the financial analyses and presentations prepared by Broadhaven Capital Partners ("Broadhaven") and its oral opinion delivered to the Sierra Special Committee on August 9, 2018, which was subsequently confirmed in writing by delivery of Broadhaven's written opinion dated August 9, 2018, to the effect that, as of that date and based upon and subject to various assumptions, limitations and qualifications described in its opinion, the total consideration to be paid and issued by Sierra pursuant to the MCC Merger Agreement and the MDLY Merger Agreement, considered as a whole and not in separate parts, was fair to Sierra from a financial point of view;
- the compensation to be paid to members of Management has been reviewed by the Special Committee's compensation consultant, which has advised that the proposed compensation is reasonable and competitive with peer companies;
- based on the MDLY Merger Consideration to be received by Management in connection with the Mergers (as described herein), the net effect of such merger consideration will be that Management will roll over approximately 100% of their after tax proceeds in connection with the Mergers into shares of Combined Company Common Stock, which shares will be subject to a 12-month lock-up period, which will more closely align the interests of Management and the Combined Company's stockholders;
- the investment objectives and principal investment strategies of Sierra and MCC are similar;
- the Mergers are expected to be tax-free to Sierra Stockholders; and
- the consummation of the Mergers is subject to significant conditions, including the requirement that the Mergers be approved by Sierra Stockholders.

In view of the variety of factors and the amount of information considered, as well as the complexity of that information, the Sierra Special Committee did not find it practicable to, and did not, quantify, rank or otherwise assign relative weights to the specific factors it considered in reaching its decisions. In addition, individual members of the Sierra Special Committee may have given different weight to different factors. The above factors are not listed in any particular order of priority. In the judgment of the Sierra Special Committee, the potential risks associated with the MCC Merger Agreement, the MDLY Merger Agreement and the transactions contemplated thereby, including the MCC Merger and the MDLY Merger, were favorably offset by the potential benefits of the MCC Merger Agreement, the MDLY Merger Agreement and the transactions contemplated thereby, including the MCC Merger and the MDLY Merger. This explanation of the Sierra Special Committee's reasoning, and all other information presented in this section, is forward-looking in nature and, therefore, should be read in light of the factors discussed under the section entitled "Special Note Regarding Forward-Looking Statements."

See "Special Factors — Reasons for the Mergers — Sierra's Reasons for the Mergers."

Position of Sierra as to the Fairness of the Mergers (see page 85 of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus)

The Sierra Board believes that the MDLY Merger (which is the Rule 13e-3 transaction for which a Schedule 13E-3 Transaction Statement was filed with the SEC) is fair to the unaffiliated MDLY Stockholders on the basis of the factors described below.

Procedural fairness. The Sierra Board took into account the procedures implemented to provide for procedural fairness, including:

- the appointment of a special committee of the MDLY Board and the authority of the MDLY Special Committee to negotiate and reject or recommend approval of the MDLY Merger and the terms of the MDLY Merger Agreement;
- the independence of the members of the MDLY Special Committee and the fact that its members are outside, non-employee directors of the MDLY Board and are not affiliated with Sierra or with the members of the Sierra Special Committee or the Sierra Board;
- the belief that the members of the MDLY Special Committee do not have any interests in the MDLY Merger different from, or in addition to, those of the unaffiliated MDLY Stockholders, other than the members' receipt of board and special committee compensation in connection with their evaluation of the MDLY Merger and continued indemnification and liability insurance for such directors following the completion of the MDLY Merger for certain claims and liabilities arising from their actions taken prior to the effective time of the MDLY Merger;
- the fact that neither the MDLY Special Committee nor the MDLY Board had any obligation to approve the MDLY Merger;
- the MDLY Special Committee's engagement of, and reliance on, their own independent, experienced, third-party advisors, including financial and legal advisors;
- the understanding that the MDLY Special Committee has received or will receive an opinion from its financial advisor as to the fairness, from a financial point of view, of the consideration to be offered to the non-management holders of the shares of MDLY Class A Common Stock (the "MDLY Public Stockholders") for their MDLY Class A Common Stock, as of the date of the opinion and based upon and subject to the qualifications, limitations and assumptions stated therein, understanding that the Sierra Board is not entitled to rely upon that opinion;
- that the MDLY Board, based on the recommendation of the MDLY Special Committee, approved the MDLY Merger and concluded that the MDLY Merger is in the best interests of all MDLY Stockholders, including the unaffiliated MDLY Stockholders; and
- the fact that Sierra did not influence or participate in MDLY's deliberative process.

Substantive fairness. The Sierra Board considered factors relating to the substantive fairness of the MDLY Merger to MDLY Stockholders, including:

- the fact that the MDLY Merger Consideration and the other terms and conditions of the MDLY Merger were the result of extensive arms' length negotiations among the Sierra Special Committee, the MDLY Special Committee, and their respective independent legal and financial advisors;
- the fact that the terms and conditions of the MDLY Merger Agreement provide certain protections for MDLY and MDLY Stockholders, specifically the inclusion of (i) provisions that allow the MDLY Board (at the direction of the MDLY Special Committee), subject to certain procedural requirements, in response to other acquisitions proposals, to make an adverse change to its recommendation to MDLY Stockholders and terminate the transaction if the MDLY Board believes it has received an offer that is, or could lead to an offer that is, superior to Sierra's offer; (ii) provisions that provide the MDLY Board the right in certain circumstances to terminate the MDLY Merger Agreement if failure to terminate would be inconsistent with the fiduciary duties of the MDLY Board, subject to the payment of a market termination fee; and (iii) provisions that allow MDLY to compel specific enforcement of the MDLY Merger Agreement; and
- the availability of appraisal rights under the DGCL to MDLY Stockholders who follow the procedures and satisfy the conditions set forth in Section 262 of the DGCL.

Value fairness. The Sierra Board also considered factors relating to the value of the MDLY Merger Consideration to be received by MDLY Stockholders, including:

- the nature of the MDLY Merger Consideration, which includes the right to receive (i) 0.3836 shares of Sierra Common Stock plus (ii) cash in an amount equal to $3.44 per share plus certain cash dividends and other payments, as more fully described on page 289 (with the cash consideration providing an opportunity to immediately realize value for a portion of their investment and the stock consideration providing for the potential for participating in any future earnings and growth of the Combined Company);
- the opinion of its financial advisor which conducted a series of financial analyses to determine a valuation of MDLY Class A Common Stock. Such analyses included a precedent transaction multiples analysis, resulting in a range of values of $2.66 to $11.07 per share, a public market premium analysis, resulting in a range of values of $4.14 to $6.95 per share, and a discounted cash flow analysis, resulting in a range of values of $6.58 to $15.57 per share;
- that after giving effect to the special dividends to be paid to the unaffiliated MDLY Stockholders pursuant to the MDLY Merger Agreement, the aggregate cash consideration to be received by such stockholders in the MDLY Merger for their shares of MDLY Class A Common Stock will be greater than the aggregate cash consideration to be received by the affiliated MDLY Stockholders for their shares but that they will receive the same stock consideration per share;
- the Sierra Board's view of MDLY's future performance and prospects if MDLY remained a stand-alone company would be adversely affected by its lack of scale as compared to competing alternative asset managers; and
- the continued costs and risks to, and potential liabilities of, MDLY related to ongoing compliance as an SEC reporting company.

Negative Factors. In addition to the positive factors above, the Sierra Board also considered certain potentially negative factors, including, but not limited to:

- the fact that the exchange ratio for shares of MDLY Class A Common Stock into shares of Sierra Common Stock is fixed, and that the unaffiliated MDLY Stockholders may be adversely affected by declines in the value of Sierra's Common Stock after the execution of the MDLY Merger Agreement;
- the risk that the MDLY Merger may not be completed and the resulting adverse effect of an announcement of the termination of the MDLY Merger Agreement on the market price for MDLY Class A Common Stock;
- the substantial costs to be incurred by MDLY in connection with the MDLY Merger, whether or not the MDLY Merger is completed; and
- the fact that there is no requirement that a majority of the unaffiliated MDLY Stockholders approve the MDLY Merger and that as a class they hold only 2.25% of the outstanding voting stock of MDLY.

For more information regarding Sierra's position as to the fairness of the Mergers for the purpose of complying with the requirements of Rule 13e-3 and related rules under the Exchange Act, see "Special Factors — Reasons for the Mergers — Position of Sierra as to the Fairness of the Mergers."

MCC's Reasons for the MCC Merger (see page 87 of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus)

The MCC Special Committee unanimously determined that the MCC Merger Agreement and the transactions contemplated thereby, including, without limitation, the MCC Merger, are advisable and fair to, and in the best interests of, MCC and the MCC Stockholders.

In recommending that the MCC Board approve the MCC Merger Agreement and the transactions contemplated thereby, including the MCC Merger, the MCC Special Committee considered the terms of the MCC Merger Agreement and the other transactions and agreements relating hereto. As part of its evaluation, the MCC Special Committee considered the financial terms, risks/challenges, timing and uncertainties of alternatives available to MCC, as well as financial information prepared by Management. At the time of the MCC Special Committee's approval of the transaction, there was no other significant alternative transaction considered by the MCC Special Committee. The MCC Special Committee consulted with outside financial and legal advisors and Management, and took into account a number of reasons, including, among others:

Financial Considerations

- the value of the MCC Merger Consideration to be received by the MCC Stockholders in the MCC Merger;
- the fact that, since the MCC Merger Consideration will be paid in shares of Sierra Common Stock, the MCC Stockholders would have the opportunity to participate in any future earnings and growth of the Combined Company and future appreciation in the value of such shares following the Mergers should they determine to retain the shares of Sierra Common Stock payable in the MCC Merger;
- the fact that the total implied value of the MCC Merger Consideration to be received by the unaffiliated MCC Stockholders in the MCC Merger is expected to result in an estimated 18.52% accretion of NII per share of MCC Common Stock for MCC Stockholders assuming flat MDLY earnings and an estimated 29.8% accretion assuming projected MDLY earnings;
- the fact that the MCC Special Committee successfully negotiated an increase to the exchange ratio of Sierra Common Stock that MCC Stockholders are entitled to receive;
- the belief of the MCC Special Committee that its negotiations had resulted in the highest price per share for the unaffiliated MCC Stockholders that MDLY and Sierra would support; and
- the financial presentation of Sandler O'Neill & Partners, L.P. ("Sandler O'Neill") to the MCC Special Committee, dated August 9, 2018, and the opinion of Sandler O'Neill to the MCC Special Committee, dated August 9, 2018, to the effect that, as of that date and based upon and subject to various assumptions, matters considered and limitations described in its opinion, the MCC Merger Consideration was fair, from a financial point of view, to holders of MCC Common Stock (other than Sierra, MDLY and their respective affiliates), which opinion is described in the section entitled "Opinion of Financial Advisor to the MCC Special Committee."

Strategic and Business Considerations

- The fact that the MDLY Special Committee, comprising independent, non-employee directors of the MDLY Board, and with the assistance of independent, experienced, third party financial and legal advisors, had the authority to negotiate and reject or recommend approval of the MDLY Merger Agreement and the transactions contemplated thereby, including the MDLY Merger;
- the fact that the MCC Special Committee had the authority to not recommend that the MCC Board approve the MCC Merger Agreement and the MCC Board would have been precluded from approving the MCC Merger Agreement under those circumstances;
- the Combined Company would have greater scale for investment and financing flexibility (potential improvement in credit rating could result in lower funding costs and improved access to capital over time);
- the Combined Company would have a more diversified balance sheet;
- the Combined Company would have less relative exposure to non-accruing loans;
- the internalization better aligns the incentives of Management with the MCC Stockholders as well as provides greater transparency into Management's structure;
- the Combined Company would have potential earnings enhancement over time through ownership of an asset management subsidiary;
- the Combined Company would be expected to have a significantly greater market capitalization and thus increased potential liquidity for MCC Stockholders;
- the Combined Company would be expected to be the 7th largest publicly traded BDC compared to MCC, which currently is the 23rd largest BDC;
- BDCs with internal management structures have tended to trade at less of a discount than externally managed BDCs;
- the transaction should simplify the current structure of cross-ownership and management of MCC and Sierra; and
- the terms and conditions of the MCC Merger Agreement, as discussed in the section entitled "The Description of the MCC Merger Agreement," which the MCC Special Committee after consulting with its legal advisors considered to be reasonable.

In the course of reaching the determinations and decisions and making the recommendation described above, the MCC Special Committee considered the risks and challenges relating to the Mergers, including the following material items:

- the fact that the MCC Merger Consideration to be received by the MCC Stockholders will consist of Sierra Common Stock based on a fixed exchange ratio and that the value of the MCC Merger Consideration may decline either before or after the MCC Special Meeting and there will be no adjustment to the exchange ratio, thereby exposing the MCC Stockholders to the risks of an equity investment in Sierra Common Stock;
- the Combined Company has not traded before and there is no way to determine with certainty the price at which it will trade, both initially and in the long term;
- though the combined portfolio may be more diversified and have a lower percentage of non-accruing loans, the Combined Company would still have the same management team as before;
- internalizing the investment management causes some complexities in the structure;
- uncertainties about MDLY's ability to grow business (and earnings) as a captive asset manager;
- there would be a dilution in MCC Stockholder's influence (MCC Stockholders would own approximately 28% of the Combined Company);

- MCC Stockholders would experience an approximate 8.4% dilution in NAV per share (after projected expenses associated with the transaction);
- the fact that the MCC Merger Agreement precludes MCC from actively soliciting competing proposals and MCC may not terminate the MCC Merger Agreement to accept a competing proposal from a third party unless the MCC Board (or the MCC Special Committee) has determined in good faith (after consultation with its outside financial advisor and legal counsel) that the competing proposal constitutes a superior proposal and after providing notice, as applicable, and entering into good faith negotiations with Sierra, in which case MCC would be required to pay the termination fee;
- the fact that not all of the conditions to the closing of the MCC Merger, including the required stockholder approvals, are within the parties' control;
- the substantial costs to be incurred by MCC in connection with the MCC Merger Agreement and the other transactions contemplated thereby, regardless of whether the MCC Merger is consummated;
- the risk that the announcement and pendency of the MCC Merger could result in the disruption of MCC's business, including the possible diversion of management attention and potential adverse effects on MCC's business relationships; and
- the challenges inherent in the combination of three businesses, including the risk that integration of the three companies may take more time or be more costly than anticipated, and the risk that cost savings, synergies and other benefits expected to be obtained may not be fully or timely realized.

In view of the variety of factors and the amount of information considered, as well as the complexity of that information, the MCC Special Committee did not find it practicable to, and did not, quantify, rank or otherwise assign relative weights to the specific factors it considered in reaching its decisions. In addition, individual members of the MCC Special Committee may have given different weight to different factors. The above factors are not listed in any particular order of priority. In the judgment of the MCC Special Committee, the potential risks associated with the MCC Merger Agreement and the transactions contemplated thereby, including the MCC Merger, were favorably offset by the potential benefits of the MCC Merger Agreement and the transactions contemplated thereby, including the MCC Merger. This explanation of the MCC Special Committee's reasoning, and all other information presented in this section, is forward-looking in nature and, therefore, should be read in light of the factors discussed under the section entitled "Special Note Regarding Forward-Looking Statements."

See "Special Factors — Reasons for the Mergers — MCC's Reasons for the Mergers."

The Medley Affiliates' Reasons for the MDLY Merger (see page 89 of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus)

The Medley Affiliates unanimously determined that the MDLY Merger Agreement and the transactions contemplated thereby, are advisable and fair to, and in the best interests of, the MDLY Stockholders. As part of its evaluation, the Medley Affiliates considered the financial terms, risks/challenges, timing and uncertainties of alternatives available to MDLY, as well as financial information prepared by Management. In that regard, the Medley Affiliates took into account a number of reasons, including, among others:

- the Mergers are expected to be accretive to the Combined Company's net investment income ("NII"), return on equity, and NAV over time;
- the Mergers are expected to increase diversification and scale for the Combined Company;
- the Mergers offer the potential for achieving cost savings, operational efficiencies and synergies;
- the public listing of the Combined Company is expected to provide greater liquidity for all constituent stockholders; and
- the Mergers will simplify the overall corporate structure and more closely align the interests of Management and all constituent stockholders, providing the potential for an increase in valuation comparable to internally managed BDC peers.

See "Special Factors — Reasons for the Mergers — The Medley Affiliates' Reasons for the MDLY Merger."

MDLY's Reasons for the MDLY Merger (see page 90 of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus)

The MDLY Special Committee unanimously determined, and recommended the MDLY Board determine, that the MDLY Merger Agreement and the transactions contemplated thereby, including, without limitation, the MDLY Merger, are advisable and fair to, and in the best interests of, MDLY and the unaffiliated MDLY Stockholders.

The MDLY Board and the Medley Affiliates determined that the MDLY Merger Agreement and the transactions contemplated thereby, including, without limitation, the MDLY Merger are advisable and fair to, and in the best interests of, MDLY and the unaffiliated MDLY Stockholders. The Medley Affiliates were able to reach their fairness determination as to the MDLY unaffiliated security holders in light of the fact that, among other things, all of the MDLY unaffiliated security holders and certain non-management affiliates of MDLY will receive the same dollar amount per share for their MDLY Class A Common Stock. The MDLY Board was able to reach its fairness determination as to the MDLY unaffiliated security holders in light of the fact that, among other things, all of the MDLY unaffiliated security holders and certain non-management affiliates of MDLY will receive the same dollar amount per share for their MDLY Class A Common Stock. Accordingly, the MDLY Board was able to reach its fairness determination as to unaffiliated security holders by adopting the determinations of the MDLY Special Committee.

In making its recommendation to the MDLY Board, the MDLY Special Committee expressly relied upon, among other things, the Barclays fairness opinion, subject to the qualifications, limitations and assumptions stated therein, together with the analyses and conclusions of Barclays in issuing its fairness opinion, including the comparable company, comparable transaction and discounted cash flow analyses (based on the MDLY Projections (as defined below)) contained therein, and the other factors considered and reviewed for informational purposes (including, without limitation, the historical share price analysis, transaction premium analysis and current analyst price targets analysis), as further described in “Special Factors—Opinion of Financial Advisor of the MDLY Special Committee.”

Each of the factors set forth above were important to MDLY and the Medley Affiliates in determining the fairness of the transaction to the unaffiliated security holders. With respect to whether the consideration offered to unaffiliated security holders constitutes fair value, MDLY believes that the factors that are described above constitute an analysis of whether the consideration offered to unaffiliated security holders constitutes fair value in relation to current market prices, historical market prices and going concern value. Moreover, while net book value was considered as a data point, MDLY did not consider its net book value on a stand-alone basis in considering the fairness of the transaction due to the fact that MDLY’s business is based on fee income rather than asset value. MDLY did not consider liquidation value as liquidating the company was not considered.

In recommending that the MDLY Board approve the MDLY Merger Agreement and the transactions contemplated thereby, including the MDLY Merger, the MDLY Special Committee considered the terms of the MDLY Merger Agreement and the other transactions and agreements relating thereto. As part of its evaluation, the MDLY Special Committee considered the financial terms, risks/challenges, timing and uncertainties of alternatives available to MDLY, as well as financial information prepared by Management. The MDLY Special Committee consulted with outside financial and legal advisors and Management, and took into account a number of reasons, including, among others:

Financial Considerations

- The aggregate value and composition of the MDLY Merger Consideration (together with the First Special Dividend and the Second Special Dividend, as applicable) to be received by the MDLY Stockholders in the MDLY Merger, including the fact that upon completion of the MDLY Merger, the unaffiliated MDLY Stockholders would receive $4.09 per share, including $0.65 payable in the form of special cash dividends, and Management would receive $3.79 per share, including $0.35 payable in the form of a special cash dividend, plus both the unaffiliated MDLY Stockholders and Management would receive 0.3836 shares of Sierra Common Stock per share of MDLY Class A Common Stock.

- The fact that a significant portion of the MDLY Merger Consideration (together with the First Special Dividend and the Second Special Dividend, as applicable) to be received by the unaffiliated MDLY Stockholders in the MDLY Merger will be paid in cash, giving the unaffiliated MDLY Stockholders an opportunity to immediately realize value for a portion of their investment and providing certainty of value with respect to the cash portion of the MDLY Merger Consideration to be paid to the unaffiliated MDLY Stockholders.
- The fact that, since the stock portion of the MDLY Merger Consideration will be paid in shares of Sierra Common Stock, the MDLY Stockholders would have the opportunity to participate in any future earnings and growth of the Combined Company and future appreciation in the value of such shares following the Mergers should they determine to retain the shares of Sierra Common Stock payable in the MDLY Merger.
- The fact that the total implied value of the MDLY Merger Consideration (together with the First Special Dividend and the Second Special Dividend, as applicable) to be received by the unaffiliated MDLY Stockholders in the MDLY Merger represented a premium to market of approximately 100%, assuming a NAV multiple of 1.00x for Sierra, based on the closing share price of $3.45 for Class A Common Stock of MDLY on August 8, 2018 (the last trading day prior to announcement of the MDLY Merger).
- The fairness presentation by Barclays Capital Inc. (“Barclays”) and its oral opinion delivered to the MDLY Special Committee on August 9, 2018 (which was subsequently confirmed in writing by delivery of Barclays’ written opinion dated August 9, 2018), that, as of such date, and based upon and subject to the qualifications, limitations and assumptions stated in its opinion, from a financial point of view, the Consideration (as defined below) to be offered to the non-management holders of MDLY Class A Common Stock in the proposed MDLY Merger is fair to such stockholders, including, without limitation, the comparable company analysis, comparable transaction analysis and discounted cash flow analysis performed by Barclays. In addition, Barclays considered and reviewed with the MDLY Special Committee other factors for informational purposes, including, among other things, the historical share price analysis, transaction premium analysis and current analyst price targets analysis, as further described in “Special Factors—Opinion of Financial Advisor of the MDLY Special Committee—Summary of Material Financial Analyses” and “Special Factors—Opinion of Financial Advisor of the MDLY Special Committee—Other Factors”.
- The fact that the MDLY Special Committee identified additional sources of value for the unaffiliated MDLY Stockholders, including that the Medley LLC Unitholders agreed to forfeit all of the benefits to which they otherwise would be entitled under the Tax Receivable Agreement in order to increase the amount of consideration available to the unaffiliated MDLY Stockholders.
- The fact that the MDLY Special Committee successfully negotiated a pre-closing special cash dividend of $0.30 to be paid only to the holders of MDLY Class A Common Stock prior to the exchange of the LLC Units.
- The belief of the MDLY Special Committee that its negotiations had resulted in the highest price per share for the unaffiliated MDLY Stockholders compared to Management and that MCC and Sierra would support.

Thorough Review of Strategic Alternatives

- The fact that MDLY had carefully considered and evaluated, with the assistance of Management and legal and financial advisors, various potential strategic alternatives, including the robust and extensive sales processes to date run by MDLY for approximately 12 months.
- The belief of the MDLY Special Committee, which belief was formed after consultation with Management and legal and financial advisors, that continuing discussions with the parties who expressed interest since May 2018, or soliciting interest from additional third parties would be unlikely to lead to a better offer and could lead to the loss of the offer in connection with the proposed MDLY Merger.

- The fact that the parties that submitted expressions of interest regarding a potential acquisition of MDLY since May 2018 were valuing MDLY, on a per share basis, at less than the value of the MDLY Merger Consideration (together with the First Special Dividend and the Second Special Dividend).
- The belief of the MDLY Special Committee, which belief was formed after consultation with Management and legal and financial advisors, that the process conducted by MDLY has resulted in the highest price reasonably available to the unaffiliated MDLY Stockholders, including any standalone options.

Strategic and Business Considerations

- The fact that the MDLY Special Committee had the authority to not recommend that the MDLY Board approve the MDLY Merger Agreement and the MDLY Board would have been precluded from approving the MDLY Merger Agreement under those circumstances.
- The benefits to the Combined Company that could result from the Mergers, including (i) the Combined Company will have over $5 billion of assets under management, including $2 billion of internally managed assets, and (ii) the Combined Company is expected to be the second largest internally managed BDC and the seventh largest publicly traded BDC.
- The fact that that the Sierra Investment Advisory Agreement and the MCC Investment Management Agreement are renewed annually, renewal effectively requires, and termination of the agreements are effectively subject only to, the approval of the independent directors of Sierra and MCC, and their terms provide a certain degree of leverage to Sierra and MCC given their relative importance to MDLY.
- The fact that MDLY Stockholders will have an ability to participate in the future growth of the Combined Company, including any future upside in the stock price and potential synergies expected to result from the Mergers.
- The likelihood of obtaining regulatory approvals, including an exemptive order from the SEC granting relief to Sierra, MCC and MDLY under the Investment Company Act to the extent necessary to consummate the Mergers and to thereafter operate as an internally managed BDC.

Terms of the Merger Agreement

- The terms of the MDLY Merger Agreement were the result of extensive arm's length negotiations among Management, the MDLY Special Committee and the Sierra Special Committee.
- The fact that the MDLY Merger Agreement permits the MDLY Board (at the direction of the MDLY Special Committee) to change its recommendation that the MDLY Stockholders vote in favor of the adoption of the MDLY Merger Agreement in response to certain acquisition proposals, if the MDLY Board (at the direction of the MDLY Special Committee) determines that failure to change its recommendation could reasonably be expected to be inconsistent with its fiduciary duties, subject to certain procedural requirements set forth in the MDLY Merger Agreement.
- The fact that the MDLY Board could terminate the MDLY Merger Agreement to accept a "superior proposal" from a third party, subject to certain procedural requirements set forth in the MDLY Merger Agreement.
- The payment of a reasonable termination fee equal to $5,350,000 by MDLY or Sierra in certain instances following termination of the MDLY Merger Agreement.
- The fact that appraisal rights would be available to MDLY Stockholders who comply with all of the required procedures under the DGCL, which allows such holders to seek appraisal of the fair value of their shares as determined by the Delaware Court of Chancery.

The MDLY Special Committee also considered certain potentially negative factors in its deliberations concerning the MDLY Merger, including, but not limited to, the following:

- The fact that a significant portion of the MDLY Merger Consideration to be paid to MDLY Stockholders will be paid in cash and, with respect to that portion of the consideration, the MDLY Stockholders will not participate in the future growth of the Combined Company.
- The fact that the stock portion of the MDLY Merger Consideration to be received by the MDLY Stockholders will consist of Sierra Common Stock based on a fixed exchange ratio and that the value of the stock portion of the MDLY Merger Consideration may decline either before or after the MDLY Special Meeting and there will be no adjustment to the exchange ratio, thereby exposing the MDLY Stockholders to the risks of an equity investment.
- The uncertainty as to the price at which the Sierra Common Stock will trade as of the consummation of the MDLY Merger.
- The fact that consummation of the MDLY Merger is not conditioned on the approval of a majority of the unaffiliated MDLY Stockholders.
- The fact that, while members of Management will own approximately 6.2% of the shares of the Combined Company Common Stock, the unaffiliated MDLY Stockholders would hold only approximately 1.4% of the shares of the Combined Company Common Stock.
- The fact that the MDLY Merger Agreement precludes MDLY from actively soliciting competing proposals and MDLY may not terminate the MDLY Merger Agreement to accept a competing proposal from a third party unless the MDLY Board (or the MDLY Special Committee) has determined in good faith (after consultation with its outside financial advisor and legal counsel) that the competing proposal constitutes a superior proposal and after providing notice, as applicable, and entering into good faith negotiations with Sierra, in which case MDLY would be required to pay the termination fee.
- The fact that not all of the conditions to the closing of the MDLY Merger, including the required stockholder approvals, are within the parties' control.
- The fact that the MDLY Merger Agreement contains certain restrictions on the ability of MDLY to conduct its business in the period between signing and closing, so that Sierra's consent is required in respect of certain corporate actions, the entry into certain contracts, the acquisition or disposition of material assets, certain compensation actions, and other matters.
- The substantial costs to be incurred by MDLY in connection with the MDLY Merger Agreement and the other transactions contemplated thereby, regardless of whether the MDLY Merger is consummated.
- The risk that the announcement and pendency of the MDLY Merger could result in the disruption of MDLY's business, including the possible diversion of management and employee attention, potential employee attrition and potential adverse effects on MDLY's business relationships.
- The challenges inherent in the combination of three businesses, including the risk that integration of the three companies may take more time or be more costly than anticipated, and the risk that cost savings, synergies and other benefits expected to be obtained may not be fully or timely realized.

The MDLY Special Committee considered the factors taken into account by Barclays in issuing its fairness opinion. In determining the MDLY Merger is advisable and fair to, and in the best interests of, MDLY and the unaffiliated MDLY Stockholders, the MDLY Special Committee expressly adopts the analysis and conclusions of Barclays in issuing its fairness opinion as part of its considerations in making such determination. See "Special Factors—Opinion of Financial Advisor of the MDLY Special Committee—Summary of Material Financial Analyses" and "Special Factors—Opinion of Financial Advisor of the MDLY Special Committee—Other Factors" for a summary of the factors used by Barclays in issuing its fairness opinion.

In view of the variety of factors and the amount of information considered, as well as the complexity of that information, the MDLY Special Committee did not find it practicable to, and did not, quantify, rank or otherwise assign relative weights to the specific factors it considered in reaching its decisions. In addition, individual members of the MDLY Special Committee may have given different weight to different factors. The above factors are not listed in any particular order of priority. In the judgment of the MDLY Special Committee, the potential risks associated with the MDLY Merger Agreement and the transactions contemplated thereby, including the MDLY Merger, were favorably offset by the potential benefits of the MDLY Merger Agreement and the transactions contemplated thereby, including the MDLY Merger. This explanation of the MDLY Special Committee's reasoning, and all other information presented in this section, is forward-looking in nature and, therefore, should be read in light of the factors discussed under the section entitled "Special Note Regarding Forward-Looking Statements."

See "Special Factors — Reasons for the Mergers — MDLY's Reasons for the Mergers."

Risk Factors

Risks Relating to the Mergers (see page 138 of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus)

The Mergers are subject to the following risks. Sierra Stockholders, MCC Stockholders, and MDLY Stockholders should carefully consider these risks before deciding how to vote on the proposals to be voted on at their respective stockholder meeting. See “Risk Factors — Risks Relating to the Mergers.”

- There can be no assurances when or if the Mergers will be completed.
- Because the NAV of Sierra may change, MCC Stockholders and MDLY Stockholders cannot be sure of the value of the stock portion of the consideration they will receive until the MCC Merger Effective Time and the MDLY Merger Effective, respectively.
- The value of the stock portion of the merger consideration that MCC Stockholders and MDLY Stockholders will receive, and of the Sierra Common Stock that Sierra Stockholders will continue to own, upon the completion of the Mergers may be affected, either positively or negatively, by the trading performance of Sierra Common Stock following the Mergers.
- The inability of Sierra, MCC and/or MDLY to obtain certain third-party consents and approvals could delay or prevent the completion of the Mergers.
- Even if the Mergers are completed, the inability of Sierra, MCC and/or MDLY to obtain certain third-party consents and approvals could adversely impact the Combined Company and Merger Sub.
- The Mergers may trigger certain “change of control” provisions and other restrictions in agreements of Sierra, MCC, MDLY or their affiliates and the failure to obtain any required consents or waivers could adversely impact the Combined Company.
- The opinions obtained by the Sierra Special Committee, the MCC Special Committee, the MDLY Special Committee, and the MDLY Board from each of their respective financial advisors will not reflect changes in circumstances after the dates of the opinions between signing of the MCC Merger Agreement and the MCC Merger Effective Time and between signing of the MDLY Merger Agreement and the MDLY Merger Effective Time.
- The MCC Merger Consideration and the MDLY Merger Consideration were the product of extensive negotiations among the parties and therefore may include business considerations beyond share price, NAV or other financial or valuation metrics relating to Sierra, MCC, and MDLY.
- Sierra, MCC, and MDLY may be targets of securities class action and derivative lawsuits, which could result in substantial costs and may delay or prevent the completion of the Mergers.
- If the Mergers do not close, neither Sierra, MCC, or MDLY will benefit from the expenses incurred in its pursuit.
- Failure to complete the Mergers could negatively impact Sierra’s, MCC’s, and MDLY’s business, financial results, and ability to pay dividends and distributions, if any or at its current level, to Sierra Stockholders, MCC Stockholders, and MDLY Stockholders, and, in the case of MCC and MDLY, negatively impact stock prices.

- Termination of the MCC Merger Agreement or the MDLY Merger Agreement or failure to otherwise complete the Mergers could negatively impact Sierra, MCC, and MDLY.
- Under certain circumstances, Sierra, MCC or MDLY may be obligated to pay a termination fee upon termination of the MCC Merger Agreement or the MDLY Merger Agreement.
- The MCC Merger Agreement limits each of MCC's and Sierra's ability to actively pursue alternatives to the MCC Merger and to accept a superior proposal.
- The MDLY Merger Agreement limits each of MDLY's and Sierra's ability to actively pursue alternatives to the MDLY Merger and to accept a superior proposal.
- In certain circumstances, Sierra, MCC, and MDLY may waive one or more conditions to the Mergers, or amend the MCC Merger Agreement or MDLY Merger Agreement, without resoliciting stockholder approval.
- Certain persons related to the Companies have interests in the Mergers that differ from the interests of their respective stockholders.
- The Companies will be subject to business uncertainties and contractual restrictions while the Mergers are pending.
- The shares of Sierra Common Stock to be received by MCC Stockholders and MDLY Stockholders as a result of the Mergers will have different rights associated with them than shares of MCC Common Stock and MDLY Common Stock currently held by them.
- The Mergers are conditioned on Sierra, MCC, MDLY and certain of its affiliates receiving exemptive relief from the SEC.
- The MCC Merger is conditioned on MCC obtaining certain approvals from the SBA for the debentures issued by the SBIC Subsidiary.
- MDLY Stockholders could be subject to significant U.S. federal income tax liabilities if the MDLY Merger fails to qualify as tax-free reorganizations for U.S. federal income tax purposes.
- MCC Stockholders could be subject to significant U.S. federal income tax liabilities if the MCC Merger fails to qualify as tax-free reorganizations for U.S. federal income tax purposes.

Risks Relating to the Combined Company if the Mergers are Successfully Consummated (see page 146 of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus)

If the Mergers are successfully consummated, Sierra Common Stock will be listed on the NYSE under the symbol "SRA" and is expected to be listed on the TASE, with such listings expected to be effective as of the closing date of the Mergers. Upon completion of the Mergers, the investment portfolios of MCC and Sierra would be combined, Merger Sub, as a successor to MDLY, would be a wholly owned subsidiary of the Combined Company, and the Combined Company would be internally managed by its wholly owned investment adviser subsidiary. Set forth below are the principal risks relating to the Combined Company following the successful completion of the Mergers. Sierra Stockholders, MCC Stockholders and MDLY Stockholders should carefully consider these risks before deciding how to vote on the proposals to be voted on at their respective stockholder meeting. See "Risk Factors—Risks Relating to the Combined Company if the Mergers are Successfully Consummated."

- The Combined Company may be unable to realize the benefits anticipated by the Mergers, including estimated cost savings and synergies, or it may take longer than anticipated to achieve such benefits.

- If Sierra internalizes its management functions, the Combined Company may not be able to retain or replace key personnel.
- As an internally managed BDC, the Combined Company will be subject to certain restrictions that may adversely affect its business.
- There has been no public market for Sierra Common Stock, and the Companies cannot assure you that the market price of Sierra Common Stock will not decline following the closing of the Mergers.
- Shares of the Sierra Common Stock may trade at a discount from NAV.
- The Combined Company's cash distributions are not guaranteed and may fluctuate.
- Sierra Stockholders, MCC Stockholders, and MDLY Stockholders will experience a reduction in percentage ownership and voting power in the Combined Company as a result of the Mergers as compared to their current respective percentage ownership and voting power in Sierra, MCC, and MDLY.
- The market price of the Sierra Common Stock after the completion of the Mergers may be affected by factors different from those affecting Sierra Common Stock, MCC Common Stock or MDLY Common Stock currently.
- The unaudited pro forma financial information of the Combined Company is presented for illustrative purposes only and may not be indicative of the results of operations or financial condition of the Combined Company following the Mergers.
- The accounting treatment applied to Sierra's acquisition of MDLY will have a material impact on the Combined Company's ability to comply with applicable asset coverage requirements under the Investment Company Act, and in turn on the Combined Company's ability to incur additional leverage.
- Notwithstanding the fact that the Combined Company's portfolio of investments will be more diversified than Sierra's and MCC's existing investment portfolios on a standalone basis, because the Combined Company's investment strategy will be focused primarily on privately held companies, such diversification may not materially reduce the risks associated with the Combined Company's investments.
- The Combined Company will be subject to corporate-level U.S. federal income tax if it is unable to qualify for the tax treatment applicable to RICs under Subchapter M of the Code or to satisfy RIC distribution requirements.

Sierra Stockholders, MCC Stockholders, and MDLY Stockholders should carefully consider the risks under "Risk Factors," which sets forth the principal risks relating to: (i) the Mergers, (ii) the Combined Company following the successful completion of the Mergers, (iii) Sierra, (iv) MCC, and (v) MDLY. Please review all these risks, including the risks associated with the businesses of each of the Companies because these risks will also affect the Combined Company following consummation of the Mergers. If any of the events described in such section occurs, Sierra's, MCC's, MDLY's, or, following the completion of the Mergers, the Combined Company's business, financial condition or results of operations could be materially adversely affected.

The Sierra Special Committee Received an Opinion from its Financial Advisor in connection with the Mergers (see page 94 of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus)

Broadhaven was retained by the Sierra Special Committee to act as its financial advisor and provide an opinion in connection with the Mergers. The Sierra Special Committee selected Broadhaven to act as its financial advisor based on Broadhaven's qualifications, experience and reputation and its knowledge of the relevant industry and the business in which Sierra operates. On August 9, 2018, Broadhaven rendered its oral opinion, which was subsequently confirmed in writing by delivery of the opinion, to the Sierra Special Committee to the effect that, as of that date and based upon and subject to the assumptions made, procedures followed, matters considered and qualifications and limitations on the scope of review undertaken by Broadhaven as set forth in its opinion, the total consideration to be paid and issued by Sierra pursuant to the MCC Merger Agreement and MDLY Merger Agreement in the aggregate, considered as a whole and not in separate parts, was fair to Sierra from a financial point of view.

For more information see the section entitled "Special Factors — Opinion of Financial Advisor to the Sierra Special Committee."

The MCC Special Committee Received an Opinion from its Financial Advisor in connection with the MCC Merger (see page 104 of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus)

The MCC Special Committee retained Sandler O'Neill to act as financial advisor to the MCC Special Committee in connection with the MCC Special Committee's consideration of a proposed business combination. The MCC Special Committee selected Sandler O'Neill as its financial advisor because Sandler O'Neill is a nationally recognized investment banking firm whose principal business specialty is financial services companies. In the ordinary course of its investment banking business, Sandler O'Neill is regularly engaged in the valuation of financial services companies and their securities in connection with mergers and acquisitions and other corporate transactions. Sandler O'Neill acted as financial advisor to the MCC Special Committee in connection with the proposed MCC Merger and participated in certain of the negotiations leading to the execution of the MCC Merger Agreement. At the August 9, 2018 telephonic meeting of the MCC Special Committee, at which the MCC Special Committee considered the MCC Merger Agreement and the MCC Merger, Sandler O'Neill delivered to the MCC Special Committee its oral opinion, which was subsequently confirmed in writing on August 9, 2018, to the effect that, as of such date, the MCC Merger Consideration was fair to the holders of MCC Common Stock (other than Sierra, MDLY and their respective affiliates) from a financial point of view.

For more information see the section entitled "Special Factors — Opinion of Financial Advisor to the MCC Special Committee."

The MDLY Special Committee Received an Opinion from its Financial Advisor in connection with the MDLY Merger (see page 112 of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus)

The MDLY Special Committee engaged Barclays to act as its independent financial advisor for the purpose of providing financial advisory services to the MDLY Special Committee with respect to certain potential transactions or series or combination of related transactions outside of the ordinary course of business of MDLY, including the MDLY Merger, pursuant to an engagement letter dated July 13, 2018. On August 9, 2018, Barclays rendered its oral opinion (which was subsequently confirmed in writing) to the MDLY Special Committee that, as of such date and based upon and subject to the qualifications, limitations and assumptions stated in its opinion, the Consideration (as defined below) to be offered to the MDLY Public Stockholders for their MDLY Class A Common Stock in the proposed MDLY Merger is fair, from a financial point of view, to such MDLY Public Stockholders.

The full text of Barclays' written opinion, which is attached to this proxy statement as Annex E, sets forth, among other things, the assumptions made, procedures followed, factors considered and limitations on the review undertaken by Barclays in rendering its opinion. You are encouraged to read the opinion carefully and in its entirety. Barclays' opinion was provided for the information of the MDLY Special Committee in connection with its evaluation from a financial point of view of the Consideration to be offered to the MDLY Public Stockholders for their MDLY Class A Common Stock in the proposed MDLY Merger and did not address any other aspects or implications of the proposed MDLY Merger, the proposed MCC Merger or any other transaction. Barclays was not requested to opine as to, and its opinion does not in any manner address, the underlying business decision to proceed with or effect the proposed MDLY Merger, the likelihood of consummation of the proposed MDLY Merger, the proposed MCC Merger or any other transaction or the relative merits of the proposed MDLY Merger as compared to any other transaction or business strategy in which MDLY might engage. In addition, Barclays expressed no view as to, and its opinion does not in any manner address, the fairness of the amount or the nature of any compensation to any officers, directors or employees of any parties to the proposed MDLY Merger, the proposed MCC Merger or any other transaction, or any class of such persons, relative to the consideration to be offered to the MDLY Public Stockholders for their MDLY Class A Common Stock in the proposed MDLY Merger or otherwise. The summary of Barclays' opinion provided in this proxy statement is qualified in its entirety by reference to the full opinion. Barclays' opinion is not intended to be and does not constitute a recommendation to any MDLY Public Stockholder or any other person as to how such MDLY Public Stockholder or other person should vote or act with respect to the proposed MDLY Merger, the proposed MCC Merger, any other transaction or any other matter.

For more information see the section entitled "Special Factors — Opinion of Financial Advisor to the MDLY Special Committee."

The MDLY Board Received an Opinion from its Financial Advisor in connection with the MDLY Merger (see page 124 of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus)

On August 9, 2018, at a meeting of the MDLY Board, Goldman Sachs & Co. LLC (“Goldman Sachs”) rendered its oral opinion, subsequently confirmed in writing that, as of August 9, 2018 and based upon and subject to the factors and assumptions set forth therein, the aggregate of the MDLY Merger Consideration, the First Special Dividend and the Second Special Dividend, which is referred to as the “Consideration”, to be paid to the holders of MDLY Class A Common Stock (other than Sierra, MCC and any of their respective affiliates, the Medley LLC Unitholders, the holders of Medley LLC Restricted Units and the holders of MDLY RSUs) pursuant to the MDLY Merger Agreement, was fair from a financial point of view to such holders.

The full text of the written opinion of Goldman Sachs, dated August 9, 2018, which sets forth assumptions made, procedures followed, matters considered and limitations on the review undertaken in connection with the opinion, is attached as Appendix F. Goldman Sachs provided advisory services and its opinion for the information and assistance of the MDLY Board in connection with its consideration of the MDLY Merger. The Goldman Sachs opinion does not constitute a recommendation as to how any holder of the shares of MDLY Class A Common Stock should vote with respect to the MDLY Merger or any other matter. Pursuant to an engagement letter between MDLY and Goldman Sachs, MDLY has agreed to pay Goldman Sachs a transaction fee based on the aggregate consideration paid in the MDLY Merger. Based on information available as of the date of the announcement of the MDLY Merger, the transaction fee, all of which is contingent upon consummation of the MDLY Merger, is estimated to be approximately $2.7 million.

For more information see the section entitled “Special Factors — Opinion of Financial Advisor to the MDLY Board.”

Based upon the Recommendation of the Sierra Special Committee, the Sierra Board Unanimously Recommends that Sierra Stockholders Vote “FOR” each of the Sierra proposals (see page 252 of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus)

- Based upon the recommendation of the Sierra Special Committee, the Sierra Board has unanimously approved the MCC Merger Agreement, including the transactions contemplated thereunder, declared the MCC Merger to be advisable upon the terms and subject to the conditions and limitations set forth in the MCC Merger Agreement, and unanimously recommends that Sierra Stockholders vote “FOR” the approval of the MCC Merger.
- Based upon the recommendation of the Sierra Special Committee, the Sierra Board has unanimously approved the MDLY Merger Agreement, including the transactions contemplated thereunder, declared the MDLY Merger to be advisable upon the terms and subject to the conditions and limitations set forth in the MDLY Merger Agreement, and unanimously recommends that Sierra Stockholders vote “FOR” the approval of the MDLY Merger.
- Based upon the recommendation of the Sierra Special Committee, the Sierra Board unanimously recommends that Sierra Stockholders vote “FOR” the approval of the issuance of the shares of Sierra Common Stock to be issued pursuant to each of the MCC Merger Agreement and the MDLY Merger Agreement at a price below its then current NAV per share, if applicable.
- Based upon the recommendation of the Sierra Special Committee, the Sierra Board unanimously recommends that Sierra Stockholders vote “FOR” the adoption of the Sierra Incentive Plan.
- Based upon the recommendation of the Sierra Special Committee, the Sierra Board unanimously recommends that Sierra Stockholders vote “FOR” the Sierra Charter Amendments.
- Based upon the recommendation of the Sierra Special Committee, the Sierra Board unanimously recommends that Sierra Stockholders vote “FOR” the Combined Company Investment Advisory Agreement.
- Based upon the recommendation of the Sierra Special Committee, the Sierra Board unanimously recommends that Sierra Stockholders vote “FOR” the adjournment of the Sierra Special Meeting for the purpose of soliciting additional proxies if there are not sufficient votes at the time of the Sierra Special Meeting to approve the foregoing proposals.

For more information, see “Special Factors,” “Description of the MCC Merger Agreement,” “Description of the MDLY Merger Agreement,” “The Sierra Special Meeting,” “Sierra Proposal #1: Approval of the MCC Merger,” “Sierra Proposal #2: Approval of the MDLY Merger,” “Sierra Proposal #3: Issuance of the Shares of Sierra Common Stock to be Issued pursuant to each of the MCC Merger Agreement and the MDLY Merger Agreement at a Price Below its Then Current NAV per Share, if applicable,” “Sierra Proposal #4: Adoption of the Sierra Incentive Plan,” “Sierra Proposal #5: Adoption of the Sierra Charter Amendments,” “Sierra Proposal #6: Approval of the Combined Company Investment Advisory Agreement,” and “Sierra Proposal #7: Possible Adjournment to Solicit Additional Proxies, if Necessary or Appropriate.”

Based upon the Recommendation of the MCC Special Committee, the MCC Board Unanimously Recommends that MCC Stockholders Vote “FOR” each of the MCC proposals (see page 258 of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus)

- Based upon the recommendation of the MCC Special Committee, the MCC Board has unanimously approved the MCC Merger Agreement, including the transactions contemplated thereunder, including the MCC Merger, upon the terms and subject to the conditions and limitations set forth in the MCC Merger Agreement, and unanimously recommends that MCC Stockholders “FOR” the approval of the adoption of the MCC Merger Agreement.
- Based upon the recommendation of the MCC Special Committee, the MCC Board unanimously recommends that MCC Stockholders vote “FOR” the adjournment of the MCC Special Meeting for the purpose of soliciting additional proxies if there are not sufficient votes at the time of the MCC Special Meeting to approve the adoption of the MCC Merger Agreement.

For more information, see “Special Factors,” “Description of the MCC Merger Agreement,” “The MCC Special Meeting,” “MCC Proposal #1: Approval of the Adoption of the MCC Merger Agreement,” and “MCC Proposal #2: Possible Adjournment to Solicit Additional Proxies, if Necessary or Appropriate.”

Based upon the Recommendation of the MDLY Special Committee, the MDLY Board Unanimously Recommends that MDLY Stockholders Vote “FOR” each of the MDLY proposals (see page 262 of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus)

- Based upon the recommendation of the MDLY Special Committee, the MDLY Board has unanimously approved and declared advisable the MDLY Merger Agreement and the transactions contemplated thereby, including, without limitation, the MDLY Merger, and unanimously recommends that MDLY Stockholders vote “FOR” the approval of the adoption of the MDLY Merger Agreement.
- Based upon the recommendation of the MDLY Special Committee, the MDLY Board unanimously recommends that MDLY Stockholders vote “FOR” the adjournment of the MDLY Special Meeting for the purpose of soliciting additional proxies if there are not sufficient votes at the time of the MDLY Special Meeting to approve the adoption of the MDLY Merger Agreement.

For more information, see “Special Factors,” “Description of the MDLY Merger Agreement,” “The MDLY Special Meeting,” “MDLY Proposal #1: Approval of the adoption of the MDLY Merger Agreement,” and “MDLY Proposal #2: Possible Adjournment to Solicit Additional Proxies, if Necessary or Appropriate.”

Management’s Conflicts of Interests and Role in the Mergers (see page 60 of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus)

Various safeguards were implemented to protect against actual and potential conflicts of interests in light of the fact that the Mergers required agreement among Management and three affiliated, separate and distinct public entities, one of which, MDLY, is controlled by Management through majority equity ownership and two of which, Sierra and MCC, are managed by subsidiaries of MDLY. In order to mitigate such conflicts, each of the Sierra Board, the MCC Board, and the MDLY Board formed a special committee, comprised solely of independent directors of each respective board. Each of the Sierra Special Committee, the MCC Special Committee and the MDLY Special Committee exercised the authority, granted by each respective board, to hire advisors that it deemed appropriate, including in each case its own independent legal counsel and independent financial advisor.

Sierra Stockholders do not have Dissenter’s Right (see page 257 of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus)

Sierra Stockholders do not have the right to exercise dissenters’ rights with respect to any matter to be voted upon at the Sierra Special Meeting.

MCC Stockholders do not have Dissenter’s Right (see page 261 of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus)

MCC Stockholders do not have the right to exercise dissenters’ rights with respect to any matter to be voted upon at the MCC Special Meeting.

MDLY Stockholders are Entitled to Appraisal Rights (see page 290 of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus)

MDLY Stockholders are entitled to appraisal rights under Section 262 of the DGCL in connection with the MDLY Merger, provided they follow the procedures and satisfy the conditions set forth in Section 262 of the DGCL. A copy of Section 262 of the DGCL is attached as Appendix L to this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus. Failure to strictly comply with Section 262 of the DGCL will result in the loss of appraisal rights. A proxy or vote against the MDLY Merger proposal will not be deemed an appraisal demand. Due to the complexity of the provisions of Section 262 of the DGCL, any MDLY Stockholder considering exercising its appraisal rights under Section 262 of the DGCL is urged to consult his, her or its own legal advisor. See “Description of the MDLY Merger Agreement — Appraisal Rights” and “Appraisal Rights of MDLY Stockholders.”

Votes Required to Approve Each of the Sierra Proposals (see page 253 of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus)

- With regard to Sierra Proposal #1 (approval of MCC Merger) and Sierra Proposal #2 (approval of MDLY Merger), the holders of a majority of the outstanding shares of Sierra Common Stock as of the Sierra Record Date must affirmatively vote “FOR” in order for it to be approved. Because the vote on each proposal is based on the total number of shares of Sierra Common Stock outstanding, abstentions and “broker non-votes” will have the same effect as voting “AGAINST” the approval of the proposal.
- With regard to Sierra Proposal #3 (issuance of Sierra Common Stock pursuant to each of the MCC Merger Agreement and the MDLY Merger Agreement), under the Investment Company Act, Sierra is not permitted to issue shares of Sierra Common Stock at a price below the then current NAV per share unless such issuance is approved by a majority of the holders of (1) the outstanding shares of Sierra Common Stock and (2) the outstanding shares of Sierra Common Stock held by persons who are not affiliated persons of Sierra. The vote of holders of a “majority,” as defined in the Investment Company Act, means the vote of the holders of the lesser of (1) 67% or more of the outstanding shares of Sierra Common Stock present or represented by proxy at the Sierra Special Meeting if the holders of more than 50% of the shares of Sierra Common Stock are present or represented by proxy or (2) more than 50% of the outstanding shares of Sierra Common Stock. In order to issue shares at a price below NAV pursuant to this approval, the Sierra Board would need to make certain determinations as required under the Investment Company Act. Abstentions and “broker non-votes” will have the effect of a vote “AGAINST” the proposal. See “The Special Meeting of Sierra —Vote Required” for more information on Sierra Proposal #3.
- With regard to Sierra Proposal #4 (adoption of the Sierra Incentive Plan), the majority of the votes cast by the holders of Sierra Common Stock as of the Sierra Record Date present or represented by proxy at the Sierra Special Meeting must affirmatively vote “FOR” Sierra Proposal #4 in order for it to be approved (meaning the number of shares voted “FOR” a proposal must exceed the number of shares voted “AGAINST” such proposal). Abstentions have the same effect as votes cast against the proposal, while “broker non-votes” will not be included in determining the number of votes cast and, as a result, do not affect the outcome.
- With regard to Sierra Proposal #5 (adoption of the Sierra Charter Amendments), the requisite Sierra Stockholder approval is dependent on the particular Sierra Charter Amendment being considered, as described below.
 - The holders of shares of Sierra Common Stock entitled to cast a majority of all the votes entitled to be cast as of the Sierra Record Date must affirmatively vote “FOR” the approval of each of Charter Amendment Proposals #5(A)(i) through (A)(xi) in order for it to be approved. Abstentions and “broker non-votes” will not count as affirmative votes cast and will therefore have the same effect as votes “AGAINST” each of Charter Amendment Proposals #5(A)(i) through (A)(xi).

- The holders of shares of Sierra Common Stock entitled to cast a majority of all the votes entitled to be cast as of the Sierra Record Date must affirmatively vote “FOR” the approval of Charter Amendment Proposal #5(B). Abstentions and “broker non-votes” will not count as affirmative votes cast and will therefore have the same effect as votes “AGAINST” Charter Amendment Proposal #5(B).
- The holders of shares of Sierra Common Stock entitled to cast a majority of all the votes entitled to be cast on the matter as of the Sierra Record Date must affirmatively vote “FOR” the approval of Charter Amendment Proposal #5(C). Abstentions and “broker non-votes” will not count as affirmative votes cast and will therefore have the same effect as votes “AGAINST” Charter Amendment Proposal #5(C).
- The holders of shares of Sierra Common Stock entitled to cast a majority of all the votes entitled to be cast on the matter as of the Sierra Record Date must affirmatively vote “FOR” the approval of Charter Amendment Proposal #5(D). Abstentions and “broker non-votes” will not count as affirmative votes cast and will therefore have the same effect as votes “AGAINST” Charter Amendment Proposal #5(D).
- The holders of shares of Sierra Common Stock entitled to cast at least two-thirds of all the votes entitled to be cast as of the Sierra Record Date must affirmatively vote “FOR” the approval of Charter Amendment Proposal #5(E). Abstentions and “broker non-votes” will not count as affirmative votes cast and will therefore have the same effect as votes “AGAINST” Charter Amendment Proposal #5(E).
- With regard to Sierra Proposal #6 (approval of the Combined Company Investment Advisory Agreement), a majority of the holders of (1) the outstanding shares of Sierra Common Stock as of the Sierra Record Date and (2) the outstanding shares of Sierra Common Stock as of the Sierra Record Date held by persons who are not affiliated persons of Sierra, each must affirmatively vote “FOR” the proposal in order for it to be approved. The vote of holders of a “majority,” as defined in the Investment Company Act, means the vote of the holders of the lesser of (1) 67% or more of the outstanding shares of Sierra Common Stock present or represented by proxy at the Sierra Special Meeting if the holders of more than 50% of the shares of Sierra Common Stock are present or represented by proxy or (2) more than 50% of the outstanding shares of Sierra Common Stock. Because the vote on the proposal is based on the total number of shares outstanding, abstentions and “broker non-votes” will have the same effect as voting “AGAINST” the approval of the proposal.
- With regard to Sierra Proposal #7 (possible adjournment to solicit additional proxies, if necessary or appropriate), a majority of the votes cast by the holders of Sierra Common Stock as of the Sierra Record Date present or represented by proxy at the Sierra Special Meeting must affirmatively vote “FOR” the proposal in order for it to be approved (meaning the number of shares voted “FOR” the proposal must exceed the number of shares voted “AGAINST” the proposal). Abstentions and “broker non-votes” are not considered votes cast on the adjournment proposal, and will have no effect on the vote for the proposal.

See “The Sierra Special Meeting — Vote Required,” “Sierra Proposal #1: Approval of the MCC Merger,” “Sierra Proposal #2: Approval of the MDLY Merger,” “Sierra Proposal #3: Issuance of the Shares of Sierra Common Stock to be Issued pursuant to each of the MCC Merger Agreement and the MDLY Merger Agreement at a Price Below its Then Current NAV per Share, if applicable,” “Sierra Proposal #4: Adoption of the Sierra Incentive Plan,” “Sierra Proposal #5: Adoption of the Sierra Charter Amendments,” “Sierra Proposal #6: Approval of the Combined Company Investment Advisory Agreement,” and “Sierra Proposal #7: Possible Adjournment to Solicit Additional Proxies, if Necessary or Appropriate.”

Votes Required to Approve Each of the MCC Proposals (see page 259 of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus)

- A majority of the outstanding shares of MCC Common Stock as of the MCC Record Date must affirmatively vote “FOR” MCC Proposal #1 (approval of the adoption of the MCC Merger Agreement) in order for it to be approved. Because the vote on the proposal is based on the total number of shares of MCC Common Stock outstanding, abstentions and “broker non-votes” will have the same effect as voting “AGAINST” the approval of the proposal.
- A majority of the votes cast by the holders of MCC Common Stock as of the MCC Record Date present or represented by proxy at the MCC Special Meeting must affirmatively vote “FOR” MCC Proposal #2 (possible adjournment to solicit additional proxies, if necessary or appropriate) in order for it to be approved (meaning the number of shares voted “FOR” a proposal must exceed the number of shares voted “AGAINST” such proposal). Abstentions and “broker non-votes” are not considered votes cast on the adjournment proposal, and will have no effect on the vote for the proposal.

See “The MCC Special Meeting — Vote Required,” “MCC Proposal #1: Approval of the Adoption of the MCC Merger Agreement,” and “MCC Proposal #2: Possible Adjournment to Solicit Additional Proxies, if Necessary or Appropriate.”

Votes Required to Approve Each of the MDLY Proposals (see page 263 of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus)

- The holders of a majority of the voting power of the outstanding shares of MDLY Common Stock as of the MDLY Record Date must affirmatively vote “FOR” MDLY Proposal #1 (approval of the adoption of the MDLY Merger Agreement) in order for it to be approved. Because the vote on the proposal is based on the total number of shares of MDLY Common Stock outstanding, abstentions and “broker non-votes” will have the same effect as voting “AGAINST” the approval of the proposal.
- A majority of the votes cast by the holders of shares of MDLY Common Stock as of the MDLY Record Date present in person or by proxy at the MDLY Special Meeting must vote “FOR” MDLY Proposal #2 (possible adjournment to solicit additional proxies, if necessary or appropriate) in order for it to be approved (meaning the number of shares voted “FOR” a proposal must exceed the number of shares voted “AGAINST” such proposal). Abstentions and “broker non-votes” are not considered votes cast on the adjournment proposal, and will have no effect on the vote for the proposal.

See “The MDLY Special Meeting — Vote Required,” “MDLY Proposal #1: Approval of the adoption of the MDLY Merger Agreement,” and “MDLY Proposal #2: Possible Adjournment to Solicit Additional Proxies, if Necessary or Appropriate.”

Completion of the Mergers

While there can be no assurance as to the exact timing, or that the Mergers will be completed at all, Sierra, MCC, and MDLY anticipate that the MCC Merger and the MDLY Merger will close in the first quarter of 2019. Sierra, MCC, and MDLY currently expect to complete the Mergers promptly following receipt of the required approvals at the Sierra Special Meeting, the MCC Special Meeting, and the MDLY Special Meeting and satisfaction of the other closing conditions set forth in the MCC Merger Agreement and the MDLY Merger Agreement, and as described below and in this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus.

Conditions That Must Be Satisfied or Waived for the MCC Merger to be Completed (see page 283 of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus)

MCC and Sierra will not be obligated to complete the MCC Merger unless a number of conditions are satisfied or waived, including but not limited to:

- the receipt of MCC Stockholder approval;
- the receipt of Sierra Stockholder approval;

- the Form N-14 Registration Statement shall have been declared effective by the SEC under the Securities Act and no stop order suspending the effectiveness of the Form N-14 Registration Statement shall have been issued and no proceedings for that purpose shall have been initiated or threatened by the SEC;
- the exemptive relief from the SEC shall have been granted and be in full force and effect as of the MCC Merger Closing Date;
- MCC shall have obtained from the SBA such approvals as may be necessary for the debentures issued by the SBIC Subsidiary to remain outstanding in accordance with their terms following the MCC Merger Effective Time;
- any applicable waiting period (and any extension thereof) applicable to the MCC Merger under the HSR Act shall have expired or been terminated;
- each of the conditions to the MDLY Merger Closing shall have been satisfied or appropriately waived, and the MDLY Merger shall be consummated simultaneously with the MCC Merger;
- in connection with the MDLY Merger Agreement, MDLY shall have obtained written consents to the continuation, following the MDLY Merger Effective Time (as defined below), of the advisory relationship with private funds and managed accounts representing 65% of MDLY's total revenues from private funds and managed accounts for the 12-month period ended as of June 30, 2018; and
- the equity of Merger Sub, as the surviving company in the MDLY Merger, being treated as a portfolio investment of Sierra and reflected in Sierra's consolidated financial statements at fair value for accounting purposes, and that such surviving company's financial results will not be consolidated into the financial statements of Sierra.

For information about all the conditions that must be satisfied or waived for the MCC Merger to be completed, see "Description of the MCC Merger Agreement — Conditions to the MCC Merger."

Termination of the MCC Merger Agreement (see page 285 of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus)

The MCC Merger Agreement generally may be terminated, whether before or after the receipt of the MCC Stockholder approval or the Sierra Stockholder approval under certain circumstances.

MCC Termination Fee (see page 286 of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus)

Under the MCC Merger Agreement, Sierra and MCC may be obligated, under certain circumstances, to pay the other party a termination fee of $6,000,000 in cash. See “Description of the MCC Merger Agreement — Termination Fees” for a discussion of the circumstances that could result in the payment of a termination fee under the MCC Merger Agreement.

Conditions That Must Be Satisfied or Waived for the MDLY Merger to be Completed (see page 307 of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus)

MDLY and Sierra will not be obligated to complete the MDLY Merger unless a number of conditions are satisfied or waived, including but not limited to:

- the receipt of MDLY Stockholder approval;
- the receipt of Sierra Stockholder approval;
- the Form N-14 Registration Statement shall have been declared effective by the SEC under the Securities Act and no stop order suspending the effectiveness of the Form N-14 Registration Statement shall have been issued and no proceedings for that purpose shall have been initiated or threatened by the SEC;
- the exemptive relief from the SEC shall have been granted and be in full force and effect as of the MDLY Merger Closing Date;
- the Tax Receivable Termination Agreement, to be effective as of the MDLY Merger Effective Time, shall have been executed and delivered by all necessary parties;
- each of the conditions to the MCC Merger Closing shall have been satisfied or appropriately waived, and the MCC Merger shall be consummated simultaneously with the MDLY Merger;
- MDLY shall have obtained written consents to the continuation, following the MDLY Merger Effective Time, of the advisory relationship with private funds and managed accounts representing 65% of MDLY’s total revenues from private funds and managed accounts for the 12-month period ended as of June 30, 2018; and
- the equity of Merger Sub, as the surviving company in the MDLY Merger, being treated as a portfolio investment of Sierra and reflected in Sierra’s consolidated financial statements at fair value for accounting purposes, and that Merger Sub’s financial results will not be consolidated into the financial statements of Sierra.

For more information about all the conditions that must be satisfied or waived for the MDLY Merger to be completed, see “Description of the MDLY Merger Agreement — Conditions to the MDLY Merger.”

Termination of the MDLY Merger Agreement (see page 309 of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus)

The MDLY Merger Agreement generally may be terminated, whether before or after the receipt of the MDLY Stockholder approval or the Sierra Stockholder approval under certain circumstances.

MDLY Termination Fee (see page 310 of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus)

Under the MDLY Merger Agreement, Sierra and MDLY may be obligated, under certain circumstances, to pay the other party a termination fee of $5,350,000 in cash. See “Description of the MDLY Merger Agreement — Termination Fees” for a discussion of the circumstances that could result in the payment of a termination fee under the MDLY Merger Agreement.

Third Party Consents Required for the Mergers (see pages 294-295 and 307 of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus)

Pursuant to the MCC Merger Agreement, each of Sierra’s and MCC’s obligations to complete the MCC Merger is conditioned upon, among other things, and in addition to certain regulatory approvals (as described below in “Regulatory Approvals Required for the Mergers”), the prior receipt by Sierra or MCC, as applicable, of third party consents and approvals relating to the joint venture arrangements of Sierra and MCC. In addition, each of Sierra’s and MCC’s obligations to complete the MCC Merger is cross-conditioned upon MDLY, pursuant to the MDLY Merger Agreement, having received written consents to the continuation, following the MDLY Merger Effective Time, of the advisory relationship with private funds and managed accounts representing 65% of MDLY’s total revenues from private funds and managed accounts for the 12-month period ended June 30, 2018. In addition to the foregoing mutual conditions for closing, Sierra and MCC must obtain all consents and approvals, and take all necessary steps, in order to keep their respective indebtedness outstanding (or, in the case of MCC’s credit facility, to combine it with Sierra’s existing credit facility) following the MCC Merger Effective Time. Although Sierra and MCC expect that all such approvals and consents will be obtained and remain in effect and all conditions related to such consents will be satisfied, if they are not, the closing of the Mergers could be significantly delayed or the Mergers may not occur at all.

Listing of Sierra Common Stock and Delisting of MCC Common Stock and MDLY Class A Common Stock (see page 137 of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus)

Sierra Common Stock is currently not listed on a securities exchange. In connection with the Mergers, Sierra Common Stock will be listed on the NYSE under the symbol “SRA” and is expected to be listed on the TASE, with such listings expected to be effective as of the closing date of the Mergers. Upon completion of the Mergers, (1) MCC Common Stock will be delisted from the NYSE and the TASE and thereafter MCC will be deregistered under the Exchange Act and (2) MDLY Class A Common Stock will be delisted from the NYSE and thereafter MDLY will be deregistered under the Exchange Act.

Immediately following the Closing of the Mergers, the Combined Company Expects to Effectuate a Reverse Stock Split and a Share Repurchase Program (see page 678 of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus)

Immediately following the closing of the Mergers, the Combined Company expects to effectuate a one-for-three reverse split stock split. As a result, the total number of shares of Combined Company Common Stock outstanding will be reduced and the price per share will simultaneously increase. In light of the fact that the reverse stock split will not be effectuated until after the closing of the Mergers, the financial information contained in this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus does not reflect the reverse stock split.

In connection with the Mergers, on November 6, 2018, the Sierra Board approved a share repurchase program pursuant to which the Combined Company could purchase up to an aggregate amount of $100.0 million of the Combined Company Common Stock between the period of the effective date of the Mergers and the one-year anniversary of such date. This share repurchase program may be limited or terminated at any time without prior notice. Even if the Mergers are consummated, there can be no assurance that the Combined Company will conduct any repurchases of the Combined Company Common Stock.

The Combined Company and its Management Following Completion of the Mergers (see page 679 of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus)

On November 6, 2018, the Sierra Board took the necessary actions to appoint individuals to serve as directors and executive officers of the Combined Company. Effective as of the closing of the Mergers, the following actions will occur with respect to the Combined Company Board: (1) Seth Taube will resign from his positions as a director and Chief Executive Officer of Sierra, (2) Brook Taube will be appointed as Chief Executive Officer and Chief Investment Officer of the Combined Company and Chairman of the Combined Company Board, and (3) Karin Hirtler-Garvey and John E. Mack, each of whom are currently independent directors of MCC, will become independent directors of the Combined Company. The current independent directors of Sierra, Oliver T. Kane, Valerie Lancaster-Beal, and Stephen R. Byers, will continue as directors of the Combined Company Board.

Effective as of the closing of the Mergers, the following persons will serve as the Combined Company’s executive officers or key employees in the following capacities:

Name	Position(s) Held
Brook Taube	Chief Executive Officer, Chief Investment Officer, and Chairman of the Combined Company Board
Seth Taube	Vice Chairman, Senior Executive Vice President, and Senior Managing Director
Jeff Tonkel	President
Richard T. Allorto, Jr.	Chief Financial Officer, Treasurer, Senior Executive Vice President, and Senior Managing Director
John D. Fredericks	General Counsel, Chief Compliance Officer, Secretary, Senior Executive Vice President, and Senior Managing Director
Samuel Anderson	Head of Capital Markets & Risk Management, Senior Executive Vice President, and Senior Managing Director
Christopher Taube	Head of Institutional Fundraising, Senior Executive Vice President, and Senior Managing Director

For more information regarding the management of the Combined Company, see “Information about the Combined Company — Management.”

Arrangements with Management (see page 692 of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus)

Medley Capital LLC, a wholly owned subsidiary of the Combined Company that employs the Combined Company's employees, has entered into employment agreements with each Management employee, effective as of the MDLY Merger Closing Date (the "Effective Date"). The employment agreements provide for an initial term of 24 months (30 months in the case of the Chief Executive Officer) following the Effective Date, unless terminated earlier by one of the parties, and will be renewed automatically for successive periods of one year, unless either party gives written notice to the contrary at least 120 calendar days prior to the end of the initial term or any renewal term (the "Term").

Each employment agreement sets forth a base salary, which is subject to change at the discretion of the Combined Company Board or compensation committee of the Combined Company Board (the "Combined Company Compensation Committee"). Under the employment agreements, each Management employee is eligible to receive each year a short-term incentive paid in cash and a long-term incentive in the form of an equity award, each paid after the end of the year (the "Annual Bonus"). Each employment agreement provides that the Combined Company Board or the compensation committee will establish a target Annual Bonus for each year of no less than a specified percentage of each Management employee's base salary and will establish performance and other objectives for the year for such Annual Bonus, in consultation with Management. The long-term equity incentive will be made in the form of a restricted stock unit ("RSU") award, vesting in three installments. The cash and equity award portions of the annual bonuses paid under the employment agreements will be subject to recoupment by the Combined Company under certain circumstances.

Under the employment agreements, each Management employee would be entitled to certain benefits and payments (including, under certain circumstances, accrued but unpaid obligations, bonus amounts, salary continuation, acceleration of RSUs and/or partial COBRA-premium coverage) in exchange for a general release of claims in the event of the Management employee's death, disability, termination of employment by Medley Capital LLC without "Cause," termination by the Management employee with "Good Reason" or termination of the Management employee due to the Combined Company providing notice that it is not renewing the employment agreement at the end of the Term, unless the Combined Company has offered to renew the employment agreement on terms that are at least comparable in the aggregate to "Market Level Compensation."

The employment agreements impose restrictive covenants that prohibit a Management employee from competing with any member of Medley Capital LLC, the Combined Company and each of their respective subsidiaries and affiliates (the "Company Group"), or interfering with the customers or employees of any member of the Company Group while employed and for 12 months thereafter, and prohibit the Management employees from disparaging or disclosing the confidential information of any member of the Company Group indefinitely, among other restrictions.

Each employment agreement also provides for a lock-up period of one-year beginning on the MDLY Merger Closing Date, during which the Management employee will not be permitted to transfer any shares of the Combined Company Common Stock the Management employee acquired pursuant to the MDLY Merger Agreement, unless under certain specified circumstances. Certain employment agreements provide that in the event of a termination by Medley Capital LLC without Cause or by the Management employee with Good Reason, the lock-up period shall end as of the termination date.

The Rights of MCC Stockholders and MDLY Stockholders Following the Mergers Will Be Different (see page 655 of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus)

The rights of MCC Stockholders are currently governed by the DGCL, the MCC Certificate, and the MCC Bylaws, and the rights of MDLY Stockholders are currently governed by the DGCL, the MDLY Certificate, and the MDLY Bylaws. As a result of the Mergers, MCC Stockholders and MDLY Stockholders who receive shares of Sierra Common Stock will become stockholders of the Combined Company. The rights of the Combined Company's stockholders will be governed by the MGCL, the Sierra Charter (including the Sierra Charter Amendments subject to the approval of Sierra Stockholders), and the amendment and restatement of the Sierra Bylaws. Further, Sierra Stockholders are being asked to consider and approve proposals to adopt the Sierra Charter Amendments (as discussed in greater detail in "Sierra Proposal #5: Adoption of Sierra Charter Amendments"). The rights of MCC Stockholders and MDLY Stockholders and the rights of Sierra Stockholders differ in certain respects.

Regulatory Approvals Required for the Mergers

Request for SEC Exemptive Relief (see page 677 of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus)

The Mergers are conditioned on Sierra, MCC, MDLY, and certain of their affiliates receiving exemptive relief from the SEC from: (i) Sections 17(d) and 57(a)(1), (2), and (4) of the Investment Company Act and Rule 17d-1 thereunder because the Mergers would involve a joint arrangement among two affiliated BDCs and their investment advisers and (ii) Sections 12(d)(3) and 60 of the Investment Company Act because, in connection with the MDLY Merger, MDLY, a registered investment adviser, will become a wholly owned subsidiary of the Combined Company. In addition, Sierra and certain of its affiliates are requesting exemptive relief from the SEC from (i) Sections 23(a), 23(b), 23(c), and 63 and pursuant to Section 61(a)(3)(B) and Sections 57(a)(4) and 57(i) of the Investment Company Act and Rule 17d-1 thereunder that would permit the Combined Company to grant stock options, restricted stock, and restricted stock units in exchange for and in recognition of services by its directors, executive officers and employees and (ii) Sections 18(a) and 61(a) of the Investment Company Act that would permit the Combined Company to exclude the debt of the SBIC Subsidiary guaranteed by the SBA from the definition of senior securities in the 200% asset coverage ratio that the Combined Company is required to maintain under the Investment Company Act. There can be no assurance if or when the Companies will receive the exemptive relief. As of the date of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus, no exemptive relief had been received.

Request for SBA Approval (see page 677 of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus)

The MCC Merger is conditioned on MCC obtaining from the SBA such approvals as may be necessary for the debentures issued by the SBIC Subsidiary to remain outstanding in accordance with their terms following the MCC Merger Effective Time. The SBIC Subsidiary is seeking SBA approval related to the Mergers; however, there can be no assurance that MCC will receive the requisite SBA approval or the exact timing of such approval.

The HSR Act (see page 677 of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus)

The HSR Act provides that parties must not consummate certain mergers, acquisitions or transfers of assets until they submitted an HSR notification to the FTC and the DOJ and provided an opportunity for those agencies to determine that the transaction will not have an adverse effect on competition actionable under the antitrust laws. Each of Sierra, MCC, and MDLY have agreed to file an HSR notification with the FTC and the DOJ, if and to the extent required, relating to the MCC Merger Agreement and the MDLY Merger Agreement, as applicable, and the transactions contemplated thereby as required by the HSR Act, and to take all other actions reasonably necessary to cause the expiration or termination of any applicable waiting period under the HSR Act applicable to the MCC Merger and the MDLY Merger as soon as practicable. At any time before consummation of the Mergers, the FTC or the DOJ, could take such action under the antitrust laws as it deems necessary or desirable in the public interest, including seeking to enjoin consummation of the Mergers. Individual states or private parties also may bring actions under the antitrust laws in certain circumstances. There can be no assurance that a challenge to the Mergers on antitrust grounds will not be made or, if a challenge is made, that it will not be successful.

COMPARATIVE FEES AND EXPENSES

The following tables are intended to assist you in understanding and comparing the costs and expenses that an investor in Sierra Common Stock and MCC Common Stock bears directly or indirectly. In addition, the following tables reflect, based on the assumptions set forth below, the pro forma costs and expenses that an investor in the Combined Company Common Stock following the completion of the Mergers may bear directly or indirectly. Except where the context suggests otherwise, whenever this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus contains a reference to fees or expenses paid or to be paid by Sierra or MCC, the respective stockholders will indirectly bear such fees or expenses as investors in Sierra or MCC prior to the Mergers, as applicable, and the Combined Company following the consummation of the Mergers.

Sierra will reflect its interest in Merger Sub as an investment at fair value on its statement of assets and liabilities, in accordance with ASC 946-320, “Financial Services — Investment Companies — Investments — Debt and Equity Securities.” Accordingly, Sierra will not consolidate Merger Sub in its financial statements. Therefore, the costs and expenses of Merger Sub are not presented separately or otherwise included in the tables below.

See the section entitled “Unaudited Pro Forma Condensed Consolidated Financial Statements” and the accompanying notes to such financial statements included elsewhere in this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus for more information about the effect of the Mergers on Sierra’s financial position and results of operations based upon Sierra’s or MCC’s respective historical financial positions and results of operations.

- (1) Effective as of July 31, 2018, the Sierra Board terminated the offering of shares of Sierra Common Stock. Purchases of shares of MCC Common Stock on the secondary market are not subject to sales charges; in the event that the shares are sold to or through underwriters, a corresponding prospectus supplement would disclose the applicable sales load.

This table does not include any sales load that Sierra Stockholders or MCC Stockholders may have paid in connection with their purchases of Sierra Common Stock or MCC Common Stock.

- (2) The expenses of the Sierra Distribution Reinvestment Plan and the MCC Dividend Reinvestment Plan are included in “Other Expenses.”
- (3) “Net assets attributable to common stock” equals net assets as of September 30, 2018. For the pro forma columns above, the net assets of Sierra on a pro forma basis as of September 30, 2018 were used. See “Unaudited Pro Forma Condensed Consolidated Financial Statements” for more information.
- (4) “Base management fees” assumes the fee remains consistent with the fees incurred for the quarter ended September 30, 2018 as a percentage of Sierra’s net assets for the period. Sierra’s base management fee is calculated at an annual rate of 1.75% of Sierra’s gross assets (which includes any borrowings for investment purposes), at the end of each completed calendar quarter and is payable quarterly in arrears. See “Business of Sierra — Investment Advisory Agreement and Fees.”

“Base management fees” assumes the fee remains consistent with the fees incurred for the quarter ended September 30, 2018 as a percentage of MCC’s net assets for the period. MCC’s base management fee is calculated at an annual rate of 1.75% of MCC’s gross assets (which includes any borrowings for investment purposes) of up to $1 billion, and 1.50% based on its gross assets (which includes any borrowings for investment purposes) above $1 billion. The base management fee is calculated based on the average of the beginning and ending gross assets of each completed fiscal quarter and is payable quarterly in arrears. See “Business of MCC — MCC Advisors — Investment Management Agreement.”

Following the completion of the Mergers, the Combined Company will pay MCC Advisors, which will be a wholly owned subsidiary of the Combined Company following the Mergers, a base management fee that will equal the base management fee currently paid under the Sierra Investment Advisory Agreement as set forth above. The base management fees reflected in the pro forma columns have been estimated by multiplying the pro forma total assets as of September 30, 2018 by 1.75%. The 3.13% base management fee percentage reflected on the table above is higher than 1.75% because it is calculated as a percentage of the pro forma net assets as of September 30, 2018 rather than as a percentage of the pro forma total assets. See “Information about the Combined Company – Investment Advisory Agreement.”

(5) “Incentive fees” for Sierra represent the annualized incentive fees based on actual incentive fees incurred during the nine months ended September 30, 2018. The incentive fees, if any, are divided into two parts:

- i. a subordinated incentive fee on income, which, at a maximum, for any quarter in which Sierra’s pre-incentive fee net investment income exceeds 2.1875% of its net assets at the end of the immediately preceding quarter, will equal 20% of the amount of its pre-incentive fee net investment income; and
- ii. an incentive fee on capital gains that will equal 20% of Sierra’s capital gains, if any, less the aggregate amount of any previously paid incentive fee on capital gains; and the incentive fees are based on Sierra’s performance and will not be paid unless Sierra achieves certain goals. Sierra will record an expense accrual relating to the capital gains incentive fee payable by it to its investment adviser (but not paid) when the unrealized gains on its investments exceed all realized capital losses on its investments given the fact that a capital gains incentive fee would be owed to its investment adviser if Sierra were to sell its investment portfolio at such time. The amount in the table assumes that no incentive fees on capital gains will be paid for the following 12-month period which is based on the actual realized capital gains (losses) for the nine months ended September 30, 2018 and the unrealized appreciation (depreciation) of Sierra’s investments as of such date and assumes that all such unrealized appreciation (depreciation) is converted to realized capital gains (losses) on such date. See “Business of Sierra — Investment Advisory Agreement and Fees” for more information concerning the incentive fees.

“Incentive fees” for MCC represent the annualized incentive fees based on the actual incentive fees incurred during the nine months ended September 30, 2018. The incentive fee consists of two parts:

- i. The first component of the incentive fee is payable quarterly in arrears and is based on MCC’s pre-incentive fee net investment income earned during the calendar quarter for which the incentive fee is being calculated. MCC’s investment adviser is entitled to receive the incentive fee on net investment income from MCC if MCC’s ordinary income (as defined below) exceeds a quarterly “hurdle rate” of 1.50%. The hurdle amount is calculated after making appropriate adjustments to MCC’s net assets, as determined as of the beginning of each applicable calendar quarter, in order to account for any capital raising or other capital actions as a result of any issuances by MCC of MCC Common Stock (including issuances pursuant to the MCC Dividend Reinvestment Plan), any repurchase by MCC of MCC Common Stock, and any dividends paid by MCC, each as may have occurred during the relevant quarter.

Beginning with the calendar quarter that commenced on January 1, 2016, the incentive fee on net investment income is determined and paid quarterly in arrears at the end of each calendar quarter by reference to MCC’s aggregate net investment income, as adjusted as described below, from the calendar quarter then ending and the eleven preceding calendar quarters (or if shorter, the number of quarters that have occurred since January 1, 2016). MCC refers to such period as the “Trailing Twelve Quarters.”

The hurdle amount for the incentive fee on net investment income is determined on a quarterly basis, and is equal to 1.50% multiplied by the MCC’s NAV at the beginning of each applicable calendar quarter comprising the relevant Trailing Twelve Quarters. The hurdle amount is calculated after making appropriate adjustments to MCC’s net assets, as determined as of the beginning of each applicable calendar quarter, in order to account for any capital raising or other capital actions as a result of any issuances by MCC of MCC Common Stock (including issuances pursuant to the MCC Dividend Reinvestment Plan), any repurchase by MCC of MCC Common Stock, and any dividends paid by MCC, each as may have occurred during the relevant quarter. The incentive fee for any partial period will be appropriately prorated. Any incentive fee on net investment income will be paid to MCC’s investment adviser on a quarterly basis, and will be based on the amount by which (A) aggregate net investment income (“Ordinary Income”) in respect of the relevant Trailing Twelve Quarters exceeds (B) the hurdle amount for such Trailing Twelve Quarters. The amount of the excess of (A) over (B) described in this paragraph for such Trailing Twelve Quarters is referred to as the “Excess Income Amount.” For the avoidance of doubt, Ordinary Income is net of all fees and expenses, including the base management fee but excluding any incentive fee on pre-incentive fee net investment income or on MCC’s capital gains. For a more detailed discussion of the calculation of this fee, see “Business of MCC — MCC Advisors — Investment Management Agreement.”

- ii. The second component of the incentive fee is determined and payable in arrears as of the end of each calendar year (or upon termination of the MCC Investment Management Agreement as of the termination date) and equals 20.0% of MCC's cumulative aggregate realized capital gains less cumulative realized capital losses, unrealized capital depreciation (unrealized depreciation on a gross investment-by-investment basis at the end of each calendar year) and all capital gains upon which prior performance-based capital gains incentive fee payments were previously made to MCC's investment adviser.

Under GAAP, MCC calculates the second component of the incentive fee as if MCC had realized all assets at their fair values as of the reporting date. Accordingly, MCC accrues a provisional capital gains incentive fee taking into account any unrealized gains or losses. As the provisional capital gains incentive fee is subject to the performance of investments until there is a realization event, the amount of the provisional capital gains incentive fee accrued at a reporting date may vary from the capital gains incentive that is ultimately realized and the differences could be material.

Following the completion of the Mergers, the Combined Company will pay MCC Advisors, which will be a wholly owned subsidiary of the Combined Company following the Mergers, an incentive fee on income and an incentive fee on capital gains that will equal the incentive fee on income and the incentive fee on capital gains currently paid under the Sierra Investment Advisory Agreement as set forth above. The pro forma Combined Company's income based fees and capital gains incentive fees have been calculated in a manner consistent with the Combined Company Investment Advisory Agreement based on the pro-forma results for the nine months ended September 30, 2018. See "Information about the Combined Company – Investment Advisory Agreement."

- (6) "Interest payments on borrowed funds" for each of Sierra and MCC represents the annualized interest and financing expenses based on actual interest and financing expenses incurred during the nine months ended September 30, 2018. The pro forma Combined Company information includes additional interest expense assuming $50.0 million of leverage necessary to finance the Mergers. As of September 30, 2018, Sierra's and MCC's total borrowings outstanding, net of deferred financing costs, were approximately $366.1 million and $409.8 million, respectively.

Sierra and MCC are only permitted to employ leverage to the extent of their respective asset coverage, as defined in the Investment Company Act, equal to at least 200% after giving effect to such leverage. The amount of leverage that Sierra and MCC employs at any time depends on the assessment of the market and other factors at the time of any proposed borrowing.

- (7) "Acquired fund fees and expenses" are the indirect costs of investing in other investment companies. Such costs are based on the expense ratios of Sierra Loan Strategy JV I LLC, a joint venture and investment held by Sierra, and MCC Senior Loan Strategy JV I LLC, a joint venture and investment held by MCC.
- (8) "Other expenses" for each of Sierra and MCC includes professional fees, administrator expenses and all other general and administrative expenses. Such expenses are annualized based on actual expenses incurred during the nine months ended September 30, 2018, adjusted to exclude expenses incurred during the nine months ended September 30, 2018 related to the Mergers. On a pro forma basis, "Other expenses" were determined by taking the sum of the annualized expenses of Sierra and MCC and adjusting such amount for duplicative expenses of approximately $3.5 million consisting of professional fees associated with audit, tax, valuation and legal services, transfer agent fees, board of director fees, director and officer insurance, administrator expenses and other public company related expenses.

Examples

The following examples demonstrates the projected dollar amount of total cumulative expenses over various periods with respect to a hypothetical investment in Sierra Common Stock, MCC Common Stock, or, following the completion of the Mergers, the Combined Company Common Stock. In calculating the following expense amounts, each of Sierra and MCC has assumed that it would have no additional leverage, that none of its assets are cash or cash equivalents and that its annual operating expenses would remain at the levels set forth in the tables above. Transaction expenses related to the Mergers are not included in the following example.

	1 year	3 years	5 years	10 years
You would pay the following expenses on a $1,000 common stock investment, assuming a 5% annual return in (none of which is subject to the incentive fee on capital gains)(1):
Sierra	$ 95	$ 271	$ 433	$ 777
MCC	$ 186	$ 485	$ 708	$ 1,050
Pro forma Combined Company	$ 116	$ 325	$ 508	$ 869

You would pay the following expenses on a $1,000 common stock investment, assuming a 5% annual return in (all of which is subject to the incentive fee on capital gains)(2):
Sierra	$ 95	$ 271	$ 433	$ 777
MCC	$ 186	$ 485	$ 708	$ 1,050
Pro forma Combined Company	$ 116	$ 325	$ 508	$ 869

- (1) The above examples for Sierra, MCC and, following the completion of the Mergers, the Combined Company assumes the 5% annual return is subject to the incentive fee on investment income only. The examples also assume that Sierra, MCC and, following the completion of the Mergers, the Combined Company, will not realize any capital gains computed net of all realized capital losses and no unrealized capital depreciation.
- (2) The above examples assume that Sierra, MCC and, following the completion of the Mergers, the Combined Company has no investment income and no unrealized capital depreciation and a 5% annual return resulting entirely from net realized capital gains and not otherwise deferrable under the terms of the Combined Company Investment Advisory Agreement and therefore is subject to the incentive fee on capital gains only.

The incentive fee on investment income is the same percentage as the incentive fee on capital gains; as such, the expenses disclosed in the two tables above are the same. For a comparison of the base management fee, incentive fee on investment income, and incentive fee on capital gains of Sierra, MCC and, following the completion of the Mergers, the Combined Company, see page 22 of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus.

The foregoing tables are intended to assist you in understanding the various costs and expenses that an investor in Sierra or MCC, or, following the completion of the Mergers, the Combined Company Common Stock will bear directly or indirectly. While the examples assume, as required by the SEC, a 5% annual return, performance will vary and may result in a return greater or less than 5%. If Sierra were to achieve sufficient returns on its investments, including through the realization of capital gains, to trigger income based fees or incentive fees on capital gains of a material amount, its expenses, and returns to its investors, would be higher.

The foregoing examples and the expenses in the Comparative Fees and Expenses table above should not be considered a representation of Sierra's or MCC's, or, following the completion of the Mergers, the Combined Company's future expenses as actual expenses (including the cost of debt, if any, and other expenses) that it may incur in the future and such actual expenses may be greater or less than those shown.

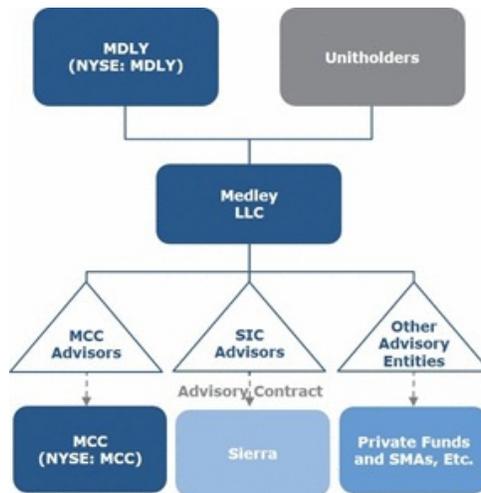

SPECIAL FACTORS

The discussion in this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus, which includes the material terms of the Mergers and the principal terms of the MCC Merger Agreement and the MDLY Merger Agreement, is subject to, and is qualified in its entirety by reference to, the MCC Merger Agreement and the MDLY Merger Agreement, a copy of which is attached as Appendix A and Appendix B to this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus, respectively, and is incorporated herein by reference in its entirety.

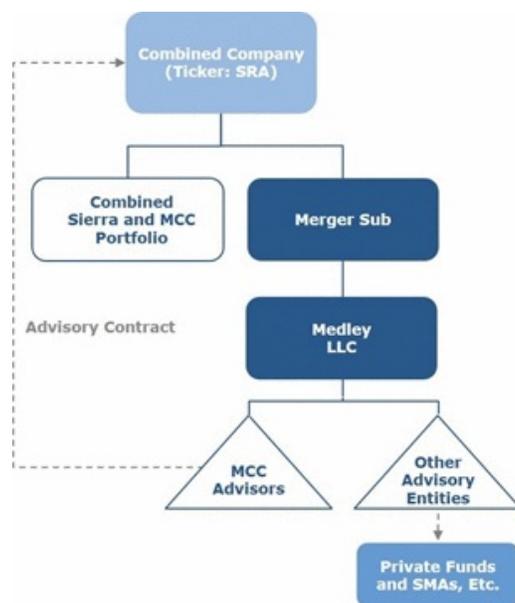

General Description of the Mergers

Subject to the terms and conditions of the MCC Merger Agreement and the MDLY Merger Agreement, the Mergers will result in the formation of an internally managed BDC, which will in turn wholly own a registered investment adviser. In the MCC Merger, MCC would, on the terms and subject to the conditions set forth in the MCC Merger Agreement, merge with and into Sierra, with Sierra continuing as the surviving company in the MCC Merger. In the MCC Merger, shares of MCC Common Stock will be converted into the right to receive 0.8050 shares of Sierra Common Stock. In the MDLY Merger, MDLY would, on the terms and subject to the conditions set forth in the MDLY Merger Agreement, merge with and into Merger Sub, with Merger Sub continuing as the surviving company in the MDLY Merger. In the MDLY Merger, each share of MDLY Class A Common Stock issued and outstanding immediately prior to the MDLY Merger Effective Time (other than Dissenting Shares and Excluded Shares) will be converted into the right to receive (A) 0.3836 shares of Sierra Common Stock; plus (B) cash in an amount equal to $3.44 per share. In addition, the holders of MDLY Class A Common Stock issued and outstanding on the applicable record dates will have the right to receive $0.35 per share of the First Special Dividend (or other payments) and $0.30 per share of the Second Special Dividend (or other payments), to the extent and as described more fully below, as well as regularly scheduled dividends through closing of the MDLY Merger. Each share of MDLY Class B Common Stock issued and outstanding immediately prior to the MDLY Merger Effective Time (other than Dissenting Shares) will be canceled without consideration therefor.

Simplified Structure Before the Completion of the Mergers

Simplified Structure Following the Completion of the Mergers

Background of the Mergers

Since Medley Advisors’ inception in 2006, Management operated Medley Advisors’ asset management business with a focus on direct origination, careful structuring and active monitoring of loan portfolios. Medley Advisors’ investment vehicles have generally focused on private middle market companies in the United States that have revenues between $50 million and $1 billion. MCC completed its initial public offering in January 2011. MCC was the first publicly traded permanent capital vehicle to which Medley Advisors provided asset management services. In April of 2012, Medley Advisors launched Sierra, its first public non-traded permanent capital vehicle.

Medley Advisors believed at the outset that to make Sierra, MCC the private funds and SMAs advised by Medley Advisors (the “Advisory Clients”) more competitive in the middle-market lending space they should pool their resources in order to have the benefits of scale and greater access to capital that borrowers demanded. In that regard, in November 2013 Medley Advisors and the Advisory Clients obtained an order from the SEC that expanded Medley Advisors’ ability to engage in co-investment transactions among the BDCs and other funds managed by Medley Advisors. Since that time, competition for private debt investment opportunities in the lower middle market has significantly intensified and Medley Advisors believes that the need for scale in the asset management business has become even more important.

In May 2017, MDLY embarked on a process to consider a range of strategic transactions to help Medley Advisors achieve a level of scale that it believed would make it more competitive in the asset management business. On May 25, 2017, at the invitation of Management as representatives of MDLY, representatives of Goldman Sachs & Co. LLC (“Goldman Sachs”) met with Management to discuss possible strategic partnerships for MDLY based on public information. MDLY retained the services of UBS and Credit Suisse for the purpose of conducting a limited outreach to potential parties that might have been interested in proposing a strategic transaction with MDLY and Medley Advisors. As a result of the outreach, 19 parties expressed interest in pursuing an acquisition of MDLY and Medley Advisors. Following some preliminary discussions, seven of the 19 parties executed confidentiality agreements with MDLY and received certain information about MDLY’s and Medley Advisors’ business. In July 2017, two of the interested parties submitted non-binding bids to acquire MDLY and Medley Advisors. One of the interested parties proposed an acquisition of MDLY and Medley Advisors for cash, and the other proposed a combination in exchange for consideration of cash and stock of the combined entity. However, neither bid progressed beyond the initial indication of interest.

With respect to each of the initial indications of interest referred to above, because each of the proposals submitted included various conditions and carve-outs, and different forms of consideration, some of which was contingent, and in light of the fact that none were binding, it would be both impracticable and speculative to assign a particular value to any such proposal.

Following the conclusion of the process described above, in the fall of 2017, MDLY concluded that a strategic transaction would be more likely to succeed with a refined search focused on potential partners that shared certain qualities. In that regard, in October 2017 MDLY retained the services of Goldman Sachs and Broadhaven to reach out to a select group of potential partners that met the following criteria: (1) asset management firms that could serve as consolidators and recognize meaningful value creation through the addition of Medley Advisors and the Advisory Clients; (2) partners that could offer MDLY and Medley Advisors the potential to combine businesses and/or create a new business line in the context of a strategic transaction; or (3) private equity firms for which Medley Advisors would be an alternative asset management platform with the ability to add additional businesses and products over time to broaden the platform and capitalize on strong alternative industry growth trends.

Based upon the foregoing guidelines, at the direction of MDLY, representatives of Goldman Sachs and Broadhaven started the process by inviting 38 potential strategic partners or buyers of Medley Advisors' asset management business to participate in the preliminary round of a two-round sale process. Of the 38 invitees, 24 of them executed confidentiality agreements and received information on Medley Advisors and the Advisory Clients. Seven of these 24 were provided access to Management and engaged in discussions with Management on Medley Advisors' operations. Six of the potential buyers then participated in the second round of the sale process, which included substantive meetings with Management and the undertaking of a thorough diligence review of Medley Advisors and its Advisory Clients.

In order to protect the information of MDLY and its affiliates, and to ensure the integrity of the strategic review process, all potential bidders entered into confidentiality agreements with MDLY in connection with its exploration of strategic alternatives, under which potential bidders agreed, among other things, to keep the information they received confidential and to abide by customary "standstill" provisions relating to MDLY, its subsidiaries, Sierra and MCC. Under those standstill provisions, potential bidders agreed, except as requested or consented to by MDLY, not to take certain actions regarding strategic transactions or management or control of MDLY, its subsidiaries, Sierra or MCC and, subject to an exception to permit confidential requests for waivers following the public announcement of an acquisition transaction, not to request waivers of those standstill provisions, in each case during the relevant standstill period. Because the standstill period applicable to a counterparty is a function of the date on which the relevant confidentiality agreement was entered into, as of the date of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus, the standstill provisions in 23 of the 31 confidentiality agreements have expired, and an additional 2 will expire prior to the scheduled date of the Special Meetings. In addition, even where standstill provisions remain in effect, all counterparties subject to such standstill provisions are permitted to confidentially seek a waiver of the standstill provisions in order to privately submit a competing proposal with respect to MDLY, its subsidiaries, Sierra and/or MCC.

During the period from November 2017 through the first week of December 2017, representatives of Goldman Sachs and Broadhaven received indications of interest from eight potential partners. Of the eight indications of interest, six were strategic buyers looking to grow their existing asset management business and two were private equity funds. Following extensive discussions with each of the eight potential partners, MDLY selected the three most viable indications of interest (the "Viable Expressions of Interest"), and requested such interested parties to submit a mark-up of the draft merger agreement that was provided by MDLY no later than January 5, 2018 and to submit a final bid by January 10, 2018.

On January 3, 2018, Goldman Sachs provided relationship disclosure to MDLY that indicated, among other things, that during the prior two-year period the Investment Banking Division of Goldman Sachs did not perform any financial advisory and/or underwriting services for the three interested parties, MCC, Sierra, or any of their respective affiliates for which Goldman Sachs recognized compensation.

In accordance with MDLY's proposal instructions, on January 10, 2018, one of the three interested parties ("Party X") submitted a non-binding bid letter (the "Initial Party X Proposal") and comments on the proposed merger agreement. However, the Initial Party X Proposal indicated Party X's preference for an asset purchase transaction rather than a merger. The Initial Party X Proposal included a non-binding proposal to purchase substantially all the assets of MDLY's business for an equity value per share representing a premium over the trading price of MDLY Class A Common Stock as of the date of the Initial Party X Proposal. The transaction was subject to a number of customary conditions, and would include a cash payment by Party X (some or all of which would be borrowed from third party lenders), cash and certain other assets on MDLY's balance sheet, and a note to be issued to holders of Medley LLC Units, which note would be subject to offset for indemnification. Based on the terms of the Initial Party X Proposal, MDLY and its advisors began negotiating terms with Party X. From January 12, 2018 through January 24, 2018, MDLY and Party X engaged in further negotiations, which resulted in the exchange of numerous proposals and counter-proposals.

Based upon these discussions, on January 26, 2018, Management held meetings with the MCC Board and the Sierra Board to provide them with an update on the potential transaction with Party X. Each of the MCC Board and Sierra Board established the MCC Special Committee and the Sierra Special Committee, respectively, and authorized the committees to evaluate the merits of a potential sale of substantially all of Medley Advisors' assets to Party X, which, in turn, would have constituted the assignment of Sierra's and MCC's respective advisory contracts with Medley Advisors. On February 7, 2018, the MDLY Board established the MDLY Special Committee and authorized it to, among other things, evaluate the merits of the potential sale of MDLY to Party X.

On February 9, 2018, Party X updated the Initial Party X Proposal (the "Second Party X Proposal") to slightly increase the proposed purchase price and to clarify other terms, including the identity of the purchaser, the assets and liabilities to be acquired and other related matters. Also on February 9, 2018, MDLY and Party X entered into an exclusivity agreement regarding the proposed transaction described above through March 15, 2018.

Negotiations regarding the economic terms of the transaction and the related approval of a new investment advisor to Sierra as a result of the contemplated assignment of Sierra's and MCC's respective advisory contracts with Medley Advisors continued over the following weeks. From February 22, 2018 through March 5, 2018, counsel to the parties exchanged drafts of transaction documents and negotiations continued. On March 15, 2018, Party X submitted a revised proposal (the "Third Party X Proposal") that reduced the purchase price significantly and made other material changes to the Second Party X Proposal. Based on the changed economic terms, as well as the other terms of the Third Party X Proposal, MDLY determined that the Third Party X Proposal was not in the best interests of MDLY or Medley Advisors. On that basis, MDLY terminated discussions with Party X.

In April 2018, MDLY reengaged in discussions with two of the other bidders that had previously submitted indications of interest. In each case, those discussions did not lead to a further proposal or other indication of interest to MDLY. Also in April 2018, Party X reinitiated contact with MDLY and, on April 19, 2018, updated the Third Party X Proposal (the "Fourth Party X Proposal") and subsequently provided an updated draft of an asset purchase agreement that reflected the Fourth Party X Proposal. Although the Fourth Party X Proposal reflected a slight increase in the cash portion of the purchase price to be paid and agreement on several other outstanding points, the Fourth Party X Proposal also included a number of changes that materially changed the transaction, including a decrease in the amount of the note to be delivered by Party X; a discount on the amount to be paid for the working capital delivered by MDLY to Party X; a downward purchase price adjustment tied to failure to obtain consents of certain advisory clients; and a downward purchase price adjustment tied to the performance of certain assets. In addition, the Fourth Party X Proposal reflected a shell purchaser with no parent or affiliate guaranteeing the obligations of the buyer and a closing condition tied to Party X's ability to obtaining the needed financing, with MDLY's sole recourse being the right to receive a reverse termination fee from Party X in the event Party X could not obtain financing. Between April 23, 2018 and May 2, 2018, MDLY and Party X engaged in negotiations regarding the Fourth Party X Proposal, exchanged drafts of transaction documentation, and participated in a series of due diligence meetings. However, prior to reaching final agreement on transaction terms and holding meetings with the MCC Special Committee and Sierra Special Committee to provide a transaction update and to introduce Party X to the MCC and Sierra independent directors, Party X informed MDLY that it was withdrawing the Fourth Party X Proposal and that it did not intend to continue to pursue a potential transaction. With respect to all of the Party X proposals, because each of the proposals submitted included various conditions and carve-outs, and different forms of consideration, some of which was contingent, and in light of the fact that none were binding, it would be both impracticable and speculative to assign a particular value to any such proposal.

Shortly after MDLY and Party X terminated their discussions, a limited number of parties made inquiries to MDLY regarding a possible transaction. Specifically, four parties entered into confidentiality agreements, but only one of the four followed up with a preliminary indication of interest. In addition, two parties that did not sign confidentiality agreements made unsolicited inquiries to MDLY, and one of the two submitted an unsolicited indication of interest. Management assessed each of the foregoing inquiries and advised the MDLY Board that, based upon the rudimentary nature of the submissions that were actually presented to MDLY, the fact that any financial terms included in such submissions did not provide compelling value to MDLY and its stockholders, and the fact that the other inquiries did not materialize into further discussions, they did not believe that any of the parties had presented a viable indication of interest that was worth pursuing. The MDLY Board agreed with Management's assessment.

As a result of the foregoing process, and in light of the fact that a considerable amount of time and effort had been devoted to exploring a possible transaction with a third party, the MDLY Board determined that, at that time, a strategic transaction with a third party was unlikely to produce the desired result of achieving a higher degree of scale and creating a broader asset management platform that would benefit MDLY, its stockholders, Medley Advisors, and the Advisory Clients. After consulting further with representatives of Goldman Sachs and Broadhaven, Management, in its capacity as fiduciaries to each of Sierra, MCC, MDLY and their respective stockholders, in an effort to maximize value at Sierra, MCC and MDLY, turned its focus to the potential merger of Sierra and MCC, which would be cross-conditioned on Sierra's acquisition of MDLY. Each of the Sierra Board and MDLY Board held meetings on June 18, 2018, and the MCC Board held a meeting on June 19, 2018, to discuss the potential three-way combination of Sierra, MCC and MDLY (the "Proposed Business Combination"). At each such meeting, Management proposed an initial framework to serve as the starting point with respect to the Proposed Business Combination for each of the Sierra Special Committee, MCC Special Committee and the MDLY Special Committee. In addition, at each such board meeting, it was determined that the scope and authority of the previously formed MCC Special Committee, Sierra Special Committee and MDLY Special Committee would be expanded for the express purpose of considering the Proposed Business Combination.

The structure of the Proposed Business Combination entailed two contemporaneous transactions that would be cross-conditioned upon each other; MCC would merge with and into Sierra, and Sierra would acquire MDLY through a merger of MDLY with and into a wholly owned subsidiary of Sierra. The proposed MCC Merger would take the form of a stock-for-stock merger in which MCC Stockholders would receive Sierra Common Stock in exchange for their existing shares of MCC Common Stock, and the proposed MDLY Merger would include both cash and stock consideration payable to the MDLY Stockholders. The initial framework of the financial terms relating to the Proposed Business Combination included a proposed exchange ratio for the proposed MCC Merger of 0.76 shares of Sierra Common Stock for each share of MCC Common Stock, and in the proposed MDLY Merger, Sierra would acquire MDLY for $3.75 in cash consideration and 0.41 shares of Sierra Common Stock for each share of MDLY Class A Common Stock. The proposed cash consideration in regard to the proposed MDLY Merger was, among other things, intended to address the tax liability that would be incurred by the holders of Medley LLC Units as a result of the closing of the MDLY Merger. It was noted that under the Tax Receivable Agreement the value of certain future tax benefits was allocated 85% to the holders of Medley LLC Units and 15% to the MDLY Public Stockholders and that following the Proposed Business Combination the Combined Company would receive the benefit that previously was allocated to the MDLY Public Stockholders. The foregoing initial framework was the starting point around which the MCC Special Committee, Sierra Special Committee and MDLY Special Committee, along with their financial and legal advisors, began their negotiations. In order to ensure that all parties had the necessary materials to perform their analyses and diligence on the Proposed Business Combination, Management established an electronic data room that all parties could readily access.

Management's Conflicts of Interests and Role in the Mergers

Various measures were implemented to address actual and potential conflicts of interests in light of the fact that each of the Mergers is cross conditioned on the simultaneous closing of the other, resulting in a required agreement among three affiliated, yet separate and distinct public entities, as well as the Medley LLC Unitholders (each of whom is a member of Management). These actual or potential conflicts of interests include the fact that: Medley Advisors has fiduciary duties to each of Sierra, MCC, MDLY and their respective stockholders; certain members of Management control Medley Advisors, are executive officers of Sierra, MCC and MDLY, and control Medley Group LLC, which in turn controls MDLY; certain members of Management have, individual interests in the Medley LLC Units and shares of MCC Common Stock, voting power over approximately 14% of the outstanding shares of MCC Common Stock held by Medley Seed Funding I LLC, contractual rights under the Tax Receivable Agreement, and individual interests relating to the terms of their respective individual future employment with the Combined Company. Specifically, Brook Taube and Seth Taube each currently hold controlling voting interests in Medley Advisors, and, if the Mergers are consummated, will serve as the Chairman of the Combined Company Board and Chief Executive Officer and Chief Investment Officer of the Combined Company in the case of Brook Taube, and the Vice Chairman, Senior Executive Vice President and Senior Managing Director of the Combined Company in the case of Seth Taube. Other members of Management, who currently serve as executive officers and/or senior personnel of Medley Advisors, Sierra, MCC and MDLY, will also serve as executive officers of the Combined Company if the Mergers are consummated.

In order to mitigate these and other conflicts (as described herein), the boards of directors of each of Sierra, MCC and MDLY expanded the authority of the previously formed special committees, each of which was comprised solely of independent and disinterested directors, to, among other things, negotiate and evaluate the Proposed Business Combination. Each of the Sierra Special Committee, MCC Special Committee and MDLY Special Committee had the authority to, among other things: (i) evaluate and review the terms and conditions of the Proposed Business Combination or any alternative thereto; (ii) communicate and negotiate (or direct the communication or negotiation) with respect to the terms and conditions of the Proposed Business Combination or any alternative thereto; (iii) determine whether the Proposed Business Combination or any alternative thereto is advisable and is fair to, and in the best interests of the applicable company and its stockholders; (iv) recommend to their respective board of directors the rejection or approval and effectuation of the Proposed Business Combination or any alternative thereto; (v) consider, evaluate, review and monitor all proceedings and activities of the applicable company related to the Proposed Business Combination or any alternative thereto; (vi) consider, evaluate and recommend to their respective board of directors the approval and adoption of the forms, terms and provisions of any agreements relating to the Proposed Business Combination or any alternative thereto; (vii) consider, evaluate, and recommend to their respective board of directors the authorization of the execution and delivery of any such agreements relating to the Proposed Business Combination or any alternative thereto; and (viii) hire any advisors that they deemed appropriate, including their own independent legal counsel and independent financial advisor.

This broad authority enabled each of the respective boards to consult with and rely on the advice of experts who, like the independent directors themselves, were determined to be independent of the other parties to the transaction and could provide advice and guidance solely for the purpose of serving the best interests of the respective stockholders of each entity. In addition, each of the Sierra Board, MCC Board and MDLY Board conditioned its ability to recommend the Proposed Business Combination, or any alternative thereto, to their respective stockholders or otherwise approve or authorize such transaction, on the prior favorable recommendation of such transaction by its special committee.

Throughout the process of negotiating the terms of the Mergers, Management generally served in the following capacities. Management proposed an initial framework around which the Sierra Special Committee, MCC Special Committee and MDLY Special Committee could begin discussions and facilitated negotiations among the parties. Management participated in meetings with each special committee and its advisors. Each special committee held meetings at which both its advisors and Management were present and meetings at which only the special committee's advisors were present. Members of Management represented their individual interests as holders of the Medley LLC Units and shares of MCC (as described more fully in this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus) in negotiating the resulting benefits they would receive from any consideration paid to MCC and MDLY by Sierra. Members of Management also represented their individual interests in negotiating their employment contracts with the Combined Company. In this regard, Management negotiated their employment contracts and related compensation from the Combined Company with the Sierra Special Committee, as Sierra will be the surviving entity. Management retained separate legal counsel to negotiate their employment contracts with the Sierra Special Committee's independent legal counsel and the Sierra Special Committee retained an independent compensation consultant to provide advice concerning executive compensation in connection with the transaction.

Set forth below is a summary of the process undertaken by each of the Sierra Special Committee, MCC Special Committee and MDLY Special Committee, and an analysis of the various factors that formed the basis of each committee's decision to recommend the approval of the Mergers to their respective board of directors. Any description of Management's actions in each such section should be understood in the context of the foregoing depiction of Management's role throughout the process of considering the Proposed Business Combination.

Sierra

At a special meeting on June 18, 2018, the Sierra Board considered the Proposed Business Combination, the rationale for the Proposed Business Combination, and the initial terms of a potential framework around which the Proposed Business Combination could be effected. Pursuant to the initial framework, MCC would merge with and into Sierra, and Sierra would acquire MDLY through a merger of MDLY with and into a wholly-owned subsidiary of Sierra. The proposed MCC Merger would take the form of a stock-for-stock merger in which MCC Stockholders would receive Sierra Common Stock in exchange for their existing shares of MCC Common Stock using a proposed exchange ratio of 0.76 shares of Sierra Common Stock for each share of MCC Common Stock. The proposed MDLY Merger would include both cash and stock consideration in which MDLY Stockholders would receive $3.75 in cash consideration and 0.41 shares of Sierra Common Stock for each share of MDLY Class A Common Stock. The proposed cash consideration in regard to the proposed MDLY Merger was, among other things, intended to address the tax liability that would be incurred by the holders of Medley LLC Units as a result of the closing of the MDLY Merger. It was noted that under the Tax Receivable Agreement the value of certain future tax benefits was allocated 85% to the holders of Medley LLC Units and 15% to the MDLY Public Stockholders and that following the Proposed Business Combination the Combined Company would receive the benefit that previously was allocated to the MDLY Public Stockholders. The Sierra Board also discussed with Management next steps and a tentative timeline for evaluating and voting on the Proposed Business Combination.

Following the Sierra Board meeting on June 18, 2018, the Sierra Special Committee met with representatives of Broadhaven to discuss the possibility of the Sierra Special Committee engaging Broadhaven to act as an independent financial advisor to the Sierra Special Committee. The Sierra Special Committee reviewed materials that had been provided by Broadhaven in advance of the meeting. The materials included (1) an overview of Broadhaven, (2) a description of the fiduciary process to be undertaken by the Sierra Special Committee, (3) a description of the benefits and issues to consider with respect to various strategic alternatives, (4) a description of selected prior transactions in which Broadhaven had served as an advisor, and (5) financial advisor fee precedents for comparable types of transactions. Broadhaven, among other things, presented its qualifications, discussed the manner in which it would analyze the framework for the Proposed Business Combination, and discussed work it and members of the proposed engagement team had performed for MDLY in the past. Broadhaven representatives also discussed with the Sierra Special Committee that Broadhaven previously had been engaged by MDLY on October 11, 2017 to advise MDLY in connection with a potential strategic transaction and that the engagement had been terminated on June 15, 2018. The Broadhaven representatives noted that Broadhaven had received no fees from MDLY in connection with that engagement and that Broadhaven had waived the “tail” provisions arising from that engagement.

On June 22, 2018, the Sierra Special Committee held a telephonic meeting with representatives of Sullivan & Worcester LLP (“S&W”), counsel retained by the Sierra Special Committee. During that meeting the Sierra Special Committee discussed whether to engage Broadhaven as its independent financial advisor and, if selected, the terms of the engagement. The Sierra Special Committee also discussed the possible composition of the Combined Company Board following the closing of the Proposed Business Combination. In addition, the Sierra Special Committee discussed the formal continuation of the Sierra Special Committee and the compensation to be paid to the Chair and members of the Sierra Special Committee. Finally, the Sierra Special Committee discussed next steps in terms of engaging Broadhaven and formalizing the Committee’s role in evaluating the Proposed Business Combination.

On July 2, 2018, the Sierra Special Committee met in person with representatives of S&W. In response to inquiries from the Sierra Special Committee, the S&W representatives reviewed with the Sierra Special Committee S&W’s evaluation of the prior engagement of Broadhaven by MDLY. The S&W representatives noted the following: (1) Broadhaven had terminated the prior engagement with MDLY and had waived the “tail” provisions arising from that engagement, and (2) Broadhaven had received no fees in connection with the prior engagement with MDLY. Following discussion with the S&W representatives, the Sierra Special Committee determined that Broadhaven’s prior engagement by MDLY would not adversely affect Broadhaven’s ability to render independent advice to the Sierra Special Committee concerning the proposed Mergers and engaged Broadhaven to serve as the Committee’s independent financial advisor. At the meeting, the Sierra Special Committee also confirmed the continued engagement of S&W as independent legal counsel to the Sierra Special Committee in connection with the Proposed Business Combination. Following the decision to retain Broadhaven, Representatives of Broadhaven joined the meeting. S&W representatives discussed the Sierra Special Committee members’ duties and responsibilities in evaluating the Proposed Business Combination, while Broadhaven representatives presented a preliminary work plan and timeline and identified certain aspects of the Proposed Business Combination that Broadhaven intended to closely examine.

Immediately following the meeting among the Sierra Special Committee and representatives of Broadhaven and S&W, the Sierra Board held an in-person meeting. During that meeting, and after discussion, the Sierra Board, among other things: (1) ratified the establishment of the Sierra Special Committee and all actions taken by the Sierra Special Committee to date, (2) authorized the Sierra Special Committee to evaluate and review the terms of the Proposed Business Combination, (3) authorized the Sierra Special Committee to make a recommendation to the Sierra Board regarding the Proposed Business Combination, (4) authorized the Sierra Special Committee to make a recommendation to the Sierra Board regarding any agreements relating to the Proposed Business Combination, (5) approved the compensation of the Chair and members of the Special Committee and the reimbursement of any out-of-pocket expenses, and (6) authorized the Sierra Special Committee to select and retain consultants and agents, including independent financial and legal advisors, to assist the Sierra Special Committee in evaluating the Proposed Business Combination.

Following the meeting of the Sierra Board, the Sierra Special Committee reconvened. The members of the Sierra Special Committee were joined by representatives of Broadhaven, Management, Eversheds Sutherland (US) LLP (“Eversheds Sutherland”), which acted as regular outside counsel for Sierra, MCC and MDLY on common issues, and S&W. Representatives of Eversheds Sutherland discussed their communications to date with SEC staff concerning the Proposed Business Combination. Eversheds Sutherland explained that the SEC would need to issue an exemptive order in connection with the Proposed Business Combination. In addition, Eversheds Sutherland discussed the need for exemptive relief from the SEC to allow the Combined Company to own shares of a registered investment adviser in excess of the limits set forth in rules adopted under the Investment Company Act. Representatives of Eversheds Sutherland also discussed certain tax consequences of the proposed MDLY Merger, including tax implications under the Tax Receivable Agreement.

The Sierra Special Committee then discussed with Management a proposal to have Merger Sub enter into employment agreements with five members of Management that would become effective upon the closing of the Proposed Business Combination. Management said it would provide the Sierra Special Committee with the proposed executive compensation packages for each of the five members of Merger Sub’s management with a form of employment agreement to follow.

The Sierra Special Committee next discussed the Proposed Business Combination with Broadhaven, S&W and Management, in its capacity as a facilitator of discussions between the Sierra Special Committee, MCC Special Committee and MDLY Special Committee. Management discussed, among other things: (1) MDLY’s current advisory business and projected growth of that business in the coming years, (2) MCC’s non-accrual assets, and (3) the status of the SBIC Subsidiary. Management responded to questions from the Sierra Special Committee, Broadhaven and S&W.

Following their presentation, the representatives of Management and Eversheds Sutherland were excused from the meeting and the Sierra Special Committee met with representatives of Broadhaven and S&W. The Sierra Special Committee, Broadhaven and S&W discussed, among other things: (1) the timing and scope of the due diligence that would be conducted, (2) the legal and regulatory aspects of the Proposed Business Combination, (3) the role of each of Broadhaven and S&W and the work to be conducted by each of them, (4) the role of the Sierra Special Committee in the analysis and in any negotiation of the Proposed Business Combination, and (5) the timing and scope of future meetings of the Sierra Special Committee. Representatives of S&W reported on the status of their due diligence review of materials posted to the electronic data room.

On July 15, 2018, the Sierra Special Committee held a telephonic meeting with representatives of Broadhaven and S&W. During that meeting representatives of Broadhaven reviewed in detail a report on their analysis of the Proposed Business Combination, which had been provided to the Sierra Special Committee in advance of the meeting. Broadhaven representatives began by reporting that they had substantially completed their financial due diligence, which included, among other things, evaluation of (1) the overall structure of the Proposed Business Combination, (2) the financial outlook of each of Sierra, MCC and MDLY (see “Special Factors—Unaudited Prospective Financial Information”), (3) the legal, tax and regulatory components of the Proposed Business Combination, and (4) Management’s analysis of the potential benefits of the Proposed Business Combination to Sierra Stockholders. Broadhaven representatives then discussed their preliminary report, which included (1) a stand-alone valuation analysis for each of Sierra, MCC and MDLY, (2) a pro forma analysis of the Combined Company, (3) potential modifications to the proposed structure of the Combined Company, and (4) a preliminary framework for future negotiations with MDLY and MCC.

The Sierra Special Committee reviewed with representatives of Broadhaven and S&W the rationale for the Proposed Business Combination. These included (1) providing liquidity to Sierra Stockholders, (2) the potential for realizing meaningful accretion to NII, NAV and ROE, (3) the internalization of management, (4) greater diversification and scale benefits arising from consolidation of assets under management, (5) potential cost savings, (6) potential benefits from growth in the institutional asset management business, and (7) the alignment of the interests of Management and the Combined Company’s stockholders.

The Sierra Special Committee next reviewed with representatives of Broadhaven and S&W the benefits and issues with a variety of strategic alternatives, including (1) maintenance of the status quo, (2) listing Sierra Common Stock on a national securities exchange, (3) entering into a transaction with an independent third party, (4) entering into the MDLY Merger only, and (5) entering into the MCC Merger only. The Sierra Special Committee directed the representatives of Broadhaven and S&W to continue their work on the Proposed Business Combination as they evaluated these alternatives.

The Sierra Special Committee discussed with representatives of Broadhaven the stand-alone valuations of each of Sierra and MCC. Broadhaven representatives noted that Sierra and MCC were similar in important ways, including that there was an approximately 50% overlap in their investment portfolios as of March 31, 2018. Broadhaven representatives also observed that while non-accrual assets represented a larger percentage of MCC’s investment portfolio, Sierra held some of the same non-accrual assets in its investment portfolio.

Broadhaven representatives then provided to the Sierra Special Committee a summary of Sierra’s and MCC’s estimated financial results through June 30, 2018 as well as forecasts for each of Sierra and MCC through the end of 2019, all of which had been prepared by Management. Broadhaven representatives noted that the forecasts did not account for any prospective credit losses because, according to Management, it was difficult to predict future credit losses. Broadhaven representatives indicated that MCC’s credit performance was at or near the bottom of publicly traded BDCs and that its GAAP ROE had been negative over certain periods. Broadhaven representatives reviewed the market price of MCC Common Stock since MCC’s initial public offering as well as the market discount to NAV over that same period of time, noting that the market price had steadily declined and the market discount had increased over time. Broadhaven representatives then discussed MCC’s trading metrics compared to those of other publicly traded BDCs, including both internally managed and externally managed BDCs.

In order to provide the Sierra Special Committee with comparative benchmarks, Broadhaven representatives next discussed the performance of two non-listed BDCs that subsequently were listed on a national securities exchange. They explained that these two BDCs were important precedents because their initial capital was raised in a similar fashion to Sierra’s and they were each successful in their public listings on a standalone basis. Broadhaven representatives also discussed the performance of certain BDCs and how MCC compared to these other BDCs from a trading perspective. Broadhaven representatives noted that the average and median of the purchase price relative to the NAV for the comparable BDCs was 75% and 80%, respectively.

At the request of the Sierra Special Committee, Broadhaven representatives reviewed the non-accrual assets held by each of Sierra and MCC. Broadhaven representatives noted that as of the end of the second quarter of 2018, non-accrual assets accounted for approximately 4.1% of the fair market value of Sierra’s investment portfolio and approximately 8.4% of the fair market value of MCC’s investment portfolio. Broadhaven representatives next discussed the overlap in Sierra’s and MCC’s investment portfolios. Broadhaven representatives then reviewed their analysis of Sierra at various discounts to NAV. Broadhaven representatives noted that, based on various metrics for publicly traded BDCs, including ROE, non-accrual assets as a percentage of investment portfolio, dividend yield, price/book value, and price/earnings, they believed that Sierra Common Stock, if listed on a standalone basis, would likely trade at a significant discount to NAV. Broadhaven representatives then discussed a potential exchange ratio of 0.76 that was an element of the initial framework, analyzing the Proposed Business Combination both assuming Sierra Common Stock were to trade at its current NAV, and then at various discounts to NAV. Based on the estimated range of values for the Sierra Common Stock, Broadhaven representatives calculated the resulting implied prices that would be paid to MCC Common Stockholders and compared such prices to the NAV of MCC and the current market price for MCC Common Stock. Broadhaven representatives discussed the proposed exchange ratio in view of the anticipated contribution of Sierra and MCC to the Combined Company in terms of revenue, NII and net earnings. Finally, Broadhaven representatives noted that the proposed exchange ratio between Sierra and MCC was within a range that likely represented economic reality and that the relationship between Sierra and MCC as reflected by the proposed exchange ratio was appropriate.

The Sierra Special Committee next discussed the valuation of MDLY with the Broadhaven representatives. Broadhaven representatives provided a summary of MDLY's estimated financial results through June 30, 2018 as well as forecasts for MDLY through the end of 2019, both of which had been prepared by Management. Broadhaven representatives reviewed the market price of MDLY Class A Common Stock since MDLY's initial public offering as well as the market price relative to earnings per share. Broadhaven representatives then discussed MDLY's trading metrics compared to those of publicly traded traditional asset managers and alternative asset managers. Broadhaven representatives then reviewed certain transactions involving BDC managers and how MDLY compared to these other BDC managers.

Broadhaven representatives next reviewed with the Sierra Special Committee the discounted cash flow analysis for MDLY Common Stock, which was based upon forecasts prepared by Management. Broadhaven representatives indicated that a 12% to 14% discount appeared to be reasonable and that using a discount rate in this range would result in an implied share price of $5.98 at the low end and $14.13 at the high end.

Next, the Sierra Special Committee discussed the proposed structure of the Combined Company with representatives of Broadhaven and S&W. Broadhaven representatives reviewed the benefits of having an asset management company as a portfolio company, including the benefits to the capital structure of the Combined Company. Broadhaven representatives also discussed the impact of the Combined Company maintaining a management agreement with its wholly owned investment advisor. Broadhaven representatives explained that the revenue paid by the Combined Company to its wholly owned investment advisor would result in taxable income for the advisor, but the tax shield created by the Tax Receivable Agreement could be utilized to offset a portion of the investment advisor's taxable income. Broadhaven representatives then reviewed their estimate of the value of the Tax Receivable Agreement and various alternatives for renegotiating the Tax Receivable Agreement, including modifying the allocation of tax benefits between Medley LLC Unitholders and the Combined Company.

Broadhaven representatives then reviewed with the Sierra Special Committee the terms of the Proposed Business Combination, noting that their summary reflected the framework discussed at the June 18, 2018 Sierra Board meeting. Broadhaven representatives also reviewed their analysis of the anticipated contribution of Sierra, MDLY and MCC to the Combined Company in terms of revenue, EBITDA and net earnings.

The Sierra Special Committee next reviewed the expected benefits of the Proposed Business Combination with representatives of Broadhaven and S&W. The Sierra Special Committee also discussed with representatives of Broadhaven and S&W the actual or potential disadvantages of the Proposed Business Combination, which included merging with two companies that had identifiable weaknesses. Finally, Broadhaven representatives set out a number of negotiating topics for the Sierra Special Committee to consider. These topics included the exchange ratio for each of MDLY Common Stock and MCC Common Stock, the treatment of the Tax Receivable Agreement, the mix of cash and stock for MDLY Common Stock, and the composition of the Combined Company Board and its management.

On July 18, 2018, the Sierra Special Committee held an in-person meeting with representatives of Broadhaven and S&W. Broadhaven representatives provided an update on the status of the MCC Special Committee and the MDLY Special Committee based on their conversations with Management and representatives of Goldman Sachs. Broadhaven also discussed supplemental materials that had been provided by Management prior to the meeting. The materials included an updated framework, dated July 12, 2018, that reflected estimated June 30, 2018 financial results but generally held other assumptions constant with the framework discussed at the June 18, 2018 meeting of the Sierra Board. The July 12, 2018 framework reflected a proposed exchange ratio of 0.72 shares of Sierra Common Stock for each share of MCC Common Stock and consideration to MDLY Stockholders of $3.75 in cash and 0.43 shares of Sierra Common Stock for each share of MDLY Class A Common Stock. The Sierra Special Committee discussed with the representatives of S&W and Broadhaven the proposed executive compensation and expressed its desire to engage a consultant to advise the Sierra Special Committee on the reasonableness of the proposed executive compensation. After discussion, and on the basis of a recommendation from the Broadhaven representatives, the Sierra Special Committee determined to explore the possibility of engaging Johnson & Associates to assist the Committee in evaluating the reasonableness of the proposed executive compensation. The Sierra Special Committee also discussed the composition of the Combined Company Board and asked the S&W representatives to provide a variety of information about the board composition of other BDCs.

The members of the Sierra Special Committee indicated that they were in favor of proceeding with the negotiation of the terms for the Proposed Business Combination. There was then a discussion of the various alternatives concerning the Tax Receivable Agreement.

The Sierra Special Committee also indicated that they wanted Management to provide more detailed information about the estimated cost savings to be achieved as a result of the Proposed Business Combination. Broadhaven representatives recommended a negotiating position that addressed, among other things, the price offered for MDLY, and the mix of stock and cash to be paid to MDLY Stockholders in each case as compared to that contemplated in the initial framework. In addition, Broadhaven representatives recommended that the Tax Receivable Agreement be tied to actual tax savings and that the allocation of the benefits under the Tax Receivable Agreement between Medley LLC Unitholders and the Combined Company be changed for the benefit of Sierra Stockholders.

At the Sierra Special Committee's request, a representative of Goldman Sachs and Mr. Brook Taube joined the meeting. The representative of Goldman Sachs discussed with the Sierra Special Committee his conversations with representatives of the other special committees' financial advisors concerning feedback from the MDLY Special Committee and MCC Special Committee. The representative of Goldman Sachs indicated that it was his understanding that the MCC Special Committee was focused on the following issues: (1) the exchange ratio for the MCC Merger, (2) the MDLY Merger Consideration proposed to be paid to MDLY Stockholders, (3) the possibility of obtaining cash consideration for MCC Stockholders as part of the MCC Merger, (4) the proposed executive compensation, and (5) the allocation of the benefits of the Tax Receivable Agreement.

The Sierra Special Committee instructed the representatives of Broadhaven to propose the following terms to the representatives of Goldman Sachs and Brook Taube, and asked that they communicate them to the MCC Special Committee and MDLY Special Committee that: (1) the nominal value of the consideration to be paid to MDLY Stockholders be in the range of $5 to $6 per share (valuing the shares of Sierra Common Stock at their NAV as of March 31, 2018), (2) the cash component paid to MDLY Stockholders represent 50% of the total consideration, and (3) the benefits of the Tax Receivable Agreement be split evenly between the Medley LLC Unitholders and the Combined Company and its stockholders. The Broadhaven representatives also indicated that the Sierra Special Committee believed the exchange ratio of 0.72, as proposed under the updated proposal, for the MCC Merger was within the appropriate range. Mr. Taube informed the Sierra Special Committee and its advisors that the MDLY Special Committee wanted the total MDLY Merger Consideration paid to MDLY Stockholders to be the equivalent of $7.75 per share (valuing the shares of Sierra Common Stock at their NAV as of March 31, 2018). In order to bridge the difference in price and for other reasons, the Broadhaven representatives suggested that MDLY could consider making a special dividend to MDLY Stockholders. The Goldman Sachs representative and Mr. Taube said they would communicate the proposed terms to the MCC Special Committee and MDLY Special Committee and then they left the meeting.

Next, the Sierra Special Committee discussed the current terms of the Proposed Business Combination and compared them to the terms that had been proposed by Party X before Party X withdrew its proposal to acquire MDLY. The Sierra Special Committee considered the potential benefits from internalization of management and the Tax Receivable Agreement that were absent from the third-party offers considered in the past. The Sierra Special Committee noted that its current proposal contemplated the benefits of the Tax Receivable Agreement being shared evenly between Medley LLC Unitholders and the Combined Company and its stockholders.

On July 19, 2018, the Sierra Special Committee held a telephonic meeting with representatives of Broadhaven and S&W. During that meeting, after consulting with the Broadhaven representatives, the Special Committee determined that, in response to the MDLY Special Committee's proposal from the previous day, the Sierra Special Committee would propose a purchase price of $6.00 per share (valuing the shares of Sierra Stock at their NAV as of March 31, 2018) plus a $0.25 per share dividend to be paid by MDLY to MDLY Stockholders immediately prior to the Mergers and allocating the benefits of the Tax Receivable Agreement 55%/45% between Medley LLC Unitholders and the Combined Company. After further review and discussion, the Sierra Special Committee decided to propose the top end of their range of $5.00 to $6.00 per share, plus a $0.25 dividend, in the context of negotiations and in response to the MDLY Special Committee's assertion that $7.75 per share was the right purchase price. At the instruction of the Sierra Special Committee, representatives of Broadhaven presented such terms to Brook Taube and asked that he communicate the same to the MDLY Special Committee.

Later on July 19, 2018, the Sierra Special Committee held a telephonic meeting with representatives of S&W. During that meeting, the Sierra Special Committee discussed the Board composition of the Combined Company.

On July 22, 2018, the Sierra Special Committee held a telephonic meeting with representatives of S&W. The S&W representatives provided an update to the Sierra Special Committee on their understanding of the current status of the negotiations with the MCC Special Committee and MDLY Special Committee.

On July 23, 2018, the Sierra Special Committee held a telephonic meeting with representatives of Broadhaven and S&W. During that meeting, the Broadhaven representatives indicated that they were reviewing an updated framework that had been transmitted by Management earlier in the day and would not be able to react to it before the next day. The July 23, 2018 framework reflected a proposed exchange ratio of 0.82 shares of Sierra Common Stock for each share of MCC Common Stock and consideration to MDLY Stockholders of $3.94 in cash, including a $0.50 special cash dividend, and 0.39 shares of Sierra Common Stock for each share of MDLY Class A Common Stock. The Broadhaven representatives then provided an update to the Sierra Special Committee on their understanding of the negotiations with the MCC Special Committee and MDLY Special Committee. The Sierra Special Committee then discussed the composition of the Combined Company Board.

On July 24, 2018, the Sierra Special Committee held a telephonic meeting with representatives of Broadhaven and S&W. During that meeting, the Broadhaven representatives indicated that they had conversations with representatives of Management. Representatives of Goldman Sachs participated in these discussions at the direction of MDLY. Management indicated that the MCC Special Committee and the MDLY Special Committee, as applicable, considered the following terms: (1) a nominal price of $6.75 per share for MDLY, which includes a $0.50 per share dividend to be paid by MDLY to MDLY Stockholders immediately before the Mergers, (2) an exchange ratio of 0.820 for the MCC Merger, and (3) allocating the benefits of the Tax Receivable Agreement evenly between the Medley LLC Unitholders and the Combined Company and its stockholders. The Broadhaven representatives noted that Management believes the cost savings from the Proposed Business Combination will be approximately $7 million annually and will document this savings, though such savings were likely to be offset by the market levels of compensation being considered for Management. The Broadhaven representatives also discussed Management's 2018 financial projections for MDLY. The Broadhaven representatives said that the MDLY Special Committee appeared to be focused on the price previously offered by Party X. The Broadhaven representatives discussed with the Sierra Special Committee why the price previously offered to MDLY by Party X no longer reflected, in their view, a fair price for MDLY. The Broadhaven representatives noted that the MCC Special Committee should be willing to consider an exchange ratio of less than 0.820. The Sierra Special Committee then discussed the Board composition of the Combined Company.

On July 25, 2018, the Sierra Special Committee held a telephonic meeting with representatives of Broadhaven and S&W. During that meeting, the Broadhaven representatives discussed the prior withdrawn offer from Party X for MDLY. They also discussed the reasons that deal was of limited value in evaluating the terms of the proposed MDLY Merger. The Sierra Special Committee determined to propose a price of $6.25 per share for MDLY and an exchange ratio of 0.76 for each share of MCC Common Stock.

On July 26, 2018, the Sierra Special Committee held a telephonic meeting with representatives of S&W. The S&W representatives provided an update on their understanding of the status of the negotiations with the MCC Special Committee and the MDLY Special Committee.

On July 27, 2018, the Sierra Special Committee held a telephonic meeting with representatives of Broadhaven and S&W. During that meeting, the Broadhaven representatives provided an update on their understanding of the status of negotiations with the MCC Special Committee and the MDLY Special Committee. The proposed framework now included (i) a price of $6.75 per share for MDLY, which includes a $0.50 per share dividend to be paid by MDLY to MDLY Stockholders immediately prior to the Mergers, (ii) an exchange ratio of 0.8050 for the MCC Merger and (iii) the elimination of the Tax Receivable Agreement such that all tax benefits would accrue to the Combined Company. The Broadhaven representatives then reviewed an updated analysis that they had prepared which reflected the latest proposal from the MCC Special Committee and the MDLY Special Committee, which had been provided to the Sierra Special Committee prior to the meeting. The materials included an analysis of the implied nominal MDLY share price of $6.75 per share. The Broadhaven representatives also reviewed their analysis of the exchange ratio for MCC Common Stock, which showed the implied MCC purchase price and the premium and discount to the market price of MCC Common Stock. They also noted that the elimination of the Tax Receivable Agreement was a significant economic concession from MDLY. The Broadhaven representatives next reviewed their analysis of the financial impact of the Proposed Business Combination to the Combined Company. The Broadhaven representatives noted that assuming a nominal price of $6.75 per share to be paid to MDLY Stockholders and an exchange ratio of 0.8050 for the MCC Merger, the Proposed Business Combination would result in 16% accretion in NII, 0.9% accretion in NAV and 0.94% increase in operating ROE for the Sierra Stockholders. The Broadhaven representatives reviewed the options available to the Sierra Special Committee, which included, among others, accepting the counterproposal from the MCC Special Committee and the MDLY Special Committee or rejecting the counterproposal and renewing the Sierra Special Committee's previous counterproposal. The Broadhaven representatives advised that, based on Management's feedback regarding the views of the MCC Special Committee and the MDLY Special Committee, obtaining a lower exchange ratio for the MCC Merger was likely not possible but they believed that there was still some room to negotiate with the MDLY Special Committee on the terms of a transaction with MDLY. The Broadhaven representatives advised the Sierra Special Committee to examine the terms of the Proposed Business Combination in whole rather than considering each Merger in isolation. The Broadhaven representatives confirmed that they were prepared to take the MCC Special Committee's and the MDLY Special Committee's latest counterproposal to their fairness opinion committee. The Sierra Special Committee excused the Broadhaven representatives from the call.

The Sierra Special Committee discussed how to respond to the MDLY Special Committee's counterproposal. After discussion, the Broadhaven representatives rejoined the call. The Sierra Special Committee communicated its current thinking on the MDLY Special Committee's counterproposal.

Mr. Brook Taube joined the meeting. The Chair of the Sierra Special Committee provided an update to Mr. Taube on the status of the Committee's deliberations. Mr. Taube discussed the rationale for the MDLY Special Committee's counterproposal, noting that the increased allocation of the benefits of the Tax Receivable Agreement to the Combined Company provided an offset to the financial impact of the higher exchange ratio for the MCC Merger that was being sought by the MCC Special Committee. Mr. Taube also discussed the importance of the nominal price of $6.75 per share for the MDLY Special Committee. The Sierra Special Committee then excused Mr. Taube from the meeting.

The Sierra Special Committee continued to discuss the MDLY Special Committee's counterproposal with the representatives of Broadhaven and S&W. The Sierra Special Committee indicated that it would accept the 0.8050 exchange ratio for the MCC Merger proposed by the MCC Special Committee but wanted a nominal price of $6.50 per share for MDLY. The Sierra Special Committee directed the Broadhaven representatives to ask Management to communicate the Sierra Special Committee's position to the two other special committees.

On July 29, 2018, Eversheds Sutherland uploaded to the electronic data room drafts of the MDLY Merger Agreement and MCC Merger Agreement for the proposed Mergers. Representatives of S&W reviewed the draft agreements on the behalf of the Sierra Special Committee. On August 3, 2018, representatives of S&W circulated their preliminary comments on the draft agreements to the Sierra Special Committee. From August 3, 2018 through August 9, 2018, representatives of Eversheds Sutherland circulated multiple drafts of the Merger Agreements among representatives of Kramer Levin Naftalis & Frankel LLP, independent counsel to the MCC Special Committee ("Kramer Levin"), Potter Anderson & Corroon LLP, independent counsel to the MDLY Special Committee ("Potter Anderson"), and S&W.

On July 31, 2018, the Sierra Special Committee held a telephonic meeting with representatives of S&W. During that meeting, the participants discussed the upcoming Sierra Audit Committee and Sierra Board meetings. The S&W representatives provided an overview of the draft MCC Merger Agreement and the MDLY Merger Agreement. The S&W representatives noted that in response to a request from the Sierra Special Committee at its July 18, 2018 meeting updated information concerning the cost savings and synergies from the Proposed Business Combination had been circulated the previous day to the Sierra Special Committee. Representatives of Broadhaven joined the call and provided an update on their understanding of the state of the negotiations with the MCC Special Committee and the MDLY Special Committee. The Broadhaven representatives said that the MCC Special Committee had agreed to the exchange ratio of 0.8050 and that the MDLY Special Committee had counter proposed a nominal price of $6.65. After additional discussion, the Sierra Special Committee determined to proceed with further negotiations with MCC and MDLY, using the foregoing terms as a framework to negotiate the legal agreements among the parties. Broadhaven representatives said that they expected to share a draft of their fairness opinion with the Sierra Special Committee by the end of the week.

On August 2, 2018, the Sierra Special Committee met in executive session prior to the Sierra Board meeting with a representative of S&W. In addition to discussing matters related to the upcoming meeting, the Sierra Special Committee discussed a variety of matters concerning the Proposed Business Combination, including the composition of the Combined Company Board.

On August 2, 2018, the Sierra Special Committee held a telephonic meeting with representatives of Broadhaven and S&W. During that meeting, Broadhaven representatives discussed the accounting treatment of Merger Sub. Broadhaven representatives said that they did not analyze the impact consolidation would have on the debt currently held by MDLY, the magnitude of the benefits of the Tax Receivable Agreement, or the financial projections for MDLY given that the transaction being considered did not contemplate consolidation. Broadhaven representatives noted that their fairness opinion was conditioned on fair value rather than consolidation accounting for MDLY. The discussion turned to next steps in regard to the accounting treatment of Merger Sub.

On August 5, 2018, the Sierra Special Committee held a telephonic meeting with representatives of S&W. The S&W representatives discussed the application of the SEC's "going private" rule to the MDLY Merger and the determination that the Sierra Board would be required to make as a result. The Sierra Special Committee then discussed the reports of the compensation consultant that it had received prior to the meeting. The Sierra Special Committee began by discussing the proposed executive compensation to be paid to certain members of Sierra's management and the comparable compensation information for certain comparable BDCs and alternative asset managers. The Sierra Special Committee noted certain additional information they planned to request from Management, including the specific roles and responsibilities of the members of Management proposed to receive executive compensation packages. The S&W representatives also discussed with the Sierra Special Committee the draft form of employment agreement that Management had provided. The Sierra Special Committee determined that combining the positions of the Chief Executive Officer and chair of the Combined Company Board was appropriate at this time.

A representative from Broadhaven then joined the meeting. The Broadhaven representative noted that Broadhaven did not perform any analysis to determine how consolidation of Merger Sub's financials with those of the Combined Company would affect the economics of the Proposed Business Combination given that the transaction being considered did not contemplate consolidation. The Broadhaven representative reported that Broadhaven had completed its due diligence of MCC and MDLY.

Also on August 5, 2018, the Sierra Special Committee held a telephonic meeting with representatives of Management, Eversheds Sutherland, Broadhaven and S&W. At the invitation of the Sierra Special Committee and at the direction MDLY, representatives of Goldman Sachs were in attendance at this meeting. Representatives of Management and Eversheds Sutherland provided an update on the discussions with SEC Staff concerning the accounting treatment for the Merger Sub and the exemptive relief necessary for the Combined Company to operate as contemplated following the Proposed Business Combination.

The Sierra Special Committee held a telephonic meeting with representatives of Broadhaven and S&W immediately following the telephonic meeting with Management and Eversheds Sutherland. In addition to discussing the earlier call with Management and Eversheds Sutherland, the Sierra Special Committee discussed next steps, including how best to comply with the various requirements of the SEC's going private rule.

On August 6, 2018, the Sierra Special Committee held a telephonic meeting with representatives of Broadhaven and S&W. During that meeting, the Sierra Special Committee discussed compensation-related matters to be raised with Mr. Brook Taube during a call later that day. The Sierra Special Committee also discussed certain provisions in the draft form of employment agreement, including the non-compete provision.

On August 7, 2018, the Sierra Special Committee held a telephonic meeting with representatives of Management, Winston & Strawn, counsel to Management, and S&W. During that meeting, Mr. Brook Taube reviewed Management's objectives with the proposed executive compensation packages and the draft form of employment agreement. He explained that the proposed compensation was designed to be at or slightly below the industry median and that the employment agreement was intended to provide a market-based framework for senior executives. There was then a discussion of the draft form of employment agreement that had been circulated by S&W earlier in the day with a goal of resolving specific business points. After discussion, the participants on the call agreed to have Winston & Strawn and S&W prepare a revised draft form of employment agreement that reflected the substance of the discussions during the call and circulate that revised draft to all of the participants of the meeting for their consideration.

On August 8, 2018, the Chair of the Sierra Special Committee held a telephone conference call with representatives of Broadhaven and S&W. The participants on the call discussed the termination fee that would be appropriate with respect to each of the MCC Merger and the MDLY Merger. Following a discussion with representatives of Broadhaven and S&W, the Sierra Special Committee agreed that a termination fee of $6,000,000 in regard to the MCC Merger would be appropriate. In addition, the Sierra Special Committee agreed that the termination fee of $5,350,000 currently contemplated for the MDLY Merger was appropriate, but that MDLY should also be asked to reimburse Sierra's expenses should the MDLY Merger not be consummated. The Sierra Special Committee considered typical ranges for termination fees of 2% to 5% of the deal value and concluded that the termination fee for the MCC Merger was appropriate and that the sum of the termination fee and reimbursement of expenses in the MDLY Merger was similarly consistent with precedents. Later on August 8, 2018, the Sierra Special Committee then held an in-person meeting with representatives of Broadhaven, Miles and Stockbridge P.C. ("M&S"), counsel to Sierra in connection with Maryland corporate law related matters, and S&W. The S&W representatives reported that they had completed their due diligence of MCC and MDLY and had not identified any matters that they believed would prevent the Sierra Special Committee from approving the Proposed Business Combination. A representative of M&S reviewed the Sierra Special Committee's duties and responsibilities as directors of a Maryland corporation in regard to their consideration of the Proposed Business Combination. Representatives of S&W provided an overview of the MCC Merger Agreement and the MDLY Merger Agreement, noting that the MCC Merger Agreement and the MDLY Merger Agreement were still being negotiated among the parties. In reviewing the material terms and conditions of the MCC Merger Agreement and the MDLY Merger Agreement, the representatives of S&W noted that the receipt of SEC exemptive relief to permit the Combined Company to operate as proposed, confirmation from the SEC Staff that the financial statements of Merger Sub would not be consolidated with those of the Combined Company, and receipt of an opinion that the Mergers would qualify as tax-free reorganizations were all conditions to closing in each of the MCC Merger Agreement and the MDLY Merger Agreement. The representatives of S&W reviewed the termination provisions in the MCC Merger Agreement and the MDLY Merger Agreement, which included termination fees and required the Mergers to close by March 31, 2019.

The Sierra Special Committee discussed responsibilities under the SEC's going private rule in connection with its consideration of the MDLY Merger.

Representatives of M&S and S&W discussed the possibility of amending the Sierra Charter and Sierra Bylaws prior to the closing of the Mergers. Representatives of S&W explained that certain provisions of these organizational documents currently contemplated that Sierra would not be listed on a national securities exchange and that Sierra would be externally managed.

Broadhaven representatives reviewed their analysis of the Proposed Business Combination, copies of which were handed out at the meeting. Broadhaven representatives noted that they had previously reviewed with the Sierra Special Committee much of the information and analysis set forth in their report. Broadhaven representatives discussed (1) the structure of the Proposed Business Combination, (2) the investment portfolios of each of Sierra and MCC, (3) the valuation of each of Sierra, MDLY and MCC, and (4) an analysis of the impact of the Proposed Business Combination on Sierra. Broadhaven representatives highlighted certain features of the Proposed Business Combination that redounded to the benefit of Sierra and the Sierra Stockholders, including the termination of the Tax Receivable Agreement which would allow 100% of the benefits from the Tax Receivable Agreement to go to the Combined Company and its stockholders. Broadhaven representatives noted that the market price for the shares of the Combined Company would likely be higher than the market price for the shares of Sierra Common Stock if it listed its shares on a standalone basis. Broadhaven representatives noted the benefit of converting from an externally-managed BDC to an internally-managed one. Broadhaven representatives then reviewed their merger analysis. Broadhaven representatives explained that the Proposed Business Combination was expected to result in 15.6% accretion in NII, 0.94 basis points increase in ROE and 0.7% accretion in NAV for Sierra. Broadhaven representatives discussed the rationale for paying a premium over the current market price of MDLY Class A Common Stock and MCC Common Stock to effect the Mergers. The rationale included the financial benefits described above, the fact that the premium was consistent with premiums typically paid in a change of control transaction, and the reasonableness of the valuation multiples implied by the purchase price, including the multiple of EBITDA. The Broadhaven representatives then discussed their draft fairness opinion, noting that it was conditioned on Sierra receiving SEC exemptive relief to allow the Combined Company to operate as proposed and confirmation from the SEC that consolidation of Merger Sub's financials with those of the Combined Company was not necessary.

Later on August 8, 2018, the Sierra Board held a special in-person meeting. Representatives of Management, Eversheds Sutherland, Broadhaven, M&S and S&W also participated. The Chair of the Sierra Special Committee reported to the Sierra Board the discussions that had occurred during the earlier Sierra Special Committee meeting. The Chair of the Special Committee reported that: (1) M&S and S&W representatives had reviewed the duties and responsibilities of the Sierra Special Committee; (2) S&W representatives had reviewed with the Sierra Special Committee the material terms and conditions of the MCC Merger Agreement and the MDLY Merger Agreement for the MCC Merger and MDLY Merger, respectively, with a particular focus on terms and conditions that had changed since the Committee had last seen drafts of the MCC Merger Agreement and the MDLY Merger Agreement on August 3, 2018; (3) M&S and S&W representatives had reviewed potential considerations and the process under Rule 13e-3; (4) S&W representatives had reviewed the anticipated governance structure of the Combined Company and any necessary steps to accomplish that structure before the closing of the Proposed Business Combination, which included potentially amending the Sierra Charter and Sierra Bylaws; (5) Broadhaven representatives reviewed their analysis of the Proposed Business Combination and their draft fairness opinion concerning the Proposed Business Combination; (6) Broadhaven and S&W representatives discussed the draft press release and investor presentation announcing the Proposed Business Combination; and (7) the parties to the Proposed Business Combination had held a general discussion of next steps.

Also on August 8, 2018, the Sierra Special Committee held an in-person meeting with representatives of Management, their counsel, Winston & Strawn (participating by telephone), and S&W. The participants discussed the latest draft of the form of employment agreement that had been circulated earlier in the day with a focus on the changes that had been made since the previous draft had been circulated to the meeting participants. After discussion, the representatives of Management and Winston & Strawn left the meeting and the Sierra Special Committee held an executive session with S&W.

The representatives of Management and Winston & Strawn later rejoined the meeting and agreed to most of the provisions that the Sierra Special Committee had requested. Management asked the Sierra Special Committee to consider certain provisions that Management wanted included in the final form of employment agreement. The Sierra Special Committee agreed to provide a response to Management the following morning.

On August 9, 2018, the Sierra Special Committee held a telephonic meeting with representatives of S&W. The Sierra Special Committee discussed the outstanding items regarding the form of employment agreement. After discussion, they agreed to communicate the Sierra Special Committee's position to Management.

Also on August 9, 2018, representatives of S&W and the Sierra Special Committee discussed the management compensation assessment prepared by the independent compensation consultant concerning the reasonableness of the Combined Company's contemplated compensation for MDLY's executive officers to become effective upon the closing of the Mergers. Representatives of S&W also discussed the management compensation assessment with representatives of Kramer Levin.

Later on August 9, 2018, the Sierra Special Committee held a call with representatives of Broadhaven, M&S and S&W. Broadhaven representatives directed the Sierra Special Committee to their analysis and fairness opinion. Broadhaven representatives explained that both documents were substantially similar to the versions presented to the Sierra Special Committee the previous day and reviewed the changes that had been made since the previous day.

Representatives of S&W reviewed the MCC Merger Agreement and MDLY Merger Agreement with the Sierra Special Committee, highlighting any differences from the versions presented the previous day. The meeting participants discussed one provision related to the termination of the Tax Receivable Agreement. After discussion, S&W representatives indicated they would ask Management to communicate to the MCC Special Committee and the MDLY Special Committee the contract language requested by the Sierra Special Committee.

After discussion the Sierra Special Committee determined to approve Sierra's participation in the Proposed Business Combination; the terms of the MCC Merger Agreement and the transactions contemplated thereby, including the MCC Merger; and the terms of the MDLY Merger Agreement and the transactions contemplated thereby, including the MDLY Merger; and recommend that the Sierra Board approve the same. In approving the Proposed Business Combination, the Sierra Special Committee considered the potential benefits and potential risks that might result from the consummation of the Proposed Business Combination, recognizing that there was no guarantee that the anticipated benefits would be realized.

Immediately following the August 9, 2018 Sierra Special Committee meeting, the Sierra Board held a special telephonic meeting, with all members of the Board present. Representatives of Management, Eversheds Sutherland, Broadhaven, M&S and S&W also participated in the meeting. The Chair of the Sierra Special Committee reported to the Sierra Board that representatives of Broadhaven had presented their final analysis of the Proposed Business Combination and their fairness opinion to the effect that as of that date and based upon and subject to various assumptions, matters considered and limitations described in its opinion, the consideration to be provided for each share of MCC Common Stock and each share of MDLY Common Stock is fair to the holders of Sierra common stock (other than Medley Advisors and its affiliates) from a financial point of view, and that representatives of S&W had reviewed the MCC Merger Agreement and MDLY Merger Agreement for the proposed Mergers. The Chair of the Special Committee reported that based on the numerous meetings of the Sierra Special Committee and the advice of the representatives of Broadhaven, M&S and S&W, the Special Committee had approved, and recommended that the Sierra Board approve, the Proposed Business Combination, the MCC Merger Agreement, and the MDLY Merger Agreement. After discussion, and on the basis of the Sierra Special Committee's recommendation, the Sierra Board unanimously approved Sierra's participation in the Proposed Business Combination; approved the terms of the MCC Merger Agreement and the transactions contemplated thereby, including the MCC Merger; approved the MDLY Merger Agreement and the transactions contemplated thereby, including the MDLY Merger; and approved the submission of each of the MCC Merger Agreement and the transactions contemplated thereby and MDLY Merger Agreement and the transactions contemplated thereby to the Sierra Stockholders.

MCC

During the June 19, 2018 MCC Board meeting, the MCC Board expanded the scope of the MCC Special Committee to, among other things: (i) evaluate and review the terms and conditions of the Proposed Business Combination or any alternative thereto; (ii) communicate and negotiate (or direct the communication or negotiation) with respect to the terms and conditions of the Proposed Business Combination or any alternative thereto; (iii) determine whether the Proposed Business Combination or any alternative thereto is advisable and is fair to, and in the best interests of MCC and the MCC Stockholders; (iv) recommend to the MCC Board the rejection or approval and effectuation of the Proposed Business Combination or any alternative thereto; (v) consider, evaluate, review and monitor all proceedings and activities of MCC related to the Proposed Business Combination or any alternative thereto; (vi) consider, evaluate and recommend to the MCC Board the approval and adoption of the forms, terms and provisions of any agreements relating to the Proposed Business Combination or any alternative thereto; (vii) consider, evaluate, and recommend to the MCC Board the authorization of the execution and delivery of any such agreements relating to the Proposed Business Combination or any alternative thereto; and (viii) hire any advisors that it deems appropriate, including its own independent legal counsel and independent financial advisor.

At the end of the June 19, 2018 MCC Board meeting, the MCC Special Committee held an in-person meeting, with representatives of Kramer Levin in attendance, during which the MCC Special Committee determined to retain a financial advisor for the purpose of advising the MCC Special Committee. In addition, representatives of Kramer Levin reviewed with the MCC Special Committee their fiduciary duties in connection with its evaluation and negotiation of the proposed MCC Merger or any alternatives thereto. At the request of the MCC Special Committee, representatives of Kramer Levin also reviewed with the MCC Special Committee potential conflicts and information relating to the equity ownership of members of Management in MCC, MDLY, and Sierra. At the meeting, the MCC Special Committee also confirmed the continued engagement of Kramer Levin as independent legal counsel to the MCC Special Committee in connection with the proposed MCC Merger.

The MCC Special Committee then held telephonic meetings on June 22, 2018 and June 25, 2018, at which discussions were held with representatives of two financial advisory firms, including Sandler O'Neill. During the meetings on June 22, 2018 and June 25, 2018, the MCC Special Committee evaluated each financial advisory firm's experience and qualifications, the preliminary perspectives regarding the Mergers, and in particular, the MCC Merger, provided by each firm and the experience of each team in the BDC market and in the mergers and acquisitions field in general. The MCC Special Committee also assessed whether any of the firms had conflicts that would disable it from rendering independent advice to the Special Committee. Considering the factors described above, and after follow up discussions with representatives of each financial advisor, the MCC Special Committee determined to authorize the engagement of Sandler O'Neill as financial advisor to assist the MCC Special Committee in its consideration of the proposed transaction and any other alternatives. On June 29, 2018, the MCC Special Committee entered into a financial advisory engagement letter with Sandler O'Neill.

On July 11, 2018, the MCC Special Committee held an in-person meeting with representatives of Sandler O'Neill and Kramer Levin in attendance, at which the MCC Special Committee, with the assistance of Sandler O'Neill and Kramer Levin, reviewed in detail Management's initial framework. At the invitation of the MCC Special Committee and at the direction of MDLY, representatives of Goldman Sachs were in attendance at this meeting. At the direction of MDLY, representatives of Goldman Sachs reviewed details of the Proposed Business Combination under which two contemporaneous transactions would be cross-conditioned upon each other; MCC would merge with and into Sierra, and Sierra would acquire MDLY through a merger of MDLY with and into a wholly-owned subsidiary of Sierra. The MCC Merger would take the form of a stock-for-stock merger in which MCC Stockholders would receive Sierra Common Stock in exchange for their existing shares of MCC Common Stock, and the MDLY Merger would include both cash and stock consideration payable to the MDLY Stockholders. The proposed exchange ratio for the MCC Merger was 0.76 shares of Sierra Common Stock for each share of MCC Common Stock, and in the proposed MDLY Merger, Sierra would acquire MDLY for $3.75 in cash consideration and 0.41 shares of Sierra Common Stock for each share of MDLY Class A Common Stock (the "Initial Proposal"). During this meeting, representatives of Sandler O'Neill reviewed background information regarding Sierra and MDLY and discussed the structure of the proposed transaction, the transaction rationale and potential risks/challenges, corporate governance and post-transaction arrangements with management. The MCC Special Committee discussed the challenges faced by MCC as a stand-alone public company, including its size, the recent portfolio credit performance of MCC, significant declines in NAV and net income and concerns over credit, leverage constraints on growth and difficulty in raising capital. The MCC Special Committee considered potential benefits of the Mergers to MCC, including increased scale and portfolio diversification, a combined company with larger market capitalization and thus potentially enhanced liquidity and a management structure more closely aligned with interests of the MCC Stockholders since the investment adviser to the Combined Company would be wholly owned by the Combined Company. Representatives of Kramer Levin discussed the SEC exemptive relief that would be required in order to consummate the proposed transaction. Kramer Levin also reviewed and discussed with members of the MCC Special Committee their responsibilities and duties in considering the proposed transaction and any alternatives to the proposed transaction. The MCC Special Committee requested Kramer Levin to conduct due diligence to assist the MCC Special Committee's evaluation of the proposed transaction.

On July 17, 2018, the MCC Special Committee met telephonically with the representatives of Sandler O'Neill and Kramer Levin to discuss a revision of the Initial Proposal conveyed by Mr. Taube and representatives of Goldman Sachs based on updated MCC financial information (as of June 30, 2018) ("Updated Proposal"). The Updated Proposal provided for a stock-for-stock merger using an exchange ratio of 0.72 due to a decrease in MCC's NAV per share over the previous quarter. Sandler O'Neill discussed with the MCC Special Committee financial aspects of the Updated Proposal. The MCC Special Committee preliminarily considered that the Updated Proposal (as well as the Initial Proposal) would result in dilution of NAV per share of MCC Common Stock (although it would yield expected accretion to NII per share) and that there was no cash consideration in the proposed transaction for MCC Stockholders. The MCC Special Committee also noted the expected cash needs of the Combined Company.

On July 18, 2018, at the direction of the MCC Special Committee, representatives of Sandler O'Neill and Kramer Levin met with Brook Taube and relayed the MCC Special Committee's preliminary observations of the Updated Proposal to be communicated to the MDLY Special Committee and the Sierra Special Committee. At the invitation of the Mr. Taube, and on behalf of MDLY, representatives of Goldman Sachs were in attendance at this meeting.

On July 20, 2018, the MCC Special Committee met telephonically with representatives of Sandler O'Neill and Kramer Levin, to further discuss the MCC Special Committee's observations of the Updated Proposal. During this meeting, the MCC Special Committee considered a potential response to the Updated Proposal, proposing that Sierra acquire MCC for stock and some cash so that the aggregate value of the NAV of the Combined Company Common Stock received in the proposed transaction, plus cash received by MCC Stockholders in the proposed transaction, would closely approximate MCC's NAV going into the proposed transaction (the "Counter-Proposal").

On July 23, 2018, the MCC Special Committee met telephonically with representatives of Sandler O'Neill and Kramer Levin, and reviewed with Sandler O'Neill financial aspects of the Counter-Proposal, including its financial effects on MCC and the Combined Company. The MCC Special Committee requested that Sandler O'Neill provide the written Counter-Proposal to representatives of Goldman Sachs to be communicated to the MDLY Special Committee and the Sierra Special Committee.

On July 26, 2018, the MCC Special Committee met telephonically with representatives of Sandler O'Neill and Kramer Levin to discuss the MDLY Special Committee's and the Sierra Special Committee's response to the Counter-Proposal (the "Sierra Proposal"). The MCC Special Committee discussed the terms of the Sierra Proposal, which included a stock-for-stock merger with a fixed exchange ratio that was slightly higher than that provided for in the Updated Proposal and a limit on the maximum amount of payments under the Tax Receivable Agreement to Medley LLC Unitholders. The MCC Special Committee reviewed with Sandler O'Neill a comparison of the Counter-Proposal and the Sierra Proposal. The MCC Special Committee considered, among other things, the potential financial impact of the Sierra Proposal on MCC and the MCC Stockholders and determined to reject the Sierra Proposal, noting, in particular, the amount of NAV per share dilution that was expected to result therefrom. The MCC Special Committee requested that Sandler O'Neill provide a counter-proposal to the MDLY Special Committee and the Sierra Special Committee proposing a stock-for-stock merger with Sierra with a higher exchange ratio (the "Second Counter-Proposal"). The Second Counter-Proposal was provided by Sandler O'Neill later that day.

On July 27, 2018, at the direction of MDLY, representatives of Goldman Sachs communicated to Sandler O’Neill MDLY’s and Sierra’s response to the Second Counter-Proposal (the “Response Proposal”). Later that day, the MCC Special Committee met telephonically with representatives of Sandler O’Neill and Kramer Levin, to discuss the Response Proposal. The MCC Special Committee discussed the terms of the Response Proposal, which included a stock-for-stock merger with a fixed exchange ratio of 0.8050 (the “Updated Exchange Ratio”) and the complete elimination of the annual Tax Receivable Agreement. The MCC Special Committee reviewed with Sandler O’Neill a comparison of the Second Counter-Proposal and the Response Proposal and various alternative terms for the transactions. Sandler O’Neill reviewed, in detail, with the MCC Special Committee the potential financial benefit of eliminating the Tax Receivable Agreement to the Combined Company (and thus the MCC Stockholders).

On July 28, 2018, the MCC Special Committee met telephonically with representatives of Sandler O’Neill and Kramer Levin, to further discuss the Response Proposal. The MCC Special Committee reviewed the potential financial impact of the Response Proposal, noting that although there remained some potential dilution of NAV per share of MCC Common Stock (approximately 8%), there was an expected significant accretion in NII per share, which could help support the market value at which the Combined Company would trade. The MCC Special Committee took into account that MCC Common Stock has traded at a discount to NAV of 30% or more. Based on information reviewed with the MCC Special Committee by Sandler O’Neill, and the analyses that Management provided, the MCC Special Committee noted that the market appeared to ascribe a far greater discount to MCC’s NAV per share than what is reflected in the exchange ratio under the Response Proposal and that the Combined Company appeared unlikely to trade at a discount to its NAV per share to the same extent as MCC. The MCC Special Committee then considered the significant challenges currently facing MCC as a small stand-alone BDC with an NAV and NII per share that have each been declining. After additional discussion, the Committee determined to proceed with further negotiations with Sierra and MDLY, using the Response Proposal as a framework for the legal agreements among the parties.

On July 29, 2018, representatives of Eversheds Sutherland provided representatives of Kramer Levin drafts of the MCC Merger Agreement and the MDLY Merger Agreement.

On August 2, 2018, the MCC Special Committee held an in-person meeting with representatives of Sandler O’Neill and Kramer Levin in attendance telephonically to discuss the MCC Merger Agreement and the MDLY Merger Agreement. Representatives of Kramer Levin summarized the material terms of the proposed MCC Merger Agreement and the MDLY Merger Agreement and reported on several provisions that Kramer Levin viewed as requiring negotiation, including deal protections and termination rights. Also at this meeting, representatives of Sandler O’Neill updated the MCC Special Committee on the status of its analyses, its discussions with Management and its review of additional cost saving synergies projected by Management to be realized by the Combined Company. Representatives of Kramer Levin and Sandler O’Neill also discussed regulatory and governmental approvals that would be required in order to complete the proposed transactions and the timing and processes required for such approvals.

Over the next several days, representatives of each of Eversheds Sutherland, Potter Anderson, S&W and Kramer Levin, together with representatives of the MCC Special Committee, the Sierra Special Committee and the MDLY Special Committee, engaged in extensive discussions and negotiations concerning, and exchanged numerous revised drafts of, the proposed MCC Merger Agreement and the MDLY Merger Agreement. Such discussions and negotiations included the issues that the MCC Special Committee had identified previously as necessitating additional consideration, including a discussion of the amount of the termination fee and various closing conditions.

On August 6, 2018, the MCC Special Committee met telephonically with representatives of Sandler O’Neill and Kramer Levin, and representatives of Kramer Levin summarized material terms of the proposed MCC Merger Agreement and MDLY Merger Agreement still under negotiation and provided an update on the process for obtaining SEC exemptive relief and other approvals that would be required in order to complete the proposed transactions.

On August 8, 2018, the MCC Special Committee met telephonically with representatives of Sandler O’Neill and Kramer Levin, and representatives of Sandler O’Neill reviewed Sandler O’Neill’s preliminary financial analyses relating to the Updated Exchange Ratio to be received by the holders of MCC Common Stock in connection with the proposed transaction with Sierra. Representatives of Kramer Levin summarized the material terms of the updated proposed MCC Merger Agreement and the MDLY Merger Agreement reflecting the most recent negotiations, and reported on the resolution of various issues during the course of negotiations with Eversheds Sutherland, Potter Anderson and S&W. Representatives of Kramer Levin also updated the MCC Special Committee regarding outstanding issues that remained subject to further negotiations with Sierra and MDLY. Sandler O’Neill also updated the MCC Special Committee on the status of its financial analyses, which were substantially complete. The MCC Special Committee further discussed the potential benefits of the Mergers to MCC and the MCC Stockholders and also considered various risks/challenges posed by the proposed transaction (as identified below under “Reasons for the Mergers — MCC’s Reasons for the Transactions”).

On August 9, 2018, the MCC Special Committee met telephonically to consider the most recently updated MCC Merger Agreement (reflecting the most recent negotiations), the proposed transactions contemplated therein, including the MCC Merger, and related matters. Representatives of Kramer Levin reviewed with the MCC Special Committee the most recent updated MCC Merger Agreement and the MDLY Merger Agreement. Representatives of Kramer Levin also discussed their due diligence review of MCC, Sierra and MDLY to date, reviewed the processes undertaken by the MCC Special Committee in its consideration of the proposed transactions and potential alternatives, and reviewed again the duties of the members of the MCC Special Committee in connection with such consideration. Representatives of Kramer Levin then reviewed with the MCC Special Committee the management compensation assessment prepared by the Sierra Special Committee's independent compensation consultant concerning the reasonableness of the Combined Company's contemplated compensation arrangements for MDLY's executive officers and other employees to become effective upon closing of the Mergers. Sandler O'Neill presented its updated financial analyses relating to the Updated Exchange Ratio. In addition, Sandler O'Neill rendered to the MCC Special Committee its opinion, initially rendered verbally and confirmed by delivery of a written opinion to the MCC Special Committee, dated August 9, 2018, to the effect that as of that date and based upon and subject to various assumptions, matters considered and limitations described in its opinion, the MCC Merger Consideration was fair to the holders of the MCC Common Stock (other than Sierra, MDLY and their respective affiliates) from a financial point of view. Following a further discussion, the MCC Special Committee determined that the proposed MCC Merger was in the best interests of MCC Stockholders and unanimously recommended that the MCC Board approve the MCC Merger Agreement and the transactions contemplated thereby, including the MCC Merger.

Later on August 9, 2018, the MCC Board, including all members of the MCC Special Committee, met telephonically to consider and act on the MCC Merger Agreement, the transactions contemplated thereby, including the MCC Merger, and related matters. The Chair of the MCC Special Committee reported on the MCC Special Committee's actions taken and recommendations made earlier in the day. After further discussion, on the basis of the MCC Special Committee's recommendation, the MCC Board unanimously: determined that the MCC Merger Agreement and the transactions contemplated thereby, including the MCC Merger, were fair to and in the best interests of MCC and the MCC Stockholders, declared advisable the MCC Merger Agreement and the transactions contemplated thereby, including the MCC Merger, directed that the MCC Merger Agreement and the MCC Merger be submitted to the MCC Stockholders for approval and resolved to recommend that the MCC Stockholders vote to approve the MCC Merger Agreement and the transactions contemplated thereby, including the MCC Merger.

MDLY

On June 15, 2018, an agenda and related materials was provided to members of the MDLY Board for a meeting to be held on June 18, 2018, for the purpose of discussing a proposed strategic transaction involving MDLY, Sierra and MCC. On June 16, 2018, Mr. Fredericks contacted representatives of Potter Anderson to discuss the proposed transaction, informed them that the contemplated transaction was conditioned on approval of the MDLY Special Committee.

At the June 18, 2018 meeting of the MDLY Board, Mr. Taube and at the direction of MDLY, representatives of Goldman Sachs, reviewed in detail a preliminary framework relating to the Proposed Business Combination through two contemporaneous transactions that would be cross-conditioned upon each other. The terms of the preliminary framework were intended to facilitate negotiations among the respective special committees of the boards of directors of MDLY, Sierra and MCC. Pursuant to the Proposed Business Combination, MCC would merge with and into Sierra, and Sierra would acquire MDLY through a merger of MDLY with and into a wholly-owned subsidiary of Sierra. The MCC Merger would take the form of a stock-for-stock merger in which MCC Stockholders would receive Sierra Common Stock in exchange for their existing shares of MCC Common Stock, and the MDLY Merger would include both cash and stock consideration payable to the MDLY Stockholders.

The proposed exchange ratio for the MCC Merger discussed was 0.76 shares of Sierra Common Stock for each share of MCC Common Stock. In the proposed MDLY Merger, Sierra would acquire MDLY for $3.75 in cash consideration and 0.41 shares of Sierra Common Stock for each share of MDLY Class A Common Stock. Next, Management and representatives of Goldman Sachs provided an overview of the potential benefits of the Mergers, including that the Mergers would: (i) create the second largest internally managed and seventh largest publicly traded BDC, (ii) result in a simplified organizational structure allowing for significant reductions in fixed costs and expenses, and (iii) result in a significant increase in equity market liquidity for the stockholders of each of Sierra, MCC and MDLY. Following that discussion, Eversheds Sutherland discussed the SEC exemptive relief that would be required in order to consummate the proposed Mergers. Management confirmed to the MDLY Special Committee that any proposal circulated by or on behalf of Management or MDLY to either MCC or Sierra would not be considered final unless and until the MDLY Special Committee approved such proposal.

The MDLY Board discussed the scope of the authority granted to the MDLY Special Committee. The MDLY Board granted the MDLY Special Committee the authority to, among other things: (i) evaluate and review the terms and conditions of the Proposed Business Combination or any alternative thereto; (ii) consider, evaluate, review, and communicate and negotiate (or direct the communication or negotiation) with respect to the terms and conditions of the Proposed Business Combination or any alternative thereto; (iii) determine whether the Proposed Business Combination or any alternative thereto is advisable and is fair to, and in the best interests of MDLY and its stockholders; (iv) recommend to the MDLY Board the rejection or approval and effectuation of the Proposed Business Combination or any alternative thereto; (v) consider, evaluate, review and monitor all proceedings and activities of MDLY related to the Proposed Business Combination or any alternative thereto; (vi) consider, evaluate and recommend to the MDLY Board the approval and adoption of the forms, terms and provisions of any agreements relating to the Proposed Business Combination or any alternative thereto; (vii) consider, evaluate, and recommend to the MDLY Board the authorization of the execution and delivery of any such agreements relating to the Proposed Business Combination or any alternative thereto; and (viii) hire any advisors that it deemed appropriate, including its own independent legal counsel and independent financial advisor.

On June 20, 2018, the MDLY Special Committee held a telephonic meeting with representatives from Potter Anderson to discuss strategy, timing, and process with respect to the proposed Mergers, including the engagement of a financial advisor to assist the MDLY Special Committee in evaluating and negotiating the framework discussed during the June 18, 2018 meeting of the MDLY Board. At the meeting, the MDLY Special Committee and representatives of Potter Anderson discussed the previous efforts of MDLY to date in seeking a potential buyer for MDLY or its assets, including the abandoned transaction with Party X. The MDLY Special Committee and representatives of Potter Anderson also discussed the expansion of the scope of the MDLY Special Committee's authority, as discussed during the June 18, 2018 meeting. In addition, representatives of Potter Anderson reviewed with the MDLY Special Committee their fiduciary duties in connection with its evaluation and negotiation of the proposed MDLY Merger or any alternatives thereto. At the request of the MDLY Special Committee, representatives of Potter Anderson also reviewed with the MDLY Special Committee potential conflicts and information relating to the equity ownership of members of Management in MDLY, Sierra, and MCC. The potential conflicts of interests discussed included the fact that certain members of Management have individual interests in the Medley LLC Units and shares of MCC Common Stock, voting power over approximately 14% of the outstanding shares of MCC Common Stock held by Medley Seed Funding I LLC, contractual rights under the Tax Receivable Agreement, and that members of Management likely would continue their employment with the Combined Company. At the meeting, the MDLY Special Committee also confirmed the continued engagement of Potter Anderson as independent legal counsel to the MDLY Special Committee in connection with the proposed MDLY Merger.

Later on June 20, 2018, at the request of the MDLY Special Committee, Potter Anderson sent Eversheds Sutherland draft authorizing resolutions of the MDLY Board, which were consistent with the discussions of the MDLY Board at its June 18, 2018 meeting, and which empowered the MDLY Special Committee to, among other things, consider, evaluate, review, and negotiate the terms and conditions of the proposed MDLY Merger or any alternative thereto, with the MDLY Board agreeing not to recommend or approve the proposed MDLY Merger or any alternative thereto without a prior favorable recommendation from the MDLY Special Committee. The formal resolutions delegating authority to the MDLY Special Committee were adopted by the MDLY Board on June 18, 2018.

On June 21, 2018, representatives of Potter Anderson, on behalf of the MDLY Special Committee, held a teleconference with Mr. Fredericks and representatives of Eversheds Sutherland to obtain additional information on behalf of the MDLY Special Committee following its June 20, 2018 meeting with respect to the structure of the proposed MDLY Merger. On the call, representatives of Eversheds Sutherland stated that the members of Management that hold shares of MDLY Class B Common Stock through their ownership of units of Medley Group LLC (which shares collectively represent a super-majority of the aggregate voting power of the MDLY Common Stock), were not willing to condition the proposed MDLY Merger upon the approval of a majority of the unaffiliated MDLY Stockholders due to the relatively small ownership interest (approximately 18.3%) and voting power (approximately 2.2%) that such holders have in MDLY. On June 24, 2018, representatives of Potter Anderson, on behalf of the MDLY Special Committee, and representatives of Eversheds Sutherland held a follow-up teleconference. On that call, representatives of Eversheds Sutherland (i) informed representatives of Potter Anderson that MCC and Sierra had established the MCC Special Committee and the Sierra Special Committee, respectively, to evaluate and negotiate the proposed Mergers, (ii) clarified portions of the framework regarding the proposed value and allocation of consideration to MDLY Stockholders in the proposed MDLY Merger, including, among other things, certain contemplated tax obligations payable by the unitholders of Medley Group LLC, in response to questions put to them by Potter Anderson, (iii) reviewed the terms of the advisory agreements between certain subsidiaries of MDLY and MCC and Sierra, respectively, and (iv) discussed the potential impact of the proposed MDLY Merger under the Tax Receivable Agreement.

On June 25, 2018, the MDLY Special Committee held a telephonic meeting with representatives of Potter Anderson. During the meeting, Potter Anderson provided the MDLY Special Committee with additional information with respect to the background and structure of the proposed Mergers, as communicated by Mr. Fredericks and representatives of Eversheds Sutherland to representatives of Potter Anderson on June 21, 2018 and June 24, 2018 in addition to what was reflected in the written materials delivered to the MDLY Special Committee. The MDLY Special Committee and representatives of Potter Anderson also discussed Management's position (in its capacity as MDLY's controlling stockholder) that the proposed MDLY Merger would not be conditioned on approval of a majority of the unaffiliated MDLY Stockholders due to the relatively small ownership interest (approximately 18.3%) and voting power (approximately 2.2%) that such holders have in MDLY. The MDLY Special Committee also discussed retention of an independent financial advisor and authorized Mr. Leeds to contact potential financial advisors.

On June 29, 2018, the MDLY Board held a meeting for the purpose of receiving an update from Management on the proposed Mergers.

On June 29, 2018, representatives of Potter Anderson held a teleconference with a potential financial advisor for the MDLY Special Committee.

On each of June 29, 2018 and July 1, 2018, representatives of Potter Anderson and representatives of Eversheds Sutherland held a teleconference to discuss certain regulatory approvals that may be required in connection with the proposed Mergers. On July 2, 2018, an updated framework with respect to the proposed Mergers was delivered by Management to the MDLY Special Committee and Potter Anderson. The July 2, 2018 framework provided that, consistent with the preliminary framework, as consideration for their shares of MDLY Class A Common Stock, MDLY Stockholders would receive per share $3.75 cash consideration and 0.41 shares of Sierra Common Stock. The July 2, 2018 framework also included information with respect to the proposed compensation of certain key executives (Brook Taube, Seth Taube, Jeff Tonkel, Richard T. Allorto, Jr., and John D. Fredericks) at the pro forma entity. With respect to the proposed MCC Merger, which was structured as a stock-for-stock merger, MCC Stockholders would receive Sierra Common Stock in exchange for their existing shares of MCC Common Stock using an exchange ratio of 0.76.

On July 3, 2018, Mr. Eaton and representatives of Potter Anderson held a teleconference to discuss the potential engagement of an independent financial advisor for the purpose of advising the MDLY Special Committee.

On July 5, 2018, Mr. Eaton and representatives of Potter Anderson held a teleconference with Barclays to discuss its potential engagement as the independent financial advisor to the MDLY Special Committee.

Later on July 5, 2018, the MDLY Special Committee held a telephonic meeting with representatives of Potter Anderson to discuss the MDLY Board meeting held on June 29, 2018 and the July 2, 2018 framework. In addition, the MDLY Special Committee discussed the engagement of an independent financial advisor. During the meeting, Potter Anderson reviewed with the MDLY Special Committee the proposed engagement letter from the potential financial advisor with whom Mr. Leeds and Potter Anderson had spoken. Potter Anderson and Mr. Eaton also provided an overview of their earlier teleconference with Barclays.

On July 6, 2018, the MDLY Board held a meeting for the purpose of receiving an update from Management on the proposed Mergers and an update on a memorandum setting forth the terms of the SEC exemptive relief that would be required for the proposed transaction to be permitted under the Investment Company Act. Mr. Taube, who attended the meeting, noted that both the MCC Special Committee and the Sierra Special Committee had been actively considering the proposed Mergers. In addition, the MCC Special Committee and the Sierra Special Committee had each retained the services of an independent financial advisor. Next, representatives of Eversheds Sutherland, who attended the meeting, discussed the SEC exemptive relief that would be required in order to consummate the proposed Mergers. Representatives of Eversheds Sutherland discussed the active and ongoing dialogue with the SEC and informed the MDLY Special Committee that a memorandum describing such relief was submitted to the SEC on July 5, 2018. The purpose of the memorandum was to receive the SEC's guidance on the proposed Mergers and to confirm that the SEC would concur with Eversheds Sutherland's view that the exemptive relief sought in connection with the proposed Mergers was generally consistent with precedent relief granted by the SEC. Management noted that the MDLY Special Committee would be kept apprised on any response from the SEC.

On July 10, 2018, the MDLY Special Committee held a telephonic meeting with representatives of Potter Anderson to further discuss engagement of an independent financial advisor, including to review the proposals received from the two potential financial advisors. The MDLY Special Committee evaluated their respective qualifications and levels of experience in evaluating BDCs and in mergers and acquisitions generally and whether either potentially had conflicts that would compromise its ability to render independent advice. The MDLY Special Committee determined at the meeting that it was inclined to hire Barclays as its independent financial advisor. The MDLY Special Committee, with the assistance of representatives of Potter Anderson, also reviewed the prior efforts of MDLY in seeking a potential buyer for MDLY or its assets and requested that Potter Anderson follow up with Eversheds Sutherland and Management to obtain updated information regarding prior and ongoing discussions with third parties relating to potential alternative transactions.

Later on July 10, 2018, the MDLY Special Committee, representatives of Potter Anderson, and representatives of Barclays held a telephonic meeting. At this meeting, the MDLY Special Committee assessed whether Barclays had any conflicts that potentially would compromise its ability to provide the MDLY Special Committee with independent advice and otherwise assessed Barclays' experience and qualifications. On the call, representatives of Barclays discussed, among other things, Barclays' historic relationships and experiences with MDLY, MCC and Sierra. After Barclays left the call, the MDLY Special Committee determined that Barclays was independent for purposes of serving as the MDLY Special Committee's independent financial advisor. Considering the factors described above, the MDLY Special Committee agreed to retain Barclays as the MDLY Special Committee's independent financial advisor, subject to the execution of an engagement letter and obtaining further details on Barclays' historic relationships and experiences with MDLY, MCC and Sierra.

Also on July 10, 2018, Management provided the members of the MDLY Special Committee with a preliminary summary of prior and ongoing discussions between MDLY and third parties relating to potential alternative transactions.

On July 12, 2018, at the direction of MDLY, representatives of Goldman Sachs delivered an updated framework for the proposed Mergers to the members of the MDLY Special Committee and Potter Anderson. The July 12, 2018 framework contemplated that, as consideration for their shares of MDLY Class A Common Stock in the proposed MDLY Merger, MDLY Stockholders would receive, per share, $3.75 cash consideration and 0.43 shares of Sierra Common Stock. In addition, the proposed framework proposed a stock-for-stock merger of Sierra and MCC in which the MCC Stockholders would receive Sierra Common Stock in exchange for their existing shares of MCC Common Stock using an exchange ratio of 0.76

On July 13, 2018, representatives of Potter Anderson and Barclays held a teleconference with Mr. Taube and representatives of Goldman Sachs, during which Mr. Taube and, at the direction of MDLY, representatives of Goldman Sachs reviewed the July 12, 2018 framework and answered questions posted to them in relation thereto.

On July 17, 2018, the MDLY Special Committee held a telephonic meeting with representatives of Potter Anderson and Barclays to discuss the July 12, 2018 framework. Representatives of Potter Anderson summarized their July 13, 2018 call with Mr. Taube and representatives of Goldman Sachs. The MDLY Special Committee also discussed the prior sales processes and bidder outreach conducted by MDLY and requested that Potter Anderson and Barclays follow-up with Management, representatives of Goldman Sachs, and Eversheds Sutherland to obtain additional information regarding such prior sales processes.

On July 18, 2018, the MDLY Special Committee held a telephonic meeting with representatives of Potter Anderson and Barclays to discuss Barclays' formal retention. As part of those discussions, Barclays reviewed with the MDLY Special Committee its historic relationships and experiences with MDLY, Sierra and MCC, including as discussed below under "Description of the Merger – Opinions of Financial Advisor to the MDLY Special Committee". Barclays informed the MDLY Special Committee that on separate occasions in 2017, Barclays' deal team members advising the MDLY Special Committee provided financial advisory services to two separate potential buyers of MDLY related to an acquisition of MDLY. Following a discussion of Barclays' relationship disclosure and potential conflicts, the MDLY Special Committee confirmed its belief that Barclays was independent for purposes of representing the MDLY Special Committee in connection with the proposed MDLY Merger.

Later on July 18, 2018, Mr. Taube informed the MDLY Special Committee by email that he would like to schedule a meeting of the MDLY Board on July 20, 2018 to provide an update on the Sierra Special Committee and the MCC Special Committee processes in connection with the proposed Mergers.

At the July 20, 2018 MDLY Board meeting, Mr. Taube provided the MDLY Board with an update on the proposed Mergers. Mr. Taube noted that each of the other parties had substantially completed diligence with only a narrow list of open items that needed to be addressed from a diligence standpoint.

With respect to the price per share that the MDLY Stockholders could expect to receive for their shares, Mr. Taube noted that, based on Management's discussions with the MCC Special Committee and the MDLY Special Committee, $7.00 per share of MDLY Class A Common Stock was likely too high of a price point for MCC and Sierra, and that a price in the range of $5.00 to $6.00 per share would be more likely agreeable to the MCC Special Committee and the Sierra Special Committee. Mr. Taube stated that in his view, there was currently a clear path forward if the MDLY Special Committee was willing to proceed with a deal that would entail a share price in the low $6.00 range. Mr. Taube stated that it appeared likely that Management would need to forfeit a portion of its rights under the Tax Receivable Agreement. In that regard, Mr. Taube proposed that Management would give up at least a portion of the Tax Receivable Agreement in order to get the highest price point possible for shares of MDLY Class A Common Stock, though $7.00 would still not be likely agreeable to the MCC Special Committee and the Sierra Special Committee.

Mr. Taube then walked through the form of consideration that MDLY Stockholders could expect to receive, explaining that MDLY Stockholders would likely receive over $3.50 per share in cash, with the remaining consideration consisting of stock in the Combined Company. This would result in a premium to MDLY's current market value of approximately 70%.

Immediately following the MDLY Board meeting, on July 20, 2018, the MDLY Special Committee held a telephonic meeting with representatives of Potter Anderson and Barclays. After a discussion of the concerns raised by the Sierra Special Committee and the MCC Special Committee, the MDLY Special Committee instructed Barclays to obtain further information regarding the Sierra Special Committee's bases for Sierra's valuation of the MDLY Class A Common Stock. The MDLY Special Committee also discussed additional transaction considerations including imposing certain parameters around post-closing compensation for members of management of the Combined Company, potential additional procedural protections, and other options regarding the structure of the consideration to be paid to the unaffiliated MDLY Stockholders, including broader election rights for the unaffiliated MDLY stockholders with respect to consideration. The MDLY Special Committee discussed possible sources of additional value for the unaffiliated MDLY Stockholders and instructed Barclays to request that the Medley LLC Unitholders forfeit some or all of the benefits to which they would be entitled under the Tax Receivable Agreement in order to increase the amount of consideration available to the unaffiliated MDLY Stockholders. The MDLY Special Committee, together with Potter Anderson and Barclays, also discussed the unsuccessful efforts of MDLY to find a potential buyer for MDLY or its assets, based on information about such efforts provided by representatives of Goldman Sachs, and to what extent prior discussions with third parties with respect to MDLY's value and the lack of viable proposals to acquire MDLY impacted the value of the consideration offered in connection with the proposed MDLY Merger. Following the July 20, 2018 meeting of the MDLY Special Committee, Barclays communicated to representatives of Goldman Sachs the MDLY Special Committee's request for additional consideration for the unaffiliated MDLY Stockholders and related questions regarding other potential sources of value.

Later on July 20, 2018, Management delivered an updated framework for the proposed Mergers, which provided for a cash payment to holders of MDLY Class A Common Stock of $3.69 per share, inclusive of a $0.25 pre-closing special cash dividend, and 0.34 shares of Sierra Common Stock per share of MDLY Class A Common Stock. In addition, the updated framework proposed a stock-for-stock merger of Sierra and MCC using an exchange ratio of 0.72, which was reduced from the prior proposed exchange ratio of 0.76 due to a decrease in MCC's NAV per share over the previous quarter. As part of the framework, the Medley LLC Unitholders agreed to reduce the payments that they would receive under the Tax Receivable Agreement, through a reduction in the percentage of the aggregate value of certain tax benefits to which they would be entitled from 85% to 65%.

On July 22, 2018, the MDLY Special Committee held a telephonic meeting with representatives of Potter Anderson and Barclays to discuss the July 20, 2018 framework. The MDLY Special Committee instructed Potter Anderson and Barclays to request that (i) the Medley LLC Unitholders forfeit a greater share or all of the benefits to which they are entitled under the Tax Receivable Agreement and (ii) all or a greater portion of the aggregate cash payable in the form of the pre-closing special cash dividend be paid only to the unaffiliated MDLY Stockholders. The MDLY Special Committee, together with Potter Anderson and Barclays, also discussed the prior MDLY sales process, based on information about such process provided by representatives of Goldman Sachs, and how the consideration proposed in the July 20, 2018 framework compared to the prior indications of interest and other transactions unsuccessfully pursued by MDLY.

Between July 23, 2018 and July 25, 2018, Management, the Sierra Special Committee and the MCC Special Committee conveyed their respective positions on particular issues to representatives of Eversheds Sutherland and Goldman Sachs, including that (i) Management was not amenable to forfeiting additional payments to which they were entitled under the Tax Receivable Agreement, (ii) Management would not be amenable to conditioning the Proposed Business Combination on the approval of a majority of the unaffiliated MDLY Stockholders due to the relatively small ownership interest (approximately 18.3%) and voting power (approximately 2.2%) that such holders have in MDLY, (iii) any increase in the cash consideration payable to the unaffiliated MDLY Stockholders or paying a special cash dividend only to the unaffiliated MDLY Stockholders would not be acceptable to Management, and (iv) Management would decline the MDLY Special Committee's request that the unaffiliated MDLY Stockholders be given election rights with respect to the consideration payable in connection with the Proposed Business Combination. Management, the Sierra Special Committee, and the MCC Special Committee directed representatives of Eversheds Sutherland and Goldman Sachs to convey such positions to Barclays and Potter Anderson. During this time, Barclays continued its due diligence and discussions with representatives of Goldman Sachs regarding the MDLY Special Committee's request for additional value to the unaffiliated MDLY Stockholders. During those discussions and at the direction of MDLY, representatives of Goldman Sachs informed Barclays of the respective positions of Management, the Sierra Special Committee and the MCC Special Committee, as described above.

On July 25, 2018, at the direction of MDLY, representatives of Goldman Sachs, communicated to representatives of Barclays an updated framework for the proposed Mergers, which included an increase in the proposed exchange ratio of 0.34 shares of Sierra Common Stock to 0.38 shares of Sierra Common Stock per share of MDLY Class A Common Stock, but did not otherwise change the cash consideration per share (or proposed special cash dividend) payable to the MDLY Stockholders. In addition, the updated framework proposed a stock-for-stock merger of Sierra and MCC using an exchange ratio of 0.76. At the direction of MDLY, representatives of Goldman Sachs also communicated to Barclays that the Medley LLC Unitholders agreed to further reduce the percentage of the aggregate value of certain tax benefits to which they would be entitled under the Tax Receivable Agreement from 65% to 40%. Finally, at the direction of MDLY, representatives of Goldman Sachs delivered a written framework reflecting such terms to the MDLY Special Committee and Potter Anderson on July 26, 2018.

On July 25, 2018, at the direction of MDLY, representatives of Eversheds Sutherland and Goldman Sachs conveyed to representatives of Potter Anderson and Barclays, respectively, that, (i) the Medley LLC Unitholders remained reluctant to forfeit additional rights under the Tax Receivable Agreement, (ii) the Medley LLC Unitholders (in their capacity as MDLY's controlling stockholders) would not be amenable to conditioning the proposed transactions on approval of a majority of the unaffiliated MDLY Stockholders, (iii) increases in cash consideration or the payment of a special cash dividend only to the unaffiliated MDLY Stockholders were unacceptable to MDLY's controlling stockholders, the Medley LLC Unitholders, and (iv) MDLY's controlling stockholders declined the MDLY Special Committee's request that the unaffiliated MDLY Stockholders be given election rights with respect to the consideration payable in connection with the proposed MDLY Merger. Representatives of Potter Anderson and Barclays conveyed these points to the MDLY Special Committee during a telephonic meeting with the MDLY Special Committee on July 25, 2018. The MDLY Special Committee instructed representatives of Potter Anderson and Barclays to continue to request that the Medley LLC Unitholders forfeit a greater share or all of the payments to which they are entitled under the Tax Receivable Agreement in order to increase the amount of consideration available to the unaffiliated MDLY Stockholders. The MDLY Special Committee, together with Potter Anderson and Barclays, continued to consider the sales process of MDLY to date and how the proposed MDLY Merger related to prior indications of interest and other transactions unsuccessfully pursued by MDLY based on information about such indications of interest and other transactions provided by representatives of Goldman Sachs. Representatives of Potter Anderson discussed with the MDLY Special Committee an updated process summary, which had been delivered by representatives of Goldman Sachs on July 23, 2018, detailing, among other things, the prior sales processes and bidder outreach conducted by MDLY and the reasons for the termination of discussions with Party X.

On July 26, 2018, at the request of Management, representatives of Goldman Sachs relayed the updated framework for the proposed Mergers to the MDLY Special Committee and Potter Anderson, which contemplated a cash payment to holders of MDLY Class A Common Stock of $3.69 per share, inclusive of a $0.25 pre-closing special cash dividend, and 0.38 shares of Sierra Common Stock per share of MDLY Class A Common Stock. In addition, the updated framework maintained the previously proposed stock-for-stock merger of Sierra and MCC using an exchange ratio of 0.76. On July 26, 2018, the MDLY Special Committee held a telephonic meeting with representatives of Potter Anderson and Barclays. The MDLY Special Committee directed Potter Anderson and Barclays to continue to explore additional sources of value for the unaffiliated MDLY Stockholders, including a possible forfeiture by the Medley LLC Unitholders of all of the payments that they would otherwise be entitled to receive under the Tax Receivable Agreement. Representatives of Barclays reviewed with the MDLY Special Committee conversations between representatives of Barclays and Goldman Sachs relating to the prior sales processes of MDLY, and the MDLY Special Committee instructed Barclays to follow up with representatives of Goldman Sachs relating to the reasons for termination of discussions with Party X. The MDLY Special Committee also reviewed with Potter Anderson and Barclays Management's projections and their underlying support, as well as key transaction structure considerations, including possible procedural protections and post-closing compensation for Management. In addition, the MDLY Special Committee, with the assistance of Potter Anderson, reviewed the Sierra Investment Advisory Agreement and MCC Investment Management Agreement, including the terms under which such agreements are renewed annually and the terms and conditions under which such agreements may be terminated.

On July 27, 2018, at the request of Management, representatives of Goldman Sachs relayed the updated framework for the proposed Mergers to the MDLY Special Committee and Potter Anderson, which proposed a cash payment to holders of MDLY Class A Common Stock of $3.94 per share, inclusive of a $0.50 pre-closing special cash dividend, and 0.38 shares of Sierra Common Stock per share of MDLY Class A Common Stock. In addition, the updated framework proposed a stock-for-stock merger of Sierra and MCC using an exchange ratio of 0.8050, increased from the prior exchange ratio of 0.76. In connection with the updated framework, the Medley LLC Unitholders agreed to forfeit the entirety of the payments otherwise payable to them under the Tax Receivable Agreement. At the direction of MDLY, representatives of Goldman Sachs delivered a written framework reflecting such terms to the MDLY Special Committee and Potter Anderson on July 27, 2018. On July 27, 2018, representatives of Potter Anderson and Barclays held a teleconference with Mr. Leeds to discuss the July 27, 2018 framework in anticipation of a meeting of the MDLY Board later that day.

At the July 27, 2018 MDLY Board meeting, Mr. Taube summarized the current state of negotiations and provided an overview of the July 27, 2018 framework. At the invitation of MDLY, representatives of Goldman Sachs attended this meeting. Specifically, Mr. Taube discussed the price per share that MDLY Stockholders would receive in connection with the proposed MDLY Merger. After multiple iterations, the Sierra Special Committee and Management agreed to consider a price of $6.75 per share of MDLY Class A Common Stock (inclusive of the total cash consideration and stock consideration), which included a $0.50 pre-closing special cash dividend. In summary, Mr. Taube noted that MDLY Stockholders could expect to receive merger consideration in the form of approximately 55% in cash and 45% in Sierra Common Stock. In addition, Mr. Taube noted that under the July 27, 2018 framework, the Medley LLC Unitholders would agree to waive their rights under the Tax Receivable Agreement, which would allow the Combined Company to receive all of the benefits therefrom. Mr. Taube highlighted the fact that all members of Management agreed to forfeit their rights under the Tax Receivable Agreement in order to help the negotiations between the parties and provide increased value to the unaffiliated MDLY Stockholders. Mr. Taube committed to reporting to the MDLY Special Committee on the progress of the negotiations as soon as more information became available.

Next, Mr. Taube provided an update on the negotiations between the Sierra Special Committee and the MCC Special Committee. He noted that one of the main issues being negotiated was the exchange ratio pursuant to which shares of Sierra Common Stock would be issued in exchange for existing shares of MCC Common Stock. Mr. Taube informed the MDLY Special Committee that the Sierra Special Committee and the MCC Special Committee had reached a tentative agreement that the exchange ratio in connection with the MCC Merger would be 0.8050 shares of Sierra Common Stock for each share of MCC Common Stock.

On July 29, 2018, the MDLY Special Committee held a telephonic meeting with representatives of Potter Anderson and Barclays to discuss the July 27, 2018 framework. The MDLY Special Committee instructed Potter Anderson and the representatives of Barclays to further request that the aggregate amount of the currently contemplated pre-closing special cash dividend be paid only to the unaffiliated MDLY Stockholders or that an additional pre-closing special cash dividend be paid only to the unaffiliated MDLY Stockholders. The MDLY Special Committee also discussed Management's projections. Representatives of Barclays informed the MDLY Special Committee that representatives of Goldman Sachs had communicated that Management (in its capacity as MDLY's controlling stockholder), continued to reject any election right for the unaffiliated MDLY Stockholders with respect to the mix of cash and stock consideration because it purportedly affected the tax-free nature of the MDLY Merger.

On July 29, 2018, Eversheds Sutherland uploaded to the electronic data room drafts of the MDLY Merger Agreement and MCC Merger Agreement for the proposed Mergers.

On July 30, 2018, at the direction of MDLY, representatives of Goldman Sachs delivered an updated framework for the proposed Mergers to the MDLY Special Committee and Potter Anderson. The July 30, 2018 framework provided that (i) the unaffiliated MDLY Stockholders would receive $4.09 per share, which would include $0.65 payable in the form of special cash dividends, and (ii) Management would receive a lower per share cash consideration of $3.79, which would include only $0.35 payable in the form of a special cash dividend. Under the July 30, 2018 framework, both the unaffiliated MDLY Stockholders and Management (in their capacity as MDLY Stockholders) would receive 0.3836 shares of Sierra Common Stock per share of MDLY Class A Common Stock. In addition, the updated framework proposed a stock-for-stock merger of Sierra and MCC using an exchange ratio of 0.8050, which was consistent with the most recently proposed framework.

At a meeting of the MDLY Board held on July 30, 2018, Mr. Taube provided the MDLY Board with an update on Management's latest discussion with the Sierra Special Committee in connection with the MDLY Merger and the negotiations between the Sierra Special Committee and the MCC Special Committee relating to the MCC Merger. At the invitation of MDLY, representatives of Goldman Sachs attended this meeting. Mr. Taube addressed the MDLY Special Committee's request for increased consideration for holders of MDLY Class A Common Stock and described the outstanding business issues.

Mr. Taube next summarized Management's latest discussion with the Sierra Special Committee and the MCC Special Committee, noting that while he had previously reported to the MDLY Special Committee that a share price of $6.75 (inclusive of the total cash consideration and stock consideration) for shares of MDLY Class A Common Stock was a possibility, Sierra was still pushing for MDLY to consider a share price lower than $6.75.

Next, representatives of Potter Anderson asked for further information regarding the sources of value associated with the MDLY Merger, and asked Mr. Taube to reconfirm Management's projections and that no changes were necessary. Mr. Taube noted that Management had given up a great deal of value for themselves in order to facilitate an agreement and a share price point that would be agreeable to all parties. In particular, forfeiting the Medley LLC Unitholders rights under the Tax Receivable Agreement, was of significant benefit to the MDLY Stockholders. Mr. Taube then reviewed the specifics of the July 30, 2018 framework share price breakdown and reconfirmed Management's projections.

Next, Mr. Taube informed the MDLY Board that Management received from an unaffiliated third party ("Party Y") a written non-binding indication of interest dated July 30, 2018, to acquire all of the shares of MDLY Class A Common Stock and all of the Medley LLC rights (the "July 30, 2018 IOI"). Mr. Taube noted that Management would assess the offer and provide the MDLY Special Committee with a copy of the July 30, 2018 IOI.

Later on August 2, 2018, the MDLY Special Committee held a telephonic meeting with representatives of Potter Anderson and Barclays. The MDLY Special Committee determined that there were no additional sources of value for the unaffiliated MDLY Stockholders and that the Sierra Special Committee and the MCC Special Committee were not amenable to giving up further value in connection with the proposed Mergers. In addition, the MDLY Special Committee reviewed, with the assistance of Potter Anderson and Barclays, the sales processes to date run by MDLY. Based on those discussions, the MDLY Special Committee (i) confirmed that the sales processes run by MDLY for approximately 12 months, which failed to produce any viable transaction, constituted a reasonable market check by MDLY and that no further pre-signing market check was necessary under the circumstances, and (ii) determined not to authorize Barclays to solicit any indications of interest from any third party with respect to the purchase of all or a part of MDLY's business. The MDLY Special Committee also discussed and continued to believe that it was not a viable option to request that the deal be conditioned on the approval of a majority of the unaffiliated MDLY Stockholders because such a condition had been rejected on multiple occasions by Management (in its capacity as MDLY's controlling stockholder). The representatives of Potter Anderson then reviewed with the MDLY Special Committee the draft MDLY Merger Agreement. The MDLY Special Committee also discussed the proposed consideration and recognized that the cash component payable to the unaffiliated MDLY Stockholders alone exceeded the current market price of shares of MDLY Class A Common Stock.

At a meeting of the MDLY Board held on August 3, 2018, Management provided the MDLY Board with an update on the status of the proposed Mergers since the last meeting held on July 30, 2018. At the invitation of MDLY, representatives of Goldman Sachs attended this meeting. Mr. Taube summarized the schedule of upcoming board and special committee meetings of MCC and Sierra, noting that Eversheds Sutherland would narrow down the list of open items being discussed in the MDLY Merger Agreement and MCC Merger Agreement. Mr. Taube next reviewed the working plan for the proposed transaction announcement, noting that the parties were working towards announcing an agreement on the close of business on Thursday, August 9, 2018, assuming the MDLY Merger Agreement and MCC Merger Agreement were finalized by that date.

Next, Mr. Taube provided an overview of the July 30, 2018 IOI. Mr. Taube explained that neither Management nor representatives of Goldman Sachs were familiar with Party Y before receiving the unsolicited proposal. In summary, Party Y proposed a sale price that would equate to approximately $5.09 per share of MDLY Class A Common Stock. Management met with representatives from Party Y and performed diligence. Based upon that analysis, Management advised the MDLY Board that it appeared that Party Y did not have the capacity or skill required for a successful transaction, lacked the necessary capital, and was offering a low share price that did not fairly value MDLY. Representatives of Goldman Sachs confirmed that they were not familiar with Party Y before receiving the unsolicited proposal and noted that it was likely that Party Y was hoping to acquire MDLY at a significant discount to fair value.

Immediately following the conclusion of the MDLY Board Meeting, the MDLY Special Committee held a telephonic meeting with representatives of Potter Anderson and Barclays. Barclays reviewed with the MDLY Special Committee its preliminary financial metrics relating to the MDLY Merger. In addition, the MDLY Special Committee, with the assistance of representatives of Potter Anderson and Barclays, discussed the July 30, 2018 IOI and agreed that it was not viable or worth further pursuing when compared to the proposed MDLY Merger.

From August 3, 2018 to the afternoon of August 9, 2018, Eversheds Sutherland exchanged multiple drafts of the MCC Merger Agreement and the MDLY Merger Agreement with representatives of Potter Anderson, S&W and Kramer Levin.

On August 8, 2018, the MDLY Special Committee held a telephonic meeting with representatives of Potter Anderson and Barclays. The MDLY Special Committee and representatives of Potter Anderson discussed the compensation report received by the Sierra Special Committee from its compensation consultant, and reviewed with the MDLY Special Committee the terms of the proposed employment agreements to be executed by Management upon the closing of the proposed Mergers. Also at the meeting (i) Potter Anderson reviewed with the MDLY Special Committee an overview of the material terms of the draft MDLY Merger Agreement and exhibits, (ii) Barclays discussed with the MDLY Special Committee its financial analysis of the consideration to be paid to the unaffiliated MDLY Stockholders in the MDLY Merger, and (iii) Potter Anderson reviewed with the MDLY Special Committee its fiduciary duties in connection with its evaluation, consideration, and approval of the proposed MDLY Merger. The MDLY Special Committee, with the assistance of Potter Anderson and Barclays, also reviewed the prior sales process run by MDLY. The discussion regarding the prior sales process run by MDLY was based upon information that was provided by representatives of Goldman Sachs at the direction of MDLY. After an extensive discussion, the MDLY Special Committee agreed that the MDLY Merger provided the best value reasonably available to the unaffiliated MDLY Stockholders, including when compared to any standalone options.

On August 9, 2018, the MDLY Special Committee held a telephonic meeting with representatives of Potter Anderson and Barclays. The MDLY Special Committee, with the assistance of Potter Anderson, discussed the material terms of the MDLY Merger Agreement and exhibits. Representatives of Potter Anderson again reviewed with the MDLY Special Committee its fiduciary duties. In addition, at the meeting, Barclays discussed with the MDLY Special Committee additional information with respect to its financial analysis of the terms of the proposed MDLY Merger. At the request of the MDLY Special Committee, Barclays delivered an oral fairness opinion as of August 9, 2018, which was subsequently confirmed by delivery of a written opinion dated as of such date, as to the fairness, from a financial point of view, to the MDLY Public Stockholders of the aggregate of the MDLY Merger Consideration, the First Special Dividend and the Second Special Dividend to be offered to such MDLY Public Stockholders for their MDLY Class A Common Stock in the proposed MDLY Merger. The MDLY Special Committee unanimously (i) determined that the MDLY Merger Agreement and the transactions contemplated thereby, including, without limitation, the MDLY Merger, are advisable and fair to, and in the best interests of, MDLY and the MDLY Stockholders (other than Messrs. Brook Taube, Seth Taube, Tonkel, Allorto, and Fredericks, Medley Group LLC, and any of their respective affiliates), (ii) approved and declared advisable the MDLY Merger Agreement and the transactions contemplated thereby, including, without limitation, the MDLY Merger, and (iii) recommended that the MDLY Board (a) approve and declare advisable the MDLY Merger Agreement and the transactions contemplated thereby, including, without limitation, the MDLY Merger, and (b) submit the MDLY Merger Agreement to the MDLY Stockholders for adoption.

On August 9, 2018, the MDLY Board held a telephonic meeting. At the invitation of MDLY, representatives of Potter Anderson, Barclays, Goldman Sachs and Eversheds Sutherland were present. At this meeting, representatives of Goldman Sachs reviewed its financial analysis of the consideration to be paid to the MDLY Stockholders in the MDLY Merger. Representatives of Goldman Sachs then rendered an oral opinion to the MDLY Board, which was subsequently confirmed by delivery of a written opinion dated August 9, 2018, to the effect that, as of such date, and based upon and subject to the factors and assumptions set forth therein, the aggregate of the MDLY Merger Consideration, the First Special Dividend and the Second Special Dividend, which is referred to as the “Consideration”, to be paid to the holders of MDLY Class A Common Stock (other than Sierra, MCC and any of their respective affiliates, the Medley LLC Unitholders, the holders of Medley LLC Restricted Units and the holders of MDLY RSUs) pursuant to the MDLY Merger Agreement, was fair from a financial point of view to such holders. See “—Opinion of Financial Advisor to the MDLY Board” beginning on page 124 of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus.

Mr. Leeds provided the MDLY Board with a report of the MDLY Special Committee meeting held earlier that day. Mr. Leeds provided a history of the various meetings held by the MDLY Special Committee and described the final considerations of the MDLY Special Committee that led to its recommendation that the MDLY Merger Agreement and the transactions contemplated thereby be approved by the MDLY Board. In particular, Mr. Leeds highlighted, among other things, the fairness opinion that the MDLY Special Committee received from Barclays and the robust process of considering all of the information and various proposals presented to the MDLY Special Committee. On that basis, Mr. Leeds confirmed the MDLY Special Committee’s recommendation described above.

On that basis, the MDLY Board unanimously approved and declared advisable the MDLY Merger Agreement and the transactions contemplated thereby, including, without limitation, the MDLY Merger and resolved to submit the MDLY Merger Agreement to the MDLY Stockholders for its adoption.

Reasons for the Mergers

Sierra's Reasons for the Mergers

The Sierra Special Committee unanimously determined that the MCC Merger Agreement, the MDLY Merger Agreement and the transactions contemplated thereby, including, without limitation, the MCC Merger and the MDLY Merger, are advisable and fair to, and in the best interests of, Sierra and the Sierra Stockholders.

In recommending that the Sierra Board approve the MCC Merger Agreement, the MDLY Merger Agreement and the transactions contemplated thereby, including the MCC Merger and the MDLY Merger, the Sierra Special Committee considered the terms of the MCC Merger Agreement, the MDLY Merger Agreement and the other transactions and agreements relating thereto. As part of its evaluation, the Sierra Special Committee considered the financial terms, risks/challenges, timing and uncertainties of alternatives available to Sierra, as well as financial information prepared by Management. The Sierra Special Committee consulted with outside financial and legal advisors and Management, and took into account a number of reasons, including, among others:

- the Mergers will increase the assets under management of the Combined Company, offering the potential for greater diversification and scale;
- the Mergers are expected to be accretive to Sierra's NII, return on equity, and NAV;
- the Mergers offer the potential for achieving cost savings, operational efficiencies and synergies;
- the public listing of the Combined Company will provide liquidity for the Sierra Stockholders, and the market for the Combined Company's shares is likely to be superior to what would be expected if Sierra merely listed its shares;
- the Mergers will result in the internalization of management of the Combined Company, providing for greater control by the Board of the Combined Company and closer alignment of interests of Management and the Combined Company's stockholders;
- the fact that the Sierra Special Committee actively negotiated the terms of the Mergers and the final terms were materially different from the terms initially presented as a potential framework around which a transaction could be consummated;
- the renegotiation of the Tax Receivable Agreement is expected to provide benefits to the Combined Company because the Combined Company will no longer be contractually obligated to share substantially all of the tax savings associated with its tax basis step-up with Medley LLC Unitholders;
- the financial analyses and presentations prepared by Broadhaven and its oral opinion delivered to the Sierra Special Committee on August 9, 2018, which was subsequently confirmed in writing by delivery of Broadhaven's written opinion dated August 9, 2018, to the effect that, as of that date and based upon and subject to various assumptions, limitations and qualifications described in its opinion, the total consideration to be paid and issued by Sierra pursuant to the MCC Merger Agreement and the MDLY Merger Agreement, considered as a whole and not in separate parts, was fair to Sierra from a financial point of view;
- the compensation to be paid to members of Management has been reviewed by the Special Committee's compensation consultant, which has advised that the proposed compensation is reasonable and competitive with peer companies;

Table of Contents

- based on the MDLY Merger Consideration to be received by Management in connection with the Mergers (as described herein), the net effect of such merger consideration will be that Management will roll over approximately 100% of their after tax proceeds in connection with the Mergers into shares of Combined Company Common Stock, which shares will be subject to a 12-month lock-up period, which will more closely align the interests of Management and the Combined Company's stockholders;
- the investment objectives and principal investment strategies of Sierra and MCC are similar;
- the Mergers are expected to be tax-free to Sierra Stockholders; and
- the consummation of the Mergers is subject to significant conditions, including the requirement that the Mergers be approved by Sierra Stockholders.

In view of the variety of factors and the amount of information considered, as well as the complexity of that information, the Sierra Special Committee did not find it practicable to, and did not, quantify, rank or otherwise assign relative weights to the specific factors it considered in reaching its decisions. In addition, individual members of the Sierra Special Committee may have given different weight to different factors. The above factors are not listed in any particular order of priority. In the judgment of the Sierra Special Committee, the potential risks associated with the MCC Merger Agreement, the MDLY Merger Agreement and the transactions contemplated thereby, including the MCC Merger and the MDLY Merger, were favorably offset by the potential benefits of the MCC Merger Agreement, the MDLY Merger Agreement and the transactions contemplated thereby, including the MCC Merger and the MDLY Merger. This explanation of the Sierra Special Committee's reasoning, and all other information presented in this section, is forward-looking in nature and, therefore, should be read in light of the factors discussed under the section entitled "Special Note Regarding Forward-Looking Statements."

Position of Sierra as to the Fairness of the Mergers

Because the proposed MDLY Merger may be deemed to be subject to the SEC rules governing "going private" transactions, and Sierra may be deemed to be an affiliate of MDLY under those rules, the Sierra Board is expressing its position as to the fairness of the proposed MDLY Merger to MDLY's "unaffiliated security holders," as defined under Rule 13e-3 of the Exchange Act. The Sierra Board is making the statements included in this section solely for the purpose of complying with the requirements of Rule 13e-3 and related rules under the Exchange Act.

The Sierra Board believes that the MDLY Merger (which is the Rule 13e-3 transaction for which a Schedule 13E-3 Transaction Statement was filed with the SEC) is fair to the unaffiliated MDLY Stockholders on the basis of the factors described below. The Sierra Board did not participate in the deliberations of the MDLY Special Committee regarding, or receive advice from the MDLY Special Committee's legal or financial advisors as to, the fairness of the proposed MDLY Merger. The Sierra Board has not performed, or engaged a financial advisor to perform, any valuation or other analysis for the purpose of assessing the fairness of the MDLY Merger to the unaffiliated MDLY Stockholders.

Based on the knowledge and analysis by the Sierra Board of available information regarding MDLY, as well as discussions with MDLY's senior management regarding MDLY and its business and the factors considered by, and the analysis and resulting conclusions of the MDLY Board discussed in this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus, in "—MDLY's Reasons for the Mergers," the Sierra Board believes that the MDLY Merger is substantively and procedurally fair to the unaffiliated MDLY Stockholders. In particular, the Sierra Board believes that the MDLY Merger is fair to the unaffiliated MDLY Stockholders based on its consideration of the following factors, among others, which are not presented in any relative order of importance.

Procedural fairness. The Sierra Board took into account the procedures implemented to provide for procedural fairness, including:

- the appointment of a special committee of the MDLY Board and the authority of the MDLY Special Committee to negotiate and reject or recommend approval of the MDLY Merger and the terms of the MDLY Merger Agreement;

- the independence of the members of the MDLY Special Committee and the fact that its members are outside, non-employee directors of the MDLY Board and are not affiliated with Sierra or with the members of the Sierra Special Committee or the Sierra Board;
- the belief that the members of the MDLY Special Committee do not have any interests in the MDLY Merger different from, or in addition to, those of the unaffiliated MDLY Stockholders, other than the members' receipt of board and special committee compensation in connection with their evaluation of the MDLY Merger and continued indemnification and liability insurance for such directors following the completion of the MDLY Merger for certain claims and liabilities arising from their actions taken prior to the effective time of the MDLY Merger;
- the fact that neither the MDLY Special Committee nor the MDLY Board had any obligation to approve the MDLY Merger;
- the MDLY Special Committee's engagement of, and reliance on, their own independent, experienced, third-party advisors, including financial and legal advisors;
- the understanding that the MDLY Special Committee has received or will receive an opinion from its financial advisor as to the fairness, from a financial point of view, of the consideration to be offered to the MDLY Public Stockholders for their MDLY Class A Common Stock, as of the date of the opinion and based upon and subject to the qualifications, limitations and assumptions stated therein, understanding that the Sierra Board is not entitled to rely upon that opinion;
- that the MDLY Board, based on the recommendation of the MDLY Special Committee, approved the MDLY Merger and concluded that the MDLY Merger is in the best interests of all MDLY Stockholders, including the unaffiliated MDLY Stockholders; and
- the fact that Sierra did not influence or participate in MDLY's deliberative process.

Substantive fairness. The Sierra Board considered factors relating to the substantive fairness of the MDLY Merger to MDLY Stockholders, including:

- the fact that the MDLY Merger Consideration and the other terms and conditions of the MDLY Merger were the result of extensive arms' length negotiations among the Sierra Special Committee, the MDLY Special Committee, and their respective independent legal and financial advisors;
- the fact that the terms and conditions of the MDLY Merger Agreement provide certain protections for MDLY and MDLY Stockholders, specifically the inclusion of (i) provisions that allow the MDLY Board (at the direction of the MDLY Special Committee), subject to certain procedural requirements, in response to other acquisitions proposals, to make an adverse change to its recommendation to MDLY Stockholders and terminate the transaction if the MDLY Board believes it has received an offer that is, or could lead to an offer that is, superior to Sierra's offer; (ii) provisions that provide the MDLY Board the right in certain circumstances to terminate the MDLY Merger Agreement if failure to terminate would be inconsistent with the fiduciary duties of the MDLY Board, subject to the payment of a market termination fee; and (iii) provisions that allow MDLY to compel specific enforcement of the MDLY Merger Agreement; and
- the availability of appraisal rights under the DGCL to MDLY Stockholders who follow the procedures and satisfy the conditions set forth in Section 262 of the DGCL.

Value fairness. The Sierra Board also considered factors relating to the value of the MDLY Merger Consideration to be received by MDLY Stockholders, including:

- the nature of the MDLY Merger Consideration, which includes the right to receive (i) 0.3836 shares of Sierra Common Stock plus (ii) cash in an amount equal to $3.44 per share plus certain cash dividends and other payments, as more fully described on page 289 (with the cash consideration providing an opportunity to immediately realize value for a portion of their investment and the stock consideration providing for the potential for participating in any future earnings and growth of the Combined Company);

- the opinion of its financial advisor which conducted a series of financial analyses to determine a valuation of MDLY Class A Common Stock. Such analyses included a precedent transaction multiples analysis, resulting in a range of values of $2.66 to $11.07 per share, a public market premium analysis, resulting in a range of values of $4.14 to $6.95 per share, and a discounted cash flow analysis, resulting in a range of values of $6.58 to $15.57 per share;
- that after giving effect to the special dividends to be paid to the unaffiliated MDLY Stockholders pursuant to the MDLY Merger Agreement, the aggregate cash consideration to be received by such stockholders in the MDLY Merger for their shares of MDLY Class A Common Stock will be greater than the aggregate cash consideration to be received by the affiliated MDLY Stockholders for their shares but that they will receive the same stock consideration per share;
- the Sierra Board's view of MDLY's future performance and prospects if MDLY remained a stand-alone company would be adversely affected by its lack of scale as compared to competing alternative asset managers; and
- the continued costs and risks to, and potential liabilities of, MDLY related to ongoing compliance as an SEC reporting company.

Negative Factors. In addition to the positive factors above, the Sierra Board also considered certain potentially negative factors, including, but not limited to:

- the fact that the exchange ratio for shares of MDLY Class A Common Stock into shares of Sierra Common Stock is fixed, and that the unaffiliated MDLY Stockholders may be adversely affected by declines in the value of Sierra's Common Stock after the execution of the MDLY Merger Agreement;
- the risk that the MDLY Merger may not be completed and the resulting adverse effect of an announcement of the termination of the MDLY Merger Agreement on the market price for MDLY Class A Common Stock;
- the substantial costs to be incurred by MDLY in connection with the MDLY Merger, whether or not the MDLY Merger is completed; and
- the fact that there is no requirement that a majority of the unaffiliated MDLY Stockholders approve the MDLY Merger and that as a class they hold only 2.25% of the outstanding voting stock of MDLY.

MCC's Reasons for the MCC Merger

The MCC Special Committee unanimously determined that the MCC Merger Agreement and the transactions contemplated thereby, including, without limitation, the MCC Merger, are advisable and fair to, and in the best interests of, MCC and the MCC Stockholders.

In recommending that the MCC Board approve the MCC Merger Agreement and the transactions contemplated thereby, including the MCC Merger, the MCC Special Committee considered the terms of the MCC Merger Agreement and the other transactions and agreements relating thereto. As part of its evaluation, the MCC Special Committee considered the financial terms, risks/challenges, timing and uncertainties of alternatives available to MCC, as well as financial information prepared by Management. At the time of the MCC Special Committee's approval of the transaction, there was no other significant alternative transaction considered by the MCC Special Committee. The MCC Special Committee consulted with outside financial and legal advisors and Management, and took into account a number of reasons, including, among others:

Financial Considerations

- the value of the MCC Merger Consideration to be received by the MCC Stockholders in the MCC Merger;
- the fact that, since the MCC Merger Consideration will be paid in shares of Sierra Common Stock, the MCC Stockholders would have the opportunity to participate in any future earnings and growth of the Combined Company and future appreciation in the value of such shares following the Mergers should they determine to retain the shares of Sierra Common Stock payable in the MCC Merger;

Table of Contents

- the fact that the total implied value of the MCC Merger Consideration to be received by the unaffiliated MCC Stockholders in the MCC Merger is expected to result in an estimated 18.52% accretion of NII per share of MCC Common Stock for MCC Stockholders assuming flat MDLY earnings and an estimated 29.8% accretion assuming projected MDLY earnings;
- the fact that the MCC Special Committee successfully negotiated an increase to the exchange ratio of Sierra Common Stock that MCC Stockholders are entitled to receive;
- the belief of the MCC Special Committee that its negotiations had resulted in the highest price per share for the unaffiliated MCC Stockholders that MDLY and Sierra would support; and
- the financial presentation of Sandler O'Neill to the MCC Special Committee, dated August 9, 2018, and the opinion of Sandler O'Neill to the MCC Special Committee, dated August 9, 2018, to the effect that, as of that date and based upon and subject to various assumptions, matters considered and limitations described in its opinion, the MCC Merger Consideration was fair, from a financial point of view, to holders of MCC Common Stock (other than Sierra, MDLY and their respective affiliates), which opinion is described in the section entitled "Opinion of Financial Advisor to the MCC Special Committee."

Strategic and Business Considerations

- the fact that the MCC Special Committee had the authority to not recommend that the MCC Board approve the MCC Merger Agreement and the MCC Board would have been precluded from approving the MCC Merger Agreement under those circumstances;
- the Combined Company would have greater scale for investment and financing flexibility (potential improvement in credit rating could result in lower funding costs and improved access to capital over time);
- the Combined Company would have a more diversified balance sheet;
- the Combined Company would have less relative exposure to non-accruing loans;
- the internalization better aligns the incentives of Management with the MCC Stockholders as well as provides greater transparency into Management's structure;
- the Combined Company would have potential earnings enhancement over time through ownership of an asset management subsidiary;
- the Combined Company would be expected to have a significantly greater market capitalization and thus increased potential liquidity for MCC Stockholders;
- the Combined Company would be expected to be the 7th largest publicly traded BDC compared to MCC, which currently is the 23rd largest BDC;
- BDCs with internal management structures have tended to trade at less of a discount than externally managed BDCs;
- the transaction should simplify the current structure of cross-ownership and management of MCC and Sierra; and
- the terms and conditions of the MCC Merger Agreement, as discussed in the section entitled "The Description of the MCC Merger Agreement," which the MCC Special Committee after consulting with its legal advisors considered to be reasonable.

In the course of reaching the determinations and decisions and making the recommendation described above, the MCC Special Committee considered the risks and challenges relating to the Mergers, including the following material items:

- the fact that the MCC Merger Consideration to be received by the MCC Stockholders will consist of Sierra Common Stock based on a fixed exchange ratio and that the value of the MCC Merger Consideration may decline either before or after the MCC Special Meeting and there will be no adjustment to the exchange ratio, thereby exposing the MCC Stockholders to the risks of an equity investment in Sierra Common Stock;
- the Combined Company has not traded before and there is no way to determine with certainty the price at which it will trade, both initially and in the long term;
- though the combined portfolio may be more diversified and have a lower percentage of non-accruing loans, the Combined Company would still have the same management team as before;
- internalizing the investment management causes some complexities in the structure;
- uncertainties about MDLY's ability to grow business (and earnings) as a captive asset manager;
- there would be a dilution in MCC Stockholder's influence (MCC Stockholders would own approximately 28% of the Combined Company);
- MCC Stockholders would experience an approximate 8.4% dilution in NAV per share (after projected expenses associated with the transaction);
- the fact that the MCC Merger Agreement precludes MCC from actively soliciting competing proposals and MCC may not terminate the MCC Merger Agreement to accept a competing proposal from a third party unless the MCC Board (or the MCC Special Committee) has determined in good faith (after consultation with its outside financial advisor and legal counsel) that the competing proposal constitutes a superior proposal and after providing notice, as applicable, and entering into good faith negotiations with Sierra, in which case MCC would be required to pay the termination fee;
- the fact that not all of the conditions to the closing of the MCC Merger, including the required stockholder approvals, are within the parties' control;
- the substantial costs to be incurred by MCC in connection with the MCC Merger Agreement and the other transactions contemplated thereby, regardless of whether the MCC Merger is consummated;
- the risk that the announcement and pendency of the MCC Merger could result in the disruption of MCC's business, including the possible diversion of management attention and potential adverse effects on MCC's business relationships; and
- the challenges inherent in the combination of three businesses, including the risk that integration of the three companies may take more time or be more costly than anticipated, and the risk that cost savings, synergies and other benefits expected to be obtained may not be fully or timely realized.

In view of the variety of factors and the amount of information considered, as well as the complexity of that information, the MCC Special Committee did not find it practicable to, and did not, quantify, rank or otherwise assign relative weights to the specific factors it considered in reaching its decisions. In addition, individual members of the MCC Special Committee may have given different weight to different factors. The above factors are not listed in any particular order of priority. In the judgment of the MCC Special Committee, the potential risks associated with the MCC Merger Agreement and the transactions contemplated thereby, including the MCC Merger, were favorably offset by the potential benefits of the MCC Merger Agreement and the transactions contemplated thereby, including the MCC Merger. This explanation of the MCC Special Committee's reasoning, and all other information presented in this section, is forward-looking in nature and, therefore, should be read in light of the factors discussed under the section entitled "Special Note Regarding Forward-Looking Statements."

The Medley Affiliates' Reasons for the MDLY Merger

The Medley Affiliates unanimously determined that the MDLY Merger Agreement and the transactions contemplated thereby, are advisable and fair to, and in the best interests of, the MDLY Stockholders. As part of its evaluation, the Medley Affiliates considered the financial terms, risks/challenges, timing and uncertainties of alternatives available to MDLY, as well as financial information prepared by Management. In that regard, the Medley Affiliates took into account a number of reasons, including, among others:

- the Mergers are expected to be accretive to the Combined Company's NII, return on equity, and NAV over time;
- the Mergers are expected to increase diversification and scale for the Combined Company;
- the Mergers offer the potential for achieving cost savings, operational efficiencies and synergies;
- the public listing of the Combined Company is expected to provide greater liquidity for all constituent stockholders; and
- the Mergers will simplify the overall corporate structure and more closely align the interests of Management and all constituent stockholders, providing the potential for an increase in valuation comparable to internally managed BDC peers.

MDLY's Reasons for the MDLY Merger

The MDLY Special Committee unanimously determined, and recommended the MDLY Board determine, that the MDLY Merger Agreement and the transactions contemplated thereby, including, without limitation, the MDLY Merger, are advisable and fair to, and in the best interests of, MDLY and the unaffiliated MDLY Stockholders.

The MDLY Board and the Medley Affiliates determined that the MDLY Merger Agreement and the transactions contemplated thereby, including, without limitation, the MDLY Merger are advisable and fair to, and in the best interests of, MDLY and the unaffiliated MDLY Stockholders. The Medley Affiliates were able to reach their fairness determination as to the MDLY unaffiliated security holders in light of the fact that, among other things, all of the MDLY unaffiliated security holders and certain non-management affiliates of MDLY will receive the same dollar amount per share for their MDLY Class A Common Stock. The MDLY Board was able to reach its fairness determination as to the MDLY unaffiliated security holders in light of the fact that, among other things, all of the MDLY unaffiliated security holders and certain non-management affiliates of MDLY will receive the same dollar amount per share for their MDLY Class A Common Stock. Accordingly, the MDLY Board was able to reach its fairness determination as to unaffiliated security holders by adopting the determinations of the MDLY Special Committee.

In making its recommendation to the MDLY Board, the MDLY Special Committee expressly relied upon, among other things, the Barclays fairness opinion, subject to the qualifications, limitations and assumptions stated therein, together with the analyses and conclusions of Barclays in issuing its fairness opinion, including the comparable company, comparable transaction and discounted cash flow analyses (based on the MDLY Projections) contained therein, and the other factors considered and reviewed for informational purposes (including, without limitation, the historical share price analysis, transaction premium analysis and current analyst price targets analysis), as further described in “Special Factors—Opinion of Financial Advisor of the MDLY Special Committee.”

Each of the factors set forth above were important to MDLY and the Medley Affiliates in determining the fairness of the transaction to the unaffiliated security holders. With respect to whether the consideration offered to unaffiliated security holders constitutes fair value, MDLY believes that the factors that are described above constitute an analysis of whether the consideration offered to unaffiliated security holders constitutes fair value in relation to current market prices, historical market prices and going concern value. Moreover, while net book value was considered as a data point, MDLY did not consider its net book value on a stand-alone basis in considering the fairness of the transaction due to the fact that MDLY's business is based on fee income rather than asset value. MDLY did not consider liquidation value as liquidating the company was not considered.

In recommending that the MDLY Board approve the MDLY Merger Agreement and the transactions contemplated thereby, including the MDLY Merger, the MDLY Special Committee considered the terms of the MDLY Merger Agreement and the other transactions and agreements relating thereto. As part of its evaluation, the MDLY Special Committee considered the financial terms, risks/challenges, timing and uncertainties of alternatives available to MDLY, as well as financial information prepared by Management. The MDLY Special Committee consulted with outside financial and legal advisors and Management, and took into account a number of reasons, including, among others:

Financial Considerations

- The aggregate value and composition of the MDLY Merger Consideration (together with the First Special Dividend and the Second Special Dividend, as applicable) to be received by the MDLY Stockholders in the MDLY Merger, including the fact that upon completion of the MDLY Merger, the unaffiliated MDLY Stockholders would receive $4.09 per share, including $0.65 payable in the form of special cash dividends, and Management would receive $3.79 per share, including $0.35 payable in the form of a special cash dividend, plus both the unaffiliated MDLY Stockholders and Management would receive 0.3836 shares of Sierra Common Stock per share of MDLY Class A Common Stock.
- The fact that a significant portion of the MDLY Merger Consideration (together with the First Special Dividend and the Second Special Dividend, as applicable) to be received by the unaffiliated MDLY Stockholders in the MDLY Merger will be paid in cash, giving the unaffiliated MDLY Stockholders an opportunity to immediately realize value for a portion of their investment and providing certainty of value with respect to the cash portion of the MDLY Merger Consideration to be paid to the unaffiliated MDLY Stockholders.
- The fact that, since the stock portion of the MDLY Merger Consideration will be paid in shares of Sierra Common Stock, the MDLY Stockholders would have the opportunity to participate in any future earnings and growth of the Combined Company and future appreciation in the value of such shares following the Mergers should they determine to retain the shares of Sierra Common Stock payable in the MDLY Merger.
- The fact that the total implied value of the MDLY Merger Consideration (together with the First Special Dividend and the Second Special Dividend, as applicable) to be received by the unaffiliated MDLY Stockholders in the MDLY Merger represented a premium to market of approximately 100%, assuming a NAV multiple of 1.00x for Sierra, based on the closing share price of $3.45 for Class A Common Stock of MDLY on August 8, 2018 (the last trading day prior to announcement of the MDLY Merger).
- The fairness presentation by Barclays and its oral opinion delivered to the MDLY Special Committee on August 9, 2018 (which was subsequently confirmed in writing by delivery of Barclays' written opinion dated August 9, 2018), that, as of such date, and based upon and subject to the qualifications, limitations and assumptions stated in its opinion, from a financial point of view, the Consideration (as defined below) to be offered to the non-management holders of MDLY Class A Common Stock in the proposed MDLY Merger is fair to such stockholders, including, without limitation, the comparable company analysis, comparable transaction analysis and discounted cash flow analysis performed by Barclays. In addition, Barclays considered and reviewed with the MDLY Special Committee other factors for informational purposes, including, among other things, the historical share price analysis, transaction premium analysis and current analyst price targets analysis, as further described in “Special Factors—Opinion of Financial Advisor of the MDLY Special Committee—Summary of Material Financial Analyses” and “Special Factors—Opinion of Financial Advisor of the MDLY Special Committee—Other Factors”.

- The fact that the MDLY Special Committee identified additional sources of value for the unaffiliated MDLY Stockholders, including that the Medley LLC Unitholders agreed to forfeit all of the benefits to which they otherwise would be entitled under the Tax Receivable Agreement in order to increase the amount of consideration available to the unaffiliated MDLY Stockholders.
- The fact that the MDLY Special Committee successfully negotiated a pre-closing special cash dividend of $0.30 to be paid only to the holders of MDLY Class A Common Stock prior to the exchange of the LLC Units.
- The belief of the MDLY Special Committee that its negotiations had resulted in the highest price per share for the unaffiliated MDLY Stockholders compared to Management and that MCC and Sierra would support.

Thorough Review of Strategic Alternatives

- The fact that MDLY had carefully considered and evaluated, with the assistance of Management and legal and financial advisors, various potential strategic alternatives, including the robust and extensive sales processes to date run by MDLY for approximately 12 months.
- The belief of the MDLY Special Committee, which belief was formed after consultation with Management and legal and financial advisors, that continuing discussions with the parties who expressed interest since May 2018, or soliciting interest from additional third parties would be unlikely to lead to a better offer and could lead to the loss of the offer in connection with the proposed MDLY Merger.
- The fact that the parties that submitted expressions of interest regarding a potential acquisition of MDLY since May 2018 were valuing MDLY, on a per share basis, at less than the value of the MDLY Merger Consideration (together with the First Special Dividend and the Second Special Dividend).
- The belief of the MDLY Special Committee, which belief was formed after consultation with Management and legal and financial advisors, that the process conducted by MDLY has resulted in the highest price reasonably available to the unaffiliated MDLY Stockholders, including any standalone options.

Strategic and Business Considerations

- The fact that the MDLY Special Committee, comprising independent, non-employee directors of the MDLY Board, and with the assistance of independent, experienced, third party financial and legal advisors, had the authority to negotiate and reject or recommend approval of the MDLY Merger Agreement and the transactions contemplated thereby, including the MDLY Merger.
- The fact that the MDLY Special Committee had the authority to not recommend that the MDLY Board approve the MDLY Merger Agreement and the MDLY Board would have been precluded from approving the MDLY Merger Agreement under those circumstances.
- The benefits to the Combined Company that could result from the Mergers, including (i) the Combined Company will have over $5 billion of assets under management, including $2 billion of internally managed assets, and (ii) the Combined Company is expected to be the second largest internally managed BDC and the seventh largest publicly traded BDC.
- The fact that the Sierra Investment Advisory Agreement and the MCC Investment Management Agreement are renewed annually, renewal effectively requires, and termination of the agreements are effectively subject only to, the approval of the independent directors of Sierra and MCC, and their terms provide a certain degree of leverage to Sierra and MCC given their relative importance to MDLY.
- The fact that MDLY Stockholders will have an ability to participate in the future growth of the Combined Company, including any future upside in the stock price and potential synergies expected to result from the Mergers.
- The likelihood of obtaining regulatory approvals, including an exemptive order from the SEC granting relief to Sierra, MCC and MDLY under the Investment Company Act to the extent necessary to consummate the Mergers and to thereafter operate as an internally managed BDC.

Terms of the Merger Agreement

- The terms of the MDLY Merger Agreement were the result of extensive arm's length negotiations among Management, the MDLY Special Committee and the Sierra Special Committee.
- The fact that the MDLY Merger Agreement permits the MDLY Board (at the direction of the MDLY Special Committee) to change its recommendation that the MDLY Stockholders vote in favor of the adoption of the MDLY Merger Agreement in response to certain acquisition proposals, if the MDLY Board (at the direction of the MDLY Special Committee) determines that failure to change its recommendation could reasonably be expected to be inconsistent with its fiduciary duties, subject to certain procedural requirements set forth in the MDLY Merger Agreement.
- The fact that the MDLY Board could terminate the MDLY Merger Agreement to accept a "superior proposal" from a third party, subject to certain procedural requirements set forth in the MDLY Merger Agreement.
- The payment of a reasonable termination fee equal to $5,350,000 by MDLY or Sierra in certain instances following termination of the MDLY Merger Agreement.
- The fact that appraisal rights would be available to MDLY Stockholders who comply with all of the required procedures under the DGCL, which allows such holders to seek appraisal of the fair value of their shares as determined by the Delaware Court of Chancery.

The MDLY Special Committee also considered certain potentially negative factors in its deliberations concerning the MDLY Merger, including, but not limited to, the following:

- The fact that a significant portion of the MDLY Merger Consideration to be paid to MDLY Stockholders will be paid in cash and, with respect to that portion of the consideration, the MDLY Stockholders will not participate in the future growth of the Combined Company.
- The fact that the stock portion of the MDLY Merger Consideration to be received by the MDLY Stockholders will consist of Sierra Common Stock based on a fixed exchange ratio and that the value of the stock portion of the MDLY Merger Consideration may decline either before or after the MDLY Special Meeting and there will be no adjustment to the exchange ratio, thereby exposing the MDLY Stockholders to the risks of an equity investment.
- The uncertainty as to the price at which the Sierra Common Stock will trade as of the consummation of the MDLY Merger.
- The fact that consummation of the MDLY Merger is not conditioned on the approval of a majority of the unaffiliated MDLY Stockholders.
- The fact that, while members of Management will own approximately 6.2% of the shares of the Combined Company Common Stock, the unaffiliated MDLY Stockholders would hold only approximately 1.4% of the shares of the Combined Company Common Stock.
- The fact that the MDLY Merger Agreement precludes MDLY from actively soliciting competing proposals and MDLY may not terminate the MDLY Merger Agreement to accept a competing proposal from a third party unless the MDLY Board (or the MDLY Special Committee) has determined in good faith (after consultation with its outside financial advisor and legal counsel) that the competing proposal constitutes a superior proposal and after providing notice, as applicable, and entering into good faith negotiations with Sierra, in which case MDLY would be required to pay the termination fee.
- The fact that not all of the conditions to the closing of the MDLY Merger, including the required stockholder approvals, are within the parties' control.

- The fact that the MDLY Merger Agreement contains certain restrictions on the ability of MDLY to conduct its business in the period between signing and closing, so that Sierra's consent is required in respect of certain corporate actions, the entry into certain contracts, the acquisition or disposition of material assets, certain compensation actions, and other matters.
- The substantial costs to be incurred by MDLY in connection with the MDLY Merger Agreement and the other transactions contemplated thereby, regardless of whether the MDLY Merger is consummated.
- The risk that the announcement and pendency of the MDLY Merger could result in the disruption of MDLY's business, including the possible diversion of management and employee attention, potential employee attrition and potential adverse effects on MDLY's business relationships.
- The challenges inherent in the combination of three businesses, including the risk that integration of the three companies may take more time or be more costly than anticipated, and the risk that cost savings, synergies and other benefits expected to be obtained may not be fully or timely realized.

The MDLY Special Committee considered the factors taken into account by Barclays in issuing its fairness opinion. In determining the MDLY Merger is advisable and fair to, and in the best interests of, MDLY and the unaffiliated MDLY Stockholders, the MDLY Special Committee expressly adopts the analysis and conclusions of Barclays in issuing its fairness opinion as part of its considerations in making such determination. See "Special Factors—Opinion of Financial Advisor of the MDLY Special Committee—Summary of Material Financial Analyses" and "Special Factors—Opinion of Financial Advisor of the MDLY Special Committee—Other Factors" for a summary of the factors used by Barclays in issuing its fairness opinion.

In view of the variety of factors and the amount of information considered, as well as the complexity of that information, the MDLY Special Committee did not find it practicable to, and did not, quantify, rank or otherwise assign relative weights to the specific factors it considered in reaching its decisions. In addition, individual members of the MDLY Special Committee may have given different weight to different factors. The above factors are not listed in any particular order of priority. In the judgment of the MDLY Special Committee, the potential risks associated with the MDLY Merger Agreement and the transactions contemplated thereby, including the MDLY Merger, were favorably offset by the potential benefits of the MDLY Merger Agreement and the transactions contemplated thereby, including the MDLY Merger. This explanation of the MDLY Special Committee's reasoning, and all other information presented in this section, is forward-looking in nature and, therefore, should be read in light of the factors discussed under the section entitled "Special Note Regarding Forward-Looking Statements."

Recommendation of the Sierra Board and the Sierra Special Committee

At its meeting on August 9, 2018, the Sierra Board, acting upon the recommendation of the Sierra Special Committee, unanimously approved the MCC Merger Agreement and the transactions contemplated thereunder, including the MCC Merger, upon the terms and subject to the conditions and limitations set forth in the MCC Merger Agreement, and resolved to submit the MCC Merger Agreement and the matters described therein to the Sierra Stockholders for their approval at a special meeting of the Sierra Stockholders.

In addition, at its meeting on August 9, 2018, the Sierra Board, including the Sierra Special Committee of its independent directors, unanimously approved the MDLY Merger Agreement and the transactions contemplated thereunder, including the MDLY Merger, upon the terms and subject to the conditions and limitations set forth in the MDLY Merger Agreement, and resolved to submit the MDLY Merger Agreement and the matters described therein to the Sierra Stockholders for their approval at a special meeting of the Sierra Stockholders.

Recommendation of the MCC Board and the MCC Special Committee

At its meeting on August 9, 2018, the MCC Board, acting upon the recommendation of the MCC Special Committee, unanimously approved the MCC Merger Agreement and the transactions contemplated thereunder, including the MCC Merger, upon the terms and subject to the conditions and limitations set forth in the MCC Merger Agreement, and resolved to submit the MCC Merger Agreement and the matters described therein to the stockholders of MCC for their approval at a special meeting of MCC's stockholders.

Recommendation of the MDLY Board

At its meeting on August 9, 2018, the MDLY Board, acting upon the recommendation of the MDLY Special Committee, unanimously (i) determined that the MDLY Merger Agreement and the transactions contemplated thereby, including, without limitation, the MDLY Merger, are advisable and fair to, and in the best interests of, MDLY and the MDLY Stockholders, (ii) approved and declared advisable the MDLY Merger Agreement and the transactions contemplated thereby, including, without limitation, the MDLY Merger, (iii) resolved to submit the MDLY Merger Agreement to the MDLY Stockholders for its adoption, and (iv) recommended that the MDLY Stockholders approve the adoption of the MDLY Merger Agreement.

Opinion of Financial Advisor to the Sierra Special Committee

Broadhaven was retained by the Sierra Special Committee to act as its financial advisor and provide an opinion in connection with the Mergers. The Sierra Special Committee selected Broadhaven to act as its financial advisor based on Broadhaven's qualifications, experience and reputation and its knowledge of the relevant industry and the business in which Sierra operates. On August 9, 2018, Broadhaven rendered its oral opinion, which was subsequently confirmed in writing by delivery of the opinion, to the Sierra Special Committee to the effect that, as of that date and based upon and subject to the assumptions made, procedures followed, matters considered and qualifications and limitations on the scope of review undertaken by Broadhaven as set forth in its opinion, the total consideration to be paid and issued by Sierra pursuant to the MCC Merger Agreement and MDLY Merger Agreement in the aggregate (the "total consideration"), considered as a whole and not in separate parts, was fair to Sierra from a financial point of view.

The full text of Broadhaven's opinion to the Sierra Special Committee dated August 9, 2018, is attached as Appendix C to this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus and is incorporated into this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus by reference in its entirety. Holders of shares of Sierra Common Stock should read the opinion in its entirety for a discussion of the assumptions made, procedures followed, matters considered and qualifications and limitations on the scope of review undertaken by Broadhaven in rendering the opinion. This summary is qualified in its entirety by reference to the full text of such opinion. Broadhaven's opinion was directed to the Sierra Special Committee and addressed only the fairness from a financial point of view to Sierra of the aggregate amount of the total consideration paid to stockholders of MCC and MDLY as of the date of the opinion and did not address any other aspect of the Mergers. In addition, the opinion did not in any manner address (i) the prices at which shares of Sierra Common Stock would trade after the announcement or consummation of the transactions or at any other time, (ii) the underlying business decision by Sierra to proceed with or effect the Mergers or the likelihood of consummation of the Mergers, (iii) the relative merits of the Mergers as compared to any other transaction or business strategy in which Sierra might engage, (iv) the fairness of the Mergers to any other person or entity, including but not limited to MDLY or the stockholders of MDLY, (v) the fairness (financial or otherwise) of the amount, nature or any other aspect of any compensation to any of the officers, directors or employees of any party to the Mergers, or any such class of persons, relative to the total consideration, (vi) the fairness to Sierra of the portion of the total consideration to be paid to each of the stockholders of MDLY and the stockholders of MCC on separate bases, or the fairness of the consideration to be received by any stockholders affiliated with MCC or MDLY relative to stockholders not otherwise affiliated with MCC or MDLY or (vii) the relative proportion of cash and shares of Sierra Common Stock constituting the consideration to stockholders of MDLY. The opinion is addressed to the Sierra Special Committee only and does not constitute a recommendation as to how any Sierra Stockholder should vote with respect to the Mergers or any other matter.

In arriving at its opinion, Broadhaven, among other things:

- Reviewed certain audited and unaudited financial information, and other business and operating data, regarding Sierra, MCC and MDLY;
- Reviewed certain financial projections set forth in "Unaudited Prospective Financial Information — MCC Projections" relating to MCC (the "MCC Projections") prepared by Management, which manages MCC, and discussed with Management its assessment as to the relative likelihood of achieving the MCC Projections;
- Reviewed certain financial projections set forth in "Unaudited Prospective Financial Information — MDLY Projections" relating to MDLY prepared by Management (the "MDLY Projections") and discussed with Management its assessment as to the relative likelihood of achieving the MDLY Projections;

- Reviewed certain financial projections set forth in “Unaudited Prospective Financial Information — Sierra Projections” relating to Sierra (the “Sierra Projections”) prepared by Management, which manages Sierra, and discussed with Management its assessment as to the relative likelihood of achieving the Sierra Projections;
- Discussed the past and current business, operations, financial condition and prospects of each of MCC and MDLY with members of Management, and discussed the past and current business, operations, financial condition and prospects of Sierra, including after giving effect to the Mergers and the strategic and financial benefits anticipated by Management to result therefrom, with members of Management;
- Reviewed the recent stock price performance of the MDLY Common Stock and a comparison with the stock price performance of certain other comparable companies, the securities of which are publicly traded;
- Reviewed the recent stock price performance of the MCC Common Stock and a comparison with the average and median trading prices of certain business development companies that are, in Broadhaven’s judgment, comparable in certain respects to MCC, and the securities of which are publicly traded;
- Reviewed the anticipated pro forma impact of the transactions on Sierra’s NII, NAV and financial ratios;
- Reviewed the financial terms, to the extent publicly available, of certain comparable acquisition transactions;
- Compared the financial performance of MCC and MDLY and the prices and trading activity of the MCC Common Stock and the MDLY Common Stock with that of certain other publicly traded companies comparable in certain respects with MCC and MDLY, respectively, and their securities;
- Reviewed the Tax Receivable Agreement and the proposed treatment of the Tax Receivable Agreement under the MCC Merger Agreement and MDLY Merger Agreement;
- Reviewed drafts of the MCC Merger Agreement and MDLY Merger Agreement and certain related documents; and
- Performed such other analyses and considered such other factors as Broadhaven has deemed appropriate.

In reaching its opinion, Broadhaven has assumed and relied upon, without independent verification, the accuracy and completeness of the information that was publicly available or supplied or otherwise made available to it by Sierra, MCC or MDLY, and that formed a substantial basis for its opinion. Broadhaven has further relied upon assurances of Management, which also manages Sierra and MCC, that they are not aware of any facts or circumstances that would make such information inaccurate or misleading and that there has not occurred any material change in the assets, financial condition, results of operations, business or prospects of Sierra, MCC or MDLY since the respective dates of the most recent financial statements and other information, financial or otherwise, relating to Sierra, MCC or MDLY, respectively, made available to Broadhaven by Sierra, MCC or MDLY.

Broadhaven assumed, in all cases with the Sierra Special Committee’s consent, that:

- The final executed MCC Merger Agreement and MDLY Merger Agreement would not differ in any respect material to its analysis or its opinion from the draft MCC Merger Agreement and MDLY Merger Agreement Broadhaven reviewed;
- The MCC Projections and the MDLY Projections have been reasonably prepared on bases reflecting the best currently available estimates and judgments of Management, which manages MCC, of the future financial performance of each of MCC and MDLY on a standalone basis, respectively;

- The Sierra Projections have been reasonably prepared on bases reflecting the best currently available estimates and judgments of Management, which manages Sierra, of the future financial performance of Sierra on a standalone basis and following the acquisition of MCC and MDLY, respectively;
- The Mergers will be consummated in accordance with the terms set forth in the MCC Merger Agreement and MDLY Merger Agreement without any waiver, amendment or delay of any terms or conditions in any manner that would be material to Broadhaven's opinion;
- The revenues and earnings projected in the Sierra Projections (and, following the Mergers, the revenues and earnings projected in the MCC Projections and the MDLY Projections) will be realized in the amounts and at the times projected in all respects material to Broadhaven's analysis;
- The Mergers will not result in the assumption or other acquisition of any tax, regulatory or other liabilities (including liabilities of MCC and MDLY and their respective subsidiaries) beyond those provided for in the MCC merger agreement and MDLY Merger Agreement, the realization of which liabilities provided for in the MCC Merger Agreement and MDLY Merger Agreement Broadhaven assumed with the consent of the Sierra Special Committee would not have a material impact on the value of Sierra, and the rate of taxation applied to certain earnings of Sierra included in the Sierra Projections and the rate of taxation applicable to MDLY included in the MDLY projections will be experienced as projected following consummation of the Mergers;
- In connection with the receipt of all the necessary governmental, regulatory or other approvals and consents required for the Mergers, no delays, limitations, conditions (including any required divestitures) or restrictions will be imposed that would have a material adverse effect on the contemplated benefits expected to be derived in the Mergers;
- The representations and warranties of Sierra, MCC and MDLY contained in the MCC Merger Agreement and MDLY Merger Agreement are accurate and complete in all respects material to Broadhaven's analysis; and
- The Mergers will qualify for federal income tax purposes as a reorganization under the provisions of Section 368(a) of the Code.

Broadhaven further advised the Sierra Special Committee of the following several important factors and assumptions that underlie its opinion, the first four of which formed the bases for important parts of the analysis Broadhaven used in reaching its opinion, and Broadhaven would have been unable to deliver its opinion were any of these factors or assumptions to be incorrect in any material respect:

- First, it is Broadhaven's view that, were the shares of Sierra Common Stock to be listed and traded on a national securities exchange, such shares, on a fully distributed basis, would trade at a substantial discount to Sierra's NAV.
- Second, Broadhaven has assumed with the Sierra Special Committee's consent that Sierra and its affiliates (including MDLY), pro forma for the Mergers, would, absent the tax relief afforded by the cancellation of and transfer of benefits under the Tax Receivable Agreement, pay taxes in the full amounts and at the times projected by Management and that the taxes resulting from the results of operations of MDLY in each year in which tax benefits are available under the Tax Receivable Agreement would be in excess of the tax benefits afforded by the Tax Receivable Agreement.
- Third, Broadhaven has assumed with the Sierra Special Committee's consent that MDLY, following its acquisition by Sierra, will be treated as a portfolio investment of Sierra for accounting purposes and that MDLY's financial results will not be consolidated into the financial statements of Sierra.
- Fourth, Broadhaven has assumed with the Sierra Special Committee's consent that the SEC will grant exemptive relief consistent with that addressed in the Eversheds Sutherland memorandum to the SEC dated July 5, 2018 without qualification or modification to the Mergers.
- Finally, with the Sierra Special Committee's consent, Broadhaven has considered the fairness of the total consideration to be paid on an aggregate basis, including the combined amount of the consideration to be paid to the stockholders of MDLY and MCC, respectively.

Broadhaven is not a legal, tax or regulatory advisor. Broadhaven is a financial advisor only and relied upon, without independent verification, the assessments of Sierra and its legal, tax, accounting and regulatory advisors with respect to legal, tax, accounting and regulatory matters.

Broadhaven has not made any independent valuation or appraisal of Sierra, MCC, MDLY or their respective assets or liabilities, Broadhaven has not relied upon any such valuations or appraisals furnished to it, and its opinion does not constitute or imply any particular valuation of Sierra. In arriving at its opinion, Broadhaven has not conducted a physical inspection of Sierra, MCC, MDLY or their respective assets. Broadhaven’s opinion is necessarily based on financial, economic, market and other conditions as in effect on, and the information made available to Broadhaven as of, the date of its opinion. Events occurring after the date of its opinion may affect Broadhaven’s opinion and the assumptions used in preparing it, and Broadhaven does not assume any obligation to update, revise or reaffirm its opinion.

Broadhaven’s opinion did not constitute a recommendation as to how any Sierra, MCC or MDLY stockholder should vote with respect to the Mergers or any other matter. Broadhaven was not requested to opine as to, and its opinion did not in any manner address, the underlying business decision by Sierra to proceed with or effect the Mergers or the likelihood of consummation of the Mergers. Broadhaven’s opinion did not address the relative merits of the Mergers as compared to any other transaction or business strategy in which Sierra might engage. Broadhaven’s opinion did not address the fairness (financial or otherwise) of the amount, nature or any other aspect of any compensation to any of the officers, directors or employees of any party to the transaction, or any such class of persons, relative to the MCC Merger Consideration and the MDLY Merger Consideration.

The following is a summary of the material financial analyses performed by Broadhaven in connection with the preparation of its opinion to the Sierra Special Committee. The financial analyses summarized below include information presented in tabular format. In order to understand fully the financial analyses used by Broadhaven, the tables must be read together with the text of each summary. The tables alone do not constitute a complete description of the financial analyses. The analyses listed in the tables and described below must be considered as a whole. Assessing any portion of such analyses and of the factors reviewed, without considering all analyses and factors, could create a misleading or incomplete view of the process underlying Broadhaven’s opinion.

Financial Analysis of Sierra

With respect to Sierra, Broadhaven conducted the following analysis:

Comparable Public Companies Analysis. Broadhaven considered certain financial data of selected internally-managed and externally-managed BDC’s with publicly traded equity securities. The financial data included, among other things:

- Stock price as a multiple of NAV per share (“P / NAV”);
- Stock price as a multiple of 2019 projected earnings per share (“P / Earnings”); and
- Dividend yield based on most recent quarterly dividend (“MRQ Dividend Yield”)

The selected internally-managed BDC’s were:

- Main Street Capital Corporation
- Hercules Capital, Inc.
- Triangle Capital Corporation
- Capital Southwest Corporation
- KCAP Financial, Inc.

Broadhaven noted that Triangle Capital Corporation had announced, and its shareholders had approved, a proposal to externalize the management of the company. Broadhaven noted the following financial data as of August 2, 2018 for the selected internally-managed BDC’s:

Data	Internally Managed Business Development Companies
	Mean	Median
P / NAV	110%	96%
P / Earnings	12.1X	11.5X
MRQ Dividend Yield	8.8%	9.2%

Table of Contents

The selected externally-managed BDC's were:

- Ares Capital Corporation
- Prospect Capital Corporation
- Corporate Capital Trust, Inc.
- FS Investment Corporation
- TPG Specialty Lending, Inc.
- Apollo Investment Corporation
- TCG BDC, Inc.
- Golub Capital BDC, Inc.
- New Mountain Finance Corporation
- Solar Capital Ltd.
- TCP Capital Corp.
- Goldman Sachs BDC, Inc.
- Oaktree Specialty Lending Corporation
- PennantPark Floating Rate Capital Ltd.
- PennantPark Investment Corporation
- BlackRock Capital Investment Corporation
- Gladstone Investment Corporation
- Oxford Square Capital Corp.
- Fidus Investment Corporation
- WhiteHorse Finance, Inc.
- Monroe Capital Corporation
- Solar Senior Capital Ltd.
- THL Credit, Inc.
- Oaktree Strategic Income Corporation
- Gladstone Capital Corporation
- TriplePoint Venture Growth BDC Corp.
- Stellus Capital Investment Corporation
- Medley Capital Corporation
- MVC Capital, Inc.
- OFS Capital Corporation
- Saratoga Investment Corp.

Table of Contents

- Garrison Capital Inc.
- Capitala Finance Corp.
- American Capital Senior Floating, Ltd.
- Horizon Technology Finance Corporation

Broadhaven noted the following financial data as of August 2, 2018 for the selected externally-managed BDC's:

Data	Externally Managed Business Development Companies
	Mean	Median
P / NAV	92%	94%
P / Earnings	10.3X	10.0
MRQ Dividend Yield	9.5%	9.6%

No company utilized in the comparable public company analysis is directly comparable to Sierra. In evaluating the selected companies, Broadhaven made judgments and assumptions with regard to industry performance, general business, economic, market and financial conditions and other matters, many of which are beyond the control of Sierra, such as the impact of competition on the businesses of Sierra and on the middle-market lending industry generally, industry growth and the absence of any material adverse change in the financial condition and prospects of Sierra or the industry or in the financial markets in general, which could affect the public trading value of the companies selected for comparison. Additionally, mathematical analysis (such as determining the average or median) is not in itself a meaningful method of using selected company data.

Comparison of Sierra and MCC. Broadhaven noted the meaningful similarities between the MCC loan portfolio and the Sierra loan portfolio. In particular, 48% of Sierra's portfolio was comprised of borrowers which were also represented in the MCC portfolio. In addition, Broadhaven noted that MCC and Sierra shared the same external portfolio managers (MDLY), had a similar investment strategy and had similar levels of leverage. Broadhaven conducted analysis of MCC's trading levels relative to its NAV over time and noted that MCC traded at a price to NAV of 48% as of August 8, 2018.

BDC Regression Analysis. Broadhaven compared Sierra's return on equity for fiscal year 2019 provided in the Sierra Projections ("SIC 2019 ROE") with the relationship between 2019 ROEs and current price / NAV trading levels for internally-managed and externally-managed BDC's. SIC 2019 ROE of 7.0%, as provided in the Sierra Projections, implied a trading price per share equal to 73% of Sierra's NAV based on such regression analysis. Adjusting SIC 2019 ROE to reflect potential credit losses in an amount equal to the average annual losses of Sierra for fiscal years 2016 and 2017 resulted in a decline of Sierra's ROE to 4.8% for the fiscal year 2019 and implied a trading price per share equal to 58% of Sierra's NAV.

Based on the results of the above analyses and other factors that Broadhaven considered appropriate in its professional judgment, Broadhaven applied a P/NAV of 60% to 75% to Sierra's NAV per share as of June 30, 2018, which resulted in an implied equity value per share of Sierra Common Stock of $4.36 to $5.45.

Financial Analysis of MCC

With respect to MCC, Broadhaven performed the following analyses:

Contribution Analysis. Broadhaven noted the relative contributions of Sierra and MCC to a pro forma combined entity resulting from their merger (and, for purposes of this analysis, excluding the impact of the combination with MDLY) based on certain financial and operating metrics in the table below and compared those contributions to the 68.8% of the pro forma combined entity that would be owned by the pre-merger holders of Sierra Common Stock after giving effect to the MCC Merger and the 31.2% of the pro forma Combined Company that would be owned by the former holders of MCC Common Stock after giving effect to the MCC Merger.

	Sierra	MCC
6/30/2018 NAV	66.8%	33.2%
6/30/2018 adjusted NAV	69.8%	30.2%
Sierra At 75% NAV / MCC at market ⁽¹⁾	74.1%	25.9%
Sierra At 70% NAV / MCC at market ⁽¹⁾	72.7%	27.3%
Sierra At 65% NAV / MCC at market ⁽¹⁾	71.2%	28.8%
Sierra At 60% NAV / MCC at market ⁽¹⁾	69.6%	30.4%
2018E net investment income ⁽²⁾	81.4%	18.6%
2019P net investment income ⁽²⁾	71.1%	28.9%
Average contribution	72.3%	27.7%

(1) Market data as of August 8, 2018

(2) Based on the Sierra Projections and MCC Projections

Table of Contents

Based on the results of this analysis, the financial analysis of Sierra discussed above, and other factors that Broadhaven considered appropriate in its professional judgment, Broadhaven noted that the MCC Exchange Ratio resulted in a per share purchase price to MCC Stockholders of $3.51 to $4.39, which implied (a) a Price / MRQ NAV of 54.7% — 68.3% to MCC's NAV as of June 30, 2018, and (b) a premium to MCC market price as of August 8, 2018 of 4% to 30%.

Selected Precedent Transactions Analysis. Broadhaven also reviewed the purchase prices paid in the following nine publicly announced selected transactions based on publicly available information and calculated the purchase price to the-most-recent-quarter NAV ratio ("Price / MRQ NAV"), the purchase price to the last-twelve-month NII ratio ("Price / LTM NII") and the purchase price to the next-twelve-month NII ratio ("Price / NTM NII"), respectively, as set forth below.

Date	Target	Acquirer	Price /
			MRQ NAV	LTM NII	NTM NII

(1) Exchange ratio as of 3/31/2018 and excludes merger-related adjustments and mandatory tax distribution for Corporate Capital Trust pre-close; shares valued at FS Investment Corporation P/NAV day prior to announcement.

(2) Excludes $275,000,000 in cash from Ares Management and $562,000,000 in cash for the sale of American Capital Mortgage Management.

(3) Adjusted to exclude contractual interest payments from signing to closing.

No company or transaction utilized in the precedent transaction analysis is identical to MCC or directly comparable to the proposed MCC Merger involving MCC. In evaluating the selected precedent transactions, Broadhaven made judgments and assumptions with regard to industry performance, general business, economic, market and financial conditions and other matters, many of which are beyond the control of MCC, such as the impact of competition on the business of MCC or the middle-market lending industry generally, industry growth and the absence of any material adverse change in the financial condition and prospects of MCC or the industry or in the financial markets in general, which could affect the public trading value of the companies and the value of the transactions selected for comparison. Additionally, mathematical analysis (such as determining the average or median) is not in itself a meaningful method of using selected transaction data.

Financial Analysis of MDLY

With respect to MDLY, Broadhaven performed the following analyses:

Comparable Public Companies Analysis. Broadhaven considered the enterprise value to EBITDA ratio for selected traditional asset management companies with publicly traded equity securities.

The selected traditional asset management companies were:

- BlackRock
- T. Rowe Price
- Franklin Resources
- Invesco
- Affiliated Managers Group
- AllianceBernstein
- Eaton Vance

Table of Contents

- Janus Henderson
- Legg Mason
- Artisan Partners
- Hamilton Lane
- Federated Investors
- Cohen & Steers
- Waddell & Reed Financial
- BrightSphere
- WisdomTree
- Virtus
- GAMCO Investors
- Diamond Hill
- Victory Capital
- Pzena
- Westwood
- Manning & Napier
- Silvercrest

Broadhaven noted the following financial data as of August 2, 2018 for the selected traditional asset management companies:

	Traditional Asset Management Companies
	Mean	Median
Enterprise value / Most Recent Quarter EBITDA	8.3x	7.1x
Enterprise value / EBITDA 2018E	8.4x	7.4x
Enterprise value / EBITDA 2019E	8.0x	7.0x

Discounted Cash Flow Analysis. Broadhaven performed a discounted cash flow analysis of MDLY by calculating the estimated present value (as of December 31, 2018) of the unlevered, after-tax free cash flows that MDLY was forecasted to generate based on the MDLY Projections. Broadhaven calculated the implied terminal value of MDLY by applying a selected range of enterprise value/EBITDA multiples of 6x to 10x, to MDLY's projected EBITDA for the fiscal year 2023. The present value (as of December 31, 2018) of MDLY's cash flows and terminal values were then calculated using a selected range of discount rates from 10% to 18% derived from a weighted average cost of capital calculation. This analysis indicated the approximate implied per share equity value reference range for MDLY of $6.58 to $15.57, as compared to an implied range of MDLY Merger Consideration per share of between $5.65 and $5.79 (assuming Sierra Common Stock is valued at 60% and 75%, respectively, of per share NAV) before giving effect to the net present value of the tax assets under the Tax Receivable Agreement.

In addition, Broadhaven performed an analysis of the net present value of the tax assets under the Tax Receivable Agreement, which resulted in a net present value range of $1.03 to $1.50 per share, and a midpoint net present value of $1.26, based on a 12.0% discount rate. Taking into account the midpoint of the range of values ascribed to the Tax Receivable Agreement implied a range of MDLY Merger Consideration per share of between $4.39 to $4.53 (assuming Sierra Common Stock is valued at 60% and 75% of per share NAV, respectively).

Selected Precedent Transactions Analysis. Broadhaven also reviewed the purchase prices paid in the following 4 publicly announced selected transactions based on publicly available information and calculated the respective enterprise value to the EBITDA ratios.

Date	Target / Advisor Replaced	Acquirer	Enterprise Value / Pro Forma EBITDA⁽¹⁾	Enterprise Value / Step Up Adjusted EBITDA⁽²⁾
Apr-18	TCAP Internally Managed Advisor	Barings	12.4x	10.5x
Jul-17	Fifth Street Asset Management	Oaktree Capital Management	11.9	10.1
Aug-16	CIFC	F.A.B. Partners	N/A	N/A
Jul-16	BDCA Advisors	Benefit Street Partners	2.1	N/A
Mean			8.8x	10.3x
Median			11.9	10.3

(1) Adjusted multiple based on reducing the purchase price by the net present value of the basis step up assuming zero starting basis, 33% tax rate and a 15-year amortization period.

(2) Pro forma revenue and EBITDA based on new management fee rates and assumes 50% margin.

No company or transaction utilized in the precedent transaction analysis is identical to Sierra or MDLY or directly comparable to the proposed MDLY Merger involving Sierra and MDLY. In evaluating the selected precedent transactions, Broadhaven made judgments and assumptions with regard to industry performance, general business, economic, market and financial conditions and other matters, many of which are beyond the control of Sierra and MDLY, such as the impact of competition on the business of Sierra and/or MDLY or the industry generally, industry growth and the absence of any material adverse change in the financial condition and prospects of Sierra and/or MDLY or the industry or in the financial markets in general, which could affect the public trading value of the companies and the value of the transactions selected for comparison. Additionally, mathematical analysis (such as determining the average or median) is not in itself a meaningful method of using selected transaction data.

Based on the results of this analysis and other factors that Broadhaven considered appropriate in professional judgment, Broadhaven applied an enterprise value to the EBITDA ratio of 8.0x — 12.0x to MDLY's last-twelve-month EBITDA (as of June 30, 2018), EBITDA for the fiscal year 2018 as provided in the MDLY Projections and EBITDA for the fiscal year 2019 as provided in the MDLY Projections, which resulted in an implied purchase price range of $2.66 to $5.58 per share, $3.42 to $6.72 per share and $6.32 to $11.07, respectively, for MDLY.

In addition, Broadhaven conducted a downside sensitivity analysis to MDLY's EBITDA for the fiscal year 2018 as provided in the MDLY Projections. Broadhaven assumed 1% to 5% decline and 5% to 15% decline, respectively, in assets under management ("AUM") at Sierra and MCC to simulate additional credit losses. The AUM of other products that are assumed to be either newly launched or at an early stage of development were also adjusted downward with respect to growth rates assumed by Management in the MDLY Projections. The downside sensitivity also reduced Sierra incentive fees for the fiscal 2019, incorporating a 0% to 50% reduction relative to the amount provided in the MDLY Projections. Finally, Broadhaven assumed that the compensation and benefits cost savings implied by reductions in AUM were 50% of the amount provided in the MDLY Projections across all downside scenarios. These adjustments implied a MDLY's EBITDA range of $29.4 million to $35.5 million for the fiscal year 2019. Applying the above mentioned 8.0x — 12.0x enterprise value to the EBITDA ratio to the low end of the downside sensitivity implied an MDLY purchase price range of $4.13 to $7.78 per share.

Pro Forma Value Creation Analysis

Broadhaven also considered the potential value creation of the Mergers for the pre-merger Sierra Stockholders based on a comparison of (a) the NII per share and operating ROE, respectively, implied for Sierra on a standalone basis for the fiscal year 2019 as provided in the Sierra Projections and (b) the net investment income per share and operating return on equity, respectively, implied for the potential pro forma Combined Company (after the completion of both Mergers) for the fiscal year 2019 as derived from the Sierra Projections, the MCC Projections and MDLY Projections. Broadhaven also compared (i) the per share NAV of Sierra on a standalone basis as of June 30, 2018 and (ii) the per share NAV of the potential pro forma Combined Company as of June 30, 2018. This analysis indicated that the NII per share, operating ROE and the per share NAV were each greater for the pro forma Combined Company than for Sierra on a standalone basis, in each case, as set forth below.

	2019 Net Investment Income	2019 Operating Return on Equity	Net Asset Value
Standalone Sierra	$48.8 million	7.0%	$704.0 million
Pro Forma Combined Company	$89.2 million	8.0%	$1,122.0 million
Accretion (Dilution)	15.6%⁽¹⁾	0.94 bps	0.7%⁽¹⁾

(1) On a per share basis (taking into account the additional Sierra Common Stock to be issued pursuant to both Mergers).

General

Broadhaven performed a variety of financial and comparative analyses for purposes of rendering its opinion. The preparation of a financial opinion is a complex process and is not necessarily susceptible to a partial analysis or summary description. In arriving at its opinion, Broadhaven considered the results of all of its analyses as a whole and did not attribute any particular weight to any analysis or factor it considered. Broadhaven believes that selecting any portion of its analyses, without considering all analyses as a whole, would create an incomplete view of the process underlying its analyses and opinion. In addition, Broadhaven may have given various analyses and factors more or less weight than other analyses and factors, and may have deemed various assumptions more or less probable than other assumptions. As a result, the ranges of valuations resulting from any particular analysis described above should not be taken to be Broadhaven's view of the actual value of Sierra, MCC or MDLY. In performing its analyses, Broadhaven made numerous assumptions with respect to industry performance, general business, regulatory, economic, market and financial conditions and other matters. Many of these assumptions are beyond the control of Sierra, MCC and MDLY. Any estimates contained in Broadhaven's analyses are not necessarily indicative of future results or actual values, which may be significantly more or less favorable than those suggested by such estimates.

Broadhaven conducted the analyses described above in connection with rendering its opinion to the Sierra Special Committee as to whether the total consideration to be paid and issued by Sierra in the transactions, considered as a whole and not in separate parts, was fair to Sierra from a financial point of view. These analyses do not purport to be appraisals or to reflect prices at which the Sierra Common Stock, MCC Common Stock or MDLY Common Stock might actually trade.

The consideration to be paid and issued by Sierra in the Mergers was determined through negotiations between the Sierra Special Committee and MCC Special Committee and between the Sierra Special Committee and the MDLY Special Committee, respectively, and was approved by the Sierra Special Committee. Broadhaven acted as a financial advisor to the Sierra Special Committee during these negotiations. Broadhaven did not, however, recommend any specific consideration to the Sierra Special Committee or that any specific consideration constituted the only appropriate consideration for the Mergers.

Broadhaven's opinion and its presentation to the Sierra Special Committee were one of many factors taken into consideration by the Sierra Special Committee in its evaluation of the Mergers. Consequently, the analyses as described above should not be viewed as determinative of the opinion of the Sierra Special Committee with respect to the consideration to be paid by Sierra in either Merger or whether the Sierra Special Committee would have been willing to recommend a different consideration in either Merger.

Broadhaven acted as financial advisor to the Sierra Special Committee in connection with the Mergers and has received or will receive the following fees for serving in this capacity: (a) $1.0 million as a retainer, which was paid upon signing of the engagement letter; (b) $1.25 million opinion fee, which was paid upon delivery of the Broadhaven opinion; and (c) $1.25 million which will become payable upon either the (i) the closing of the Mergers, or (ii) a request by the Sierra Special Committee for Broadhaven to either (x) confirm Broadhaven's opinion, or (y) deliver any additional or modified fairness opinion and Broadhaven advises the Sierra Special Committee that Broadhaven is ready to confirm (or is unable to confirm) its fairness opinion or is prepared to (or is unable to) issue another fairness opinion with respect to the Mergers. In addition, if either the MCC Merger Agreement or the MDLY Merger Agreement is terminated and Sierra receives a payment from MCC and/or MDLY, other than expense reimbursement, in connection with such termination, then Broadhaven will be entitled to a termination fee equal to 25% of any such payment, subject to certain conditions.

In addition to the fees described above, Sierra also has agreed to reimburse Broadhaven for its reasonable and documented out-of-pocket expenses incurred in performing its services, including fees, disbursements and other charges of external legal counsel, subject to a $200,000 cap on legal expenses and a $75,000 cap on other expenses. Sierra also has agreed to indemnify Broadhaven against certain liabilities and expenses related to or arising out of Broadhaven's engagement.

In the two years prior to the date of its opinion, Broadhaven advised MDLY in connection with a potential strategic transaction pursuant to an engagement letter that was terminated on June 15, 2018. In connection with that engagement, Broadhaven received confidential information of MDLY and worked with Management, but did not receive any compensation in connection with such engagement and will not receive any compensation relating to such engagement as a result of the Mergers. Such prior assignment for MDLY was disclosed to the Sierra Special Committee before Broadhaven was engaged to represent the Sierra Special Committee. Broadhaven may seek to provide financial advisory and other services to Sierra, MCC or MDLY in the future and would expect to receive fees for rendering those services.

Opinion of Financial Advisor to the MCC Special Committee

The MCC Special Committee retained Sandler O'Neill to act as financial advisor to the MCC Special Committee in connection with the MCC Special Committee's consideration of the Proposed Business Combination. The MCC Special Committee selected Sandler O'Neill as its financial advisor because Sandler O'Neill is a nationally recognized investment banking firm whose principal business specialty is financial services companies. In the ordinary course of its investment banking business, Sandler O'Neill is regularly engaged in the valuation of financial services companies and their securities in connection with mergers and acquisitions and other corporate transactions.

Sandler O'Neill acted as financial advisor to the MCC Special Committee in connection with the proposed MCC Merger and participated in certain of the negotiations leading to the execution of the MCC Merger Agreement. At the August 9, 2018 telephonic meeting of the MCC Special Committee, at which the MCC Special Committee considered the MCC Merger Agreement and the MCC Merger, Sandler O'Neill delivered to the MCC Special Committee its oral opinion, which was subsequently confirmed in writing on August 9, 2018, to the effect that, as of such date, the MCC Merger Consideration was fair to the holders of MCC Common Stock (other than Sierra, MDLY and their respective affiliates) from a financial point of view. The full text of Sandler O'Neill's opinion is attached as Appendix D to this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus. The opinion outlines the procedures followed, assumptions made, matters considered and qualifications and limitations on the review undertaken by Sandler O'Neill in rendering its opinion. The description of the opinion set forth below is qualified in its entirety by reference to the full text of the opinion. MCC Stockholders are urged to read the entire opinion carefully in connection with their consideration of the proposed Merger.

Sandler O’Neill’s opinion speaks only as of the date of the opinion. The opinion was directed to the MCC Special Committee (in its capacity as such) in connection with its consideration of the MCC Merger Agreement and the MCC Merger and does not constitute a recommendation to any MCC Stockholder as to how any such stockholder should vote at any meeting of stockholders called to consider and vote upon the approval of the MCC Merger Agreement and the MCC Merger. Sandler O’Neill’s opinion was directed only to the fairness, from a financial point of view, of the MCC Merger Consideration to the holders of MCC Common Stock (other than Sierra, MDLY and their respective affiliates) and did not address the underlying business decision of MCC to engage in the MCC Merger, the form or structure of the Mergers or any other transactions contemplated in the MCC Merger Agreement or the MDLY Merger Agreement, the relative merits of the Mergers as compared to any other alternative transactions or business strategies that might exist for MCC or the effect of any other transaction in which MCC might engage. Sandler O’Neill also did not express any opinion as to the fairness of the amount or nature of compensation to be received in the MCC Merger by any officer, director, or employee of MCC or Sierra, or any class of such persons, if any, relative to the compensation to be received in the MCC Merger by any other stockholder. Sandler O’Neill further expressed no opinion as to the fairness of the consideration to be paid by Sierra in connection with the MDLY Merger (including, without limitation, the relative fairness of such consideration and the MCC Merger Consideration) or any term or aspect of the Combined Company Investment Advisory Agreement to be entered into by Sierra, which is to be effective as of the effective time of the MCC Merger. Sandler O’Neill’s opinion was approved by Sandler O’Neill’s fairness opinion committee.

In connection with its opinion, Sandler O’Neill reviewed and considered, among other things:

- the MCC Merger Agreement and the MDLY Merger Agreement;
- certain publicly available financial statements and other historical financial information of MCC, Sierra and MDLY that Sandler O’Neill deemed relevant;
- certain financial projections for MCC, Sierra and MDLY for the calendar years 2018 and 2019 and estimated NAVs of MCC and Sierra, all as provided by the senior management of MDLY (which is the parent of the investment advisers that externally manage and advise MCC and Sierra);
- the pro forma financial impact of the Mergers on Sierra and also with respect to certain financial metrics of MCC, based on certain assumptions relating to cost savings, purchase accounting adjustments, transaction expenses and tax benefits, as provided by the senior management of MDLY;
- the publicly reported historical price and trading activity for MCC Common Stock;
- a comparison of certain financial information for MCC and Sierra with similar companies for which information was publicly available;
- the financial terms of certain recent business combinations in the BDC industry, to the extent publicly available;
- the current market environment generally and the BDC industry environment in particular; and
- such other information, financial studies, analyses and investigations and financial, economic and market criteria as Sandler O’Neill considered relevant.

Sandler O’Neill also discussed with certain members of the senior management of MDLY and its representatives the respective businesses, financial condition, results of operations and prospects of MCC, Sierra and MDLY.

In performing its review, Sandler O'Neill relied upon the accuracy and completeness of all of the financial and other information that was available to and reviewed by Sandler O'Neill from public sources, that was provided to Sandler O'Neill by MCC, Sierra, MDLY or their respective representatives or that was otherwise reviewed by Sandler O'Neill, and Sandler O'Neill assumed such accuracy and completeness for purposes of rendering its opinion without any independent verification or investigation. Sandler O'Neill further relied on the assurances of the senior management of MDLY that it was not aware of any facts or circumstances that would have made any of such information inaccurate or misleading. Sandler O'Neill was not asked to undertake, and did not undertake, an independent verification of any of such information and Sandler O'Neill did not assume any responsibility or liability for the accuracy or completeness of such information. Sandler O'Neill did not make an independent evaluation or perform an appraisal of the specific assets, the collateral securing assets or the liabilities (contingent or otherwise) of MCC, Sierra, MDLY or any of their respective subsidiaries, nor was Sandler O'Neill furnished with any such evaluations or appraisals. Sandler O'Neill rendered no opinion or evaluation on the collectability of any assets or the future performance of any loans or other investments of MCC or Sierra. Sandler O'Neill did not review any individual credit files relating to MCC or Sierra.

In preparing its analyses, Sandler O'Neill used certain financial projections for MCC, Sierra and MDLY for the calendar years 2018 and 2019 and estimated NAVs of MCC and Sierra, all as provided by the senior management of MDLY. Sandler O'Neill also received and used in its pro forma analyses certain assumptions relating to cost savings, purchase accounting adjustments, transaction expenses and tax benefits, as provided by the senior management of MDLY. With respect to the foregoing information, the senior management of MDLY confirmed to Sandler O'Neill that such information reflected the best currently available estimates and judgments of such senior management as to the future financial performance of MCC, Sierra and MDLY and the other matters covered thereby. Sandler O'Neill assumed that the future financial performance reflected in all of the foregoing information used by Sandler O'Neill would be achieved, and Sandler O'Neill expressed no opinion as to such information, or the assumptions on which such information was based. Sandler O'Neill also assumed that there was no material change in the respective assets, financial condition, results of operations, businesses or prospects of MCC, Sierra or MDLY since the date of the most recent financial statements made available to Sandler O'Neill. Sandler O'Neill assumed in all respects material to its analyses that MCC, Sierra and MDLY would remain as going concerns for all periods relevant to its analyses.

Sandler O'Neill also assumed, with the MCC Special Committee's consent, that (i) each of the parties to the MCC Merger Agreement and the MDLY Merger Agreement would comply in all material respects with all material terms and conditions of the MCC Merger Agreement and the MDLY Merger Agreement and all related agreements, that all of the representations and warranties contained in such agreements were true and correct in all material respects, that each of the parties to such agreements would perform in all material respects all of the covenants and other obligations required to be performed by such party under such agreements and that the conditions precedent in such agreements were not and would not be waived, (ii) in the course of obtaining the necessary regulatory or third party approvals, consents and releases with respect to the Mergers, no delay, limitation, restriction or condition would be imposed that would have an adverse effect on MCC, Sierra or the benefits contemplated by the Mergers or any related transaction, (iii) the Mergers and any related transactions (including, without limitation, the conversion by MDLY of all of the outstanding units of its subsidiary Medley LLC not already owned by MDLY, the termination by MDLY of its existing tax receivables agreement and the final dividend to be paid by MCC pursuant to the MCC Merger Agreement) would be consummated in accordance with the terms of the MCC Merger Agreement and the MDLY Merger Agreement without any waiver, modification or amendment of any material term, condition or agreement thereof and in compliance with all applicable laws and other requirements, and (iv) the Mergers would qualify as a tax-free reorganization for U.S. federal income tax purposes. Finally, with the MCC Special Committee's consent, Sandler O'Neill relied upon the advice that MCC received from its legal, accounting and tax advisors as to all legal, accounting and tax matters relating to the Mergers and the other transactions contemplated by the MCC Merger Agreement and the MDLY Merger Agreement. Sandler O'Neill expressed no opinion as to any such matters.

Sandler O'Neill's opinion was necessarily based on financial, economic, market and other conditions as in effect on, and the information made available to Sandler O'Neill as of, the date of its opinion. Events occurring after the date of Sandler O'Neill's opinion could materially affect the opinion. Sandler O'Neill has not undertaken to update, revise, reaffirm or withdraw its opinion or otherwise comment upon events occurring after the date of its opinion. Sandler O'Neill expressed no opinion as to the trading values of MCC Common Stock or Sierra Common Stock at any time or what the value of Sierra Common Stock would be once it is actually received by the holders of MCC Common Stock.

In rendering its opinion, Sandler O’Neill performed a variety of financial analyses. The summary below is not a complete description of all the analyses underlying Sandler O’Neill’s opinion or the presentation made by Sandler O’Neill to the MCC Special Committee, but is a summary of the material analyses performed and presented by Sandler O’Neill. The summary includes information presented in tabular format. In order to fully understand the financial analyses, these tables must be read together with the accompanying text. The tables alone do not constitute a complete description of the financial analyses. The preparation of a fairness opinion is a complex process involving subjective judgments as to the most appropriate and relevant methods of financial analysis and the application of those methods to the particular circumstances. The process, therefore, is not necessarily susceptible to a partial analysis or summary description. Sandler O’Neill believes that its analyses must be considered as a whole and that selecting portions of the factors and analyses to be considered without considering all factors and analyses, or attempting to ascribe relative weights to some or all such factors and analyses, could create an incomplete view of the evaluation process underlying its opinion. Also, no company included in Sandler O’Neill’s comparative analyses described below is identical to MCC or Sierra and no transaction is identical to the MCC Merger. Accordingly, an analysis of comparable companies or transactions involves complex considerations and judgments concerning differences in financial and operating characteristics of the companies and other factors that could affect the public trading values or merger transaction values, as the case may be, of MCC and Sierra and the companies to which they were compared. In arriving at its opinion, Sandler O’Neill did not attribute any particular weight to any analysis or factor that it considered. Rather, Sandler O’Neill made qualitative judgments as to the significance and relevance of each analysis and factor. Sandler O’Neill did not form an opinion as to whether any individual analysis or factor (positive or negative) considered in isolation supported or failed to support its opinion, rather, Sandler O’Neill made its determination as to the fairness of the MCC Merger Consideration to the holders of MCC Common Stock (other than Sierra, MDLY, and their respective affiliates) on the basis of its experience and professional judgment after considering the results of all its analyses taken as a whole.

In performing its analyses, Sandler O’Neill also made numerous assumptions with respect to industry performance, business and economic conditions and various other matters, many of which cannot be predicted and are beyond the control of MCC, Sierra, MDLY and Sandler O’Neill. The analyses performed by Sandler O’Neill are not necessarily indicative of actual values or future results, both of which may be significantly more or less favorable than suggested by such analyses. Sandler O’Neill prepared its analyses solely for purposes of rendering its opinion and provided such analyses to the MCC Special Committee at its August 9, 2018 meeting. Estimates of the values of companies do not purport to be appraisals or necessarily reflect the prices at which companies or their securities may actually be sold. Such estimates are inherently subject to uncertainty and actual values may be materially different. Accordingly, Sandler O’Neill’s analyses do not necessarily reflect the value of MCC Common Stock or Sierra Common Stock or the prices at which MCC Common Stock or Sierra Common Stock may be sold at any time. The analyses of Sandler O’Neill and its opinion were among a number of factors taken into consideration by the MCC Special Committee in making its determination to approve of MCC’s entry into the MCC Merger Agreement and the analyses described below should not be viewed as determinative of the decision of the MCC Special Committee, the MCC Board or MCC’s management with respect to the fairness of the MCC Merger.

In arriving at its opinion Sandler O’Neill did not attribute any particular weight to any analysis or factor that it considered. Rather it made qualitative judgments as to the significance and relevance of each analysis and factor. Sandler O’Neill did not form an opinion as to whether any individual analysis or factor (positive or negative) considered in isolation supported or failed to support its opinions; rather, Sandler O’Neill made its determination as to the fairness of the MCC Merger Consideration on the basis of its experience and professional judgment after considering the results of all its analyses taken as a whole.

Implied MCC Transaction Multiples

Sandler O’Neill calculated per share implied transaction prices and corresponding aggregate implied transaction values, as set forth in the table below, based on the 0.805x exchange ratio in the MCC Merger and applying various illustrative Sierra stock price-to-NAV per share multiples ranging from 0.50x to 1.30x to the pro forma NAV per share as of June 30, 2018 of the Combined Company using the reported standalone NAVs per share as of June 30, 2018 of MCC and Sierra. Sandler O’Neill then calculated the following implied transaction metrics using historical financial information as of or for the last 12 months (“LTM”) ended June 30, 2018, certain financial projections for MCC for the calendar years 2018 and 2019 provided by MDLY management and the closing price of MCC Common Stock on August 8, 2018:

Precedent Transactions Analysis

Sandler O’Neill reviewed the following seven selected mergers and acquisitions involving BDCs announced between August 3, 2009 and July 23, 2018:

Buyer/Target

- FS Investment Corporation / Corporate Capital Trust Inc.
- Benefit Street Partners LLC / Triangle Capital Corporation
- CION Investment Corp. / Credit Suisse Park View BDC, Inc.
- Ares Capital Corporation / American Capital, LTD
- PennantPark Floating Rate Capital / MCG Capital Corporation
- Ares Capital Corporation / Allied Capital Corporation
- Prospect Capital Corporation / Patriot Capital Funding

Using the latest publicly available information prior to the announcement of the relevant transaction, Sandler O’Neill reviewed the following transaction metrics: transaction price to NAV, transaction price to year-to-date (“YTD”) net investment income (annualized) and 1-day market premium. As illustrated in the following table, Sandler O’Neill compared the indicated transaction metrics for the Merger to the high, median, mean and low metrics of the selected transactions:

	Selected Transactions High	Selected Transactions Median	Selected Transactions Mean	Selected Transactions Low
Transaction price/NAV	1.00x	0.86x	0.79x	0.52x
Transaction price/YTD net investment income (annualized)	14.44x	11.32x	10.28x	4.29x
1-Day market premium	105.20%	15.80%	32.22%	1.70%

Sandler O'Neill then derived the following implied values per share of MCC Common Stock by applying the above high, median, mean and low metrics of the selected transactions to MCC's reported standalone NAV per share as of June 30, 2018, year-to-date net investment income (annualized) as of June 30, 2018 and closing stock price on August 8, 2018:

	Implied Values Per Share of MCC Common Stock Based on:
	Selected Transactions High	Selected Transactions Median	Selected Transactions Mean	Selected Transactions Low
Transaction price/NAV	$ 6.42	$ 5.53	$ 5.09	$ 3.34
Transaction price/ YTD net investment income (annualized)	$ 4.03	$ 3.16	$ 2.87	$ 1.20
1-Day market premium	$ 7.00	$ 3.95	$ 4.51	$ 3.47

Pro Forma Merger Analysis

Sandler O'Neill analyzed certain potential pro forma effects of the Mergers. Sandler O'Neill utilized certain financial projections for MCC, Sierra and MDLY for the calendar years 2018 and 2019 and certain assumptions relating to cost savings, purchase accounting adjustments, transaction expenses and tax benefits, all as provided by the senior management of MDLY. The analysis indicated that the Mergers could be accretive to Sierra's 2019 estimated net investment income by approximately 15.7%. This analysis also indicated that, based on Sierra's projected pro forma financial results attributable to a share of MCC Common Stock using the 0.805x exchange ratio in the MCC Merger, the Mergers could be accretive relative to MCC's 2019 estimated net investment income by approximately 29.86% (or 18.52% assuming for informational purposes at the request of the MCC Special Committee that MDLY's projected financial performance in calendar year 2019 remained the same as it was projected to be in calendar year 2018) and dilutive relative to MCC's reported NAV per share as of June 30, 2018 by approximately 8.25%.

In connection with this analysis, Sandler O'Neill considered and discussed with the MCC Special Committee how the analysis would be affected by changes in the underlying assumptions, including the impact of final purchase accounting adjustments determined at the closing of the Merger, and noted that the actual results achieved by the Combined Company may vary from projected results and the variations may be material.

Sandler O'Neill's Relationship

Sandler O'Neill acted as the financial advisor to the MCC Special Committee in connection with the MCC Merger and will receive a fee for such services of $2,250,000, a substantial portion of which fee is contingent upon consummation of the MCC Merger. Sandler O'Neill also received from MCC a $250,000 fee in connection with execution of its engagement letter and a $1,000,000 fee for rendering its opinion, which engagement fee and opinion fee will be credited in full towards the transaction fee becoming payable to Sandler O'Neill upon closing of the MCC Merger. MCC has also agreed to indemnify Sandler O'Neill against certain claims and liabilities arising out of Sandler O'Neill's engagement and to reimburse Sandler O'Neill for certain of its out-of-pocket expenses incurred in connection with Sandler O'Neill's engagement. In connection with its engagement, Sandler O'Neill was not asked to, and did not, solicit indications of interest in a potential transaction with MCC from other parties.

Sandler O'Neill did not provide any other investment banking services to MCC, Sierra or MDLY in the two years preceding the date of its opinion. In the ordinary course of Sandler O'Neill's business as a broker-dealer, Sandler O'Neill may purchase securities from and sell securities to MCC, Sierra, MDLY and their respective affiliates. Sandler O'Neill may also actively trade the equity and debt securities of MCC, MDLY and their respective affiliates for its own account and for the accounts of Sandler O'Neill customers.

Opinion of Financial Advisor to the MDLY Special Committee

The MDLY Special Committee engaged Barclays to act as its independent financial advisor for the purpose of providing financial advisory services to the MDLY Special Committee with respect to certain potential transactions or series or combination of related transactions outside of the ordinary course of business of MDLY, including the MDLY Merger, pursuant to an engagement letter dated July 13, 2018. On August 9, 2018, Barclays rendered its oral opinion (which was subsequently confirmed in writing) to the MDLY Special Committee that, as of such date and based upon and subject to the qualifications, limitations and assumptions stated in its opinion, the Consideration to be offered to the MDLY Public Stockholders for their MDLY Class A Common Stock in the proposed MDLY Merger is fair, from a financial point of view, to such MDLY Public Stockholders.

The full text of Barclays' written opinion, dated as of August 9, 2018, is attached to this proxy statement as Appendix E. Barclays' written opinion sets forth, among other things, the assumptions made, procedures followed, factors considered and limitations upon the review undertaken by Barclays in rendering its opinion. You are encouraged to read the opinion carefully in its entirety. The following is a summary of Barclays' opinion and the methodology that Barclays used to render its opinion. This summary is qualified in its entirety by reference to the full text of the opinion.

Barclays' opinion, the issuance of which was approved by Barclays' Fairness Opinion Committee, is addressed to the MDLY Special Committee, addresses only the fairness, from a financial point of view, of the Consideration to be offered to the MDLY Public Stockholders for their MDLY Class A Common Stock in the proposed MDLY Merger and does not constitute a recommendation to any MDLY Public Stockholder or any other person as to how such MDLY Public Stockholder or other person should vote or act with respect to the proposed MDLY Merger, the proposed MCC Merger or any other matter. The terms of the proposed MDLY Merger and the proposed MCC Merger were determined through arm's-length negotiations among Management, the MDLY Special Committee, the Sierra Special Committee and the MCC Special Committee and, upon the recommendation of the MDLY Special Committee, the proposed MDLY Merger was unanimously approved by the MDLY Board. Barclays did not recommend any specific form or amount of consideration to MDLY, the MDLY Special Committee or the MDLY Board or that any specific form or amount of consideration constituted the only appropriate consideration for the proposed MDLY Merger or the proposed MCC Merger. Barclays was not requested to opine as to, and its opinion does not in any manner address, MDLY's underlying business decision to proceed with or effect the proposed MDLY Merger, the likelihood of the consummation of the proposed MDLY Merger or the proposed MCC Merger, or the relative merits of the proposed MDLY Merger as compared to any other transaction in which MDLY may engage. In addition, Barclays expressed no opinion on, and its opinion does not in any manner address, the fairness of the amount or the nature of any compensation to any officers, directors or employees of any parties to the proposed MDLY Merger or the proposed MCC Merger, or any class of such persons, relative to the Consideration to be offered to the MDLY Public Stockholders for their MDLY Class A Common Stock in the proposed MDLY Merger. No limitations were imposed by MDLY, the MDLY Board or the MDLY Special Committee upon Barclays with respect to the investigations made or procedures followed by it in rendering its opinion.

In arriving at its opinion, Barclays, among other things:

- reviewed and analyzed the draft MDLY Merger Agreement and the draft MCC Merger Agreement and the specific terms of the proposed MDLY Merger and MCC Merger;
- reviewed and analyzed publicly available information concerning MDLY that Barclays believed to be relevant to its analysis, including MDLY's Annual Report on Form 10-K for the fiscal year ended December 31, 2017 and Quarterly Reports on Form 10-Q for the fiscal quarters ended March 31, 2018 and June 30, 2018;
- reviewed and analyzed financial and operating information with respect to the business, operations and prospects of MDLY furnished to Barclays by MDLY, including financial projections of MDLY prepared by Management (the "MDLY Projections") (See "— Unaudited Prospective Financial Information — MDLY Projections");
- reviewed and analyzed financial and operating information with respect to the business, operations and prospects of MCC and Sierra furnished to Barclays by Management, including financial projections of each of MCC and Sierra prepared by Management as investment advisor and manager of MCC and Sierra, respectively (the "MCC and Sierra Standalone Projections") (See "— Unaudited Prospective Financial Information — MCC Projections" and "— Unaudited Prospective Financial Information — Sierra Projections");

- reviewed and analyzed pro forma financial projections for the Combined Company, including cost savings, operating synergies and other strategic benefits prepared by Management (the “Combined Company Projections”);
- reviewed and analyzed a trading history of MDLY Class A Common Stock from September 24, 2014 through August 8, 2018 and a trading history of MCC Common Stock from September 24, 2014 to August 8, 2018;
- reviewed and analyzed a comparison of the historical dividend performance of MDLY with those of MCC and Sierra;
- reviewed and analyzed a comparison of the historical financial results and present and projected financial condition of MDLY with those of other asset management companies that Barclays deemed relevant;
- reviewed and analyzed a comparison of the financial terms of the proposed MDLY Merger with the financial terms of certain other transactions involving asset management companies that Barclays deemed relevant;
- reviewed and analyzed a comparison of the pro forma market position of the Combined Company following the proposed MDLY Merger and the proposed MCC Merger with those of other BDCs that Barclays deemed relevant;
- reviewed and analyzed published estimates of independent research analysts with respect to the future financial performance and price targets of MDLY;
- reviewed and analyzed information provided by MDLY and its advisors with respect to the results of previous efforts of MDLY and its advisors to solicit indications of interest from third parties with respect to a sale of MDLY;
- reviewed and analyzed the Sierra Investment Advisory Agreement;
- reviewed and analyzed the MCC Investment Management Agreement;
- had discussions with Management, including in its capacity as investment advisor and manager of MCC and Sierra, respectively, concerning the business, operations, assets, financial condition and prospects of each of MDLY, MCC, Sierra and the Combined Company; and
- undertook such other studies, analyses and investigations as Barclays deemed appropriate.

In arriving at its opinion, Barclays assumed and relied upon the accuracy and completeness of the financial and other information used by Barclays without any independent verification of such information (and had not assumed responsibility or liability for any independent verification of such information). Barclays also relied upon the assurances of Management that they were not aware of any facts or circumstances that would make such information inaccurate or misleading. With respect to the MDLY Projections and the Combined Company Projections, upon advice of Management, Barclays assumed that such projections were reasonably prepared on a basis reflecting the best currently available estimates and judgments of Management as to MDLY's future financial performance on a standalone basis and the Combined Company's future financial performance on a pro forma basis, including as to the amount and timing of synergies to be realized, and that each of MDLY and the Combined Company after giving effect to the MDLY Merger and the MCC Merger would perform substantially in accordance with such projections. With respect to the MCC and Sierra Standalone Projections, upon advice of Management, Barclays assumed that such projections were reasonably prepared on a basis reflecting the best currently available estimates and judgments of Management and management of its subsidiary that is the investment advisor and manager of MCC and Sierra, respectively, as to each of MCC and Sierra's future financial performance and that each of MCC and Sierra would perform substantially in accordance with such projections. Pursuant to the MDLY Special Committee's instructions, Barclays relied upon and utilized the MDLY Projections, the MCC and Sierra Standalone Projections and the Combined Company Projections in connection with its analysis and its opinion. In arriving at its opinion, Barclays assumed no responsibility for and expressed no view as to any such projections or estimates or the assumptions on which they were based. In arriving at its opinion, Barclays did not conduct a physical inspection of the properties and facilities of MDLY and did not make or obtain any evaluations or appraisals of the assets or liabilities of MDLY. In addition, Barclays was not authorized by the MDLY Special Committee to solicit, and did not solicit, any indications of interest from any third party with respect to the purchase of all or a part of MDLY's business. Barclays' opinion was necessarily based upon market, economic and other conditions as they existed on, and could be evaluated as of, August 9, 2018. Barclays assumed no responsibility for updating or revising its opinion based on events or circumstances that may have occurred after August 9, 2018 or that may occur after the date of this proxy statement. Barclays expressed no opinion as to the prices at which the MDLY Class A Common Stock would trade following the announcement of the proposed MDLY Merger and MCC Merger or prices at which the Sierra Common Stock would trade following consummation of the proposed MDLY Merger or the proposed MCC Merger. Barclays' opinion should not be viewed as providing any assurance that the market value of the Sierra Common Stock to be held by the MDLY Public Stockholders after the consummation of the proposed MDLY Merger and the proposed MCC Merger will be in excess of the market value of MDLY Class A Common Stock owned by such MDLY Public Stockholders at any time prior to the announcement or consummation of the proposed MCC Merger or the proposed MDLY Merger.

Barclays assumed that the executed MDLY Merger Agreement would conform in all material respects to the last draft reviewed by Barclays. Additionally, Barclays assumed the accuracy of the representations and warranties contained in the proposed MDLY Merger Agreement and all the agreements related thereto. Barclays did not express any opinion as to any tax or other consequences that might result from the proposed MCC Merger or MDLY Merger, nor did Barclays' opinion address any legal, tax, regulatory or accounting matters, as to which Barclays understood MDLY had obtained such advice as it deemed necessary from qualified professionals.

In connection with rendering its opinion, Barclays performed certain financial, comparative and other analyses as summarized below. In arriving at its opinion, Barclays did not ascribe a specific range of values to the MDLY Class A Common Stock or the Sierra Common Stock but rather made its determination as to fairness, from a financial point of view, to the MDLY Public Stockholders of the Consideration to be offered to the MDLY Public Stockholders for their MDLY Class A Common Stock in the proposed MDLY Merger on the basis of various financial and comparative analyses. The preparation of a fairness opinion is a complex process and involves various determinations as to the most appropriate and relevant methods of financial and comparative analyses and the application of those methods to the particular circumstances. Therefore, a fairness opinion is not readily susceptible to summary description.

In arriving at its opinion, Barclays did not attribute any particular weight to any single analysis or factor considered by it but rather made qualitative judgments as to the significance and relevance of each analysis and factor relative to all other analyses and factors performed and considered by it and in the context of the circumstances of the particular transaction. Accordingly, Barclays believes that its analyses must be considered as a whole, as considering any portion of such analyses and factors, without considering all analyses and factors as a whole, could create a misleading or incomplete view of the process underlying its opinion.

Summary of Material Financial Analyses

The following is a summary of the material financial analyses performed by Barclays with respect to the MDLY Class A Common Stock and the Sierra Common Stock in preparing its opinion to the MDLY Special Committee:

- comparable company analysis;
- comparable transaction analysis; and
- discounted cash flow analysis.

Each of these methodologies was used to generate reference per share equity value ranges for the MDLY Class A Common Stock and the Sierra Common Stock. In order to derive implied per share values in the MDLY selected comparable company analysis and the MDLY selected precedent transactions analysis, the implied equity value range for MDLY Class A Common Stock was calculated by subtracting net debt, as provided by Management, from the enterprise value of MDLY and was then divided by the number of fully diluted shares of MDLY Class A Common Stock estimated to be outstanding by Management. For purposes of the MDLY calculations, the number of MDLY Class A Common Stock estimated to be outstanding at June 30, 2018, per the MDLY Projections, was used to derive implied per share equity values.

In order to derive implied per share equity values in the Combined Company selected comparable company analysis and the Combined Company selected precedent transactions analysis, Barclays utilized a total NAV of the Combined Company of $1,122 million, per the Combined Company Projections, which was divided by the number of fully diluted Sierra Common Stock estimated to be outstanding at the effective time of the completion of the MDLY Merger and the MCC Merger of approximately 153.124 million shares per Management. In performing its analyses of the Combined Company's ranges of implied per share equity value, Barclays used a price to NAV multiple analysis because BDCs like the Combined Company frequently trade based on a multiple of NAV. Based on the selected comparable company analysis, the selected precedent transaction analysis and the discounted cash flows analysis performed by Barclays with respect to the Combined Company and the exercise of Barclays' professional judgment, Barclays utilized an implied range of price to NAV multiples of 0.8x to 1.0x in order to derive implied equity values for the Sierra Common Stock to be offered to MDLY Public Stockholders for their shares of MDLY Class A Common Stock, which was used to assess whether the implied value of the Consideration to be offered to the MDLY Public Stockholders for their MDLY Class A Common Stock in the proposed MDLY Merger was within the reference per share equity value ranges of MDLY Class A Common Stock derived.

In addition to analyzing the value of the MDLY Class A Common Stock and the Sierra Common Stock, to provide additional background and perspective to the MDLY Special Committee, Barclays also analyzed and reviewed the following with respect to the MDLY Class A Common Stock: (i) the daily historical closing prices of MDLY Class A Common Stock; (ii) certain publicly available information related to selected asset management merger transactions to calculate the size of premiums paid by the acquirers to the acquired company's stockholders; and (iii) certain publicly available research analyst estimates.

In particular, in applying the various valuation methodologies to the particular businesses, operations and prospects of MDLY and the Combined Company, and the particular circumstances of the proposed MDLY Merger and the proposed MCC Merger, Barclays made qualitative judgments as to the significance and relevance of each analysis and numerous assumptions with respect to industry performance, general business and economic conditions and other matters, many of which are beyond the control of MDLY. Such qualitative judgments and assumptions of Barclays were made following discussions with Management. Accordingly, the methodologies and the implied common equity value ranges must be considered as a whole and in the context of the narrative description of the financial analyses, including the assumptions underlying these analyses. Considering the implied common equity value ranges without considering the full narrative description of the financial analyses, including the assumptions underlying these analyses, could create a misleading or incomplete view of the process underlying, and conclusions represented by, Barclays' opinion.

The summary of Barclays' analyses and reviews provided below is not a complete description of the analyses and reviews underlying Barclays' opinion. The preparation of a fairness opinion is a complex process involving various determinations as to the most appropriate and relevant methods of analysis and review and the application of those methods to particular circumstances, and, therefore, is not readily susceptible to summary description.

For the purposes of its analyses and reviews, Barclays made numerous assumptions with respect to industry performance, general business, economic, market and financial conditions and other matters, many of which are beyond the control of MDLY or any other parties to the proposed transaction. No company, business or transaction considered in Barclays' analyses and reviews is identical to MDLY, the Combined Company, the proposed MDLY Merger or the proposed MCC Merger, and an evaluation of the results of those analyses and reviews is not entirely mathematical. Rather, the analyses and reviews involve complex considerations and judgments concerning financial and operating characteristics and other factors that could affect the acquisition, public trading or other values of the companies, businesses or transactions considered in Barclays' analyses and reviews. None of MDLY, Sierra, MCC, the Combined Company, Barclays or any other person assumes responsibility if future results are materially different from those discussed. Any estimates contained in these analyses and reviews and the ranges of valuations resulting from any particular analysis or review are not necessarily indicative of actual values or predictive of future results or values, which may be significantly more or less favorable than as set forth below. In addition, analyses relating to the value of companies, businesses or securities do not purport to be appraisals or reflect the prices at which the companies, businesses or securities may actually be sold. Accordingly, the estimates used in, and the results derived from, Barclays' analyses and reviews are inherently subject to substantial uncertainty.

The summary of the financial analyses and reviews summarized below include information presented in tabular format. In order to fully understand the financial analyses and reviews used by Barclays, the tables must be read together with the text of each summary, as the tables alone do not constitute a complete description of the financial analyses and reviews. Considering the data in the tables below without considering the full description of the analyses and reviews, including the methodologies and assumptions underlying the analyses and reviews, could create a misleading or incomplete view of Barclays' analyses and reviews.

Selected Comparable Company Analysis

Standalone MDLY. In order to assess how the public market values shares of similar publicly traded asset management companies and to provide a range of relative implied equity values per share of MDLY Class A Common Stock by reference to those companies, Barclays reviewed and compared specific financial and operating data relating to MDLY with selected companies that Barclays, based on its experience in the asset management industry, deemed comparable to MDLY. The selected comparable traditional and alternative asset management companies with respect to MDLY were:

Traditional Asset Managers:

- Artisan Partners Asset Management Inc.
- BrightSphere Investment Group PLC
- Cohen & Steers, Inc.
- Federated Investors, Inc.
- Manning and Napier Inc.
- Pzena Investment Management, Inc.
- Victory Capital Holdings, Inc.
- Virtus Investment Partners, Inc.
- Waddell & Reed Financing, Inc.

Alternative Asset Managers:

- Ares Management L.P.
- Oaktree Capital Group LLC

Barclays calculated and compared various financial multiples and ratios of MDLY and the selected comparable companies. As part of its selected comparable company analysis, Barclays calculated and analyzed each company's ratio of its then-current stock price to its 2018 and 2019 estimated earnings per share ("EPS") (commonly referred to as a price to earnings ratio, or "P/E"), and the ratio of each company's enterprise value ("EV") to its 2018 and 2019 estimated earnings before interest, taxes, depreciation and amortization ("EBITDA"). The EV of each company was obtained by adding its long-term debt to the sum of the market value of its common equity and the book value of any minority interest, and subtracting its cash and cash equivalents. With respect to the alternative asset management companies included in Barclays' selected comparable companies analysis, Barclays did not perform an analysis of such alternative asset management companies' EV/EBITDA ratios but rather focused its analysis on the multiples it deemed most relevant based on its experience in the asset management industry. All of these calculations were performed excluding one-time and extraordinary expenses and were based on the MDLY Projections, in the case of MDLY, and publicly available financial data, in the case of each other company, in each case as of the end of each company's most recently completed fiscal quarter prior to the delivery of Barclays' opinion and closing stock prices as of August 8, 2018, the last full trading date prior to the delivery of Barclays' opinion. All multiples were calculated based on a calendarized year. The results of this selected comparable company analysis are summarized below:

Barclays selected the comparable companies listed above because their businesses and operating profiles are reasonably similar to that of MDLY. However, because of the inherent differences between the business, operations and prospects of MDLY and those of the selected comparable companies, Barclays believed that it was inappropriate to, and therefore did not, rely solely on the quantitative results of the selected comparable company analysis. Accordingly, Barclays also made qualitative judgments concerning differences between the business, financial and operating characteristics and prospects of MDLY and the selected comparable companies that could affect the public trading values of each in order to provide a context in which to consider the results of the quantitative analysis. These qualitative judgments related primarily to the differing sizes, growth prospects, profitability levels and degree of operational risk between MDLY and the companies included in the selected company analysis. Based upon the selected comparable companies analysis and these judgments, Barclays applied multiple ranges of 10.0x to 12.0x to MDLY's estimated EPS for the year ended December 31, 2018; 8.0x to 10.0x to MDLY's estimated EPS for the year ended December 31, 2019; 6.0x to 8.0x to MDLY's estimated EBITDA for the year ended December 31, 2018; and 5.5x to 7.5x to MDLY's estimated EBITDA for the year ended December 31, 2019 and applied such ranges to the management projections to calculate a range of implied equity values per share of MDLY. The following summarizes the result of these calculations:

	Multiple Range	Indicative Equity Values Per Share of MDLY Class A Common Stock
P / 2018E E	10.0x - 12.0x	$3.93 - $4.72
P / 2019E E	8.0x - 10.0x	$5.88 - $7.35

Pro Forma Combined Company. In order to assess how the public market values shares of similar BDCs to the Combined Company that are publicly traded and to provide a range of relative implied equity values per share of the Combined Company by reference to those companies, Barclays reviewed and compared per share stock price as a multiple of NAV of selected internally and externally managed BDCs with assets greater than $800 million that Barclays, based on its experience in the BDC industry, deemed comparable to the pro forma Combined Company. The selected comparable internally and externally managed BDCs with respect to the Combined Company were:

Internally Managed BDCs:

- Hercules Capital Inc.
- Main Street Capital Corporation
- Triangle Capital Corporation

Externally Managed BDCs:

- New Mountain Finance Corporation
- PennantPark Floating Rate Capital Ltd.
- PennantPark Investment Corporation
- Prospect Capital Corporation
- Solar Capital Ltd.
- TCG BDC, Inc.
- TCP Capital Corporation

Barclays calculated and compared per share stock price as a multiple of NAV of the selected comparable companies. All of these calculations were based on publicly available financial data, relevant company filings as of the end of each company's most recently completed fiscal quarter prior to the delivery of Barclays' opinion and closing stock prices as of August 8, 2018, the last trading date prior to the delivery of Barclays' opinion, except in the case of Triangle Capital Corporation, where the closing stock price of August 2, 2018 was used to reflect the valuation prior to the closing of externalization transaction with Barings LLC, which was announced after market close on August 2, 2018. The results of this selected comparable company analysis are summarized below:

Barclays selected the comparable companies listed above because their businesses and operating profiles are reasonably similar to that of the Combined Company. However, because of the inherent differences between the business, operations and prospects of the Combined Company and those of the selected comparable companies, Barclays believed that it was inappropriate to, and therefore did not, rely solely on the quantitative results of the selected comparable company analysis. Accordingly, Barclays also made qualitative judgments concerning differences between the business, financial and operating characteristics and prospects of the Combined Company and the selected comparable companies that could affect the public trading values of each in order to provide a context in which to consider the results of the quantitative analysis. These qualitative judgments related primarily to the differing sizes, growth prospects, profitability levels and degree of operational risk between the Combined Company and the companies included in the selected company analysis. Based upon the selected comparable companies analysis and these judgments, Barclays applied multiple ranges of 1.10x to 1.30x and 0.85x to 0.95x to the Combined Company's estimated NAV, per the Combined Company Projections, to calculate ranges of implied equity values per share of the Combined Company. The following summarizes the result of these calculations:

	NAV	Multiple Range	Indicative Equity Values Per Sierra Common Stock
Price / NAV
Internally Managed BDCs	$1,122	1.10x - 1.30x	$8.06 - $9.53
Externally Managed BDCs	$1,122	0.85x - 0.95x	$6.23 - $6.96

Barclays noted that the implied range of the Consideration of $6.34 to $6.90 to be offered to the MDLY Public Stockholders for each of their shares of MDLY Class A Common Stock in the proposed MDLY Merger, consisting of $4.09 (including the First Special Dividend and the Second Special Dividend) and 0.3836 shares of Sierra Common Stock (utilizing an implied range of price to NAV multiples of the Combined Company of 0.8x to 1.0x based on Barclays' selected comparable company analysis, selected precedent transaction analysis and discounted cash flows analysis, each with respect to the Combined Company, as noted above) was within or exceeded the range of implied equity values per share of MDLY Class A Common Stock derived pursuant to the foregoing analyses.

Selected Precedent Transaction Analysis

Standalone MDLY. Barclays reviewed and compared the purchase prices and financial multiples paid in selected precedent asset management transactions that Barclays deemed relevant, based on its experience with merger and acquisition transactions, particularly in the asset management industry. Barclays chose such precedent asset management transactions based on, among other things, the similarity of the applicable target companies in the transactions to MDLY with respect to the size, mix, margins and other characteristics of their businesses.

The following list sets forth the transactions analyzed based on such characteristics:

Target / Acquiror	Announcement Date
• Hermes Investment Management Limited / Federated Investors Inc.	April 2018
• Old Mutual Global Investors / TA Associates Management, L.P.	Dec. 2017
• Cole Capital / CIM Group, L.P.	Nov. 2017
• ETF Securities Ltd. / Wisdomtree Investments, Inc.	Nov. 2017
• Guggenheim Partners, LLC / Invesco Ltd.	Sept. 2017
• PAX World Management / Impax Asset Management Group	Sept. 2017
• Aletti Gestielle SGR / Anima Holding S.p.A.	Aug. 2017
• Aberdeen Asset Management PLC / Standard Life PLC	March 2017
• Calamos Asset Management Inc. management buyout	Dec. 2016
• RidgeWorth Capital Management, Inc. / Virtus Investment Partners, Inc.	Dec. 2016
• Pioneer Investments Management, Inc. / Amundi Asset Management	Dec. 2016
• Janus Capital Group / Henderson Group plc	Oct. 2016
• CIFIC LLC / F.A.B. Partners IL.P.	Aug. 2016

Using publicly available information, Barclays calculated and analyzed multiples of the EV to EBITDA represented by the prices paid in the selected precedent transactions. The results of the selected precedents analysis section are summarized below:

The reasons for and the circumstances surrounding each of the selected precedent asset management transactions analyzed were diverse and there are inherent differences in the business, operations, financial conditions and prospects of MDLY and the companies included in the selected precedent transaction analysis. Accordingly, Barclays believed that a purely quantitative selected precedent transaction analysis would not be particularly meaningful in the context of considering the proposed MDLY Merger. Barclays therefore made qualitative judgments concerning differences between the characteristics of the selected precedent transactions and the proposed transaction which would affect the acquisition values of the selected target companies and MDLY.

Based upon Barclays' selected precedent transaction analysis and these judgments, Barclays selected a range of EV / EBITDA multiples of 9.0x to 12.0x and applied such range to MDLY's 2018 estimated EBITDA, per the MDLY Projections, to calculate a range of implied equity values per share of MDLY Class A Common Stock. Barclays' selected precedent transactions analysis yielded a reference equity value range for shares of MDLY Class A Common Stock of $4.34 to $6.81 per share.

Pro Forma Combined Company. Barclays reviewed and compared the purchase prices and financial multiples paid in selected precedent BDC transactions that Barclays deemed relevant, based on its experience with merger and acquisition transactions, particularly involving BDCs. Barclays chose such precedent BDC transactions based on, among other things, the similarity of the applicable target companies in the transactions to the Combined Company with respect to the size, mix, margins and other characteristics of their businesses.

The following list sets forth the transactions analyzed based on such characteristics:

Target / Acquiror	Announcement Date
● Corporate Capital Trust Inc. / FS Investment Corporation	July 2018
● NF Investment Corporation / TCG BDC, Inc.	May 2017
● Credit Suisse Park View BDC, Inc. / CION Investment Corporation	Sept. 2016
● Full Circle Capital Corporation / Great Elm Capital Group Inc.	June 2016
● American Capital, Ltd. / Ares Capital Corporation	May 2016
● MCG Capital Corporation / PennantPark Floating Rate Capital Ltd.	April 2015
● Allied Capital Corporation / Ares Capital Corporation	Oct. 2009
● Patriot Capital, L.P. / Prospect Capital Corporation	Aug. 2009

Using publicly available information, Barclays calculated and analyzed prices paid in the selected precedent transactions as a multiple of the NAV of each of the selected comparable BDCs. The results of the selected precedents analysis section are summarized below:

($ in millions)

Target / Acquiror	Selected BDC Transactions

The reasons for and the circumstances surrounding each of the selected precedent BDC transactions analyzed were diverse and there are inherent differences in the business, operations, financial conditions and prospects of the pro forma Combined Company and the companies included in the selected precedent transaction analysis. Accordingly, Barclays believed that a purely quantitative selected precedent transaction analysis would not be particularly meaningful in the context of considering the proposed MDLY Merger. Barclays therefore made qualitative judgments concerning differences between the characteristics of the selected precedent transactions and the proposed transaction which would affect the acquisition values of the selected target companies and the Combined Company.

Based upon Barclays' selected precedent transaction analysis and these judgments, Barclays selected a range of price to NAV multiples of 0.80 to 1.0x and applied such range to the Combined Company's NAV, per the Combined Company Projections, to calculate a range of implied equity values per share of Sierra Common Stock. Barclays' selected precedent transactions analysis yielded a reference equity value range for shares of Sierra Common Stock of $5.86 to $7.33 per share.

Barclays noted that the implied range of the Consideration of $6.34 to $6.90 to be offered to the MDLY Public Stockholders for each of their shares of MDLY Class A Common Stock in the proposed MDLY Merger, consisting of $4.09 (including the First Special Dividend and the Second Special Dividend) and 0.3836 shares of Sierra Common Stock (utilizing an implied range of price to NAV multiples of the Combined Company of 0.8x to 1.0x based on Barclays' selected comparable company analysis, selected precedent transaction analysis and discounted cash flows analysis, each with respect to the Combined Company, as noted above) was within or exceeded the range of implied equity values per share of MDLY Class A Common Stock derived pursuant to the foregoing analyses.

Discounted Cash Flow Analysis

Standalone MDLY. In order to estimate the present value of MDLY Class A Common Stock, Barclays performed a discounted cash flow analysis of MDLY. A discounted cash flow analysis is a traditional valuation methodology used to derive an intrinsic valuation of an asset by calculating the "present value" of estimated future cash flows of the asset. "Present value" refers to the current value of future cash flows or amounts and is obtained by discounting those future cash flows or amounts by a range of discount rates that takes into account macroeconomic assumptions and estimates of risk, the opportunity cost of capital, expected returns and other appropriate factors.

To calculate the estimated equity value ranges per share of MDLY Class A Common Stock using the discounted cash flow method, Barclays added (i) MDLY's projected after-tax unlevered free cash flows for fiscal years 2018 through 2021 based on the MDLY Projections to (ii) the "terminal value" of MDLY as of December 31, 2021, and discounted such amount to its present value using mid-year convention and a range of selected discount rates ranging from 13.0% to 15.0%. The after-tax unlevered free cash flows were calculated by taking the EBITDA, subtracting capital expenditures and taxes and adjusting working capital to be equal to 25% to 30% of annual operating expenses, in each case per the MDLY Projections. The residual value of MDLY at the end of the forecast period, or "terminal value," was estimated by selecting a range of terminal value multiples based on EV to EBITDA for the year ending December 31, 2021 of 5.5x to 7.5x, which was derived by analyzing the results from the MDLY selected comparable company analysis and applying such range to the after-tax free cash flows of MDLY. The range of after-tax discount rates of 13.0% to 15.0% was selected based on an analysis of the weighted average cost of capital of MDLY and the selected comparable companies. The range of implied equity values per share of MDLY Class A Common Stock resulting from Barclays' discounted cash flow analysis was $6.17 to $8.94 per share.

Pro Forma Combined Company. In order to estimate the present value of the Sierra Common Stock, Barclays performed a discounted cash flow analysis of the pro forma Combined Company.

To calculate the estimated equity value ranges per share of Sierra Common Stock using the discounted cash flow method, Barclays added (i) the Combined Company's projected net investment income for fiscal years 2019 through 2021, based on the Combined Company Projections, to (ii) the "terminal value" of the Combined Company as of December 31, 2021, and discounted such amount to December 31, 2018 using mid-year convention and a range of selected discount rates ranging from 8.0% to 10.0%. The residual value of the Combined Company at the end of the forecast period, or "terminal value," was estimated by selecting a range of terminal value multiples based price to NAV for the year ending December 31, 2021 of 0.80x to 1.00x, which was derived by analyzing the results from the Consolidated Company selected comparable company analysis and applying such range to the Combined Company Projections. The range of after-tax discount rates of 8.0% to 10.0% was selected based on an analysis of the cost of equity of the Combined Company and the selected comparable companies. The range of implied equity values per share of Sierra Common Stock resulting from Barclays' discounted cash flow analysis was $6.31 to $7.86 per share.

Barclays noted that the implied range of the Consideration of $6.34 to $6.90 to be offered to the MDLY Public Stockholders for each of their shares of MDLY Class A Common Stock in the proposed MDLY Merger, consisting of $4.09 (including the First Special Dividend and the Second Special Dividend) and 0.3836 shares of Sierra Common Stock (utilizing an implied range of price to NAV multiples of the Combined Company of 0.8x to 1.0x based on Barclays' selected comparable company analysis, selected precedent transaction analysis and discounted cash flows analysis, each with respect to the Combined Company, as noted above) was within or exceeded the range of implied equity values per share of MDLY Class A Common Stock derived pursuant to the foregoing analyses.

Other Factors

Barclays also reviewed and considered other factors, which were not considered as part of its financial analyses in connection with rendering its opinion, but were references for informational purposes for the MDLY Special Committee, including, among other things, the Historical Share Price Analysis, Transaction Premium Analysis and Current Analyst Price Targets Analysis described below.

Historical Share Price Analysis

In order to provide background information and perspective with respect to, and to illustrate the trend in the historical trading prices of MDLY Class A Common Stock, Barclays reviewed historical data with regard to the trading prices of MDLY Class A Common Stock. Barclays noted that during the 52-week period preceding the date of Barclays' fairness opinion, the closing price of MDLY Class A Common Stock ranged from $3.10 to $7.15, with the high closing price occurring on December 21, 2017 and the low closing price occurring on June 14, 2018. Barclays also noted that the 90-day volume weighted average price of MDLY Class A Common Stock as of August 8, 2018 was $4.03.

Transaction Premium Analysis

In order to provide background information and perspective with respect to, and to assess the premium offered to the MDLY Public Stockholders in the proposed MDLY Merger relative to the premiums offered to stockholders in other transactions, Barclays reviewed the 1-day and 30-day premia paid in M&A transactions with transaction values between $100 million and $300 million from January 1, 2014 to July 26, 2018 using publicly available information. The data reviewed was broken down by transactions involving all cash consideration, transactions involving all stock consideration and transactions involving a mix of cash and stock consideration. The results of this transaction premium analysis are summarized below:

	Type of Consideration
	All Cash	All Stock	Mixed Cash and Stock
1-Day Premia	14%	20%	16%
30-Day Premia	17%	21%	22%

While this transaction premium analysis was provided to the MDLY Special Committee solely for background information and perspective, as part of its evaluation of the MDLY Merger, the MDLY Special Committee took into account the fact that, as described in "Reasons for the Mergers - MDLY's Reasons for the MDLY Merger - Financial Considerations", the total implied value of the MDLY Merger Consideration (together with the First Special Dividend and the Second Special Dividend) to be received by the unaffiliated MDLY Stockholders in the MDLY Merger represented a premium to market of approximately 100%, assuming a NAV multiple of 1.00x for Sierra, based on the closing share price of $3.45 for Class A Common Stock of MDLY on August 8, 2018 (the last trading day prior to the announcement of the MDLY Merger).

Analysis of Equity Research Analyst Price Targets

Barclays further reviewed and compared, as of June 30, 2018, the publicly available price targets of MDLY Class A Common Stock published by independent equity research analysts associated with two Wall Street firms (Credit Suisse and Compass Point Research) that monitor MDLY Class A Common Stock. The research analysts' price targets per MDLY Class A Common Stock ranged from of $6.00 to $6.25 per share. The publicly available share price targets published by such equity research analysts do not necessarily reflect the current market trading prices for MDLY Class A Common Stock and these estimates are subject to uncertainties, including future financial performance of MDLY and future market conditions.

General

Barclays is an internationally recognized investment banking firm and, as part of its investment banking activities, is regularly engaged in the valuation of businesses and their securities in connection with mergers and acquisitions, investments for passive and control purposes, negotiated underwritings, competitive bids, secondary distributions of listed and unlisted securities, private placements and valuations for estate, corporate and other purposes. The MDLY Special Committee selected Barclays following a review of potential financial advisors, on the basis of its qualifications, reputation and experience in the valuation of businesses and securities in connection with mergers and acquisitions generally, as well as its familiarity with and expertise in the financial services industry.

Barclays is acting as financial advisor to the MDLY Special Committee in connection with the proposed MDLY Merger. As compensation for its services in connection with the proposed MDLY Merger, MDLY paid Barclays a fee of $250,000 upon execution of Barclays' engagement letter with MDLY and $500,000 upon the delivery of Barclays' opinion, which is referred to as the "Opinion Fee". The Opinion Fee was not contingent upon the conclusions represented by Barclays' opinion or the consummation of the MDLY Merger. Upon consummation of the proposed MDLY Merger or certain other transactions or series or combination of related transactions, other than in the ordinary course of business, whereby, directly or indirectly, a material interest in MDLY and/or its wholly-controlled subsidiaries or a material amount of their respective assets are transferred for consideration, additional compensation of $2,000,000 will be payable, against which the amounts paid upon execution of the engagement letter and the Opinion Fee will be credited. In addition, MDLY will reimburse Barclays for certain of its reasonable out-of-pocket expenses incurred in connection with the engagement by the MDLY Special Committee and to indemnify Barclays for certain liabilities that may arise out of its engagement by the MDLY Special Committee and the rendering of Barclays' opinion. Barclays has performed various investment banking services for MDLY, MCC, Sierra and their affiliates in the past, and expects to perform such services in the future, and has received, and expects to receive, customary investment banking fees for such services. Except for fees received in connection with the MDLY Merger, Barclays has not received any investment banking fees from MDLY, Sierra or MCC since January 1, 2015. As described above in "Background of the Mergers," Barclays reviewed its relationships with MDLY, MCC, and Sierra with the MDLY Special Committee on July 10, 2018 and July 18, 2018.

Barclays, its subsidiaries and its affiliates engage in a wide range of businesses from investment and commercial banking, lending, asset management and other financial and non-financial services. In the ordinary course of its business, Barclays and affiliates may actively trade and effect transactions in the equity, debt and/or other securities (and any derivatives thereof) and financial instruments (including loans and other obligations) of MDLY, MCC and Sierra for its own account and for the accounts of its customers and, accordingly, may at any time hold long or short positions and investments in such securities and financial instruments.

Opinion of Financial Advisor to the MDLY Board

On August 9, 2018, at a meeting of the MDLY Board, Goldman Sachs rendered its oral opinion, subsequently confirmed in writing that, as of August 9, 2018 and based upon and subject to the factors and assumptions set forth therein, the aggregate of the MDLY Merger Consideration, the First Special Dividend and the Second Special Dividend, which is referred to as the "Consideration", to be paid to the holders of MDLY Class A Common Stock (other than Sierra, MCC and any of their respective affiliates, the Medley LLC Unitholders, the holders of Medley LLC Restricted Units and the holders of MDLY RSUs) pursuant to the MDLY Merger Agreement, was fair from a financial point of view to such holders.

The full text of the written opinion of Goldman Sachs, dated August 9, 2018, which sets forth assumptions made, procedures followed, matters considered and limitations on the review undertaken in connection with the opinion, is attached as Appendix F. Goldman Sachs provided advisory services and its opinion for the information and assistance of the MDLY Board in connection with its consideration of the MDLY Merger. The Goldman Sachs opinion does not constitute a recommendation as to how any holder of the shares of MDLY Class A Common Stock should vote with respect to the MDLY Merger or any other matter.

In connection with rendering the opinion described above and performing its related financial analyses, Goldman Sachs reviewed, among other things:

- the MDLY Merger Agreement, the MCC Merger Agreement and the Exchange Agreement, collectively, which are referred to as the "Agreements";
- annual reports to stockholders and Annual Reports on Form 10-K of MDLY for the four years ended December 31, 2017, the Registration Statement on Form S-1, including the prospectus contained therein dated September 15, 2014, relating to the initial public offering of the MDLY Class A Common Stock, annual reports to stockholders and Annual Reports on Form 10-K of Sierra for the five years ended December 31, 2017, and annual reports to stockholders and Annual Reports on Form 10-K of MCC for the five fiscal years ended September 30, 2017;
- certain interim reports to stockholders and Quarterly Reports on Form 10-Q of MDLY, Sierra and MCC;

Table of Contents

- certain other communications from MDLY, Sierra and MCC to their respective stockholders;
- certain publicly available research analyst reports for MDLY, Sierra and MCC;
- unaudited financial statements for MDLY for the three month period ended March 31, 2018 and the six month period ended June 30, 2018, unaudited financial statements for Sierra for the three month period ended March 31, 2018 and the six month period ended June 30, 2018, and unaudited financial statements for MCC for the three month period ended March 31, 2018 and the six month period ended June 30, 2018; and
- certain internal financial analyses and forecasts for MDLY, Sierra stand alone and pro forma for consummation of the MDLY Merger and MCC Merger and MCC, in each case prepared by the management of MDLY, which are referred to as the “Forecasts”, and certain operating synergies projected by the management of MDLY to result from the transactions contemplated by the Agreements, which are referred to as the “Synergies”, in each of the foregoing cases, as approved for Goldman Sachs’ use by MDLY.

For information regarding preparation of the Forecasts, see “Unaudited Prospective Financial Information.”

Goldman Sachs also held discussions with members of the senior management of MDLY regarding their assessment of the strategic rationale for, and the potential benefits of, the transactions contemplated by the Agreements and the past and current business operations, financial condition, and future prospects of MDLY, Sierra and MCC; reviewed the reported price and trading activity for MDLY Class A Common Stock and MCC Common Stock; compared certain financial and stock market information for MDLY and MCC and certain financial information for Sierra with similar financial and stock market information for certain other companies the securities of which are publicly traded; reviewed the financial terms of certain recent business combinations in the alternative asset management industry; and performed such other studies and analyses, and considered such other factors, as it deemed appropriate.

For purposes of rendering its opinion, Goldman Sachs, with the consent of MDLY, relied upon and assumed the accuracy and completeness of all of the financial, legal, regulatory, tax, accounting and other information provided to, discussed with or reviewed by, it, without assuming any responsibility for independent verification thereof. In that regard, Goldman Sachs assumed with the consent of MDLY that the Forecasts and the Synergies were reasonably prepared on a basis reflecting the best currently available estimates and judgments of the management of MDLY. Goldman Sachs did not make an independent evaluation or appraisal of the assets and liabilities (including any contingent, derivative or other off-balance-sheet assets and liabilities) of MDLY, Sierra, MCC, Merger Sub or any of their respective subsidiaries and it was not furnished with any such evaluation or appraisal. Goldman Sachs assumed that all governmental, regulatory or other consents and approvals necessary for the consummation of the transactions contemplated by the Agreements will be obtained without any adverse effect on MDLY, Sierra, MCC or Merger Sub or on the expected benefits of the transactions contemplated by the Agreements in any way meaningful to its analysis. Goldman Sachs has also assumed that the transactions contemplated by the Agreements will be consummated on the terms set forth in the Agreements, without the waiver or modification of any term or condition the effect of which would be in any way meaningful to its analysis.

Goldman Sachs' opinion does not address the underlying business decision of MDLY to engage in, or the relative merits of, the transactions contemplated by the Agreements as compared to any strategic alternatives that may be available to MDLY; nor does it address any legal, regulatory, tax or accounting matters. Goldman Sachs' opinion addresses only the fairness from a financial point of view, as of the date of the opinion, of the Consideration to be paid to the holders (other than Sierra, MCC and any of their respective affiliates, the Medley LLC Unitholders, the holders of Medley LLC Restricted Units and the holders of MDLY RSUs) of the MDLY Class A Common Stock pursuant to the MDLY Merger Agreement. Goldman Sachs' opinion does not express any view on, and does not address, any other term or aspect of the Agreements or the transactions contemplated by the Agreements or any term or aspect of any other agreement or instrument contemplated by the Agreements or entered into or amended in connection with the transactions contemplated by the Agreements, including, any allocation of the Consideration or of the aggregate consideration, including the Special Dividends, payable to all holders of MDLY Class A Common Stock pursuant to the MDLY Merger Agreement, the MCC Merger, the exchange of Medley LLC Units for shares of MDLY Class A Common Stock pursuant to the Exchange Agreement or the transactions contemplated thereby, the fairness of the transactions contemplated by the Agreements to, or any consideration received in connection therewith by, the holders of any other class of securities, creditors, or other constituencies of MDLY; nor as to the fairness of the amount or nature of any compensation to be paid or payable to any of the officers, directors or employees of MDLY, or class of such persons, in connection with the transactions contemplated by the Agreements, whether relative to the Consideration to be paid to the holders of MDLY Class A Common Stock (other than Sierra, MCC and any of their respective affiliates, the Medley LLC Unitholders, the holders of Medley LLC Restricted Units and the holders of MDLY RSUs) pursuant to the MDLY Merger Agreement or otherwise. Goldman Sachs' opinion does not express any opinion as to the prices at which Sierra Common Stock will trade at any time or as to the impact of the transactions contemplated by the Agreements on the solvency or viability of MDLY, Sierra, MCC, Medley LLC or Merger Sub, or the ability of MDLY, Sierra, MCC, Medley LLC or Merger Sub to pay their respective obligations when they come due. Goldman Sachs' opinion was necessarily based on economic, monetary, market and other conditions as in effect on, and the information made available to it as of, the date of the opinion and Goldman Sachs assumed no responsibility for updating, revising or reaffirming its opinion based on circumstances, developments or events occurring after the date of its opinion. Goldman Sachs' opinion was approved by a fairness committee of Goldman Sachs.

The following is a summary of the material financial analyses delivered by Goldman Sachs to the MDLY Board in connection with rendering the opinion described above. The following summary, however, does not purport to be a complete description of the financial analyses performed by Goldman Sachs, nor does the order of analyses described represent relative importance or weight given to those analyses by Goldman Sachs. Some of the summaries of the financial analyses include information presented in tabular format. The tables must be read together with the full text of each summary and are alone not a complete description of Goldman Sachs' financial analyses. Except as otherwise noted, the following quantitative information, to the extent that it is based on market data, is based on market data as it existed on or before August 6, 2018, the third to last trading day before the public announcement of the transactions contemplated by the Agreements and is not necessarily indicative of current market conditions.

Implied Value of the Consideration

Goldman Sachs calculated a range of implied values of the Consideration to be paid to the holders of MDLY Class A Common Stock (other than Sierra, MCC and any of their respective affiliates, the Medley LLC Unitholders, the holders of Medley LLC Restricted Units and the holders of MDLY RSUs) pursuant to the MDLY Merger Agreement. Based on the results of the selected companies analysis, as described below, Goldman Sachs applied a reference range of P/NAV (as defined below) multiples of 0.72x to 1.12x to the estimated NAV of the Combined Company as of June 30, 2018 per the management of MDLY to derive a range of implied pro forma values per share of Sierra Common Stock of $5.31 to $8.21. Goldman Sachs then multiplied the results by the exchange ratio of Sierra Common Stock for MDLY Class A Common Stock pursuant to the MDLY Merger Agreement and added to this amount the MDLY Merger Cash Consideration and the full amount of the Special Dividends. This analysis resulted in a range of implied values of the Consideration of $6.13 to $7.24.

Financial Analyses of MDLY

Illustrative Present Value of Future Share Price Analysis

Goldman Sachs performed an illustrative analysis of the implied present value of an illustrative future value per share of MDLY Class A Common Stock, which is designed to provide an indication of the present value of a theoretical future value of a company's equity as a function of such company's financial multiples. For this analysis, Goldman Sachs used the Forecasts for each of the fiscal years 2018 to 2021. Goldman Sachs first calculated the implied values per share of MDLY Class A Common Stock as of December 31 for each of the fiscal years 2018 to 2021, by applying price to forward earnings per share multiples of 6.5x, 8.6x and 10.6x earnings per share of MDLY Class A Common Stock estimates for each of the fiscal years 2018 to 2021. These illustrative multiple estimates were derived by Goldman Sachs utilizing its professional judgment and experience, taking into account the current price to earnings multiple for MDLY Class A Common Stock and current price to economic net income per share multiples for the selected companies (as defined below).

Goldman Sachs then discounted the implied December 31, 2018 to December 31, 2021 values back to June 30, 2018 using an illustrative discount rate of 13.5%, reflecting an estimate of MDLY's cost of equity. Goldman Sachs derived such discount rate by application of the Capital Asset Pricing Model ("CAPM"), which requires certain company-specific inputs, including a beta for a company, as well as certain financial metrics for the United States financial markets generally. This analysis resulted in a range of implied present values of $5.50 to $8.05 per share of MDLY Class A Common Stock.

Illustrative Discounted Cash Flow Analysis

Using the Forecasts and market data, Goldman Sachs performed an illustrative discounted cash flow analysis on MDLY. Goldman Sachs first multiplied the estimates of levered free cash flow for MDLY for the period beginning with the six months ended December 31, 2018 and ending December 31, 2021, as reflected in the Forecasts, by 17.3%, the percentage of MDLY owned by the holders of MDLY Class A Common Stock. Goldman Sachs then subtracted from this amount the estimated taxes to MDLY Class A Common Stock, as provided by the management of MDLY to derive estimates of the levered free cash flows post-tax for MDLY Class A Common Stock. Using discount rates ranging from 10.5% to 16.5%, reflecting estimates of MDLY's cost of equity, Goldman Sachs discounted to present value as of June 30, 2018: (i) estimates of levered free cash flow post-tax for MDLY Class A Common Stock and (ii) a range of illustrative terminal values for MDLY Class A Common Stock, which were calculated by applying perpetuity growth rates ranging from (2.0)% to 2.0%, to a terminal year estimate of the levered free cash flow to be generated by MDLY, as reflected in the Forecasts, and multiplying this amount by 17.3%, to derive a range of illustrative equity values for MDLY Class A Common Stock. Goldman Sachs derived such discount rates by application of the CAPM, which requires certain company-specific inputs, including a beta for the company, as well as certain financial metrics for the United States financial markets generally. The range of perpetuity growth rates was estimated by Goldman Sachs using its professional judgement and expertise and taking into account Forecasts and market expectations regarding long-term real growth of gross domestic product and inflation. Goldman Sachs then divided the range of illustrative equity values it derived by the number of shares of MDLY Class A Common Stock outstanding as of August 6, 2018, as provided by the management of MDLY, to derive a range of illustrative values per share of MDLY Class A Common Stock of $5.01 to $10.16, which includes an estimated TRA value of $0.27 per share of MDLY Class A Common Stock, which is the midpoint of the range of illustrative present values of TRA payments per share of MDLY Class A Common Stock.

Illustrative Tax Receivable Agreement Analysis

As provided by the management of MDLY, MDLY has a pre-existing contractual Tax Receivable Agreement, dated as of September 23, 2014, by and among MDLY and each of the other persons from time to time party thereto, which is referred to as "TRA", whereby MDLY (and MDLY's successor in the event of a change-of-control event, including but not limited to the MDLY Merger) has, among other things, an ongoing obligation to pay Medley LLC Unitholders 85% of all tax savings MDLY due to the tax basis step-up MDLY realizes when Medley LLC Units are exchanged for MDLY Class A Common Stock, with MDLY retaining the remaining 15% of the tax savings for its own account. Using MDLY's historical financials as provided by the management of MDLY, the Forecasts and market data, Goldman Sachs performed an illustrative TRA analysis. Goldman Sachs performed the TRA analysis by first multiplying both (i) the estimated TRA tax benefit created from a step-up in tax basis resulting from the MDLY Merger, as provided by the management of MDLY and (ii) the estimated TRA tax benefit based on the trading price of MDLY Class A Common Stock on August 6, 2018, $3.60, as provided by the management of MDLY, by 15%, the percentage of the TRA tax benefit MDLY would receive under the TRA in the event of a change of control. Goldman Sachs then added estimated interest earned on each estimated TRA tax benefit, as provided by the management of MDLY, to the estimated TRA tax benefits to obtain a range of total cash TRA benefits. Goldman Sachs then discounted to present value as of June 30, 2018, assuming a 15-year useful life for the tax basis step-up, the range of estimates of the total cash TRA benefit to holders of MDLY Class A Common Stock by applying discount rates ranging from 3.8% to 13.5%. The range of discount rates from 3.8% to 13.5% used by Goldman Sachs was determined by taking into account the TRA contractual rate of 3.8% (12-month LIBOR, plus 100 basis points per Bloomberg), as provided by the management of MDLY and MDLY's cost of equity, which was derived by application of the CAPM, which requires certain company-specific inputs, including a beta for a company, as well as certain financial metrics for the United States financial markets generally. Goldman Sachs then calculated the net TRA payment per share of MDLY Class A Common Stock by multiplying the total cash TRA benefit by 17.3%, the percentage of MDLY owned by the holders of MDLY Class A Common Stock, and dividing the result by the number of shares of MDLY Class A Common Stock outstanding as of August 6, 2018, as provided by the management of MDLY, to derive a range of illustrative present values of TRA payments of $0.23 to $0.31 per share of MDLY Class A Common Stock.

Goldman Sachs analyzed certain publicly available information relating to selected transactions in the alternative asset management industry since August 2016.

Based on information in public filings relating to the applicable transaction, for each of the selected transactions, Goldman Sachs calculated and compared the implied enterprise value of the applicable target company based on the total consideration paid in the transaction as a multiple of the target company's last twelve months ("LTM") earnings before interest, taxes, depreciation and amortization ("EBITDA") publicly disclosed at the time each such selected transaction was announced, which is referred to in this section entitled "—Opinion of Financial Advisor to the MDLY Board" as "EV/LTM EBITDA".

The following table presents the results of this analysis:

Maximum							7.8x

While none of the selected transactions or companies that participated in the selected transactions are directly comparable to the MDLY Merger or MDLY, each of the target companies in the selected transactions was involved in the alternative asset management industry and the selected transactions are all of the transactions since August 2016, and that, in Goldman Sachs' professional judgment, involved target companies with operations that, for the purposes of the analyses, may be considered similar to certain operating characteristics of MDLY.

Based on the results of the foregoing calculations and Goldman Sachs' analyses of the various transactions and its professional judgment, Goldman Sachs applied a reference range of EV/LTM EBITDA multiples of 6.1x (reflecting the minimum EV/LTM EBITDA multiple referenced above) to 7.8x (reflecting the median and maximum EV/LTM EBITDA multiple referenced above) to MDLY's LTM EBITDA as of June 30, 2018, as provided by the management of MDLY, to derive a range of implied enterprise values for MDLY. Goldman Sachs then subtracted from the range of implied enterprise values the net debt of MDLY, as provided by the management of MDLY, to derive a range of illustrative equity values for MDLY. Goldman Sachs divided the results by the total number of shares of MDLY Class A Common Stock outstanding as of August 6, 2018, as provided by the management of MDLY, to derive a range of implied values per share of MDLY Class A Common Stock of $1.43 to $2.70.

Financial Analyses of the Combined Company*Illustrative Combined Company Discounted Dividend Analysis*

Goldman Sachs performed an illustrative dividend discount model analysis on the Combined Company using the Forecasts and market data. Goldman Sachs discounted to present value as of June 30, 2018 estimates of the dividend streams of the Combined Company for the period beginning with the six months ended December 31, 2018 and ending December 31, 2021, as set forth in the Forecasts, and assuming a dividend payout ratio of 100% per the management of MDLY, and an illustrative terminal value for the Combined Company, and applied discount rates ranging from 6.0% to 8.0%. The range of discount rates from 6.0% to 8.0% used by Goldman Sachs was determined by taking into account an estimate of the Combined Company's cost of equity, which was based on Goldman Sachs' analysis of the cost of equity for selected companies (as defined below), which were calculated using CAPM. Based on the results of the selected companies analysis, as described below, Goldman Sachs applied a reference range of P/NAV (as defined below) multiples of 0.75x to 1.09x to the estimated NAV of the Combined Company per the management of MDLY to derive an illustrative terminal value for the Combined Company. Goldman Sachs then divided such net present values by the estimated pro forma number of shares of Sierra Common Stock, as provided by the management of MDLY, to calculate an illustrative range of per-share present values. This analysis resulted in a range of implied present values per share of Sierra Common Stock of $5.85 to $8.21.

Selected Companies Analysis

Goldman Sachs reviewed and compared certain financial and stock market information, ratios and public market multiples for the Combined Company to corresponding financial and stock market information, ratios and public market multiples for the following publicly traded externally managed BDCs and internally managed BDCs (collectively referred to as the selected companies):

- Externally Managed BDCs

- Internally Managed BDCs
 - Main Street Capital Corporation (“Main Street”)
 - Hercules Capital, Inc. (“Hercules”)

Although none of the selected companies are directly comparable to the Combined Company, the companies included were chosen because they are publicly traded companies with operations that for purposes of analysis may be considered similar to certain operations of the Combined Company.

Goldman Sachs also calculated and compared various financial multiples and ratios based on information Goldman Sachs obtained from SNL Financial, the Forecasts, publicly available historical data, market data, and Institutional Brokers’ Estimate System, or “IBES”, estimates. The multiples and ratios were calculated using the applicable closing market price as of August 6, 2018. The multiples and ratios of the selected companies were based on financial data as of March 31, 2018.

With respect to the selected companies, Goldman Sachs calculated the closing market price as a multiple of such company’s NAV, which is referred to as “P/NAV”. Goldman Sachs also calculated each selected company’s 2019E net investment income (“NII”) as a percentage of such company’s closing market price, which is referred to as “2019E NII/P” (alternatively referred to as the “NII price yield”), using estimates from IBES. Goldman Sachs also calculated each selected company’s 2019E NII as a percentage of such company’s NAV, using estimates from IBES. The results of this analysis are shown in the table below.

Using its experience and professional judgment, Goldman Sachs made qualitative judgments concerning differences between the business, financial and operating characteristics and prospects of the Combined Company and the selected companies and selected a reference range of (i) multiples of estimated P/NAV of 0.75x to 1.09x and (ii) NII price yields of 11.0% to 9.0%. Goldman Sachs then applied a P/NAV range of 0.75x to 1.09x to the Combined Company’s estimated NAV/share, using the Forecasts. This analysis resulted in a range of implied price per share of Sierra Common Stock of $5.49 to $7.98. Goldman Sachs also applied a NII price yield range of 11.0% to 9.0% to the Combined Company’s estimated 2019E NII/Share, using the Forecasts. This analysis resulted in a range of implied prices per share of Sierra Common Stock of $5.31 to $6.49.

General

The preparation of a fairness opinion is a complex process and is not necessarily susceptible to partial analysis or summary description. Selecting portions of the analyses or of the summary set forth above, without considering the analyses as a whole, could create an incomplete view of the processes underlying Goldman Sachs' opinion. In arriving at its fairness determination, Goldman Sachs considered the results of all of its analyses and did not attribute any particular weight to any factor or analysis considered by it. Rather, Goldman Sachs made its determination as to fairness on the basis of its experience and professional judgment after considering the results of all of its analyses. No company used in the above analyses as a comparison is directly comparable to MDLY, MCC or Sierra.

Goldman Sachs prepared these analyses for purposes of Goldman Sachs' providing its opinion to the MDLY Board that, as of August 9, 2018 and based upon and subject to the factors and assumptions therein, the Consideration to be paid to the holders of MDLY Class A Common Stock (other than Sierra, MCC and any of their respective affiliates, the Medley LLC Unitholders, the holders of Medley LLC Restricted Units and the holders of MDLY RSUs) pursuant to the MDLY Merger Agreement was fair from a financial point of view to such holders. These analyses do not purport to be appraisals nor do they necessarily reflect the prices at which businesses or securities actually may be sold. Analyses based upon forecasts of future results are not necessarily indicative of actual future results, which may be significantly more or less favorable than suggested by these analyses. Because these analyses are inherently subject to uncertainty, being based upon numerous factors or events beyond the control of the parties or their respective advisors, none of MDLY, Sierra, MCC, Goldman Sachs or any other person assumes responsibility if future results are materially different from those forecast.

The consideration to be paid to holders of MDLY Class A Common Stock was determined through arm's-length negotiations between MDLY and Sierra and was approved by the MDLY Board. Goldman Sachs did not recommend any specific amount of consideration to MDLY or the MDLY Board or that any specific amount of consideration constituted the only appropriate consideration for the transactions contemplated by the Agreements.

As described above, Goldman Sachs' opinion to the MDLY Board was one of many factors taken into consideration by the MDLY Board in making its determination to approve the transactions contemplated by the Agreements. The foregoing summary does not purport to be a complete description of the analyses performed by Goldman Sachs in connection with the fairness opinion and is qualified in its entirety by reference to the written opinion of Goldman Sachs attached as Appendix F.

Goldman Sachs and its affiliates are engaged in advisory, underwriting and financing, principal investing, sales and trading, research, investment management and other financial and non-financial activities and services for various persons and entities. Goldman Sachs and its affiliates and employees, and funds or other entities they manage or in which they invest or have other economic interests, or with which they co-invest, may at any time purchase, sell, hold or vote long or short positions and investments in securities, derivatives, loans, commodities, currencies, credit default swaps and other financial instruments of MDLY, Sierra, MCC, Medley LLC and any of their respective affiliates and third parties, including funds advised by MDLY and affiliates of the holders of Medley LLC Restricted Units, or any currency or commodity that may be involved in the transactions contemplated by the Agreements. During the two year period ended August 9, 2018, the Investment Banking Division of Goldman Sachs has not been engaged by MDLY, Sierra, MCC, Medley LLC, funds advised by MDLY, affiliates of holders of the Medley LLC Restricted Units or their respective affiliates to provide financial advisory or underwriting services for which Goldman Sachs has recognized compensation. Goldman Sachs acted as financial advisor to MDLY in connection with, and participated in certain of the negotiations leading to, the transactions contemplated by the Agreements. Goldman Sachs may also in the future provide financial advisor and/or underwriting services to MDLY, Sierra, MCC, Medley LLC, Merger Sub, funds advised by MDLY, affiliates of the holders of Medley LLC Restricted Units and their respective affiliates for which the Investment Banking Division of Goldman Sachs may receive compensation.

The MDLY Board selected Goldman Sachs as its financial advisor because it is an internationally recognized investment banking firm that has substantial experience in transactions similar to the transactions contemplated by the Agreements. Pursuant to a letter agreement, dated December 11, 2017, MDLY engaged Goldman Sachs to act as its financial advisor in connection with the transactions contemplated by the MDLY Merger Agreement. The engagement letter between MDLY and Goldman Sachs provides for a transaction fee based on the aggregate consideration paid in the transaction. Based on information available as of the date of the announcement of the MDLY Merger, the transaction fee, all of which is contingent upon consummation of the MDLY Merger, is estimated to be approximately $2.7 million. In addition, MDLY has agreed to reimburse Goldman Sachs for certain of its expenses, including attorneys' fees and disbursements, and to indemnify Goldman Sachs and related persons against various liabilities, including certain liabilities under the federal securities laws.

Other Presentation by Goldman Sachs

In addition to the presentation delivered to the MDLY Board on August 9, 2018, as described above, Goldman Sachs also delivered a preliminary presentation to the MDLY Board dated as of June 18, 2018. Copies of these presentations will be filed as exhibits to the Schedule 13E-3 Transaction Statement filed with the SEC in connection with the transactions contemplated by the Agreements. The June 18, 2018 preliminary presentation by Goldman Sachs does not constitute, or form the basis of, an opinion of Goldman Sachs with respect to the Consideration (as defined in the written opinion delivered by Goldman Sachs to the MDLY Board on August 9, 2018). Information contained in the June 18, 2018 preliminary presentation is substantially similar to the information provided in Goldman Sachs' presentation to the MDLY Board on August 9, 2018, described in the section entitled "Special Factors—Opinion of Financial Advisor to the MDLY Board."

The June 18, 2018 preliminary presentation to the MDLY Board contained, among other things, a description of the transactions contemplated by the Agreements, an illustrative pro forma income statement and shares outstanding, an illustrative pro forma balance sheet walk, an implied value of the consideration analysis, a comparison of selected BDCs, and a comparison of selected alternative asset managers.

The information in the June 18, 2018 preliminary presentation was based on market, economic and other conditions as they existed as of the date of such presentation as well as other information that was available at that time. Among other things, the results of certain analyses changed as MDLY's and Sierra's respective financial results changed as well as projections made by management of MDLY were revised or adjusted. Accordingly, the results of the financial analyses differed due to changes in those conditions. Finally, Goldman Sachs continued to refine various aspects of its financial analyses with respect to MDLY over time.

Financing of the Mergers

The completion of the Mergers is not conditioned on Sierra obtaining the proceeds of any financing. Sierra anticipates that the total amount of cash necessary to complete the Mergers, including the payment of the cash portion of the MDLY Class A Common Stock consideration, will be approximately $122 million. Sierra anticipates using its cash on hand as well as $50.0 million of debt financing to fund the cash portion of the purchase price of MDLY Class A Common Stock.

Unaudited Prospective Financial Information

General

Neither Sierra, MCC nor MDLY generally publishes its business plans and strategies or makes external disclosures of its anticipated financial position or results of operations as a matter of course due to, among other reasons, the inherent uncertainty of the underlying assumptions and estimates, other than, in each case, providing, from time to time, estimates of certain expected financial results and operational metrics for the current year and certain future years in their respective regular earnings press releases, SEC filings and other investor materials. The inclusion of the parties' respective projections in this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus should not be regarded as an indication that any of Sierra, MCC or MDLY, or their respective affiliates, officers, directors, employees, advisors or other representatives considered the parties' projections to be necessarily predictive of actual future events, and the parties' respective projections should not be relied on as such.

The summaries of Sierra's, MCC's, MDLY's and the Combined Company's respective financial projections included below are provided to give Sierra Stockholders, MCC Stockholders, and MDLY Stockholders access to certain non-public information that was made available to Sierra, MCC and MDLY, and their respective boards of directors, special committees and financial advisors in connection with each party's evaluation of the Mergers. The parties' projections were, in general, prepared solely for internal use and are subjective in many respects and thus subject to interpretation. While presented with numerical specificity, the parties' projections reflect numerous assumptions and estimates that the parties preparing such projections made in good faith at the time such projections were prepared with respect to industry performance, general business, economic, regulatory, market and financial conditions and other future events, as well as matters specific to the applicable party. These assumptions are inherently uncertain, were made as of the date the parties' projections were prepared, may not be reflective of actual results, either since the date such projections were prepared, now or in the future, in light of changed circumstances, economic conditions, or other developments and may be beyond the control of Sierra, MCC or MDLY, as applicable. Some or all of the assumptions that have been made regarding, among other things, the timing of certain occurrences or impacts, may have changed since the date the parties' projections were prepared. The financial forecasts provided by Sierra, MCC, MDLY and the Combined Company, respectively, herein reflect all of the key performance indicators that each of Sierra, MCC, MDLY and the Combined Company use to manage their respective businesses. In that regard, while in summary form, the financial statements included therein itemize each of the components that are pertinent to Sierra, MCC, MDLY and the Combined Company's results of operations and financial condition.

Important factors that may affect actual results and cause the parties' projections not to be achieved include risks and uncertainties relating to Sierra's, MCC's and MDLY's businesses, including their abilities to achieve their respective strategic goals, objectives and targets over applicable periods; industry conditions; the regulatory environment; general business and economic conditions; and other factors described under "Risk Factors" and "Special Note Regarding Forward-Looking Statements" beginning on pages 138 and 249, respectively, of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus, as well as the risk factors with respect to Sierra's, MCC's and MDLY's respective businesses described under "Risk Factors" beginning on pages 151, 183 and 210, respectively. In addition, the parties' projections cover multiple future years, and such information by its nature is subject to greater uncertainty with each successive year. The parties' projections also do not take into account any circumstances or events occurring after the date on which they were prepared, and do not give effect to the transactions contemplated by the MCC Merger Agreement or the MDLY Merger Agreement, including the Mergers, except that, as described below, the Combined Company projections reflect the completion of the Mergers. The parties' projections also reflect assumptions as to certain business decisions that are subject to change. As a result, actual results may differ materially from those contained in the parties' projections. Accordingly, there is no assurance that the parties' projections will be realized or that actual results will not be significantly lower than projected.

The parties' projections were not prepared with in accordance with GAAP, the published guidelines of the SEC regarding projections, or the guidelines established by the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants for preparation and presentation of prospective financial information. Neither Sierra's, MCC's nor MDLY's independent registered public accounting firm, nor any other independent accountants, have compiled, examined or performed any procedures with respect to the parties' projections, nor has any of them expressed any opinion or any other form of assurance on the parties' projections or the achievability of the results reflected in the parties' projections, and none of them assumes any responsibility for, and each of them disclaims any association with, the parties' projections. The reports of Sierra's, MCC's and MDLY's independent registered public accounting firms included in this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus relate to Sierra's, MCC's and MDLY's historical financial information, respectively, and no such report extends to either the parties' projection or should be read to do so.

None of Sierra, MCC nor MDLY or their respective affiliates, officers, employees, directors, advisors or other representatives can give you any assurance that actual results will not differ from the parties' respective projections, and none of Sierra, MCC nor MDLY or their respective affiliates, officers, employees or directors undertakes any obligation to update or otherwise revise or reconcile the parties' projections to reflect circumstances existing after the date the parties' respective projections were prepared or to reflect the occurrence of future events even in the event that any or all of the assumptions underlying the parties' respective projections are not realized. Neither Sierra, MCC nor MDLY intend to publicly update or make any other revision to the parties' projections. None of Sierra, MCC nor MDLY or any of their respective affiliates, officers, employees, directors, advisors or other representatives has made or makes any representation to any Sierra Stockholder, MCC Stockholder or MDLY Stockholder or any other person regarding Sierra's, MCC's and MDLY's ultimate performance compared to the parties' projections or that the results reflected therein will be achieved. Neither Sierra, MCC nor MDLY have made any representation to the other, in the MCC Merger Agreement or the MDLY Merger Agreement or otherwise, concerning the parties' respective projections. For the reasons described above, readers of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus are cautioned not to place undue, if any, reliance on the parties' projections.

In connection with each of Sierra's, MCC's and MDLY's evaluation of the Mergers, Management, in its capacity as the investment adviser to each of Sierra and MCC, and as the management team of MDLY, made available to the financial advisors of each of the Sierra Special Committee, the MCC Special Committee, the MDLY Special Committee and the MDLY Board, certain internal financial analyses and forecasts and unaudited prospective financial information relating to Sierra (the "Sierra Projections"), MCC (the "MCC Projections"), and MDLY (the "MDLY Projections"). Each of the Sierra Projections, MCC Projections, and MDLY Projections were provided on a stand-alone basis, assuming each would continue as an independent company. In addition, Management also provided certain internal financial analyses and forecasts relating to the Combined Company (the "Combined Company Projections") to each of the financial advisors.

For purposes of rendering their respective fairness opinions, each of Broadhaven (financial advisor to the Sierra Special Committee), Sandler O'Neill (financial advisor to the MCC Special Committee), Barclays (financial advisor to the MDLY Special Committee) and Goldman Sachs (financial advisor to the MDLY Board) utilized the Sierra Projections, MCC Projections, MDLY Projections and the Combined Company Projections to varying degrees and as described more fully in this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus. For a description of the opinions that the Sierra Special Committee, MCC Special Committee, MDLY Special Committee and MDLY Board received from their respective financial advisors, see "Special Factors—Opinion of Financial Advisor to the Sierra Special Committee", "Special Factors—Opinion of Financial Advisor to the MCC Special Committee", "Special Factors—Opinion of Financial Advisor to the MDLY Special Committee", "Special Factors—Opinion of Financial Advisor to the MDLY Board."

Each of the Sierra Projections, MCC Projections, MDLY Projections and the Combined Company Projections are set forth below.

Sierra Projections

While presented with numeric specificity, the Sierra Projections provided by Management were based on numerous variables, assumptions, and estimates that Sierra made in good faith, including, but not limited to:

- the amount of portfolio originations and repayments;
- the amount of leveraged utilized during the projection periods;
- the performance of investment assets;
- interest rates,
- no projected realized or unrealized gains or losses during the periods presented;
- the amount and timing of secondary public equity offerings;
- the amount and timing of dividend payments;
- the amount and timing of expense reductions; and
- other general business, market and financial assumptions specific to Sierra's business.

The following is a summary of the Sierra internal financial forecasts. The Sierra internal financial forecasts were prepared by Management based solely on the information available to Management at the time. The Sierra internal forecasts were finalized on July 21, 2018.

MCC Projections

While presented with numeric specificity, the MCC Projections provided by Management were based on numerous variables, assumptions, and estimates that MCC made in good faith, including, but not limited to:

- the amount of portfolio originations and repayments;
- the amount of leveraged utilized during the projection periods;
- the performance of investment assets;
- interest rates,

MDLY Projections

While presented with numeric specificity, the MDLY Projections provided by Management were based on numerous variables, assumptions, and estimates that MDLY made in good faith, including, but not limited to:

- the increase in fee earning assets under management from existing advisory clients;
- the increase in fee earning assets under management from new advisory clients;
- the management fee percentage charged to new advisory clients;
- targeted compensation and benefits ratios;
- the amount and timing of increase in general and administrative expenses;
- other general business, market and financial assumptions specific to MDLY's business.

Combined Company Projections

While presented with numeric specificity, the Combined Company Projections provided by Management were based on the sum of the standalone SIC, MCC and MDLY Projections described above and included certain assumptions and estimates that Management made in good faith, including, but not limited to:

- the incremental operating expenses of the Combined Company; and
- the incremental cost of financing need to complete the Mergers.

The following is a summary of the Combined Company internal financial forecast. The Combined Company internal financial forecast was prepared by Management based solely on the information available to Management at the time. The Combined Company internal forecast was finalized on July 27, 2018.

Management of the Combined Company

Promptly following the completion of the Mergers, the Combined Company will take the necessary actions to appoint individuals to serve as directors and executive officers of the Combined Company. Effective as of the closing of the Mergers, the following actions will occur with respect to the Combined Company Board: (1) Seth Taube will resign from his positions as a director and Chief Executive Officer of Sierra, (2) Brook Taube will be appointed as Chief Executive Officer and Chief Investment Officer of the Combined Company and Chairman of the Combined Company Board, and (3) Karin Hirtler-Garvey and John E. Mack, each of whom are currently independent directors of MCC, will become independent directors of the Combined Company. The current independent directors of Sierra, Oliver T. Kane, Valerie Lancaster-Beal, and Stephen R. Byers, will continue as directors of the Combined Company Board.

Effective as of the closing of the Mergers, the following persons will serve as the Combined Company's executive officers or key employees in the following capacities:

Name	Position(s) Held
Brook Taube	Chief Executive Officer, Chief Investment Officer, and Chairman of the Combined Company Board
Seth Taube	Vice Chairman, Senior Executive Vice President, and Senior Managing Director
Jeff Tonkel	President
Richard T. Allorto, Jr.	Chief Financial Officer, Treasurer, Senior Executive Vice President, and Senior Managing Director
John D. Fredericks	General Counsel, Chief Compliance Officer, Secretary, Senior Executive Vice President, and Senior Managing Director
Samuel Anderson	Head of Capital Markets & Risk Management, Senior Executive Vice President, and Senior Managing Director
Christopher Taube	Head of Institutional Fundraising, Senior Executive Vice President, and Senior Managing Director

For more information regarding the management of the Combined Company, see "Information about the Combined Company — Management."

Listing of Sierra Common Stock and Delisting of MCC Common Stock and MDLY Class A Common Stock

Sierra Common Stock is currently not listed on a securities exchange. In connection with the Mergers, Sierra Common Stock will be listed on the NYSE under the symbol "SRA" and is expected to be listed on the TASE, with such listings expected to be effective as of the closing date of the Mergers. Upon completion of the Mergers, (1) MCC Common Stock will be delisted from the NYSE and the TASE and thereafter MCC will be deregistered under the Exchange Act and (2) MDLY Class A Common Stock will be delisted from the NYSE and thereafter MDLY will be deregistered under the Exchange Act.

RISK FACTORS

This Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus relates to the Sierra Common Stock to be issued to MCC Stockholders and MDLY Stockholders in connection with the MCC Merger and the MDLY Merger, respectively. If the Mergers are successfully consummated, Sierra Common Stock will be listed on the NYSE under the symbol "SRA" and is expected to be listed on the TASE, with such listings expected to be effective as of the closing date of the Mergers. Upon completion of the Mergers, the investment portfolios of MCC and Sierra would be combined, Merger Sub, as a successor to MDLY, would be a wholly owned subsidiary of the Combined Company, and the Combined Company would be internally managed by its wholly owned investment adviser subsidiary. Set forth below are the principal risks relating to: (i) the Mergers, (ii) the Combined Company following the successful completion of the Mergers, (iii) Sierra, (iv) MCC, and (v) MDLY. Please review all these risks, including the risks associated with the businesses of each of the Companies because these risks will also affect the Combined Company following consummation of the Mergers.

Risks Relating to the Mergers

There can be no assurances when or if the Mergers will be completed.

Although the Companies expect to complete the Mergers as early as the first quarter of 2019, there can be no assurances as to the exact timing of completion of the Mergers, or that the Mergers will be completed at all. The completion of the Mergers is subject to numerous conditions, including, among others, the continued effectiveness of this Form N-14 Registration Statement; the approval of Sierra Common Stock (including shares of Sierra Common Stock to be issued in the Mergers) for listing on the NYSE; receipt of requisite approvals of each of the Sierra Stockholders, the MCC Stockholders, and MDLY Stockholders; receipt of required regulatory approvals, including from the SEC, the SBA, any necessary approvals under the HSR Act, and, if applicable, state securities regulators; confirmation by the SEC that Merger Sub, as the successor to MDLY in the MDLY Merger, will be treated as a portfolio investment of the Combined Company and reflected in the Combined Company's consolidated financial statements at fair value for accounting purposes (i.e., not consolidated into the financial statements of the Combined Company); the relevant parties having taken all actions reasonably required in order to keep existing indebtedness outstanding following the Mergers (other than with respect to MCC's credit facility, which has been terminated); receipt of necessary consents relating to joint ventures of Sierra and MCC; receipt of a specified level of consents from third-party advisory clients of MDLY; with respect to the MCC Merger, satisfaction (or appropriate waiver) of the conditions to closing of the MDLY Merger; with respect to the MDLY Merger, satisfaction (or appropriate waiver) of the conditions to closing of the MCC Merger; and other customary closing conditions. For more information, see "Description of the MCC Merger Agreement — Conditions to the MCC Merger" and "Description of the MDLY Merger Agreement — Conditions to the MDLY Merger."

The Companies cannot assure their respective stockholders that the conditions required to complete the Mergers will be satisfied or waived on the anticipated schedule, or at all. If the Mergers are not completed, the resulting failure of the Mergers could have a material adverse impact on Sierra's, MCC's, and MDLY's financial condition, results of operations, assets or business. In addition, if the Mergers are not completed, Sierra, MCC, and MDLY will have incurred substantial expenses for which no ultimate benefit will have been received. See "— If the Mergers do not close, neither Sierra, MCC, nor MDLY will benefit from the expenses incurred in its pursuit." Moreover, if either the MCC Merger Agreement or the MDLY Merger Agreement is terminated under certain circumstances, Sierra, MCC or MDLY may be obligated to pay the other party to the applicable merger agreement a termination fee. See "— Under certain circumstances, Sierra, MCC or MDLY may be obligated to pay a termination fee upon termination of the MCC Merger Agreement or the MDLY Merger Agreement." Any decision that Sierra Stockholders, MCC Stockholders, and MDLY Stockholder make should be made with the understanding that the completion of the Mergers may not happen as scheduled, or at all.

If the Mergers are completed, certain additional risks regarding the Combined Company following the Mergers may be presented. See "—Risks Relating to the Combined Company if the Mergers are Successfully Consummated," "—Risks Relating to Sierra," "—Risks Relating to MCC" and "—Risks Relating to MDLY" for a description of the risks the Combined Company may face if the Mergers are completed and "Special Factors," "Description of the MCC Merger Agreement," and "Description of the MDLY Merger Agreement" for a description of the terms of the MCC Merger Agreement and the MDLY Merger Agreement.

Because the NAV of Sierra may change, MCC Stockholders and MDLY Stockholders cannot be sure of the value of the stock portion of the consideration they will receive until the MCC Merger Effective Time and the MDLY Merger Effective, respectively.

Under the MCC Merger Agreement, the exchange ratio of 0.8050 shares of Sierra Common Stock for each share of MCC Common Stock to be exchanged in the MCC Merger was fixed on August 9, 2018, the date of the signing of the MCC Merger Agreement, and is not subject to adjustment based on changes in the NAV of Sierra or the market price of MCC Common Stock before the MCC Merger Effective Time.

Under the MDLY Merger Agreement, the exchange ratio of 0.3836 shares of Sierra Common Stock, and the amount of cash merger consideration and other payments, for each share of MDLY Class A Common Stock was fixed on August 9, 2018, the date of the signing of the MDLY Merger Agreement, and is not subject to adjustment based on changes in the NAV of Sierra or the market price of MDLY Class A Common Stock before the MDLY Merger Effective Time.

Accordingly, at the time of the respective stockholder meetings, neither the MCC Stockholders nor the MDLY Stockholders will know or be able to calculate with certainty the value of the merger consideration they would receive upon the completion of the Mergers, and such value may vary materially from the value of the merger consideration determined as of the date the MCC Merger and the MDLY Merger were announced, as of the date that this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus is mailed to MCC Stockholders and MDLY Stockholders, and as of the date of the MCC Special Meeting or MDLY Special Meeting. Any change in the NAV of Sierra prior to completion of the Mergers will affect the value (either positively or negatively) of the merger consideration to be paid by Sierra, and to be received by MCC Stockholders or MDLY Stockholders, as applicable, upon the completion of the Mergers, in each case, relative to the value of the merger consideration determined as of the date the respective Mergers were announced. See “Special Note Regarding Forward-Looking Statements”.

The value of the stock portion of the merger consideration that MCC Stockholders and MDLY Stockholders will receive, and of the Sierra Common Stock that Sierra Stockholders will continue to own, upon the completion of the Mergers may be affected, either positively or negatively, by the trading performance of Sierra Common Stock following the Mergers.

There is currently no public trading market for Sierra Common Stock and there is no way to predict with certainty how the shares of Sierra Common Stock, including the shares of Sierra Common Stock to be issued in the Mergers, will trade following consummation of the Mergers. Any change in the trading price of Sierra Common Stock following completion of the Mergers will affect the value (either positively or negatively) of the stock portion of the merger consideration received by MCC Stockholders or MDLY Stockholders upon the completion of the Mergers or the value of the Sierra Common Stock a Sierra Stockholder continues to own after completion of the Mergers. Stock price changes may result from a variety of factors, including, among other things:

- changes in the business, operations or prospects of the Combined Company;
- the financial condition of current or prospective portfolio companies of the Combined Company;
- interest rates or general market or economic conditions;
- the supply and demand for the Combined Company Common Stock; and
- market perception of the future profitability of the Combined Company.

These factors are generally beyond the control of the Companies prior to completion of the Mergers and, following completion of the Mergers, will generally be beyond the control of the Combined Company. As noted above, there is currently no public trading market for Sierra Common Stock and there is no way to predict with certainty how the shares of Sierra Common Stock will trade following consummation of the Mergers. During the 12-month period ending September 30, 2018, the NAV per share of Sierra Common Stock varied from a low of $7.27 to a high of $7.89; the closing price per share of MCC Common Stock varied from a low of $3.39 to a high of $6.57; and the closing price per share of MDLY Class A Common Stock varied from a low of $3.10 to a high of $7.15. However, the historical NAV per share of Sierra, and the historic trading prices of MCC Common Stock and MDLY Class A Common Stock, are not necessarily indicative of future performance of Sierra Common Stock following the Mergers.

The inability of Sierra, MCC and/or MDLY to obtain certain third-party consents and approvals could delay or prevent the completion of the Mergers.

Pursuant to the MCC Merger Agreement, each of Sierra's and MCC's obligations to complete the MCC Merger is conditioned upon, among other things, and in addition to the regulatory approvals described below (see "—There can be no assurances when or if the Mergers will be completed"), the prior receipt by Sierra or MCC, as applicable, of third party consents and approvals relating to the joint venture arrangements of Sierra and MCC. In addition, each of Sierra's and MCC's obligations to complete the MCC Merger is cross-conditioned upon MDLY, pursuant to the MDLY Merger Agreement, having received written consents to the continuation, following the MDLY Merger Effective Time, of the advisory relationship with private funds and managed accounts representing 65% of MDLY's total revenues from private funds and managed accounts for the 12-month period ended June 30, 2018. In addition to the foregoing mutual conditions for closing, Sierra and MCC must obtain all consents and approvals, and take all necessary steps, in order to keep their respective indebtedness outstanding (or, in the case of MCC's credit facility, to combine it with Sierra's existing credit facility) following the MCC Merger Effective Time. Although Sierra and MCC expect that all such approvals and consents will be obtained and remain in effect and all conditions related to such consents will be satisfied, if they are not, the closing of the Mergers could be significantly delayed or the Mergers may not occur at all.

Pursuant to the MDLY Merger Agreement, each of Sierra's and MDLY's obligations to complete the MDLY Merger is conditioned upon, among other things, and in addition to the regulatory approvals described below (see the "—There can be no assurances when or if the Mergers will be completed"), prior receipt by MDLY of written consents to the continuation, following the MDLY Merger Effective Time, of the advisory relationship with private funds and managed accounts representing 65% of MDLY's total revenues from private funds and managed accounts for the 12-month period ended June 30, 2018. In addition to the foregoing mutual conditions for closing, Sierra and MDLY must obtain all consents and approvals, and take all necessary steps, in order to keep their respective indebtedness outstanding following the MDLY Merger Effective Time. Although Sierra and MDLY expect that all such approvals and consents will be obtained and remain in effect and all conditions related to such consents will be satisfied, if they are not, the closing of the Mergers could be significantly delayed or the Mergers may not occur at all.

Even if the Mergers are completed, the inability of Sierra, MCC and/or MDLY to obtain certain third-party consents and approvals could adversely impact the Combined Company and Merger Sub.

Certain agreements of Sierra, MCC, MDLY or their respective affiliates, including with respect to certain funds managed by MDLY and its affiliates, may require the consent or waiver of one or more counter-parties in connection with the Mergers. In the event such consents or waivers are not obtained, completion of the Mergers may violate, conflict with or result in a breach of any provision of or the loss of any benefit under, constitute a default (or an event that, with or without notice or lapse of time or both, would constitute a default) under, or result in the termination, cancellation, acceleration or other change of any right or obligation (including any payment obligation) under such agreements. If the Companies close the Mergers notwithstanding the lack of consents or waivers, such circumstance could, either individually or in the aggregate, have a material adverse effect on the financial condition, results of operations, assets or business of the Combined Company following completion of the Mergers.

The Mergers may trigger certain "change of control" provisions and other restrictions in agreements of Sierra, MCC, MDLY or their affiliates and the failure to obtain any required consents or waivers could adversely impact the Combined Company.

Certain agreements of Sierra, MCC, MDLY, or their affiliates, including with respect to certain funds managed by MDLY, will or may require the consent or waiver of one or more counter-parties in connection with the Mergers. The failure to obtain any such consent or waiver may permit such counter-parties to terminate, or otherwise increase their rights or the Combined Company's obligations under, any such agreement because the Mergers may violate an anti-assignment, change of control or other provision contained in any of such agreements. If this happens, the Combined Company or Merger Sub may have to seek to replace such an agreement with a new agreement or seek an amendment to such agreement. Sierra, MCC, and MDLY cannot assure you that the Combined Company or Merger Sub will be able to replace or amend any such agreement on comparable terms or at all.

If any such agreement is material, the failure to obtain consents, amendments or waivers under, or to replace on similar terms or at all, such agreements could adversely affect the financial performance or results of operations of the Combined Company following the completion of the Mergers, including preventing the Combined Company from operating a material part of MCC's and MDLY's businesses.

In addition, the completion of the Mergers may violate, conflict with, result in a breach of any provision of or the loss of any benefit under, constitute a default (or an event that, with or without notice or lapse of time or both, would constitute a default) under, or result in the termination, cancellation, acceleration or other change of any right or obligation (including any payment obligation) under agreements of Sierra, MCC, or MDLY. Any such violation, conflict, breach, loss, default or other effect could, either individually or in the aggregate, have a material adverse effect on the financial condition, results of operations, assets or business of the Combined Company or Merger Sub following completion of the Mergers.

The opinions obtained by the Sierra Special Committee, the MCC Special Committee, the MDLY Special Committee, and the MDLY Board from each of their respective financial advisors will not reflect changes in circumstances after the dates of the opinions between signing of the MCC Merger Agreement and the MCC Merger Effective Time and between signing of the MDLY Merger Agreement and the MDLY Merger Effective Time.

The Sierra Special Committee, the MCC Special Committee, the MDLY Special Committee, and the MDLY Board have not obtained updated opinions as of the date of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus from their respective financial advisors and none of them anticipates obtaining updated opinions prior to the MCC Merger Effective Time or the MDLY Merger Effective Time, as applicable. Changes in the operations and prospects of Sierra, MCC, and MDLY, general market and economic conditions and other factors beyond the control of Sierra, MCC, or MDLY and on which the Sierra Special Committee's, the MCC Special Committee's, the MDLY Special Committee's, and the MDLY Board's respective financial advisors' opinions were based may significantly alter the value of Sierra, MCC, or MDLY or the prices at which shares of MCC Common Stock or MDLY Class A Common Stock trade or the NAV per share of Sierra Common Stock by the time the Mergers are completed. The opinions of such financial advisors speak only to the date such opinions were rendered and do not speak as of the time the Mergers will be completed or as of any other date. None of the Sierra Special Committee, the MCC Special Committee, the MDLY Special Committee, and the MDLY Board expect to obtain updated opinions from their respective financial advisors.

For a description of the opinion that the Sierra Special Committee received from its financial advisor, see "Special Factors — Opinion of Financial Advisor to the Sierra Special Committee." For a description of the opinion that the MCC Special Committee received from its financial advisor, see "Special Factors — Opinion of Financial Advisor to the MCC Special Committee." For a description of the opinion that the MDLY Special Committee received from its financial advisor, see "Special Factors — Opinion of Financial Advisor to the MDLY Special Committee." For a description of the opinion that the MDLY Board received from its financial advisor, see "Special Factors — Opinion of Financial Advisor to the MDLY Board."

The MCC Merger Consideration and the MDLY Merger Consideration were the product of extensive negotiations among the parties and therefore may include business considerations beyond share price, NAV or other financial or valuation metrics relating to Sierra, MCC, and MDLY.

The Mergers were the product of extensive negotiations among the parties and each board of directors (including its respective special committee) considered a number of factors in determining to enter into the MCC Merger Agreement or MDLY Merger Agreement, as applicable. As a result, the terms of the MCC Merger Agreement and the MDLY Merger Agreement are not necessarily reflective of the share price, NAV or other financial or valuation metrics relating to Sierra, MCC, and MDLY at the time the merger agreements were entered into, and may reflect additional business considerations. See "Special Factors—Reasons for the Mergers."

Sierra, MCC, and MDLY may be targets of securities class action and derivative lawsuits, which could result in substantial costs and may delay or prevent the completion of the Mergers.

Securities class action lawsuits and derivative lawsuits are often brought against companies that have entered into merger agreements in an effort to enjoin the merger or seek monetary relief from such companies. Even if the lawsuits are without merit, defending against these claims can result in substantial costs and divert management time and resources. Sierra, MCC, and MDLY cannot predict the outcome of these lawsuits, or others, if any, nor can they predict the amount of time and expense that will be required to resolve any such litigation. An unfavorable resolution of any such litigation surrounding the Mergers could delay or prevent their consummation. In addition, the costs defending the litigation, even if resolved in Sierra's, MCC's, or MDLY's favor, could be substantial and such litigation could distract Sierra, MCC, or MDLY from pursuing the consummation of the Mergers and other potentially beneficial business opportunities.

If the Mergers do not close, neither Sierra, MCC, or MDLY will benefit from the expenses incurred in its pursuit.

The Mergers may not be completed. If the Mergers are not completed, Sierra, MCC, and MDLY will have incurred substantial expenses for which no ultimate benefit will have been received. Each of Sierra, MCC, and MDLY have incurred out-of-pocket expenses in connection with the Mergers for investment banking, legal and accounting fees and financial printing and other costs and expenses, much of which will be incurred even if the Mergers are not completed. In addition, depending upon the circumstances surrounding termination of the MCC Merger Agreement or the MDLY Merger Agreement, as applicable, Sierra, MCC or MDLY may be obligated to pay a termination fee to the other party to the applicable merger agreement. See “— Under certain circumstances, Sierra, MCC or MDLY may be obligated to pay a termination fee upon termination of the MCC Merger Agreement or the MDLY Merger Agreement.”

Failure to complete the Mergers could negatively impact Sierra's, MCC's, and MDLY's business, financial results, and ability to pay dividends and distributions, if any or at its current level, to Sierra Stockholders, MCC Stockholders, and MDLY Stockholders, and, in the case of MCC and MDLY, negatively impact stock prices.

If the Mergers are not completed, the ongoing businesses of Sierra, MCC and MDLY may be adversely affected. Sierra, MCC and MDLY may experience negative reactions from the financial markets and from their respective customers if the anticipated benefits of the Mergers are not able to be realized. Such anticipated benefits include, among others, the expected increase in distributions to the Combined Company's stockholders, the benefits of the larger balance sheet of the Combined Company and potential for greater scale, the fee earning potential of the Asset Management Business, the enhanced market value of the Sierra Common Stock following the completion of the Mergers upon listing on the NYSE and TASE, and the benefits of operational efficiencies, cost savings, and synergies. If the Mergers are not consummated, Sierra, MCC and MDLY cannot assure their respective stockholders that the risks described above will not negatively impact the business, financial results, and ability to pay dividends and distributions, if any or at its current level, to Sierra Stockholders, MCC Stockholders, and MDLY Stockholders, and, in the case of MCC and MDLY, negatively impact stock prices.

Termination of the MCC Merger Agreement or the MDLY Merger Agreement or failure to otherwise complete the Mergers could negatively impact Sierra, MCC, and MDLY.

Termination of the MCC Merger Agreement or the MDLY Merger Agreement or any failure to otherwise complete the Mergers may result in various consequences, including:

- Sierra's, MCC's, and MDLY's businesses may have been adversely impacted by the failure to pursue other beneficial opportunities due to the focus of management on the Mergers, without realizing any of the anticipated benefits of completing the Mergers;
- the market price of MCC Common Stock and MDLY Class A Common Stock may decline to the extent that the market price prior to termination reflects a market assumption that the Mergers will be completed;
- in the case of MCC and MDLY, it may not be able to find a party willing to pay an equivalent or more attractive price than the price Sierra has agreed to pay in the MCC Merger and the MDLY Merger, respectively; and
- the payment of any termination fee, if required under the circumstances, could adversely affect the financial condition and liquidity of Sierra, MCC, or MDLY.

Under certain circumstances, Sierra, MCC or MDLY may be obligated to pay a termination fee upon termination of the MCC Merger Agreement or the MDLY Merger Agreement.

The MCC Merger Agreement provides for the payment by Sierra or MCC to the other party a termination fee of $6,000,000 in cash if the MCC Merger Agreement is terminated by Sierra or MCC under certain circumstances. See “Description of the MCC Merger Agreement—Termination of the MCC Merger Agreement” and “Description of the MCC Merger Agreement—Termination Fees” for a discussion of the circumstances that could result in the payment of a termination fee under the MCC Merger Agreement.

The MDLY Merger Agreement provides for the payment by Sierra or MDLY to the other party a termination fee of $ 5,350,000 in cash if the MDLY Merger Agreement is terminated by Sierra or MDLY under certain circumstances. See “Description of the MDLY Merger Agreement—Termination of the MDLY Merger Agreement” and “Description of the MDLY Merger Agreement—Termination Fees” for a discussion of the circumstances that could result in the payment of a termination fee under the MDLY Merger Agreement.

The MCC Merger Agreement limits each of MCC’s and Sierra’s ability to actively pursue alternatives to the MCC Merger and to accept a superior proposal.

The MCC Merger Agreement contains provisions that limit each of Sierra’s and MCC’s ability to actively solicit, discuss or negotiate competing third-party proposals for strategic transactions. Although these provisions, which are customary for transactions of this type, allow Sierra and MCC to engage in negotiations regarding, and to ultimately accept, a MCC Merger Superior Proposal (as defined in “Description of MCC Merger Agreement—Additional Covenants—Non-Solicitation of Competing Transaction Proposals”) in certain circumstances, subject to the payment of a termination fee, such provisions might discourage a potential competing acquiror that might have an interest in acquiring all or a significant part of Sierra or MCC from considering or proposing a MCC Merger Superior Proposal to Sierra or MCC, or might result in a potential competing acquiror proposing to pay a lower price to acquire Sierra or MCC than it might otherwise have proposed to pay. For more information, see “Description of the MCC Merger Agreement—Additional Covenants—Nonsolicitation of Competing Transaction Proposals” and “Description of the MCC Merger Agreement—Termination Fees.”

The MDLY Merger Agreement limits each of MDLY’s and Sierra’s ability to actively pursue alternatives to the MDLY Merger and to accept a superior proposal.

The MDLY Merger Agreement contains provisions that limit each of Sierra’s and MDLY’s ability to actively solicit, discuss or negotiate competing third-party proposals for strategic transactions. Although these provisions, which are customary for transactions of this type, allow Sierra and MDLY to engage in negotiations regarding, and to ultimately accept, a MDLY Merger Superior Proposal (as defined in “Description of MDLY Merger Agreement—Additional Covenants—Non-Solicitation of Competing Transaction Proposals”) in certain circumstances, subject to the payment of a termination fee, such provisions might discourage a potential competing acquiror that might have an interest in acquiring all or a significant part of Sierra or MDLY from considering or proposing a MDLY Merger Superior Proposal to Sierra or MDLY, or might result in a potential competing acquiror proposing to pay a lower price to acquire Sierra or MDLY than it might otherwise have proposed to pay. For more information, see “Description of the MDLY Merger Agreement—Additional Covenants—Nonsolicitation of Competing Transaction Proposals” and “Description of the MDLY Merger Agreement—Termination Fees.”

In certain circumstances, Sierra, MCC, and MDLY may waive one or more conditions to the Mergers, or amend the MCC Merger Agreement or MDLY Merger Agreement, without resoliciting stockholder approval.

Certain conditions to Sierra’s and MCC’s obligations to complete the MCC Merger may be waived, in whole or in part, to the extent legally allowed, either unilaterally or by agreement of Sierra and MCC. In addition, certain conditions to Sierra’s and MDLY’s obligations to complete the MDLY Merger may be waived, in whole or in part, to the extent legally allowed, either unilaterally or by agreement of Sierra and MDLY. In the event that any such waiver does not require resolicitation of stockholders, the parties to the MCC Merger Agreement and the MDLY Merger Agreement will have the discretion to complete the MCC Merger and the MDLY Merger, respectively, without seeking further stockholder approval. However, certain conditions, such as the conditions requiring the approval of Sierra Stockholders, MCC Stockholders and MDLY Stockholders, are required under applicable law or the applicable company’s charter documents and may not be waived.

The MCC Merger Agreement and MDLY Merger Agreement may be amended by the respective parties at any time before or after receipt of Sierra Stockholder approval, MCC Stockholder approval or MDLY Stockholder approval, as the case may be; provided, however, that after receipt of the relevant stockholder approvals, there may not be any amendment of the MCC Merger Agreement or MDLY Merger Agreement that requires further approval under applicable law or its charter documents of the relevant stockholders without receipt of such further approvals.

In addition to the foregoing, waiver or amendment of the MCC Merger Agreement requires the consent of MDLY to the extent such waiver or amendment would adversely affect the economic or other rights or interests of MDLY and the MDLY Stockholders under the MCC Merger Agreement in any material respect. Conversely, waiver or amendment of the MDLY Merger Agreement requires the consent of MCC to the extent such waiver or amendment would adversely affect the economic or other rights or interests of MCC and the MCC Stockholders under the MDLY Merger Agreement in any material respect.

Certain persons related to the Companies have interests in the Mergers that differ from the interests of their respective stockholders.

Certain directors and executive officers of the Companies have financial interests in the Mergers that are different from, or in addition to, the interests of Sierra Stockholders, MCC Stockholders, and MDLY Stockholders. The Sierra Special Committee and, acting on the recommendation of the Sierra Special Committee, the Sierra Board were aware of and considered these interests, among other matters, in evaluating the MCC Merger Agreement, including the MCC Merger, and the MDLY Merger Agreement, including the MDLY Merger, and in recommending to Sierra Stockholders to approve the MCC Merger and the MDLY Merger. The MCC Special Committee and, acting on the recommendation of the MCC Special Committee, the MCC Board were aware of and considered these interests, among other matters, in evaluating the MCC Merger Agreement, including the MCC Merger, and in recommending to MCC Stockholders to approve the adoption of the MCC Merger Agreement. The MDLY Special Committee and, acting on the recommendation of the MDLY Special Committee, the MDLY Board were aware of and considered these interests, among other matters, in evaluating the MDLY Merger Agreement, including the MDLY Merger, and in recommending to MDLY Stockholders to approve the adoption of the MDLY Merger Agreement. These interests are described in more detail in “Special Factors — Background of the Mergers — Management’s Conflicts of Interests and Role in the Mergers.”

The Companies will be subject to business uncertainties and contractual restrictions while the Mergers are pending.

Uncertainty about the effect of the Mergers may have an adverse effect on each of the Companies and, consequently, on the Combined Company, following completion of the Mergers. These uncertainties could cause those that deal with Sierra, MCC, or MDLY to seek to change their existing business relationships with each of the Companies. In addition, each of the MCC Merger Agreement and the MDLY Merger Agreement restricts each of Sierra, MCC, and MDLY from taking actions that it might otherwise consider to be in its respective best interests. These restrictions may prevent Sierra, MCC, or MDLY from pursuing certain business opportunities that may arise prior to the completion of the Mergers. See “Description of the MCC Merger Agreement — Covenants Relating to the Conduct of the Business” for a description of the restrictive covenants to which Sierra and MCC are subject. See “Description of the MDLY Merger Agreement — Covenants Relating to the Conduct of the Business” for a description of the restrictive covenants to which Sierra and MDLY are subject.

The shares of Sierra Common Stock to be received by MCC Stockholders and MDLY Stockholders as a result of the Mergers will have different rights associated with them than shares of MCC Common Stock and MDLY Common Stock currently held by them.

The rights associated with Sierra Common Stock, MCC Common Stock and MDLY Common Stock are different from the rights associated with the Sierra Common Stock following the Mergers (assuming, in the case of Sierra, the Sierra Charter Amendments are approved). See “Comparison of Stockholder Rights” for a summary of the material differences between the rights of Sierra Stockholders, MCC Stockholders, and MDLY Stockholders.

The Mergers are conditioned on Sierra, MCC, MDLY and certain of its affiliates receiving exemptive relief from the SEC.

The Mergers are conditioned on Sierra, MCC, MDLY, and certain of their affiliates receiving exemptive relief from the SEC from: (i) Sections 17(d) and 57(a)(1), (2), and (4) of the Investment Company Act and Rule 17d-1 thereunder because the Mergers would involve a joint arrangement among two affiliated BDCs and their investment advisers and (ii) Sections 12(d)(3) and 60 of the Investment Company Act because, in connection with the MDLY Merger, MDLY, a registered investment adviser, will become a wholly owned subsidiary of the Combined Company. In addition, Sierra and certain of its affiliates are requesting exemptive relief from the SEC from (i) Sections 23(a), 23(b), 23(c), and 63 and pursuant to Section 61(a)(3)(B) and Sections 57(a)(4) and 57(i) of the Investment Company Act and Rule 17d-1 thereunder that would permit the Combined Company to grant stock options, restricted stock, and restricted stock units in exchange for and in recognition of services by its directors, executive officers and employees and (ii) Sections 18(a) and 61(a) of the Investment Company Act that would permit the Combined Company to exclude the debt of the SBIC Subsidiary guaranteed by the SBA from the definition of senior securities in the 200% asset coverage ratio that the Combined Company is required to maintain under the Investment Company Act. There can be no assurance if or when the Companies will receive the exemptive relief. See “Regulatory Approvals Required for the Mergers – SEC Request for Exemptive Relief.”

The MCC Merger is conditioned on MCC obtaining certain approvals from the SBA for the debentures issued by the SBIC Subsidiary.

The MCC Merger is conditioned on MCC obtaining from the SBA such approvals as may be necessary for the debentures issued by the SBIC Subsidiary to remain outstanding in accordance with their terms following the MCC Merger Effective Time. The SBIC Subsidiary is seeking SBA approval related to the Mergers; however, there can be no assurance that MCC will receive the requisite SBA approval or the exact timing of such approval. For more information, see “Regulatory Approvals Required for the Mergers – Request for SBA Approval.”

MDLY Stockholders could be subject to significant U.S. federal income tax liabilities if the MDLY Merger fails to qualify as tax-free reorganizations for U.S. federal income tax purposes.

The completion of the MDLY Merger is conditioned upon the receipt of the MDLY Merger Tax Opinion from Eversheds Sutherland (US) LLP or other acceptable counsel, dated the MDLY Merger Closing Date, substantially to the effect that the MDLY Merger will qualify as a “reorganization” within the meaning of Section 368(a) of the Code. The MDLY Merger Tax Opinion is not binding on the IRS or a court, and does not preclude the IRS from asserting or adopting a contrary position. It is possible that the MDLY Merger may fail to satisfy all of the requirements necessary to qualify as tax-free reorganizations. In this event, MDLY Stockholders could be subject to certain U.S. federal income tax consequences and, among others, the MDLY Merger would result in the recognition of gain or loss to MDLY Stockholders in the amount equal to the difference between their tax basis in their shares of MDLY Class A Common Stock and the value of the MDLY Merger Consideration. MDLY Stockholders would, in the event that the MDLY Merger does not qualify as tax-free reorganizations, receive a new tax basis in the shares of Sierra Common Stock they receive (initially equal to the value of such shares at the time of the MDLY Merger) for calculation of gain or loss upon their ultimate disposition and would start a new holding period for such shares.

The U.S. federal income tax consequences to MDLY Stockholders in the event that the MDLY Merger fails to qualify as tax-free reorganizations are complex. MDLY Stockholders are urged to consult their tax advisors regarding the U.S. federal income tax consequences that may be applicable to them in the event that the MDLY Merger does not qualify as tax-free reorganizations for U.S. federal income tax purposes. See “Material U.S. Federal Income Tax Consequences.”

Risks Relating to the Combined Company if the Mergers are Successfully Consummated

The Combined Company may be unable to realize the benefits anticipated by the Mergers, including estimated cost savings and synergies, or it may take longer than anticipated to achieve such benefits.

The realization of certain benefits anticipated as a result of the Mergers will depend in part on the integration of MCC’s investment portfolio with Sierra’s investment portfolio, as the Combined Company’s investment portfolio, the integration of MDLY’s existing asset management business with Sierra to become a wholly owned subsidiary of the Combined Company, and the integration of MCC’s and MDLY’s business and administrative operations with Sierra’s business and administrative operations as the Combined Company. There can be no assurance that MCC’s investment portfolio or business can be operated profitably or integrated successfully into Sierra’s investment portfolio or business or administrative operations in a timely fashion or at all. There also can be no assurance that MDLY’s existing asset management business can be operated profitably or successfully integrated as a wholly owned subsidiary of the Combined Company. The dedication of management resources to such integration may detract attention from the day-to-day business of the Combined Company and there can be no assurance that there will not be substantial costs associated with the transition processes or there will not be other material adverse effects as a result of these integration efforts. Such effects, including but not limited to, incurring unexpected costs or delays in connection with such integration and failure of MCC’s investment portfolio to perform as expected or failure of Merger Sub’s asset management business to perform as expected, could have a material adverse effect on the financial condition, results of operations, assets or business of the Combined Company.

Sierra also expects to achieve certain cost savings and synergies from the Mergers when the two companies have fully integrated their portfolios. It is possible that the estimates of the potential cost savings and synergies could turn out to be incorrect. In addition, the cost savings and synergies estimates also assume the Combined Company’s ability to combine the investment portfolios of Sierra and MCC and businesses and administrative operations of Sierra, MCC, and MDLY in a manner that permits those cost savings and synergies to be fully realized. If the estimates turn out to be incorrect or the Combined Company is not able to successfully combine the investment portfolios and businesses of the two companies, the anticipated cost savings and synergies may not be fully realized or realized at all or may take longer to realize than expected.

If Sierra internalizes its management functions, the Combined Company may not be able to retain or replace key personnel.

Upon completion of the Mergers, the Combined Company would be internally managed by MCC Advisors, its wholly owned adviser subsidiary. There can be no assurances that the Combined Company would be successful in retaining key personnel for the identification, selection, structuring, closing and monitoring of its investments. The Combined Company's investment team is integral to its asset management activities and has critical industry experience and relationships that it will rely on to implement its business plan. The Combined Company's success depends on its investment team's continued service. The departure of any of the members of the Combined Company's investment team could have a material adverse effect on its ability to achieve its investment objective. As a result, the Combined Company may not be able to operate its business as it expects, and its ability to compete could be harmed, which could cause its operating results to suffer. Moreover, the Combined Company may experience competition in attracting and retaining qualified personnel, particularly investment professionals, and it may be unable to maintain or grow its business if it cannot attract and retain such personnel.

As an internally managed BDC, the Combined Company will be subject to certain restrictions that may adversely affect its business.

As an internally managed BDC, the Combined Company's ability to offer more competitive and flexible compensation structures, such as offering both a profit sharing plan and an equity incentive plan, is subject to the limitations imposed by the Investment Company Act, which may limit the Combined Company's ability to attract and retain talented investment professionals. As such, these limitations could inhibit the Combined Company's ability to grow, pursue its business plan and attract and retain professional talent, any or all of which may have a negative impact on the Combined Company's business, financial condition and results of operations. Sierra and certain of its affiliates have filed an exemptive application with the SEC, which would allow the Combined Company to offer an equity incentive plan.

There has been no public market for Sierra Common Stock, and the Companies cannot assure you that the market price of Sierra Common Stock will not decline following the closing of the Mergers.

If the Mergers are successfully consummated, Sierra Common Stock will be listed on the NYSE under the symbol "SRA" and is expected to be listed on the TASE, with such listings expected to be effective as of the closing date of the Mergers. Prior to such date, there will have been no public trading market for Sierra Common Stock, and the Companies cannot assure you that one will develop or be sustained following the closing of the Mergers. The Companies cannot predict the prices at which Sierra Common Stock will trade following completion of the Mergers. See "Risks Relating to the Mergers — The MCC Merger Consideration and the MDLY Merger Consideration were the product of extensive negotiations among the parties and therefore may include business considerations beyond share price, NAV or other financial or valuation metrics relating to Sierra, MCC, and MDLY."

Shares of the Sierra Common Stock may trade at a discount from NAV.

Shares of closed-end investment companies, including BDCs, frequently trade at a market price that is less than the NAV that is attributable to those shares. This characteristic of closed-end investment companies is separate and distinct from the risk that the Combined Company's NAV per share may decline. It is not possible to accurately predict whether any shares of Sierra Common Stock will trade at, above, or below NAV after completion of the Mergers. BDCs as an industry have generally been trading below NAV. See "— Risks Relating to Sierra — Risks Relating to Sierra's Business and Structure — The capital markets may experience periods of disruption and instability. Such market conditions may materially and adversely affect debt and equity capital markets, which may have a negative impact on Sierra's business, financial condition and operations" and "—Risks Relating to MCC — Certain Risks in the Current Environment — Capital markets may experience periods of disruption and instability and MCC cannot predict when these conditions will occur. Such market conditions could materially and adversely affect debt and equity capital markets in the United States and abroad, which could have a negative impact on MCC's business, financial condition and results of operations." If and when Sierra Common Stock is trading below its NAV per share, the Combined Company will generally not be able to issue additional shares of Sierra Common Stock at its market price without first obtaining approval for such issuance from the Combined Company's stockholders and its independent directors. Sierra currently does not anticipate seeking such approval from its stockholders following the Mergers.

The Combined Company's cash distributions are not guaranteed and may fluctuate.

Sierra expects the Combined Company's distribution for the first twelve months following the closing of the Mergers will be $0.055 per share per month, which will consist of a regular base distribution per share of $0.045 and a supplementary distribution per share of $0.010. However, the Combined Company Board, in its sole discretion, will determine the amount of cash to be distributed to the Combined Company's stockholders based on various factors including, but not limited to, its results of operations, cash flow and capital requirements, economic conditions, tax considerations, borrowing capacity and other factors, including debt covenant restrictions that may impose limitations on cash payments, future acquisitions and divestitures and any stock repurchase program. Consequently, the Combined Company's distribution levels may not be as disclosed and may fluctuate.

Sierra Stockholders, MCC Stockholders, and MDLY Stockholders will experience a reduction in percentage ownership and voting power in the Combined Company as a result of the Mergers as compared to their current respective percentage ownership and voting power in Sierra, MCC, and MDLY.

Sierra Stockholders will experience a reduction in their respective percentage ownership interests and effective voting power in respect of the Combined Company relative to their respective ownership interests in Sierra prior to the Mergers. Consequently, Sierra Stockholders should expect to exercise less influence over the management and policies of the Combined Company following the completion of the Mergers than they currently exercise over the management and policies of Sierra. Similarly, MCC Stockholders will experience a reduction in their respective percentage ownership interests and effective voting power in respect of the Combined Company relative to their respective percentage ownership interests in MCC prior to the Mergers. Consequently, MCC Stockholders should expect to exercise less influence over the management and policies of the Combined Company following the completion of the Mergers than they currently exercise over the management and policies of MCC. Similarly, MDLY Stockholders will experience a reduction in their respective percentage ownership interests and effective voting power in respect of the Combined Company relative to their respective percentage ownership interests in MDLY prior to the Mergers. Consequently, MDLY Stockholders should expect to exercise less influence over the management and policies of the Combined Company following the completion of the Mergers than they currently exercise over the management and policies of MDLY.

If the Mergers are completed, based on the number of shares of Sierra Common Stock issued and outstanding as of September 30, 2018, Sierra Stockholders will own approximately 60.5% of the outstanding Combined Company Common Stock, MCC Stockholders will own approximately 31.2% of the outstanding Combined Company Common Stock, and MDLY Stockholders will own approximately 8.3% of the outstanding Combined Company Common Stock. In addition, after completion of the Mergers, subject to certain restrictions in the MCC Merger Agreement, Sierra may issue additional shares of Sierra Common Stock (including, subject to certain restrictions under the Investment Company Act and the MCC Merger Agreement, at prices below Sierra Common Stock's then current NAV per share if the requisite shareholder approval is obtained), all of which would further reduce the percentage ownership of the Combined Company held by former MCC Stockholders and current Sierra Stockholders. In addition, the issuance or sale by Sierra of shares of Sierra Common Stock at a discount to NAV poses a risk of dilution to stockholders.

The market price of the Sierra Common Stock after the completion of the Mergers may be affected by factors different from those affecting Sierra Common Stock, MCC Common Stock or MDLY Common Stock currently.

Sierra's, MCC's, and MDLY's businesses differ in some respects and, accordingly, the results of operations of the Combined Company and the market price of Sierra Common Stock after the completion of the Mergers may be affected by factors different from those currently affecting the independent results of operations of each of Sierra, MCC and MDLY. These factors include:

- greater number of shares outstanding;
- different composition of stockholder base;
- different portfolio composition and asset management activities;
- different management structure; and
- different asset allocation and capitalization.

Accordingly, the historical trading prices and financial results of Sierra, MCC and MDLY may not be indicative of these matters for the Combined Company following the completion of the Mergers. For a discussion of the Combined Company's business and of certain factors to consider in connection with the Combined Company's business, see "Information about the Combined Company." For a discussion of the business of Sierra, MCC and MDLY and of certain factors to consider in connection with their respective businesses, see "Business of Sierra," "Business of MCC" and "Business of MDLY," respectively.

The unaudited pro forma financial information of the Combined Company is presented for illustrative purposes only and may not be indicative of the results of operations or financial condition of the Combined Company following the Mergers.

The unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated financial information of the Combined Company is provided for illustrative purposes only and is not necessarily indicative of what the operating results or financial position of the Combined Company would have been had the Mergers been completed at the beginning of the periods or on the dates indicated, nor are they necessarily indicative of any future operating results or financial position of the Combined Company following the completion of the Mergers. The unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated financial information reflects adjustments based upon preliminary estimates of the fair value of assets to be acquired and liabilities to be assumed. The final acquisition accounting will be based upon the actual purchase price and the fair value of the assets and liabilities of MCC as of the date of the completion of the Mergers. In addition, subsequent to the closing date of the Mergers, there will be adjustments to the acquisition accounting as additional information becomes available. Accordingly, the final acquisition accounting may differ materially from the unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated financial information reflected in this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus. See "Unaudited Pro Forma Condensed Consolidated Financial Statements."

The accounting treatment applied to Sierra's acquisition of MDLY will have a material impact on the Combined Company's ability to comply with applicable asset coverage requirements under the Investment Company Act, and in turn on the Combined Company's ability to incur additional leverage.

Under the provisions of the Investment Company Act, the Combined Company will be permitted to issue debt securities or preferred stock and/or borrow money from banks and other financial institutions, collectively referred to as "senior securities," only in amounts such that the Combined Company's asset coverage ratio equals at least 200% after each issuance of senior securities (or 150% if, pursuant to the Investment Company Act, certain requirements are met). In general, if a BDC consolidates an entity in its financial statements any senior security of such entity will be included in, and therefore count against, the BDC's asset coverage ratio. The Combined Company will account for Sierra's acquisition of MDLY as an investment at fair value on its balance sheet, in accordance with ASC 946-320, "Financial Services – Investment Companies – Investments – Debt and Equity Securities." Accordingly, the Combined Company will not consolidate MDLY in its financial statements. Sierra made this determination based on the fact that MDLY is not an investment company and will not be providing substantially all of its services to Sierra. See "Accounting Treatment."

For purposes of the asset coverage test under the Investment Company Act, a BDC's asset coverage ratio is based on its consolidated total assets, less all liabilities and indebtedness not represented by senior securities, divided by total senior securities representing indebtedness. The Mergers are conditioned upon confirmation by the SEC that Merger Sub, as the successor to MDLY in the MDLY Merger, will be treated as a portfolio investment of the Combined Company and reflected in the Combined Company's consolidated financial statements at fair value for accounting purposes (i.e., not consolidated into the financial statements of the Combined Company). Based on that accounting treatment, MDLY's outstanding debt would not be included in the Combined Company's asset coverage analysis, which means that the debt incurred by MDLY would not count against the Combined Company's ability to incur additional leverage. However, if the Combined Company determines that a change to the accounting treatment currently expected to be applied to MDLY is necessary, and such change results in the consolidation of MDLY into the Combined Company's financial statements, then MDLY's outstanding debt will be included in the Combined Company's asset coverage analysis. In that event, the Combined Company's ability to incur any additional leverage could be hindered.

Notwithstanding the fact that the Combined Company's portfolio of investments will be more diversified than Sierra's and MCC's existing investment portfolios on a standalone basis, because the Combined Company's investment strategy will be focused primarily on privately held companies, such diversification may not materially reduce the risks associated with the Combined Company's investments.

As a general matter, a more diversified investment portfolio will generally reduce the risks relating to a BDC's investment portfolio. In that regard, the Combined Company's investment portfolio will be more diversified than Sierra's and MCC's existing investment portfolios on a standalone basis. However, because the Combined Company's investment strategy will be focused primarily on privately held companies that are inherently risky, combining Sierra's and MCC's investment portfolio may not materially reduce the risks associated with such investments. Investments in private companies pose certain incremental risks as compared to investments in public companies including that they:

- have reduced access to the capital markets, resulting in diminished capital resources and ability to withstand financial distress;
- may have limited financial resources and may be unable to meet their obligations under their debt securities that the Combined Company holds, which may be accompanied by a deterioration in the value of any collateral and a reduction in the likelihood of the Combined Company realizing any guarantees the Combined Company may have obtained in connection with the Combined Company's investment;
- may have shorter operating histories, narrower product lines and smaller market shares than larger businesses, which tend to render them more vulnerable to competitors' actions and changing market conditions, as well as general economic downturns;
- are more likely to depend on the management talents and efforts of a small group of persons; therefore, the death, disability, resignation or termination of one or more of these persons could have a material adverse impact on the Combined Company's portfolio company and, in turn, on the Combined Company; and
- generally have less predictable operating results, may from time to time be parties to litigation, may be engaged in rapidly changing businesses with products subject to a substantial risk of obsolescence, and may require substantial additional capital to support their operations, finance expansion or maintain their competitive position.

In addition, investments in private companies tend to be less liquid. The securities of private companies are not publicly traded or actively traded on the secondary market and are, instead, traded, if at all, on a privately negotiated over-the-counter secondary market for institutional investors. These privately negotiated over-the-counter secondary markets may be inactive during an economic downturn or a credit crisis. In addition, the securities in these companies will be subject to legal and other restrictions on resale or will otherwise be less liquid than publicly traded securities. Also, under the Investment Company Act, if there is no readily available market for these investments, the Combined Company is required to carry these investments at fair value as determined by the Combined Company Board. As a result, if the Combined Company is required to liquidate all or a portion of the Combined Company's portfolio quickly, the Combined Company may realize significantly less than the value at which the Combined Company had previously recorded these investments. The Combined Company may also face other restrictions on its ability to liquidate an investment in a portfolio company to the extent that the Combined Company or any of their respective affiliates have material nonpublic information regarding such portfolio company or where the sale would be an impermissible joint transaction. The reduced liquidity of the Combined Company's investments may make it difficult for the Combined Company to dispose of them at a favorable price, and, as a result, the Combined Company may suffer losses.

Finally, little public information generally exists about private companies and these companies may not have third-party debt ratings or audited financial statements. The Combined Company must therefore rely on its ability to obtain adequate information through due diligence to evaluate the creditworthiness and potential returns from investing in these companies. Additionally, these companies and their financial information will not generally be subject to the Sarbanes-Oxley Act and other rules that govern public companies. If the Combined Company is unable to obtain all material information about these companies, the Combined Company may not make a fully informed investment decision, and the Combined Company may lose money on its investments.

The Combined Company will be subject to corporate-level U.S. federal income tax if it is unable to qualify for the tax treatment applicable to RICs under Subchapter M of the Code or to satisfy RIC distribution requirements.

To maintain RIC tax treatment under the Code, the Combined Company must meet the following minimum annual distribution, income source and asset diversification requirements. The minimum annual distribution requirement for a RIC will be satisfied if the Combined Company distributes to Combined Company Stockholders on an annual basis at least 90% of the Combined Company's "investment company taxable income," which generally is its net ordinary income plus the excess of realized net short-term capital gains over realized net long-term capital losses, if any. The Combined Company would be taxed on any retained income and/or gains, including any short-term capital gains or long-term capital gains. Because the Combined Company may use debt financing, the Combined Company is subject to an asset coverage ratio requirement under the Investment Company Act and may in the future become subject to certain financial covenants under loan and credit agreements that could, under certain circumstances, restrict the Combined Company from making distributions necessary to satisfy the RIC distribution requirement. If the Combined Company is unable to obtain cash from other sources, the Combined Company could fail to qualify for RIC tax treatment, or could be required to retain a portion of the Combined Company's income or gains, and thus become subject to corporate-level U.S. federal income tax.

The income source requirement will be satisfied if the Combined Company obtains at least 90% of the Combined Company's income for each year from dividends, interest, gains from the sale of stock or securities, or similar sources. The asset diversification requirement will be satisfied if the Combined Company meets certain asset diversification requirements at the end of each quarter of the Combined Company's taxable year. Such diversification requirements may be more difficult to satisfy once Sierra's portfolio is combined with MCC's portfolio. To satisfy this requirement, at least 50% of the value of the Combined Company's assets must consist of cash, cash equivalents, U.S. Government securities, securities of other RICs, and other securities, with those other securities limited, in respect of any one issuer, to an amount that does not exceed 5% of the value of its total assets and that does not represent more than 10% of the outstanding voting securities of such issuer; and no more than 25% of the value of the Combined Company's assets can be invested in the securities, other than U.S. government securities or securities of other RICs, of one issuer, of two or more issuers that are controlled, as determined under applicable Code rules, by the Combined Company and that are engaged in the same or similar or related trades or businesses or of certain "qualified publicly traded partnerships." Failure to meet these requirements may result in the Combined Company's having to dispose of certain investments quickly in order to prevent the loss of RIC tax treatment. Because most of the Combined Company's investments will be in private companies, and therefore will be relatively illiquid, any such dispositions could be made at disadvantageous prices and could result in substantial losses.

If the Combined Company fails to qualify for or maintain RIC tax treatment for any reason and is subject to corporate-level U.S. federal income tax, the resulting corporate taxes could substantially reduce the Combined Company's net assets, the amount of income available for distribution, and the amount of the Combined Company's distributions. Such a failure would have a material adverse effect on the Combined Company's results of operations and financial conditions, and thus, the Combined Company Stockholders.

Risks Relating to Sierra

The following risk factors apply to Sierra prior to closing of the Mergers and, following the completion of the Mergers, will apply to the Combined Company. As it relates to the period following the closing of the Mergers, references below to SIC Advisors should be replaced with MCC Advisors, which will replace SIC Advisors as the investment adviser to Sierra, in its capacity as the Combined Company after the closing of the Mergers.

Risks Relating to Sierra's Business and Structure

The capital markets may experience periods of disruption and instability. Such market conditions may materially and adversely affect debt and equity capital markets, which may have a negative impact on Sierra's business, financial condition and operations.

From time to time, capital markets may experience periods of disruption and instability. The U.S. and global capital markets experienced extreme volatility and disruption during the economic downturn that began in mid-2007, and the U.S. economy was in a recession for several consecutive calendar quarters during the same period.

Various social and political tensions in the United States and globally, including instability in the financial markets, may contribute to increased market volatility, may have long-term effects on the United States and worldwide financial markets, and may cause economic uncertainties or deterioration in the United States and worldwide. In recent years, financial markets have been affected at times by a number of global macroeconomic and political events, including the following: large sovereign debts and fiscal deficits of several countries in Europe and in emerging markets jurisdictions, levels of non-performing loans on the balance sheets of European banks, the potential effect of any European country leaving the Eurozone, the potential effect of the United Kingdom leaving the European Union, the potential effect of Scotland leaving the United Kingdom, and market volatility and loss of investor confidence driven by political events, including the general elections in the United Kingdom in June 2017 and in Germany in September 2017 and referenda in the United Kingdom in June 2016 and Italy in December 2016. Market and economic disruptions have affected, and may in the future affect, consumer confidence levels and spending, personal bankruptcy rates, levels of incurrence and default on consumer debt and home prices, among other factors. Sierra cannot assure you that market disruptions in Europe, including the increased cost of funding for certain governments and financial institutions, will not impact the global economy, and Sierra cannot assure you that assistance packages will be available, or if available, be sufficient to stabilize countries and markets in Europe or elsewhere affected by a financial crisis. To the extent uncertainty regarding any economic recovery in Europe negatively impacts consumer confidence and consumer credit factors, Sierra's business, financial condition and results of operations could be significantly and adversely affected. In the second quarter of 2015, stock prices in China experienced a significant drop, resulting primarily from continued sell-off of shares trading in Chinese markets. In August 2015, Chinese authorities sharply devalued China's currency. In June 2016, the United Kingdom held a referendum in which voters approved an exit from the European Union ("Brexit"), and, subsequently, on March 29, 2017, the U.K. government began the formal process of leaving the European Union, which is set to occur on March 29, 2019. Brexit created political and economic uncertainty and instability in the global markets (including currency and credit markets), and especially in the United Kingdom and the European Union, and this uncertainty and instability may last indefinitely. Because of the election results in the U.K. in June 2017, there is increased uncertainty on the timing of Brexit. There is also continued concern about national-level support for the euro and the accompanying coordination of fiscal and wage policy among European Economic and Monetary Union member countries. These market conditions have historically and could again have a material adverse effect on debt and equity capital markets in the United States and Europe, which could have a materially negative impact on Sierra's business, financial condition and results of operations. Sierra and other companies in the financial services sector may have to access, if available, alternative markets for debt and equity capital.

The Republican Party currently controls both the executive and legislative branches of government, which increases the likelihood that legislation may be adopted that could significantly affect the regulation of U.S. financial markets. Areas subject to potential change, amendment or repeal include the Dodd-Frank Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act of 2010 ("Dodd-Frank Act") and the authority of the Federal Reserve and the Financial Stability Oversight Council. The United States may also potentially withdraw from or renegotiate various trade agreements and take other actions that would change current trade policies of the United States. Sierra cannot predict which, if any, of these actions will be taken or, if taken, their effect on the financial stability of the United States. Such actions could have a significant adverse effect on Sierra's business, financial condition and results of operations. Sierra cannot predict the effects of these or similar events in the future on the U.S. economy and securities markets or on Sierra's investments. Sierra monitors developments and seeks to manage its investments in a manner consistent with achieving Sierra's investment objective, but there can be no assurance that Sierra will be successful in doing so.

Equity capital may be difficult to raise during periods of adverse or volatile market conditions because, subject to some limited exceptions, as a BDC, Sierra is generally not able to issue additional shares of Sierra Common Stock at a price less than NAV without first obtaining approval for such issuance from Sierra Stockholders and Sierra's independent directors. Volatility and dislocation in the capital markets can also create a challenging environment in which to raise or access debt capital. The reappearance of market conditions similar to those experienced from 2008 through 2009 for any substantial length of time could make it difficult to extend the maturity of or refinance Sierra's existing indebtedness or obtain new indebtedness with similar terms and any failure to do so could have a material adverse effect on Sierra's business. The debt capital that will be available to Sierra in the future, if at all, may be at a higher cost and on less favorable terms and conditions than what Sierra currently experiences. If Sierra is unable to raise or refinance debt, then Sierra's equity investors may not benefit from the potential for increased returns on equity resulting from leverage and Sierra may be limited in its ability to make new commitments or to fund existing commitments to Sierra's portfolio companies. Significant changes or volatility in the capital markets may also have a negative effect on the valuations of Sierra's investments. While most of Sierra's investments are not publicly traded, applicable accounting standards require Sierra to assume as part of its valuation process that its investments are sold in a principal market to market participants (even if Sierra plans on holding an investment through its maturity).

Significant changes in the capital markets may also affect the pace of Sierra's investment activity and the potential for liquidity events involving Sierra's investments. Thus, the illiquidity of Sierra's investments may make it difficult for Sierra to sell such investments to access capital if required, and as a result, Sierra could realize significantly less than the value at which Sierra has recorded its investments if Sierra were required to sell them for liquidity purposes. An inability to raise or access capital could have a material adverse effect on Sierra's business, financial condition or results of operations.

Significant developments stemming from the United Kingdom's referendum on membership in the European Union could have a material adverse effect on Sierra.

In June 2016, the United Kingdom held a referendum in which a majority of voters voted in favor of Brexit, and, subsequently, on March 29, 2017, the U.K. government began the formal process of leaving the European Union, which is set to occur on March 29, 2019. Brexit has created political and economic uncertainty, particularly in the United Kingdom and the European Union, and this uncertainty may last for years. Negotiations are expected to commence to determine the future terms of the United Kingdom's relationship with the European Union. Events that could occur in the future as a consequence of the United Kingdom's withdrawal, including the possible breakup of the United Kingdom, may continue to cause significant volatility in global financial markets, including in global currency and credit markets. This volatility could cause a slowdown in economic activity in the United Kingdom, Europe or globally, which could adversely affect Sierra's operating results and growth prospects. Any of these effects of Brexit, and others Sierra cannot anticipate, could have unpredictable consequences for credit markets and adversely affect Sierra's business, results of operations and financial performance.

The downgrade of the U.S. credit rating and economic crisis in Europe could negatively impact Sierra's business, financial condition and earnings.

U.S. debt ceiling and budget deficit concerns together with signs of deteriorating sovereign debt conditions in Europe continue to present the possibility of a credit-rating downgrade, economic slowdowns, or a recession for the United States. The impact of any further downgrades to the U.S. government's sovereign credit rating or downgraded sovereign credit ratings of European countries or the Russian Federation, or their perceived creditworthiness could adversely affect the U.S. and global financial markets and economic conditions. These developments, along with any further European sovereign debt issues, could cause interest rates and borrowing costs to rise, which may negatively impact Sierra's ability to access the debt markets on favorable terms. Continued adverse economic conditions could have a material adverse effect on Sierra's business, financial condition and results of operations.

In October 2014, the Federal Reserve announced that it was concluding its bond-buying program. It is unknown what effect, if any, the conclusion of this program will have on credit markets and the value of Sierra's investments. These and any future developments and reactions of the credit markets toward these developments could cause interest rates and borrowing costs to rise, which may negatively impact Sierra's ability to obtain debt financing on favorable terms. In September 2018, the Federal Reserve raised the federal funds rate, which was the third such interest rate hike in 2018, to a range between 2.00% to 2.25%, and the Federal Reserve has announced its intention to continue to raise the federal funds rate over time. However, if key economic indicators, such as the unemployment rate or inflation, do not progress at a rate consistent with the Federal Reserve's objectives, the target range for the federal funds rate may increase and cause interest rates and borrowing costs to rise, which may negatively impact Sierra's ability to access the debt markets on favorable terms. Any continued adverse economic conditions could have a material adverse effect on Sierra's business, financial condition and results of operations.

Rising interest rates may adversely affect the value of Sierra's portfolio investments which could have an adverse effect on Sierra's business, financial condition and results of operations.

Sierra's debt investments may be based on floating rates, such as LIBOR, EURIBOR, the Federal Funds Rate or the Prime Rate. General interest rate fluctuations may have a substantial negative impact on Sierra's investments, the value of Sierra Common Stock and Sierra's rate of return on invested capital. A reduction in the interest rates on new investments relative to interest rates on current investments could also have an adverse impact on Sierra's net interest income. An increase in interest rates could decrease the value of any investments Sierra holds which earn fixed interest rates, including subordinated loans, senior and junior secured and unsecured debt securities and loans and high yield bonds, and also could increase Sierra's interest expense, thereby decreasing Sierra's net income. Also, an increase in interest rates available to investors could make investment in Sierra Common Stock less attractive if Sierra is not able to increase Sierra's distribution rate, which could reduce the value of Sierra Common Stock.

Because Sierra may borrow funds and may issue preferred shares to finance investments, Sierra's net investment income may depend, in part, upon the difference between the rate at which Sierra borrows funds or pay distributions on preferred shares and the rate that Sierra's investments yield. As a result, Sierra can offer no assurance that a significant change in market interest rates will not have a material adverse effect on Sierra's net investment income. In periods of rising interest rates, Sierra's cost of funds would increase except to the extent Sierra has issued fixed rate debt or preferred shares, which could reduce Sierra's net investment income.

You should also be aware that a change in the general level of interest rates can be expected to lead to a change in the interest rate Sierra receives on many of Sierra's debt investments. Accordingly, a change in the interest rate could make it easier for Sierra to meet or exceed the performance threshold and may result in a substantial increase in the amount of incentive fees payable to SIC Advisors with respect to the portion of the incentive fee based on income.

Changes relating to the LIBOR calculation process may adversely affect the value of Sierra's portfolio of LIBOR-indexed, floating-rate debt securities.

In the recent past, concerns have been publicized that some of the member banks surveyed by the British Bankers' Association ("BBA") in connection with the calculation of LIBOR across a range of maturities and currencies may have been under-reporting or otherwise manipulating the inter-bank lending rate applicable to them in order to profit on their derivatives positions or to avoid an appearance of capital insufficiency or adverse reputational or other consequences that may have resulted from reporting inter-bank lending rates higher than those they actually submitted. A number of BBA member banks entered into settlements with their regulators and law enforcement agencies with respect to alleged manipulation of LIBOR, and investigations by regulators and governmental authorities in various jurisdictions are ongoing.

Actions by the BBA, regulators or law enforcement agencies as a result of these or future events, may result in changes to the manner in which LIBOR is determined. Potential changes, or uncertainty related to such potential changes, may adversely affect the market for LIBOR-based securities, including Sierra's portfolio of LIBOR-indexed, floating-rate debt securities. In addition, any further changes or reforms to the determination or supervision of LIBOR may result in a sudden or prolonged increase or decrease in reported LIBOR, which could have an adverse impact on the market for LIBOR-based securities or the value of Sierra's portfolio of LIBOR-indexed, floating-rate debt securities. For example, on July 27, 2017, the U.K. Financial Conduct Authority announced that it intends to stop persuading or compelling banks to submit LIBOR rates after 2021. At this time, it is not possible to predict the effect of any such changes, any establishment of alternative reference rates or any other reforms to LIBOR that may be enacted in the United Kingdom or elsewhere. The elimination of LIBOR or any other changes or reforms to the determination or supervision of LIBOR could have an adverse impact on the market for or value of any LIBOR-indexed, floating-rate debt securities or on Sierra's overall financial condition or results of operations.

Sierra's business and operation could be negatively affected if Sierra becomes subject to any securities litigation or stockholder activism, which could cause Sierra to incur significant expense, hinder execution of its investment strategy and impact Sierra's stock price.

In the past, following periods of volatility in the market price of a company's securities, securities class-action litigation has often been brought against that company. Stockholder activism, which could take many forms or arise in a variety of situations, has been increasing in the BDC space recently. While Sierra is currently not subject to any securities litigation or stockholder activism, due to the potential volatility of Sierra's stock price and for a variety of other reasons, Sierra may in the future become the target of securities litigation or stockholder activism. Securities litigation and stockholder activism, including potential proxy contests, could result in substantial costs and divert management's and the Sierra Board's attention and resources from Sierra's business. Additionally, such securities litigation and stockholder activism could give rise to perceived uncertainties as to Sierra's future, adversely affect Sierra's relationships with service providers and make it more difficult to attract and retain qualified personnel. Also, Sierra may be required to incur significant legal fees and other expenses related to any securities litigation and activist stockholder matters. Further, Sierra's stock price could be subject to significant fluctuation or otherwise be adversely affected by the events, risks and uncertainties of any securities litigation and stockholder activism.

Sierra is highly dependent on information systems and systems failures could significantly disrupt Sierra's business, which may, in turn, negatively affect the market price of Sierra Common Stock and Sierra's ability to pay dividends.

Sierra's business is highly dependent on Sierra's and third parties' communications and information systems. Any failure or interruption of those systems, including as a result of the termination of an agreement with any third-party service providers, could cause delays or other problems in Sierra's activities. Sierra's financial, accounting, data processing, backup or other operating systems and facilities may fail to operate properly or become disabled or damaged as a result of a number of factors including events that are wholly or partially beyond Sierra's control and adversely affect Sierra's business. There could be:

- sudden electrical or telecommunications outages;
- natural disasters such as earthquakes, tornadoes and hurricanes;
- disease pandemics;
- events arising from local or larger scale political or social matters, including terrorist acts; and
- cyber-attacks.

These events, in turn, could have a material adverse effect on Sierra's operating results and negatively affect the market price of Sierra Common Stock and Sierra's ability to pay dividends to Sierra Stockholders.

A failure of cybersecurity systems, as well as the occurrence of events unanticipated in Sierra's disaster recovery systems and management continuity planning, could impair Sierra's ability to conduct business effectively.

The occurrence of a disaster, such as a cyber-attack against Sierra or against a third-party that has access to Sierra's data or networks, a natural catastrophe, an industrial accident, failure of Sierra's disaster recovery systems, or consequential employee error, could have an adverse effect on Sierra's ability to communicate or conduct business, negatively impacting Sierra's operations and financial condition. This adverse effect can become particularly acute if those events affect Sierra's electronic data processing, transmission, storage, and retrieval systems, or impact the availability, integrity, or confidentiality of Sierra's data.

Sierra depends heavily upon computer systems to perform necessary business functions. Despite Sierra's implementation of a variety of security measures, Sierra's computer systems, networks, and data, like those of other companies, could be subject to cyber-attacks and unauthorized access, use, alteration, or destruction, such as from physical and electronic break-ins or unauthorized tampering. If one or more of these events occurs, it could potentially jeopardize the confidential, proprietary, and other information processed, stored in, and transmitted through Sierra's computer systems and networks. Such an attack could cause interruptions or malfunctions in Sierra's operations, which could result in financial losses, litigation, regulatory penalties, client dissatisfaction or loss, reputational damage, and increased costs associated with mitigation of damages and remediation.

Third parties with which Sierra does business may also be sources of cybersecurity or other technological risk. Sierra outsources certain functions and these relationships allow for the storage and processing of Sierra's information, as well as client, counterparty, employee and borrower information. While Sierra engages in actions to reduce Sierra's exposure resulting from outsourcing, ongoing threats may result in unauthorized access, loss, exposure or destruction, or other cybersecurity incident that affects Sierra's data, resulting in increased costs and other consequences, as described above.

Difficult market and political conditions may adversely affect Sierra's business in many ways, including by reducing the value or hampering the performance of the investments made by Sierra's portfolio companies, each of which could materially and adversely affect Sierra's business, results of operations and financial condition.

Sierra's business is materially affected by conditions in the global financial markets and economic and political conditions throughout the world, such as interest rates, availability and cost of credit, inflation rates, economic uncertainty, changes in laws (including laws relating to Sierra's taxation, taxation of Sierra's investors, the possibility of changes to tax laws in either the United States or any non-U.S. jurisdiction and regulations on asset managers), trade barriers, commodity prices, currency exchange rates and controls and national and international political circumstances (including wars, terrorist acts and security operations). These factors are outside of Sierra's control and may affect the level and volatility of asset prices and the liquidity and value of investments, and Sierra may not be able to or may choose not to manage Sierra's exposure to these conditions. Ongoing developments in the U.S. and global financial markets following the turmoil in the global capital markets and the financial services industry in late 2008 and early 2009 continue to illustrate that the current environment is still one of uncertainty and instability for investment management businesses. In the future, the U.S. government may not be able to meet its debt payments unless the federal debt ceiling is raised. If legislation increasing the debt ceiling is not enacted, as needed, and the debt ceiling is reached, the U.S. federal government may stop or delay making payments on its obligations, which could negatively impact the U.S. economy. These and other conditions in the global financial markets and the global economy may result in adverse consequences for Sierra's portfolio companies, including by reducing the value or hampering the performance of the investments made by Sierra's portfolio companies, each of which could materially affect Sierra's business, results of operations and financial condition.

A failure on Sierra's part to maintain its status as a BDC would significantly reduce Sierra's operating flexibility.

If Sierra fails to maintain its status as a BDC, Sierra might be regulated as a closed-end investment company that is required to register under the Investment Company Act, which would subject Sierra to additional regulatory restrictions and significantly decrease Sierra's operating flexibility. In addition, any such failure could cause an event of default under Sierra's outstanding indebtedness, which could have a material adverse effect on Sierra's business, financial condition or results of operations.

Sierra may suffer credit losses.

Private debt in the form of secured loans to corporate and asset-based borrowers is highly speculative and involves a high degree of risk of credit loss, and therefore an investment in Sierra's securities may not be suitable for someone with a low tolerance for risk. These risks are likely to increase during an economic recession, such as the economic recession or downturn that the United States and many other countries have recently experienced or are experiencing.

Price declines in the corporate leveraged loan market may adversely affect the fair value of Sierra's portfolio, reducing Sierra's NAV through increased net unrealized depreciation.

Prior to the onset of the financial crisis that began in 2007, securitized investment vehicles, hedge funds and other highly leveraged non-bank financial institutions comprised the majority of the market for purchasing and holding senior and subordinated debt. As the trading price of the loans underlying these portfolios began to deteriorate beginning in the first quarter of 2007, Sierra believes that many institutions were forced to raise cash by selling their interests in performing assets in order to satisfy margin requirements or the equivalent of margin requirements imposed by their lenders. This resulted in a forced deleveraging cycle of price declines, compulsory sales, and further price declines, with falling underlying credit values, widespread redemption requests, and other constraints resulting from the credit crisis generating further selling pressure.

Conditions in the medium- and large-sized U.S. corporate debt market may experience similar or worse disruption or deterioration in the future, which may cause pricing levels to similarly decline or be volatile. As a result, Sierra's NAV could decline through an increase in unrealized depreciation and incurrence of realized losses in connection with the sale of Sierra's investments, which could have a material adverse impact on Sierra's business, financial condition and results of operations.

Sierra's ability to achieve its investment objective depends on SIC Advisors' ability to manage and support Sierra's investment process. If SIC Advisors was to lose a significant number of its key professionals, Sierra's ability to achieve its investment objective could be significantly harmed.

Sierra has no internal management capacity or employees other than Sierra's appointed executive officers and is dependent upon the investment expertise, skill and network of business contacts of SIC Advisors to achieve Sierra's investment objective. SIC Advisors will evaluate, negotiate, structure, execute, monitor, and service Sierra's investments. Sierra's future success depends to a significant extent on the continued service and coordination of SIC Advisors, including its key professionals. The departure of a significant number of SIC Advisors' key professionals could have a material adverse effect on Sierra's ability to achieve its investment objective. Sierra's ability to achieve its investment objective also depends on the ability of SIC Advisors to identify, analyze, invest in, finance, and monitor companies that meet Sierra's investment criteria. SIC Advisors' capabilities in structuring the investment process, providing competent, attentive and efficient services to Sierra, and facilitating access to financing on acceptable terms depend on the involvement of investment professionals in an adequate number and of adequate sophistication to match the corresponding flow of transactions. To achieve Sierra's investment objective, SIC Advisors may need to retain, hire, train, supervise, and manage new investment professionals to participate in Sierra's investment selection and monitoring process. SIC Advisors may not be able to find qualified investment professionals in a timely manner or at all. Any failure to do so could have a material adverse effect on Sierra's business, financial condition and results of operations.

In addition, the Sierra Investment Advisory Agreement has termination provisions that allow the agreement to be terminated by Sierra on 60 days' notice or by SIC Advisors on 120 days' notice without penalty.

Sierra depends upon senior management personnel of SIC Advisors for Sierra's future success, and if SIC Advisors is unable to retain qualified personnel or if SIC Advisors loses any member of its senior management team, Sierra's ability to achieve Sierra's investment objective could be significantly harmed.

Sierra depends on Sierra's investment management team, which is provided by SIC Advisors, for the identification, final selection, structuring, closing and monitoring of Sierra's investments. Sierra's investment management team is integral to Sierra's asset management activities and has critical industry experience and relationships that Sierra will rely on to implement Sierra's business plan. Sierra's future success depends on Sierra's investment management team's continued service to SIC Advisors. The departure of any of the members of SIC Advisors' investment management team could have a material adverse effect on Sierra's ability to achieve Sierra's investment objective. As a result, Sierra may not be able to operate Sierra's business as Sierra expects, and Sierra's ability to compete could be harmed, which could cause Sierra's operating results to suffer. In addition, Sierra can offer no assurance that SIC Advisors will remain Sierra's investment adviser or Sierra's administrator.

SIC Advisors may not be able to achieve the same or similar returns as those achieved in the past by Sierra's senior management and investment management team.

The track record and achievements of the senior management and investment management team of SIC Advisors are not necessarily indicative of future results that will be achieved by SIC Advisors. As a result, SIC Advisors may not be able to achieve the same or similar returns as those achieved by Sierra's senior management and investment management team during their tenure with SIC Advisors or while they were employed at prior positions.

Because Sierra expects to distribute substantially all of Sierra's net investment income and net realized capital gains to Sierra Stockholders, Sierra will need additional capital to finance Sierra's growth and such capital may not be available on favorable terms or at all.

Sierra has elected and qualified to be taxed for U.S. federal income tax purposes as a RIC under Subchapter M of the Code. As a RIC, Sierra must meet certain requirements, including source-of-income, asset diversification and distribution requirements in order to not have to pay corporate-level U.S. federal income taxes on income Sierra distributes to Sierra Stockholders as dividends, which allows Sierra to substantially reduce or eliminate Sierra's corporate-level U.S. federal income tax liability. As a BDC, Sierra is generally required to meet a coverage ratio of total assets to total senior securities, which includes all of Sierra's borrowings and any preferred stock Sierra may issue in the future, of at least 200% (or 150% if, pursuant to the Investment Company Act, certain requirements are met) at the time Sierra issues any debt or preferred stock. This requirement limits the amount of Sierra's leverage. Because Sierra will continue to need capital to grow Sierra's investment portfolio, this limitation may prevent Sierra from incurring debt or issuing preferred stock and require Sierra to raise additional equity at a time when it may be disadvantageous to do so. Sierra cannot assure you that debt and equity financing will be available to Sierra on favorable terms, or at all, and debt financings may be restricted by the terms of any of Sierra's outstanding borrowings. In addition, as a BDC, Sierra is generally not permitted to issue common stock priced below NAV without stockholder approval. If additional funds are not available to Sierra, it could be forced to curtail or cease new lending and investment activities, and Sierra's NAV could decline.

The amount of any distributions Sierra pays is uncertain. Sierra may not be able to pay distributions to Sierra Stockholders or be able to sustain them and Sierra's distributions may not grow over time.

Sierra began declaring semi-monthly distributions, which are paid on a monthly basis, to Sierra Stockholders beginning in July 2012 and intends to continue declaring semi-monthly distributions to stockholders, to the extent that Sierra has assets legally available for distribution. Sierra cannot assure you that it will achieve investment results that will allow it to make a targeted level of cash distributions or year-to-year increases in cash distributions. All distributions that Sierra makes will be at the discretion of the Sierra Board and will depend on Sierra's earnings, Sierra's financial condition, maintenance of Sierra's RIC tax treatment and other factors as the Sierra Board may deem to be relevant. Sierra's ability to pay distributions might be adversely affected by the impact of the risks described in this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus. In addition, the inability to satisfy the asset coverage test applicable to Sierra as a BDC may limit Sierra's ability to pay distributions. As a result, Sierra cannot assure you that Sierra will pay distributions to Sierra Stockholders in the future.

Sierra's distribution proceeds may exceed Sierra's earnings. Sierra has not established any limit on the extent to which Sierra may use borrowings, if any, or proceeds from Sierra's offering to fund distributions, which may reduce the amount of capital Sierra ultimately invests in assets.

The distributions Sierra pays to Sierra Stockholders may exceed earnings. In the event that Sierra encounters delays in locating suitable investment opportunities, Sierra may pay Sierra's distributions from the proceeds of Sierra's offering or from borrowings in anticipation of future cash flow, which may constitute a return of a Sierra Stockholder's capital and will lower such Sierra Stockholder's tax basis in its shares. Distributions from the proceeds of Sierra's offering or from borrowings also could reduce the amount of capital Sierra ultimately invest in portfolio companies. Accordingly, Sierra Stockholders who receive the payment of a dividend or other distribution from Sierra should not assume that such dividend or other distribution is the result of a net profit earned by Sierra. The Expense Support and Reimbursement Agreement with SIC Advisors expired on December 31, 2016, and was not renewed, which will make it more likely that distributions may include a return of capital.

Because Sierra's business model depends to a significant extent upon relationships with corporations, financial institutions and investment firms, the inability of SIC Advisors to maintain or develop these relationships, or the failure of these relationships to generate investment opportunities, could adversely affect Sierra's business.

SIC Advisors depends on its relationships with corporations, financial institutions and investment firms, and Sierra relies indirectly to a significant extent upon these relationships to provide Sierra with potential investment opportunities. If SIC Advisors fails to maintain its existing relationships or develop new relationships or sources of investment opportunities, Sierra may not be able to grow Sierra's investment portfolio. In addition, individuals with whom SIC Advisors have relationships are not obligated to provide Sierra with investment opportunities, and, therefore, there is no assurance that such relationships will generate investment opportunities for Sierra.

A significant portion of Sierra's investment portfolio is recorded at fair value as determined in good faith by the Sierra Board and, as a result, there will be uncertainty as to the value of Sierra's portfolio investments.

The debt and equity securities in which Sierra invests for which market quotations are not readily available will be valued at fair value as determined in good faith by or under the direction of the Sierra Board. Most, if not all, of Sierra's investments (other than cash and cash equivalents) will be classified as Level 3 under ASC Topic 820 — Fair Value Measurements and Disclosures. This means that Sierra's portfolio valuations will be based on unobservable inputs and Sierra's own assumptions about how market participants would price the asset or liability in question. Sierra expects that inputs into the determination of fair value of Sierra's portfolio investments will require significant management judgment or estimation. Even if observable market data are available, such information may be the result of consensus pricing information or broker quotes, which include a disclaimer that the broker would not be held to such a price in an actual transaction. The non-binding nature of consensus pricing and/or quotes accompanied by disclaimers materially reduces the reliability of such information. Sierra has retained the services of an independent service provider to review the valuation of these loans and securities. The types of factors that the board of directors may take into account in determining the fair value of Sierra's investments generally include, as appropriate, comparison to publicly traded securities including such factors as yield, maturity and measures of credit quality, the enterprise value of a portfolio company, the nature and realizable value of any collateral, the portfolio company's ability to make payments and its earnings and discounted cash flow, the markets in which the portfolio company does business and other relevant factors. Because such valuations, and particularly valuations of private securities and private companies, are inherently uncertain, may fluctuate over short periods of time and may be based on estimates, Sierra's determinations of fair value may differ materially from the values that would have been used if a ready market for these loans and securities existed. Sierra's NAV could be adversely affected if Sierra's determinations regarding the fair value of Sierra's investments were materially higher than the values that Sierra ultimately realizes upon the disposal of such loans and securities.

The Sierra Board may change Sierra's operating policies and strategies without prior notice or stockholder approval, the effects of which may be adverse to Sierra Stockholders.

The Sierra Board has the authority to modify or waive Sierra's current operating policies, investment criteria and strategies without prior notice and without stockholder approval. Sierra cannot predict the effect any changes to Sierra's current operating policies, investment criteria and strategies would have on Sierra's business, NAV, operating results and the value of Sierra Common Stock. However, the effects might be adverse, which could negatively impact Sierra's ability to pay you distributions and cause you to lose all or part of your investment. Moreover, Sierra has significant flexibility in investing the net proceeds of any offering and may use the net proceeds from any offering in ways with which investors may not agree.

If SIC Advisors is unable to manage Sierra's investments effectively, Sierra may be unable to achieve its investment objective.

Sierra's ability to achieve its investment objective will depend on Sierra's ability to manage its business, which will depend, in turn, on the ability of SIC Advisors to identify, invest in and monitor companies that meet Sierra's investment criteria. Accomplishing this result largely will be a function of SIC Advisors' investment process and, in conjunction with its role as Sierra's administrator, its ability to provide competent, attentive and efficient services to Sierra.

SIC Advisors' senior management team is comprised of members of the senior management team for Medley LLC, and they manage other investment funds. They may also be required to provide managerial assistance to Sierra's portfolio companies. These demands on their time may distract them or slow Sierra's rate of investment. Any failure to manage Sierra's business effectively could have a material adverse effect on Sierra's business, financial condition and results of operations.

Sierra may experience fluctuations in its quarterly results.

Sierra could experience fluctuations in its quarterly operating results due to a number of factors, including Sierra's ability or inability to make investments in companies that meet Sierra's investment criteria, the interest rate payable and default rates on the debt securities Sierra acquires, the level of Sierra's expenses, variations in and the timing of the recognition of realized and unrealized gains or losses, the degree to which Sierra encounters competition in its markets, and general economic conditions. As a result of these factors, results for any previous period should not be relied upon as indicative of performance in future periods. These occurrences could have a material adverse effect on Sierra's results of operations, the value of your investment in Sierra and Sierra's ability to pay distributions to you and Sierra's other stockholders.

Any unrealized losses Sierra experiences on its portfolio may be an indication of future realized losses, which could reduce Sierra's income available for distribution.

As a BDC, Sierra is required to record on its financial statements its investments at market value or, if no market value is ascertainable, at the fair value as determined in good faith by the Sierra Board. Decreases in the market values or fair values of Sierra's investments are recorded as unrealized depreciation. Any unrealized losses in Sierra's portfolio could be an indication of a portfolio company's inability to meet its repayment obligations to Sierra with respect to the affected investments. This could result in realized losses in the future and ultimately in reductions of Sierra's income available for distribution in future periods. In addition, decreases in the market value or fair value of Sierra's investments will reduce Sierra's NAV.

Sierra is uncertain of its sources for funding its future capital needs. If Sierra cannot obtain debt or equity financing on acceptable terms, Sierra's ability to acquire investments and to expand its operations will be adversely affected.

The net proceeds from the sale of shares of Sierra Common Stock will be used for Sierra's investment opportunities, operating expenses and for payment of various fees and expenses such as management fees, incentive fees and other fees. Any working capital reserves Sierra maintains may not be sufficient for investment purposes, and Sierra may require debt or equity financing to operate. In addition, Sierra is required to distribute at least 90% of Sierra's net ordinary income and net short-term capital gains in excess of net long-term capital losses, if any, to Sierra Stockholders to maintain Sierra's RIC tax treatment. Accordingly, in the event that Sierra needs additional capital in the future for investments or for any other reason Sierra may need to borrow from financial institutions in order to obtain such additional capital. These sources of funding may not be available to Sierra due to unfavorable economic conditions, which could increase Sierra's funding costs, limit Sierra's access to the capital markets or result in a decision by lenders not to extend credit to Sierra. Consequently, if Sierra cannot obtain debt or equity financing on acceptable terms, Sierra's ability to acquire investments and to expand Sierra's operations will be adversely affected. As a result, Sierra would be less able to achieve portfolio diversification and Sierra's investment objective, which may negatively impact Sierra's results of operations and reduce Sierra's ability to make distributions to Sierra Stockholders.

Sierra is a non-diversified investment company within the meaning of the Investment Company Act, and therefore Sierra is not limited with respect to the proportion of its assets that may be invested in securities of a single issuer.

Sierra is classified as a non-diversified investment company within the meaning of the Investment Company Act, which means that Sierra is not limited by the Investment Company Act with respect to the proportion of its assets that it may invest in securities of a single issuer. Sierra has also not adopted any policy restricting the percentage of Sierra's assets that may be invested in a single portfolio company. To the extent that Sierra assumes large positions in the securities of a small number of issuers, or within a particular industry, Sierra's NAV may fluctuate to a greater extent than that of a diversified investment company as a result of changes in the financial condition or the market's assessment of the issuer. Sierra may also be more susceptible to any single economic or regulatory occurrence than a diversified investment company. Beyond Sierra's asset diversification requirements applicable to RICs under Subchapter M of the Code, Sierra does not have fixed guidelines for diversification, and Sierra's investments could be concentrated in relatively few portfolio companies. See "Material U.S. Federal Income Tax Consequences - U.S. Federal Income Taxation of an Investment in Sierra Common Stock – Taxation as a RIC."

Risks Relating to SIC Advisors and its Respective Affiliates

Sierra's incentive fee structure may create incentives for SIC Advisors that are not fully aligned with the interests of Sierra Stockholders.

In the course of Sierra's investing activities, Sierra pays management and incentive fees to SIC Advisors. These fees are based on Sierra's gross assets. As a result, investors in Sierra Common Stock will invest on a "gross" basis and receive distributions on a "net" basis after expenses, resulting in a lower rate of return than one might achieve through direct investments. Because these fees are based on Sierra's gross assets, SIC Advisors will benefit when Sierra incurs debt or uses leverage. Additionally, under the incentive fee structure, SIC Advisors may benefit when capital gains are recognized and, because SIC Advisors determines when a holding is sold, SIC Advisors controls the timing of the recognition of such capital gains. The Sierra Board is charged with protecting Sierra's interests by monitoring how SIC Advisors addresses these and other conflicts of interests associated with its management services and compensation. While they are not expected to review or approve borrowings or incurrence of leverage in the ordinary course, Sierra's independent directors approve Sierra's credit facilities, including the maximum amount of leverage Sierra may employ, and will periodically review SIC Advisors' services and fees as well as its portfolio management decisions and portfolio performance through their quarterly review of Sierra's portfolio and annual review of Sierra's investment advisory and administration agreements. In connection with these reviews, Sierra's independent directors will consider whether Sierra's fees and expenses (including those related to leverage) remain appropriate. As a result of this arrangement, SIC Advisors or its affiliates may from time to time have interests that differ from those of Sierra Stockholders, giving rise to a conflict.

The part of the incentive fee payable to SIC Advisors that relates to Sierra's net investment income is computed and paid on income that may include interest income that has been accrued but not yet received in cash. This fee structure may be considered to involve a conflict of interest for SIC Advisors to the extent that it may encourage SIC Advisors to favor debt financings that provide for deferred interest, rather than current cash payments of interest. SIC Advisors may have an incentive to invest in deferred interest securities in circumstances where it would not have done so but for the opportunity to continue to earn the incentive fee even when the issuers of the deferred interest securities would not be able to make actual cash payments to Sierra on such securities. This risk could be increased because SIC Advisors is not obligated to reimburse Sierra for any incentive fees received even if Sierra subsequently incurs losses or never receives in cash the deferred income that was previously accrued.

SIC Advisors and its affiliates, including Sierra's officers and some of Sierra's directors, face conflicts of interest caused by compensation arrangements with Sierra, which could result in actions that are not in the best interests of Sierra Stockholders.

SIC Advisors and its affiliates receive substantial fees from Sierra in return for their services, and these fees could influence the advice provided to Sierra. Among other matters, because the base management fee that Sierra pays to SIC Advisors is based on Sierra's gross assets, SIC Advisors may benefit if Sierra incurs indebtedness.

There are significant potential conflicts of interest that could affect Sierra's investment returns.

There may be times when SIC Advisors, its senior management and investment management team, and members of its investment committee have interests that differ from those of Sierra Stockholders, giving rise to a conflict of interest. In particular, certain private investment funds managed by the senior members of SIC Advisors hold controlling or minority equity interests, or have the right to acquire such equity interests, in some of Sierra's portfolio companies. As a result, the senior members of SIC Advisors may face conflicts of interests in connection with making business decisions for these portfolio companies to the extent that such decisions affect the debt and equity holders in these portfolio companies differently. In addition, the senior members of SIC Advisors may face conflicts of interests in connection with making investment or other decisions, including granting loan waivers or concessions on Sierra's behalf with respect to these portfolio companies given that they also manage private investment funds that hold the equity interests in these portfolio companies.

The time and resources that individuals associated with SIC Advisors devote to Sierra may be diverted, and Sierra may face additional competition due to the fact that SIC Advisors is not prohibited from raising money for or managing another entity that makes the same types of investments that Sierra targets.

SIC Advisors is not prohibited from raising money for and managing future investment entities that make the same types of investments as those Sierra targets. The time and resources that SIC Advisors devotes to Sierra may be diverted, and during times of intense activity in other programs it may devote less time and resources to Sierra's business than is necessary or appropriate. As a result of these competing demands on their time and the fact that they may engage in other business activities on behalf of themselves and others, these individuals face conflicts of interest in allocating their time. These conflicts of interest could result in declines in the returns on Sierra's investments and the value of your investment. In addition, Sierra may compete with any such investment entity for the same investors and investment opportunities. While Sierra may co-invest with such investment entities to the extent permitted by the Investment Company Act and the rules and regulations thereunder, the Investment Company Act imposes significant limits on co-investment. In this regard, the exemptive order received on October 4, 2017 by Sierra, SIC Advisors and certain other affiliated funds and investment advisers (the "Current Exemptive Order") allows Sierra additional latitude to co-invest with certain affiliates. Nevertheless, the Current Exemptive Order requires Sierra to meet certain conditions in order to invest in certain portfolio companies in which Sierra's affiliates are investing or are invested. Affiliates of SIC Advisors, whose primary business includes the origination of investments, engage in investment advisory businesses with accounts that compete with Sierra.

SIC Advisors may, from time to time, possess material non-public information, limiting Sierra's investment discretion.

SIC Advisors and members of its senior management and investment management team and investment committee may serve as directors of, or in a similar capacity with, companies in which Sierra invests, the securities of which are purchased or sold on Sierra's behalf. In the event that material nonpublic information is obtained with respect to such companies, Sierra could be prohibited for a period of time from purchasing or selling the securities of such companies by law or otherwise, and this prohibition may have an adverse effect on Sierra.

Sierra may be obligated to pay SIC Advisors incentive compensation even if Sierra incurs a net loss due to a decline in the value of Sierra's portfolio.

The Sierra Investment Advisory Agreement entitles SIC Advisors to receive an incentive fee based on Sierra's net investment income regardless of any capital losses. In such case, Sierra may be required to pay SIC Advisors an incentive fee for a fiscal quarter even if there is a decline in the value of Sierra's portfolio or if Sierra incurs a net loss for that quarter.

Any incentive fee payable by Sierra that relates to Sierra's net investment income may be computed and paid on income that may include interest that has been accrued but not yet received. If a portfolio company defaults on a loan that is structured to provide accrued interest, it is possible that accrued interest previously included in the calculation of the incentive fee will become uncollectible. SIC Advisors is not obligated to reimburse Sierra for any part of the incentive fee it received that was based on accrued income that Sierra never received as a result of a subsequent default, and such circumstances would result in Sierra's paying an incentive fee on income Sierra never receives.

For U.S. federal income tax purposes, Sierra is required to recognize taxable income in some circumstances in which Sierra does not receive a corresponding payment in cash (such as deferred interest that is accrued as original issue discount ("OID")) and to make distributions with respect to such income to maintain Sierra's status as a RIC. Under such circumstances, Sierra may have difficulty meeting the annual Distribution Requirement necessary to obtain and maintain RIC tax treatment under the Code. This difficulty in making the required distribution may be amplified to the extent that Sierra is required to pay an incentive fee with respect to such accrued income. As a result, Sierra may have to sell some of its investments at times and/or at prices Sierra would not consider advantageous, raise additional debt or equity capital, or forgo new investment opportunities for this purpose. If Sierra is not able to obtain cash from other sources, Sierra may fail to qualify for RIC tax treatment and thus become subject to corporate-level U.S. federal income tax. For additional discussion regarding the tax implications of being a RIC, see "Material U.S. Federal Income Tax Consequences - U.S. Federal Income Taxation of an Investment in Sierra Common Stock – Taxation as a RIC."

The management and incentive fees Sierra pays to SIC Advisors may induce SIC Advisors to make speculative investments.

The incentive fee payable by Sierra to SIC Advisors may create an incentive for SIC Advisors to make investments on Sierra's behalf that are risky or more speculative than would be the case in the absence of such compensation arrangements. The way in which the incentive fee is determined may encourage SIC Advisors to use leverage to increase the return on Sierra's investments. In addition, the fact that Sierra's management fee is payable based upon Sierra's gross assets, which would include any borrowings for investment purposes, may encourage SIC Advisors to use leverage to make additional investments. Under certain circumstances, the use of leverage may increase the likelihood of default, which would disfavor holders of Sierra Common Stock. Such a practice could result in Sierra's investing in more speculative securities than would otherwise be the case, which could result in higher investment losses, particularly during cyclical economic downturns.

Sierra's ability to enter into transactions with its affiliates will be restricted, which may limit the scope of investments available to Sierra.

Sierra is prohibited under the Investment Company Act from participating in certain transactions with certain of Sierra's affiliates without the prior approval of a majority of the independent directors and, in some cases, the SEC. Any person that owns, directly or indirectly, 5% or more of Sierra's outstanding voting securities will be Sierra's affiliate for purposes of the Investment Company Act, and Sierra will generally be prohibited from buying or selling any securities from or to such affiliate, absent the prior approval of the Sierra Board. The Investment Company Act also prohibits certain "joint" transactions with certain of Sierra's affiliates, which in certain circumstances could include investments in the same portfolio company (whether at the same or different times to the extent the transaction is deemed to be "joint"), without prior approval of the Sierra Board and, in some cases, the SEC. If a person acquires more than 25% of Sierra's voting securities, Sierra will be prohibited from buying or selling any security from or to such person or certain of that person's affiliates, or entering into prohibited joint transactions with such persons, absent the prior approval of the SEC. Similar restrictions limit Sierra's ability to transact business with SIC Advisors as well as Sierra's officers or directors or their affiliates. The SEC has interpreted the BDC regulations governing transactions with affiliates to prohibit certain "joint transactions" involving entities that share a common investment adviser. As a result of these restrictions, Sierra may be prohibited from buying or selling any security (other than any security of which Sierra is the issuer) from or to, as well as co-investing with, any fund managed by Sierra's Affiliates without the prior approval of the SEC. The foregoing may limit the scope of investment opportunities that would otherwise be available to Sierra.

Sierra may, however, invest alongside other clients of SIC Advisors and its affiliates, including other entities they manage in certain circumstances where doing so is consistent with applicable law, the Current Exemptive Order and SEC staff interpretations and guidance. For example, Sierra may co-invest with such accounts consistent with guidance promulgated by the SEC staff permitting Sierra and such other accounts to purchase interests in a single class of privately placed securities so long as certain conditions are met, including that SIC Advisors, acting on Sierra's behalf and on behalf of other clients, negotiates no term other than price. Sierra may also co-invest with SIC Advisors' other clients as otherwise permissible under regulatory guidance, applicable regulations and SIC Advisors' allocation policy. Under this allocation policy, a fixed percentage of each opportunity, which may vary based on asset class and investment objectives, among other things, will be offered to Sierra and similar eligible accounts, as periodically determined by SIC Advisors and approved by the Sierra Board, including Sierra's independent directors. The allocation policy further provides that allocations among Sierra and these other accounts will generally be made pro rata based on each account's capital available for investment, as determined, in Sierra's case, by SIC Advisors. It is Sierra's policy to base its determinations as to the amount of capital available for investment based on such factors as the amount of cash on-hand, existing commitments and reserves, if any, the targeted leverage level, the targeted asset mix and diversification requirements and other investment policies and restrictions set by the Sierra Board or imposed by applicable laws, rules, regulations or interpretations. Sierra expects that these determinations will be made similarly for other accounts. However, Sierra can offer no assurance that investment opportunities will be allocated to Sierra fairly or equitably in the short-term or over time.

In situations where co-investment with other clients of SIC Advisors or its affiliates is not permitted under the Investment Company Act and related rules, existing or future staff guidance, or the terms and conditions of the Current Exemptive Order, SIC Advisors will need to decide which client or clients will proceed with the investment. Under SIC Advisors' allocation policy, such determinations will be made based on the principle that investment opportunities shall be offered to eligible clients on an alternating basis that will be fair and equitable over time. As a result, Sierra will not have an entitlement to make a co-investment in these circumstances and, to the extent that another client elects to proceed with the investment, Sierra will not be permitted to participate. Moreover, except in certain circumstances, Sierra will be unable to invest in any issuer in which a client of SIC Advisors or its affiliate holds a controlling interest. These restrictions may limit the scope of investment opportunities that would otherwise be available to Sierra.

Sierra may make investments that could give rise to a conflict of interest.

Sierra does not expect to invest in, or hold securities of, companies that are controlled by SIC Advisors' affiliates' clients. However, SIC Advisors' affiliates' clients may invest in, and gain control over, one of Sierra's portfolio companies. If SIC Advisors' affiliates' client, or clients, gains control over one of Sierra's portfolio companies, it may create conflicts of interest and may subject Sierra to certain restrictions under the Investment Company Act. As a result of these conflicts and restrictions, SIC Advisors may be unable to implement Sierra's investment strategy as effectively as they could have in the absence of such conflicts or restrictions. For example, as a result of a conflict or restriction, SIC Advisors may be unable to engage in certain transactions that they would otherwise pursue. In order to avoid these conflicts and restrictions, SIC Advisors may choose to exit these investments prematurely and, as a result, Sierra would forego any positive returns associated with such investments. In addition, to the extent that another client holds a different class of securities than Sierra as a result of such transactions, Sierra's interests may not be aligned.

There may be conflicts related to obligations SIC Advisors' senior management and investment management team and members of its investment committee have to other clients.

The members of the senior management and investment management teams and the investment committee of SIC Advisors serve or may serve as officers, directors or principals of entities that operate in the same or a related line of business as Sierra does, or of investment funds managed by SIC Advisors or its affiliates. In serving in these multiple capacities, they may have obligations to other clients or investors in those entities, the fulfillment of which may not be in Sierra's best interests or in the best interest of Sierra Stockholders. For example, the personnel that comprise SIC Advisors' investment management team have management responsibilities for other investment funds, accounts or other investment vehicles managed by affiliates of SIC Advisors.

Sierra's investment objective may overlap with the investment objectives of such investment funds, accounts or other investment vehicles. For example, affiliates of SIC Advisors currently manage private funds and managed accounts that are seeking new capital commitments and will pursue an investment strategy similar to Sierra's strategy, and Sierra may compete with these and other entities managed by affiliates of SIC Advisors for capital and investment opportunities. As a result, those individuals may face conflicts in the allocation of investment opportunities among Sierra and other investment funds or accounts advised by principals of, or affiliated with, SIC Advisors.

Sierra has received an Exemptive Order from the SEC that permits Sierra to co-invest with certain other investment funds managed by SIC Advisors or its affiliates, subject to the conditions included therein. In situations where Sierra cannot co-invest with other investment funds managed by SIC Advisors or its affiliates, the investment policies and procedures of SIC Advisors generally require that such opportunities be offered to Sierra and such other investment funds on an alternating basis. However, there can be no assurance that Sierra will be able to participate in all investment opportunities that are suitable to Sierra.

Sierra's ability to sell or otherwise exit investments in which affiliates of SIC Advisors also have an investment may be restricted.

Sierra may be considered an affiliate with respect to certain of Sierra's portfolio companies. Certain private funds advised by the senior members of SIC Advisors also hold interests in these portfolio companies and as such these interests may be considered a joint enterprise under applicable regulations. To the extent that Sierra's interests in these portfolio companies may need to be restructured in the future or to the extent that Sierra chooses to exit certain of these transactions, Sierra's ability to do so will be limited.

Risks Relating to BDCs

Sierra may face increasing competition for investment opportunities, which could delay deployment of Sierra's capital, reduce returns and result in losses.

Sierra competes for investments with other BDCs and investment funds (including registered investment companies, private equity funds and mezzanine funds), as well as traditional financial services companies such as commercial banks and other sources of funding. Moreover, alternative investment vehicles, such as hedge funds, have begun to invest in areas in which they have not traditionally invested, including making investments in Sierra's target market of privately owned U.S. companies. As a result of these new entrants, competition for investment opportunities in privately owned U.S. companies may intensify. Many of Sierra's competitors are substantially larger and have considerably greater financial, technical, and marketing resources than Sierra does. For example, some competitors may have a lower cost of capital and access to funding sources that are not available to Sierra. In addition, some of Sierra's competitors may have higher risk tolerances or different risk assessments than Sierra has. These characteristics could allow Sierra's competitors to consider a wider variety of investments, establish more relationships and offer better pricing and more flexible structuring than Sierra is able to do.

Sierra does not seek to compete primarily based on the interest rates Sierra offers, and Sierra believes that some of Sierra's competitors make loans with interest rates that are comparable to or lower than the rates Sierra offers. Sierra may lose investment opportunities if Sierra does not match Sierra's competitors' pricing, terms, and structure criteria. If Sierra is forced to match these criteria to make investments, Sierra may not be able to achieve acceptable returns on Sierra's investments or may bear substantial risk of capital loss. A significant increase in the number and/or the size of Sierra's competitors in this target market could force Sierra to accept less attractive investment terms. Furthermore, many of Sierra's competitors are not subject to the regulatory restrictions that the Investment Company Act imposes on Sierra as a BDC or the source of income, asset diversification and distribution requirements Sierra must satisfy to maintain Sierra's RIC tax treatment. The competitive pressures Sierra faces may have a material adverse effect on Sierra's business, financial condition, results of operations, and cash flows. As a result of this competition, Sierra may not be able to take advantage of attractive investment opportunities from time to time. Also, Sierra may not be able to identify and make investments that are consistent with Sierra's investment objective.

The requirement that Sierra invest a sufficient portion of its assets in qualifying assets could preclude Sierra from investing in accordance with Sierra's current business strategy; conversely, the failure to invest a sufficient portion of Sierra's assets in qualifying assets could result in Sierra's failure to maintain its status as a BDC.

As a BDC, the Investment Company Act prohibits Sierra from acquiring any assets other than certain qualifying assets unless, at the time of and after giving effect to such acquisition, at least 70% of Sierra's total assets are qualifying assets. Therefore, Sierra may be precluded from investing in what Sierra believes are attractive investments if such investments are not qualifying assets. Conversely, if Sierra fails to invest a sufficient portion of Sierra's assets in qualifying assets, Sierra could lose its status as a BDC, which would have a material adverse effect on Sierra's business, financial condition, and results of operations. Similarly, these rules could prevent Sierra from making additional investments in existing portfolio companies, which could result in the dilution of Sierra's position.

Changes in laws or regulations governing Sierra's operations may adversely affect Sierra's business or cause Sierra to alter its business strategy.

Sierra and Sierra's portfolio companies will be subject to regulation at the local, state, and federal level. Changes to the laws and regulations governing Sierra's permitted investments may require a change to Sierra's investment strategy. Such changes could differ materially from Sierra's strategies and plans as set forth in this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus and may shift Sierra's investment focus from the areas of expertise of SIC Advisors. Thus, any such changes, if they occur, could have a material adverse effect on Sierra's results of operations and the value of your investment.

Regulations governing Sierra's operation as a BDC and RIC will affect Sierra's ability to raise capital and the way in which Sierra raises additional capital or borrows for investment purposes, which may have a negative effect on Sierra's growth. As a BDC, the necessity of raising additional capital may expose Sierra to risks, including the typical risks associated with leverage.

As a result of the annual distribution requirement to qualify for RIC tax treatment, Sierra may need to access the capital markets periodically to raise cash to fund new investments. Sierra may issue "senior securities," including borrowing money from banks or other financial institutions only in amounts such that Sierra's asset coverage, as defined in the Investment Company Act, equals at least 200% after such incurrence or issuance. If Sierra issues senior securities, Sierra will be exposed to typical risks associated with leverage, including an increased risk of loss. Sierra's ability to issue different types of securities is also limited. Compliance with these requirements may unfavorably limit Sierra's investment opportunities and reduce Sierra's ability in comparison to other companies to profit from favorable spreads between the rates at which Sierra can borrow and the rates at which Sierra can lend.

Sierra may borrow for investment purposes. If the value of Sierra's assets declines, Sierra may be unable to satisfy the asset coverage test applicable to Sierra as a BDC, which would prohibit Sierra from paying distributions and could prevent Sierra from qualifying for RIC tax treatment, which would generally result in a corporate-level U.S. federal income tax on any income and net gains. If Sierra cannot satisfy the asset coverage test applicable to Sierra as a BDC, Sierra may be required to sell a portion of its investments and, depending on the nature of Sierra's debt financing, repay a portion of Sierra's indebtedness at a time when such sales may be disadvantageous. Also, any amounts that Sierra uses to service its indebtedness would not be available for distributions to Sierra Common Stockholders.

In addition, Sierra anticipates that as market conditions permit, Sierra may securitize its loans to generate cash for funding new investments. To securitize loans, Sierra may create a wholly owned subsidiary, contribute a pool of loans to the subsidiary and have the subsidiary issue primarily investment grade debt securities to purchasers who Sierra would expect to be willing to accept a substantially lower interest rate than the loans earn. Sierra would retain all or a portion of the equity in the securitized pool of loans. Sierra's retained equity would be exposed to any losses on the portfolio of loans before any of the debt securities would be exposed to such losses. Accordingly, if the pool of loans experienced a low level of losses due to defaults, Sierra would earn an incremental amount of income on its retained equity but Sierra would be exposed, up to the amount of equity Sierra retained, to that proportion of any losses Sierra would have experienced if it had continued to hold the loans in its portfolio. Sierra would not treat the debt issued by such a subsidiary as senior securities.

Recent legislation may allow Sierra to incur additional leverage.

The Investment Company Act generally prohibits Sierra from incurring indebtedness unless immediately after such borrowing Sierra has an asset coverage for total borrowings of at least 200% (i.e., the amount of debt may not exceed 50% of the value of Sierra's assets). However, in March 2018, the Small Business Credit Availability Act (the "SBCA") modified the Investment Company Act by allowing a BDC to increase the maximum amount of leverage it may incur from an asset coverage ratio of 200% to an asset coverage ratio of 150%, if certain requirements are met. Under the Investment Company Act, Sierra is allowed to increase Sierra's leverage capacity if Sierra Stockholders representing at least a majority of the votes cast, when a quorum is present, approve a proposal to do so. If Sierra receives stockholder approval, Sierra would be allowed to increase Sierra's leverage capacity on the first day after such approval. Alternatively, the Investment Company Act allows the majority of Sierra's independent directors to approve an increase in Sierra's leverage capacity, and such approval would become effective after one year. In addition, the Investment Company Act requires non-listed BDCs to offer to repurchase 25% of its securities each quarter following the calendar quarter in which the BDC obtains such approval. In either case, Sierra would be required to make certain disclosures on Sierra's website and in SEC filings regarding, among other things, the receipt of approval to increase Sierra's leverage, Sierra's leverage capacity and usage, and risks related to leverage. Sierra has not sought or obtained stockholder or independent director approval to reduce its coverage ratio to 150%.

As a result of the SBCA, Sierra may, in the future, be able to increase its leverage up to an amount that reduces Sierra's asset coverage ratio from 200% to 150%. Leverage magnifies the potential for loss on investments in Sierra's indebtedness and on invested equity capital. As Sierra uses leverage to partially finance its investments, Sierra Stockholders will experience increased risks of investing in Sierra's securities. If the value of Sierra's assets increases, then leveraging would cause the NAV attributable to Sierra Common Stock to increase more sharply than it would have had Sierra not leveraged. Conversely, if the value of Sierra's assets decreases, leveraging would cause NAV to decline more sharply than it otherwise would have had Sierra not leveraged Sierra's business. Similarly, any increase in Sierra's income in excess of interest payable on the borrowed funds would cause Sierra's net investment income to increase more than it would without the leverage, while any decrease in Sierra's income would cause net investment income to decline more sharply than it would have had Sierra not borrowed. Such a decline could negatively affect Sierra's ability to pay common stock dividends, scheduled debt payments or other payments related to Sierra's securities. Leverage is generally considered a speculative investment technique.

Sierra cannot predict how tax reform legislation will affect Sierra, Sierra's investments, or Sierra Stockholders, and any such legislation could adversely affect Sierra's business.

Legislative or other actions relating to taxes could have a negative effect on Sierra. The rules dealing with U.S. federal income taxation are constantly under review by persons involved in the legislative process and by the IRS and the U.S. Department of the Treasury. In December 2017, Congress passed tax reform legislation, which the President signed into law. Such legislation has made many changes to the Code, including significant changes to the taxation of business entities, the deductibility of interest expense, and the tax treatment of capital investment. Sierra cannot predict with certainty how any changes in the tax laws might affect Sierra, Sierra Stockholders, or Sierra's portfolio investments. New legislation and any U.S. Treasury regulations, administrative interpretations or court decisions interpreting such legislation could significantly and negatively affect Sierra's ability to qualify for tax treatment as a RIC or the U.S. federal income tax consequences to Sierra and Sierra Stockholders of such qualification, or could have other adverse consequences. Sierra Stockholders are urged to consult with their tax advisor regarding tax legislative, regulatory, or administrative developments and proposals and their potential effect on an investment in Sierra's securities.

Changes to United States tariff and import/export regulations may have a negative effect on Sierra's portfolio companies and, in turn, harm Sierra.

There has been on-going discussion and commentary regarding potential significant changes to United States trade policies, treaties and tariffs. The current administration, along with Congress, has created significant uncertainty about the future relationship between the United States and other countries with respect to the trade policies, treaties and tariffs. These developments, or the perception that any of them could occur, may have a material adverse effect on global economic conditions and the stability of global financial markets, and may significantly reduce global trade and, in particular, trade between the impacted nations and the United States. Any of these factors could depress economic activity and restrict Sierra's portfolio companies' access to suppliers or customers and have a material adverse effect on their business, financial condition and results of operations, which in turn would negatively impact Sierra.

Risks Relating to Sierra's Investments

Sierra's investments in prospective portfolio companies may be risky, and Sierra could lose all or part of its investment.

Sierra pursues a strategy focused on investing primarily in the debt of privately owned U.S. companies with a focus on transactions sourced through the network of SIC Advisors.

- Senior Secured First Lien Term Debt and Senior Secured Second Lien Term Debt. When Sierra invests in first lien and second lien term debt, Sierra will generally take a security interest in the available assets of these portfolio companies, including the equity interests of their subsidiaries. There is a risk that the collateral securing Sierra's investments may decrease in value over time or lose its entire value, may be difficult to sell in a timely manner, may be difficult to appraise and may fluctuate in value based upon the success of the business and market conditions, including as a result of the inability of the portfolio company to raise additional capital. Also, in some circumstances, Sierra's security interest could be subordinated to claims of other creditors. In addition, deterioration in a portfolio company's financial condition and prospects, including its inability to raise additional capital, may be accompanied by deterioration in the value of the collateral for the debt security. Consequently, the fact that debt is secured does not guarantee that Sierra will receive principal and interest payments according to the investment terms, or at all, or that Sierra will be able to collect on the investment should Sierra be forced to enforce Sierra's remedies.
- Subordinated Debt. Sierra's subordinated debt investments will generally be subordinated to senior debt and will generally be unsecured. This may result in a heightened level of risk and volatility or a loss of principal, which could lead to the loss of the entire investment. These investments may involve additional risks that could adversely affect Sierra's investment returns. To the extent interest payments associated with such debt are deferred, such debt may be subject to greater fluctuations in valuations, and such debt could subject Sierra and Sierra Stockholders to non-cash income. Since Sierra will not receive any principal repayments prior to the maturity of some of Sierra's subordinated debt investments, such investments will be of greater risk than amortizing loans.
- Equity Investments. Sierra expects to make selected equity investments. In addition, when Sierra invests in senior and subordinated debt, Sierra may acquire warrants or options to purchase equity securities or benefit from other types of equity participation. Sierra's goal is ultimately to dispose of these equity interests and realize gains upon Sierra's disposition of such interests. However, the equity interests Sierra receives may not appreciate in value and, in fact, may decline in value. Accordingly, Sierra may not be able to realize gains from Sierra's equity interests, and any gains that Sierra does realize on the disposition of any equity interests may not be sufficient to offset any other losses Sierra experiences. Most loans in which Sierra invests will not be rated by any rating agency and, if they were rated, they would be rated as below investment grade quality. Loans rated below investment grade quality are generally regarded as having predominantly speculative characteristics and may carry a greater risk with respect to a borrower's capacity to pay interest and repay principal.

To the extent original issue discount constitutes a portion of Sierra's income, Sierra will be exposed to risks associated with the deferred receipt of cash representing such income.

Sierra's investments may include OID instruments. To the extent OID constitutes a portion of Sierra's income, Sierra will be exposed to typical risks associated with such income being required to be included in taxable and accounting income prior to receipt of cash, including the following:

- OID instruments may create heightened credit risks because the inducement to trade higher rates for the deferral of cash payments typically represents, to some extent, speculation on the part of the borrower.
- For accounting purposes, cash distributions to Sierra Stockholders representing OID income do not come from paid-in capital. Thus, although a distribution of OID income comes from the cash invested by Sierra Stockholders, the Investment Company Act does not require that Sierra Stockholders be given notice of this fact.
- OID creates risk of non-refundable cash incentive fee payments to SIC Advisors based on non-cash accruals that may never be realized.
- Interest rates payable on OID instruments, including payment-in-kind ("PIK") loans are higher because the deferred interest payments are discounted to reflect the time-value of money and because PIK instruments generally represent a significantly higher credit risk than coupon loans.
- OID and PIK instruments may have unreliable valuations because the accruals require judgments about collectability of the deferred payments and the value of the associated collateral.
- An election to defer PIK interest payments by adding them to the principal of such instruments increases Sierra's gross assets, which increases future base management fees, and, because interest payments will then be payable on a larger principal amount, the election also increases SIC Advisors' future incentive fees at a compounding rate.
- Market prices of PIK instruments and other zero coupon instruments are affected to a greater extent by interest rate changes, and may be more volatile than instruments that pay interest periodically in cash. While PIK instruments are usually less volatile than zero coupon debt instruments, PIK instruments are generally more volatile than cash-pay securities.
- The deferral of PIK interest on a loan increases its loan-to-value ratio, which is a measure of the riskiness of a loan.
- Even if the conditions for income accrual under GAAP are satisfied, a borrower could still default when actual payment is due upon the maturity of such loan.
- The required recognition of OID, including PIK, interest for U.S. federal income tax purposes may have a negative impact on liquidity, because it represents a non-cash component of Sierra's investment company taxable income that must, nevertheless, be distributed in cash to investors to avoid it being subject to corporate-level U.S. federal income taxation.

Sierra's portfolio companies may incur debt that ranks equally with, or senior to, Sierra's investments in such companies.

Sierra pursues a strategy focused on investing primarily in the debt of privately owned U.S. companies with a focus on transactions sourced through the network of SIC Advisors. Sierra's portfolio companies may have, or may be permitted to incur, other debt that ranks equally with, or senior to, the debt in which Sierra invests. By their terms, such debt instruments may entitle the holders to receive payment of interest or principal on or before the dates on which Sierra is entitled to receive payments with respect to the debt instruments in which Sierra invests. Also, in the event of insolvency, liquidation, dissolution, reorganization or bankruptcy of a portfolio company, holders of debt instruments ranking senior to Sierra's investment in that portfolio company would typically be entitled to receive payment in full before Sierra receives any distribution. After repaying such senior creditors, such portfolio company may not have any remaining assets to use for repaying its obligation to Sierra. In the case of debt ranking equally with debt instruments in which Sierra invests, Sierra would have to share on an equal basis any distributions with other creditors holding such debt in the event of an insolvency, liquidation, dissolution, reorganization or bankruptcy of the relevant portfolio company.

Subordinated liens on collateral securing debt that Sierra will make to Sierra's portfolio companies may be subject to control by senior creditors with first priority liens. If there is a default, the value of the collateral may not be sufficient to repay in full both the first priority creditors and Sierra.

Certain debt investments that Sierra makes in portfolio companies are secured on a second priority basis by the same collateral securing senior secured debt of such companies. The first priority liens on the collateral secure the portfolio company's obligations under any outstanding senior debt and may secure certain other future debt that may be permitted to be incurred by the company under the agreements governing the debt. The holders of obligations secured by the first priority liens on the collateral generally control the liquidation of and be entitled to receive proceeds from any realization of the collateral to repay their obligations in full before Sierra. In addition, the value of the collateral in the event of liquidation will depend on market and economic conditions, the availability of buyers and other factors. There can be no assurance that the proceeds, if any, from the sale or sales of all of the collateral would be sufficient to satisfy the debt obligations secured by the second priority liens after payment in full of all obligations secured by the first priority liens on the collateral. If such proceeds are not sufficient to repay amounts outstanding under the debt obligations secured by the second priority liens, then Sierra, to the extent not repaid from the proceeds of the sale of the collateral, will only have an unsecured claim against the portfolio company's remaining assets, if any.

Sierra may also make unsecured debt investments in portfolio companies, meaning that such investments will not benefit from any interest in collateral of such companies. Liens on such portfolio companies' collateral, if any, will secure the portfolio company's obligations under its outstanding secured debt and may secure certain future debt that is permitted to be incurred by the portfolio company under its secured debt agreements. The holders of obligations secured by such liens will generally control the liquidation of, and be entitled to receive proceeds from, any realization of such collateral to repay their obligations in full before Sierra. In addition, the value of such collateral in the event of liquidation will depend on market and economic conditions, the availability of buyers and other factors. There can be no assurance that the proceeds, if any, from sales of such collateral would be sufficient to satisfy Sierra's unsecured debt obligations after payment in full of all secured debt obligations. If such proceeds were not sufficient to repay the outstanding secured debt obligations, then Sierra's unsecured claims would rank equally with the unpaid portion of such secured creditors' claims against the portfolio company's remaining assets, if any.

The rights Sierra may have with respect to the collateral securing the debt investments Sierra makes in its portfolio companies with senior debt outstanding may also be limited pursuant to the terms of one or more inter-creditor agreements that Sierra enters into with the holders of senior debt. Under such an inter-creditor agreement, at any time that obligations that have the benefit of the first priority liens are outstanding, any of the following actions that may be taken in respect of the collateral will be at the direction of the holders of the obligations secured by the first priority liens: the ability to cause the commencement of enforcement proceedings against the collateral; the ability to control the conduct of such proceedings; the approval of amendments to collateral documents; releases of liens on the collateral; and waivers of past defaults under collateral documents. Sierra may not have the ability to control or direct such actions, even if Sierra's rights are adversely affected.

There may be circumstances where Sierra's debt investments could be subordinated to claims of other creditors or Sierra could be subject to lender liability claims.

If one of Sierra's portfolio companies were to go bankrupt, depending on the facts and circumstances, including the extent to which Sierra actually provided managerial assistance to that portfolio company or a representative of Sierra or SIC Advisors sat on the board of directors of such portfolio company, a bankruptcy court might re-characterize Sierra's debt investment and subordinate all or a portion of Sierra's claim to that of other creditors. In situations where a bankruptcy carries a high degree of significance, Sierra's legal rights may be subordinated to other creditors.

In addition, lenders in certain cases can be subject to lender liability claims for actions taken by them when they become too involved in the borrower's business or exercise control over a borrower. It is possible that Sierra could become subject to a lender's liability claim, including as a result of actions taken if Sierra renders significant managerial assistance to, or exercises control or influence over the board of directors of, the borrower.

Sierra generally will not control the business operations of Sierra's portfolio companies and, due to the illiquid nature of Sierra's holdings in its portfolio companies, may not be able to dispose of Sierra's interest in its portfolio companies.

Sierra does not expect to control most of its portfolio companies, even though Sierra may have board representation or board observation rights, and Sierra's debt agreements may impose certain restrictive covenants on Sierra's borrowers. As a result, Sierra is subject to the risk that a portfolio company in which Sierra invests may make business decisions with which Sierra disagrees and the management of such company, as representatives of the holders of their common equity, may take risks or otherwise act in ways that do not serve Sierra's interests as a debtholder. Due to the lack of liquidity for Sierra's investments in private companies, Sierra may not be able to dispose of Sierra's interests in Sierra's portfolio companies as readily as Sierra would like or at an appropriate valuation. As a result, a portfolio company may make decisions that could decrease the value of Sierra's portfolio holdings.

The lack of liquidity in Sierra's investments may adversely affect Sierra's business.

Sierra anticipates that Sierra's investments generally will be made in private companies. Substantially all of these securities will be subject to legal and other restrictions on resale or will be otherwise less liquid than publicly traded securities. The illiquidity of Sierra's investments may make it difficult for Sierra to sell such investments if the need arises. In addition, if Sierra is required to liquidate all or a portion of Sierra's portfolio quickly, Sierra may realize significantly less than the value at which Sierra had previously recorded its investments. In addition, Sierra may face other restrictions on Sierra's ability to liquidate an investment in a portfolio company to the extent that Sierra or SIC Advisors has material non-public information regarding such portfolio company.

Economic recessions or downturns could impair Sierra's portfolio companies and harm Sierra's operating results.

Many of Sierra's portfolio companies are susceptible to economic slowdowns or recessions and may be unable to repay Sierra's debt investments during these periods. Therefore, Sierra's non-performing assets are likely to increase, and the value of Sierra's portfolio is likely to decrease during these periods. Adverse economic conditions may also decrease the value of any collateral securing Sierra's senior secured or second lien secured debt. A severe recession may further decrease the value of such collateral and result in losses of value in Sierra's portfolio and a decrease in Sierra's revenues, net income, assets and net worth. Unfavorable economic conditions also could increase Sierra's funding costs, limit Sierra's access to the capital markets or result in a decision by lenders not to extend credit to Sierra on terms Sierra deems acceptable. These events could prevent Sierra from increasing investments and harm Sierra's operating results.

A covenant breach by Sierra's portfolio companies may harm Sierra's operating results.

A portfolio company's failure to satisfy financial or operating covenants imposed by Sierra or other lenders could lead to defaults and, potentially, termination of its debt and foreclosure on its secured assets, which could trigger cross-defaults under other agreements and jeopardize a portfolio company's ability to meet its obligations under the debt or equity securities that Sierra holds. Sierra may incur expenses to the extent necessary to seek recovery upon default or to negotiate new terms, which may include the waiver of certain financial covenants, with a defaulting portfolio company.

An investment strategy focused primarily on privately held companies presents certain challenges, including the lack of available information about these companies.

Sierra intends to invest primarily in privately held companies. Investments in private companies pose certain incremental risks as compared to investments in public companies including that they:

- have reduced access to the capital markets, resulting in diminished capital resources and ability to withstand financial distress;
- may have limited financial resources and may be unable to meet their obligations under their debt securities that Sierra holds, which may be accompanied by a deterioration in the value of any collateral and a reduction in the likelihood of Sierra realizing any guarantees Sierra may have obtained in connection with Sierra's investment;

Table of Contents

- may have shorter operating histories, narrower product lines and smaller market shares than larger businesses, which tend to render them more vulnerable to competitors' actions and changing market conditions, as well as general economic downturns;
- are more likely to depend on the management talents and efforts of a small group of persons; therefore, the death, disability, resignation or termination of one or more of these persons could have a material adverse impact on Sierra's portfolio company and, in turn, on Sierra; and
- generally have less predictable operating results, may from time to time be parties to litigation, may be engaged in rapidly changing businesses with products subject to a substantial risk of obsolescence, and may require substantial additional capital to support their operations, finance expansion or maintain their competitive position. In addition, Sierra's executive officers, directors and members of SIC Advisors' management may, in the ordinary course of business, be named as defendants in litigation arising from Sierra's investments in the portfolio companies.

In addition, investments in private companies tend to be less liquid. The securities of private companies are not publicly traded or actively traded on the secondary market and are, instead, traded on a privately negotiated over-the-counter secondary market for institutional investors. These privately negotiated over-the-counter secondary markets may be inactive during an economic downturn or a credit crisis. In addition, the securities in these companies will be subject to legal and other restrictions on resale or will otherwise be less liquid than publicly traded securities. Also, under the Investment Company Act, if there is no readily available market for these investments, Sierra is required to carry these investments at fair value as determined by the Sierra Board. As a result, if Sierra is required to liquidate all or a portion of Sierra's portfolio quickly, Sierra may realize significantly less than the value at which Sierra had previously recorded these investments. Sierra may also face other restrictions on its ability to liquidate an investment in a portfolio company to the extent that Sierra, SIC Advisors or any of their respective affiliates have material nonpublic information regarding such portfolio company or where the sale would be an impermissible joint transaction. The reduced liquidity of Sierra's investments may make it difficult for Sierra to dispose of them at a favorable price, and, as a result, Sierra may suffer losses.

Finally, little public information generally exists about private companies and these companies may not have third-party debt ratings or audited financial statements. Sierra must therefore rely on the ability of SIC Advisors to obtain adequate information through due diligence to evaluate the creditworthiness and potential returns from investing in these companies. Additionally, these companies and their financial information will not generally be subject to the Sarbanes-Oxley Act and other rules that govern public companies. If Sierra is unable to uncover all material information about these companies, Sierra may not make a fully informed investment decision, and Sierra may lose money on its investments.

Sierra's failure to make follow-on investments in its portfolio companies could impair the value of its portfolio; Sierra's ability to make follow-on investments in certain portfolio companies may be restricted.

Following an initial investment in a portfolio company, provided that there are no restrictions imposed by the Investment Company Act, Sierra may make additional investments in that portfolio company as "follow-on" investments in order to: (1) increase or maintain in whole or in part Sierra's equity ownership percentage; (2) exercise warrants, options or convertible securities that were acquired in the original or subsequent financing; or (3) attempt to preserve or enhance the value of Sierra's initial investment.

Sierra has the discretion to make any follow-on investments, subject to the availability of capital resources. Sierra may elect not to make follow-on investments or may lack sufficient funds to make those investments. Sierra's failure to make follow-on investments may, in some circumstances, jeopardize the continued viability of a portfolio company and Sierra's initial investment, or may result in a missed opportunity for Sierra to increase its participation in a successful operation. Even if Sierra has sufficient capital to make a desired follow-on investment, Sierra may elect not to make such follow-on investment because Sierra may not want to increase its concentration of risk, because Sierra prefers other opportunities, because Sierra is inhibited by compliance with BDC requirements or because Sierra desires to maintain Sierra's RIC tax treatment. Sierra also may be restricted from making follow-on investments in certain portfolio companies to the extent that Sierra's affiliates hold interests in such companies.

Sierra's ability to invest in public companies may be limited in certain circumstances.

To maintain Sierra's status as a BDC, Sierra is not permitted to acquire any assets other than "qualifying assets" specified in the Investment Company Act unless, at the time the acquisition is made, at least 70% of Sierra's total assets are qualifying assets (with certain limited exceptions). Subject to certain exceptions for follow-on investments and distressed companies, an investment in an issuer that has outstanding securities listed on a national securities exchange may be treated as qualifying assets only if such issuer has a market capitalization that is less than $250 million at the time of such investment. In addition, Sierra may invest up to 30% of Sierra's portfolio in opportunistic investments which will be intended to diversify or complement the remainder of Sierra's portfolio and to enhance Sierra's returns to stockholders. These investments may include private equity investments, securities of public companies that are broadly traded and securities of non-U.S. companies. Sierra expects that these public companies generally will have debt securities that are non-investment grade.

Sierra's investments in foreign securities may involve significant risks in addition to the risks inherent in U.S. investments.

Sierra's investment strategy contemplates that a portion of Sierra's investments may be in securities of foreign companies. Investing in foreign companies may expose Sierra to additional risks not typically associated with investing in U.S. companies. These risks include changes in exchange control regulations, political and social instability, expropriation, imposition of foreign taxes, less liquid markets and less available information than is generally the case in the United States, higher transaction costs, less government supervision of exchanges, brokers and issuers, less developed bankruptcy laws, difficulty in enforcing contractual obligations, lack of uniform accounting and auditing standards and greater price volatility. Although it is anticipated that most of Sierra's investments will be denominated in U.S. dollars, Sierra's investments that are denominated in a foreign currency will be subject to the risk that the value of a particular currency may change in relation to the U.S. dollar. Among the factors that may affect currency values are trade balances, the level of short-term interest rates, differences in relative values of similar assets in different currencies, long-term opportunities for investment and capital appreciation and political developments. Sierra may employ hedging techniques to minimize these risks, but Sierra can offer no assurance that Sierra will, in fact, hedge currency risk or, that if Sierra does, such strategies will be effective. As a result, a change in currency exchange rates may adversely affect Sierra's profitability.

Prepayments of Sierra's debt investments by Sierra's portfolio companies could adversely impact Sierra's results of operations and reduce Sierra's return on equity.

Sierra is subject to the risk that the investments Sierra makes in its portfolio companies may be repaid prior to maturity. When this occurs, Sierra will generally reinvest these proceeds in temporary investments, pending their future investment in new portfolio companies. These temporary investments will typically have substantially lower yields than the debt being prepaid and Sierra could experience significant delays in reinvesting these amounts. Any future investment in a new portfolio company may also be at lower yields than the debt that was repaid. As a result, Sierra's results of operations could be materially adversely affected if one or more of Sierra's portfolio companies elect to prepay amounts owed to Sierra. Additionally, prepayments, net of prepayment fees, could negatively impact Sierra's return on equity.

Sierra may acquire indirect interests in loans rather than direct interests, which would subject Sierra to additional risk.

Sierra may make or acquire loans or investments through participation agreements. A participation agreement typically results in a contractual relationship only with the counterparty to the participation agreement and not with the borrower. SIC Advisors has adopted best execution procedures and guidelines to mitigate credit and counterparty risk when Sierra acquires a loan through a participation agreement. In investing through participations, Sierra will generally not have a right to enforce compliance by the borrower with the terms of the loan agreement against the borrower, and Sierra may not directly benefit from the collateral supporting the debt obligation in which it has purchased the participation. As a result, Sierra will be exposed to the credit risk of both the borrower and the counterparty selling the participation. In the event of insolvency of the counterparty, Sierra, by virtue of holding participation interests in the loan, may be treated as its general unsecured creditor. In addition, although Sierra may have certain contractual rights under the loan participation that require the counterparty to obtain Sierra's consent prior to taking various actions relating to the loan, Sierra cannot guarantee that the counterparty will seek such consent prior to taking various actions. Further, in investing through participation agreements, Sierra may not be able to conduct the due diligence on the borrower or the quality of the loan with respect to which it is buying a participation that Sierra would otherwise conduct if Sierra were investing directly in the loan, which may result in Sierra being exposed to greater credit or fraud risk with respect to the borrower or the loan than Sierra expected when initially purchasing the participation. See "Risk Factors — Risks Relating to SIC Advisors and its Respective Affiliates — There are significant potential conflicts of interest that could affect Sierra's investment returns" above.

Sierra has entered into total return swap agreements or other derivative transactions that expose Sierra to certain risks, including market risk, liquidity risk, counterparty risk and other risks similar to those associated with the use of leverage.

Sierra's wholly owned, special purpose financing subsidiary, Arbor Funding LLC ("Arbor"), has entered into a total return swap ("TRS") for a portfolio of senior secured assets with Citibank, N.A., or Citibank. See "Management's Discussion and Analysis of Financial Condition and Results of Operations of Sierra — Off-Balance Sheet Arrangements" for a more detailed discussion of the terms of the TRS between Arbor and Citibank.

A TRS is a contract in which one party agrees to make periodic payments to another party based on the change in the market value of the assets underlying the TRS, which may include a specified security, basket of securities or securities indices during the specified period, in return for periodic payments based on a fixed or variable interest rate. A TRS effectively adds leverage to a portfolio by providing investment exposure to a security or market without owning or taking physical custody of such security or investing directly in such market. Because of the unique structure of a TRS, a TRS often offers lower financing costs than are offered through more traditional borrowing arrangements.

The TRS with Citibank enables Sierra, through Sierra's ownership of Arbor, to obtain the economic benefit of owning the assets subject to the TRS, despite the fact that such assets will not be directly held or otherwise owned by Sierra or Arbor, in return for an interest-type payment to Citibank. Accordingly, the TRS is analogous to Sierra borrowing funds to acquire assets and incurring interest expense to a lender.

The TRS is subject to market risk, liquidity risk and risk of imperfect correlation between the value of the TRS and the assets underlying the TRS. In addition, Sierra may incur certain costs in connection with the TRS that could, in the aggregate, be significant.

A TRS is also subject to the risk that a counterparty will default on its payment obligations thereunder or that Sierra will not be able to meet Sierra's obligations to the counterparty. In the case of the TRS with Citibank, Arbor is required to post cash collateral amounts to secure its obligations to Citibank under the TRS. Citibank, however, is not required to collateralize any of its obligations to Arbor under the TRS. Accordingly, Arbor is not subject to the risk of Citibank's insolvency. Arbor bears the risk of depreciation with respect to the value of the assets underlying the TRS and is required, under the terms of the TRS, to post additional collateral on a dollar-for-dollar basis in the event of depreciation in the value of the underlying assets after such value decreases below a specified amount. The amount of collateral required to be posted by Arbor is determined primarily on the basis of the aggregate value of the underlying assets.

Arbor is required to initially cash collateralize a specified percentage of each asset (generally 25% of the market value of such asset) included under the TRS in accordance with margin requirements described in the TRS Agreement. The limit on the additional collateral that Arbor may be required to post pursuant to the TRS is equal to the difference between the full notional amount of the assets underlying the TRS and the amount of cash collateral already posted by Arbor (determined without consideration of the initial cash collateral posted for each asset included in the TRS). Arbor's maximum liability under the TRS is the amount of any decline in the aggregate value of the assets subject to the TRS, less the amount of the cash collateral previously posted by Arbor. Therefore, the absolute risk of loss with respect to the TRS is the notional amount of the TRS.

In addition to customary events of default and termination events, the agreements governing the TRS with Citibank, which are collectively referred to herein as the TRS Agreement, contain the following termination events: (a) a failure to satisfy the portfolio criteria for at least 30 days; (b) a failure to post initial cash collateral or additional collateral as required by the TRS Agreement; (c) a merger of Arbor or Sierra meeting certain criteria; (d) either Sierra or Arbor amending its constituent documents to alter Sierra's investment strategy in a manner that has or could reasonably be expected to have a material adverse effect; (e) SIC Advisors ceasing to be the investment manager of Arbor or having authority to enter into transactions under the TRS Agreement on behalf of Arbor, and not being replaced by an entity reasonably acceptable to Citibank; (f) SIC Advisors ceasing to be Sierra's investment adviser; (g) Arbor failing to comply with its investment strategies or restrictions to the extent such non-compliance has or could reasonably be expected to have a material adverse effect; (h) Arbor becoming liable in respect of any obligation for borrowed money, other than arising under the TRS Agreement; (i) Sierra's dissolution or liquidation; (j) there occurring, without the prior consent of Citibank, any material change to or departure from Sierra's policies or the policies of Arbor that may not be changed without the vote of Sierra Stockholders and that relates to Arbor's performance of its obligations under the TRS Agreement; and (k) Sierra's violating certain provisions of the Investment Company Act or Sierra's election to be regulated as a BDC under the Investment Company Act being revoked or withdrawn.

In addition to the rights of Citibank to terminate the TRS following an event of default or termination event as described above, Citibank may terminate the TRS on or after March 21, 2019. SIC Advisors may terminate the TRS on behalf of Arbor at any time upon providing 10 days prior notice to Citibank. Any termination by SIC Advisors on behalf of Arbor prior to the final scheduled payment of principal of the assets underlying the TRS will result in payment of an early termination fee to Citibank. Under the terms of the TRS, the early termination fee will equal the present value of the following two cash flows: (a) interest payments at a rate equal to 1.60% based on 70% of the maximum notional amount of $180,000,000, payable from the later of the first anniversary of the effective date of the TRS or the termination date until the second anniversary of the effective date of the TRS and (b) interest payments at a rate equal to 0.15% based on the maximum notional amount of $180,000,000, payable from the later of the first anniversary of the effective date of the TRS or the termination date until the second anniversary of the effective date of the TRS. Other than during last 60 days of the term of the TRS, Arbor is required to pay a minimum usage fee of 1.60% on the amount equal to 85% of the average daily unused portion of the maximum amount permitted under the TRS. Arbor will also pay Citibank customary fees in connection with the establishment and maintenance of the TRS.

Upon any termination of the TRS, Arbor will be required to pay Citibank the amount of any decline in the aggregate value of the assets subject to the TRS or, alternatively, will be entitled to receive the amount of any appreciation in the aggregate value of such assets. In the event that Citibank chooses to exercise its termination rights, it is possible that Arbor will owe more to Citibank or, alternatively, will be entitled to receive less from Citibank than it would have if Arbor controlled the timing of such termination due to the existence of adverse market conditions at the time of such termination.

In addition, because a TRS is a form of synthetic leverage, such arrangements are subject to risks similar to those associated with the use of leverage. See "Risk Factors — Risks Relating to Sierra's Debt Financing" below.

Hedging transactions may expose Sierra to additional risks.

Sierra may engage in currency or interest rate hedging transactions. If Sierra engages in hedging transactions, Sierra may expose itself to risks associated with such transactions. Sierra may utilize instruments such as forward contracts, currency options and interest rate swaps, caps, collars and floors to seek to hedge against fluctuations in the relative values of Sierra's portfolio investments from changes in currency exchange rates and market interest rates. Hedging against a decline in the values of Sierra's portfolio investments does not eliminate the possibility of fluctuations in the values of such investments or prevent losses if the values of such investments decline. However, such hedging can establish other investments designed to gain from those same developments, thereby offsetting the decline in the value of such portfolio investments. Such hedging transaction may also limit the opportunity for gain if the values of the underlying portfolio investments should increase. Moreover, it may not be possible to hedge against an exchange rate or interest rate fluctuation that is so generally anticipated that Sierra is not able to enter into a hedging transaction at an acceptable price.

While Sierra may enter into transactions to seek to reduce currency exchange rate and interest rate risks, unanticipated changes in currency exchange rates or interest rates may result in poorer overall investment performance than if Sierra had not engaged in any such hedging transactions. In addition, the degree of correlation between price movements of the instruments used in a hedging strategy and price movements in the portfolio positions being hedged may vary. Moreover, for a variety of reasons, Sierra may not seek or be able to establish a perfect correlation between such hedging instruments and the portfolio holdings being hedged. Any such imperfect correlation may prevent Sierra from achieving the intended hedge and expose Sierra to risk of loss. In addition, it may not be possible to hedge fully or perfectly against currency fluctuations affecting the value of securities denominated in non-U.S. currencies because the value of those securities is likely to fluctuate as a result of factors not related to currency fluctuations.

The disposition of Sierra’s investments may result in contingent liabilities.

Sierra currently expects that a significant portion of Sierra’s investments will involve lending directly to private companies. In connection with the disposition of an investment in private securities, Sierra may be required to make representations about the business and financial affairs of the portfolio company typical of those made in connection with the sale of a business. Sierra may also be required to indemnify the purchasers of such investment to the extent that any such representations turn out to be inaccurate or with respect to certain potential liabilities. These arrangements may result in contingent liabilities that ultimately must be satisfied through Sierra’s return of certain distributions previously made to Sierra.

If Sierra invests in the securities and obligations of distressed and bankrupt issuers, Sierra might not receive interest or other payments.

Sierra may invest in the securities and obligations of distressed and bankrupt issuers, including debt obligations that are in covenant or payment default. Such investments generally are considered speculative. The repayment of defaulted obligations is subject to significant uncertainties. Defaulted obligations might be repaid only after lengthy workout or bankruptcy proceedings, during which the issuer of those obligations might not make any interest or other payments. Sierra may not realize gains from Sierra’s equity investments.

Risks Relating to Sierra’s Debt Financing

At September 30, 2018, Sierra had $366.1 million of outstanding indebtedness under the senior secured syndicated revolving credit facility between Sierra and ING Credit Facility as administrative agent (the “ING Credit Facility”) and the revolving credit facility between Alpine Funding LLC, a wholly owned financing subsidiary of Sierra, and JPMorgan Chase Bank, National Association as administrative agent and lender (the “Alpine Credit Facility,” and together with the ING Credit Facility, the “Sierra Credit Facilities”).

Illustration. The following table illustrates the effect of leverage on returns from an investment in Sierra Common Stock assuming various annual returns, net of expenses. The calculations in the table below are hypothetical and actual returns may be higher or lower than those appearing below. The calculation assumes (i) $1,068.2 million in total assets, (ii) a weighted average cost of funds of 5.1%, (iii) $366.1 million in debt outstanding and (iv) $687.9 million in stockholders’ equity. In order to compute the “Corresponding return to stockholders,” the “Assumed Return on Sierra’s Portfolio (net of expenses)” is multiplied by the assumed total assets to obtain an assumed return to Sierra. From this amount, the interest expense is calculated by multiplying the assumed weighted average cost of funds times the assumed debt outstanding, and the product is subtracted from the assumed return to Sierra in order to determine the return available to stockholders. The return available to stockholders is then divided by Sierra Stockholders’ equity to determine the “Corresponding return to stockholders.” Actual interest payments may be different.

Assumed Return on Sierra’s Portfolio (net of expenses)	(10)%	(5)%	0%	5%	10%
Corresponding return to stockholders (1)	(18.2)%	(10.5)%	(2.7)%	5.0%	12.8%

(1) In order for Sierra to cover its annual interest payments on indebtedness, Sierra must achieve annual returns on its September 30, 2018 total assets of at least 2.7%.

Table of Contents

In addition, Sierra has entered into a TRS with Citibank which provides Sierra with exposure to a portfolio of loans with a maximum notional amount of $180,000,000. See “Risk Factors — Risks Relating to Sierra’s Investments — Sierra has entered into TRS agreements or other derivative transactions which expose Sierra to certain risks, including market risk, liquidity risk and other risks similar to those associated with the use of leverage.”

Because Sierra uses borrowed funds to make investments or fund Sierra’s business operations, Sierra is exposed to risks typically associated with leverage which increase the risk of investing in Sierra.

Sierra intends to borrow funds through draws from Sierra’s ING Credit Facility to leverage Sierra’s capital structure, which is generally considered a speculative investment technique. As a result:

- Sierra Common Stock may be exposed to an increased risk of loss because a decrease in the value of Sierra’s investments may have a greater negative impact on the value of Sierra Common Stock than if Sierra did not use leverage;
- if Sierra does not appropriately match the assets and liabilities of Sierra’s business, adverse changes in interest rates could reduce or eliminate the incremental income Sierra makes with the proceeds of any leverage;
- Sierra’s ability to pay dividends on Sierra Common Stock may be restricted if Sierra’s asset coverage ratio, as provided in the Investment Company Act, is not at least 200% (or 150% if, pursuant to the Investment Company Act, certain requirements are met) and any amounts used to service indebtedness or preferred stock would not be available for such dividends;
- the ING Credit Facility is subject to periodic renewal by Sierra’s lenders, whose continued participation cannot be guaranteed;
- the ING Credit Facility contains covenants restricting Sierra’s operating flexibility; and
- Sierra, and indirectly Sierra Stockholders, bear the cost of issuing and paying interest or dividends on such securities.

Covenants in the Sierra Credit Facilities may restrict Sierra’s financial and operating flexibility.

Sierra maintains the ING Credit Facility with certain lenders party thereto from time to time and ING Capital LLC, as administrative agent, and the Alpine Credit Facility. The Sierra Credit Facilities are secured by substantially all of Sierra’s assets, subject to certain exclusions. Availability of loans under the Sierra Credit Facilities are linked to the valuation of the collateral pursuant to a borrowing base mechanism. Borrowings under the Sierra Credit Facilities are subject to, among other things, a minimum borrowing/collateral base. Substantially all of Sierra’s assets are pledged as collateral under the Sierra Credit Facilities. The Sierra Credit Facilities require Sierra to, among other things (i) make representations and warranties regarding the collateral as well as Sierra’s business and operations, (ii) agree to certain indemnification obligations, and (iii) agree to comply with various affirmative and negative covenants. The documents for each of the Sierra Credit Facilities also include default provisions such as the failure to make timely payments under the Sierra Credit Facilities, as the case may be, the occurrence of a change in control, and Sierra’s failure to materially perform under the operative agreements governing the Sierra Credit Facilities, which, if not complied with, could accelerate repayment under the Sierra Credit Facilities, thereby materially and adversely affecting Sierra’s liquidity, financial condition and results of operations.

As a result of such covenants and restrictions in the Sierra Credit Facilities, Sierra will be limited in how Sierra conducts its business and Sierra may be unable to raise additional debt or equity financing to take advantage of new business opportunities. In addition, Sierra’s ability to satisfy the financial requirements required by the Sierra Credit Facilities can be affected by events beyond Sierra’s control and Sierra cannot assure you that Sierra will meet these requirements. Sierra cannot assure you that Sierra will be able to maintain compliance with these covenants in the future and, if Sierra fails to do so, Sierra may be in default under the Sierra Credit Facilities, and Sierra may be prohibited from undertaking actions that are necessary or desirable to maintain and expand Sierra’s business.

Default under the Sierra Credit Facilities could allow the lender(s) to declare all amounts outstanding to be immediately due and payable. If the lender(s) declare amounts outstanding under the Sierra Credit Facilities to be due, the lender(s) could proceed against the assets pledged to secure the debt under the Sierra Credit Facilities. Any event of default, therefore, could have a material adverse effect on Sierra's business if the lender(s) determine to exercise their rights.

Because Sierra uses debt to finance Sierra's investments, changes in interest rates will affect Sierra's cost of capital and net investment income.

Because Sierra borrows money to make investments, Sierra's net investment income will depend, in part, upon the difference between the rate at which Sierra borrows funds and the rate at which Sierra invests those funds. As a result, Sierra can offer no assurance that a significant change in market interest rates will not have a material adverse effect on Sierra's net investment income in the event Sierra uses its existing debt to finance its investments. In periods of rising interest rates, Sierra's cost of funds will increase to the extent Sierra accesses the ING Credit Facility, since the interest rate on the ING Credit Facility is floating, which could reduce Sierra's net investment income to the extent any debt investments have fixed interest rates. Sierra expects that Sierra's long-term fixed-rate investments will be financed primarily with issuances of equity and long-term debt securities. Sierra may use interest rate risk management techniques in an effort to limit Sierra's exposure to interest rate fluctuations. Such techniques may include various interest rate hedging activities to the extent permitted by the Investment Company Act.

You should also be aware that a rise in the general level of interest rates typically leads to higher interest rates applicable to Sierra's debt investments. Accordingly, an increase in interest rates may result in an increase of the amount of incentive fees payable to SIC Advisors.

If Sierra borrows money, the potential for gain or loss on amounts invested in Sierra will be magnified and may increase the risk of investing in Sierra Common Stock. Borrowed money may also adversely affect the return on Sierra's assets, reduce cash available for distribution to Sierra Stockholders, and result in losses.

The use of borrowings, also known as leverage, increases the volatility of investments by magnifying the potential for gain or loss on invested equity capital. Sierra's use of leverage to partially finance Sierra's investments, through borrowing from banks and other lenders, increases the risks of investing in Sierra Common Stock. If the value of Sierra's assets decreases, leveraging would cause NAV to decline more sharply than it otherwise would have had Sierra not leveraged. Similarly, any decrease in Sierra's income would cause net income to decline more sharply than it would have had Sierra not borrowed. Such a decline could negatively affect Sierra's ability to make distributions to Sierra Stockholders. In addition, Sierra Stockholders will bear the burden of any increase in Sierra's expenses as a result of Sierra's use of leverage, including interest expenses and any increase in the management or incentive fees payable to SIC Advisors.

Sierra uses leverage to finance its investments. The amount of leverage that Sierra employs depends on SIC Advisors' and the Sierra Board's assessment of market and other factors at the time of the relevant borrowing. There can be no assurance that leveraged financing will in the future be available to Sierra on favorable terms or at all. However, to the extent of Sierra's use of leverage to finance Sierra's assets, Sierra's financing costs will reduce cash available for distributions to Sierra Stockholders. Moreover, Sierra may not be able to meet Sierra's financing obligations and, to the extent that Sierra cannot, Sierra risks the loss of some or all of its assets to liquidation or sale to satisfy the obligations. In such an event, Sierra may be forced to sell assets at significantly depressed prices due to market conditions or otherwise, which may result in losses.

As a BDC, Sierra generally is required to meet a coverage ratio of total assets to total borrowings and other senior securities, which include all of Sierra's borrowings and any preferred stock that Sierra may issue in the future, of at least 200% (or 150% if, pursuant to the Investment Company Act, certain requirements are met). If this ratio declines below 200%, Sierra cannot incur additional debt and could be required to sell a portion of Sierra's investments to repay some debt when it is disadvantageous to do so. This could have a material adverse effect on Sierra's operations, and Sierra may not be able to make distributions. The amount of leverage that Sierra will employ will be subject to oversight by the Sierra Board, a majority of whom will be independent directors with no material interests in such transactions.

Sierra will be exposed to risks associated with changes in interest rates.

Sierra is subject to financial market risks, including changes in interest rates. Because Sierra uses debt to finance investments, Sierra's net investment income depends, in part, upon the difference between the rate at which Sierra borrows funds and the rate at which Sierra invests those funds. As a result, Sierra can offer no assurance that a significant change in market interest rates will not have a material adverse effect on Sierra's net investment income. In periods of rising interest rates when Sierra has debt outstanding, Sierra's cost of funds will increase, which could reduce Sierra's net investment income.

In addition, due to the continuing effects of the prolonged economic crisis and recession that began in 2007, interest rates have recently been at or near historic lows. In the event of a significant rising interest rate environment, Sierra's portfolio companies with adjustable-rate debt could see their payments increase and there may be a significant increase in the number of Sierra's portfolio companies who are unable or unwilling to repay their debt. Investments in companies with adjustable-rate debt may also decline in value in response to rising interest rates if the rates at which they pay interest do not rise as much, or as quickly, as market interest rates in general. Similarly, during periods of rising interest rates, Sierra's investments with fixed rates may decline in value because they are locked in at below market yield.

Sierra may use interest rate risk management techniques in an effort to limit Sierra's exposure to interest rate fluctuations. These techniques may include various interest rate hedging activities to the extent such activities are not prohibited by the Investment Company Act. These activities may limit Sierra's ability to participate in the benefits of lower interest rates with respect to the hedged portfolio. Adverse developments resulting from changes in interest rates or hedging transactions could have a material adverse effect on Sierra's business, financial condition and results of operations.

Risks Relating to an Investment in Sierra Common Stock

Sierra Stockholders will have limited liquidity and may not receive a full return of invested capital upon selling their shares.

Shares of Sierra Common Stock are illiquid investments for which there is currently no secondary market. A future liquidity event could include: (i) a listing of Sierra Common Stock on a national securities exchange; (ii) a merger or another transaction approved by the Sierra Board in which Sierra Stockholders will receive cash or shares of a listed company; or (iii) a sale of all or substantially all of Sierra's assets either on a complete portfolio basis or individually followed by a liquidation. Certain types of liquidity events, such as a listing, would allow Sierra to retain Sierra's investment portfolio intact while providing Sierra Stockholders with access to a trading market for their securities. If the Mergers are successfully consummated, the Sierra Common Stock will be listed on the NYSE under the symbol "SRA" and is expected to be listed on the TASE, with such listings expected to be effective as of the closing date of the Mergers. However, if the Mergers are not successfully consummated, Sierra would need to consider other alternative in order to effectuate a liquidity event. See "— Risks Relating to the Mergers" and "— Risks Relating to the Combined Company if the Mergers are Successfully Consummated." If Sierra Common Stock is listed on a national securities exchange, such as the NYSE and the TASE, the Companies cannot assure you that a public trading market will develop or, if one develops, that such trading market can be sustained. See "— Risks Relating to the Combined Company if the Mergers are Successfully Consummated — There has been no public market for Sierra Common Stock , and the Companies cannot assure you that the market price of shares of the Sierra Common Stock will not decline following the effective date of the Mergers."

Sierra is not obligated to complete a liquidity event; therefore, it will be difficult for an investor to sell his or her shares.

There can be no assurance that Sierra will complete a liquidity event. If Sierra does not successfully complete a liquidity event, liquidity for a Sierra Stockholder's investment in Sierra Common Stock will be limited.

Sierra may be unable to invest a significant portion of the net proceeds of Sierra's offering on acceptable terms in an acceptable timeframe.

Delays in investing the net proceeds of Sierra's offering, which was terminated by the Sierra Board effective as of July 31, 2018, may impair Sierra's performance. Sierra cannot assure you Sierra will be able to identify any investments that meet Sierra's investment objective or that any investment that Sierra makes will produce a positive return. Sierra may be unable to invest the net proceeds of its offering on acceptable terms within the time period that Sierra anticipates, or at all, which could harm Sierra's financial condition and operating results.

Before making investments, Sierra will invest the net proceeds of its public offering primarily in cash, cash equivalents, U.S. government securities, repurchase agreements, and other high-quality debt instruments maturing in one year or less from the time of investment. This will produce returns that are significantly lower than the returns, which Sierra expects to achieve when Sierra's portfolio is fully invested in securities meeting Sierra's investment objective. As a result, any distributions that Sierra pays while Sierra's portfolio is not fully invested in securities meeting Sierra's investment objective may be lower than the distributions that Sierra may be able to pay when Sierra's portfolio is fully invested in securities meeting Sierra's investment objective.

A Sierra Stockholder's interest in Sierra Common Stock will be diluted if Sierra issues additional shares of Sierra Common Stock, which could reduce the overall value of an investment in Sierra.

Sierra Stockholders do not have preemptive rights to any shares of Sierra capital stock Sierra issues in the future. The Sierra Charter authorizes Sierra to issue up to 250,000,000 shares of Sierra Common Stock. Pursuant to the Sierra Charter, a majority of the Sierra Board may amend the Sierra Charter to increase the number of authorized shares of stock without stockholder approval. After an investor purchases shares, the Sierra Board may elect to sell additional shares in the future, issue equity interests in private offerings or issue share-based awards to Sierra's independent directors or persons associated with SIC Advisors. To the extent Sierra issues additional equity interests at or below NAV, after an investor purchases Sierra Common Stock, an investor's percentage ownership interest in Sierra will be diluted. In addition, depending upon the terms and pricing of any additional offerings and the value of Sierra's investments, a Sierra Stockholder may also experience dilution in the NAV and fair value of his or her shares. If the Mergers are successfully completed, Sierra Stockholders will experience a reduction in percentage ownership and voting power in the Combined Company. See "— Risks Relating to the Combined Company if the Mergers are Successfully Consummated — Sierra Stockholders and MCC Stockholders will experience a reduction in percentage ownership and voting power in the Combined Company as a result of the Mergers as compared to their current respective percentage ownership and voting power in Sierra and MCC."

Under the Investment Company Act, Sierra generally is prohibited from issuing or selling Sierra Common Stock at a price below NAV per share, which may be a disadvantage as compared with certain public companies. Sierra may, however, sell Sierra Common Stock, or warrants, options, or rights to acquire Sierra Common Stock, at a price below the current NAV of Sierra Common Stock if the Sierra Board and independent directors determine that such sale is in Sierra's best interests and the best interests of Sierra Stockholders, and Sierra Stockholders, including a majority of those stockholders that are not affiliated with Sierra, approve such sale. In any such case, the price at which Sierra's securities are to be issued and sold may not be less than a price that, in the determination of the Sierra Board, closely approximates the fair value of such securities (less any distributing commission or discount). If Sierra raises additional funds by issuing common stock or senior securities convertible into, or exchangeable for, Sierra Common Stock, then the percentage ownership of Sierra Stockholders at that time will decrease and you will experience dilution.

Preferred stock could be issued with rights and preferences that would adversely affect holders of Sierra Common Stock.

Under the terms of the Sierra Charter, the Sierra Board is authorized to issue shares of preferred stock in one or more series without Sierra Stockholder approval, which could potentially adversely affect the interests of existing Sierra Stockholders.

If Sierra issues preferred stock, the NAV and market value of Sierra Common Stock may become more volatile.

If Sierra issues preferred stock, Sierra cannot assure you that such issuance would result in a higher yield or return to the holders of Sierra Common Stock. The issuance of preferred stock would likely cause the NAV and market value of Sierra Common Stock to become more volatile. If the dividend rate on the preferred stock were to approach the net rate of return on Sierra's investment portfolio, the benefit of leverage to the holders of Sierra Common Stock would be reduced. If the dividend rate on the preferred stock were to exceed the net rate of return on Sierra's portfolio, the leverage would result in a lower rate of return to the holders of Sierra Common Stock than if Sierra had not issued preferred stock. Any decline in the NAV of Sierra's investments would be borne entirely by the holders of Sierra Common Stock. Therefore, if the market value of Sierra's portfolio were to decline, the leverage would result in a greater decrease in NAV to the holders of Sierra Common Stock than if Sierra were not leveraged through the issuance of preferred stock. This greater NAV decrease would also tend to cause a greater decline in the market price for Sierra Common Stock. Sierra might be in danger of failing to maintain the required asset coverage of the preferred stock or of losing Sierra's ratings on the preferred stock or, in an extreme case, Sierra's current investment income might not be sufficient to meet the dividend requirements on the preferred stock. In order to counteract such an event, Sierra might need to liquidate investments in order to fund a redemption of some or all of the preferred stock. In addition, Sierra would pay (and the holders of Sierra Common Stock would bear) all costs and expenses relating to the issuance and ongoing maintenance of the preferred stock, including higher advisory fees if Sierra's total return exceeds the dividend rate on the preferred stock. Holders of preferred stock may have different interests than holders of Sierra Common Stock and may at times have disproportionate influence over Sierra's affairs.

Holders of any preferred stock Sierra might issue might have the right to elect members of the Sierra Board and class voting rights on certain matters.

Holders of any preferred stock Sierra might issue, voting separately as a single class, might have the right to elect two members of the Sierra Board at all times and in the event dividends become two full years in arrears, would have the right to elect a majority of Sierra's directors until such arrearage is completely eliminated. In addition, preferred stockholders would have class voting rights on certain matters, including changes in fundamental investment restrictions and conversion to open-end status, and accordingly would be able to veto any such changes. Restrictions imposed on the declarations and payment of dividends or other distributions to the holders of Sierra Common Stock and preferred stock, both by the Investment Company Act and by requirements imposed by rating agencies or the terms of Sierra's credit facilities, might impair Sierra's ability to maintain its qualification for RIC tax treatment for U.S. federal income tax purposes. While Sierra would intend to redeem its preferred stock to the extent necessary to enable Sierra to distribute its income as required to maintain Sierra's qualification as a RIC, there can be no assurance that such actions could be effected in time to meet the tax requirements.

Certain provisions of the Maryland Corporation Law could deter takeover attempts.

The Sierra Bylaws exempt Sierra from the Maryland Control Share Acquisition Act, which significantly restricts the voting rights of control shares of a Maryland corporation acquired in a control share acquisition. If the Sierra Board were to amend the Sierra Bylaws to repeal this exemption from the Maryland Control Share Acquisition Act, that statute may make it more difficult for a third party to obtain control of Sierra and increase the difficulty of consummating such a transaction. Although Sierra does not presently intend to adopt such an amendment to the Sierra Bylaws, there can be no assurance that Sierra will not so amend the Sierra Bylaws at some time in the future. Sierra will not, however, amend the Sierra Bylaws to make Sierra subject to the Maryland Control Share Acquisition Act without the Sierra Board determining that doing so would not conflict with the Investment Company Act and obtaining confirmation from the SEC that it does not object to that determination.

Additionally, the Sierra Board may, without stockholder action, authorize the issuance of shares of stock in one or more classes or series, including preferred stock. The Sierra Board may also, without stockholder action, amend the Sierra Charter to increase the number of shares of stock of any class or series that Sierra has authority to issue. These anti-takeover provisions may inhibit a change of control in circumstances that could give the holders of Sierra Common Stock the opportunity to realize a premium over the value of Sierra Common Stock.

Investing in Sierra Common Stock involves a high degree of risk.

The investments Sierra makes in accordance with Sierra's investment objective may result in a higher amount of risk and volatility or loss of principal than alternative investment options. Sierra's investments in portfolio companies may be highly speculative and aggressive and, therefore, an investment in Sierra Common Stock may not be suitable for someone with lower risk tolerance.

The NAV of Sierra Common Stock may fluctuate significantly.

The NAV and liquidity, if any, of the market for shares of Sierra Common Stock may be significantly affected by numerous factors, some of which are beyond Sierra's control and may not be directly related to Sierra's operating performance. These factors include:

- significant volatility in the market price and trading volume of securities of BDCs or other companies in Sierra's sector, which are not necessarily related to the operating performance of the companies;
- changes in regulatory policies or tax guidelines, particularly with respect to RICs or BDCs;
- loss of RIC or BDC status;
- changes in earnings or variations in operating results;
- changes in the value of Sierra's portfolio of investments;
- changes in accounting guidelines governing valuation of Sierra's investments;
- any shortfall in revenue or net income or any increase in losses from levels expected by investors;
- departure of SIC Advisors or certain of its respective key personnel;
- operating performance of companies comparable to Sierra;
- general economic trends and other external factors; and
- loss of a major funding source.

U.S. Federal Income Tax Risks

Sierra will be subject to corporate-level U.S. federal income tax if it is unable to qualify for the tax treatment applicable to RICs under Subchapter M of the Code or to satisfy RIC distribution requirements.

To maintain RIC tax treatment under the Code, Sierra must meet the following minimum annual distribution, income source and asset diversification requirements. See "Material U.S. Federal Income Tax Consequences — U.S. Federal Income Taxation of an Investment in Sierra Common Stock — Taxation as a RIC."

The minimum annual distribution requirement for a RIC will be satisfied if Sierra distributes to Sierra Stockholders on an annual basis at least 90% of Sierra's "investment company taxable income," which generally is its net ordinary income plus the excess of realized net short-term capital gains over realized net long-term capital losses, if any. Sierra would be taxed on any retained income and/or gains, including any short-term capital gains or long-term capital gains. Because Sierra may use debt financing, Sierra is subject to an asset coverage ratio requirement under the Investment Company Act and may in the future become subject to certain financial covenants under loan and credit agreements that could, under certain circumstances, restrict Sierra from making distributions necessary to satisfy the distribution requirement. If Sierra is unable to obtain cash from other sources, Sierra could fail to qualify for RIC tax treatment, or could be required to retain a portion of Sierra's income or gains, and thus become subject to corporate-level U.S. federal income tax.

The income source requirement will be satisfied if Sierra obtains at least 90% of Sierra's income for each year from dividends, interest, gains from the sale of stock or securities, or similar sources. The asset diversification requirement will be satisfied if Sierra meets certain asset diversification requirements at the end of each quarter of Sierra's taxable year. To satisfy this requirement, at least 50% of the value of Sierra's assets must consist of cash, cash equivalents, U.S. Government securities, securities of other RICs, and other securities, with those other securities limited, in respect of any one issuer, to an amount that does not exceed 5% of the value of its total assets and that does not represent more than 10% of the outstanding voting securities of such issuer; and no more than 25% of the value of Sierra's assets can be invested in the securities, other than U.S. government securities or securities of other RICs, of one issuer, of two or more issuers that are controlled, as determined under applicable Code rules, by Sierra and that are engaged in the same or similar or related trades or businesses or of certain "qualified publicly traded partnerships." Failure to meet these requirements may result in Sierra's having to dispose of certain investments quickly in order to prevent the loss of RIC tax treatment. Because most of Sierra's investments will be in private companies, and therefore will be relatively illiquid, any such dispositions could be made at disadvantageous prices and could result in substantial losses.

If Sierra fails to qualify for or maintain RIC tax treatment for any reason and is subject to corporate-level U.S. federal income tax, the resulting corporate taxes could substantially reduce Sierra's net assets, the amount of income available for distribution, and the amount of Sierra's distributions. Such a failure would have a material adverse effect on Sierra's results of operations and financial conditions, and thus, Sierra Stockholders.

Sierra may have difficulty paying its required distributions if it recognizes income before or without receiving cash representing such income.

For U.S. federal income tax purposes, Sierra may be required to recognize taxable income in circumstances in which Sierra does not receive a corresponding payment in cash. For example, if Sierra holds debt obligations that are treated under applicable tax rules as having OID (such as debt instruments with PIK interest or, in certain cases, increasing interest rates or debt instruments that were issued with warrants), Sierra must include in income each year a portion of the OID that accrues over the life of the obligation, regardless of whether cash representing such income is received by Sierra in the same taxable year. Sierra may also have to include in income other amounts that Sierra has not yet received in cash, such as deferred loan origination fees that are paid after origination of the loan or are paid in non-cash compensation such as warrants or stock. Furthermore, Sierra may invest in non-U.S. corporations (or other non-U.S. entities treated as corporations for U.S. federal income tax purposes) that could be treated under the Code and U.S. Treasury regulations as "passive foreign investment companies" and/or "controlled foreign corporations." The rules relating to investment in these types of non-U.S. entities are designed to ensure that U.S. taxpayers are either, in effect, taxed currently (or on an accelerated basis with respect to corporate level events) or taxed at increased tax rates on the receipt of distributions or upon disposition. In certain circumstances, this could require Sierra to recognize income where Sierra does not receive a corresponding payment in cash. Sierra anticipates that a portion of Sierra's income may constitute OID or other income required to be included in taxable income prior to receipt of cash. Further, Sierra may elect to amortize market discounts and include such amounts in Sierra's taxable income in the current year, instead of upon disposition, as an election not to do so would limit Sierra's ability to deduct interest expenses for tax purposes.

Because any OID or other amounts accrued will be included in Sierra's investment company taxable income for the year of the accrual, Sierra may be required to make a distribution to Sierra Stockholders in order to satisfy the annual distribution requirement, even if Sierra will not have received any corresponding cash amount. As a result, Sierra may have difficulty meeting the tax requirement to distribute at least 90% of Sierra's net ordinary income and net short-term capital gains in excess of net long-term capital losses, if any, to maintain RIC tax treatment under the Code. Sierra may have to sell some of its investments at times and/or at prices Sierra would not consider advantageous, raise additional debt or equity capital, make a partial share distribution, or forgo new investment opportunities for this purpose. If Sierra is not able to obtain cash from other sources, and chooses not to make a qualifying share distribution, Sierra may fail to qualify for RIC tax treatment and thus become subject to corporate-level U.S. federal income tax. See "Material U.S. Federal Income Tax Consequences - U.S. Federal Income Taxation of an Investment in Sierra Common Stock – Taxation as a RIC."

Risks Relating to MCC

The following risk factors apply to MCC prior to closing of the Mergers and, following the completion of the Mergers, will, in most cases, apply to the Combined Company.

Certain Risks in the Current Environment

Capital markets may experience periods of disruption and instability and MCC cannot predict when these conditions will occur. Such market conditions could materially and adversely affect debt and equity capital markets in the United States and abroad, which could have a negative impact on MCC's business, financial condition and results of operations.

As a BDC, MCC must maintain its ability to raise additional capital for investment purposes. Without sufficient access to the capital markets or credit markets, MCC may be forced to curtail its business operations or it may not be able to pursue new business opportunities.

The U.S. and global capital markets experienced extreme volatility and disruption that began in mid-2007, and the U.S. economy was in recession for several consecutive calendar quarters during the same period, as evidenced by a lack of liquidity in the debt capital markets, write-offs in the financial services sector, the re-pricing of credit risk and the failure of certain major financial institutions. While the capital markets have improved, these conditions could deteriorate again in the future. During such market disruptions, MCC may have difficulty raising debt or equity capital, especially as a result of regulatory constraints.

Market conditions may in the future make it difficult to extend the maturity of or refinance MCC's existing indebtedness and any failure to do so could have a material adverse effect on MCC's business. The illiquidity of MCC's investments may make it difficult for MCC to sell such investments if required. As a result, MCC may realize significantly less than the value at which it has recorded its investments. In addition, significant changes in the capital markets, including the disruption and volatility, have had, and may in the future have, a negative effect on the valuations of MCC's investments and on the potential for liquidity events involving MCC's investments. An inability to raise capital, and any required sale of MCC's investments for liquidity purposes, could have a material adverse impact on MCC's business, financial condition and results of operations.

Various social and political tensions in the United States and globally, including instability in the financial markets, may contribute to increased market volatility, may have long-term effects on the United States and worldwide financial markets, and may cause economic uncertainties or deterioration in the United States and worldwide. In recent years, financial markets have been affected at times by a number of global macroeconomic and political events, including the following: large sovereign debts and fiscal deficits of several countries in Europe and in emerging markets jurisdictions, levels of non-performing loans on the balance sheets of European banks, the potential effect of any European country leaving the Eurozone, the potential effect of the United Kingdom leaving the European Union, the potential effect of Scotland leaving the United Kingdom, and market volatility and loss of investor confidence driven by political events, including the general elections in the United Kingdom in June 2017 and in Germany in September 2017 and referenda in the United Kingdom in June 2016 and Italy in December 2016. Market and economic disruptions have affected, and may in the future affect, consumer confidence levels and spending, personal bankruptcy rates, levels of incurrence and default on consumer debt and home prices, among other factors. MCC cannot assure you that market disruptions in Europe, including the increased cost of funding for certain governments and financial institutions, will not impact the global economy, and MCC cannot assure you that assistance packages will be available, or if available, be sufficient to stabilize countries and markets in Europe or elsewhere affected by a financial crisis. To the extent uncertainty regarding any economic recovery in Europe negatively impacts consumer confidence and consumer credit factors, MCC's business, financial condition and results of operations could be significantly and adversely affected.

In the second quarter of 2015, stock prices in China experienced a significant drop, resulting primarily from continued sell-off of shares trading in Chinese markets. In August 2015, Chinese authorities sharply devalued China's currency. In June 2016, the United Kingdom held a referendum in which voters approved Brexit, and, subsequently, on March 29, 2017, the U.K. government began the formal process of leaving the European Union. Brexit created political and economic uncertainty and instability in the global markets (including currency and credit markets), and especially in the United Kingdom and the European Union, and this uncertainty and instability may last indefinitely. Because of the election results in the U.K. in June 2017, there is increased uncertainty on the timing of Brexit. There is also continued concern about national-level support for the euro and the accompanying coordination of fiscal and wage policy among European Economic and Monetary Union member countries.

The Republican Party currently controls both the executive and legislative branches of government, which increases the likelihood that legislation may be adopted that could significantly affect the regulation of U.S. financial markets. Areas subject to potential change, amendment or repeal include the Dodd-Frank Act and the authority of the Federal Reserve and the Financial Stability Oversight Council. The United States may also potentially withdraw from or renegotiate various trade agreements and take other actions that would change current trade policies of the United States. MCC cannot predict which, if any, of these actions will be taken or, if taken, their effect on the financial stability of the United States. Such actions could have a significant adverse effect on MCC's business, financial condition and results of operations. MCC cannot predict the duration of the effects related to these or similar events in the future on the U.S. economy and securities markets or on its investments. MCC monitors developments and seeks to manage its investments in a manner consistent with achieving its investment objective, but there can be no assurance that MCC will be successful in doing so.

Any further disruptive conditions in the financial industry and the impact of new legislation in response to those conditions could restrict MCC's business operations and could adversely impact MCC's results of operations and financial condition. In addition, the BDC market may be more sensitive to changes in interest rates or other factors and to the extent the BDC market trades down, MCC's shares might likewise be affected. If the fair value of MCC's assets declines substantially, MCC may fail to maintain the asset coverage ratios imposed upon MCC by the Investment Company Act. Any such failure would affect MCC's ability to issue securities, including borrowings, and pay distributions, which could materially impair MCC's business operations. MCC's liquidity could be impaired further by an inability to access the capital markets or to consummate new borrowing facilities to provide capital for normal operations, including new originations. In recent years, reflecting concern about the stability of the financial markets, many lenders and institutional investors have reduced or ceased providing funding to borrowers.

Difficult market and political conditions may adversely affect MCC's business in many ways, including by reducing the value or hampering the performance of the investments made by its funds, each of which could materially and adversely affect MCC's business, results of operations and financial condition.

MCC's business is materially affected by conditions in the global financial markets and economic and political conditions throughout the world, such as interest rates, availability and cost of credit, inflation rates, economic uncertainty, changes in laws (including laws relating to MCC's taxation, taxation of MCC's investors, the possibility of changes to tax laws in either the United States or any non-U.S. jurisdiction and regulations on asset managers), trade barriers, commodity prices, currency exchange rates and controls and national and international political circumstances (including wars, terrorist acts and security operations). These factors are outside of MCC's control and may affect the level and volatility of asset prices and the liquidity and value of investments, and MCC may not be able to or may choose not to manage MCC's exposure to these conditions. While market conditions have largely recovered from the unprecedented turmoil in the global capital markets and the financial services industry in late 2008 and early 2009, there have been continuing periods of volatility, some lasting longer than others. There can be no assurance that these market conditions will not repeat themselves or worsen in the future. These and other conditions in the global financial markets and the global economy may result in adverse consequences for MCC's funds and their respective investee companies, which could restrict such funds' investment activities and impede such funds' ability to effectively achieve their investment objectives. In addition, because the fees MCC earns under MCC's investment management agreements are based in part on the market value of MCC's assets under management and in part on investment performance, if any of these factors cause a decline in MCC's assets under management or result in non-performance of loans by investee companies, it would result in lower fees earned, which could in turn materially and adversely affect MCC's business and results of operations.

The downgrade of the U.S. credit rating and the economic crisis in Europe could negatively impact MCC's liquidity, financial condition and earnings.

U.S. debt ceiling and budget deficit concerns together with signs of deteriorating sovereign debt conditions in Europe continue to present the possibility of a credit-rating downgrade, economic slowdowns, or a recession for the United States. The impact of any further downgrades to the U.S. government's sovereign credit rating or downgraded sovereign credit ratings of European countries or the Russian Federation, or their perceived creditworthiness could adversely affect the U.S. and global financial markets and economic conditions. These developments, along with any further European sovereign debt issues, could cause interest rates and borrowing costs to rise, which may negatively impact MCC's ability to access the debt markets on favorable terms. Continued adverse economic conditions could have a material adverse effect on MCC's business, financial condition and results of operations.

In September 2018, the Federal Reserve raised the federal funds rate, which was the third such interest rate hike in 2018, to a range between 2.00% to 2.25%, and the Federal Reserve has announced its intention to continue to raise the federal funds rate over time. However, if key economic indicators, such as the unemployment rate or inflation, do not progress at a rate consistent with the Federal Reserve's objectives, the target range for the federal funds rate may increase and cause interest rates and borrowing costs to rise, which may negatively impact MCC's ability to access the debt markets on favorable terms. Any continued adverse economic conditions could have a material adverse effect on MCC's business, financial condition and results of operations.

A failure or the perceived risk of a failure to raise the statutory debt limit of the United States could have a material adverse effect on MCC's business, financial condition and results of operations.

Although U.S. lawmakers passed legislation to raise the federal debt ceiling until March 2019, in the future, the U.S. government may not be able to meet its debt payments unless the federal debt ceiling is raised. If legislation increasing the debt ceiling is not enacted, as needed, and the debt ceiling is reached (which is expected to occur in December 2017), the federal government may stop or delay making payments on its obligations. A failure by Congress to raise the debt limit to the extent necessary would increase the risk of default by the United States on its obligations, as well as the risk of other economic dislocations. If the U.S. government fails to complete its budget process or to provide for a continuing resolution before the expiration of the current continuing resolution, another federal government shutdown may result. Such a failure or the perceived risk of such a failure, consequently, could have a material adverse effect on the financial markets and economic conditions in the United States and throughout the world. It could also limit MCC's ability and the ability of MCC's portfolio companies to obtain financing, and it could have a material adverse effect on the valuation of MCC's portfolio companies. Consequently, the continued uncertainty in the general economic environment and potential debt ceiling implications, as well in specific economies of several individual geographic markets in which MCC's portfolio companies operate, could adversely affect MCC's business, financial condition and results of operations.

Risks Relating to MCC's Business

MCC may suffer credit losses.

Private debt in the form of secured loans to corporate and asset-based borrowers is highly speculative and involves a high degree of risk of credit loss, and therefore an investment in MCC's securities may not be suitable for someone with a low tolerance for risk. These risks are likely to increase during an economic recession, such as the economic recession or downturn that the United States and many other countries have recently experienced or are experiencing.

Because MCC uses borrowed funds to make investments or fund MCC's business operations, MCC is exposed to risks typically associated with leverage which increase the risk of investing in MCC.

MCC has borrowed funds, including through the issuance of $89.8 million, $74.0 million and $121.3 million in aggregate principal amount of 6.125% unsecured notes due March 30, 2023 (the "2023 Notes"), 6.50% unsecured notes due January 30, 2021 (the "2021 Notes"), and Series A notes due February 27, 2024 (the "2024 Notes, and together with the 2023 Notes and the 2021 Notes, the "MCC Notes"), through draws from the MCC Revolving Credit Facility, MCC Term Loan Facility and SBA-guaranteed debentures to leverage MCC's capital structure, which is generally considered a speculative investment technique. As of September 30, 2018, the MCC Term Loan Facility and the MCC Revolving Credit Facility had no outstanding balances and MCC had $135.0 million SBA-guaranteed debentures outstanding, before netting out debt issuance costs. In addition, although the MCC Revolving Credit Facility has been terminated, MCC may replace that facility with another revolving or other credit facility. As a result:

- MCC Common Stock may be exposed to an increased risk of loss because a decrease in the value of MCC's investments may have a greater negative impact on the value of MCC Common Stock than if MCC did not use leverage;
- if MCC does not appropriately match the assets and liabilities of MCC's business, adverse changes in interest rates could reduce or eliminate the incremental income MCC makes with the proceeds of any leverage;
- MCC's ability to pay distributions on MCC Common Stock may be restricted if MCC's asset coverage ratio with respect to each of MCC's outstanding senior securities representing indebtedness and MCC's outstanding preferred shares, as defined by the Investment Company Act, is not at least 200% and any amounts used to service indebtedness or preferred stock would not be available for such distributions;

Table of Contents

- any credit facility to which MCC becomes a party may be subject to periodic renewal by MCC's lenders, whose continued participation cannot be guaranteed;
- any credit facility to which MCC becomes a party may contain covenants restricting MCC's operating flexibility;
- MCC, and indirectly MCC Stockholders, bear the cost of issuing and paying interest or dividends on such securities; and
- any convertible or exchangeable securities that MCC issues may have rights, preferences and privileges more favorable than those of MCC Common Stock.

Under the provisions of the Investment Company Act, MCC is permitted, as a BDC, to issue debt securities or preferred stock and/or borrow money from banks and other financial institutions, which MCC collectively refers to as "senior securities", only in amounts such that MCC's asset coverage ratio equals at least 200% (or 150% if, pursuant to the Investment Company Act, certain requirements are met) after each issuance of senior securities.

For a discussion of the terms of the MCC Notes, see "Management's Discussion and Analysis of Financial Condition and Results of Operations of MCC — Financial Condition, Liquidity and Capital Resources."

The lack of liquidity in MCC's investments may adversely affect MCC's business.

MCC anticipates that its investments generally will be made in private companies. Substantially all of these securities will be subject to legal and other restrictions on resale or will be otherwise less liquid than publicly traded securities. The illiquidity of MCC's investments may make it difficult for MCC to sell such investments if the need arises. In addition, if MCC is required to liquidate all or a portion of MCC's portfolio quickly, MCC may realize significantly less than the value at which MCC had previously recorded MCC's investments. In addition, MCC may face other restrictions on MCC's ability to liquidate an investment in a portfolio company to the extent that MCC or MCC Advisors has material non-public information regarding such portfolio company.

A substantial portion of MCC's portfolio investments will be recorded at fair value as determined in good faith by or under the direction of the MCC Board and, as a result, there may be uncertainty regarding the value of MCC's portfolio investments.

The debt and equity securities in which MCC invests for which market quotations are not readily available will be valued at fair value as determined in good faith by or under the direction of the MCC Board. Most, if not all, of MCC's investments (other than cash and cash equivalents) will be classified as Level 3 under ASC Topic 820 - Fair Value Measurements and Disclosures. This means that MCC's portfolio valuations will be based on unobservable inputs and MCC's own assumptions about how market participants would price the asset or liability in question. MCC expects that inputs into the determination of fair value of MCC's portfolio investments will require significant management judgment or estimation. Even if observable market data are available, such information may be the result of consensus pricing information or broker quotes, which include a disclaimer that the broker would not be held to such a price in an actual transaction. The non-binding nature of consensus pricing and/or quotes accompanied by disclaimers materially reduces the reliability of such information. MCC has retained the services of independent valuation firms to review the valuation of these loans and securities. The types of factors that the MCC Board may take into account in determining the fair value of MCC's investments generally include, as appropriate, comparison to publicly traded securities including such factors as yield, maturity and measures of credit quality, the enterprise value of a portfolio company, the nature and realizable value of any collateral, the portfolio company's ability to make payments and its earnings and discounted cash flow, the markets in which the portfolio company does business and other relevant factors. Because such valuations, and particularly valuations of private securities and private companies, are inherently uncertain, may fluctuate over short periods of time and may be based on estimates, MCC's determinations of fair value may differ materially from the values that would have been used if a ready market for these loans and securities existed. MCC's NAV could be adversely affected if MCC's determinations regarding the fair value of MCC's investments were materially higher than the values that MCC ultimately realizes upon the disposal of such loans and securities.

MCC is a non-diversified investment company within the meaning of the Investment Company Act, and therefore MCC is not limited with respect to the proportion of MCC's assets that may be invested in securities of a single issuer.

MCC is classified as a non-diversified investment company within the meaning of the Investment Company Act, which means that MCC is not limited by the Investment Company Act with respect to the proportion of MCC's assets that MCC may invest in securities of a single issuer. MCC has not adopted any policy restricting the percentage of MCC's assets that may be invested in a single portfolio company. To the extent that MCC assumes large positions in the securities of a small number of issuers, MCC's NAV may fluctuate to a greater extent than that of a diversified investment company as a result of changes in the financial condition or the market's assessment of the issuer. MCC may also be more susceptible to any single economic or regulatory occurrence than a diversified investment company. Beyond MCC's asset diversification requirements under Subchapter M of the Code, MCC does not have fixed guidelines for diversification, and MCC's investments could be concentrated in relatively few portfolio companies.

MCC's ability to enter into transactions with MCC's affiliates will be restricted, which may limit the scope of investments available to MCC.

MCC is prohibited under the Investment Company Act from participating in certain transactions with MCC's affiliates without the prior approval of MCC's independent directors and, in some cases, of the SEC. Any person that owns, directly or indirectly, 5% or more of MCC's outstanding voting securities will be MCC's affiliate for purposes of the Investment Company Act, and MCC is generally prohibited from buying or selling any security from or to such affiliate, absent the prior approval of MCC's independent directors. The Investment Company Act also prohibits certain "joint" transactions with certain of MCC's affiliates, which could include investments in the same portfolio company, without prior approval of MCC's independent directors and, in some cases, of the SEC. MCC is prohibited from buying or selling any security from or to any person who owns more than 25% of MCC's voting securities or certain of that person's affiliates, or entering into prohibited joint transactions with such persons, absent the prior approval of the SEC. As a result of these restrictions, MCC may be prohibited from buying or selling any security (other than any security of which MCC is the issuer) from or to any portfolio company of a private equity fund managed by MCC Advisors or its affiliates without the prior approval of the SEC, which may limit the scope of investment opportunities that would otherwise be available to MCC.

MCC may, however, co-invest with MCC Advisors and its affiliates' other clients in certain circumstances where doing so is consistent with applicable law and SEC staff interpretations. For example, MCC may co-invest with such accounts consistent with guidance promulgated by the SEC staff permitting MCC and such other accounts to purchase interests in a single class of privately placed securities so long as certain conditions are met, including that MCC Advisors, acting on MCC's behalf and on behalf of other clients, negotiates no term other than price. MCC may also co-invest with MCC Advisors' other clients as otherwise permissible under regulatory guidance, applicable regulations and MCC Advisors' allocation policy. Under this allocation policy, a fixed percentage of each opportunity, which may vary based on asset class and from time to time, will be offered to MCC and similar eligible accounts, as periodically determined by MCC Advisors and approved by the MCC Board, including MCC's independent directors. The allocation policy further provides that allocations among MCC and these other accounts will generally be made pro rata based on each account's capital available for investment, as determined, in MCC's case, by MCC Advisors. It is MCC's policy to base MCC's determinations as to the amount of capital available for investment based on such factors as the amount of cash on-hand, existing commitments and reserves, if any, the targeted leverage level, the targeted asset mix and diversification requirements and other investment policies and restrictions set by the MCC Board or imposed by applicable laws, rules, regulations or interpretations. MCC expects that these determinations will be made similarly for other accounts. However, MCC can offer no assurance that investment opportunities will be allocated to MCC fairly or equitably in the short-term or over time.

In addition, MCC has received an order from the SEC that permits MCC to negotiate the terms of co-investments with other funds managed by MCC Advisors or its affiliates subject to the conditions included therein. In situations where co-investment with other funds managed by MCC Advisors or its affiliates is not permitted or appropriate, such as when there is an opportunity to invest in different securities of the same issuer or where the different investments could be expected to result in a conflict between MCC's interests and those of other MCC Advisors clients, MCC Advisors will need to decide which client will proceed with the investment. MCC Advisors will make these determinations based on its policies and procedures, which generally require that such opportunities be offered to eligible accounts on an alternating basis that will be fair and equitable over time. Moreover, except in certain circumstances, MCC will be unable to invest in any issuer in which a fund managed by MCC Advisors or its affiliates has previously invested. Similar restrictions limit MCC's ability to transact business with MCC's officers or directors or their affiliates.

MCC will be exposed to risks associated with changes in interest rates.

Interest rate fluctuations may have a substantial negative impact on MCC's investments, the value of MCC Common Stock and MCC's rate of return on invested capital. A reduction in the interest rates on new investments relative to interest rates on current investments could also have an adverse impact on MCC's net interest income. An increase in interest rates could decrease the value of any investments MCC holds which earn fixed interest rates and also could increase MCC's interest expense, thereby decreasing MCC's net income. Also, an increase in interest rates available to investors could make investment in MCC Common Stock less attractive if MCC is not able to increase MCC's dividend rate, which could reduce the value of MCC Common Stock.

It is unclear how increased regulatory oversight and changes in the method for determining LIBOR may affect the value of the financial obligations to be held or issued by MCC that are linked to LIBOR, or how such changes could affect MCC's results of operations or financial condition.

In the recent past, concerns have been publicized that some of the member banks surveyed by BBA in connection with the calculation of LIBOR across a range of maturities and currencies may have been under-reporting or otherwise manipulating the inter-bank lending rate applicable to them in order to profit on their derivative positions or to avoid an appearance of capital insufficiency or adverse reputational or other consequences that may have resulted from reporting inter-bank lending rates higher than those they actually submitted. A number of BBA member banks entered into settlements with their regulators and law enforcement agencies with respect to alleged manipulation of LIBOR, and investigations by regulators and governmental authorities in various jurisdictions are ongoing.

Accordingly, uncertainty as to the nature of such changes may adversely affect the market for or value of any LIBOR-linked securities, loans, derivatives and other financial obligations or extensions of credit held by or due to MCC or on MCC's overall financial condition or results of operations. In addition, any further changes or reforms to the determination or supervision of LIBOR may result in a sudden or prolonged increase or decrease in reported LIBOR, which could have an adverse impact on the market for or value of any LIBOR-linked securities, loans, derivatives and other financial obligations or extensions of credit held by or due to MCC or on MCC's overall financial condition or results of operations. For example, on July 27, 2017, the U.K. Financial Conduct Authority announced that it intends to stop persuading or compelling banks to submit LIBOR rates after 2021. At this time, it is not possible to predict the effect of any such changes, any establishment of alternative reference rates or any other reforms to LIBOR that may be enacted in the United Kingdom or elsewhere. The elimination of LIBOR or any other changes or reforms to the determination or supervision of LIBOR could have an adverse impact on the market for or value of any LIBOR-linked securities, loans, and other financial obligations or extensions of credit held by or due to MCC or on MCC's overall financial condition or results of operations.

Because MCC uses debt to finance MCC's investments, changes in interest rates will affect MCC's cost of capital and net investment income.

Because MCC borrows money to make investments, MCC's net investment income will depend, in part, upon the difference between the rate at which MCC borrows funds and the rate at which MCC invests those funds. As a result, MCC can offer no assurance that a significant change in market interest rates will not have a material adverse effect on MCC's net investment income in the event MCC use MCC's existing debt to finance MCC's investments. In periods of rising interest rates, MCC's cost of funds will increase to the extent MCC accesses any credit facility with a floating interest rate, which could reduce MCC's net investment income to the extent any debt investments have fixed interest rates. MCC expects that its long-term fixed-rate investments will be financed primarily with issuances of equity and long-term debt securities. MCC may use interest rate risk management techniques in an effort to limit MCC's exposure to interest rate fluctuations. Such techniques may include various interest rate hedging activities to the extent permitted by the Investment Company Act.

You should also be aware that a rise in the general level of interest rates typically leads to higher interest rates applicable to MCC's debt investments. Accordingly, an increase in interest rates may result in an increase of the amount of incentive fees payable to MCC Advisors.

If MCC Advisors is unable to manage MCC's investments effectively, MCC may be unable to achieve MCC's investment objective.

MCC's ability to achieve its investment objective will depend on its ability to manage its business, which will depend, in turn, on the ability of MCC Advisors to identify, invest in and monitor companies that meet MCC's investment criteria. Accomplishing this result largely will be a function of MCC Advisors' investment process and, in conjunction with its role as MCC's administrator, its ability to provide competent, attentive and efficient services to MCC.

MCC Advisors' senior management team is comprised of members of the senior management team for Medley LLC, and they manage other investment funds. They may also be required to provide managerial assistance to MCC's portfolio companies. These demands on their time may distract them or slow MCC's rate of investment. Any failure to manage MCC's business effectively could have a material adverse effect on MCC's business, financial condition and results of operations.

MCC may experience fluctuations in MCC's periodic operating results.

MCC could experience fluctuations in its periodic operating results due to a number of factors, including the interest rates payable on the debt securities MCC acquires, the default rate on such securities, the level of MCC's expenses (including the interest rates payable on MCC's borrowings), the dividend rates payable on preferred stock MCC issues, variations in and the timing of the recognition of realized and unrealized gains or losses, the degree to which MCC encounters competition in MCC's markets and general economic conditions. As a result of these factors, results for any period should not be relied upon as being indicative of performance in future periods.

Any failure on MCC's part to maintain its status as a BDC would reduce its operating flexibility.

If MCC fails to maintain its status as a BDC, MCC might be regulated as a closed-end investment company under the Investment Company Act, which would subject MCC to substantially more onerous regulatory restrictions under the Investment Company Act and correspondingly decrease MCC's operating flexibility.

MCC may have difficulty paying its required distributions if it recognizes income before or without receiving cash representing such income.

For U.S. federal income tax purposes, MCC may include in income certain amounts that it has not yet received in cash, such as OID, which may arise if MCC receives warrants in connection with the making of a loan or possibly in other circumstances, such as PIK interest, which represents contractual interest added to the loan balance and due at the end of the loan term. Such OID, which could be significant relative to MCC's overall investment activities, or increases in loan balances as a result of PIK arrangements are included in income before MCC receives any corresponding cash payments. MCC also may be required to include in income certain other amounts that MCC does not receive in cash.

Since in certain cases MCC may recognize income before or without receiving cash representing such income, MCC may have difficulty meeting the tax requirement to distribute at least 90% of its net ordinary income and realized net short-term capital gains in excess of realized net long-term capital losses, if any, to maintain MCC's status as a RIC. Accordingly, MCC may have to sell some of its investments at times MCC would not consider advantageous, raise additional debt or equity capital or reduce new investment originations to meet these distribution requirements. If MCC is not able to raise cash from other sources, MCC may fail to qualify and maintain its status as a RIC and thus become subject to corporate-level U.S. federal income tax.

MCC may be required to pay incentive fees on income accrued, but not yet received in cash.

That part of the incentive fee payable by MCC that relates to its net investment income is computed and paid on income that may include interest that has been accrued but not yet received in cash, such as market discount, debt instruments with PIK, interest, preferred stock with PIK dividends and zero coupon securities. If a portfolio company defaults on a loan, it is possible that accrued interest previously used in the calculation of the incentive fee will become uncollectible. Consequently, MCC may make incentive fee payments on income accruals that MCC may not collect in the future and with respect to which MCC does not have a clawback right against MCC Advisors.

MCC may not be able to pay distributions and MCC's distributions may not grow over time.

MCC intends to pay quarterly distributions to MCC Stockholders out of assets legally available for distribution. MCC cannot assure you that it will achieve investment results that will allow it to pay a specified level of cash distributions or year-to-year increases in cash distributions. MCC's ability to pay distributions might be adversely affected by, among other things, the impact of one or more of the risk factors described herein. In addition, the inability to satisfy the asset coverage test applicable to MCC as a BDC could limit MCC's ability to pay distributions. All distributions will be paid at the discretion of the MCC Board and will depend on MCC's earnings, MCC's financial condition, maintenance of MCC's RIC tax treatment, compliance with applicable BDC regulations, restrictions on the payment of distributions under its credit facilities, the SBIC Subsidiary's compliance with SBIC regulations and such other factors as the MCC Board may deem relevant from time to time. MCC cannot assure you that MCC will pay distributions to MCC Stockholders in the future.

The SBIC Subsidiary may be unable to make distributions to MCC that will enable MCC to meet or maintain RIC tax treatment, which could result in the imposition of a corporate-level U.S. federal income tax.

In order for MCC to continue to qualify for RIC tax treatment and to minimize corporate-level U.S. federal income taxes, MCC will be required to distribute substantially all of its net ordinary income and net capital gain income, including income from certain of its subsidiaries, which includes the income from the SBIC Subsidiary. MCC is partially dependent on the SBIC Subsidiary for cash distributions to enable MCC to meet the RIC distribution requirements. The SBIC Subsidiary may be limited by the Small Business Investment Act of 1958, and SBIC regulations governing SBICs, from making certain distributions to MCC that may be necessary to enable MCC to maintain its status as a RIC. MCC may have to request a waiver of the SBA's restrictions for the SBIC Subsidiary to make certain distributions to maintain MCC's eligibility for RIC tax treatment. MCC cannot assure you that the SBA will grant such a waiver and if the SBIC Subsidiary is unable to obtain a waiver, compliance with the SBIC regulations may result in loss of RIC tax treatment and a consequent imposition of a corporate-level U.S. federal income tax on MCC.

Pursuant to SBA regulations, a SBIC with outstanding debenture leverage may only distribute cumulative realized profits (less unrealized losses on investments). It may not return more than 2% of its outstanding capital in any fiscal year without SBA approval. Historically, the SBA has permitted payment in excess of 2% only pursuant to an approved wind up plan filed by the SBIC Subsidiary pursuant to which SBA determines that repayment of MCC's outstanding debentures is adequately assured.

The Mergers may require certain regulatory approvals, including that the MCC Merger is conditioned on MCC obtaining SBA approval. See "Risks Relating to the Mergers — The MCC Merger is conditioned on MCC obtaining certain approvals from the SBA for the debentures issued by the SBIC Subsidiary."

The SBIC Subsidiary is subject to SBA regulations, and any failure to comply with SBA regulations could have an adverse effect on MCC's operations.

On March 26, 2013, the SBIC Subsidiary received a SBIC license from the SBA.

The SBIC license allows the SBIC Subsidiary to obtain leverage by issuing SBA-guaranteed debentures, subject to the issuance of a capital commitment by the SBA and other customary procedures. SBA-guaranteed debentures are non-recourse, interest only debentures with interest payable semi-annually and have a ten-year maturity. The principal amount of SBA-guaranteed debentures is not required to be paid prior to maturity but may be prepaid at any time without penalty. The interest rate of SBA-guaranteed debentures is fixed on a semi-annual basis at a market-driven spread over U.S. Treasury Notes with 10-year maturities. The SBA, as a creditor, will have a superior claim to SBIC Subsidiary's assets over MCC Stockholders in the event MCC liquidates the SBIC Subsidiary or the SBA exercises its remedies under the SBA-guaranteed debentures issued by the SBIC Subsidiary upon an event of default.

Further, the SBA regulations require that a licensed SBIC be periodically examined and audited by the SBA to determine its compliance with the relevant SBA regulations. The SBA prohibits, without prior SBA approval, a “change of control” of an SBIC or any transfers of the capital stock of a licensed SBIC. If SBIC Subsidiary fails to comply with applicable SBIC regulations, the SBA could, depending on the severity of the violation, limit or prohibit its use of debentures, declare outstanding debentures immediately due and payable, and/or limit it from making new investments. In addition, the SBA can revoke or suspend a license for willful or repeated violation of, or willful or repeated failure to observe, any provision of the Small Business Investment Act of 1958 or any rule or regulation promulgated thereunder. Any failure to comply with SBA regulations could have an adverse effect on MCC’s operations.

The Mergers may require certain regulatory approvals, including that the MCC Merger is conditioned on MCC obtaining SBA approval. See “Risks Relating to the Mergers — The MCC Merger is conditioned on MCC obtaining certain approvals from the SBA for the debentures issued by the SBIC Subsidiary.”

SBA regulations limit the outstanding dollar amount of SBA guaranteed debentures that may be issued by an SBIC or group of SBICs under common control.

The SBA regulations currently limit the dollar amount of SBA-guaranteed debentures that can be issued by any one SBIC to $150.0 million or to a group of SBICs under common control to $350.0 million. In June 2018, the U.S. Senate passed the Small Business Investment Opportunity Act, which the President signed into law, that amended the Small Business Investment Act of 1958 by increasing the individual leverage limit from $150 million to $175 million, subject to SBA approvals. Moreover, an SBIC may not borrow an amount in excess of two times (and in certain cases, up to three times) its regulatory capital. As of September 30, 2018, the SBIC Subsidiary had $135.0 million in SBA-guaranteed debentures outstanding.

Moreover, the current status of the SBIC Subsidiary as an SBIC does not automatically assure that the SBIC Subsidiary will continue to receive SBA-guaranteed debenture funding. Receipt of SBA leverage funding is dependent upon the SBIC Subsidiary continuing to be in compliance with SBA regulations and policies and the availability of SBA funding. The amount of SBA leverage funding available to SBICs is dependent upon annual Congressional authorizations and in the future may be subject to annual Congressional appropriations. There can be no assurance that there will be sufficient debenture funding available at the times desired by the SBIC Subsidiary.

The debentures guaranteed by the SBA have a maturity of ten years and require semi-annual payments of interest. The SBIC Subsidiary will need to generate sufficient cash flow to make required interest payments on the debentures. If the SBIC Subsidiary is unable to meet its financial obligations under the debentures, the SBA, as a creditor, will have a superior claim to the SBIC Subsidiary’s assets over MCC Stockholders in the event MCC liquidates the SBIC Subsidiary or the SBA exercises its remedies under such debentures as the result of a default by MCC.

The Mergers may require certain regulatory approvals, including that the MCC Merger is conditioned on MCC obtaining SBA approval. See “Risks Relating to the Mergers — The MCC Merger is conditioned on MCC obtaining certain approvals from the SBA for the debentures issued by the SBIC Subsidiary.”

The highly competitive market in which MCC operates may limit MCC’s investment opportunities.

A number of entities compete with MCC to make the types of investments that MCC makes. MCC competes with other BDCs and investment funds (including public and private funds, commercial and investment banks, commercial financing companies, other SBICs and, to the extent they provide an alternative form of financing, private equity funds). Additionally, because competition for investment opportunities generally has increased among alternative investment vehicles, such as hedge funds, those entities have begun to invest in areas in which they have not traditionally invested. As a result of these new entrants, competition for investment opportunities has intensified in recent years and may intensify further in the future. Some of MCC’s existing and potential competitors are substantially larger and have considerably greater financial, technical and marketing resources than MCC does. For example, some competitors may have a lower cost of funds and access to funding sources that are not available to MCC. In addition, some of MCC’s competitors may have higher risk tolerances or different risk assessments, which could allow them to consider a wider variety of investments and establish more relationships than MCC. Furthermore, many of MCC’s competitors are not subject to the regulatory restrictions and valuation requirements that the Investment Company Act imposes on MCC as a BDC and the tax consequences of qualifying as a RIC. MCC cannot assure you that the competitive pressures MCC faces will not have a material adverse effect on MCC’s business, financial condition and results of operations. Also, as a result of this existing and potentially increasing competition, MCC may not be able to take advantage of attractive investment opportunities from time to time, and MCC can offer no assurance that MCC will be able to identify and make investments that are consistent with MCC’s investment objective.

MCC does not seek to compete primarily based on the interest rates MCC offers, and MCC believes that some of MCC's competitors make loans with interest rates that are comparable to or lower than the rates MCC offers. MCC may lose investment opportunities if MCC does not match its competitors' pricing, terms and structure. If MCC matches its competitors' pricing, terms and structure, MCC may experience decreased net interest income and increased risk of credit loss. A significant part of MCC's competitive advantage stems from the fact that the market for investments in mid-sized companies is underserved by traditional commercial banks and other financial institutions. A significant increase in the number and/or size of MCC's competitors in this target market could force MCC to accept less attractive investment terms. Furthermore, many of MCC's competitors have greater experience operating under the regulatory restrictions of the Investment Company Act.

MCC depends upon senior management personnel of MCC Advisors for MCC's future success, and if MCC Advisors is unable to retain qualified personnel or if MCC Advisors loses any member of its senior management team, MCC's ability to achieve its investment objective could be significantly harmed.

MCC depends on MCC Advisors' investment management team, which is provided by MCC Advisors, for the identification, selection, structuring, closing and monitoring of MCC's investments. MCC's investment management team is integral to MCC's asset management activities and has critical industry experience and relationships that MCC will rely on to implement its business plan. MCC's future success depends on MCC's investment management team's continued service to MCC Advisors. The departure of any of the members of the investment management team could have a material adverse effect on MCC's ability to achieve its investment objective. As a result, MCC may not be able to operate MCC's business as MCC expects, and MCC's ability to compete could be harmed, which could cause MCC's operating results to suffer. In addition, MCC can offer no assurance that MCC Advisors will remain MCC's investment adviser or MCC's administrator. Moreover, MCC also experiences competition in attracting and retaining qualified personnel, particularly investment professionals, and MCC may be unable to maintain or grow its business if it cannot attract and retain such personnel.

MCC Advisors may not be able to achieve the same or similar returns as those achieved by MCC's senior management and investment management team while they were employed at prior positions.

The track record and achievements of the senior management and investment management team of MCC Advisors are not necessarily indicative of future results that will be achieved by MCC Advisors. As a result, MCC Advisors may not be able to achieve the same or similar returns as those achieved by MCC's senior management and investment team while they were employed at prior positions.

Because MCC expects to distribute substantially all of MCC's net investment income and net realized capital gains to MCC Stockholders, MCC will need additional capital to finance MCC's growth and such capital may not be available on favorable terms or at all.

MCC has elected and qualified to be taxed for U.S. federal income tax purposes as a RIC under Subchapter M of the Code. As a RIC, MCC must meet certain requirements, including source-of-income, asset diversification and distribution requirements in order to not have to pay corporate-level U.S. federal income taxes on income MCC distributes to MCC Stockholders as distributions, which allows MCC to substantially reduce or eliminate MCC's corporate-level U.S. federal income tax liability. As a BDC, MCC is generally required to meet a coverage ratio of total assets to total senior securities, which includes all of MCC's borrowings and any preferred stock MCC may issue in the future, of at least 200% (or 150% if, pursuant to the Investment Company Act, certain requirements are met) at the time MCC issues any debt or preferred stock. This requirement limits the amount of MCC's leverage. Because MCC will continue to need capital to grow its investment portfolio, this limitation may prevent MCC from incurring debt or issuing preferred stock and require MCC to raise additional equity at a time when it may be disadvantageous to do so. MCC cannot assure you that debt and equity financing will be available to MCC on favorable terms, or at all, and debt financings may be restricted by the terms of any of MCC's outstanding borrowings. In addition, as a BDC, MCC is generally not permitted to issue common stock priced below NAV without stockholder approval. If additional funds are not available to MCC, MCC could be forced to curtail or cease new lending and investment activities, and MCC's NAV could decline.

The MCC Board may change MCC's investment objective, operating policies and strategies without prior notice or stockholder approval.

The MCC Board has the authority to modify or waive certain of MCC's operating policies and strategies without prior notice and without stockholder approval. However, absent stockholder approval, MCC may not change the nature of MCC's business so as to cease to be, or withdraw MCC's election as, a BDC. MCC cannot predict the effect any changes to MCC's current operating policies and strategies would have on MCC's business, operating results or value of MCC's stock. Nevertheless, the effects could adversely affect MCC's business and impact MCC's ability to make distributions and cause you to lose all or part of your investment.

There are significant potential conflicts of interest that could affect MCC's investment returns.

There may be times when MCC Advisors, its senior management and investment management team, and members of its investment committee have interests that differ from those of MCC Stockholders, giving rise to a conflict of interest. In particular, certain private investment funds managed by the senior members of MCC Advisors hold controlling or minority equity interests, or have the right to acquire such equity interests, in some of MCC's portfolio companies. As a result, the senior members of MCC Advisors may face conflicts of interest in connection with making business decisions for these portfolio companies to the extent that such decisions affect the debt and equity holders in these portfolio companies differently. In addition, the senior members of MCC Advisors may face conflicts of interests in connection with making investment or other decisions, including granting loan waivers or concessions on MCC's behalf with respect to these portfolio companies given that they also manage private investment funds that hold the equity interests in these portfolio companies.

There may be conflicts of interest related to obligations MCC Advisors' senior management and investment management team and members of its investment committee have to other clients.

Senior management, the investment management team, and the investment committee of MCC Advisors serve or may serve as officers, directors or principals of entities that operate in the same or a related line of business as MCC does, or of investment funds managed by MCC Advisors or its affiliates. In serving in these multiple capacities, they may have obligations to other clients or investors in those entities, the fulfillment of which may not be in MCC's best interests or in the best interest of MCC Stockholders. For example, members of the investment management team have management responsibilities for other investment funds, accounts or other investment vehicles managed by affiliates of MCC Advisors, which gives rise to conflicts of interest.

MCC's investment objective may overlap with the investment objectives of such investment funds, accounts or other investment vehicles. For example, affiliates of MCC Advisors currently manage private funds and managed accounts that are seeking new capital commitments and will pursue an investment strategy similar to MCC's strategy, and MCC may compete with these and other entities managed by affiliates of MCC Advisors for capital and investment opportunities. As a result, those individuals may face conflicts in the allocation of investment opportunities among MCC and other investment funds or accounts advised by principals of, or affiliated with, MCC Advisors.

MCC has received an order from the SEC which permits MCC to co-invest with certain other investment funds managed by MCC Advisors or its affiliates, subject to the conditions included therein. In situations where MCC cannot co-invest with other investment funds managed by MCC Advisors or its affiliates, the investment policies and procedures of MCC Advisors generally require that such opportunities be offered to MCC and such other investment funds on an alternating basis. However, there can be no assurance that MCC will be able to participate in all investment opportunities that are suitable to MCC.

MCC Advisors may, from time to time, possess material non-public information, limiting MCC's investment discretion.

MCC Advisors and members of its senior management and the investment management team and the investment committee may serve as directors of, or in a similar capacity with, companies in which MCC invest, the securities of which are purchased or sold on MCC's behalf. In the event that material nonpublic information is obtained with respect to such companies, MCC could be prohibited for a period of time from purchasing or selling the securities of such companies by law or otherwise, and this prohibition may have an adverse effect on MCC.

MCC's incentive fee structure may create incentives for MCC Advisors that are not fully aligned with the interests of MCC Stockholders.

In the course of MCC's investing activities, MCC pays management and incentive fees to MCC Advisors. These fees are based on MCC's gross assets. As a result, investors in MCC Common Stock will invest on a "gross" basis and receive distributions on a "net" basis after expenses, resulting in a lower rate of return than one might achieve through direct investments. Because these fees are based on MCC's gross assets, MCC Advisors will benefit when MCC incur debt or use leverage. Additionally, under the incentive fee structure, MCC Advisors may benefit when capital gains are recognized and, because MCC Advisors determines when a holding is sold, MCC Advisors controls the timing of the recognition of such capital gains. The MCC Board is charged with protecting MCC's interests by monitoring how MCC Advisors addresses these and other conflicts of interests associated with its management services and compensation. While they are not expected to review or approve each borrowing or incurrence of leverage, MCC's independent directors will periodically review MCC Advisors' services and fees as well as its portfolio management decisions and portfolio performance. In connection with these reviews, MCC's independent directors will consider whether MCC's fees and expenses (including those related to leverage) remain appropriate. As a result of this arrangement, MCC Advisors or its affiliates may from time to time have interests that differ from those of MCC Stockholders, giving rise to a conflict.

The part of the incentive fee payable to MCC Advisors that relates to MCC's net investment income is computed and paid on income that may include interest income that has been accrued but not yet received in cash. This fee structure may be considered to involve a conflict of interest for MCC Advisors to the extent that it may encourage MCC Advisors to favor debt financings that provide for deferred interest, rather than current cash payments of interest. MCC Advisors may have an incentive to invest in deferred interest securities in circumstances where it would not have done so but for the opportunity to continue to earn the incentive fee even when the issuers of the deferred interest securities would not be able to make actual cash payments to MCC on such securities. This risk could be increased because MCC Advisors is not obligated to reimburse MCC for any incentive fees received even if MCC subsequently incurs losses or never receive in cash the deferred income that was previously accrued.

Because MCC borrows money, the potential for loss on amounts invested in MCC will be magnified and may increase the risk of investing in MCC.

Borrowings, also known as leverage, magnify the potential for loss on invested equity capital. If MCC continues to use leverage to partially finance its investments, which MCC has increasingly done over the years, MCC Stockholders will experience increased risks of investing in MCC's securities. MCC issued the MCC Notes, issued the SBA-guaranteed debentures and may issue other debt securities or enter into other types of borrowing arrangements in the future. If the value of MCC's assets decreases, leveraging would cause MCC's NAV to decline more sharply than it otherwise would have had MCC not used leverage. Similarly, any decrease in MCC's income would cause net income to decline more sharply than it would have had MCC not borrowed. Such a decline could negatively affect MCC's ability to make common stock distributions or scheduled debt payments. Leverage is generally considered a speculative investment technique and MCC only intends to use leverage if expected returns will exceed the cost of borrowing.

As of September 30, 2018, the MCC Term Loan Facility and the MCC Revolving Credit Facility had no outstanding balances and MCC had $135.0 million SBA-guaranteed debentures outstanding and $285.1 million of outstanding MCC Notes. Although the MCC Revolving Credit Facility was subsequently repaid and terminated, the MCC Notes require periodic payments of interest. The weighted average interest rate charged on MCC's borrowings as of September 30, 2018 was 5.0% (exclusive of debt issuance costs). MCC will need to generate sufficient cash flow to make these required interest payments. In order for MCC to cover MCC's annual interest payments on indebtedness, MCC must achieve annual returns on total assets of at least 3.1% as of September 30, 2018. If MCC is unable to meet the financial obligations under the MCC Notes, the holders thereof will have the right to declare the principal amount and accrued and unpaid interest on the outstanding MCC Notes to be due and payable immediately. If MCC is unable to meet the financial obligations under any credit facility it enters into, the lenders thereunder would likely will have a superior claim to MCC's assets over MCC Stockholders.

MCC has received exemptive relief from the SEC to permit MCC to exclude the debt of the SBIC Subsidiary guaranteed by the SBA from the definition of senior securities in the 200% asset coverage ratio MCC is required to maintain under the Investment Company Act. Pursuant to such exemptive relief, MCC has the ability to incur leverage in excess of the amounts set forth in the Investment Company Act by excluding the debt of SBIC Subsidiary. If MCC incurs additional leverage in excess of the amounts set forth in the Investment Company Act, MCC's NAV will decline more sharply if the value of MCC's assets declines than if MCC had not incurred such additional leverage and the effects of leverage described above will be magnified. In connection with the Mergers, Sierra, MCC, MDLY, and certain of its affiliates have filed an exemptive application to, among other things, permit the Combined Company to exclude the debt of the SBIC Subsidiary guaranteed by the SBA from the definition of senior securities in the 200% asset coverage ratio that the Combined Company is required to maintain under the Investment Company Act. See "Risks Relating to the Mergers — The Mergers are conditioned on Sierra, MCC, MDLY and certain of its affiliates receiving exemptive relief from the SEC." Therefore, if the Mergers are successfully consummated, this risk factor would apply to the Combined Company.

Illustration. The following table illustrates the effect of leverage on returns from an investment in MCC Common Stock assuming various annual returns, net of expenses. The calculations in the table below are hypothetical and actual returns may be higher or lower than those appearing below.

MCC's incentive fee may induce MCC Advisors to make certain investments, including speculative investments.

The incentive fee payable by MCC to MCC Advisors may create an incentive for MCC Advisors to make investments on MCC's behalf that are risky or more speculative than would be the case in the absence of such compensation arrangement. The way in which the incentive fee payable to MCC Advisors is determined, which is calculated separately in two components as a percentage of the interest and other ordinary income in excess of a quarterly minimum hurdle rate and as a percentage of the realized gain on invested capital, may encourage MCC Advisors to use leverage or take additional risk to increase the return on MCC's investments. The use of leverage may magnify the potential for gain or loss on amounts invested. The use of leverage is considered a speculative technique. If MCC borrows from banks or other lenders, MCC would expect that such lenders will seek recovery against MCC's assets in the event of a default and these lenders likely will have claims on MCC's assets that are superior to those of MCC's equity holders. In addition, MCC Advisors receives the incentive fee based, in part, upon net capital gains realized on MCC's investments. Unlike the portion of the incentive fee based on income, there is no minimum level of gain applicable to the portion of the incentive fee based on net capital gains. As a result, MCC Advisors may have an incentive to invest more in investments that are likely to result in capital gains as compared to income producing securities. This practice could result in MCC's investing in more speculative securities than would otherwise be the case, which could result in higher investment losses, particularly during economic downturns.

MCC may invest, to the extent permitted by law, in the securities and instruments of other investment companies, including private funds, and, to the extent MCC so invest, MCC will bear MCC's ratable share of any such investment company's expenses, including management and performance fees. MCC will also remain obligated to pay management and incentive fees to MCC Advisors with respect to the assets invested in the securities and instruments of other investment companies. With respect to each of these investments, each of MCC Stockholders will bear his or her share of the management and incentive fee of MCC Advisors as well as indirectly bear the management and performance fees and other expenses of any investment companies in which MCC invests.

MCC may be obligated to pay its investment adviser incentive compensation even if MCC incurs a loss and may pay more than 20% of MCC's net capital gains because MCC cannot recover payments made in previous years.

MCC Advisors will be entitled to incentive compensation for each fiscal quarter in an amount equal to a percentage of the excess of MCC's net investment income for that quarter above a threshold return for that quarter. MCC's pre-incentive fee net investment income for incentive compensation purposes excludes realized and unrealized capital losses that MCC may incur in the fiscal quarter, even if such capital losses result in a net loss on MCC's statement of operations for that quarter. Thus, MCC may be required to pay MCC Advisors incentive compensation for a fiscal quarter even if there is a decline in the value of MCC's portfolio or MCC incurs a net loss for that quarter. If MCC pays an incentive fee of 20% of MCC's realized capital gains (net of all realized capital losses and unrealized capital depreciation on a cumulative basis) and thereafter experience additional realized capital losses or unrealized capital depreciation, MCC will not be able to recover any portion of the incentive fee previously paid.

The valuation process for certain of MCC's portfolio holdings creates a conflict of interest.

A substantial portion of MCC's portfolio investments are expected to be made in the form of securities that are not publicly traded. As a result, the MCC Board will determine the fair value of these securities in good faith pursuant to MCC's valuation policy. In connection with that determination, investment professionals from MCC Advisors prepare portfolio company valuations based upon the most recent financial statements available and projected financial results of each portfolio company. In addition, certain members of the MCC Board, including Brook Taube, Seth Taube and Jeff Tonkel, have a pecuniary interest in MCC Advisors. The participation of MCC Advisors' investment professionals in MCC's valuation process, and the pecuniary interest in MCC Advisors by certain members of the MCC Board, could result in a conflict of interest as the management fee that MCC will pay MCC Advisors is based on MCC's gross assets.

Other arrangements with MCC Advisors may create conflicts of interest.

MCC utilizes MCC Advisors' office space and pay to MCC Advisors MCC's allocable portion of overhead and other expenses incurred by MCC Advisors in performing its obligations under the administration agreement, such as MCC's allocable portion of the cost of MCC's Chief Financial Officer and Chief Compliance Officer and their respective staffs. This results in conflicts of interest that the MCC Board must monitor.

The investment management agreement and administration agreement with MCC Advisors were not negotiated on an arm's length basis and may not be as favorable to MCC as if they had been negotiated with an unaffiliated third party.

The investment management agreement and the administration agreement were negotiated between related parties. Consequently, their terms, including fees payable to MCC Advisors, may not be as favorable to MCC as if they had been negotiated with an unaffiliated third party.

MCC's ability to sell or otherwise exit investments in which affiliates of MCC Advisors also have an investment may be restricted.

MCC may be considered an affiliate with respect to certain of MCC's portfolio companies. Certain private funds advised by the senior members of MCC Advisors also hold interests in these portfolio companies and as such these interests may be considered a joint enterprise under applicable regulations. To the extent that MCC's interests in these portfolio companies may need to be restructured in the future or to the extent that MCC chooses to exit certain of these transactions, MCC's ability to do so will be limited.

MCC is highly dependent on information systems and systems failures could significantly disrupt MCC's business, which may, in turn, negatively affect the market price of MCC Common Stock and MCC's ability to pay distributions.

MCC's business is highly dependent on MCC's and third parties' communications and information systems. Any failure or interruption of those systems, including as a result of the termination of an agreement with any third-party service providers, could cause delays or other problems in MCC's activities. MCC's financial, accounting, data processing, backup or other operating systems and facilities may fail to operate properly or become disabled or damaged as a result of a number of factors including events that are wholly or partially beyond MCC's control and adversely affect MCC's business. There could be:

- sudden electrical or telecommunications outages;
- natural disasters such as earthquakes, tornadoes and hurricanes;
- disease pandemics;
- events arising from local or larger scale political or social matters, including terrorist acts; and
- cyber-attacks.

These events, in turn, could have a material adverse effect on MCC's operating results and negatively affect the market price of MCC Common Stock and MCC's ability to pay distributions to MCC Stockholders.

A failure of cybersecurity systems, as well as the occurrence of events unanticipated in MCC's disaster recovery systems and management continuity planning, could impair MCC's ability to conduct business effectively.

Cybersecurity refers to the combination of technologies, processes, and procedures established to protect information technology systems and data from unauthorized access, attack, or damage. MCC is subject to cybersecurity risks. Information cyber security risks have significantly increased in recent years and, while MCC has not experienced any material losses relating to cyber-attacks or other information security breaches, MCC could suffer such losses in the future. MCC's computer systems, both internal and those provided by third-party service providers, software and networks may be vulnerable to unauthorized access, computer viruses or other malicious code and other events that could have a security impact. If one or more of such events occur, this potentially could jeopardize confidential and other information, including nonpublic personal information and sensitive business data, processed and stored in, and transmitted through, MCC's computer systems and networks, or otherwise cause interruptions or malfunctions in MCC's operations or the operations of MCC's customers or counterparties, which could result in significant losses or reputational damage. This could result in significant losses, reputational damage, litigation, regulatory fines or penalties, or otherwise adversely affect MCC's business, financial condition or results of operations. Privacy and information security laws and regulation changes, and compliance with those changes, may result in cost increases due to system changes and the development of new administrative processes. In addition, MCC may be required to expend significant additional resources to modify MCC's protective measures and to investigate and remediate vulnerabilities or other exposures arising from operational and security risks. MCC currently does not maintain insurance coverage relating to cybersecurity risks, and MCC may be required to expend significant additional resources to modify MCC's protective measures or to investigate and remediate vulnerabilities or other exposures, and MCC may be subject to litigation and financial losses that are not fully insured.

Third parties with which MCC does business may also be sources of cybersecurity or other technological risks. Cyber security failures or breaches by MCC Advisors and other service providers (including, but not limited to, accountants, custodians, transfer agents and administrators), and the issuers of securities in which MCC invests, also have the ability to cause disruptions and impact business operations, potentially resulting in financial losses, interference with MCC's ability to calculate its NAV, impediments to trading, the inability of MCC Stockholders to transact business, violations of applicable privacy and other laws, regulatory fines, penalties, reputation damages, reimbursement of other compensation costs, or additional compliance costs. In addition, substantial costs may be incurred in order to prevent any cyber incidents in the future.

MCC outsources certain functions and these relationships allow for the storage and processing of MCC's information, as well as customer, counterparty, employee and borrower information. While MCC engages in actions to reduce MCC's exposure resulting from outsourcing, ongoing threats may result in unauthorized access, loss, exposure or destruction of data, or other cybersecurity incidents, with increased costs and other consequences, including those described above.

MCC's business and operations could be negatively affected if MCC becomes subject to any securities litigation or stockholder activism, which could cause MCC to incur significant expense, hinder execution of its investment strategy and impact MCC's stock price.

In the past, following periods of volatility in the market price of a company's securities, securities class-action litigation has often been brought against that company. Stockholder activism, which could take many forms or arise in a variety of situations, has been increasing in the BDC space recently. While MCC is currently not subject to any securities litigation or stockholder activism, due to the potential volatility of MCC's stock price and for a variety of other reasons, MCC may in the future become the target of securities litigation or stockholder activism. Securities litigation and stockholder activism, including potential proxy contests, could result in substantial costs and divert management's and the MCC Board's attention and resources from MCC's business. Additionally, such securities litigation and stockholder activism could give rise to perceived uncertainties as to MCC's future, adversely affect MCC's relationships with service providers and make it more difficult to attract and retain qualified personnel. Also, MCC may be required to incur significant legal fees and other expenses related to any securities litigation and activist stockholder matters. Further, MCC's stock price could be subject to significant fluctuation or otherwise be adversely affected by the events, risks and uncertainties of any securities litigation and stockholder activism.

Risks Relating to MCC's Investments

MCC may not realize gains from MCC's equity investments.

When MCC makes a debt investment, MCC may acquire warrants or other equity securities as well. In addition, MCC may invest directly in the equity securities of portfolio companies. MCC's goal is ultimately to dispose of such equity interests and realize gains upon MCC's disposition of such interests. However, the equity interests MCC receives may not appreciate in value and, in fact, may decline in value. Accordingly, MCC may not be able to realize gains from MCC's equity interests, and any gains that MCC does realize on the disposition of any equity interests may not be sufficient to offset any other losses MCC experiences.

MCC's investments are very risky and highly speculative.

MCC invests primarily in senior secured first lien term loans and senior secured second lien term loans issued by private middle-market companies.

Senior Secured Loans There is a risk that the collateral securing MCC's loans may decrease in value over time, may be difficult to sell in a timely manner, may be difficult to appraise and may fluctuate in value based upon the success of the business and market conditions, including as a result of the inability of the portfolio company to raise additional capital, and, in some circumstances, MCC's lien could be subordinated to claims of other creditors. In addition, deterioration in a portfolio company's financial condition and prospects, including its inability to raise additional capital, may be accompanied by deterioration in the value of the collateral for the loan. Consequently, the fact that a loan is secured does not guarantee that MCC will receive principal and interest payments according to the loan's terms, or at all, or that MCC will be able to collect on the loan should MCC be forced to enforce MCC's remedies.

Equity Investments When MCC invests in senior secured first lien term loans or senior secured second lien term loans, MCC may receive warrants or other equity securities as well. In addition, MCC may invest directly in the equity securities of portfolio companies. The warrants or equity interests MCC receive may not appreciate in value and, in fact, may decline in value. Accordingly, MCC may not be able to realize gains from MCC's warrants or equity interests, and any gains that MCC does realize on the disposition of any warrants or equity interests may not be sufficient to offset any other losses MCC experiences.

In addition, investing in private middle-market companies involves a number of significant risks. See “— MCC's investments in private middle-market portfolio companies may be risky, and you could lose all or part of your investment” below.

MCC's investments in private middle-market portfolio companies may be risky, and a MCC Stockholder could lose all or part of its investment.

Investments in private middle-market companies involve a number of significant risks. Generally, little public information exists about these companies, and MCC is required to rely on the ability of MCC's investment management team to obtain adequate information to evaluate the potential returns from investing in these companies. If MCC is unable to uncover all material information about these companies, MCC may not make a fully informed investment decision, and MCC may lose money on MCC's investments. Private middle-market companies may have limited financial resources and may be unable to meet their obligations under their debt securities that MCC holds, which may be accompanied by a deterioration in the value of any collateral and a reduction in the likelihood of MCC's realizing any guarantees MCC may have obtained in connection with MCC's investment. In addition, they typically have shorter operating histories, narrower product lines and smaller market shares than larger businesses, which tend to render them more vulnerable to competitors' actions and market conditions, as well as general economic downturns. Additionally, private middle-market companies are more likely to depend on the management talents and efforts of a small group of persons; therefore, the death, disability, resignation or termination of one or more of these persons could have a material adverse impact on MCC's portfolio company and, in turn, on MCC. Private middle-market companies also generally have less predictable operating results, may from time to time be parties to litigation, may be engaged in rapidly changing businesses with products subject to a substantial risk of obsolescence and may require substantial additional capital to support their operations, finance expansion or maintain their competitive position. In addition, MCC's executive officers, directors and MCC Advisors may, in the ordinary course of business, be named as defendants in litigation arising from MCC's investments in these types of companies.

MCC intends to invest primarily in secured debt issued by MCC's portfolio companies. In the case of MCC's senior secured first lien term loans, the portfolio companies usually have, or may be permitted to incur, other debt that ranks equally with the debt securities in which MCC invests. With respect to MCC's senior secured second lien term loans, the portfolio companies usually have, or may be permitted to incur, other debt that ranks above or equally with the debt securities in which MCC invests. In the case of debt ranking above the senior secured second lien term loans in which MCC invests, MCC would be subordinate to such debt in the event of an insolvency, liquidation, dissolution, reorganization or bankruptcy of the relevant portfolio company and therefore the holders of debt instruments ranking senior to MCC's investment in that portfolio company would typically be entitled to receive payment in full before MCC receives any distribution. In the case of debt ranking equally with debt securities in which MCC invests, MCC would have to share any distributions on an equal and ratable basis with other creditors holding such debt in the event of an insolvency, liquidation, dissolution, reorganization or bankruptcy of the relevant portfolio company.

Additionally, certain loans that MCC makes to portfolio companies may be secured on a second priority basis by the same collateral securing senior secured debt of such companies. The first priority liens on the collateral will secure the portfolio company's obligations under any outstanding senior debt and may secure certain other future debt that may be permitted to be incurred by the portfolio company under the agreements governing the loans. The holders of obligations secured by the first priority liens on the collateral will generally control the liquidation of, and be entitled to receive proceeds from, any realization of the collateral to repay their obligations in full before MCC. In addition, the value of the collateral in the event of liquidation will depend on market and economic conditions, the availability of buyers and other factors. There can be no assurance that the proceeds, if any, from the sale or sales of all of the collateral would be sufficient to satisfy the loan obligations secured by the second priority liens after payment in full of all obligations secured by the first priority liens on the collateral. If such proceeds are not sufficient to repay amounts outstanding under the loan obligations secured by the second priority liens, then MCC, to the extent not repaid from the proceeds of the sale of the collateral, will only have an unsecured claim against the portfolio company's remaining assets, if any.

The rights MCC may have with respect to the collateral securing the loans MCC makes to MCC's portfolio companies with senior debt outstanding may also be limited pursuant to the terms of one or more intercreditor agreements that MCC enters into with the holders of senior debt. Under such an intercreditor agreement, at any time that obligations that have the benefit of the first priority liens are outstanding, any of the following actions that may be taken in respect of the collateral will be at the direction of the holders of the obligations secured by the first priority liens: (1) the ability to cause the commencement of enforcement proceedings against the collateral; (2) the ability to control the conduct of such proceedings; (3) the approval of amendments to collateral documents; (4) releases of liens on the collateral; and (5) waivers of past defaults under collateral documents. MCC may not have the ability to control or direct such actions, even if MCC's rights are adversely affected.

Continuation of the current decline in oil and natural gas prices for a prolonged period of time could have a material adverse effect on MCC.

As of September 30, 2018, approximately 7.0% of MCC's portfolio at fair value is invested in energy-related businesses. A decline in oil and natural gas prices would adversely affect the credit quality of these investments. A decrease in credit quality would, in turn, negatively affect the fair value of these investments, which would consequently negatively affect MCC's financial position and results of operations. Should the current decline in oil and natural gas prices persist, it is likely that MCC's energy-related portfolio companies' abilities to satisfy financial or operating covenants imposed by MCC or other lenders will be adversely affected, thereby negatively impacting MCC's financial condition and their ability to satisfy their debt service and other obligations to MCC. If the Mergers are successfully consummated, approximately 4.3% of the Combined Company's portfolio at fair value will be invested in energy-related businesses on a pro forma basis as of September 30, 2018. Therefore, this risk factor would apply the Combined Company following the completion of the Mergers.

MCC's portfolio companies may prepay loans, which prepayment may reduce stated yields if capital returned cannot be invested in transactions with equal or greater expected yields.

MCC's loans to portfolio companies are prepayable at any time, and most of them at no premium to par. It is uncertain as to when each loan may be prepaid. Whether a loan is prepaid will depend both on the continued positive performance of the portfolio company and the existence of favorable financing market conditions that allow such company the ability to replace existing financing with less expensive capital. As market conditions change frequently, it is unknown when, and if, this may be possible for each portfolio company. In the case of some of these loans, having the loan prepaid early may reduce the achievable yield for MCC below the stated yield to maturity contained herein if the capital returned cannot be invested in transactions with equal or greater expected yields.

MCC may acquire indirect interests in loans rather than direct interests, which would subject MCC to additional risk.

MCC may make or acquire loans or investments through participation agreements. A participation agreement typically results in a contractual relationship only with the counterparty to the participation agreement and not with the borrower. MCC Advisors has adopted best execution procedures and guidelines to mitigate credit and counterparty risk when MCC acquires a loan through a participation agreement. In investing through participations, MCC will generally not have a right to enforce compliance by the borrower with the terms of the loan agreement against the borrower, and MCC may not directly benefit from the collateral supporting the debt obligation in which it has purchased the participation. As a result, MCC will be exposed to the credit risk of both the borrower and the counterparty selling the participation. In the event of insolvency of the counterparty, MCC, by virtue of holding participation interests in the loan, may be treated as its general unsecured creditor. In addition, although MCC may have certain contractual rights under the loan participation that require the counterparty to obtain MCC's consent prior to taking various actions relating to the loan, MCC cannot guarantee that the counterparty will seek such consent prior to taking various actions. Further, in investing through participation agreements, MCC may not be able to conduct the due diligence on the borrower or the quality of the loan with respect to which it is buying a participation that MCC would otherwise conduct if MCC were investing directly in the loan, which may result in MCC being exposed to greater credit or fraud risk with respect to the borrower or the loan than MCC expected when initially purchasing the participation. See "Risk Factors — Risks Relating to MCC's Business — There are significant potential conflicts of interest that could affect MCC's investment returns" above.

MCC's failure to make follow-on investments in MCC's portfolio companies could impair the value of MCC's portfolio and MCC's ability to make follow-on investments in certain portfolio companies may be restricted.

Following an initial investment in a portfolio company, provided that there are no restrictions imposed by the Investment Company Act, MCC may make additional investments in that portfolio company as "follow-on" investments in order to: (1) increase or maintain in whole or in part MCC's equity ownership percentage; (2) exercise warrants, options or convertible securities that were acquired in the original or subsequent financing; or (3) attempt to preserve or enhance the value of MCC's initial investment.

MCC has the discretion to make any follow-on investments, subject to the availability of capital resources. MCC may elect not to make follow-on investments or otherwise lack sufficient funds to make those investments. MCC's failure to make follow-on investments may, in some circumstances, jeopardize the continued viability of a portfolio company and MCC's initial investment, or may result in a missed opportunity for MCC to increase its participation in a successful operation. Even if MCC has sufficient capital to make a desired follow-on investment, MCC may elect not to make such follow-on investment because MCC may not want to increase its concentration of risk, because MCC prefers other opportunities, because MCC is inhibited by compliance with BDC requirements or because MCC desires to maintain its RIC tax status. MCC also may be restricted from making follow-on investments in certain portfolio companies to the extent that affiliates of MCC's hold interests in such companies.

MCC's ability to invest in public companies may be limited in certain circumstances.

To maintain MCC's status as a BDC, MCC is not permitted to acquire any assets other than "qualifying assets" specified in the Investment Company Act unless, at the time the acquisition is made, at least 70% of MCC's total assets are qualifying assets (with certain limited exceptions). Subject to certain exceptions for follow-on investments and distressed companies, an investment in an issuer that has outstanding securities listed on a national securities exchange may be treated as qualifying assets only if such issuer has a market capitalization that is less than $250 million at the time of such investment. In addition, MCC may invest up to 30% of MCC's portfolio in opportunistic investments which will be intended to diversify or complement the remainder of MCC's portfolio and to enhance MCC's returns to stockholders. These investments may include private equity investments, securities of public companies that are broadly traded and securities of non-U.S. companies. MCC expects that these public companies generally will have debt securities that are non-investment grade.

MCC's investments in foreign securities may involve significant risks in addition to the risks inherent in U.S. investments.

MCC's investment strategy contemplates that a portion of MCC's investments may be in securities of foreign companies. Investing in foreign companies may expose MCC to additional risks not typically associated with investing in U.S. companies. These risks include changes in exchange control regulations, political and social instability, expropriation, imposition of foreign taxes, less liquid markets and less available information than is generally the case in the United States, higher transaction costs, less government supervision of exchanges, brokers and issuers, less developed bankruptcy laws, difficulty in enforcing contractual obligations, lack of uniform accounting and auditing standards and greater price volatility.

Although it is anticipated that most of MCC's investments will be denominated in U.S. dollars, MCC's investments that are denominated in a foreign currency will be subject to the risk that the value of a particular currency may change in relation to the U.S. dollar. Among the factors that may affect currency values are trade balances, the level of short-term interest rates, differences in relative values of similar assets in different currencies, long-term opportunities for investment and capital appreciation and political developments. MCC may employ hedging techniques to minimize these risks, but MCC can offer no assurance that MCC will, in fact, hedge currency risk or, that if MCC does, such strategies will be effective. As a result, a change in currency exchange rates may adversely affect MCC's profitability.

Hedging transactions may expose MCC to additional risks.

MCC may engage in currency or interest rate hedging transactions. If MCC engages in hedging transactions, MCC may expose itself to risks associated with such transactions. MCC may utilize instruments such as forward contracts, currency options and interest rate swaps, caps, collars and floors to seek to hedge against fluctuations in the relative values of MCC's portfolio positions from changes in currency exchange rates and market interest rates. Hedging against a decline in the values of MCC's portfolio positions does not eliminate the possibility of fluctuations in the values of such positions or prevent losses if the values of such positions decline. However, such hedging can establish other positions designed to gain from those same developments, thereby offsetting the decline in the value of such portfolio positions. Such hedging transaction may also limit the opportunity for gain if the values of the underlying portfolio positions should increase. Moreover, it may not be possible to hedge against an exchange rate or interest rate fluctuation that is so generally anticipated that MCC is not able to enter into a hedging transaction at an acceptable price.

While MCC may enter into transactions to seek to reduce currency exchange rate and interest rate risks, unanticipated changes in currency exchange rates or interest rates may result in poorer overall investment performance than if MCC had not engaged in any such hedging transactions. In addition, the degree of correlation between price movements of the instruments used in a hedging strategy and price movements in the portfolio positions being hedged may vary. Moreover, for a variety of reasons, MCC may not seek or be able to establish a perfect correlation between such hedging instruments and the portfolio holdings being hedged. Any such imperfect correlation may prevent MCC from achieving the intended hedge and expose MCC to risk of loss. In addition, it may not be possible to hedge fully or perfectly against currency fluctuations affecting the value of securities denominated in non-U.S. currencies because the value of those securities is likely to fluctuate as a result of factors not related to currency fluctuations.

The disposition of MCC's investments may result in contingent liabilities.

MCC currently expects that a significant portion of MCC's investments will involve lending directly to private companies. In connection with the disposition of an investment in private securities, MCC may be required to make representations about the business and financial affairs of the portfolio company typical of those made in connection with the sale of a business. MCC may also be required to indemnify the purchasers of such investment to the extent that any such representations turn out to be inaccurate or with respect to certain potential liabilities. These arrangements may result in contingent liabilities that ultimately yield funding obligations that must be satisfied through MCC's return of certain distributions previously made to MCC.

If MCC invests in the securities and obligations of distressed and bankrupt issuers, MCC might not receive interest or other payments.

MCC may invest in the securities and obligations of distressed and bankrupt issuers, including debt obligations that are in covenant or payment default. Such investments generally are considered speculative. The repayment of defaulted obligations is subject to significant uncertainties. Defaulted obligations might be repaid only after lengthy workout or bankruptcy proceedings, during which the issuer of those obligations might not make any interest or other payments. MCC may not realize gains from its equity investments.

Risks Relating to MCC's Operations as a BDC and RIC

Regulations governing MCC's operation as a BDC may limit MCC's ability to, and the way in which MCC raises additional capital, which could have a material adverse impact on MCC's liquidity, financial condition and results of operations.

MCC's business requires a substantial amount of capital to operate and grow. MCC may acquire additional capital from the issuance of senior securities (including debt and preferred stock), the issuance of additional shares of MCC Common Stock or from securitization transactions. MCC also may issue, through SBIC Subsidiary, additional SBA-guaranteed debentures, subject to certain restrictions. However, MCC may not be able to raise additional capital in the future on favorable terms or at all. Additionally, MCC may only issue senior securities up to the maximum amount permitted by the Investment Company Act. The Investment Company Act permits MCC to issue senior securities only in amounts such that MCC's asset coverage, as defined in the Investment Company Act, equals at least 200% (or 150% if, pursuant to the Investment Company Act, certain requirements are met) after such issuance or incurrence. If MCC's assets decline in value and MCC fails to satisfy this test, MCC may be required to liquidate a portion of its investments and repay a portion of its indebtedness at a time when such sales or repayment may be disadvantageous, which could have a material adverse impact on MCC's liquidity, financial condition and results of operations.

- Senior Securities. As a result of issuing senior securities, MCC would also be exposed to typical risks associated with leverage, including an increased risk of loss. If MCC issues preferred securities, such securities would rank "senior" to common stock in MCC's capital structure, resulting in preferred stockholders having separate voting rights and possibly rights, preferences or privileges more favorable than those granted to holders of MCC Common Stock. Furthermore, the issuance of preferred securities could have the effect of delaying, deferring or preventing a transaction or a change of control that might involve a premium price for MCC Stockholders or otherwise be in your best interest.

- Additional Common Stock. The MCC Board may decide to issue common stock to finance MCC's operations rather than issuing debt or other senior securities. As a BDC, MCC is generally not able to issue MCC Common Stock at a price below NAV without first obtaining required approvals from MCC Stockholders and MCC's independent directors. In any such case, the price at which MCC's securities are to be issued and sold may not be less than a price that, in the determination of the MCC Board, closely approximates the market value of such securities at the relevant time. MCC may also make rights offerings to MCC Stockholders at prices per share less than the NAV per share, subject to the requirements of the Investment Company Act. If MCC raises additional funds by issuing more common stock or senior securities convertible into, or exchangeable for, MCC Common Stock, the percentage ownership of MCC Stockholders at that time would decrease, and such stockholders may experience dilution.

Changes in the laws or regulations governing MCC's business, or changes in the interpretations thereof, and any failure by MCC to comply with these laws or regulations, could have a material adverse effect on MCC's business, results of operations or financial condition.

Changes in the laws or regulations or the interpretations of the laws and regulations that govern BDCs, RICs or non-depository commercial lenders could significantly affect MCC's operations and MCC's cost of doing business. MCC is subject to federal, state and local laws and regulations and are subject to judicial and administrative decisions that affect MCC's operations, including its loan originations, maximum interest rates, fees and other charges, disclosures to portfolio companies, the terms of secured transactions, collection and foreclosure procedures and other trade practices. If these laws, regulations or decisions change, or if MCC expands its business into jurisdictions that have adopted more stringent requirements than those in which MCC currently conduct business, MCC may have to incur significant expenses in order to comply, or MCC might have to restrict MCC's operations. In addition, if MCC does not comply with applicable laws, regulations and decisions, MCC may lose licenses needed for the conduct of MCC's business and may be subject to civil fines and criminal penalties. In addition, any change to the SBA's current debenture SBIC program could have a significant impact on MCC's ability to obtain lower-cost leverage, through the SBIC Subsidiary, and therefore, MCC's ability to compete with other finance companies.

The impact of recent financial reform legislation on MCC is uncertain.

The Dodd-Frank Act became effective on July 21, 2010. Many provisions of the Dodd-Frank Act have delayed effective dates or have required extensive rulemaking by regulatory authorities. However, the new presidential administration has announced its intention to repeal, amend, or replace certain portions of the Dodd-Frank Act and the regulations implemented thereunder. Given the uncertainty associated with the manner in which and whether the provisions of the Dodd-Frank Act will be implemented, repealed, amended, or replaced, the full impact such requirements will have on MCC's business, results of operations or financial condition is unclear. The changes resulting from the Dodd-Frank Act or any changes to the regulations already implemented thereunder may require MCC to invest significant management attention and resources to evaluate and make necessary changes in order to comply with new statutory and regulatory requirements. Failure to comply with any such laws, regulations or principles, or changes thereto, may negatively impact MCC's business, results of operations or financial condition. While MCC cannot predict what effect any changes in the laws or regulations or their interpretations would have on MCC as a result of recent financial reform legislation, these changes could be materially adverse to MCC and MCC Stockholders.

MCC cannot predict how tax reform legislation will affect MCC, MCC's investments, or the MCC Stockholders, and any such legislation could adversely affect MCC's business.

Legislative or other actions relating to taxes could have a negative effect on MCC. The rules dealing with U.S. federal income taxation are constantly under review by persons involved in the legislative process and by the IRS and the U.S. Department of the Treasury. In December 2017, Congress passed tax reform legislation, which the President recently signed into law. Such legislation has made many changes to the Code, including significant changes to the taxation of business entities, the deductibility of interest expense, and the tax treatment of capital investment. MCC cannot predict with certainty how any changes in the tax laws might affect MCC, the MCC Stockholders, or MCC's portfolio investments. New legislation and any U.S. Treasury regulations, administrative interpretations or court decisions interpreting such legislation could significantly and negatively affect MCC's ability to qualify for tax treatment as a RIC or the U.S. federal income tax consequences to MCC and the MCC Stockholders of such qualification, or could have other adverse consequences. MCC Stockholders are urged to consult with their tax advisors regarding tax legislative, regulatory, or administrative developments and proposals and their potential effect on an investment in MCC's securities.

Recent legislation may allow MCC to incur additional leverage.

The Investment Company Act generally prohibits MCC from incurring indebtedness unless immediately after such borrowing MCC has an asset coverage for total borrowings of at least 200% (i.e., the amount of debt may not exceed 50% of the value of MCC's assets). However, in March 2018, the SBCA modified the Investment Company Act by allowing a BDC to increase the maximum amount of leverage it may incur from an asset coverage ratio of 200% to 150%, if certain requirements are met. Under the Investment Company Act, MCC is allowed to increase MCC's leverage capacity if MCC Stockholders representing at least a majority of the votes cast, when a quorum is present, approve a proposal to do so. If MCC receives stockholder approval, MCC would be allowed to increase its leverage capacity on the first day after such approval. Alternatively, the Investment Company Act allows the majority of MCC's independent directors to approve an increase in MCC's leverage capacity, and such approval would become effective after the one-year anniversary of such proposal. In either case, MCC would be required to make certain disclosures on its website and in SEC filings regarding, among other things, the receipt of approval to increase MCC's leverage, MCC's leverage capacity and usage, and risks related to leverage.

As a result of the SBCA, MCC may be able to increase its leverage up to an amount that reduces MCC's asset coverage ratio from 200% to 150%. Leverage magnifies the potential for loss on investments in MCC's indebtedness and on invested equity capital. As MCC uses leverage to partially finance its investments, MCC Stockholders will experience increased risks of investing in MCC's securities. If the value of MCC's assets increases, then leveraging would cause the NAV attributable to MCC Common Stock to increase more sharply than it would have had MCC not leveraged. Conversely, if the value of MCC's assets decreases, leveraging would cause NAV to decline more sharply than it otherwise would have had MCC not leveraged its business. Similarly, any increase in MCC's income in excess of interest payable on the borrowed funds would cause MCC's net investment income to increase more than it would without the leverage, while any decrease in MCC's income would cause net investment income to decline more sharply than it would have had MCC not borrowed. Such a decline could negatively affect MCC's ability to pay common stock dividends, scheduled debt payments or other payments related to MCC's securities. Leverage is generally considered a speculative investment technique.

If MCC does not invest a sufficient portion of MCC's assets in qualifying assets, MCC could fail to qualify as a BDC, which would have a material adverse effect on MCC's business, financial condition and results of operations.

As a BDC, MCC may not acquire any assets other than "qualifying assets" unless, at the time of and after giving effect to such acquisition, at least 70% of MCC's total assets are qualifying assets. MCC's intent is that a substantial portion of the investments that MCC acquires will constitute qualifying assets. However, MCC may be precluded from investing in what MCC believes are attractive investments if such investments are not qualifying assets for purposes of the Investment Company Act. If MCC does not invest a sufficient portion of MCC's assets in qualifying assets, MCC could be found to be in violation of the Investment Company Act provisions applicable to BDCs and possibly lose MCC's status as a BDC, which would have a material adverse effect on MCC's business, financial condition and results of operations.

MCC will become subject to corporate-level U.S. federal income tax if MCC is unable to maintain MCC's qualification as a RIC under Subchapter M of the Code or to satisfy RIC distribution requirements.

MCC has elected and qualified to be treated as a RIC under Subchapter M of the Code and intend to maintain such qualification for succeeding tax years. No assurance can be given that MCC will be able to maintain MCC's RIC tax treatment. To obtain and maintain RIC tax treatment under the Code, MCC must meet the following annual distribution, income source and asset diversification requirements.

- The distribution requirement for a RIC is satisfied if MCC distributes to MCC Stockholders on an annual basis at least 90% of MCC's net ordinary income and realized net short-term capital gains in excess of realized net long-term capital losses, if any. Because MCC may use debt financing, MCC is subject to certain asset coverage ratio requirements under the Investment Company Act and financial covenants under loan and credit agreements that could, under certain circumstances, restrict MCC from making distributions necessary to satisfy the distribution requirement. If MCC is unable to obtain cash from other sources, MCC could fail to qualify for RIC tax treatment and thus become subject to corporate-level U.S. federal income tax.
- The income source requirement is satisfied if MCC obtains at least 90% of MCC's income for each taxable year from dividends, interest, gains from the sale of stock or securities or similar sources.
- The asset diversification requirement is satisfied if MCC meets certain asset diversification requirements at the end of each quarter of MCC's taxable year. To satisfy this requirement, at least 50% of the value of MCC's assets must consist of cash, cash equivalents, U.S. Government securities, securities of other RICs, and other securities, with those other securities limited, in respect of any one issuer, to an amount that does not exceed 5% of the value of its total assets and that does not represent more than 10% of the outstanding voting securities of such issuer; and no more than 25% of the value of MCC's assets can be invested in the securities, other than U.S. government securities or securities of other RICs, of one issuer, of two or more issuers that are controlled, as determined under applicable Code rules, by MCC and that are engaged in the same or similar or related trades or businesses or of certain "qualified publicly traded partnerships." Failure to meet those requirements may result in MCC's having to dispose of certain investments quickly in order to prevent the loss of RIC tax treatment. Because most of MCC's investments will be in private companies, and therefore will be relatively illiquid, any such dispositions could be made at disadvantageous prices and could result in substantial losses.

If MCC fails to qualify for RIC tax treatment for any reason or becomes subject to corporate-level U.S. federal income tax, the resulting corporate taxes could substantially reduce MCC's net assets, the amount of income available for distribution and the amount of MCC's distributions. Such a failure would have a material adverse effect on MCC's results of operations and financial conditions, and thus, MCC Stockholders.

Risks Relating to an Investment in MCC's Securities

Investing in MCC's securities may involve an above average degree of risk.

The investments MCC makes in accordance with MCC's investment objective may result in a higher amount of risk than alternative investment options and a higher risk of volatility or loss of principal. MCC's investments in portfolio companies involve higher levels of risk and, therefore, an investment in MCC's securities may not be suitable for someone with lower risk tolerance.

Shares of closed-end investment companies, including BDCs, may, at times, trade at a discount to their NAV.

Shares of closed-end investment companies, including BDCs, may, at times, trade at a discount from NAV. This characteristic of closed-end investment companies and BDCs is separate and distinct from the risk that MCC's NAV per share may decline. MCC cannot predict whether MCC Common Stock will trade at, above or below NAV.

The market price of MCC Common Stock may fluctuate significantly.

The market price and liquidity of the market for shares of MCC Common Stock may be significantly affected by numerous factors, some of which are beyond MCC's control and may not be directly related to MCC's operating performance. These factors include:

- significant volatility in the market price and trading volume of securities of BDCs or other companies in MCC's sector, which are not necessarily related to the operating performance of the companies;
- changes in regulatory policies, accounting pronouncements or tax guidelines, particularly with respect to BDCs, SBICs or RICs;
- loss of MCC's qualification as a RIC or BDC or the SBIC Subsidiary's status as an SBIC;
- changes in earnings or variations in operating results;
- changes in the value of MCC's portfolio of investments;
- changes in accounting guidelines governing valuation of MCC's investments;
- any shortfall in revenue or net income or any increase in losses from levels expected by investors or securities analysts;
- departure of MCC Advisors' or any of its affiliates' key personnel;
- operating performance of companies comparable to MCC;
- general economic trends and other external factors; and
- loss of a major funding source.

Sales of substantial amounts of MCC Common Stock in the public market may have an adverse effect on the market price of MCC Common Stock.

Sales of substantial amounts of MCC Common Stock, or the availability of such common stock for sale, could adversely affect the prevailing market prices for MCC Common Stock. If this occurs and continues, it could impair MCC's ability to raise additional capital through the sale of securities should MCC desire to do so.

Certain provisions of the DGCL, the MCC Certificate and the MCC Bylaws could deter takeover attempts and have an adverse impact on the price of MCC Common Stock.

The DGCL, the MCC Certificate, and the MCC Bylaws contain provisions that may have the effect of discouraging a third party from making an acquisition proposal for MCC. These anti-takeover provisions may inhibit a change in control in circumstances that could give the holders of MCC Common Stock the opportunity to realize a premium over the market price of MCC Common Stock.

The NAV per share of MCC Common Stock may be diluted if MCC sells shares of MCC Common Stock in one or more offerings at prices below the then current NAV per share of MCC Common Stock or securities to subscribe for or convertible into shares of MCC Common Stock.

While MCC currently does not have the requisite stockholder approval to sell shares of MCC Common Stock at a price or prices below MCC's then current NAV per share, MCC may seek such approval in the future. In addition, at MCC's 2012 Annual Meeting of Stockholders, MCC received approval from MCC Stockholders to authorize MCC, with the approval of the MCC Board, to issue securities to, subscribe to, convert to, or purchase shares of MCC Common Stock in one or more offerings, subject to certain conditions as set forth in the proxy statement. Such authorization has no expiration.

Any decision to sell shares of MCC Common Stock below its then current NAV per share or issue securities to subscribe for or convertible into shares of MCC Common Stock would be subject to the determination by the MCC Board that such issuance is in MCC's and MCC Stockholders' best interests.

If MCC were to sell shares of MCC Common Stock below its then current NAV per share, such sales would result in an immediate dilution to the NAV per share of MCC Common Stock. This dilution would occur as a result of the sale of shares at a price below the then current NAV per share of MCC Common Stock and a proportionately greater decrease in MCC Stockholders' interest in MCC's earnings and assets and their voting interest in MCC than the increase in MCC's assets resulting from such issuance. Because the number of shares of common stock that could be so issued and the timing of any issuance is not currently known, the actual dilutive effect cannot be predicted.

If MCC issues warrants or securities to subscribe for or convertible into shares of MCC Common Stock, subject to certain limitations, the exercise or conversion price per share could be less than NAV per share at the time of exercise or conversion (including through the operation of anti-dilution protections). Because MCC would incur expenses in connection with any issuance of such securities, such issuance could result in a dilution of the NAV per share at the time of exercise or conversion. This dilution would include reduction in NAV per share as a result of the proportionately greater decrease in MCC Stockholders' interest in MCC's earnings and assets and their voting interest than the increase in MCC's assets resulting from such issuance.

Further, if MCC's current stockholders do not purchase any shares to maintain their percentage interest, regardless of whether such offering is above or below the then current NAV per share, their voting power will be diluted. For example, if MCC sells an additional 10% of MCC's shares of common stock at a 5% discount from NAV, a stockholder who does not participate in that offering for its proportionate interest will suffer NAV dilution of up to 0.5% or $5 per $1,000 of NAV.

The MCC Notes are unsecured and therefore are effectively subordinated to any secured indebtedness MCC has currently incurred or may incur in the future.

The MCC Notes are not secured by any of MCC's assets or any of the assets of MCC's subsidiaries. As a result, the MCC Notes are effectively subordinated to any secured indebtedness MCC or MCC's subsidiaries have currently incurred and may incur in the future (or any indebtedness that is initially unsecured to which MCC subsequently grants security) to the extent of the value of the assets securing such indebtedness. In any liquidation, dissolution, bankruptcy or other similar proceeding, the holders of any of MCC's existing or future secured indebtedness and the secured indebtedness of MCC's subsidiaries may assert rights against the assets pledged to secure that indebtedness in order to receive full payment of their indebtedness before the assets may be used to pay other creditors, including the holders of the MCC Notes. As of September 30, 2018, before netting out debt issuance costs, the MCC Term Loan Facility and the MCC Revolving Credit Facility had no outstanding balances and MCC had $135.0 million SBA-guaranteed debentures outstanding. The indebtedness under the SBA-guaranteed debentures are, and any borrowings under future credit facilities are likely to be, effectively senior to the MCC Notes to the extent of the value of the assets securing such indebtedness.

The MCC Notes are structurally subordinated to the indebtedness and other liabilities of MCC's subsidiaries.

The MCC Notes are obligations exclusively of MCC and not of any of MCC's subsidiaries. None of MCC's subsidiaries is a guarantor of the MCC Notes and the MCC Notes are not required to be guaranteed by any subsidiary MCC may acquire or create in the future. Any assets of MCC's subsidiaries will not be directly available to satisfy the claims of MCC's creditors, including holders of the MCC Notes. Except to the extent MCC is a creditor with recognized claims against MCC's subsidiaries, all claims of creditors of MCC's subsidiaries will have priority over MCC's equity interests in such subsidiaries (and therefore the claims of MCC's creditors, including holders of the MCC Notes) with respect to the assets of such subsidiaries. Even if MCC is recognized as a creditor of one or more of MCC's subsidiaries, MCC's claims would still be effectively subordinated to any security interests in the assets of any such subsidiary and to any indebtedness or other liabilities of any such subsidiary senior to MCC's claims. Consequently, the MCC Notes will be structurally subordinated to all indebtedness and other liabilities of any of MCC's subsidiaries and any subsidiaries that MCC may in the future acquire or establish. Although MCC's subsidiaries currently do not have any indebtedness outstanding, they may incur substantial indebtedness in the future, all of which would be structurally senior to the MCC Notes.

The indenture under which the MCC Notes were issued contains limited protection for holders of the MCC Notes.

The indenture under which the MCC Notes were issued offers limited protection to holders of the MCC Notes. The terms of the indenture and the MCC Notes do not restrict MCC's or any of MCC's subsidiaries' ability to engage in, or otherwise be a party to, a variety of corporate transactions, circumstances or events that could have an adverse impact on your investment in the MCC Notes. In particular, the terms of the indenture and the MCC Notes place no restrictions on MCC's or MCC's subsidiaries' ability to:

- issue securities or otherwise incur additional indebtedness or other obligations, including (1) any indebtedness or other obligations that would be equal in right of payment to the MCC Notes, (2) any indebtedness or other obligations that would be secured and therefore rank effectively senior in right of payment to the MCC Notes to the extent of the values of the assets securing such debt, (3) indebtedness of MCC's that is guaranteed by one or more of MCC's subsidiaries and which therefore is structurally senior to the MCC Notes and (4) securities, indebtedness or obligations issued or incurred by MCC's subsidiaries that would be senior to MCC's equity interests in MCC's subsidiaries and therefore rank structurally senior to the MCC Notes with respect to the assets of MCC's subsidiaries, in each case other than an incurrence of indebtedness or other obligation that would cause a violation of Section 18(a)(1)(A) of the Investment Company Act, as modified by Section 61(a)(1) of the Investment Company Act, or any successor provisions. These provisions generally prohibit MCC from making additional borrowings, including through the issuance of additional debt or the sale of additional debt securities, unless MCC's asset coverage, as defined in the Investment Company Act, equals at least 200% after such borrowings;
- pay dividends on, or purchase or redeem or make any payments in respect of, capital stock or other securities ranking junior in right of payment to the MCC Notes, in each case other than dividends, purchases, redemptions or payments that would cause a violation of Section 18(a)(1)(B) of the Investment Company Act, as modified by Section 61(a)(1) of the Investment Company Act, or any successor provisions. These provisions generally prohibit MCC from declaring any cash dividend or distribution upon any class of MCC's capital stock, or purchasing any such capital stock if MCC's asset coverage, as defined in the Investment Company Act, is below 200% at the time of the declaration of the dividend or distribution or the purchase and after deducting the amount of such dividend, distribution or purchase;
- sell assets (other than certain limited restrictions on MCC's ability to consolidate, merge or sell all or substantially all of MCC's assets);
- enter into transactions with affiliates;
- create liens (including liens on the shares of MCC's subsidiaries) or enter into sale and leaseback transactions;
- make investments; or
- create restrictions on the payment of dividends or other amounts to MCC from MCC's subsidiaries.

In addition, the indenture does not require MCC to offer to purchase the MCC Notes in connection with a change of control or any other event.

Furthermore, the terms of the indenture and the MCC Notes generally do not protect holders of the MCC Notes in the event that MCC experiences changes (including significant adverse changes) in MCC's financial condition, results of operations or credit ratings, as they do not require that MCC or MCC's subsidiaries adhere to any financial tests or ratios or specified levels of net worth, revenues, income, cash flow, or liquidity other than as described under the indenture. Any changes, while unlikely, to the financial tests in the Investment Company Act could affect the terms of the MCC Notes.

MCC's ability to recapitalize, incur additional debt and take a number of other actions that are not limited by the terms of the MCC Notes may have important consequences for you as a holder of the MCC Notes, including making it more difficult for MCC to satisfy MCC's obligations with respect to the MCC Notes or negatively affecting the trading value of the MCC Notes. Other debt MCC issues or incurs in the future could contain more protections for its holders than the indenture and the MCC Notes, including additional covenants and events of default. For example, the indenture under which the MCC Notes will be issued does not contain cross-default provisions that might be contained in other credit facilities of MCC. The issuance or incurrence of any such debt with incremental protections could affect the market for and trading levels and prices of the MCC Notes.

An active trading market for the MCC Notes may not develop or be sustained, which could limit the market price of the MCC Notes or your ability to sell them.

Although the MCC Notes are listed on the NYSE under the symbols “MCV,” in the case of the 2023 Notes, and “MCX,” in the case of the 2021 Notes, and listed on the TASE in the case of the 2024 Notes, MCC cannot provide any assurances that an active trading market will develop or be sustained for the MCC Notes or that you will be able to sell your MCC Notes. At various times, the MCC Notes may trade at a discount from their initial offering price depending on prevailing interest rates, the market for similar securities, MCC’s credit ratings, general economic conditions, MCC’s financial condition, performance and prospects and other factors. To the extent an active trading market is not sustained, the liquidity and trading price for the MCC Notes may be harmed.

If MCC defaults on its obligations to pay its other indebtedness, MCC may not be able to make payments on the MCC Notes.

Any default under the agreements governing MCC’s indebtedness that is not waived by the required lenders, and the remedies sought by the holders of such indebtedness could make MCC unable to pay principal, premium, if any, and interest on the MCC Notes and substantially decrease the market value of the MCC Notes. If MCC is unable to generate sufficient cash flow and are otherwise unable to obtain funds necessary to meet required payments of principal, premium, if any, and interest on MCC’s indebtedness, or if MCC otherwise fails to comply with the various covenants, including financial and operating covenants, in the instruments governing MCC’s indebtedness, MCC could be in default under the terms of the agreements governing such indebtedness. In the event of such default, the holders of such indebtedness could elect to declare all the funds borrowed thereunder to be due and payable, together with accrued and unpaid interest, the lenders under the other debt MCC may incur in the future could elect to terminate their commitments, cease making further loans and institute foreclosure proceedings against MCC’s assets, and MCC could be forced into bankruptcy or liquidation. If MCC’s operating performance declines, MCC may in the future need to seek to obtain waivers from the required lenders under the debt that MCC may incur in the future to avoid being in default. If MCC breaches MCC’s covenants under its debt and seeks a waiver, MCC may not be able to obtain a waiver from the required lenders. If this occurs, MCC would be in default under such debt, the lenders could exercise their rights as described above, and MCC could be forced into bankruptcy or liquidation. If MCC is unable to repay debt, lenders having secured obligations could proceed against the collateral securing the debt. Because any future credit facility will likely have customary cross-default provisions, if the indebtedness under the MCC Notes or under any future credit facility is accelerated, MCC may be unable to repay or finance the amounts due.

If MCC issues preferred stock, the NAV and market value of MCC Common Stock may become more volatile.

If MCC issues preferred stock, MCC cannot assure you that such issuance would result in a higher yield or return to the holders of MCC Common Stock. The issuance of preferred stock would likely cause the NAV and market value of MCC Common Stock to become more volatile. If the dividend rate on the preferred stock were to approach the net rate of return on MCC’s investment portfolio, the benefit of leverage to the holders of MCC Common Stock would be reduced. If the dividend rate on the preferred stock were to exceed the net rate of return on MCC’s portfolio, the leverage would result in a lower rate of return to the holders of MCC Common Stock than if MCC had not issued preferred stock. Any decline in the NAV of MCC’s investments would be borne entirely by the holders of MCC Common Stock. Therefore, if the market value of MCC’s portfolio were to decline, the leverage would result in a greater decrease in NAV to the holders of MCC Common Stock than if MCC were not leveraged through the issuance of preferred stock. This greater NAV decrease would also tend to cause a greater decline in the market price for MCC Common Stock. MCC might be in danger of failing to maintain the required asset coverage of the preferred stock or of losing MCC’s ratings on the preferred stock or, in an extreme case, MCC’s current investment income might not be sufficient to meet the dividend requirements on the preferred stock. In order to counteract such an event, MCC might need to liquidate investments in order to fund a redemption of some or all of the preferred stock. In addition, MCC would pay (and the holders of MCC Common Stock would bear) all costs and expenses relating to the issuance and ongoing maintenance of the preferred stock, including higher advisory fees if MCC’s total return exceeds the dividend rate on the preferred stock. Holders of preferred stock may have different interests than holders of MCC Common Stock and may at times have disproportionate influence over MCC’s affairs.

Holders of any preferred stock MCC might issue would have the right to elect members of the board of directors and class voting rights on certain matters.

Holders of any preferred stock MCC might issue, voting separately as a single class, would have the right to elect two members of the board of directors at all times and in the event dividends become two full years in arrears, would have the right to elect a majority of MCC's directors until such arearage is completely eliminated. In addition, preferred stockholders would have class voting rights on certain matters, including changes in fundamental investment restrictions and conversion to open-end status, and accordingly would be able to veto any such changes. Restrictions imposed on the declarations and payment of dividends or other distributions to the holders of MCC Common Stock and preferred stock, both by the Investment Company Act and by requirements imposed by rating agencies or the terms of any credit facility to which MCC is a party, might impair MCC's ability to maintain MCC's qualification as a RIC for U.S. federal income tax purposes. While MCC would intend to redeem MCC's preferred stock to the extent necessary to enable MCC to distribute MCC's income as required to maintain MCC's qualification as a RIC, there can be no assurance that such actions could be effected in time to meet the tax requirements.

Risks Relating to MDLY

The following risk factors apply to MDLY prior to closing of the Mergers and, following the completion of the Mergers, will apply to the Combined Company to the extent still applicable.

Risks Relating to MDLY's Business and Industry

Difficult market and political conditions may adversely affect MDLY's business in many ways, including by reducing the value or hampering the performance of the investments made by MDLY's funds, each of which could materially and adversely affect MDLY's business, results of operations and financial condition.

MDLY's business is materially affected by conditions in the global financial markets and economic and political conditions throughout the world, such as interest rates, availability and cost of credit, inflation rates, economic uncertainty, changes in laws (including laws relating to MDLY's taxation, taxation of MDLY's investors, the possibility of changes to tax laws in either the United States or any non-U.S. jurisdiction and regulations on asset managers), trade barriers, commodity prices, currency exchange rates and controls and national and international political circumstances (including wars, terrorist acts and security operations). These factors are outside of MDLY's control and may affect the level and volatility of asset prices and the liquidity and value of investments, and MDLY may not be able to or may choose not to manage MDLY's exposure to these conditions. Ongoing developments in the U.S. and global financial markets following the unprecedented turmoil in the global capital markets and the financial services industry in late 2008 and early 2009 continue to illustrate that the current environment is still one of uncertainty and instability for investment management business. Recently, global financial markets have experienced heightened volatility, including the June 2016 Brexit referendum in the United Kingdom in favor of exiting the EU and subsequent uncertainty regarding the timing and terms of the exit, the results of the 2016 U.S. presidential and congressional election and resulting uncertainty regarding actual and potential shifts in U.S. and foreign, trade, economic and other policies, and, more recently, concerns over increasing interest rates (particularly short-term rates), uncertainty regarding the short- and long-term effects of tax reform in the United States and uncertainty regarding trade policies and tariffs implemented by the Trump administration. For example, in February 2018, global equity markets experienced a widespread sell-off, and bonds have also declined in value. Any of the foregoing could have a significant impact on the markets in which MDLY operates and a material adverse impact on MDLY's business prospects and financial condition.

A number of factors have had and may continue to have an adverse impact on credit markets in particular. In addition following a sustained period of historically low interest rate levels, in the United States, short-term interest rates have risen by 90 to 120 basis points since the U.S. presidential election in November 2016 with 10 to 20 bps of such amount attributable to increases seen between January 1, 2018 and February 8, 2018. Changes in and uncertainty surrounding interest rates may have a material effect on MDLY's business, particularly with respect to the cost and availability of financing for significant acquisition and disposition transactions. Furthermore, some of the provisions under the newly enacted tax law in the United States, Public Law No. 115-97 (the "JOBS Act") could have a negative impact on the cost of financing and dampen the attractiveness of credit. There has been a corresponding meaningful increase in the uncertainty surrounding interest rates, foreign exchange rates, trade volume, and fiscal and economic policies, which has heightened volatility in the U.S. and global markets and could persist for an extended period.

These and other conditions in the global financial markets and the global economy may result in adverse consequences for MDLY's funds and their respective investee companies, which could restrict such funds' investment activities and impede such funds' ability to effectively achieve their investment objectives. In addition, because the fees MDLY earns under MDLY's investment management agreements are based in part on the market value of MDLY's assets under management and in part on investment performance, if any of these factors cause a decline in MDLY's assets under management or result in non-performance of loans by investee companies, it would result in lower fees earned, which could in turn materially and adversely affect MDLY's business and results of operations.

MDLY derives a substantial portion of its revenues from funds managed pursuant to advisory agreements that may be terminated or fund partnership agreements that permit fund investors to remove MDLY as the general partner.

With respect to MDLY's permanent capital vehicles, each fund's investment management agreement must be approved annually by such fund's board of directors or by the vote of a majority of the stockholders and the majority of the independent members of such fund's board of directors and, in certain cases, by its stockholders, as required by law. In addition, as required by the Investment Company Act, both MCC and Sierra have the right to terminate their respective management agreements without penalty upon 60 days' written notice to their respective advisers. Termination of these agreements would reduce the fees MDLY earns from the relevant funds, which could have a material adverse effect on MDLY's results of operations. For the nine months ended September 30, 2018 and 2017, MDLY's investment advisory relationships with MCC and Sierra represented approximately 28.2% and 41.1%, respectively, of MDLY's total management fees. These investment advisory relationships also represented, in the aggregate, 41.2% of MDLY's assets under management at September 30, 2018. There can be no assurance that MDLY's investment management agreements with respect to MCC and Sierra will remain in place.

With respect to MDLY's long-dated private funds, insofar as MDLY controls the general partner of such funds, the risk of termination of the investment management agreement for such funds is limited, subject to MDLY's fiduciary or contractual duties as general partner. However, the applicable fund partnership agreements may permit the limited partners of each respective fund to remove MDLY as general partner by a majority or, in certain circumstances, a super majority vote. In addition, the partnership agreements provide for dissolution of the partnership upon certain changes of control.

MDLY's separately managed accounts ("SMAs") are governed by investment management agreements that may be terminated by investors at any time for cause under the applicable agreement and "cause" may include the departure of specified members of MDLY's senior management team. Absent cause, the investment management agreements that govern MDLY's SMAs are generally not terminable during the specified investment period or following the specified investment period, prior to the scheduled maturities or disposition of the subject assets under management.

Termination of these agreements would negatively affect the fees MDLY earns from the relevant funds, which could have a material adverse effect on MDLY's results of operations.

MDLY may not be able to maintain its current fee structure as a result of industry pressure from fund investors to reduce fees, which could have an adverse effect on its profit margins and results of operations.

MDLY may not be able to maintain its current fee structure as a result of industry pressure from fund investors to reduce fees. Although MDLY's investment management fees vary among and within asset classes, historically MDLY has competed primarily on the basis of MDLY's performance and not on the level of MDLY's investment management fees relative to those of MDLY's competitors. In recent years, however, there has been a general trend toward lower fees in the investment management industry. In September 2009, the Institutional Limited Partners Association published a set of Private Equity Principles (the "Principles"), which were revised in January 2011. The Principles were developed to encourage discussion between limited partners and general partners regarding private equity fund partnership terms. Certain of the Principles call for enhanced "alignment of interests" between general partners and limited partners through modifications of some of the terms of fund arrangements, including proposed guidelines for fees and performance income structures. Although MDLY has no obligation to modify any of MDLY's fees with respect to MDLY's existing funds, MDLY may experience pressure to do so in MDLY's funds. More recently institutional investors have been allocating increasing amounts of capital to alternative investment strategies as well as attempting to reduce management and investment fees to external managers, whether through direct reductions, deferrals or rebates. MDLY cannot assure you that MDLY will succeed in providing investment returns and service that will allow MDLY to maintain MDLY's current fee structure. For example, on December 3, 2015, MDLY agreed to reduce MDLY's fees from MCC and beginning January 1, 2016, the base management fee from MCC was reduced to 1.50% on gross assets above $1 billion. In addition, MDLY reduced MDLY's incentive fee from MCC from 20% on pre-incentive fee net investment income over an 8% hurdle, to 17.5% on pre-incentive fee net investment income over a 6% hurdle and introduced a netting mechanism and incentive fee income will be subject to a rolling three-year look back. Under no circumstances will MDLY's recently implemented fee structure result in higher fees from MCC than fees under the current investment management agreement. Fee reductions on existing or future new business could have an adverse effect on MDLY's profit margins and results of operations. For more information about MDLY's fees, see "Business of MDLY — Fee Structure."

A change of control of MDLY could result in termination of its investment advisory agreements.

Pursuant to the Investment Company Act, each of the investment advisory agreements for the BDCs that MDLY advises automatically terminates upon its deemed "assignment" and a BDC's board and stockholders must approve a new agreement in order for MDLY to continue to act as its investment adviser. In addition, pursuant to the Advisers Act, each of MDLY's investment advisory agreements for the separate accounts MDLY manages may not be "assigned" without the consent of the client. A sale of a controlling block of MDLY's voting securities and certain other transactions would be deemed an "assignment" pursuant to both the Investment Company Act and the Advisers Act. Such an assignment may be deemed to occur in the event that MDLY's pre-IPO owners dispose of enough of their interests in MDLY such that they no longer own a controlling interest in MDLY. If such a deemed assignment occurs, there can be no assurance that MDLY will be able to obtain the necessary consents from clients whose funds are managed pursuant to separate accounts or the necessary approvals from the boards and shareholders of the SEC-registered BDCs that MDLY advises. An assignment, actual or constructive, would trigger these termination and consent provisions and, unless the necessary approvals and consents are obtained, could adversely affect MDLY's ability to continue managing client accounts, resulting in the loss of assets under management and a corresponding loss of revenue. MDLY and Sierra are seeking these consents in connection with the MDLY Merger Agreement. See "— Risks Relating to the Mergers — The inability of Sierra, MCC and/or MDLY to obtain certain third-party consents and approvals could delay or prevent the completion of the Mergers."

The historical returns attributable to MDLY's funds should not be considered as indicative of the future results of MDLY's funds or of MDLY's future results or of any returns expected on an investment in MDLY Class A Common Stock.

The historical performance of MDLY's funds is relevant to MDLY primarily insofar as it is indicative of fees MDLY has earned in the past and may earn in the future and MDLY's reputation and ability to raise new funds. The historical and potential returns of the funds MDLY advises are not, however, directly linked to returns on MDLY Class A Common Stock. Therefore, you should not conclude that positive performance of the funds MDLY advises will necessarily result in positive returns on an investment in MDLY Class A Common Stock. However, poor performance of the funds MDLY advises could cause a decline in MDLY's revenues and could therefore have a negative effect on MDLY's operating results and returns on MDLY Class A Common Stock. An investment in MDLY Class A Common Stock is not an investment in any of MDLY's funds. Also, there is no assurance that projections in respect of MDLY's funds or unrealized valuations will be realized.

Moreover, the historical returns of MDLY's funds should not be considered indicative of the future returns of these funds or from any future funds MDLY may raise, in part because:

- market conditions during previous periods may have been significantly more favorable for generating positive performance than the market conditions MDLY may experience in the future;

Table of Contents

- MDLY's funds' rates of returns, which are calculated on the basis of NAV of the funds' investments, including unrealized gains, which may never be realized;
- MDLY's funds' returns have previously benefited from investment opportunities and general market conditions that may not recur, and MDLY's funds may not be able to achieve the same returns or profitable investment opportunities or deploy capital as quickly;
- the historical returns that MDLY presents in this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus derive largely from the performance of MDLY's earlier funds, whereas future fund returns will depend increasingly on the performance of MDLY's newer funds or funds not yet formed, which may have little or no realized investment track record;
- you will not benefit from any value that was created in MDLY's funds prior to MDLY's becoming a public company if such value was previously realized;
- in recent years, there has been increased competition for investment opportunities resulting from the increased amount of capital invested in alternative funds and high liquidity in debt markets, and the increased competition for investments may reduce MDLY's returns in the future; and
- MDLY's newly established funds may generate lower returns during the period that they take to deploy their capital.

The future internal rate of return for any current or future fund may vary considerably from the historical internal rate of return generated by any particular fund, or for MDLY's funds as a whole. Future returns will also be affected by the risks described in this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus, including risks of the industries and business in which a particular fund invests.

If MDLY is unable to consummate or successfully integrate development opportunities, acquisitions or joint ventures, MDLY may not be able to implement MDLY's growth strategy successfully.

MDLY's growth strategy may include the selective development or acquisition of other asset management businesses, advisory businesses or other businesses or financial products complementary to MDLY's business where MDLY thinks it can add substantial value or generate substantial returns. The success of this strategy will depend on, among other things: (a) the availability of suitable opportunities, (b) the level of competition from other companies that may have greater financial resources, (c) MDLY's ability to value potential development or acquisition opportunities accurately and negotiate acceptable terms for those opportunities, (d) MDLY's ability to obtain requisite approvals and licenses from the relevant governmental authorities and to comply with applicable laws and regulations without incurring undue costs and delays, (e) MDLY's ability to identify and enter into mutually beneficial relationships with venture partners and (f) MDLY's ability to properly manage conflicts of interest. Moreover, even if MDLY is able to identify and successfully complete an acquisition, MDLY may encounter unexpected difficulties or incur unexpected costs associated with integrating and overseeing the operations of the new business or activities. If MDLY is not successful in implementing MDLY's growth strategy, MDLY's business, results of operations and the market price for MDLY Class A Common Stock may be adversely affected.

MDLY depends on third-party distribution sources to market MDLY's investment strategies.

MDLY's ability to grow MDLY's assets under management, particularly with respect to MDLY's BDCs, is dependent on access to third-party intermediaries, including investment banks, broker dealers and registered investment advisers. MDLY cannot assure you that these intermediaries will continue to be accessible to MDLY on commercially reasonable terms, or at all. In addition, pension fund consultants may review and evaluate MDLY's institutional products and MDLY's firm from time to time. Poor reviews or evaluations of either a particular product, or of MDLY, may result in institutional client withdrawals or may impair MDLY's ability to attract new assets through these consultants.

An investment strategy focused primarily on privately held companies presents certain challenges, including the lack of available information about these companies.

MDLY's funds have historically invested primarily in privately held companies. Investments in private companies pose certain incremental risks as compared to investments in public companies including that private companies:

- have reduced access to the capital markets, resulting in diminished capital resources and ability to withstand financial distress;
- may have limited financial resources and may be unable to meet their obligations under debt that MDLY holds, which may be accompanied by a deterioration in the value of any collateral and a reduction in the likelihood of MDLY realizing any guarantees MDLY may have obtained in connection with MDLY's investment;
- may have shorter operating histories, narrower product lines and smaller market shares than larger business, which tend to render them more vulnerable to competitors' actions and changing market conditions, as well as general economic downturns;
- are more likely to depend on the management talents and efforts of a small group of persons; therefore, the death, disability, resignation or termination of one or more of these persons could have a material adverse impact on MDLY's investee company and, in turn, on MDLY; and
- generally have less predictable operating results, may from time to time be parties to litigation, may be engaged in rapidly changing business with products subject to a substantial risk of obsolescence, and may require substantial additional capital to support their operations, finance expansion or maintain their competitive position. In addition, MDLY's executive officers, directors or employees may, in the ordinary course of business, be named as defendants in litigation arising from MDLY's funds' investments in investee companies.

Finally, limited public information generally exists about private companies and these companies may not have third-party debt ratings or audited financial statements. MDLY must therefore rely on the ability of MDLY's funds' advisors to obtain adequate information through due diligence to evaluate the creditworthiness and potential returns from investing in these companies. Additionally, these companies and their financial information will not generally be subject to the Sarbanes-Oxley Act and other rules that govern public companies. If MDLY is unable to uncover all material information about these companies, MDLY's funds may lose money on such investments.

MDLY's funds' investments in investee companies may be risky, and MDLY's funds could lose all or part of their investments.

MDLY's funds pursue strategies focused on investing primarily in the debt of privately owned U.S. companies.

Senior Secured Debt and Second Lien Secured Debt. When MDLY's funds invest in senior secured term debt and second lien secured debt, MDLY's funds will generally take a security interest in the available assets of these investee companies, including the equity interests of their subsidiaries. There is a risk that the collateral securing such investments may decrease in value over time or lose its entire value, may be difficult to sell in a timely manner, may be difficult to appraise and may fluctuate in value based upon the success of the business and market conditions, including as a result of the inability of the investee company to raise additional capital. Also, in some circumstances, MDLY's security interest could be subordinated to claims of other creditors. In addition, deterioration in an investee company's financial condition and prospects, including its inability to raise additional capital, may be accompanied by deterioration in the value of the collateral for the debt. Consequently, the fact that debt is secured does not guarantee that MDLY will receive principal and interest payments according to the investment terms, or at all, or that MDLY will be able to collect on the investment should MDLY be forced to enforce its remedies.

Senior Unsecured Debt. MDLY's funds may also make unsecured debt investments in investee companies, meaning that such investments will not benefit from any interest in collateral of such companies.

Subordinated Debt. MDLY's subordinated debt investments will generally be subordinated to senior debt and will generally be unsecured. This may result in a heightened level of risk and volatility or a loss of principal, which could lead to the loss of the entire investment. These investments may involve additional risks that could adversely affect MDLY's investment returns. To the extent interest payments associated with such debt are deferred, such debt may be subject to greater fluctuations in valuations, and such debt could subject MDLY's funds to non-cash income. Since the applicable fund would not receive any principal repayments prior to the maturity of some of MDLY's subordinated debt investments, such investments will be of greater risk than amortizing loans.

Equity Investments. Certain of MDLY's funds make selected equity investments. In addition, when MDLY's funds invest in senior and subordinated debt, they may acquire warrants or options to purchase equity securities or benefit from other types of equity participation. MDLY's goal is ultimately to dispose of these equity interests and realize gains upon MDLY's disposition of such interests. However, the equity interests MDLY's funds receive may not appreciate in value and, in fact, may decline in value. Accordingly, MDLY's funds may not be able to realize gains from such equity interests, and any gains that MDLY's funds do realize on the disposition of any equity interests may not be sufficient to offset any other losses MDLY's funds experience.

Most loans in which MDLY's funds invest will not be rated by any rating agency and, if they were rated, they would be rated as below investment grade quality. Loans rated below investment grade quality are generally regarded as having predominantly speculative characteristics and may carry a greater risk with respect to a borrower's capacity to pay interest and repay principal. From time to time, MDLY's funds, in the past, and may in the future, lose some or all of their investment in an investee company.

Prepayments of debt investments by MDLY's investee companies could adversely impact MDLY's results of operations.

MDLY is subject to the risk that the investments MDLY's funds make in investee companies may be repaid prior to maturity. When this occurs, MDLY's BDCs will generally use such proceeds to reduce their existing borrowings and MDLY's private funds will generally return such capital to its investors, which capital may be recalled at a later date pursuant to such fund's governing documents. With respect to MDLY's SMAs, if such event occurs after the investment period, such capital will be returned to investors. Any future investment in a new investee company may also be at lower yields than the debt that was repaid. As a result, the results of operations of the affected fund could be materially adversely affected if one or more investee companies elect to prepay amounts owed to such fund, which could in turn have a material adverse effect on MDLY's results of operations.

MDLY's funds' investee companies may incur debt that ranks equally with, or senior to, MDLY's funds' investments in such companies.

MDLY's funds pursue a strategy focused on investing primarily in the debt of privately owned U.S. companies. MDLY's funds' investee companies may have, or may be permitted to incur, other debt that ranks equally with, or senior to, the debt in which MDLY's funds invest. By their terms, such debt instruments may entitle the holders to receive payment of interest or principal on or before the dates on which MDLY is entitled to receive payments with respect to the debt instruments in which MDLY's funds invest. Also, in the event of insolvency, liquidation, dissolution, reorganization or bankruptcy of an investee company, holders of debt instruments ranking senior to MDLY's funds' investment in that investee company would typically be entitled to receive payment in full before MDLY receives any distribution. After repaying such senior creditors, such investee company may not have any remaining assets to use for repaying its obligation to MDLY's funds. In the case of debt ranking equally with debt instruments in which MDLY's funds invest, MDLY's funds would have to share on an equal basis any distributions with other creditors holding such debt in the event of an insolvency, liquidation, dissolution, reorganization or bankruptcy of the relevant investee company.

Subordinated liens on collateral securing loans that MDLY's funds make to their investee companies may be subject to control by senior creditors with first priority liens. If there is a default, the value of the collateral may not be sufficient to repay in full both the first priority creditors and MDLY's funds.

Certain debt investments that MDLY's funds make in investee companies are secured on a second priority basis by the same collateral securing senior secured debt of such companies. The first priority liens on the collateral will secure the investee company's obligations under any outstanding senior debt and may secure certain other future debt that may be permitted to be incurred by the company under the agreements governing the debt. The holders of obligations secured by the first priority liens on the collateral will generally control the liquidation of and be entitled to receive proceeds from any realization of the collateral to repay their obligations in full before MDLY's funds. In addition, the value of the collateral in the event of liquidation will depend on market and economic conditions, the availability of buyers and other factors. There can be no assurance that the proceeds, if any, from the sale or sales of all of the collateral would be sufficient to satisfy the debt obligations secured by the second priority liens after payment in full of all obligations secured by the first priority liens on the collateral. If such proceeds are not sufficient to repay amounts outstanding under the debt obligations secured by the second priority liens, then MDLY's funds, to the extent not repaid from the proceeds of the sale of the collateral, will only have an unsecured claim against the investee company's remaining assets, if any.

MDLY's funds may also make unsecured debt investments in investee companies, meaning that such investments will not benefit from any interest in collateral of such companies. Liens on such investee companies' collateral, if any, will secure the investee company's obligations under its outstanding secured debt and may secure certain future debt that is permitted to be incurred by the investee company under its secured debt agreements. The holders of obligations secured by such liens will generally control the liquidation of, and be entitled to receive proceeds from, any realization of such collateral to repay their obligations in full before MDLY. In addition, the value of such collateral in the event of liquidation will depend on market and economic conditions, the availability of buyers and other factors. There can be no assurance that the proceeds, if any, from sales of such collateral would be sufficient to satisfy MDLY's unsecured debt obligations after payment in full of all secured debt obligations. If such proceeds were not sufficient to repay the outstanding secured debt obligations, then MDLY's unsecured claims would rank equally with the unpaid portion of such secured creditors' claims against the investee company's remaining assets, if any.

The rights MDLY's funds may have with respect to the collateral securing the debt investments MDLY's funds make in their investee companies with senior debt outstanding may also be limited pursuant to the terms of one or more intercreditor agreements that MDLY's funds enter into with the holders of senior secured debt. Under such an intercreditor agreement, at any time that obligations that have the benefit of the first priority liens are outstanding, any of the following actions that may be taken in respect of the collateral will be at the discretion of the holders of the obligations secured by the first priority liens: the ability to cause the commencement of enforcement proceedings against the collateral; the ability to control the conduct of such proceedings; the approval of amendments to collateral documents; releases of liens on the collateral; and waivers of past defaults under collateral documents. MDLY's funds may not have the ability to control or direct such actions, even if their rights are adversely affected.

There may be circumstances where MDLY's funds' debt investments could be subordinated to claims of other creditors or MDLY's funds could be subject to lender liability claims.

If one of MDLY's investee companies were to go bankrupt, depending on the facts and circumstances, including the extent to which MDLY's funds actually provided managerial assistance to that investee company or a representative of MDLY sat on the board of directors of such investee company, a bankruptcy court might recharacterize MDLY's funds' debt investment and subordinate all or a portion of MDLY's funds' claim to that of other creditors. In situations where a bankruptcy carries a high degree of political significance, MDLY's funds' legal rights may be subordinated to other creditors.

In addition, lenders in certain cases can be subject to lender liability claims for actions taken by them when they become too involved in the borrower's business or exercise control over a borrower. It is possible that MDLY or MDLY's funds could become subject to a lender's liability claim, including as a result of actions taken if MDLY or MDLY's funds render significant managerial assistance to, or exercise control or influence over the board of directors of, the borrower.

MDLY's funds may not have the resources or ability to make additional investments in MDLY's investee companies.

After an initial investment in an investee company, MDLY's funds may be called upon from time to time to provide additional funds to such company or have the opportunity to increase their investment through the exercise of a warrant or other right to purchase common stock. There is no assurance that the applicable fund will make, or will have sufficient resources to make, follow-on investments. Even if such fund has sufficient capital to make a desired follow-on investment, MDLY may elect not to make a follow-on investment because MDLY may not want to increase MDLY's level of risk, MDLY prefers other opportunities or MDLY is limited in its ability to do so by compliance with BDC requirements or maintaining RIC tax treatment, if applicable. Any decisions not to make a follow-on investment or any inability on MDLY's part to make such an investment may have a negative impact on an investee company in need of such an investment, may result in a missed opportunity for MDLY to increase MDLY's participation in a successful operation or may reduce the expected return on the investment.

Economic recessions or downturns could impair MDLY's investee companies and harm MDLY's operating results.

Many of MDLY's investee companies are susceptible to economic slowdowns or recessions and may be unable to repay MDLY's funds' debt investments during these periods. Therefore, MDLY's funds' non-performing assets are likely to increase, and the value of MDLY's funds' portfolios are likely to decrease during these periods. Adverse economic conditions may also decrease the value of any collateral securing MDLY's senior secured or second lien secured debt. A severe recession may further decrease the value of such collateral and result in losses of value in such portfolios. Unfavorable economic conditions also could increase MDLY's funding costs, limit MDLY's access to the capital markets or result in a decision by lenders not to extend credit to MDLY on terms MDLY deems acceptable. Occurrence of any of these events could materially and adversely affect MDLY's business and results of operations.

A covenant breach by MDLY's investee companies may harm MDLY's operating results.

An investee company's failure to satisfy financial or operating covenants imposed by MDLY or other lenders could lead to defaults and, potentially, termination of its debt and foreclosure on its secured assets, which could trigger cross-defaults under other agreements and jeopardize an investee company's ability to meet its obligations under the debt or equity instruments that MDLY's funds hold. MDLY's funds may incur expenses to the extent necessary to seek recovery upon default or to negotiate new terms, which may include the waiver of certain financial covenants, with a defaulting investee company. To the extent MDLY's funds incur additional costs and/or do not recover their investments in investee companies, MDLY may earn reduced management and incentive fees, which may adversely affect MDLY's results of operations.

The investment management business is competitive.

The investment management business is competitive, with competition based on a variety of factors, including investment performance, business relationships, quality of service provided to investors, investor liquidity and willingness to invest, fund terms (including fees), brand recognition and business reputation. MDLY competes for investors with a number of other investment managers, public and private funds, BDCs, SBICs and others. Numerous factors increase MDLY's competitive risks, including:

- a number of MDLY's competitors have greater financial, technical, marketing and other resources and more personnel than MDLY does;
- some of MDLY's funds may not perform as well as competitors' funds or other available investment products;
- several of MDLY's competitors have raised significant amounts of capital, and many of them have similar investment objectives to MDLY's, which may create additional competition for investment opportunities and may reduce the size and duration of pricing inefficiencies that otherwise could be exploited;
- some of MDLY's competitors may have a lower cost of capital and access to funding sources that are not available to MDLY, which may create competitive disadvantages for MDLY with respect to MDLY's funds;

- some of MDLY's competitors may be subject to less regulation and, accordingly, may have more flexibility to undertake and execute certain business or investments than MDLY does and/or bear less compliance expense than MDLY does;
- some of MDLY's competitors may have more flexibility than MDLY has in raising certain types of funds under the investment management contracts they have negotiated with their investors;
- some of MDLY's competitors may have better expertise or be regarded by investors as having better expertise in a specific asset class or geographic region than MDLY does; and
- other industry participants may, from time to time, seek to recruit MDLY's investment professionals and other employees away from MDLY.

In addition, the attractiveness of MDLY's funds relative to investments in other investment products could decrease depending on economic conditions. This competitive pressure could adversely affect MDLY's ability to make successful investments and limit MDLY's ability to raise future funds, either of which would adversely impact MDLY's business, results of operations and financial condition.

MDLY's funds operate in a competitive market for lending that has recently intensified, and competition may limit MDLY's funds' ability to originate or acquire desirable loans and investments and could also affect the yields of these assets and have a material adverse effect on MDLY's business, results of operations and financial condition.

MDLY's funds operate in a competitive market for lending that has recently intensified. MDLY's profitability depends, in large part, on MDLY's funds' ability to originate or acquire credit investments on attractive terms. In originating or acquiring MDLY's target credit investments, MDLY competes with a variety of institutional lenders and investors, including specialty finance companies, public and private funds, commercial and investment banks, BDCs, SBICs, REITs, commercial finance and insurance companies and others. Some competitors may have a lower cost of funds and access to funding sources that are not available to MDLY, such as the U.S. government. Many of MDLY's competitors or their funds are not subject to the operating constraints associated with qualifying as a RIC under Subchapter M of the Code or compliance with the Investment Company Act. In addition, some of MDLY's competitors may have higher risk tolerances or different risk assessments, which could allow them to consider a wider variety of investments, offer more attractive pricing, transaction structures, covenants or other terms and establish more relationships than MDLY. Furthermore, competition for originations of and investments in MDLY's target assets may lead to the yields of such assets decreasing, which may further limit MDLY's ability to generate satisfactory returns. Also, as a result of this competition, desirable loans and investments may be limited in the future and MDLY's funds may not be able to take advantage of attractive lending and investment opportunities from time to time, thereby limiting their ability to identify and originate loans or make investments that are consistent with their investment objectives. MDLY cannot assure you that the competitive pressures MDLY's funds face will not have a material adverse effect on MDLY's business, results of operations and financial condition.

Dependence on leverage by certain of MDLY's funds and by MDLY's funds' investee companies subjects MDLY to volatility and contractions in the debt financing markets and could adversely affect MDLY's ability to achieve attractive rates of return on those investments.

MCC, Sierra and MDLY's funds' investee companies rely on the use of leverage, and MDLY's ability to achieve attractive rates of return on investments will depend on MDLY's ability to access sufficient sources of indebtedness at attractive rates. While MDLY's permanent capital vehicles, MCC and Sierra, are MDLY's only funds that currently rely on the use of leverage, certain of MDLY's other funds may in the future rely on the use of leverage. If MDLY's funds or the companies in which MDLY's funds invest raise capital in the structured credit, leveraged loan and high yield bond markets, the results of their operations may suffer if such markets experience dislocations, contractions or volatility. Any such events could adversely impact the availability of credit to business generally and could lead to an overall weakening of the U.S. and global economies. Any economic downturn could adversely affect the financial resources of MDLY's funds and their investments (in particular those investments that depend on credit from third parties or that otherwise participate in the credit markets) and their ability to make principal and interest payments on, or refinance, outstanding debt when due. Moreover, these events could affect the terms of available debt financing with, for example, higher rates, higher equity requirements and/or more restrictive covenants.

The absence of available sources of sufficient debt financing for extended periods of time or an increase in either the general levels of interest rates or in the risk spread demanded by sources of indebtedness would make it more expensive to finance those investments. Certain investments may also be financed through borrowings on fund-level debt facilities, which may or may not be available for a refinancing at the end of their respective terms. Finally, the interest payments on the indebtedness used to finance MDLY's funds' investments are generally deductible expenses for income tax purposes, subject to limitations under applicable tax law and policy. Any change in such tax law or policy to eliminate or substantially limit these income tax deductions, as has been discussed from time to time in various jurisdictions, would reduce the after-tax rates of return on the affected investments, which may have an adverse impact on MDLY's business and financial results.

Similarly, MDLY's funds' investee companies regularly utilize the corporate debt markets to obtain additional financing for their operations. MDLY's investee companies are typically highly leveraged. Those that have credit ratings are typically non-investment grade and those that do not have credit ratings would likely be non-investment grade if they were rated. If the credit markets render such financing difficult to obtain or more expensive, this may negatively impact the operating performance of those investee companies and, therefore, the investment returns of MDLY's funds. In addition, if the markets make it difficult or impossible to refinance debt that is maturing in the near term, some of MDLY's investee companies may be unable to repay such debt at maturity and may be forced to sell assets, undergo a recapitalization or seek bankruptcy protection. Any of the foregoing circumstances could have a material adverse effect on MDLY's business, results of operations and financial condition.

MDLY's funds may choose to use leverage as part of their respective investment programs. As of September 30, 2018, MCC and Sierra were MDLY's only funds that relied on leverage. As of September 30, 2018, MCC had a NAV of $321.2 million, $741.6 million of assets under management and an asset coverage ratio of 212.6%. As of September 30, 2018, Sierra had a NAV of $687.9 million, $1.1 billion of assets under management and an asset coverage ratio of 240.7%. The use of leverage poses a significant degree of risk and enhances the possibility of a significant loss to investors. A fund may borrow money from time to time to make investments or may enter into derivative transactions with counterparties that have embedded leverage. The interest expense and other costs incurred in connection with such borrowing may not be recovered by returns on such investments and may be lost, and the timing and magnitude of such losses may be accelerated or exacerbated, in the event of a decline in the market value of such investments. Gains realized with borrowed funds may cause the fund's NAV to increase at a faster rate than would be the case without borrowings. However, if investment results fail to cover the cost of borrowings, the fund's NAV could also decrease faster than if there had been no borrowings. In addition, as BDCs registered under the Investment Company Act, MCC and Sierra are each permitted to issue senior securities in amounts such that its asset coverage ratio equals at least 200% (or 150% if, pursuant to the Investment Company Act, certain requirements are met) after each issuance of senior securities. Each of MCC's and Sierra's ability to pay dividends will be restricted if its asset coverage ratio falls below at least 200% (or 150% if, pursuant to the Investment Company Act, certain requirements are met) and any amounts that it uses to service its indebtedness are not available for dividends to its common stockholders. An increase in interest rates could also decrease the value of fixed-rate debt investments that MDLY's funds make. Any of the foregoing circumstances could have a material adverse effect on MDLY's business, results of operations and financial condition.

Some of MDLY's funds may invest in companies that are highly leveraged, which may increase the risk of loss associated with those investments.

Some of MDLY's funds may invest in companies whose capital structures involve significant leverage. For example, in many non-distressed private equity investments, indebtedness may be as much as 75% or more of an investee company's total debt and equity capitalization, including debt that may be incurred in connection with the investment, whether incurred at or above the investment-level entity. In distressed situations, indebtedness may exceed 100% or more of an investee company's capitalization. Additionally, the debt positions originated or acquired by MDLY's funds may be the most junior in what could be a complex capital structure, and thus subject MDLY to the greatest risk of loss.

Investments in highly leveraged entities are also inherently more sensitive to declines in revenues, increases in expenses and interest rates and adverse economic, market and industry developments. In a rising interest rate environment, there may be an increase in the risk of loss associated with investing in highly leveraged companies.

Furthermore, the incurrence of a significant amount of indebtedness by an entity could, among other things:

- subject the entity to a number of restrictive covenants, terms and conditions, any violation of which could be viewed by creditors as an event of default and could materially impact MDLY's funds' ability to realize value from the investment;
- allow even moderate reductions in operating cash flow to render the entity unable to service its indebtedness, leading to a bankruptcy or other reorganization of the entity and a loss of part or all of MDLY's funds' equity investment in it;
- give rise to an obligation to make mandatory prepayments of debt using excess cash flow, which might limit the entity's ability to respond to changing industry conditions if additional cash is needed for the response, to make unplanned but necessary capital expenditures or to take advantage of growth opportunities;
- limit the entity's ability to adjust to changing market conditions, thereby placing it at a competitive disadvantage compared to its competitors that have relatively less debt;
- limit the entity's ability to engage in strategic acquisitions that might be necessary to generate attractive returns or further growth; and
- limit the entity's ability to obtain additional financing or increase the cost of obtaining such financing, including for capital expenditures, working capital or other general corporate purposes.

As a result, the risk of loss associated with a leveraged entity is generally greater than for companies with comparatively less debt. For example, a number of investments consummated by private equity sponsors during 2005, 2006 and 2007 that utilized significant amounts of leverage subsequently experienced severe economic stress and, in certain cases, defaulted on their debt obligations due to a decrease in revenues and cash flows precipitated by the subsequent economic downturn during 2008 and 2009.

MDLY generally does not control the business operations of MDLY's investee companies and, due to the illiquid nature of MDLY's investments, may not be able to dispose of such investments.

Investments by MDLY's funds generally consist of debt instruments and equity securities of companies that MDLY does not control. MDLY does not expect to control most of MDLY's investee companies, even though MDLY may have board representation or board observation rights, and MDLY's debt agreements may impose certain restrictive covenants on MDLY's borrowers. As a result, MDLY is subject to the risk that an investee company in which MDLY's funds invest may make business decisions with which MDLY disagrees and the management of such company, as representatives of the holders of their common equity, may take risks or otherwise act in ways that do not serve MDLY's interests as debt investors. Due to the lack of liquidity for MDLY's investments in private companies, MDLY may not be able to dispose of MDLY's interests in MDLY's investee companies as readily as MDLY would like or at an appropriate valuation. As a result, an investee company may make decisions that could decrease the value of MDLY's investment holdings.

A substantial portion of MDLY's investments may be recorded at fair value as determined in good faith by or under the direction of MDLY's respective funds' boards of directors or similar bodies and, as a result, there may be uncertainty regarding the value of MDLY's funds' investments.

The debt and equity instruments in which MDLY's funds invest for which market quotations are not readily available will be valued at fair value as determined in good faith by or under the direction of such fund's board of directors or similar body. Most, if not all, of MDLY's funds' investments (other than cash and cash equivalents) are classified as Level III under ASC Topic 820 - Fair Value Measurements and Disclosures. This means that MDLY's funds' portfolio valuations will be based on unobservable inputs and MDLY's funds' assumptions about how market participants would price the asset or liability in question. MDLY expects that inputs into the determination of fair value of MDLY's funds' portfolio investments will require significant management judgment or estimation. Even if observable market data were available, such information may be the result of consensus pricing information or broker quotes, which include a disclaimer that the broker would not be held to such a price in an actual transaction. The non-binding nature of consensus pricing and/or quotes accompanied by disclaimers materially reduces the reliability of such information. MDLY's funds retain the services of an independent service provider to review the valuation of these loans and securities.

The types of factors that the board of directors, general partner or similar body may take into account in determining the fair value of a fund's investments generally include, as appropriate, comparisons to publicly traded securities including such factors as yield, maturity and measures of credit quality, the enterprise value of an investee company, the nature and realizable value of any collateral, the investee company's ability to make payments and its earnings and discounted cash flow, the markets in which the investee company does business and other relevant factors. Because such valuations, and particularly valuations of private securities and private companies, are inherently uncertain, may fluctuate over short periods of time and may be based on estimates, MDLY's determinations of fair value may differ materially from the values that would have been used if a ready market for these loans and securities existed. MDLY's funds' NAV could be adversely affected if determinations regarding the fair value of such funds' investments were materially higher than the values that such funds' ultimately realize upon the disposal of such loans and securities.

MDLY may need to pay "clawback" obligations if and when they are triggered under the governing agreements with respect to certain of MDLY's funds and SMAs.

Generally, if at the termination of a fund (and sometimes at interim points in the life of a fund), the fund has not achieved investment returns that (in most cases) exceed the preferred return threshold or (in all cases) the general partner receives net profits over the life of the fund in excess of its allocable share under the applicable partnership agreement, MDLY will be obligated to repay an amount equal to the extent to which carried interest that was previously distributed to MDLY exceeds the amounts to which MDLY is ultimately entitled. These repayment obligations may correspond to amounts previously distributed to MDLY's senior professionals prior to MDLY's IPO, with respect to which holders of MDLY Class A Common Stock did not receive any benefit. This obligation is known as a "clawback" obligation. Medley LLC had not received any distributions of performance fees through September 30, 2018, other than tax distributions, a portion of which is subject to clawback. As of September 30, 2018, MDLY recorded a $7.2 million clawback obligation that would need to be paid if the funds were liquidated at fair value as of the end of the reporting period. Had MDLY assumed all existing investments were worthless as of September 30, 2018, there would be no additional amounts subject to clawback.

Although a clawback obligation is several to each person who received a distribution, and not a joint obligation, the governing agreements of MDLY's funds generally provide that, if a recipient does not fund his or her respective share, MDLY may have to fund such additional amounts beyond the amount of carried interest MDLY retained, although MDLY generally will retain the right to pursue remedies against those carried interest recipients who fail to fund their obligations. MDLY may need to use or reserve cash to repay such clawback obligations instead of using the cash for other purposes. See "Management's Discussion and Analysis of Financial Condition and Results of Operations of MDLY - Contingent Obligations."

MDLY's funds may face risks relating to undiversified investments.

While diversification is generally an objective of MDLY's funds, there can be no assurance as to the degree of diversification, if any, that will be achieved in any fund investments. Difficult market conditions or slowdowns affecting a particular asset class, geographic region or other category of investment could have a significant adverse impact on a fund if its investments are concentrated in that area, which would result in lower investment returns. This lack of diversification may expose a fund to losses disproportionate to economic conditions or market declines in general if there are disproportionately greater adverse movements in the particular investments. If a fund holds investments concentrated in a particular issuer, security, asset class or geographic region, such fund may be more susceptible than a more widely diversified investment portfolio to the negative consequences of a single corporate, economic, political or regulatory event. Accordingly, a lack of diversification on the part of a fund could adversely affect a fund's performance and, as a result, MDLY's results of operations and financial condition.

Third-party investors in MDLY's private funds may not satisfy their contractual obligation to fund capital calls when requested, which could adversely affect a fund's operations and performance.

Investors in MDLY's private funds make capital commitments to those funds that MDLY is entitled to call from those investors at any time during prescribed periods. MDLY depends on investors fulfilling and honoring their commitments when MDLY calls capital from them for those funds to consummate investments and otherwise pay their obligations when due. Any investor that did not fund a capital call would be subject to several possible penalties, including having a meaningful amount of its existing investment forfeited in that fund. However, the impact of the penalty is directly correlated to the amount of capital previously invested by the investor in the fund and if an investor has invested little or no capital, for instance early in the life of the fund, then the forfeiture penalty may not be as meaningful. Investors may also negotiate for lesser or reduced penalties at the outset of the fund, thereby limiting MDLY's ability to enforce the funding of a capital call. Third-party investors in private funds often use distributions from prior investments to meet future capital calls. In cases where valuations of existing investments fall and the pace of distributions slows, investors may be unable to make new commitments to third-party managed investment funds such as those advised by MDLY. A failure of investors to honor a significant amount of capital calls for any particular fund or funds could have a material adverse effect on the operation and performance of those funds.

MDLY's funds may be forced to dispose of investments at a disadvantageous time.

MDLY's funds may make investments that they do not advantageously dispose of prior to the date the applicable fund is dissolved, either by expiration of such fund's term or otherwise. Although MDLY generally expects that investments will be disposed of prior to dissolution or be suitable for in-kind distribution at dissolution, and the general partners of the funds have only a limited ability to extend the term of the fund with the consent of fund investors or the advisory board of the fund, as applicable, MDLY's funds may have to sell, distribute or otherwise dispose of investments at a disadvantageous time as a result of dissolution. This would result in a lower than expected return on the investments and, perhaps, on the fund itself.

Hedging strategies may adversely affect the returns on MDLY's funds' investments.

When managing MDLY's exposure to market risks, MDLY may (on MDLY's own behalf or on behalf of MDLY's funds) from time to time use forward contracts, options, swaps (including total return swaps), caps, collars, floors, foreign currency forward contracts, currency swap agreements, currency option contracts or other strategies. The success of any hedging or other derivative transactions generally will depend on MDLY's ability to correctly predict market or foreign exchange changes, the degree of correlation between price movements of a derivative instrument and the position being hedged, the creditworthiness of the counterparty and other factors. As a result, while MDLY may enter into a transaction to reduce MDLY's or a fund's exposure to market risks, the transaction may result in poorer overall investment performance than if it had not been executed. Such transactions may also limit the opportunity for gain if the value of a hedged position increases.

While such hedging arrangements may reduce certain risks, such arrangements themselves may entail certain other risks. These arrangements may require the posting of cash collateral at a time when MDLY or a fund has insufficient cash or illiquid assets such that the posting of the cash is either impossible or requires the sale of assets at prices that do not reflect their underlying value. Moreover, these hedging arrangements may generate significant transaction costs, including potential tax costs, that may reduce the returns generated by a fund. Finally, the CFTC has made several public statements that it may soon issue a proposal for certain foreign exchange products to be subject to mandatory clearing, which could increase the cost of entering into currency hedges.

MDLY's business depends in large part on MDLY's ability to raise capital from investors. If MDLY were unable to raise such capital, MDLY would be unable to collect management fees or deploy such capital into investments, which would materially and adversely affect MDLY's business, results of operations and financial condition.

MDLY's ability to raise capital from investors depends on a number of factors, including many that are outside MDLY's control. Investors may downsize their investment allocations to credit focused private funds or BDCs or to rebalance a disproportionate weighting of their overall investment portfolio among asset classes. Poor performance of MDLY's funds could also make it more difficult for MDLY to raise new capital. MDLY's investors and potential investors continually assess MDLY's funds' performance independently and relative to market benchmarks and MDLY's competitors, and MDLY's ability to raise capital for existing and future funds depends on MDLY's funds' performance. If economic and market conditions deteriorate, MDLY may be unable to raise sufficient amounts of capital to support the investment activities of future funds. If MDLY were unable to successfully raise capital, MDLY's business, results of operations and financial condition would be adversely affected.

MDLY depends on MDLY's senior management team, senior investment professionals and other key personnel, and MDLY's ability to retain them and attract additional qualified personnel is critical to MDLY's success and MDLY's growth prospects.

MDLY depends on the diligence, skill, judgment, business contacts and personal reputations of MDLY's senior management team, including Brook Taube and Seth Taube, MDLY's co-Chief Executive Officers, senior investment professionals and other key personnel. MDLY's future success will depend upon MDLY's ability to retain MDLY's senior professionals and other key personnel and MDLY's ability to recruit additional qualified personnel. These individuals possess substantial experience and expertise in investing, are responsible for locating and executing MDLY's funds' investments, have significant relationships with the institutions that are the source of many of MDLY's funds' investment opportunities and, in certain cases, have strong relationships with MDLY's investors. Therefore, if any of MDLY's senior professionals or other key personnel join competitors or form competing companies, it could result in the loss of significant investment opportunities and certain existing investors.

The departure for any reason of any of MDLY's senior professionals could have a material adverse effect on MDLY's ability to achieve MDLY's investment objectives, cause certain of MDLY's investors to withdraw capital they invest with MDLY or elect not to commit additional capital to MDLY's funds or otherwise have a material adverse effect on MDLY's business and MDLY's prospects. The departure of some or all of those individuals could also trigger certain "key man" provisions in the documentation governing certain of MDLY's funds, which would permit the investors in those funds to suspend or terminate such funds' investment periods or, in the case of certain funds, permit investors to withdraw their capital prior to expiration of the applicable lock-up date. MDLY does not carry any "key man" insurance that would provide MDLY with proceeds in the event of the death or disability of any of MDLY's senior professionals, and MDLY does not have a policy that prohibits MDLY's senior professionals from traveling together.

MDLY anticipates that it will be necessary for it to add investment professionals both to grow MDLY's business and to replace those who depart. However, the market for qualified investment professionals is extremely competitive and MDLY may not succeed in recruiting additional personnel or MDLY may fail to effectively replace current personnel who depart with qualified or effective successors. MDLY's efforts to retain and attract investment professionals may also result in significant additional expenses, which could adversely affect MDLY's profitability or result in an increase in the portion of MDLY's performance fees that MDLY grant to MDLY's investment professionals.

MDLY's failure to appropriately address conflicts of interest could damage MDLY's reputation and adversely affect MDLY's business.

As MDLY has expanded and as MDLY continues to expand the number and scope of MDLY's business, MDLY increasingly confronts potential conflicts of interest relating to MDLY's funds' investment activities. Certain of MDLY's funds may have overlapping investment objectives, including funds that have different fee structures, and potential conflicts may arise with respect to MDLY's decisions regarding how to allocate investment opportunities among those funds. For example, a decision to receive material non-public information about a company while pursuing an investment opportunity for a particular fund gives rise to a potential conflict of interest when it results in MDLY's having to restrict the ability of other funds to take any action.

In most cases, Medley is permitted to co-invest among MDLY's private funds, MDLY's SMAs, MDLY's public BDCs and other advisory clients pursuant to an exemptive order issued by the SEC. MDLY has adopted an order aggregation and trade allocation policy designed to ensure that all of MDLY's clients are treated fairly and to prevent this form of conflict from influencing the allocation of investment opportunities among clients. Allocations will generally be made pro rata principally based on each fund or advisory client's capital available for investment. It is Medley's policy to base its determinations as to the amounts of capital available for investment on such factors as: the amount of cash on hand, existing capital commitments and reserves, if any, the targeted leverage level, the targeted asset mix and diversification requirements and other investment policies and restrictions or otherwise imposed by applicable laws, rules, regulations or interpretations.

MDLY may also cause different funds to invest in a single investee company, for example, where the fund that made an initial investment no longer has capital available to invest. MDLY may also cause different funds that MDLY advises to purchase different classes of investments or securities in the same investee company. For example, certain of MDLY's funds hold minority equity interests, or have the right to acquire such equity interests, in some of MDLY's investee companies. As a result, MDLY may face conflicts of interests in connection with making business decisions for these investee companies to the extent that such decisions affect the debt and equity holders in these investee companies differently. In addition, MDLY may face conflicts of interests in connection with making investment or other decisions, including granting loan waivers or concessions with respect to these investee companies given that MDLY also manages private funds that may hold equity interests in these investee companies. In addition, conflicts of interest may exist in the valuation of MDLY's investments and regarding decisions about the allocation of specific investment opportunities among MDLY and MDLY's funds and the allocation of fees and costs among MDLY and MDLY's funds. Though MDLY believes it has developed appropriate policies and procedures to resolve these conflicts, MDLY's judgment on any particular allocation could be challenged. If MDLY fails to appropriately address any such conflicts, it could negatively impact MDLY's reputation and ability to raise additional funds and the willingness of counterparties to do business with MDLY or result in potential litigation against MDLY.

Potential conflicts of interest may arise between holders of MDLY Class A Common Stock and MDLY's funds' investors.

MDLY's subsidiaries that serve as the investment advisors to, or the general partners of, MDLY's funds may have fiduciary duties and/or contractual obligations to those funds and their investors. As a result, MDLY expects to regularly take actions with respect to the purchase or sale of investments in MDLY's funds, the structuring of investment transactions for the funds or otherwise in a manner consistent with such duties and obligations but that might at the same time adversely affect MDLY's near-term results of operations or cash flows. This may in turn have an adverse effect on the price of MDLY Class A Common Stock and/or on the interests of MDLY Class A Common Stockholders. Additionally, to the extent MDLY fails to appropriately deal with any such conflicts of interest, it could negatively impact MDLY's reputation and ability to raise additional funds.

Rapid growth of MDLY's business may be difficult to sustain and may place significant demands on MDLY's administrative, operational and financial resources.

MDLY's assets under management have grown significantly in the past and MDLY is pursuing further growth. MDLY's rapid growth has placed, and planned growth, if successful, will continue to place, significant demands on MDLY's legal, compliance, accounting and operational infrastructure, and has increased expenses associated with all of the foregoing. In addition, MDLY is required to continuously develop MDLY's systems and infrastructure in response to the increasing sophistication of the investment management market and legal, accounting, regulatory and tax developments. MDLY's future growth will depend in part on MDLY's ability to maintain an operating platform and management system sufficient to address MDLY's growth and will require MDLY to incur significant additional expenses and to commit additional senior management and operational resources. As a result, MDLY faces significant challenges:

- in maintaining adequate financial, regulatory (legal, tax and compliance) and business controls;
- in implementing new or updated information and financial systems and procedures; and
- in training, managing and appropriately sizing MDLY's work force and other components of MDLY's business on a timely and cost-effective basis.

MDLY may not be able to manage its expanding operations effectively or be able to continue to grow, and any failure to do so could adversely affect MDLY's ability to generate revenue and control its expenses.

MDLY may enter into new lines of business and expand into new investment strategies, geographic markets and business, each of which may result in additional risks and uncertainties in MDLY's businesses.

MDLY intends to grow its business by increasing assets under management in existing business and, if market conditions warrant, by expanding into complementary investment strategies, geographic markets and businesses. Accordingly, MDLY may pursue growth through acquisitions of other investment management companies, acquisitions of critical business partners or other strategic initiatives, which may include entering into new lines of business. Attempts to expand MDLY's business involve a number of special risks, including some or all of the following:

- the required investment of capital and other resources;
- the assumption of liabilities in any acquired business;
- the disruption of MDLY's ongoing business;
- entry into markets or lines of business in which MDLY may have limited or no experience;
- increasing demands on MDLY's operational and management systems and controls;
- compliance with additional regulatory requirements;
- potential increase in investor concentration; and
- the broadening of MDLY's geographic footprint, increasing the risks associated with conducting operations in certain foreign jurisdictions where MDLY currently has no presence.

Entry into certain lines of business may subject MDLY to new laws and regulations with which MDLY is not familiar, or from which MDLY is currently exempt, and may lead to increased litigation and regulatory risk. If a new business does not generate sufficient revenues or if MDLY is unable to efficiently manage MDLY's expanded operations, MDLY's results of operations will be adversely affected. MDLY's strategic initiatives may include joint ventures, in which case MDLY will be subject to additional risks and uncertainties in that MDLY may be dependent upon, and subject to liability, losses or reputational damage relating to systems, controls and personnel that are not under MDLY's control. Because MDLY has not yet identified these potential new investment strategies, geographic markets or lines of business, MDLY cannot identify for you all the risks MDLY may face and the potential adverse consequences on MDLY and your investment that may result from any attempted expansion.

Extensive regulation affects MDLY's activities, increases the cost of doing business and creates the potential for significant liabilities and penalties that could adversely affect MDLY's business and results of operations.

MDLY's business is subject to extensive regulation, including periodic examinations, by governmental agencies and self-regulatory organizations in the jurisdictions in which MDLY operates. The SEC oversees the activities of MDLY's subsidiaries that are registered investment advisers under the Advisers Act. In addition, MDLY regularly relies on exemptions from various requirements of the Securities Act, the Exchange Act, the Investment Company Act, the Commodity Exchange Act and the U.S. Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974. These exemptions are sometimes highly complex and may in certain circumstances depend on compliance by third parties who MDLY does not control. If for any reason these exemptions were to be revoked or challenged or otherwise become unavailable to MDLY, MDLY could be subject to regulatory action or third-party claims, which could have a material adverse effect on MDLY's business.

The SEC has indicated that investment advisers who receive transaction-based compensation for investment banking or acquisition activities relating to fund investee companies may be required to register as broker-dealers. Specifically, the SEC staff has noted that if a firm receives fees from a fund investee company in connection with the acquisition, disposition or recapitalization of such investee company, such activities could raise broker-dealer concerns under applicable regulations related to broker-dealers. If MDLY receives such transaction fees and the SEC takes the position that such activities render MDLY a “broker” under the applicable rules and regulations of the Exchange Act, MDLY could be subject to additional regulation. If receipt of transaction fees from an investee company is determined to require a broker-dealer license, receipt of such transaction fees in the past or in the future during any time when MDLY did not or does not have a broker-dealer license could subject MDLY to liability for fines, penalties, damages or other remedies.

Since 2010, certain states and other regulatory authorities have begun to require investment managers to register as lobbyists in connection with their solicitation of commitments from governmental entities, including state and municipal pension funds. MDLY has registered as such in a number of jurisdictions, including California and New York. Other states or municipalities may consider similar legislation or adopt regulations or procedures with similar effect. These registration requirements impose significant compliance obligations and restrictions on registered lobbyists and their employers, which may include annual registration fees, periodic disclosure reports and internal recordkeeping, and may also prohibit the payment of contingent fees.

Each of the regulatory bodies with jurisdiction over MDLY has regulatory powers dealing with many aspects of financial services, including the authority to grant, and in specific circumstances to cancel, permissions to carry on particular activities. A failure to comply with the obligations imposed by the Advisers Act, including recordkeeping, advertising and operating requirements, disclosure obligations and prohibitions on fraudulent activities, could result in investigations, sanctions and reputational damage. MDLY is involved regularly in trading activities that implicate a broad number of U.S. securities law regimes, including laws governing trading on inside information, market manipulation and a broad number of technical trading requirements that implicate fundamental market regulation policies. Violation of these laws could result in severe restrictions on MDLY’s activities and damage to MDLY’s reputation.

MDLY’s failure to comply with applicable laws or regulations could result in fines, censure, suspensions of personnel or other sanctions, including revocation of the registration of MDLY’s relevant subsidiaries as investment advisers or registered broker-dealers. The regulations to which MDLY’s business is subject are designed primarily to protect investors in MDLY’s funds and to ensure the integrity of the financial markets. They are not designed to protect MDLY Stockholders. Even if a sanction imposed against MDLY, one of MDLY’s subsidiaries or MDLY’s personnel by a regulator is for a small monetary amount, the adverse publicity related to the sanction could harm MDLY’s reputation, which in turn could have a material adverse effect on MDLY’s business in a number of ways, making it harder for MDLY to raise new funds and discouraging others from doing business with MDLY.

Failure to comply with “pay to play” regulations implemented by the SEC and certain states, and changes to the “pay to play” regulatory regimes, could adversely affect MDLY’s business.

In recent years, the SEC and several states have initiated investigations alleging that certain private equity firms and hedge funds or agents acting on their behalf have paid money to current or former government officials or their associates in exchange for improperly soliciting contracts with state pension funds. In June 2010, the SEC approved Rule 206(4)-5 under the Advisers Act regarding “pay to play” practices by investment advisers involving campaign contributions and other payments to government officials able to exert influence on potential government entity clients. Among other restrictions, the rule prohibits investment advisers from providing advisory services for compensation to a government entity for two years, subject to very limited exceptions, after the investment adviser, its senior executives or its personnel involved in soliciting investments from government entities make contributions to certain candidates and officials in a position to influence the hiring of an investment adviser by such government entity. Advisers are required to implement compliance policies designed, among other matters, to track contributions by certain of the adviser’s employees and engagements of third parties that solicit government entities and to keep certain records to enable the SEC to determine compliance with the rule. In addition, there have been similar rules on a state level regarding “pay to play” practices by investment advisers.

As a number of public pension plans are investors in MDLY’s funds, these rules could impose significant economic sanctions on MDLY’s business if MDLY or one of the other persons covered by the rules make any such contribution or payment, whether or not material or with an intent to secure an investment from a public pension plan. In addition, such investigations may require the attention of senior management and may result in fines or forfeitures of fees paid and an obligation to provide services without payment of fees if any of MDLY’s funds are deemed to have violated any regulations, thereby imposing additional expenses on MDLY. Any failure on MDLY’s part to comply with these rules could cause MDLY to lose compensation for MDLY’s advisory services or expose MDLY to significant penalties and reputational damage.

New or changed laws or regulations governing MDLY's funds' operations and changes in the interpretation thereof could adversely affect MDLY's business.

The laws and regulations governing the operations of MDLY's funds, as well as their interpretation, may change from time to time, and new laws and regulations may be enacted. Accordingly, any change in these laws or regulations, changes in their interpretation, or newly enacted laws or regulations and any failure by MDLY's funds to comply with these laws or regulations, could require changes to certain of MDLY's business practices, negatively impact MDLY's operations, assets under management or financial condition, impose additional costs on MDLY or otherwise adversely affect MDLY's business. See "Business of MDLY - Regulatory and Compliance Matters" for a discussion of MDLY's regulatory and compliance environment. The following includes the most significant regulatory risks facing MDLY's business:

- Changes in capital requirements may increase the cost of MDLY's funds' financing

If regulatory capital requirements - whether under the Dodd-Frank Act, Basel III, or other regulatory action - were to be imposed on MDLY's funds, they may be required to limit, or increase the cost of, financing they provide to others. Among other things, this could potentially require MDLY's funds to sell assets at an inopportune time or price, which could negatively impact MDLY's operations, assets under management or financial condition.

- The imposition of additional legal or regulatory requirements could make compliance more difficult and expensive, affect the manner in which MDLY conducts its business and adversely affect its profitability

In July 2010, President Obama signed into law the Dodd-Frank Act. The Dodd-Frank Act, among other things, imposes significant new regulations on nearly every aspect of the U.S. financial services industry, including new registration, recordkeeping and reporting requirements on private fund investment advisers. Importantly, while several key aspects of the Dodd-Frank Act have been defined through final rules, many aspects will be implemented by various regulatory bodies over the next several years. While MDLY already has several subsidiaries registered as investment advisers subject to SEC examinations, the imposition of any additional legal or regulatory requirements could make compliance more difficult and expensive, affect the manner in which MDLY conducts its business and adversely affect its profitability.

- The implementation of the Volcker Rule could have adverse implications on MDLY's ability to raise funds from certain entities

In December 2013, the Federal Reserve and other federal regulatory agencies adopted a final rule implementing a section of the Dodd-Frank Act that has become known as the "Volcker Rule." The Volcker Rule generally prohibits insured banks or thrifts, any bank holding company or savings and loan holding company, any non-U.S. bank with a U.S. branch, agency or commercial lending company and any subsidiaries and affiliates of such entities, regardless of geographic location, from investing in or sponsoring "covered funds," which include private equity funds or hedge funds and certain other proprietary activities. The effects of the Volcker Rule are uncertain but it is in any event likely to curtail various banking activities that in turn could result in uncertainties in the financial markets as well as MDLY's business. Although MDLY does not currently anticipate that the Volcker Rule will adversely affect MDLY's fundraising to any significant extent, there is uncertainty regarding the implementation of the Volcker Rule and its practical implications, and there could be adverse implications on MDLY's ability to raise funds from the types of entities mentioned above as a result of this prohibition.

- Increased regulation on banks' leveraged lending activities could negatively affect the terms and availability of credit to MDLY's funds and their investee companies

In March 2013, the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency, the Department of the Treasury, the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System and the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation published revised guidance regarding expectations for banks' leveraged lending activities. This guidance, in addition to rules implementing the credit risk retention requirement of Section 941 of the Dodd-Frank Act risk retention rules circulated in August 2013, could further restrict credit availability, as well as potentially restrict certain of MDLY's investing activities that rely on banks' lending activities. This could negatively affect the terms and availability of credit to MDLY's funds and their investee companies.

- New restrictions on compensation could limit MDLY's ability to recruit and retain investment professionals

The Dodd-Frank Act authorizes federal regulatory agencies to review and, in certain cases, prohibit compensation arrangements at financial institutions that give employees incentives to engage in conduct deemed to encourage inappropriate risk-taking by covered financial institutions. Such restrictions could limit MDLY's ability to recruit and retain investment professionals and senior management executives.

- Regulatory uncertainty could negatively impact MDLY's ability to efficiently project, plan and operate MDLY's business impacting profitability

In early February 2017, the Trump administration issued an executive order calling for a review of laws and regulations affecting the U.S. financial industry in order to determine their consistency with a set of core principles identified in the executive order. Several bills are pending in Congress that, if enacted, would amend the Dodd-Frank Act, including the Financial CHOICE Act (the "CHOICE Act"), which was approved by the House of Representatives and the Economic Growth, Regulatory Relief and Consumer Protection Act which is awaiting consideration in the Senate. The administration has expressed support for these proposals and encouraged the House and Senate to work together to present legislation to the President as quickly as possible. The House and Senate legislation, while different, could change the process and criteria for designating systemically important financial institutions, modify the Volcker Rule and make reforms to the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau, among other amendments to the Dodd-Frank Act. The CHOICE Act would also significantly enhance the SEC's enforcement capabilities and increase the maximum civil penalties and criminal sanctions under federal securities laws, including under the Investment Company Act and the Advisers Act. Both the House and Senate proposals are still subject to amendment and possible reconciliation into a single proposal, the scope of which is not possible to determine at this time nor is it possible to determine if and when such a proposal may be presented to the President for enactment.

It is difficult to determine the full extent of the impact on MDLY of the Financial Choice Act, the Dodd-Frank Act or any other new laws, regulations or initiatives that may be proposed or whether any of the proposals will become law. In addition, as a result of proposed legislation, shifting areas of focus of regulatory enforcement bodies or otherwise, regulatory compliance practices may shift such that formerly accepted industry practices become disfavored or less common. Any changes or other developments in the regulatory framework applicable to MDLY's businesses, including the changes described above and changes to formerly accepted industry practices, may impose additional costs on MDLY, require the attention of MDLY's senior management or result in limitations on the manner in which MDLY conduct its businesses. Moreover, as calls for additional regulation have increased, there may be a related increase in regulatory investigations of the trading and other investment activities of alternative asset management funds, including MDLY's funds. In addition, MDLY may be adversely affected by changes in the interpretation or enforcement of existing laws and rules by these governmental authorities and self-regulatory organizations. Compliance with any new laws or regulations could make compliance more difficult and expensive, affect the manner in which MDLY conducts its businesses and adversely affect its profitability.

Present and future BDCs for which MDLY serves as investment adviser are subject to regulatory complexities that limit the way in which they do business and may subject them to a higher level of regulatory scrutiny.

MCC and Sierra, and other BDCs for which MDLY may serve as investment adviser in the future, operate under a complex regulatory environment. Such BDCs require the application of complex tax and securities regulations and may entail a higher level of regulatory scrutiny. In addition, regulations affecting BDCs generally affect their ability to take certain actions. For example, each of MCC and Sierra has elected to be treated as a RIC for U.S. federal income tax purposes. To maintain their status as a RIC, such vehicles must meet, among other things, certain source of income, asset diversification and annual distribution requirements. If any of MDLY's BDCs fails to qualify for RIC tax treatment for any reason and remains or becomes subject to corporate-level U.S. federal income tax, the resulting corporate taxes could, among other things, substantially reduce such BDC's net assets.

In addition, MCC and Sierra are subject to complex rules under the Investment Company Act, including rules that restrict certain of MDLY's funds from engaging in transactions with MCC and Sierra. Under the regulatory and business environment in which they operate, MCC and Sierra must periodically access the capital markets to raise cash to fund new investments in excess of their repayments to grow. This results from MCC and Sierra each being required to generally distribute to their respective stockholders at least 90% of its investment company taxable income to maintain its RIC tax treatment, combined with regulations under the Investment Company Act that, subject to certain exceptions, generally prohibit MCC and Sierra from issuing and selling their common stock at a price below NAV per share and from incurring indebtedness (including for this purpose, preferred stock), if their asset coverage, as calculated pursuant to the Investment Company Act, equals less than 200% (or 150% if, pursuant to the Investment Company Act, certain requirements are met) after such incurrence. If MDLY's BDCs are found to be in violation of the Investment Company Act, they could lose their status as BDCs. If either of MDLY's BDCs fails to continuously qualify as a BDC, such BDC might be subject to regulation as a registered closed-end investment company under the Investment Company Act, which would significantly decrease its operating flexibility. In addition, failure to comply with the requirements imposed on BDCs by the Investment Company Act could cause the SEC to bring an enforcement action against such BDC, which could have a material adverse effect on MDLY.

MDLY is subject to risks in using custodians, counterparties, administrators and other agents.

Some of MDLY's funds depend on the services of custodians, counterparties, administrators, prime brokers and other agents to carry out certain financing, securities and derivatives transactions. The terms of these contracts are often customized and complex, and many of these arrangements occur in markets or relate to products that are not subject to regulatory oversight, although the Dodd-Frank Act provides for new regulation of the derivatives market. In particular, some of MDLY's funds utilize arrangements with a relatively limited number of counterparties, which has the effect of concentrating the transaction volume (and related counterparty default risk) of such funds with these counterparties.

MDLY's funds are subject to the risk that the counterparty to one or more of these contracts defaults, either voluntarily or involuntarily, on its performance under the contract. Any such default may occur suddenly and without notice to MDLY. Moreover, if a counterparty defaults, MDLY may be unable to take action to cover MDLY's exposure, either because MDLY lacks contractual recourse or because market conditions make it difficult to take effective action. This inability could occur in times of market stress, which is when defaults are most likely to occur.

In addition, MDLY's risk-management process may not accurately anticipate the impact of market stress or counterparty financial condition, and as a result, MDLY may not have taken sufficient action to reduce MDLY's risks effectively. Default risk may arise from events or circumstances that are difficult to detect, foresee or evaluate. In addition, concerns about, or a default by, one large participant could lead to significant liquidity problems for other participants, which may in turn expose MDLY to significant losses.

Although MDLY has risk-management processes to ensure that MDLY is not exposed to a single counterparty for significant periods of time, given the large number and size of MDLY's funds, MDLY often has large positions with a single counterparty. For example, some of MDLY's funds have credit lines. If the lender under one or more of those credit lines were to become insolvent, MDLY may have difficulty replacing the credit line and one or more of MDLY's funds may face liquidity problems.

In the event of a counterparty default, particularly a default by a major investment bank or a default by a counterparty to a significant number of MDLY's contracts, one or more of MDLY's funds may have outstanding trades that they cannot settle or are delayed in settling. As a result, these funds could incur material losses and the resulting market impact of a major counterparty default could harm MDLY's business, results of operation and financial condition.

In the event of the insolvency of a prime broker, custodian, counterparty or any other party that is holding assets of MDLY's funds as collateral, MDLY's funds might not be able to recover equivalent assets in full as they will rank among the prime broker's, custodian's or counterparty's unsecured creditors in relation to the assets held as collateral. In addition, MDLY's funds' cash held with a prime broker, custodian or counterparty generally will not be segregated from the prime broker's, custodian's or counterparty's own cash, and MDLY's funds may therefore rank as unsecured creditors in relation thereto. If MDLY's derivatives transactions are cleared through a derivatives clearing organization, the CFTC has issued final rules regulating the segregation and protection of collateral posted by customers of cleared and uncleared swaps. The CFTC is also working to provide new guidance regarding prime broker arrangements and intermediation generally with regard to trading on swap execution facilities.

The counterparty risks that MDLY faces have increased in complexity and magnitude as a result of disruption in the financial markets in recent years. For example, the consolidation and elimination of counterparties has increased MDLY's concentration of counterparty risk and decreased the universe of potential counterparties. MDLY's funds are generally not restricted from dealing with any particular counterparty or from concentrating any or all of their transactions with a single counterparty. In addition, counterparties have generally reacted to recent market volatility by tightening their underwriting standards and increasing their margin requirements for all categories of financing, which has the result of decreasing the overall amount of leverage available and increasing the costs of borrowing.

A portion of MDLY's revenue and cash flow is variable, which may impact MDLY's ability to achieve steady earnings growth on a quarterly basis and may cause the price of MDLY Class A Common Stock to decline.

MDLY believes that base management fees are consistent and predictable. For all periods presented in MDLY's financial statements, over 40% of total revenues was derived from base management fees. Due to MDLY's investment strategy and the nature of MDLY's fees, a portion of MDLY's revenue and cash flow is variable, due primarily to the fact that the performance fees from MDLY's long-dated private funds and SMAs can vary from quarter to quarter and year to year. For the nine months ended September 30, 2018 and 2017, total revenues were $43.9 million and $47.0 million, respectively. There were no reversals of performance fees for the nine months ended September 30, 2018 and, during the nine months ended September 30, 2017, there was a reversal of performance fees of $2.7 million. Additionally, MDLY may also experience fluctuations in MDLY's results from quarter to quarter and year to year due to a number of other factors, including changes in the values of MDLY's funds' investments, changes in MDLY's operating expenses, the degree to which MDLY encounter competition and general economic and market conditions. Such variability may lead to volatility in the trading price of MDLY Class A Common Stock and cause MDLY's results for a particular period not to be indicative of MDLY's performance in a future period.

MDLY may be subject to litigation risks and may face liabilities and damage to MDLY's professional reputation as a result.

In recent years, the volume of claims and amount of damages claimed in litigation and regulatory proceedings against investment managers have been increasing. MDLY makes investment decisions on behalf of investors in MDLY's funds that could result in substantial losses. This may subject MDLY to the risk of legal liabilities or actions alleging negligent misconduct, breach of fiduciary duty or breach of contract. Further, MDLY may be subject to third-party litigation arising from allegations that MDLY improperly exercised control or influence over portfolio investments. In addition, MDLY and MDLY's affiliates that are the investment managers and general partners of MDLY's funds, MDLY's funds themselves and those of MDLY's employees who are MDLY's, its subsidiaries' or the funds' officers and directors are each exposed to the risks of litigation specific to the funds' investment activities and investee companies and, in the case where MDLY's funds own controlling interests in public companies, to the risk of shareholder litigation by the public companies' other shareholders. Moreover, MDLY is exposed to risks of litigation or investigation by investors or regulators relating to MDLY's having engaged, or MDLY's funds having engaged, in transactions that presented conflicts of interest that were not properly addressed.

Legal liability could have a material adverse effect on MDLY's business, financial condition or results of operations or cause reputational harm to MDLY, which could harm MDLY's business. MDLY depends to a large extent on MDLY's business relationships and MDLY's reputation for integrity and high-caliber professional services to attract and retain investors and to pursue investment opportunities for MDLY's funds. As a result, allegations of improper conduct by private litigants or regulators, whether the ultimate outcome is favorable or unfavorable to MDLY, as well as negative publicity and press speculation about MDLY, its investment activities or the investment industry in general, whether or not valid, may harm MDLY's reputation, which may be damaging to MDLY's business.

Employee misconduct could harm MDLY by impairing its ability to attract and retain investors and subjecting MDLY to significant legal liability, regulatory scrutiny and reputational harm. Fraud and other deceptive practices or other misconduct at MDLY's investee companies could similarly subject MDLY to liability and reputational damage and also harm MDLY's business.

MDLY's ability to attract and retain investors and to pursue investment opportunities for MDLY's funds depends heavily upon the reputation of MDLY's professionals, especially MDLY's senior professionals. MDLY is subject to a number of obligations and standards arising from MDLY's investment management business and MDLY's authority over the assets managed by MDLY's investment management business. The violation of these obligations and standards by any of MDLY's employees could adversely affect investors in MDLY's funds and MDLY. MDLY's business often requires that MDLY deal with confidential matters of great significance to companies in which MDLY's funds may invest. If MDLY's employees were to use or disclose confidential information improperly, MDLY could suffer serious harm to MDLY's reputation, financial position and current and future business relationships. It is not always possible to detect or deter employee misconduct, and the extensive precautions MDLY takes to detect and prevent this activity may not be effective in all cases. If one or more of MDLY's employees were to engage in misconduct or were to be accused of such misconduct, MDLY's business and MDLY's reputation could be adversely affected and a loss of investor confidence could result, which would adversely impact MDLY's ability to raise future funds.

In addition, MDLY could be adversely affected as a result of actual or alleged misconduct by personnel of investee companies in which MDLY's funds invest. For example, failures by personnel at MDLY's investee companies to comply with anti-bribery, trade sanctions or other legal and regulatory requirements could expose MDLY to litigation or regulatory action and otherwise adversely affect MDLY's business and reputation. Such misconduct could undermine MDLY's due diligence efforts with respect to such companies and could negatively affect the valuation of a fund's investments.

MDLY's substantial indebtedness could adversely affect its financial condition, its ability to pay its debts or raise additional capital to fund its operations, MDLY's ability to operate its business and its ability to react to changes in the economy or its industry and could divert its cash flow from operations for debt payments.

MDLY has a significant amount of indebtedness. As of September 30, 2018, MDLY's total indebtedness, excluding unamortized discount, premium, and issuance costs, was approximately $132.6 million. MDLY's substantial debt obligations could have important consequences, including:

- requiring a substantial portion of cash flow from operations to be dedicated to the payment of principal and interest on MDLY's indebtedness, thereby reducing MDLY's ability to use MDLY's cash flow to fund MDLY's operations and pursue future business opportunities;
- exposing MDLY to increased interest expense, as MDLY's degree of leverage may cause the interest rates of any future indebtedness (whether fixed or floating rate interest) to be higher than they would be otherwise;
- exposing MDLY to the risk of increased interest rates because certain of MDLY's indebtedness is at variable rates of interest;
- making it more difficult for MDLY to satisfy its obligations with respect to its indebtedness, and any failure to comply with the obligations of any of MDLY's debt instruments, including restrictive covenants, could result in an event of default that accelerates MDLY's obligation to repay indebtedness;
- increasing MDLY's vulnerability to adverse economic, industry or competitive developments;
- restricting MDLY from making strategic acquisitions or causing MDLY to make non-strategic divestitures;
- limiting MDLY's ability to obtain additional financing for working capital, product development, satisfaction of debt service requirements, acquisitions and general corporate or other purposes; and
- limiting MDLY's flexibility in planning for, or reacting to, changes in MDLY's business or market conditions and placing MDLY at a competitive disadvantage compared to MDLY's competitors who may be better positioned to take advantage of opportunities that MDLY's leverage prevents MDLY from exploiting.

The MDLY Revolving Credit Facility imposes significant operating and financial restrictions on MDLY and MDLY's subsidiaries, which may prevent MDLY from capitalizing on business opportunities.

The credit agreement that governs MDLY's $15.0 million senior secured revolving credit facility with City National Bank entered into on August 19, 2014 (as amended, the "MDLY Revolving Credit Facility") imposes significant operating and financial restrictions on MDLY. These restrictions will limit MDLY's ability and/or the ability of MDLY's subsidiaries to, among other things:

- incur additional indebtedness, make guarantees and enter into hedging arrangements;
- create liens on assets;
- enter into sale and leaseback transactions;
- engage in mergers or consolidations;
- sell assets;
- make fundamental changes;
- pay dividends and distributions or repurchase MDLY's capital stock;
- make investments, loans and advances, including acquisitions;
- engage in certain transactions with affiliates;
- make changes in the nature of MDLY's business; and
- make prepayments of junior debt.

In addition, the credit agreement governing the MDLY Revolving Credit Facility requires MDLY to maintain, with respect to each four quarter period commencing with the four quarter period ending September 30, 2017, a ratio of net debt to Core EBITDA not greater than 5.0 to 1.0, a ratio of total debt to Core EBITDA not greater than 7.0 to 1.0 and a minimum Core EBITDA of not less than $15.0 million. The ratio of net debt to Core EBITDA, total debt to Core EBITDA and minimum Core EBITDA in respect of the Senior Secured Credit Facilities is calculated using MDLY's standalone financial results and includes the adjustments made to calculate Core EBITDA. See "Management's Discussion and Analysis of Financial Condition and Results of Operations of MDLY — Liquidity and Capital Resources — Debt Instruments."

As a result of these restrictions, MDLY will be limited as to how it conducts its business and MDLY may be unable to raise additional debt or equity financing to compete effectively or to take advantage of new business opportunities. The terms of any future indebtedness MDLY may incur could include more restrictive covenants. MDLY cannot assure you that it will be able to maintain compliance with these covenants in the future and, if MDLY fails to do so, that it will be able to obtain waivers from the lenders and/or amend the covenants.

MDLY's failure to comply with the restrictive covenants described above as well as other terms of MDLY's other indebtedness and/or the terms of any future indebtedness from time to time could result in an event of default, which, if not cured or waived, could result in MDLY's being required to repay these borrowings before their due date. If MDLY is forced to refinance these borrowings on less favorable terms or is unable to refinance these borrowings, MDLY's results of operations and financial condition could be adversely affected.

Servicing MDLY's indebtedness will require a significant amount of cash. MDLY's ability to generate sufficient cash depends on many factors, some of which are not within MDLY's control.

MDLY's ability to make payments on MDLY's indebtedness and to fund planned capital expenditures will depend on MDLY's ability to generate cash in the future. To a certain extent, this is subject to general economic, financial, competitive, legislative, regulatory and other factors that are beyond MDLY's control. If MDLY is unable to generate sufficient cash flow to service MDLY's debt and meet MDLY's other commitments, MDLY may need to restructure or refinance all or a portion of MDLY's debt, sell material assets or operations or raise additional debt or equity capital. MDLY may not be able to effect any of these actions on a timely basis, on commercially reasonable terms or at all, and these actions may not be sufficient to meet MDLY's capital requirements. In addition, the terms of MDLY's existing or future debt arrangements may restrict MDLY from effecting any of these alternatives.

Despite MDLY's current level of indebtedness, MDLY may be able to incur substantially more debt and enter into other transactions, which could further exacerbate the risks to MDLY's financial condition described above.

MDLY may be able to incur significant additional indebtedness in the future. Although the credit agreement that governs the MDLY Revolving Credit Facility contains restrictions on the incurrence of additional indebtedness and entering into certain types of other transactions, these restrictions are subject to a number of qualifications and exceptions. Additional indebtedness incurred in compliance with these restrictions could be substantial. These restrictions also do not prevent MDLY from incurring obligations, such as trade payables, that do not constitute indebtedness as defined under MDLY's debt instruments. To the extent new debt is added to MDLY's current debt levels, the substantial leverage risks described in the preceding three risk factors would increase.

Operational risks may disrupt MDLY's business, result in losses or limit MDLY's growth.

MDLY's business relies heavily on financial, accounting and other information systems and technology. MDLY faces various security threats, including cyber security attacks to MDLY's information technology infrastructure and attempts to gain access to MDLY's proprietary information, destroy data or disable, degrade or sabotage MDLY's systems. These security threats could originate from a wide variety of sources, including unknown third parties outside of MDLY. Although MDLY has not yet been subject to cyber-attacks or other cyber incidents and MDLY utilizes various procedures and controls to monitor and mitigate these threats, there can be no assurance that these procedures and controls will be sufficient to prevent disruptions to MDLY's systems. If any of these systems do not operate properly or are disabled for any reason or if there is any unauthorized disclosure of data, whether as a result of tampering, a breach of MDLY's network security systems, a cyber-incident or attack or otherwise, MDLY could suffer financial loss, a disruption of MDLY's business, liability to MDLY's funds, regulatory intervention or reputational damage.

In addition, MDLY's information systems and technology may not continue to be able to accommodate MDLY's growth, and the cost of maintaining the systems may increase from its current level. Such a failure to accommodate growth, or an increase in costs related to the information systems, could have a material adverse effect on MDLY's business and results of operations.

Furthermore, MDLY depends on its office in New York, where a substantial portion of MDLY's personnel are located, for the continued operation of MDLY's business. An earthquake or other disaster or a disruption in the infrastructure that supports MDLY's business, including a disruption involving electronic communications or other services used by MDLY or third parties with whom MDLY conducts business, or directly affecting MDLY's headquarters, could have a material adverse effect on MDLY's ability to continue to operate MDLY's business without interruption. Although MDLY has disaster recovery programs in place, these may not be sufficient to mitigate the harm that may result from such a disaster or disruption. In addition, insurance and other safeguards might only partially reimburse MDLY for MDLY's losses, if at all.

Finally, MDLY relies on third-party service providers for certain aspects of MDLY's business, including for certain information systems, technology and administration of MDLY's funds and compliance matters. Any interruption or deterioration in the performance of these third parties or failures of their information systems and technology could impair the quality of MDLY's funds' operations and could impact MDLY's reputation, adversely affect MDLY's business and limit MDLY's ability to grow.

Risks Relating to MDLY's Operating Structure

MDLY's only material asset is its interest in Medley LLC, and it is accordingly dependent upon distributions from Medley LLC to pay taxes, make payments under the Tax Receivable Agreement or pay dividends.

MDLY is a holding company and has no material assets other than its ownership of Medley LLC Units. MDLY has no independent means of generating revenue. MDLY intends to cause Medley LLC to make distributions to the Medley LLC Unitholders in an amount sufficient to cover all applicable taxes at assumed tax rates, payments under the Tax Receivable Agreement and dividends, if any, declared by it. Deterioration in the financial condition, earnings or cash flow of Medley LLC and its subsidiaries for any reason could limit or impair their ability to pay such distributions. Additionally, to the extent that MDLY needs funds, and Medley LLC is restricted from making such distributions under applicable law or regulation or under the terms of MDLY's financing arrangements, or is otherwise unable to provide such funds, it could materially adversely affect MDLY's liquidity and financial condition.

Payments of dividends, if any, is at the discretion of the MDLY Board after taking into account various factors, including MDLY's business, operating results and financial condition, current and anticipated cash needs, plans for expansion and any legal or contractual limitations on MDLY's ability to pay dividends. Any financing arrangement that MDLY enters into in the future may include restrictive covenants that limit MDLY's ability to pay dividends. In addition, Medley LLC is generally prohibited under Delaware law from making a distribution to a member to the extent that, at the time of the distribution, after giving effect to the distribution, liabilities of Medley LLC (with certain exceptions) exceed the fair value of its assets. Subsidiaries of Medley LLC are generally subject to similar legal limitations on their ability to make distributions to Medley LLC.

If the Mergers are consummated, the Tax Receivable Agreement will be terminated. For more information, see "Description of the MDLY Merger Agreement – Other Agreements."

MDLY is controlled by MDLY's pre-IPO owners, whose interests may differ from those of MDLY's public stockholders.

Medley Group LLC, an entity controlled by MDLY's pre-IPO owners, holds approximately 97.8% of the combined voting power of MDLY Class A Common Stock and MDLY Class B Common Stock. Accordingly, MDLY's pre-IPO owners have the ability to elect all of the members of the MDLY Board, and thereby to control MDLY's management and affairs. In addition, they are able to determine the outcome of all matters requiring stockholder approval, including the MDLY Merger and other mergers and material transactions, and are able to cause or prevent a change in the composition of the MDLY Board or a change in control of MDLY that could deprive MDLY Stockholders of an opportunity to receive a premium for their MDLY Class A Common Stock as part of a sale of MDLY and might ultimately affect the market price of MDLY Class A Common Stock. MDLY's pre-IPO owners comprise all of the non-managing members of Medley LLC. However, Medley LLC may in the future admit additional non-managing members that would not constitute pre-IPO owners. Because Medley Group LLC, as the holder of MDLY Class B Common Stock, has a number of votes equal to 10 times the number of Medley LLC Units held by all non-managing members of Medley LLC for so long as MDLY's pre-IPO owners and then-current Medley personnel hold at least 10% of the aggregate number of shares of MDLY Class A Common Stock and Medley LLC Units (excluding the Medley LLC Units held by MDLY).

In addition, MDLY's pre-IPO owners own 81.7% of the Medley LLC Units. Because they hold their ownership interest in MDLY's business directly in Medley LLC, rather than through MDLY, these pre-IPO owners may have conflicting interests with holders of shares of MDLY Class A Common Stock. For example, if Medley LLC makes distributions to MDLY, the non-managing members of Medley LLC will also be entitled to receive such distributions pro rata in accordance with the percentages of their respective limited liability company interests in Medley LLC and their preferences as to the timing and amount of any such distributions may differ from those of holders of MDLY Class A Common Stock. MDLY's pre-IPO owners may also have different tax positions from MDLY which could influence their decisions regarding whether and when to dispose of assets, especially in light of the existence of the Tax Receivable Agreement entered into in connection with MDLY's IPO, whether and when to incur new or refinance existing indebtedness, and whether and when MDLY should terminate the Tax Receivable Agreement and accelerate its obligations thereunder. In addition, the structuring of future transactions may take into consideration these pre-IPO owners' tax or other considerations even where no similar benefit would accrue to MDLY.

MDLY will be required to pay exchanging Medley LLC Unitholders for most of the benefits relating to any additional tax depreciation or amortization deductions that MDLY may claim as a result of the tax basis step-up MDLY receives in connection with sales or exchanges of Medley LLC Units and related transactions.

The Medley LLC Unitholders (other than MDLY) may, subject to certain conditions and transfer restrictions applicable to such holders as set forth in the operating agreement of Medley LLC, exchange their Medley LLC Units for MDLY Class A Common Stock on a one-for-one basis. The exchanges are expected to result in increases in the tax basis of the tangible and intangible assets of Medley LLC. These increases in tax basis may increase (for tax purposes) depreciation and amortization deductions and therefore reduce the amount of tax that MDLY would otherwise be required to pay in the future, although the IRS may challenge all or part of that tax basis increase, and a court could sustain such a challenge.

MDLY has entered into a Tax Receivable Agreement with the Medley LLC Unitholders that provides for the payment by MDLY to exchanging Medley LLC Unitholders of 85% of the benefits, if any, that MDLY is deemed to realize as a result of these increases in tax basis and of certain other tax benefits related to entering into the Tax Receivable Agreement, including tax benefits attributable to payments under the Tax Receivable Agreement. This payment obligation is an obligation of MDLY and not of Medley LLC. While the actual increase in tax basis, as well as the amount and timing of any payments under the Tax Receivable Agreement, will vary depending upon a number of factors, including the timing of exchanges, the price of shares of MDLY Class A Common Stock at the time of the exchange, the extent to which such exchanges are taxable and the amount and timing of MDLY's income, MDLY expects that as a result of the size of the transfers and increases in the tax basis of the tangible and intangible assets of Medley LLC, the payments that MDLY may make under the Tax Receivable Agreement will be substantial. The payments under the Tax Receivable Agreement are not conditioned upon continued ownership of MDLY by the Medley LLC Unitholders.

If the Mergers are consummated, Medley LLC Unitholders will exchange their Medley LLC Units for MDLY Class A Common Stock on a one-for-one basis, and the Tax Receivable Agreement will be terminated. For more information, see "Description of the MDLY Merger Agreement – Other Agreements."

In certain cases, payments under the Tax Receivable Agreement may be accelerated and/or significantly exceed the actual benefits MDLY realizes in respect of the tax attributes subject to the Tax Receivable Agreement.

The Tax Receivable Agreement provides that upon certain changes of control, or if, at any time, MDLY elects an early termination of the Tax Receivable Agreement, MDLY's obligations under the Tax Receivable Agreement (with respect to all Medley LLC Units whether or not previously exchanged) would be calculated by reference to the value of all future payments that the Medley LLC Unitholders would have been entitled to receive under the Tax Receivable Agreement using certain valuation assumptions, including that MDLY will have sufficient taxable income to fully utilize the deductions arising from the increased tax deductions and tax basis and other benefits related to entering into the Tax Receivable Agreement and, in the case of an early termination election, that any Medley LLC Units that have not been exchanged are deemed exchanged for the market value of the shares of MDLY Class A Common Stock at the time of termination. In addition, the Medley LLC Unitholders will not reimburse MDLY for any payments previously made under the Tax Receivable Agreement if such tax basis increase is successfully challenged by the IRS. MDLY's ability to achieve benefits from any tax basis increase, and the payments to be made under the Tax Receivable Agreement, will depend upon a number of factors, including the timing and amount of MDLY's future income. As a result, even in the absence of a change of control or an election to terminate the Tax Receivable Agreement, payments under the Tax Receivable Agreement could be in excess of MDLY's actual cash tax savings.

Accordingly, it is possible that the actual cash tax savings realized by MDLY may be significantly less than the corresponding Tax Receivable Agreement payments. There may be a material negative effect on MDLY's liquidity if the payments under the Tax Receivable Agreement exceed the actual cash tax savings that MDLY realizes in respect of the tax attributes subject to the Tax Receivable Agreement and/or distributions to MDLY by Medley LLC are not sufficient to permit MDLY to make payments under the Tax Receivable Agreement after it has paid taxes and other expenses.

Based upon the $5.25 closing price of MDLY Class A Common Stock on September 30, 2018 and interest rate of 3.92%, MDLY estimates that, if MDLY were to have exercised its termination right on September 30, 2018, the aggregate amount of these termination payments would have been approximately $73.3 million. The foregoing number is merely an estimate and the actual payments could differ materially. MDLY may need to incur additional indebtedness to finance payments under the Tax Receivable Agreement to the extent MDLY's cash resources are insufficient to meet MDLY's obligations under the Tax Receivable Agreement as a result of timing discrepancies or otherwise.

If the Mergers are consummated, the Tax Receivable Agreement will be terminated. For more information, see "Description of the MDLY Merger Agreement – Other Agreements."

Anti-takeover provisions in MDLY's organizational documents and Delaware law might discourage or delay acquisition attempts for MDLY that you might consider favorable.

The MDLY Certificate and the MDLY Bylaws contain provisions that may make the merger or acquisition of MDLY more difficult without the approval of the MDLY Board. Among other things, these provisions:

- authorize the issuance of undesignated preferred stock, the terms of which may be established and the shares of which may be issued without stockholder approval, and which may include super voting, special approval, dividend, or other rights or preferences superior to the rights of the holders of MDLY Class A Common Stock;
- prohibit holders of MDLY Class A Common Stock from acting by written consent unless such action is recommended by all directors then in office, but permit holders of MDLY Class B Common Stock to act by written consent without requiring any such recommendation;
- provide that the board of directors is expressly authorized to make, alter, or repeal the MDLY Bylaws and that MDLY Stockholders may only amend the MDLY Bylaws with the approval of 80% or more of all of the voting power of outstanding shares of MDLY's capital stock entitled to vote; and
- establish advance notice requirements for nominations for elections to MDLY's board or for proposing matters that can be acted upon by stockholders at stockholder meetings.

Further, as a Delaware corporation, MDLY is also subject to provisions of Delaware law, which may impair a takeover attempt that MDLY Stockholders may find beneficial. These anti-takeover provisions and other provisions under Delaware law could discourage, delay or prevent a transaction involving a change in control of MDLY, including actions that MDLY Stockholders may deem advantageous, or negatively affect the trading price of MDLY Class A Common Stock. These provisions could also discourage proxy contests and make it more difficult for you and other stockholders to elect directors of your choosing and to cause MDLY to take other corporate actions you desire.

Risks Relating to MDLY Class A Common Stock

Unless the Mergers are consummated, the market price of MDLY Class A Common Stock may decline due to the large number of shares of MDLY Class A Common Stock eligible for exchange and future sale.

The market price of shares of MDLY Class A Common Stock could decline as a result of sales of a large number of shares of MDLY Class A Common Stock in the market or the perception that such sales could occur. These sales, or the possibility that these sales may occur, also might make it more difficult for MDLY to sell shares of MDLY Class A Common Stock in the future at a time and at a price that MDLY deem appropriate.

In addition, MDLY and MDLY's pre-IPO owners have entered into the Exchange Agreement under which they (or certain permitted transferees thereof) have the right (subject to the terms of the Exchange Agreement), to exchange their Medley LLC Units for shares of MDLY Class A Common Stock on a one-for-one basis, subject to customary conversion rate adjustments. Subject to the terms of the Exchange Agreement, an aggregate of 24,839,302 Medley LLC Units may be exchanged for shares of MDLY Class A Common Stock and, subject to the transfer restrictions set forth in the Limited Liability Company Agreement of Medley LLC, sold. The market price of shares of MDLY Class A Common Stock could decline as a result of the exchange or the perception that an exchange could occur. These exchanges, or the possibility that these exchanges may occur, also might make it more difficult for holders of MDLY Class A Common Stock to sell such stock in the future at a time and at a price that they deem appropriate.

If the Mergers are consummated, Medley LLC Unitholders will exchange their Medley LLC Units for MDLY Class A Common Stock on a one-for-one basis and thereafter converted into the right to receive the MDLY Merger Consideration and the Exchange Agreement will be terminated. For more information, see "Description of the MDLY Merger Agreement — Other Agreements."

The disparity in the voting rights among the classes of MDLY's capital stock may have a potential adverse effect on the price of MDLY Class A Common Stock.

Each share of MDLY Class A Common Stock entitles its holder to one vote on all matters to be voted on by stockholders generally. Medley Group LLC, as the holder of MDLY Class B Common Stock, has a number of votes equal to 10 times the number of Medley LLC Units held by all non-managing members of Medley LLC for so long as MDLY's pre-IPO owners and then-current Medley personnel hold at least 10% of the aggregate number of shares of MDLY Class A Common Stock and Medley LLC Units (excluding the Medley LLC Units held by MDLY). The difference in voting rights could adversely affect the value of MDLY Class A Common Stock by, for example, delaying or deferring a change of control or if investors view, or any potential future purchaser of MDLY views, the superior voting rights of the MDLY Class B Common Stock to have value.

As a result of the consummation of the MDLY Merger, that voting disparity will be eliminated.

MDLY is a "controlled company" within the meaning of the NYSE's rules and, as a result, qualifies for, and intends to rely on, exemptions from certain corporate governance requirements. Holders of MDLY Class A Common Stock do not have the same protections afforded to stockholders of companies that are subject to such requirements.

Medley Group LLC, an entity owned by MDLY's pre-IPO owners holds a majority of the combined voting power of all classes of MDLY's stock entitled to vote generally in the election of directors. As a result, MDLY is a "controlled company" within the meaning of the corporate governance standards of the NYSE. Under these rules, a company of which more than 50% of the voting power in the election of directors is held by an individual, group or another company is a "controlled company" and may elect not to comply with certain corporate governance requirements. For example, controlled companies:

- are not required to have a board that is composed of a majority of "independent directors," as defined under the rules of such exchange;
- are not required to have a compensation committee that is composed entirely of independent directors; and
- are not required to have a nominating and corporate governance committee that is composed entirely of independent directors.

MDLY is utilizing these exemptions. As a result, a majority of the directors on the MDLY Board are not independent. In addition, MDLY's compensation and nominating and corporate governance committees do not consist entirely of independent directors. Accordingly, holders of MDLY Class A Common Stock currently do not have the same protections afforded to stockholders of companies that are subject to all of the corporate governance requirements of the NYSE.

MDLY is an emerging growth company, and any decision on MDLY's part to comply with certain reduced reporting and disclosure requirements applicable to emerging growth companies could make MDLY Class A Common Stock less attractive to investors.

MDLY is an emerging growth company and, for as long as MDLY continues to be an emerging growth company, MDLY currently intends to take advantage of exemptions from various reporting requirements applicable to other public companies but not to emerging growth companies, including, but not limited to, not being required to have MDLY's independent registered public accounting firm audit MDLY's internal control over financial reporting under Section 404 of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act, reduced disclosure obligations regarding executive compensation in MDLY's registration statements, periodic reports and proxy statements, and exemptions from the requirements of holding a nonbinding advisory vote on executive compensation and stockholder approval of any golden parachute payments not previously approved. MDLY could be an emerging growth company until December 31, 2019. MDLY will cease to be an emerging growth company upon the earliest of: (i) December 31, 2019; (ii) the first fiscal year after MDLY's annual gross revenues are $1.07 billion or more; (iii) the date on which MDLY has, during the previous three-year period, issued more than $1.0 billion in non-convertible debt securities; or (iv) the end of any fiscal year in which MDLY becomes a "large accelerated filer," which means that MDLY has been public for at least 12 months, have filed at least one annual report and the market value of MDLY Class A Common Stock held by non-affiliates exceeds $700 million as of the last day of MDLY's then most recently completed second fiscal quarter. MDLY cannot predict if investors will find MDLY Class A Common Stock less attractive if MDLY choose to rely on these exemptions. If some investors find MDLY Class A Common Stock less attractive as a result of any choices to reduce future disclosure, there may be a less active trading market for MDLY Class A Common Stock and the price of MDLY Class A Common Stock may be more volatile.

Under the JOBS Act, emerging growth companies can also delay adopting new or revised accounting standards until such time as those standards apply to private companies. MDLY has irrevocably elected not to avail itself of this accommodation allowing for delayed adoption of new or revised accounting standards and, therefore, MDLY will be subject to the same new or revised accounting standards as other public companies that are not emerging growth companies.

If MDLY fails to maintain an effective system of internal control over financial reporting, MDLY may not be able to accurately report MDLY's financial results or prevent fraud. As a result, MDLY Stockholders could lose confidence in MDLY's financial and other public reporting, which would harm MDLY's business and the trading price of MDLY Class A Common Stock.

Effective internal controls over financial reporting are necessary for MDLY to provide reliable financial reports and, together with adequate disclosure controls and procedures, are designed to prevent fraud. Any failure to implement required new or improved controls, or difficulties encountered in their implementation could cause MDLY to fail to meet MDLY's reporting obligations. In addition, any testing by MDLY conducted in connection with Section 404 of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act, or any subsequent testing by MDLY's independent registered public accounting firm, may reveal deficiencies in MDLY's internal controls over financial reporting that are deemed to be material weaknesses or that may require prospective or retroactive changes to MDLY's financial statements or identify other areas for further attention or improvement. Inferior internal controls could also cause investors to lose confidence in MDLY's reported financial information, which could have a negative effect on the trading price of MDLY Class A Common Stock.

MDLY is required to disclose changes made in MDLY's internal controls and procedures on a quarterly basis and MDLY's management is required to assess the effectiveness of these controls annually. However, MDLY's independent registered public accounting firm is not required to formally attest to the effectiveness of MDLY's internal control over financial reporting until the first annual report required to be filed with the SEC following the date MDLY is no longer an "emerging growth company" as defined in the JOBS Act. MDLY cannot assure you that there will not be material weaknesses or significant deficiencies in MDLY's internal controls in the future. If MDLY is unable to assert that MDLY's internal control over financial reporting is effective, or if MDLY's independent registered public accounting firm is unable to express an opinion on the effectiveness of MDLY's internal control over financial reporting, MDLY could lose investor confidence in the accuracy and completeness of MDLY's financial reports, which could have a material adverse effect on the price of MDLY Class A Common Stock.

Medley LLC's tax treatment depends on its status as a partnership for U.S. federal and state income tax purposes. If the IRS were to treat Medley LLC as a corporation for U.S. federal income tax purposes, which would subject it to corporate-level U.S. federal income taxation, or if Medley LLC were subjected to a material amount of additional corporate-level U.S. federal income taxation by individual states, then Medley LLC's cash available for distributions to MDLY could be substantially reduced.

It is possible, in certain circumstances, for Medley LLC to be taxed as a corporation for U.S. federal income tax purposes. Although MDLY does not believe that Medley LLC is or will be (or should have been) so treated, if Medley LLC were treated as a "publicly traded partnership," Medley LLC might be taxed as a corporation for U.S. federal income tax purposes. If Medley LLC were taxed as a corporation for U.S. federal income tax purposes, it would pay U.S. federal income tax on its taxable income at the corporate tax rate, which is currently a maximum of 21%, and would likely pay state and local income tax at varying rates. Therefore, Medley LLC's treatment as a corporation would result in a material reduction in its anticipated cash flow and could materially adversely affect its ability to make cash distributions to MDLY. In addition, changes in current state law may subject Medley LLC to additional entity-level taxation by individual states. Because of widespread state budget deficits and other reasons, several states are evaluating ways to subject partnerships to entity-level taxation through the imposition of state income, franchise and other forms of taxation. Imposition of any such taxes may substantially reduce Medley LLC's cash available for distributions to MDLY.

Recent legislation could subject Medley LLC to U.S. federal income tax liability, which may adversely affect its ability to make cash distributions to MDLY.

Pursuant to the Bipartisan Budget Act of 2015, for tax years beginning after December 31, 2017, if the IRS makes audit adjustments to Medley LLC's federal income tax returns, it may assess and collect any taxes (including any applicable penalties and interest) resulting from such audit adjustment directly from Medley LLC. If, as a result of any such audit adjustment, Medley LLC is required to make payments of taxes, penalties and interest, Medley LLC's cash available for distributions to MDLY may be substantially reduced. These rules are not applicable to Medley LLC for tax years beginning on or prior to December 31, 2017.

If securities or industry analysts do not publish research or reports about MDLY's business, or if they downgrade their recommendations regarding MDLY Class A Common Stock, MDLY's stock price and trading volume could decline.

The trading market for MDLY Class A Common Stock will be influenced by the research and reports that industry or securities analysts publish about MDLY or MDLY's business. If any of the analysts who cover MDLY downgrades MDLY Class A Common Stock or publishes inaccurate or unfavorable research about MDLY's business, MDLY Class A Common Stock prices may decline. If analysts cease coverage of MDLY or fail to regularly publish reports on MDLY, MDLY could lose visibility in the financial markets, which in turn could cause MDLY Class A Common Stock price or trading volume to decline and MDLY Class A Common Stock to be less liquid.

The market price of shares of MDLY Class A Common Stock has been and may continue to be volatile, which could cause the value of your investment to decline.

The market price of MDLY Class A Common Stock has historically experienced and may continue to experience significant volatility. From January 1, 2016 through September 30, 2018, the market price of MDLY Class A Common Stock has fluctuated from a high of $10.40 per share in the fourth quarter of 2016 to a low of $3.10 per share in the second quarter of 2018. Securities markets worldwide experience significant price and volume fluctuations. This market volatility, as well as general economic, market or political conditions could reduce the market price of shares of MDLY Class A Common Stock in spite of MDLY's operating performance. In addition, MDLY's operating results could be below the expectations of public market analysts and investors due to a number of potential factors, including variations in MDLY's quarterly operating results or dividends, if any, to stockholders, additions or departures of key management personnel, failure to meet analysts' earnings estimates, publication of research reports about MDLY's industry, litigation and government investigations, changes or proposed changes in laws or regulations or differing interpretations or enforcement thereof affecting MDLY's business, adverse market reaction to any indebtedness MDLY may incur or securities MDLY may issue in the future, changes in market valuations of similar companies or speculation in the press or investment community, announcements by MDLY's competitors of significant contracts, acquisitions, dispositions, strategic partnerships, joint ventures or capital commitments, adverse publicity about the industries MDLY participates in or individual scandals, and in response the market price of shares of MDLY Class A Common Stock could decrease significantly. You may be unable to resell your shares of MDLY Class A Common Stock at or above the initial public offering price.

In the past few years, stock markets have experienced extreme price and volume fluctuations. In the past, following periods of volatility in the overall market and the market price of a company's securities, securities class action litigation has often been instituted against these companies. This litigation, if instituted against MDLY, could result in substantial costs and a diversion of MDLY's management's attention and resources.

You may be diluted by the future issuance of additional MDLY Class A Common Stock or Medley LLC Units in connection with MDLY's incentive plans, acquisitions or otherwise.

As of September 30, 2018, MDLY had 2,993,551,922 shares of MDLY Class A Common Stock authorized but unissued, including approximately 24,839,302 shares of MDLY Class A Common Stock issuable upon exchange of Medley LLC Units that will be held by the non-managing members of Medley LLC. The MDLY Certificate authorizes MDLY to issue these shares of MDLY Class A Common Stock and options, rights, warrants and appreciation rights relating to MDLY Class A Common Stock for the consideration and on the terms and conditions established by the MDLY Board in its sole discretion, whether in connection with acquisitions or otherwise. Similarly, the limited liability company agreement of Medley LLC permits Medley LLC to issue an unlimited number of additional limited liability company interests of Medley LLC with designations, preferences, rights, powers and duties that are different from, and may be senior to, those applicable to the Medley LLC Units, and which may be exchangeable for shares of MDLY Class A Common Stock. Additionally, MDLY has reserved an aggregate of 4,500,000 shares of MDLY Class A Common Stock and Medley LLC Units for issuance under the MDLY Incentive Plan, including 1.6 million shares issuable upon the vesting of MDLY RSUs outstanding as of September 30, 2018. Any MDLY Class A Common Stock that MDLY issues, including under the MDLY Incentive Plan or other equity incentive plans that MDLY may adopt in the future, would dilute the percentage ownership held by investors who purchase MDLY Class A Common Stock.

SELECTED FINANCIAL AND OTHER DATA OF SIERRA

The following selected consolidated financial data for the years ended December 31, 2017, 2016, 2015, 2014 and 2013 is derived from Sierra's consolidated financial statements, which have been audited by Ernst & Young LLP, its independent registered public accounting firm. Historical financial data is not necessarily indicative of Sierra's future results of operations or financial position. The selected financial data for the nine months ended September 30, 2018 was derived from the unaudited consolidated financial statements. In the opinion of Sierra's management, the selected financial data for the nine months ended September 30, 2018 reflects all adjustments (consisting only of normal recurring adjustments) that are necessary to present fairly the results of such interim periods. The data should be read in conjunction with Sierra's consolidated financial statements and related notes thereto and "Management's Discussion and Analysis of Financial Condition and Results of Operations of Sierra" included elsewhere in this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus.

(1) The weighted average yield is based upon original cost on MCC's income bearing debt investments.

(2) On January 1, 2016, MCC adopted Accounting Standards Update ("ASU") 2015-03 which requires that debt issuance costs related to a recognized debt liability to be presented on the balance sheet as a direct deduction from the carrying amount of the debt liability rather than as an asset. Adoption of ASU 2015-03 requires the changes to be applied retrospectively.

(3) Total return is historical and assumes changes in NAV, reinvestments of all dividends and distributions at prices obtained under the MCC's dividend reinvestment plan, and no sales charge for the period.

(4) Total return is historical and assumes changes in share price, reinvestments of all dividends and distributions at prices obtained under the MCC's dividend reinvestment plan, and no sales charge for the period.

SELECTED FINANCIAL AND OTHER DATA OF MDLY

The following selected consolidated financial data presents selected financial data of MDLY, and for periods prior to September 29, 2014, the financial condition and results of operations of Medley LLC, the predecessor of MDLY. Medley LLC is considered the predecessor of Medley Management Inc. for accounting purposes. MDLY derived the following selected yearly consolidated financial data from its audited consolidated financial statements, which have been audited by RSM US LLP, its independent registered public accounting firm. Certain amounts have been reclassified from prior period presentation due to the retrospective application of MDLY's change in accounting policy for carried interest. The selected financial data for the nine months ended September 30, 2018 is derived from MDLY's most recently issued unaudited consolidated interim financial statements. The following selected financial data should be read in conjunction with MDLY's financial statements and the related notes and the discussion under "Management's Discussion and Analysis of Financial Condition and Results of Operations of MDLY" included elsewhere in this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus.

UNAUDITED SELECTED PRO FORMA CONSOLIDATED FINANCIAL DATA

The following tables set forth unaudited selected pro forma consolidated financial data for Sierra, MCC, and MDLY as the Combined Company after giving effect to the Mergers. The information as of September 30, 2018 is presented as if the Mergers had been completed on September 30, 2018. The unaudited pro forma consolidated financial data for the nine months ended September 30, 2018 and twelve months ended December 31, 2017 are presented as if the Mergers had been completed on January 1, 2017. Such unaudited pro forma consolidated financial data is based on the historical financial statements of Sierra, MCC, and MDLY from publicly available information and certain assumptions and adjustments as discussed in Note 3 and Note 4 of the accompanying notes to the pro forma condensed consolidated financial statements in the section entitled “Unaudited Pro Forma Condensed Consolidated Financial Statements.” In the opinion of management, adjustments necessary to reflect the direct effect of the Mergers have been made. The MCC Merger will be accounted for under the acquisition method of accounting in accordance with ASC 805, Business Combinations (“ASC 805”) and the MDLY Merger will be accounted for as an acquisition of an investment in accordance with ASC 946, Financial Services – Investment Companies. See section entitled “Accounting Treatment” for additional information.

The unaudited pro forma consolidated financial data should be read together with the respective historical audited and unaudited consolidated financial statements and related notes of Sierra, MCC, and MDLY included in this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus. The unaudited pro forma consolidated financial data are presented for illustrative purposes only and do not necessarily indicate what the future operating results or financial position of the Combined Company will be following completion of the Mergers. The unaudited pro forma consolidated financial data does not include adjustments to reflect any cost savings or other operational efficiencies that may be realized as a result of the Mergers. Additionally, the unaudited pro forma consolidated financial data does not include any estimated increase or decrease in net assets resulting from operations or other asset sales and repayments that are not already reflected that may occur between September 30, 2018 and the completion of the Mergers.

Sierra, MCC, and MDLY cannot assure you that the Mergers will be completed as scheduled, or at all. See “Special Factors,” “Description of the MCC Merger Agreement,” and “Description of the MDLY Merger Agreement” for a description of the terms of the Mergers, and “Risk Factors” for a description of the principal risks relating to the Mergers, the Combined Company following the successful completion of the Mergers, Sierra, MCC, and MDLY.

UNAUDITED PRO FORMA CONSOLIDATED PER SHARE DATA

The following selected unaudited pro forma consolidated per share information for the nine months ended September 30, 2018 and for the twelve months ended December 31, 2017 is presented as if the Mergers had been completed on January 1, 2017. The unaudited pro forma consolidated NAV per share of the Combined Company Common Stock outstanding reflects the Mergers as if they had been completed on September 30, 2018.

Such unaudited pro forma consolidated per share information is based on the historical consolidated financial statements of Sierra, MCC, and MDLY from publicly available information and certain assumptions and adjustments as discussed in the section entitled “Unaudited Pro Forma Condensed Consolidated Financial Statements.” This unaudited pro forma consolidated per share information is provided for illustrative purposes only and is not necessarily indicative of what the operating results or financial position of the Combined Company would have been had the Mergers been completed at the beginning of the periods or on the dates indicated, nor are they necessarily indicative of any future operating results or financial position of the Combined Company following the completion of the Mergers. The following should be read in connection with the section entitled “Unaudited Pro Forma Condensed Consolidated Financial Statements” and other information included in or incorporated by reference into this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus.

Sierra, MCC, and MDLY cannot assure you that the Mergers will be completed as scheduled, or at all. See “Special Factors,” “Description of the MCC Merger Agreement,” and “Description of the MDLY Merger Agreement” for a description of the terms of the Mergers, and “Risk Factors” for a description of the principal risks relating to the Mergers, the Combined Company following the successful completion of the Mergers, Sierra, MCC, and MDLY.

- (1) Cash dividends declared per share represent actual dividends declared per share for the periods presented. The pro forma consolidated cash dividends declared are not presented as the dividend policy of the Combined Company will be determined by the Combined Company Board following the completion of the Mergers.
- (2) The pro forma consolidated NAV per share is computed by dividing the pro forma consolidated net assets as of September 30, 2018 by the pro forma consolidated number of shares outstanding. For MDLY, the amount represents its book value per MDLY Class A Common Stock as of September 30, 2018.
- (3) The MCC equivalent pro forma per share amount is calculated by multiplying the pro forma consolidated Combined Company per share amounts by the exchange ratio under the MCC Merger Agreement of 0.8050 shares of Sierra Common Stock for each share of MCC Common Stock. The MDLY equivalent pro forma per share amount is calculated by multiplying the pro forma consolidated Combined Company per share amounts by the exchange ratio under the MDLY Merger Agreement of 0.3836 shares of Sierra Common Stock for each share of MDLY Class A Common Stock.

SPECIAL NOTE REGARDING FORWARD-LOOKING STATEMENTS

This Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus contains “forward-looking” statements, including statements regarding the Mergers and any benefits of the Mergers and the future performance or financial condition of Sierra, MCC, MDLY, or, following the consummation of the Mergers, the Combined Company. Statements that include the words such as “should,” “would,” “expect,” “intend,” “plan,” “believe,” “project,” “anticipate,” “seek,” “will,” and negatives or derivatives of these or similar statements of a future or forward-looking nature identify forward-looking statements in this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus for purposes of the U.S. federal securities laws or otherwise. The forward-looking statements contained in this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus involve a number of risks and uncertainties. Actual results may differ materially from those in the forward-looking statements as a result of a number of factors, including:

- the failure of any closing condition relating to the Mergers described herein to be satisfied or waived, including, but not limited to, the requisite approvals of the Sierra Stockholders, the MCC Stockholders, and the MDLY Stockholders;
- the Companies’ ability to successfully consummate the Mergers, and the anticipated timing of their completion;
- the ability of the Combined Company to successfully combine the investment portfolios of Sierra and MCC, and its ability to successfully integrate the businesses and administrative operations of Sierra, MCC, and MDLY if the Mergers are consummated;
- the market performance of the Combined Company’s portfolio;
- the Combined Company’s ability to invest its portfolio of cash in a timely manner following the closing of the Mergers;
- the Combined Company’s current and expected financings and investments;
- Sierra’s ability to successfully take all actions reasonably required with respect to certain outstanding indebtedness of MCC and MDLY to prevent any material adverse effect relating thereto;
- the likelihood of obtaining certain required approvals of the SEC and the SBA and the necessary consents of certain third-party advisory clients of MDLY and third party joint venture partners of Sierra and MCC;
- the impact of any applicable waiting period (and any extension thereof) applicable to the Mergers under the HSR Act, or whether such waiting period shall have expired or been terminated;
- the possibility that competing offers or acquisition proposals related to either the MCC Merger or the MDLY Merger will be made and, if made, could be successful;
- the costs and expenses that Sierra, MCC, and MDLY have incurred, and will incur, in connection with the Mergers (whether or not they are consummated);
- the impact that any litigation relating to the Mergers may have on any of Sierra, MCC, and MDLY;
- that statements with respect to future dividends may prove to be incorrect;
- the ability of portfolio companies to pay interest and principal in the future, or to achieve their investment or business objectives;

Table of Contents

- the ability of MDLY to grow its fee earning assets under management;
- the ability of the Combined Company to locate suitable investments and to monitor and administer the Combined Company's investments;
- the likelihood that the Combined Company will trade with more volume and perform better than Sierra, MCC, and MDLY did as standalone companies prior to the Mergers;
- the potential negative effects of entering into and announcing the MCC Merger Agreement and the MDLY Merger Agreement on the trading volume and market price of MCC Common Stock or MDLY Class A Common Stock;
- the future operating results and business prospects of Sierra, MCC, and MDLY, if the Mergers are not consummated, or of the Combined Company, if the Mergers are consummated;
- changes in political, economic or industry conditions, the interest rate environment or conditions affecting the capital markets, which could impact the value of Sierra's, MCC's, or, following the completion of the Mergers, the Combined Company's assets;
- changes in laws or regulations that could impact the industry, operations, or value of assets of Sierra, MCC, MDLY, or, following the Mergers, the Combined Company, as applicable; and
- the ability for the Combined Company to maintain its qualification as a RIC and operate as a BDC.

The foregoing list of factors is not exhaustive. The forward-looking statements included in this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus have been based on information available to Sierra, MCC, and MDLY, as appropriate, on the date of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus and neither Sierra, MCC, nor MDLY assumes any obligation to update any such forward-looking statements except as may be required by applicable law. You are encouraged to consult any additional disclosures that Sierra, MCC, or MDLY may make directly to you or through reports that they have filed or in the future may file with the SEC, including annual reports on Form 10-K, quarterly reports on Form 10-Q and current reports on Form 8-K.

Sierra's, MCC's and MDLY's, and, following the Mergers, the Combined Company's and Merger Sub's actual results and conditions could differ materially from those implied or expressed in the forward-looking statements for any reason, including the factors set forth above in "Risk Factors" and elsewhere in this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus. You should not place undue reliance on forward-looking statements.

THE SIERRA SPECIAL MEETING

Date, Time and Place of the Sierra Special Meeting

The Sierra Special Meeting will take place on February 8, 2019 at 1:00 P.M., Eastern Time, at the offices of Eversheds Sutherland (US) LLP located at 1114 Avenue of the Americas, 40th Floor, New York, New York 10036.

Sierra encourages you to designate how your shares will be voted at the Sierra Special Meeting by granting a proxy authorizing a proxy holder to vote your shares. If you properly sign and date the accompanying proxy card, and Sierra receives your proxy card or vote prior to the Sierra Special Meeting, the persons named as proxies will vote your shares of Sierra Common Stock in the manner that you specify. Sierra Stockholders of record on the Sierra Record Date (as defined below) may also vote via the Internet or by telephone prior to the Sierra Special Meeting, or authorize a proxy to vote their shares. Sierra Stockholders entitled to vote at the Sierra Special Meeting who are interested in voting via the Internet or by telephone should review the specific instructions shown on the enclosed proxy card. The Internet and telephone procedures shown on the enclosed proxy card are designed to authenticate the Sierra Stockholder's identity and to allow Sierra Stockholders to cause the vote of their shares of Sierra Common Stock at the Sierra Special Meeting.

Purpose of the Sierra Special Meeting

At the Sierra Special Meeting, Sierra Stockholders will be asked to consider and vote on the following proposals:

- 1) a proposal to approve the MCC Merger;
- 2) a proposal to approve the MDLY Merger;
- 3) a proposal to approve the issuance of the shares of Sierra Common Stock to be issued pursuant to each of the MCC Merger Agreement and the MDLY Merger Agreement at a price below its then current NAV per share, if applicable;
- 4) a proposal to adopt the Sierra Incentive Plan;
- 5) a proposal to adopt the Sierra Charter Amendments;
- 6) a proposal to approve the Combined Company Investment Advisory Agreement; and
- 7) a proposal to approve the adjournment of the Sierra Special Meeting, if necessary or appropriate, to solicit additional proxies if there are not sufficient votes at the time of the Sierra Special Meeting to approve the foregoing proposals.

For more information, see "Special Factors," "Description of the MCC Merger Agreement," "Description of the MDLY Merger Agreement," "Sierra Proposal #1: Approval of the MCC Merger," "Sierra Proposal #2: Approval of the MDLY Merger," "Sierra Proposal #3: Issuance of the Shares of Sierra Common Stock to be Issued pursuant to each of the MCC Merger Agreement and the MDLY Merger Agreement at a Price Below its Then Current NAV per Share, if applicable," "Sierra Proposal #4: Adoption of the Sierra Incentive Plan," "Sierra Proposal #5: Adoption of the Sierra Charter Amendments," "Sierra Proposal #6: Approval of the Combined Company Investment Advisory Agreement," and "Sierra Proposal #7: Possible Adjournment to Solicit Additional Proxies, if Necessary or Appropriate."

BASED UPON THE RECOMMENDATION OF THE SIERRA SPECIAL COMMITTEE, THE SIERRA BOARD UNANIMOUSLY RECOMMENDS THAT SIERRA STOCKHOLDERS VOTE:

- “FOR” THE APPROVAL OF THE MCC MERGER.
- “FOR” THE APPROVAL OF THE MDLY MERGER.
- “FOR” THE ISSUANCE OF THE SHARES OF SIERRA COMMON STOCK TO BE ISSUED PURSUANT TO EACH OF THE MCC MERGER AGREEMENT AND THE MDLY MERGER AGREEMENT AT A PRICE BELOW ITS THEN CURRENT NAV PER SHARE, IF APPLICABLE.
- “FOR” THE ADOPTION OF THE SIERRA INCENTIVE PLAN.
- “FOR” THE ADOPTION OF THE SIERRA CHARTER AMENDMENTS.
- “FOR” THE APPROVAL OF THE COMBINED COMPANY INVESTMENT ADVISORY AGREEMENT.
- “FOR” THE ADJOURNMENT OF THE SIERRA SPECIAL MEETING, IF NECESSARY OR APPROPRIATE, TO SOLICIT ADDITIONAL PROXIES IF THERE ARE NOT SUFFICIENT VOTES AT THE TIME OF THE SIERRA SPECIAL MEETING TO APPROVE THE FOREGOING PROPOSALS.

Record Date

The Sierra Record Date for the Sierra Special Meeting is the close of business on December 21, 2018. As of the Sierra Record Date, there were 98,182,586 shares of Sierra Common Stock outstanding and entitled to vote, held by approximately 20,000 holders of record. The Sierra Record Date was established by the Sierra Board and only Sierra Stockholders as of such date are entitled to receive notice of the Sierra Special Meeting and to vote at the Sierra Special Meeting. In the event that the Sierra Special Meeting is adjourned or postponed, Sierra Stockholders as of the Sierra Record Date would be entitled to vote at the adjourned or postponed Sierra Special Meeting (unless the Sierra Board fixes a new record date for the Sierra Special Meeting). See “—Vote Required” below.

Quorum and Adjournments

A quorum is required to be present in order to conduct business at the Sierra Special Meeting. The presence, in person or by proxy, of the holders of one-third of the outstanding shares of Sierra Common Stock as of the Sierra Record Date will constitute a quorum for the purposes of the Sierra Special Meeting. Proxies properly executed and marked with a positive vote, a negative vote or an abstention will be considered present at the Sierra Special Meeting for purposes of determining whether a quorum is present for the transaction of all business at the Sierra Special Meeting.

Sierra Stockholders will be asked to consider a proposal to adjourn the Sierra Special Meeting to solicit additional proxies, if necessary or appropriate. Such adjournment will be permitted if approved by a majority of the votes cast by the holders of Sierra Common Stock as of the Sierra Record Date present or represented by proxy at the Sierra Special Meeting, whether or not a quorum exists. Abstentions and “broker non-votes” shall not be counted a votes cast on the adjournment proposal and will have no effect on the adjournment vote. In addition, the chairman of the Sierra Special Meeting will have the authority to adjourn the Sierra Special Meeting from time-to-time for any reason without notice and without the vote or approval of the stockholders.

Vote Required

Sierra Proposal #1: Approval of the MCC Merger.

Sierra Stockholders may vote “FOR” or “AGAINST,” or they may “ABSTAIN” from voting on, the proposal to approve the MCC Merger. The holders of a majority of the outstanding shares of Sierra Common Stock as of the Sierra Record Date must affirmatively vote “FOR” the proposal in order for it to be approved. Because the vote on the proposal is based on the total number of shares outstanding, abstentions and “broker non-votes” will have the same effect as voting “AGAINST” the approval of the proposal.

Sierra Proposal #2: Approval of the MDLY Merger.

Sierra Stockholders may vote “FOR” or “AGAINST,” or they may “ABSTAIN” from voting on, the proposal to approve the MDLY Merger. The holders of a majority of the outstanding shares of Sierra Common Stock as of the Sierra Record Date must affirmatively vote “FOR” the proposal in order for it to be approved. Because the vote on the proposal is based on the total number of shares outstanding, abstentions and “broker non-votes” will have the same effect as voting “AGAINST” the approval of the proposal.

Sierra Proposal #3. Issuance of the Shares of Sierra Common Stock to be Issued Pursuant to Each of the MCC Merger Agreement and the MDLY Merger Agreement at a Price Below its Then Current NAV per Share, if applicable.

Sierra Stockholders may vote “FOR” or “AGAINST,” or they may “ABSTAIN” from voting on, the proposal to approve the issuance of the shares of Sierra Common Stock to be issued pursuant to each of the MCC Merger Agreement and the MDLY Merger Agreement at a price below its then current NAV per share, if applicable.

Under the MCC Merger Agreement, the exchange ratio of 0.8050 shares of Sierra Common Stock for each share of MCC Common Stock to be exchanged in the MCC Merger was fixed on August 9, 2018, the date of the signing of the MCC Merger Agreement. Under the MDLY Merger Agreement, the exchange ratio of 0.3836 shares of Sierra Common Stock, and the amount of cash merger consideration and other payments, for each share of MDLY Class A Common Stock was fixed on August 9, 2018, the date of the signing of the MDLY Merger Agreement. Each exchange ratio was determined taking into account the NAV per share of Sierra Common Stock as of June 30, 2018, and is not subject to adjustment based on changes in the NAV per share of Sierra Common Stock, MCC Common Stock or MDLY Common Stock. In that regard, regardless of the date on which the Mergers are consummated and the resulting date on which the shares of Sierra Common Stock are issued, the exchange ratios upon which the shares of Sierra Common Stock will be issued pursuant to each of the MCC Merger Agreement and the MDLY Merger Agreement will still be based upon the NAV per share of Sierra Common Stock as of June 30, 2018.

Notwithstanding the foregoing, for the avoidance of doubt, Sierra is seeking approval for the issuance of the shares of Sierra Common Stock to be issued pursuant to each of the MCC Merger Agreement and the MDLY Merger Agreement at a price below its then current NAV per share in the event that at the time of such issuance, Sierra’s then current NAV per share is greater than the value of the shares of MCC Common Stock or MDLY Class A Common Stock being exchanged.

Under the Investment Company Act, Sierra is not permitted to issue Sierra Common Stock at a price below its then current NAV per share unless such issuance is approved by the Sierra Stockholders and, in certain cases, the Sierra Board makes certain determinations.

Sierra Proposal #3 will be approved if a majority of the holders of (1) the outstanding shares of Sierra Common Stock and (2) the outstanding shares of Sierra Common Stock held by persons who are not affiliated persons of Sierra, each vote “FOR” the proposal. The vote of holders of a “majority,” as defined in the Investment Company Act, means the vote of the holders of the lesser of (1) 67% or more of the outstanding shares of Sierra Common Stock present or represented by proxy at the Sierra Special Meeting if the holders of more than 50% of the shares of Sierra Common Stock are present or represented by proxy or (2) more than 50% of the outstanding shares of Sierra Common Stock. In order to issue shares at a price below NAV pursuant to this approval, the Sierra Board would need to make certain determinations as required under the Investment Company Act. Abstentions and “broker non-votes” will have the effect of a vote “AGAINST” the proposal. If the then current NAV per share of Sierra Common Stock to be issued pursuant to each of the MCC Merger Agreement and the MDLY Merger Agreement is equal to or below the value of the shares of MCC Common Stock or MDLY Class A Common Stock being exchanged, then Sierra Stockholder approval of this proposal will not be required in order to complete the Mergers.

Assuming the Mergers had been completed on September 30, 2018, based on the financial information of Sierra, MCC, and MDLY as of September 30, 2018 as set forth in the section entitled “Unaudited Pro Forma Condensed Consolidated Financial Statements,” the shares of the Combined Company Common Stock to be issued pursuant to each of the MCC Merger Agreement and the MDLY Merger Agreement would have been issued at a price of $7.05 per share, which was the NAV per share of Sierra Common Stock as of September 30, 2018.

Sierra Proposal #4. Adoption of the Sierra Incentive Plan.

Sierra Stockholders may vote “FOR” or “AGAINST,” or they may “ABSTAIN” from voting on, the proposal to adopt the Sierra Incentive Plan. The majority of the votes cast by the holders of Sierra Common Stock as of the Sierra Record Date present or represented by proxy at the Sierra Special Meeting must affirmatively vote “FOR” the proposal in order for it to be approved (meaning the number of shares voted “FOR” a proposal must exceed the number of shares voted “AGAINST” such proposal). Abstentions have the same effect as votes cast against the proposal, while “broker non-votes” will not be included in determining the number of votes cast and, as a result, do not affect the outcome.

Sierra Proposal #5. Adoption of the Sierra Charter Amendments.

Sierra Stockholders may vote “FOR” or “AGAINST,” or they may “ABSTAIN” from voting on, the proposals to adopt certain amendments to the Sierra Charter, set forth herein as “Sierra Proposal #5(A)”, “Sierra Proposal #5(B)”, “Sierra Proposal #5(C)”, “Sierra Proposal #5(D)”, and “Sierra Proposal #5(E)”. As described more fully below, depending upon the specific amendment, the requisite affirmative vote required to approve such amendment will vary.

- Charter Amendment Proposal #5(A)(i) through (A)(xi) – conform certain provisions in the Sierra Charter more closely to provisions in the charters of other BDCs whose securities are listed and publicly traded on a national securities exchange (“Listed BDCs”) by removing provisions previously required by the Omnibus Guidelines promulgated by the North American Securities Administrators Association, Inc. (the “NASAA Guidelines”) and removing certain provisions that could impose unnecessary administrative burdens and expenses on Sierra arising from potential inconsistencies with the MGCL, the Investment Company Act and the listing rules of the NYSE, including amending provisions regarding (i) Sierra’s investment adviser, (ii) certain affiliated transactions, (iii) the offering of stock on a deferred-payment basis, (iv) distributions, (v) stockholder suitability and admission, (vi) share repurchase obligations, (vii) investment objectives and limitations, (viii) roll-ups, (ix) exculpation, indemnification, advancement of expenses and insurance, (x) stockholder access to reports and inspection of books and records, and (xi) certain conforming changes and other ministerial modifications (Charter Amendment Proposals (A)(i) through (A)(xi)).

The holders of shares of Sierra Common Stock entitled to cast a majority of all the votes entitled to be cast as of the Sierra Record Date must affirmatively vote “FOR” the approval of each of Charter Amendment Proposals #5(A)(i) through (A)(xi) in order for it to be approved. Abstentions and broker non-votes will not count as affirmative votes cast and will therefore have the same effect as votes against each of Charter Amendment Proposals #5(A)(i) through (A)(xi).

- Charter Amendment Proposal #5(B) – eliminate certain voting rights of Sierra Stockholders, including the right to direct that the Sierra Board to cause Sierra to (i) amend the Sierra Charter, (ii) dissolve Sierra, (iii) approve the sale of all or substantially all of the assets of Sierra, or (iv) cause the merger or other reorganization of Sierra.

The holders of shares of Sierra Common Stock entitled to cast a majority of all the votes entitled to be cast as of the Sierra Record Date must affirmatively vote “FOR” the approval of Charter Amendment Proposal #5(B). Abstentions and broker non-votes will not count as affirmative votes cast and will therefore have the same effect as votes against Charter Amendment Proposal #5(B).

- Charter Amendment Proposal #5(C) – eliminate the ability of the Sierra Stockholders to cause the dissolution of Sierra without the necessity for concurrence by the Sierra Board.

The holders of shares of Sierra Common Stock entitled to cast a majority of all the votes entitled to be cast on the matter as of the Sierra Record Date must affirmatively vote “FOR” the approval of Charter Amendment Proposal #5(C). Abstentions and broker non-votes will not count as affirmative votes cast and will therefore have the same effect as votes against Charter Amendment Proposal #5(C).

- Charter Amendment Proposal #5(D) – permit the Sierra Stockholders, in addition to the Sierra Board, to adopt, alter or repeal any provision of the Sierra Bylaws and make new bylaws if such action is approved by the affirmative vote of a majority of all votes entitled to be cast on the matter.

The holders of shares of Sierra Common Stock entitled to cast a majority of all the votes entitled to be cast on the matter as of the Sierra Record Date must affirmatively vote “FOR” the approval of Charter Amendment Proposal #5(D). Abstentions and broker non-votes will not count as affirmative votes cast and will therefore have the same effect as votes against Charter Amendment Proposal #5(D).

- Charter Amendment Proposal #5(E) – remove language pertaining to the resolution of any conflict between the MGCL, the Sierra Charter, and the Sierra Bylaws, on the one hand, and the NASAA Guidelines, on the other hand, from that section of the Sierra Charter delegating such authority to the Sierra Board.

The holders of shares of Sierra Common Stock entitled to cast at least two-thirds of all the votes entitled to be cast as of the Sierra Record Date must affirmatively vote “FOR” the approval of Charter Amendment Proposal #5(E). Abstentions and broker non-votes will not count as affirmative votes cast and will therefore have the same effect as votes against Charter Amendment Proposal #5(E).

Sierra Proposal #6: Approval of the Combined Company Investment Advisory Agreement

Sierra Stockholders may vote “FOR” or “AGAINST,” or they may “ABSTAIN” from voting on, Sierra Proposal #6. Sierra Proposal #6 will be approved if a majority of the holders of (1) the outstanding shares of Sierra Common Stock as of the Sierra Record Date and (2) the outstanding shares of Sierra Common Stock as of the Sierra Record Date held by persons who are not affiliated persons of Sierra, each must affirmatively vote “FOR” the proposal. The vote of holders of a “majority,” as defined in the Investment Company Act, means the vote of the holders of the lesser of (1) 67% or more of the outstanding shares of Sierra Common Stock present or represented by proxy at the Sierra Special Meeting if the holders of more than 50% of the shares of Sierra Common Stock are present or represented by proxy or (2) more than 50% of the outstanding shares of Sierra Common Stock. Because the vote on the proposal is based on the total number of shares outstanding, abstentions and “broker non-votes” will have the same effect as voting “AGAINST” the approval of the proposal

Sierra Proposal #7: Adjournment of the Sierra Special Meeting to Solicit Additional Proxies, if necessary or appropriate.

Sierra Stockholders may vote “FOR” or “AGAINST,” or they may “ABSTAIN” from voting on the proposal to approve the adjournment of the Sierra Special Meeting, if necessary or appropriate, to solicit additional proxies if there are not sufficient votes at the time of the Sierra Special Meeting to approve the foregoing proposals. A majority of the votes cast by the holders of Sierra Common Stock as of the Sierra Record Date present or represented by proxy at the Sierra Special Meeting must affirmatively vote “FOR” the proposal in order for it to be approved (meaning the number of shares voted “FOR” the proposal must exceed the number of shares voted “AGAINST” the proposal). Abstentions and “broker non-votes” are not considered votes cast on the adjournment proposal, and will have no effect on the vote for the proposal.

Voting of Directors and Executive Officers

As of the Sierra Record Date, Sierra's executive officers and directors owned beneficially or of record 1,108,144 shares of Sierra Common Stock, representing approximately 1.1% of the outstanding shares of Sierra Common Stock on that date.

Voting Methods

Whether or not you plan to attend the Sierra Special Meeting, Sierra encourages you to vote by proxy to ensure your vote is counted. You may still attend the Sierra Special Meeting and vote in person, even if you have already voted by proxy. A Sierra Stockholder may submit a proxy or vote shares of Sierra Common Stock by any of the following methods:

- By Telephone or the Internet. Sierra Stockholders can cause their shares of Sierra Common Stock to be voted by authorizing proxies via telephone or the Internet as instructed in the proxy card or the voting instruction form. The telephone and Internet procedures are designed to authenticate a Sierra Stockholder's identity, to allow Sierra Stockholders to cause their shares to be voted and to confirm that their instructions have been properly recorded.
- By Mail. Sierra Stockholders who receive a paper proxy card or voting instruction form or request a paper proxy card or voting instruction form by telephone or the Internet may elect to vote by mail and should complete, sign and date the proxy card or voting instruction form and mail it in the pre-addressed envelope that accompanies the delivery of the proxy card or voting instruction form. For Sierra Stockholders of record, proxy cards submitted by mail must be received by the date and time of the Sierra Special Meeting. For Sierra Stockholders who hold their shares through an intermediary, such as a broker, bank or other nominee, the voting instruction form submitted by mail must be mailed by the deadline imposed by such Sierra Stockholder's broker, bank or other nominee for the shares of Sierra Common Stock to be voted.
- By Attending In Person. Shares of Sierra Common Stock held in a Sierra Stockholder's name as the Sierra Stockholder of record on the Sierra Record Date may be voted by such Sierra Stockholder in person at the Sierra Special Meeting. Shares of Sierra Common Stock held beneficially by a Sierra Stockholder in street name on the Sierra Record Date may be voted by such Sierra Stockholder in person at the Sierra Special Meeting only if such Sierra Stockholder obtains a legal proxy from the broker, bank or other nominee that holds such Sierra Stockholder's shares of Sierra Common Stock giving such Sierra Stockholder the right to vote the shares of Sierra Common Stock and brings that proxy to the Sierra Special Meeting.

For shares of Sierra Common Stock held through a broker, bank or other nominee, a Sierra Stockholder may vote by submitting voting instructions to the broker, bank or nominee.

Voting of Proxies

A proxy is a stockholder's legal designation of another person to vote the stock that such stockholder owns. That other person is called a proxy. If a stockholder designates someone as a proxy in a written document, that document is also called a proxy or a proxy card. Seth Taube and Richard T. Allorto, Jr. have been designated as proxies by the Sierra Board for the Sierra Special Meeting.

All shares of Sierra Common Stock represented by properly executed proxies received in time for the Sierra Special Meeting will be voted in the manner specified by Sierra Stockholders submitting those proxies, unless validly revoked or withdrawn prior to the Sierra Special Meeting. Properly executed proxies that do not contain voting instructions will be voted "FOR" the approval of each matter to be voted on at the Sierra Special Meeting. Sierra Stockholders may also instruct the proxy solicitor on how to cast their vote by calling the proxy solicitor or via the Internet pursuant to the instructions shown on the proxy card.

Under the MGCL and the Sierra Bylaws, only the matters stated in the Notice of Special Meeting will be presented for action at the Sierra Special Meeting or at any adjournment or postponement of the Sierra Special Meeting.

If a Sierra Stockholder holds shares of Sierra Common Stock in an account through a broker, bank or other institution or nominee, the institution or nominee will not vote the Sierra Stockholder's shares unless such Sierra Stockholder provides instructions to the institution or nominee on how to vote their shares of Sierra Common Stock. These Sierra Stockholders should instruct their institution or nominee how to vote their shares by following the voting instructions provided by each institution or nominee. Such Sierra Stockholders may vote such shares at the Sierra Special Meeting only if the Sierra Stockholder obtains proper written authority from such institution or nominee and presents it at the Sierra Special Meeting.

Revocability of Proxies

Any Sierra Stockholder of record (i.e., a Sierra Stockholder holding shares of Sierra Common Stock directly in such Sierra Stockholder's name) submitting a valid proxy for the Sierra Special Meeting may revoke it before it is exercised by (i) submitting a later dated properly executed proxy, (ii) submitting notice of revocation to Sierra in writing before or at the Sierra Special Meeting, (iii) attending the Sierra Special Meeting and voting at the Sierra Special Meeting or (iv) voting electronically, as described above. However, the mere presence at the Sierra Special Meeting by the Sierra Stockholder does not revoke the proxy. If the Sierra Stockholder's shares are held in an account by a broker, bank or other institution or nominee, to revoke any voting instructions prior to the time the vote is taken at the Sierra Special Meeting, the Sierra Stockholder must contact such broker, bank or other institution or nominee to determine how to revoke the Sierra Stockholder's vote in accordance with the policies of the broker, bank or other institution or nominee a sufficient time in advance of the Sierra Special Meeting.

Unless revoked as stated above, the shares of Sierra Common Stock represented by valid proxies will be voted on all matters to be acted upon at the Sierra Special Meeting. Sierra Stockholders may revoke a proxy by any of these methods regardless of the method used to deliver a Sierra Stockholder's previous proxy.

Solicitation of Proxies

Under the MCC Merger Agreement and the MDLY Merger Agreement, all fees and expenses incurred in connection with the MCC Merger Agreement and the MDLY Merger Agreement, and the transactions contemplated thereby, including the MCC Merger and the MDLY Merger, as the case may be, are to be paid by the party incurring such fees or expenses, which Sierra anticipates will be approximately $9,000,000, which includes $4,230,000 relating to financial advisory fees and expenses, $3,700,000 relating to legal, accounting and other professional services, $66,000 relating to SEC filing fees, and $1,000,000 relating to proxy solicitation, printing and mailing costs; provided, that the costs and expenses of preparing, filing, printing and mailing this Registration Statement on Form N-14 and this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus, all other filing fees and amounts paid to the SEC in connection with the Mergers, and the fees of any HSR Act filing shall be borne equally by Sierra, MCC, and MDLY.

Proxies will be solicited by mail or by requesting brokers and other custodians, nominees and fiduciaries to forward proxy soliciting material to the beneficial owners of shares of Sierra Common Stock held of record by such brokers, custodians, nominees and fiduciaries, each of whom Sierra, MCC, and MDLY will reimburse for its expenses in so doing. In addition to the use of mail, directors, officers and regular employees of Sierra's investment adviser or Sierra's administrator, without special compensation therefor, may solicit proxies personally or by telephone, electronic mail, facsimile or other electronic means from Sierra Stockholders.

Sierra has engaged the services of Alliance Advisors LLC, for the purpose of assisting in the solicitation of proxies at an anticipated cost of approximately $242,000, plus reimbursement of certain expenses and fees for additional services requested. Please note that Alliance Advisors LLC may solicit proxies by telephone on behalf of Sierra. They will not attempt to influence how Sierra Stockholders vote their shares of Sierra Common Stock, but only ask that Sierra Stockholders take the time to authorize their respective proxies. Sierra Stockholders may also be asked if they would like to authorize a proxy over the telephone and to have their voting instructions transmitted to Sierra's proxy solicitor.

Sierra will mail a copy of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus, including the Notice of Special Meeting and the proxy card included with these materials, to each holder of record of Sierra Common Stock as of the Sierra Record Date.

Dissenters' Rights

Sierra Stockholders do not have the right to exercise dissenters' rights with respect to any matter to be voted upon at the Sierra Special Meeting.

Independent Tabulator

Sierra will retain an independent tabulator to receive and tabulate the proxies and independent inspectors of election to certify the results of the Sierra Special Meeting.

THE MCC SPECIAL MEETING

Date, Time and Place of the MCC Special Meeting

The MCC Special Meeting will take place on February 8, 2019 at 9:00 A.M., Eastern Time, at the offices of Eversheds Sutherland (US) LLP located at 1114 Avenue of the Americas, 40th Floor, New York, New York 10036.

MCC encourages you to vote your shares prior to the MCC Special Meeting, either via the Internet, by telephone, or by granting a proxy authorizing a proxy holder to vote your shares. If you properly sign and date the accompanying WHITE proxy card, and MCC receives your proxy card or vote prior to the MCC Special Meeting, the persons named as proxies will vote your shares of MCC Common Stock in the manner that you specify. MCC Stockholders of record on the MCC Record Date (as defined below) may also vote via the Internet or by telephone prior to the MCC Special Meeting, or authorize a proxy to vote their shares. MCC Stockholders entitled to vote at the MCC Special Meeting who are interested in voting via the Internet or by telephone should review the specific instructions shown on the enclosed proxy card. The Internet and telephone procedures shown on the enclosed proxy card are designed to authenticate the MCC Stockholder's identity and to allow MCC Stockholders to cause the vote of their shares of MCC Common Stock at the MCC Special Meeting.

Purpose of the MCC Special Meeting

At the MCC Special Meeting, MCC Stockholders will be asked to consider and vote on the following proposals:

- 1) a proposal to approve the adoption of the MCC Merger Agreement; and
- 2) a proposal to approve the adjournment of the MCC Special Meeting, if necessary or appropriate, to solicit additional proxies if there are not sufficient votes at the time of the MCC Special Meeting to approve the adoption of the MCC Merger Agreement.

For more information, see "Special Factors," "Description of the MCC Merger Agreement," "MCC Proposal #1: Approval of the Adoption of the MCC Merger Agreement," and "MCC Proposal #2: Possible Adjournment to Solicit Additional Proxies, if Necessary or Appropriate."

BASED UPON THE RECOMMENDATION OF THE MCC SPECIAL COMMITTEE, THE MCC BOARD UNANIMOUSLY RECOMMENDS THAT MCC STOCKHOLDERS VOTE:

- "FOR" THE APPROVAL OF THE ADOPTION OF THE MCC MERGER AGREEMENT.
- "FOR" THE ADJOURNMENT OF THE MCC SPECIAL MEETING, IF NECESSARY OR APPROPRIATE, TO SOLICIT ADDITIONAL PROXIES IF THERE ARE NOT SUFFICIENT VOTES AT THE TIME OF THE MCC SPECIAL MEETING TO APPROVE THE ADOPTION OF THE MCC MERGER AGREEMENT.

Record Date

The MCC Record Date for the MCC Special Meeting is the close of business on December 21, 2018. As of the MCC Record Date, there were 54,474,211 shares of MCC Common Stock outstanding and entitled to vote, held by approximately 11 holders of record. The MCC Record Date was established by the MCC Board and only MCC Stockholders as of such date are entitled to receive notice of the MCC Special Meeting and to vote at the MCC Special Meeting. In the event that the MCC Special Meeting is adjourned or postponed, MCC Stockholders as of the MCC Record Date would be entitled to vote at the adjourned or postponed MCC Special Meeting (unless the MCC Board fixes a new record date for the MCC Special Meeting). See "Vote Required" below.

Quorum and Adjournments

A quorum is required to be present in order to conduct business at the MCC Special Meeting. The presence, in person or by proxy, of the holders of a majority of outstanding shares of MCC Common Stock as of the MCC Record Date will constitute a quorum for the purposes of the MCC Special Meeting. Proxies properly executed and marked with a positive vote, a negative vote or an abstention will be considered present at the MCC Special Meeting for purposes of determining whether a quorum is present for the transaction of all business at the MCC Special Meeting.

MCC Stockholders will also be asked to consider a proposal to adjourn the MCC Special Meeting for the solicitation of additional votes, if necessary or appropriate. Such adjournment will be permitted if approved by a majority of the votes cast by the holders of shares of MCC Common Stock present in person or by proxy at the MCC Special Meeting, whether or not a quorum exists. Abstentions will have no effect on the adjournment vote. Abstentions and “broker non-votes” shall not be counted as votes cast on the adjournment proposal and will have no effect on the adjournment vote. In addition, a majority of MCC Board present at the MCC Special Meeting will have the authority to adjourn the MCC Special Meeting from time-to-time for any reason and without the vote or approval of MCC Stockholders.

Vote Required

MCC Proposal #1: Approval of the Adoption of the MCC Merger Agreement.

MCC Stockholders may vote “FOR” or “AGAINST,” or they may “ABSTAIN” from voting on, the proposal to approve the adoption of the MCC Merger Agreement. A majority of the outstanding shares of MCC Common Stock as of the MCC Record Date must affirmatively vote “FOR” the proposal in order for it to be approved. Because the vote on the proposal is based on the total number of shares outstanding, abstentions and “broker non-votes” will have the same effect as voting “AGAINST” the approval of the proposal.

MCC Proposal #2: Adjournment of the MCC Special Meeting to Solicit Additional Proxies, if necessary or appropriate.

MCC Stockholders may vote “FOR” or “AGAINST,” or they may “ABSTAIN” from voting on, the proposal to approve the adjournment of the MCC Special Meeting, if necessary or appropriate, to solicit additional proxies if there are not sufficient votes at the time of the MCC Special Meeting to approve the adoption of the MCC Merger Agreement. A majority of the votes cast by the holders of MCC Common Stock as of the MCC Record Date present or represented by proxy at the MCC Special Meeting must affirmatively vote “FOR” the proposal in order for it to be approved (meaning the number of shares voted “FOR” the proposal must exceed the number of shares voted “AGAINST” the proposal). Abstentions and “broker non-votes” are not considered votes cast on the adjournment proposal, and will have no effect on the vote for the proposal.

Voting of Directors and Executive Officers

As of the MCC Record Date, MCC’s executive officers and directors owned beneficially or of record 8,172,448 shares of MCC Common Stock, representing approximately 15.0% of the outstanding shares of MCC Common Stock on that date. Shares of MCC Common Stock that are deemed to be controlled by Management will be echo voted in the same manner and proportion as the shares of MCC Common Stock voted by the unaffiliated MCC Stockholders.

Voting Methods

Whether or not you plan to attend the MCC Special Meeting, MCC encourages you to vote by proxy to ensure your vote is counted. You may still attend the MCC Special Meeting and vote in person, even if you have already voted by proxy. A MCC Stockholder may submit a proxy or vote shares of MCC Common Stock by any of the following methods:

- By Telephone or the Internet. MCC Stockholders can cause their shares of MCC Common Stock to be voted by authorizing proxies via telephone or the Internet as instructed in the proxy card or the voting instruction form. The telephone and Internet procedures are designed to authenticate a MCC Stockholder’s identity, to allow MCC Stockholders to cause their shares to be voted and to confirm that their instructions have been properly recorded.

- By Mail. MCC Stockholders who receive a paper proxy card or voting instruction form or request a paper proxy card or voting instruction form by telephone or the Internet may elect to vote by mail and should complete, sign and date the proxy card or voting instruction form and mail it in the pre-addressed envelope that accompanies the delivery of the proxy card or voting instruction form. For MCC Stockholders of record, proxy cards submitted by mail must be received by the date and time of the MCC Special Meeting. For MCC Stockholders who hold their shares through an intermediary, such as a broker, bank or other nominee, the voting instruction form submitted by mail must be mailed by the deadline imposed by such MCC Stockholder's broker, bank or other nominee for the shares of MCC Common Stock to be voted.
- By Attending In Person. Shares of MCC Common Stock held in a MCC Stockholder's name as the MCC Stockholder of record on the MCC Record Date may be voted by such MCC Stockholder in person at the MCC Special Meeting. Shares of MCC Common Stock held beneficially by a MCC Stockholder in street name on the MCC Record Date may be voted by such MCC Stockholder in person at the MCC Special Meeting only if such MCC Stockholder obtains a legal proxy from the broker, bank or other nominee that holds such MCC Stockholder's shares of MCC Common Stock giving such MCC Stockholder the right to vote the shares of MCC Common Stock and brings that proxy to the MCC Special Meeting.

For shares of MCC Common Stock held through a broker, bank or other nominee, a MCC Stockholder may vote by submitting voting instructions to the broker, bank or nominee.

Voting of Proxies

A proxy is a stockholder's legal designation of another person to vote the stock that such stockholder owns. That other person is called a proxy. If a stockholder designates someone as a proxy in a written document, that document is also called a proxy or a proxy card. Brook Taube and Richard T. Allorto, Jr. have been designated as proxies by the MCC Board for the MCC Special Meeting.

All shares of MCC Common Stock represented by properly executed proxies received in time for the MCC Special Meeting will be voted in the manner specified by MCC Stockholders submitting those proxies, unless validly revoked or withdrawn prior to the MCC Special Meeting. Properly executed proxies that do not contain voting instructions will be voted "FOR" the approval of each matter to be voted on at the MCC Special Meeting. MCC Stockholders may also instruct the proxy solicitor on how to cast their vote by calling the proxy solicitor or via the Internet pursuant to the instructions shown on the proxy card.

Under the DGCL and the MCC Bylaws, only the matters stated in the Notice of Special Meeting will be presented for action at the MCC Special Meeting or at any adjournment or postponement of the MCC Special Meeting.

If a MCC Stockholder holds shares of MCC Common Stock in an account through a broker, bank or other institution or nominee, the institution or nominee will not vote such MCC Stockholder's shares unless such MCC Stockholder provides instructions to the institution or nominee on how to vote their shares of MCC Common Stock. These MCC Stockholders should instruct their institution or nominee how to vote their shares of MCC Common Stock by following the voting instructions provided by each institution or nominee. Such MCC Stockholders may vote such shares of MCC Common Stock at the MCC Special Meeting only if the MCC Stockholder obtains proper written authority from such institution or nominee and presents it at the MCC Special Meeting.

Revocability of Proxies

Any MCC Stockholder of record (i.e., a MCC Stockholder holding shares of MCC Common Stock directly in such MCC Stockholder's name) submitting a valid proxy for the MCC Special Meeting may revoke it before it is exercised by (i) submitting a later dated properly executed proxy, (ii) submitting notice of revocation to MCC in writing before or at the MCC Special Meeting, (iii) attending the MCC Special Meeting and voting at the MCC Special Meeting or (iv) voting electronically, as described above. However, the mere presence at the MCC Special Meeting by the MCC Stockholder does not revoke the proxy. If the MCC Stockholder's shares are held in an account by a broker, bank or other institution or nominee, to revoke any voting instructions prior to the time the vote is taken at the MCC Special Meeting, the MCC Stockholder must contact such broker, bank or other institution or nominee to determine how to revoke the MCC Stockholder's vote in accordance with the policies of the broker, bank or other institution or nominee a sufficient time in advance of the MCC Special Meeting.

Unless revoked as stated above, the shares of MCC Common Stock represented by valid proxies will be voted on all matters to be acted upon at the MCC Special Meeting. MCC Stockholders may revoke a proxy by any of these methods regardless of the method used to deliver a MCC Stockholder's previous proxy.

Solicitation of Proxies

Under the MCC Merger Agreement, all fees and expenses incurred in connection with the MCC Merger, the MCC Merger Agreement, and the transactions contemplated by the MCC Merger Agreement are to be paid by the party incurring such fees or expenses, which MCC anticipates will be approximately $5,800,000, which includes $3,300,000 relating to financial advisory fees and expenses, $2,000,000 relating to legal, accounting and other professional services, and $500,000 relating to proxy solicitation, printing and mailing costs; provided, that the costs and expenses of preparing, filing, printing and mailing this Registration Statement on Form N-14 and this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus, all other filing fees and amounts paid to the SEC in connection with the MCC Merger, and the fees of any HSR Act filing shall be borne equally by MCC and Sierra.

Proxies will be solicited by mail or by requesting brokers and other custodians, nominees and fiduciaries to forward proxy soliciting material to the beneficial owners of shares of MCC Common Stock held of record by such brokers, custodians, nominees and fiduciaries, each of whom Sierra, MCC, and MDLY will reimburse for its expenses in so doing. In addition to the use of mail, directors, officers and regular employees of MCC's investment adviser or MCC's administrator, without special compensation therefor, may solicit proxies personally or by telephone, electronic mail, facsimile or other electronic means from MCC Stockholders.

MCC has engaged the services of Alliance Advisors LLC, for the purpose of assisting in the solicitation of proxies at an anticipated cost of approximately $242,000, plus reimbursement of certain expenses and fees for additional services requested. Please note that Alliance Advisors LLC may solicit proxies by telephone on behalf of MCC. They will not attempt to influence how MCC Stockholders vote their shares of MCC Common Stock, but only ask that MCC Stockholders take the time to authorize their respective proxies. MCC Stockholders may also be asked if they would like to authorize a proxy over the telephone and to have their voting instructions transmitted to MCC's proxy solicitor.

MCC will mail a copy of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus, including the Notice of Special Meeting and the proxy card included with these materials, to each holder of record of MCC Common Stock on the MCC Record Date.

Dissenters' Rights

MCC Stockholders do not have the right to exercise dissenters' rights with respect to any matter to be voted upon at the MCC Special Meeting.

Independent Tabulator

MCC will retain an independent tabulator to receive and tabulate the proxies and independent inspectors of election to certify the results of the MCC Special Meeting.

THE MDLY SPECIAL MEETING

Date, Time and Place of the MDLY Special Meeting

The MDLY Special Meeting will take place on February 8, 2019 at 3:00 P.M., Eastern Time, at the offices of Eversheds Sutherland (US) LLP located at 1114 Avenue of the Americas, 40th Floor, New York, New York 10036.

MDLY encourages you to vote your shares prior to the MDLY Special Meeting, either via the Internet, by telephone, or by granting a proxy authorizing a proxy holder to vote your shares. If you properly sign and date the accompanying proxy card, and MDLY receives your proxy card or vote prior to the MDLY Special Meeting, the persons named as proxies will vote your shares of MDLY Common Stock in the manner that you specify. MDLY Stockholders of record on the MDLY Record Date (as defined below) may also vote via the Internet or by telephone prior to the MDLY Special Meeting, or authorize a proxy to vote their shares. MDLY Stockholders entitled to vote at the MDLY Special Meeting who are interested in voting via the Internet or by telephone should review the specific instructions shown on the enclosed proxy card. The Internet and telephone procedures shown on the enclosed proxy card are designed to authenticate the MDLY Stockholder's identity and to allow MDLY Stockholders to cause the vote of their shares of MDLY Common Stock at the MDLY Special Meeting.

Purpose of the MDLY Special Meeting

At the MDLY Special Meeting, MDLY Stockholders will be asked to consider and vote on the following proposals:

- 1) a proposal to approve the adoption of the MDLY Merger Agreement; and
- 2) a proposal to approve the adjournment of the MDLY Special Meeting, if necessary or appropriate, to solicit additional proxies if there are not sufficient votes at the time of the MDLY Special Meeting to approve the adoption of the MDLY Merger Agreement.

For more information, see "Special Factors," "Description of the MDLY Merger Agreement," "MDLY Proposal #1: Approval of the adoption of the MDLY Merger Agreement," and "MDLY Proposal #2: Possible Adjournment to Solicit Additional Proxies, if Necessary or Appropriate."

BASED UPON THE RECOMMENDATION OF THE MDLY SPECIAL COMMITTEE, THE MDLY BOARD UNANIMOUSLY RECOMMENDS THAT MDLY STOCKHOLDERS VOTE:

- "FOR" THE APPROVAL OF THE ADOPTION OF THE MDLY MERGER AGREEMENT.
- "FOR" THE ADJOURNMENT OF THE MDLY SPECIAL MEETING, IF NECESSARY OR APPROPRIATE, TO SOLICIT ADDITIONAL PROXIES IF THERE ARE NOT SUFFICIENT VOTES AT THE TIME OF THE MDLY SPECIAL MEETING TO APPROVE THE ADOPTION OF THE MDLY MERGER AGREEMENT.

Record Date

The MDLY Record Date for the MDLY Special Meeting is the close of business on December 21, 2018. As of the MDLY Record Date, there were 5,701,008 shares of MDLY Class A Common Stock outstanding and entitled to vote, held by approximately 6 holders of record, that will carry an aggregate of 5,701,008 votes at the MDLY Special Meeting and 100 shares of MDLY Class B Common Stock outstanding and entitled to vote, held by approximately one holder of record, that will carry an aggregate of 244,153,020 votes at the MDLY Special Meeting. The MDLY Record Date was established by the MDLY Board and only MDLY Stockholders as of such date are entitled to receive notice of the MDLY Special Meeting and to vote at the MDLY Special Meeting. In the event that the MDLY Special Meeting is adjourned or postponed, MDLY Stockholders as of the MDLY Record Date would be entitled to vote at the adjourned or postponed MDLY Special Meeting (unless the MDLY Board fixes a new record date for the MDLY Special Meeting). See "—Vote Required" and "—Voting of Directors and Executive Officers" below.

Quorum and Adjournments

A quorum is required to be present in order to conduct business at the MDLY Special Meeting. The presence, in person or by proxy, of the holders of a majority in voting power of the MDLY Common Stock issued and outstanding as of the MDLY Record Date will constitute a quorum for the purposes of the MDLY Special Meeting. Proxies properly executed and marked with a positive vote, a negative vote or an abstention will be considered present at the MDLY Special Meeting for purposes of determining whether a quorum is present for the transaction of all business at the MDLY Special Meeting.

MDLY Stockholders will be asked to consider a proposal to adjourn the MDLY Special Meeting to solicit additional proxies, if necessary or appropriate. Whether or not a quorum exists, such adjournment will be permitted if approved by a majority of the votes cast by the holders of shares of MDLY Common Stock as of the MDLY Record Date present in person or by proxy at the MDLY Special Meeting. Abstentions and “broker non-votes” shall not be counted as votes cast on the adjournment proposal and will have no effect on the adjournment vote. In addition, the chairman of the MDLY Special Meeting will have the authority to adjourn the MDLY Special Meeting from time-to-time for any reason without notice and without the vote or approval of the MDLY Stockholders.

Vote Required

MDLY Proposal #1: Approval of the Adoption of the MDLY Merger Agreement.

MDLY Stockholders may vote “FOR” or “AGAINST,” or they may “ABSTAIN” from voting on, the proposal to approve the adoption of the MDLY Merger Agreement. The holders of a majority of the voting power of the outstanding shares of MDLY Common Stock as of the MDLY Record Date must affirmatively vote “FOR” the proposal in order for it to be approved. Because the vote on the proposal is based on the total number of shares outstanding, abstentions and “broker non-votes” will have the same effect as voting “AGAINST” the approval of the proposal.

MDLY Proposal #2: Adjournment of the MDLY Special Meeting to Solicit Additional Proxies, if necessary or appropriate.

MDLY Stockholders may vote “FOR” or “AGAINST,” or they may “ABSTAIN” from voting on the proposal to approve the adjournment of the MDLY Special Meeting, if necessary or appropriate, to solicit additional proxies if there are not sufficient votes at the time of the MDLY Special Meeting to approve the adoption of the MDLY Merger Agreement. The holders of a majority of the votes cast by the holders of shares of MDLY Common Stock as of the MDLY Record Date present in person or by proxy at the MDLY Special Meeting must affirmatively vote “FOR” the proposal in order for it to be approved (meaning the number of shares voted “FOR” a proposal must exceed the number of shares voted “AGAINST” such proposal). Abstentions and “broker non-votes” are not considered votes cast on the adjournment proposal, and will have no effect on the vote for the proposal.

Voting of Directors and Executive Officers

As of the MDLY Record Date, MDLY’s executive officers and directors owned beneficially or of record 326,623 shares of MDLY Class A Common Stock and 100 shares of MDLY Class B Common Stock, representing approximately 5.7% and 100% of the outstanding shares of MDLY Class A Common Stock and MDLY Class B Common Stock, respectively, on that date. Medley Group LLC, an entity wholly owned by members of Management, holds all 100 issued and outstanding shares of MDLY Class B Common Stock. As the holder of MDLY Class B Common Stock and in accordance with the voting rights set forth in the MDLY Certificate, Medley Group LLC is currently entitled to a number of votes that is equal to 10 times the aggregate number of Medley LLC Units held by all non-managing members of Medley LLC that do not themselves hold shares of MDLY Class B Common Stock times the Exchange Rate (as defined in the Exchange Agreement), which is currently one-for-one. For more information about the voting rights of MDLY Class A Common Stock and MDLY Class B Common Stock, see “Description of MDLY’s Capital Stock — Common Stock.”

As a result of the Mergers, similar to all holders of MDLY Class A Common Stock, members of Management will receive shares of Combined Company Common Stock as part of the consideration being paid to MDLY Stockholders. Management has agreed to refrain from trading any such shares of the Combined Company Common Stock for a period of 12 months following the consummation of the Mergers. However, at the end of such 12-month period, members of Management will be able to sell their shares of the Combined Company Common Stock in the open market, subject to certain volume limitations under the securities laws.

Voting Methods

Whether or not you plan to attend the MDLY Special Meeting, MDLY encourages you to vote by proxy to ensure your vote is counted. You may still attend the MDLY Special Meeting and vote in person, even if you have already voted by proxy. A MDLY Stockholder may submit a proxy or vote shares of MDLY Common Stock by any of the following methods:

- By Telephone or the Internet. MDLY Stockholders can cause their shares of MDLY Common Stock to be voted by authorizing proxies via telephone or the Internet as instructed in the proxy card or the voting instruction form. The telephone and Internet procedures are designed to authenticate a MDLY Stockholder's identity, to allow MDLY Stockholders to cause their shares to be voted and to confirm that their instructions have been properly recorded.
- By Mail. MDLY Stockholders who receive a paper proxy card or voting instruction form or request a paper proxy card or voting instruction form by telephone or the Internet may elect to vote by mail and should complete, sign and date the proxy card or voting instruction form and mail it in the pre-addressed envelope that accompanies the delivery of the proxy card or voting instruction form. For MDLY Stockholders of record, proxy cards submitted by mail must be received by the date and time of the MDLY Special Meeting. For MDLY Stockholders who hold their shares through an intermediary, such as a broker, bank or other nominee, the voting instruction form submitted by mail must be mailed by the deadline imposed by such MDLY Stockholder's broker, bank or other nominee for the shares of MDLY Common Stock to be voted.
- By Attending In Person. Shares of MDLY Common Stock held in a MDLY Stockholder's name as the MDLY Stockholder of record on the MDLY Record Date may be voted by such MDLY Stockholder in person at the MDLY Special Meeting. Shares of MDLY Common Stock held beneficially by a MDLY Stockholder in street name on the MDLY Record Date may be voted by such MDLY Stockholder in person at the MDLY Special Meeting only if such MDLY Stockholder obtains a legal proxy from the broker, bank or other nominee that holds such MDLY Stockholder's shares of MDLY Common Stock giving such MDLY Stockholder the right to vote the shares of MDLY Common Stock and brings that proxy to the MDLY Special Meeting.

For shares of MDLY Common Stock held through a broker, bank or other nominee, a MDLY Stockholder may vote by submitting voting instructions to the broker, bank or nominee.

Voting of Proxies

A proxy is a stockholder's legal designation of another person to vote the stock that such stockholder owns. That other person is called a proxy. If a stockholder designates someone as a proxy in a written document, that document is also called a proxy or a proxy card. Brook Taube and John D. Fredericks have been designated as proxies by the MDLY Board for the MDLY Special Meeting.

All shares of MDLY Common Stock represented by properly executed proxies received in time for the MDLY Special Meeting will be voted in the manner specified by MDLY Stockholders submitting those proxies, unless validly revoked or withdrawn prior to the MDLY Special Meeting. Properly executed proxies that do not contain voting instructions will be voted "FOR" the approval of each matter to be voted on at the MDLY Special Meeting. MDLY Stockholders may also instruct the proxy solicitor on how to cast their vote by calling the proxy solicitor or via the Internet pursuant to the instructions shown on the proxy card.

Under the DGCL and the MDLY Bylaws, only the matters stated in the Notice of Special Meeting will be presented for action at the MDLY Special Meeting or at any adjournment or postponement of the MDLY Special Meeting.

If a MDLY Stockholder holds shares of MDLY Common Stock in an account through a broker, bank or other institution or nominee, the institution or nominee will not vote such MDLY Stockholder's shares unless such MDLY Stockholder provides instructions to the institution or nominee on how to vote their shares of MDLY Common Stock. These MDLY Stockholders should instruct their institution or nominee how to vote their shares of MDLY Common Stock by following the voting instructions provided by each institution or nominee. Such MDLY Stockholders may vote such shares of MDLY Common Stock at the MDLY Special Meeting only if the MDLY Stockholder obtains proper written authority from such institution or nominee and presents it at the MDLY Special Meeting.

Revocability of Proxies

Any MDLY Stockholder of record (i.e., a MDLY Stockholder holding shares of MDLY Common Stock directly in such MDLY Stockholder's name) submitting a valid proxy for the MDLY Special Meeting may revoke it before it is exercised by (i) submitting a later dated properly executed proxy, (ii) submitting notice of revocation to MDLY in writing before or at the MDLY Special Meeting, (iii) attending the MDLY Special Meeting and voting at the MDLY Special Meeting or (iv) voting electronically, as described above. However, the mere presence at the MDLY Special Meeting by the MDLY Stockholder does not revoke the proxy. If the MDLY Stockholder's shares are held in an account by a broker, bank or other institution or nominee, to revoke any voting instructions prior to the time the vote is taken at the MDLY Special Meeting, the MDLY Stockholder must contact such broker, bank or other institution or nominee to determine how to revoke the MDLY Stockholder's vote in accordance with the policies of the broker, bank or other institution or nominee a sufficient time in advance of the MDLY Special Meeting.

Unless revoked as stated above, the shares of MDLY Common Stock represented by valid proxies will be voted on all matters to be acted upon at the MDLY Special Meeting. MDLY Stockholders may revoke a proxy by any of these methods regardless of the method used to deliver a MDLY Stockholder's previous proxy.

Solicitation of Proxies

Under the MDLY Merger Agreement, all fees and expenses incurred in connection with the MDLY Merger, the MDLY Merger Agreement, and the transactions contemplated by the MDLY Merger Agreement are to be paid by the party incurring such fees or expenses, which MDLY anticipates will be approximately $8,151,000, which includes $5,385,000 relating to financial advisory fees and expenses, $2,570,000 relating to legal, accounting and other professional services, $71,000 relating to proxy solicitation, printing and mailing costs, and $125,000 relating to miscellaneous expenses; provided, that the costs and expenses of preparing, filing, printing and mailing this Registration Statement on Form N-14 and this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus, all other filing fees and amounts paid to the SEC in connection with the MDLY Merger, and the fees of any HSR Act filing shall be borne equally by MDLY and Sierra.

Proxies will be solicited by mail or by requesting brokers and other custodians, nominees and fiduciaries to forward proxy soliciting material to the beneficial owners of shares of MDLY Common Stock held of record by such brokers, custodians, nominees and fiduciaries, each of whom Sierra, MCC, and MDLY will reimburse for its expenses in so doing. In addition to the use of mail, directors, officers and regular employees of MDLY, without special compensation therefor, may solicit proxies personally or by telephone, electronic mail, facsimile or other electronic means from MDLY Stockholders.

MDLY has engaged the services of Innisfree M&A Incorporated and Alliance Advisors LLC, for the purpose of assisting in the solicitation of proxies at an anticipated total cost of approximately $142,000, plus reimbursement of certain expenses and fees for additional services requested. Please note that Innisfree M&A Incorporated may solicit proxies by telephone on behalf of MDLY. They will not attempt to influence how MDLY Stockholders vote their shares of MDLY Common Stock, but only ask that MDLY Stockholders take the time to authorize their respective proxies. MDLY Stockholders may also be asked if they would like to authorize a proxy over the telephone and to have their voting instructions transmitted to MDLY's proxy solicitor.

MDLY will mail a copy of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus, including the Notice of Special Meeting and the proxy card included with these materials, to each holder of record of MDLY Common Stock on the MDLY Record Date.

Appraisal Rights

MDLY Stockholders are entitled to appraisal rights under Section 262 of the DGCL in connection with the MDLY Merger, provided they follow the procedures and satisfy the conditions set forth in Section 262 of the DGCL. A copy of Section 262 of the DGCL is attached as Appendix L to this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus. Failure to strictly comply with Section 262 of the DGCL will result in the loss of appraisal rights. A proxy or vote against the MDLY Merger proposal will not be deemed an appraisal demand. Due to the complexity of the provisions of Section 262 of the DGCL, any MDLY Stockholder considering exercising its appraisal rights under Section 262 of the DGCL is urged to consult his, her or its own legal advisor. See "Description of the MDLY Merger Agreement — Appraisal Rights" and "Appraisal Rights of MDLY Stockholders."

Independent Tabulator

MDLY will retain an independent tabulator to receive and tabulate the proxies and independent inspectors of election to certify the results of the MDLY Special Meeting.

DESCRIPTION OF THE MCC MERGER AGREEMENT

Explanatory Note Regarding the MCC Merger Agreement

The following summary describes the material provisions of the MCC Merger Agreement. The descriptions of the MCC Merger Agreement in this summary and elsewhere in this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus are not complete and are qualified in their entirety by reference to the MCC Merger Agreement, a copy of which is attached to this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus as Appendix A and incorporated by reference in its entirety into this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus. You should read the MCC Merger Agreement carefully and in its entirety because this summary may not contain all the information about the MCC Merger Agreement that is important to you.

The representations, warranties and covenants of Sierra and MCC contained in the MCC Merger Agreement have been made solely for the benefit of the parties thereto. In addition, the representations and warranties contained in the MCC Merger Agreement (a) have been made only for purposes of the MCC Merger Agreement, (b) have been qualified by (i) matters specifically disclosed in Sierra's and MCC's filings with the SEC filed or furnished since December 31, 2014, and (ii) confidential disclosures made in the disclosure schedules delivered in connection with the MCC Merger Agreement, (c) are subject to applicable materiality qualifications contained in the MCC Merger Agreement which may differ from what may be viewed as material by investors, (d) were made only as of the date of the MCC Merger Agreement or such other date as is specified in the MCC Merger Agreement and (e) have been included in the MCC Merger Agreement for the purpose of allocating risk between the contracting parties rather than establishing matters as fact. Accordingly, the MCC Merger Agreement is included with this filing only to provide investors with information regarding the terms of the MCC Merger Agreement, and not to provide investors with any other factual information regarding MCC or Sierra or their respective businesses. Investors should not rely on the representations and warranties or any descriptions thereof as characterizations of the actual state of facts or condition of MCC or Sierra or any of their respective subsidiaries or affiliates. Moreover, information concerning the subject matter of the representations and warranties may change after the date of the MCC Merger Agreement, which subsequent information may or may not be fully reflected in Sierra's or MCC's public disclosures. The representations and warranties in the MCC Merger Agreement and the description of them in this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus should not be read alone but instead should be read in conjunction with the other information contained in this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus and the other reports, statements and filings Sierra and MCC file publicly with the SEC.

The MCC Merger

Pursuant to the MCC Merger Agreement, subject to certain conditions described therein, at the MCC Merger Closing, MCC will merge with and into Sierra, and the separate corporate existence of MCC shall cease. Sierra shall be the surviving company in the MCC Merger and shall continue its existence as a corporation under the laws of the State of Maryland. The MCC Merger will become effective at the MCC Merger Effective Time set forth in a certificate of merger (the "MCC Certificate of Merger") to be filed with the Secretary of State of the State of Delaware (the "Delaware Secretary") and articles of merger (the "MCC Articles of Merger") to be filed with the State Department of Assessments and Taxation for the State of Maryland ("SDAT").

The MCC Board, acting upon the recommendation of the MCC Special Committee, has unanimously approved and declared advisable the MCC Merger and the MCC Merger Agreement and determined that the MCC Merger and the other transactions contemplated by the MCC Merger Agreement are advisable and in the best interests of MCC and the MCC Stockholders, and recommends that the MCC Stockholders vote "FOR" the approval of the adoption of the MCC Merger Agreement and the transactions contemplated thereby (the "MCC Board Recommendation"). The Sierra Board, including the Sierra Special Committee has determined that the MCC Merger, the MCC Merger Agreement, the issuance of the MCC Merger Shares (as defined below) and the other transactions contemplated by the MCC Merger Agreement are advisable and in the best interests of Sierra and the Sierra Stockholders, has approved the (i) the MCC Merger, (ii) the Combined Company Investment Advisory Agreement, (iii) the Sierra Charter Amendments, and (iv) any other matters required to be approved or adopted by the Sierra Stockholders in order to effect the MCC Merger, the related issuance of the MCC Merger Shares, and the other transactions contemplated by the MCC Merger Agreement (collectively, the "Sierra-MCC Matters") and has directed that the Sierra-MCC Matters be submitted to the Sierra Stockholders for approval and adoption at the Sierra Special Meeting, together with the recommendation of the Sierra Board that the Sierra Stockholders approve and adopt the Sierra Matters (the "Sierra Board Recommendation").

Merger Consideration

In the MCC Merger, each share MCC Common Stock (other than the Excluded MCC Shares) will be converted into the right to receive 0.8050 shares of Sierra Common Stock; provided, however, that a holder of MCC Common Stock who would otherwise be entitled to receive a fraction of a share of Sierra Common Stock shall, with respect to such fraction of a share, instead receive an amount in cash (rounded to the nearest cent) determined by multiplying (i) the most recently determined NAV per share of Sierra Common Stock by (ii) the fraction of a share (after taking into account all shares of MCC Common Stock held by such holder at the MCC Merger Effective Time and rounded to the nearest thousandth when expressed in decimal form) that such holder would otherwise be entitled to receive. The MCC Merger Shares and such cash payable in lieu of fractional shares of Sierra Common Stock is referred to collectively as the “MCC Merger Consideration.” It is intended that the MCC Merger shall constitute a “reorganization” within the meaning of Section 368(a) of the Code, and that the MCC Merger Agreement shall constitute a “plan of reorganization” for such purposes.

If, between the date of the MCC Merger Agreement and the MCC Merger Effective Time, the outstanding shares of Sierra Common Stock are increased, decreased, changed into or exchanged for a different number or kind of shares or securities as a result of a reclassification, stock dividend, stock split, reverse stock split, or other similar change and specifically excluding sales of Sierra Common Stock, sales of Sierra equity-linked securities, and issuance of Sierra Common Stock pursuant to the Sierra Distribution Reinvestment Plan or otherwise in lieu of a portion of any cash dividend declared by Sierra, an appropriate and proportionate adjustment shall be made to the MCC Exchange Ratio.

Prior to the MCC Merger Closing Date, in the event that MCC has undistributed investment company taxable income (as defined in Section 852(b)(2) of the Code) or net capital gain (as defined in Section 1221(11) of the Code) for MCC’s short taxable year ending on the MCC Merger Closing Date, MCC shall declare a dividend (the “Final MCC Dividend”) to holders of shares of MCC Common Stock. The Final MCC Dividend, together with all previous MCC dividends with respect to MCC’s taxable year ending on the MCC Merger Closing Date, shall result in MCC distributing to the MCC Stockholders all of MCC’s undistributed investment company taxable income (as defined in Section 852(b)(2) of the Code) and all of MCC’s net capital gain (as defined in Section 1221(11) of the Code) for MCC’s taxable year ending on the MCC Merger Closing Date. If MCC determines it necessary to declare a Final MCC Dividend, it shall notify Sierra at least ten days prior to MCC Special Meeting.

Sierra Charter and Bylaws

Pursuant to the MCC Merger Agreement, the Sierra Board reviewed and approved the Sierra Charter Amendments, which Sierra Charter Amendments were acceptable to the MCC Board, including the MCC Special Committee, in order to remove terms inconsistent with, and to add terms advisable to reflect, the publicly traded nature of the Combined Company following the MCC Merger Effective Time. The Third Amended and Restated Sierra Charter and the Articles of Amendment to the Third Amended Restated Sierra Charter, which comprise the Sierra Charter Amendments, are attached to this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus as Appendix H and Appendix I. Sierra Stockholders are being asked to vote to adopt the Sierra Charter Amendments. See “Sierra Proposal #5: Adoption of Sierra Charter Amendments.”

The Sierra Board has also reviewed and approved an amendment and restatement of the Sierra Bylaws (the “Amended and Restated Sierra Bylaws”), which Amended and Restated Sierra Bylaws were acceptable to the MCC Board, including the MCC Special Committee, in order to remove terms inconsistent with, and to add terms advisable to reflect, the publicly traded nature of the Combined Company following the MCC Merger Effective Time. The Amended and Restated Sierra Bylaws are attached to this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus as Appendix J.

Officers and Directors of the Surviving Company

Under the MCC Merger Agreement, Sierra has agreed to take such actions as may be required by the Sierra Charter and Sierra Bylaws in order to appoint the individuals to serve as directors of Sierra, as the surviving company in the MCC Merger, effective as of the MCC Merger Effective Time, which individuals shall consist of the current independent directors of Sierra, one interested director of Sierra and two independent directors of MCC. The identities of the individuals so appointed are described under “Information about the Combined Company — Management.”

In addition, the Sierra Board has appointed the individuals who will serve as the officers of Sierra, as the surviving company in the MCC Merger, following the MCC Merger Effective Time. The identities of the individuals so appointed are described under “Information about the Combined Company — Management.”

Closing of the MCC Merger

Unless extended by mutual agreement of MCC and Sierra, the MCC Merger Closing will take place at 10:00 A.M. on a date and at a place to be specified by the parties, which shall be no later than five business days after the satisfaction or waiver (subject to applicable law) of the latest to occur of the conditions to the MCC Merger Closing (as set forth in the MCC Merger Agreement and as described in the section of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus captioned “— Conditions to the MCC Merger”), other than conditions that by their terms are to be satisfied at the MCC Merger Closing and subject to the satisfaction or waiver of such conditions.

Contemporaneously with the MCC Merger Closing, Sierra shall file or cause to be filed the MCC Certificate of Merger with the Delaware Secretary, and the MCC Articles of Merger with SDAT. The MCC Merger shall become effective at the MCC Merger Effective Time set forth in the Certificate of Merger and Articles of Merger.

Delivery of MCC Merger Consideration

Prior to the MCC Merger Effective Time, Sierra shall appoint a bank or trust company, or Sierra’s transfer agent, in each case reasonably acceptable to MCC, pursuant to an agreement to act as exchange agent (the “MCC Merger Exchange Agent”) under the MCC Merger Agreement. At or prior to the MCC Merger Effective Time, Sierra shall (i) authorize the MCC Merger Exchange Agent to issue an aggregate number of shares of Sierra Common Stock equal to the aggregate number of MCC Merger Shares and (ii) deposit, or cause to be deposited with, the MCC Merger Exchange Agent sufficient cash to make the payments to holders of shares of MCC Common Stock in lieu of fractional shares of Sierra Common Stock (collectively, the “MCC Exchange Fund”). The MCC Merger Exchange Agent shall invest any cash included in the MCC Exchange Fund as directed by Sierra; provided, however, that no gain or loss thereon shall affect the amounts payable to former holders of shares of MCC Common Stock pursuant to the MCC Merger Agreement. Any interest or other income resulting from such investments shall be the sole property of Sierra.

As soon as reasonably practicable after the MCC Merger Effective Time, the MCC Merger Exchange Agent shall mail to each holder of record of a certificate(s) which immediately prior to the MCC Merger Effective Time represented outstanding shares of MCC Common Stock (other than Excluded MCC Shares) (i) a letter of transmittal (which shall specify that delivery shall be effected, and risk of loss and title to such certificate(s) shall pass, only upon delivery of such certificate(s) (or affidavits of loss in lieu of such certificates)) to the MCC Merger Exchange Agent and shall be substantially in such form and have such other provisions as shall be prescribed by the MCC Merger Exchange Agent Agreement (the “MCC Letter of Transmittal”) and (ii) instructions for use in surrendering such certificate(s) in exchange for the MCC Merger Consideration and any dividends or distributions to which such holder is entitled pursuant to the MCC Merger Agreement; provided, however, any holder of book-entry shares shall not be required to deliver a certificate or an executed MCC Letter of Transmittal to the MCC Merger Exchange Agent to receive the MCC Merger Consideration that such holder is entitled to receive as a result of the MCC Merger. In lieu thereof, each holder of record of one or more book-entry shares (other than Excluded MCC Shares) shall upon receipt by the MCC Merger Exchange Agent of an “agent’s message” in customary form (it being understood that the holders of book-entry shares shall be deemed to have surrendered such shares upon receipt by the MCC Merger Exchange Agent of such “agent’s message” or such other evidence, if any, as the MCC Merger Exchange Agent may reasonably request), be entitled to receive, and Sierra shall cause the MCC Merger Exchange Agent to pay and deliver as promptly as reasonably practicable after the MCC Merger Effective Time, the MCC Merger Consideration such holder is entitled to receive as a result of the MCC Merger, and the book-entry shares so surrendered shall forthwith be cancelled. No interest will be paid or accrued on any amount payable upon due surrender of the book-entry shares.

Upon surrender to the MCC Merger Exchange Agent of its certificate or certificates, accompanied by a properly completed MCC Letter of Transmittal, a holder of shares of MCC Common Stock (other than Excluded MCC Shares) will be entitled to receive the MCC Merger Consideration in respect of the shares of MCC Common Stock represented by its certificate or certificates, as well as any dividends payable with respect to such shares of MCC Common Stock at the time of surrender, and any dividends with respect to shares of Sierra Common Stock to which such holder is entitled. Until so surrendered, each such certificate shall represent after the MCC Merger Effective Time, for all purposes, only the right to receive, without interest, the MCC Merger Consideration upon surrender of such certificate in accordance with, together with any dividends or distributions to which such holder is entitled pursuant to, the MCC Merger Agreement.

No dividends or other distributions declared with respect to Sierra Common Stock to stockholders of record on or after the MCC Merger Effective Time shall be paid to the holder of any unsurrendered certificate with respect to the shares of Sierra Common Stock to which the holder of such certificate is entitled upon exchange thereof in accordance with the MCC Merger Agreement, in each case unless and until the holder thereof shall surrender such certificate. Subject to the effect of applicable abandoned property, escheat or similar laws, following surrender of any such certificate in accordance with the MCC Merger Agreement, the record holder thereof shall be entitled to receive, without interest, (i) the amount of dividends or other distributions with a record date after the MCC Merger Effective Time theretofore payable with respect to the whole shares of Sierra Common Stock represented by such certificate and not paid prior to the date of surrender, and/or (ii) at the appropriate payment date, the amount of dividends or other distributions payable with respect to whole shares of Sierra Common Stock represented by such certificate with a record date after the MCC Merger Effective Time (but before such surrender date) and with a payment date subsequent to the surrender date.

If any MCC Merger Consideration is to be issued or paid in a name other than that in which a certificate formerly representing MCC Common Stock surrendered in exchange therefor is registered, it shall be a condition to the issuance or payment of such MCC Merger Consideration that such certificate shall be properly endorsed or otherwise be in proper form for transfer, and the person requesting such payment or issuance shall pay any transfer or other similar taxes required by reason of the payment or issuance to a person other than the registered holder of the certificate or establish to the satisfaction of Sierra that the tax has been paid or is not applicable.

The MCC Merger Exchange Agent (or, subsequent to the earlier of (x) the one-year anniversary of the MCC Merger Effective Time and (y) the expiration or termination of the MCC Merger Exchange Agent Agreement, Sierra) shall be entitled to deduct and withhold from any cash in lieu of fractional shares of Sierra Common Stock otherwise payable pursuant to the MCC Merger Agreement to any holder of shares of MCC Common Stock such amounts as the MCC Merger Exchange Agent or Sierra, as the case may be, is required to deduct and withhold under the Code, or any provision of state, local or foreign tax law, with respect to the making of such payment. To the extent the amounts are so withheld by the MCC Merger Exchange Agent or Sierra, as the case may be, and timely paid over to the appropriate governmental entity, such withheld amounts shall be treated for all purposes of the MCC Merger Agreement as having been paid to the holder of shares of MCC Common Stock in respect of whom such deduction and withholding was made by the MCC Merger Exchange Agent or Sierra, as the case may be.

After the MCC Merger Effective Time, there shall be no transfers on the stock transfer books of MCC of the shares of MCC Common Stock that were issued and outstanding immediately prior to the MCC Merger Effective Time other than to settle transfers of MCC Common Stock that occurred prior to the MCC Merger Effective Time. If, after the MCC Merger Effective Time, certificates or book-entry shares representing such shares of MCC Common Stock are presented for transfer to the MCC Merger Exchange Agent, they shall be cancelled and exchanged for the MCC Merger Consideration payable and issuable in respect of such certificates or book-entry shares, together with any dividends and distributions to which such holder is entitled in accordance with the MCC Merger Agreement.

Any portion of the MCC Exchange Fund that remains unclaimed by the MCC Stockholders as of the first anniversary of the MCC Merger Effective Time may be paid to Sierra. In such event, any former MCC Stockholders who have not theretofore complied with the MCC Merger Agreement shall thereafter look only to Sierra with respect to the MCC Merger Consideration and any unpaid dividends and distributions in respect of each share of Sierra Common Stock such stockholder is entitled to, as determined pursuant to the MCC Merger Agreement, in each case, without any interest thereon. Notwithstanding the foregoing, none of Sierra, the surviving company, the MCC Merger Exchange Agent or any other person shall be liable to any former holder of shares of MCC Common Stock for any amount delivered in good faith to a public official pursuant to applicable abandoned property, escheat or similar laws.

In the event any certificate shall have been lost, stolen or destroyed, upon the making of an affidavit of that fact by the person claiming such certificate to be lost, stolen or destroyed and, if reasonably required by Sierra or the MCC Merger Exchange Agent, the posting by such person of a bond in such amount as Sierra may determine is reasonably necessary as indemnity against any claim that may be made against it with respect to such certificate, the MCC Merger Exchange Agent will issue in exchange for such lost, stolen or destroyed certificate the MCC Merger Consideration and any unpaid dividends or distributions deliverable in respect thereof pursuant to the MCC Merger Agreement.

Representations and Warranties

The MCC Merger Agreement contains certain representations and warranties made by MCC to Sierra and Sierra to MCC including, but not limited to, representations regarding:

- corporate organization, valid existence, good standing, qualification to do business and subsidiaries;
- capitalization, indebtedness and equity awards;
- corporate authority, validity of the MCC Merger Agreement and unanimous board approval of the MCC Merger;
- absence of conflicts with or violation of, among other things, organizational documents or applicable laws;
- third party and governmental consents and approvals;
- reports and regulatory matters;
- financial statements;
- broker's fees;
- absence of certain changes and events;
- legal proceedings;
- taxes and tax returns;
- compliance with applicable law;
- material contracts;
- matters relating to investments and ownership thereof;
- property;
- intellectual property;
- inapplicability of state takeover laws;
- the fairness opinion received by the MCC Special Committee and the Sierra Special Committee, as applicable;
- information to be provided by MCC or Sierra (or their respective representatives) for inclusion in this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus;

Table of Contents

- insurance;
- environmental matters; and
- knowledge regarding reorganization and approval matters.

Many of the representations and warranties contained in the MCC Merger Agreement are qualified by materiality or the “Material Adverse Effect” standard. For purposes of the MCC Merger Agreement, “Material Adverse Effect” is defined to mean, with respect to Sierra or MCC, as the case may be, any occurrence, change, event, effect or development that, individually, or taken together with all other occurrences, changes, events, effects or developments, has or would reasonably be likely to have, a material adverse effect on (a) the financial condition, results of operations, properties, assets or business of such party and its subsidiaries taken as a whole; or (b) the ability of such party to timely consummate the transactions contemplated by the MCC Merger Agreement; provided, however, that, with respect to subsection (a) above, the determination of whether a “Material Adverse Effect” exists or has occurred shall not include effects to the extent attributable to:

- changes, after the date of the MCC Merger Agreement, in GAAP or regulatory accounting requirements applicable generally to companies in the industry in which such party and its Subsidiaries operate;
- changes, after the date of the MCC Merger Agreement, in laws, rules or regulations or interpretations thereof of general applicability to companies in the industry in which such party and its Subsidiaries operate;
- actions or omissions taken with the prior written consent of the other party;
- changes, after the date of the MCC Merger Agreement, in global or national political conditions or general economic or market conditions generally affecting other companies in the industry in which such party and its Subsidiaries operate;
- conditions arising out of acts of terrorism, war, weather conditions or other force majeure events;
- the public disclosure of the MCC Merger Agreement or the transactions contemplated thereby; or
- any legal proceedings made or brought by any of the current or former stockholders of such party (on their own behalf or on behalf of the such party) arising out of or related to the MCC Merger Agreement or any of the transactions contemplated by the MCC Merger Agreement, except, with respect to clauses (i), (ii), (iv) and (v) above, to the extent that the effects of such change are disproportionately adverse to the financial condition, results of operations, properties, assets or business of such party and its subsidiaries, taken as a whole, as compared to other companies in the industry in which such party and its subsidiaries operate.

Covenants Relating to the Conduct of the Business

Under the MCC Merger Agreement, Sierra and MCC have agreed that, except as expressly contemplated by or permitted by the MCC Merger Agreement or the MDLY Merger Agreement or with the prior written consent of the other party, during the period from the date of the MCC Merger Agreement to the MCC Merger Effective Time, (a) each of Sierra and MCC shall, and shall cause each of its respective subsidiaries to, (i) conduct its business in the ordinary course in all material respects, as such business is being conducted as of the date of the MCC Merger Agreement, and (ii) use commercially reasonable efforts to maintain and preserve intact its business organization and advantageous business relationships and retain the services of its key officers and key employees, and (b) each of Sierra and MCC shall, and shall cause each of its respective subsidiaries to, take no action that is intended to or would reasonably be expected to adversely affect or materially delay the ability of Sierra or MCC either to obtain any necessary approvals of any self-regulatory organization or governmental entity required for the transactions contemplated by the MCC Merger Agreement or to perform its covenants and agreements under the MCC Merger Agreement or to consummate the transactions contemplated thereunder.

In addition, MCC has agreed, except as expressly contemplated or permitted by the MCC Merger Agreement or as set forth in a schedule to the MCC Merger Agreement, without the written consent of Sierra (which may not be unreasonably withheld, conditioned or delayed), to not, and to not permit its subsidiaries to:

- other than in the ordinary course of business consistent with past practice, incur any indebtedness for borrowed money, assume, guarantee, endorse or otherwise as an accommodation become responsible for the obligations of any other individual, corporation or other entity, or, make any loan or advance or capital contribution to, or investment in, any person or entity;
- adjust, split, combine or reclassify any of its capital stock;
- make, declare or pay any dividend, other than (i) the Final MCC Dividend, if necessary, (ii) its regular quarterly dividend consistent with past practice of no more than $0.10 per share (or in such lower amount as may be determined by MCC in the MCC Board's discretion), and (iii) dividends paid by any of MCC's subsidiaries to MCC or to any of its wholly owned subsidiaries;
- make any other distribution on, or directly or indirectly redeem, purchase or otherwise acquire, any shares of its capital stock or other ownership interests or any securities or obligations other than in the ordinary course of business consistent with past practice or as required under Subchapter M of Chapter 1 of the Code;
- grant any stock options or restricted shares or restricted units or restricted stock units, or grant any person or entity any right to acquire any shares of its capital stock or other ownership interests or other securities or issue or sell any additional shares of capital stock or other ownership interests or securities or rights convertible (whether currently convertible or convertible only after the passage of time or the occurrence of certain events) into or exchangeable for any shares of its capital stock or other ownership interest;
- sell, transfer, pledge, lease, license, mortgage, encumber or otherwise dispose of any material amount of its properties or assets (including pursuant to securitizations) to any person or entity other than a wholly owned subsidiary or cancel, release or assign any material amount of indebtedness owed to or any claims held by MCC or any of its subsidiaries, in each case other than pursuant to contracts in force as of the date of the MCC Merger Agreement and set forth in MCC's disclosure schedule to the MCC Merger Agreement;
- take any action, or knowingly fail to take any action, which action or failure to act is reasonably likely to prevent the MCC Merger from qualifying as a reorganization within the meaning of Section 368(a) of the Code or take any action, or knowingly fail to take any action, inconsistent with the treatment of the MCC Merger as a reorganization for U.S federal income tax purposes;
- amend the MCC Certificate or the MCC Bylaws or the organizational documents of any subsidiary of MCC, or take any action to exempt any person or entity (other than Sierra or its subsidiaries) or any action taken by any person or entity from any applicable takeover statute or similarly restrictive provisions of its organizational documents;
- enter into, renew, modify, amend or terminate, or waive, release, compromise or assign any rights or claims under, any material contract (as defined in the MCC Merger Agreement) of MCC (or any contract that, if existing as of the date of the MCC Merger Agreement, would be a material contract of MCC), other than (i) any termination or renewal in accordance with the terms of any existing material contract that occurs automatically without any action (other than notice of renewal) by MCC or any of its subsidiaries, (ii) the entry into any modification or amendment of, or waiver or consent under, any material contract as required or necessitated to obtain any required approval in connection with the MCC Merger, (iii) the termination of a material contract of MCC specifically contemplated by the MCC Merger Agreement or (iv) amendments, waivers or consents to or under the existing debt documents of MCC in the ordinary course of business consistent with past practice;

- form any entity that would comprise a subsidiary or dissolve or liquidate any subsidiary, in each case other than a wholly owned subsidiary;
- materially amend any income tax return or any other material tax return;
- settle or compromise any material U.S. federal, state, local or foreign income tax liability, audit, claim or assessment;
- enter into any material closing agreement related to taxes, except in each case unless required by tax law or necessary or appropriate to preserve the status of any subsidiary of MCC as a disregarded entity or partnership for U.S. federal income tax purposes;
- acquire the assets, business, or properties of any non-affiliated entity, or make any loans, advances or capital contributions to, or investments in, any person or entity (other than any wholly owned subsidiary of MCC);
- allow the lapse or termination of policies of insurance covering material assets and businesses (other than the replacement of existing policies with substantially comparable policies);
- take any action or willfully fail to take any action that is intended or may reasonably be expected to result in any of the conditions to the MCC Merger not being satisfied;
- implement or adopt any change in its tax accounting or financial accounting principles, practices or methods, other than as may be required by applicable law, GAAP or regulatory guidelines;
- take any action that would be reasonably expected to prevent, materially impede or delay beyond March 31, 2019 (the “MCC Merger Outside Date”) the consummation of the transactions contemplated by the MCC Merger Agreement; or
- agree to take, or publicly announce an intention to take, any of the foregoing actions.

In addition, Sierra has agreed, except as expressly contemplated or permitted by the MCC Merger Agreement or as set forth in a schedule to the MCC Merger Agreement, without the written consent of MCC (which may not be unreasonably withheld, conditioned or delayed), to not, and to not permit its subsidiaries to:

- adjust, split, combine or reclassify any of its capital stock;
- make, declare or pay any dividend, other than (i) its regular quarterly dividend consistent with past practice, (ii) dividends paid by any of Sierra’s subsidiaries to Sierra or to any of its wholly owned subsidiaries and (iii) any dividend necessary to comply with Subchapter M of Chapter 1 of the Code;
- make any other distribution on, or directly or indirectly redeem, purchase or otherwise acquire, any shares of its capital stock or other ownership interests or any securities or obligations other than in the ordinary course of business consistent with past practice or as required by the Sierra Charter or Sierra Bylaws or under Subchapter M of Chapter 1 of the Code;
- grant any stock options or restricted shares or restricted stock units, or grant any person or entity any right to acquire any shares of its capital stock, or other ownership interests or other securities or issue or sell any additional shares of capital stock or other ownership interests or securities or rights convertible (whether currently convertible or convertible only after the passage of time or the occurrence of certain events) into or exchangeable for any shares of its capital stock or other ownership interest, other than in the ordinary course of business consistent with past practice or as contemplated by Sierra’s SEC reports;
- issue any additional shares of capital stock or other securities other than in the ordinary course of business consistent with past practice or as contemplated by Sierra’s SEC reports;

- sell, transfer, pledge, lease, license, mortgage, encumber or otherwise dispose of any material amount of its properties or assets (including pursuant to securitizations) to any person or entity other than a wholly owned subsidiary or cancel, release or assign any material amount of indebtedness owed to or any claims held by any such person or entity, in each case other than pursuant to contracts in force at the date of the MCC Merger Agreement, except in furtherance of its investment objective as set forth in Sierra’s SEC reports;
- take any action, or knowingly fail to take any action, which action or failure to act is reasonably likely to prevent the MCC Merger from qualifying as a “reorganization” within the meaning of Section 368(a) of the Code;
- enter into any agreement with respect to, or amend any agreements relating to, its capital stock or indebtedness;
- except as discussed above under “— Sierra Charter and Bylaws,” amend, repeal or otherwise modify any provision of the Sierra Charter, the Sierra Bylaws, the MCC Certificate or the MCC Bylaws in a manner that would adversely affect MCC, the MCC Stockholders or the transactions contemplated by the MCC Merger Agreement;
- enter into, renew, modify, amend or terminate, or waive, release, compromise or assign any rights or claims under, any material contract of Sierra (as defined in the MCC Merger Agreement) or any contract that, if existing as of the date of the MCC Merger Agreement, would be a material contract of Sierra, in each case other than (i) any termination or renewal in accordance with the terms of any existing material contract of Sierra that occurs automatically without any action (other than notice of renewal) by Sierra or any of its subsidiaries, (ii) the entry into any modification or amendment of, or waiver or consent under, any material contract of Sierra as required or necessitated to obtain any required approval in connection with the MCC Merger, or (iii) the termination of a material contract specifically contemplated by the MCC Merger Agreement;
- form any entity that would comprise a subsidiary or dissolve or liquidate any subsidiary, in each case, other than a wholly owned subsidiary;
- materially amend any income tax return or any other material tax return;
- settle or compromise any material U.S. federal, state, local or foreign income tax liability, audit, claim or assessment;
- enter into any material closing agreement related to taxes, except in each case unless required by tax law or necessary or appropriate to preserve the status of any subsidiary of Sierra as a disregarded entity or partnership for U.S. federal income tax purposes;
- take any action, or permit the taking of any action, that will result in Sierra not having in cash or cash equivalents amounts sufficient to make payment of the cash portion of the MCC Merger Consideration due at the MCC Merger Closing;
- enter into any contract involving or relating to, or otherwise approve, any liquidation, dissolution, merger, consolidation, restructuring, recapitalization, reorganization or similar transaction;
- take any action or willfully fail to take any action that is intended or may reasonably be expected to result in any of the conditions to the MCC Merger not being satisfied;
- take any action that would be reasonably expected to prevent, materially impede or delay beyond the MCC Merger Outside Date the consummation of the transactions contemplated by the MCC Merger Agreement; or
- agree to take, or publicly announce an intention to take, any of the foregoing actions.

Additional Covenants

MCC and Sierra have agreed to additional covenants between the execution of the MCC Merger Agreement and the MCC Merger Closing including, but limited to, the following matters:

Regulatory Matters

MCC and Sierra have agreed to, and to cause their respective subsidiaries to, cooperate with each other and use their respective commercially reasonable efforts to promptly prepare and file all necessary documentation, to effect all applications, notices, petitions and filings with any third-party or governmental entity and to take any further actions reasonably requested by the other party to obtain as promptly as practicable the approvals required under the MCC Merger Agreement and other consents required to be obtained in connection with the MCC Merger and the other transactions contemplated by the MCC Merger Agreement. Without limiting the foregoing, MCC and Sierra have agreed to the following as it relates to regulatory matters:

- N-14 Registration Statement/Joint Proxy Statement

Each of MCC and Sierra has agreed to use its reasonable best efforts to prepare and file this N-14 Registration Statement, and have this N-14 Registration Statement declared effective under the Securities Act as promptly as practicable after such filing, and MCC and Sierra shall promptly mail or deliver the Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus to their respective stockholders upon such effectiveness. Sierra and MCC also agreed to give notice of, convene and hold, as promptly as practicable, the Sierra Special Meeting and the MCC Special Meeting following the effectiveness of this N-14 Registration Statement. In addition, Sierra and MCC agreed to take additional steps in order to ensure the accuracy of the information contained in this N-14 Registration Statement and the related Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus, Sierra agreed to use its reasonable best efforts to obtain all necessary state securities law or “blue sky” permits required to issue the MCC Merger Shares, and MCC agreed to use reasonable best efforts to furnish all information concerning MCC and the holders of shares of MCC Common Stock as may be reasonably requested in connection with any such action.

- HSR Act Filing Matters

Each of Sierra and MCC have agreed to file with the FTC and the DOJ, if and to the extent required, a notification and report form relating to the MCC Merger Agreement and the transactions contemplated thereby as required by the HSR Act, and to take all other actions reasonably necessary to cause the expiration or termination of any applicable waiting period under the HSR Act applicable to the MCC Merger as soon as practicable.

- SEC Exemptive Relief

MCC and Sierra agreed to submit an application for the exemptive relief from the SEC to the staff of the Division of Investment Management of the SEC (the “Staff”) and thereafter provide all such supplemental information reasonably requested by the Staff in connection therewith and to use its commercially reasonable efforts to obtain the SEC Exemptive Relief. In connection therewith, if the SEC conditions the granting of exemptive relief upon a change to the transaction structure or other matters contemplated by the MCC Merger Agreement and the MDLY Merger Agreement, each of MCC and Sierra has agreed to work together in good faith to make such changes and, if and to the extent necessary, to amend the MCC Merger Agreement to reflect such modified terms; provided, however, in no event shall either party be obligated to agree to any term that adversely changes the economic terms of the MCC Merger Agreement in any material respect or is inconsistent with the assumptions or other provisions set forth in the opinions of such party’s financial advisor.

Access to Information; Filing of Reports

Upon reasonable notice and subject to applicable laws relating to the confidentiality of information, each of MCC and Sierra has agreed to, and has agreed to cause each of its subsidiaries to, give the other party and its respective officers, employees, accountants, counsel, advisors, agents and other representatives, reasonable access, during normal business hours during the period prior to the MCC Merger Effective Time, to its properties, books, contracts, commitments and records, and to make available, and to cause its subsidiaries to make available, to the other party a copy of each report, schedule, registration statement and other document filed or received by it during such period pursuant to the requirements of federal securities laws (other than reports or documents that such party is not permitted to disclose under applicable law) and otherwise provide the other party with such information concerning its business, properties and personnel as the other party may reasonably request. However, in no event will a party or its subsidiaries be required to provide access to or to disclose information where such access or disclosure would jeopardize the attorney-client privilege or contravene any applicable law, fiduciary duty or binding confidentiality agreement entered into prior to the date of the MCC Merger Agreement. In the event the foregoing restrictions apply, the parties have agreed to make appropriate substitute disclosure arrangements. In addition, each of MCC and Sierra has agreed to file all periodic reports required to be filed by it between the date of the MCC Merger Agreement and the MCC Merger Effective Time, and each such filing shall be prepared in accordance with the applicable forms, rules and regulations of the SEC and shall satisfy the standard for the relevant party in the MCC Merger Agreement applicable to MCC SEC Reports or Sierra SEC Reports, as applicable.

MCC Special Meeting and MCC Board Recommendation

The MCC Board has approved and declared advisable the MCC Merger Agreement and the transactions contemplated thereby, including the MCC Merger, and made the MCC Board Recommendation. As it relates to the MCC Board Recommendation, the MCC Merger Agreement provides that, except as discussed below, neither the MCC Board nor any committee thereof shall (i) withhold, withdraw or modify or qualify, or propose publicly to withhold, withdraw or modify or qualify the MCC Board Recommendation, (ii) fail to publicly announce, within 15 business days after a tender offer or exchange relating to the securities of MCC shall have been commenced, a statement disclosing that the MCC Board recommends rejection of such tender offer or exchange offer, or (iii) approve, determine to be advisable, or recommend, or propose publicly to approve, determine to be advisable, or recommend, any “MCC Merger Competing Proposal,” as defined below under “—Nonsolicitation of Competing Transaction Proposals” (any of the foregoing (i) through (iii) being referred to as an “MCC Adverse Recommendation Change”).

Notwithstanding the foregoing, the MCC Board may make an MCC Adverse Recommendation Change in the circumstances described below under “— Nonsolicitation of Competing Transaction Proposals.” However, unless the MCC Board has appropriately made an MCC Adverse Recommendation Change, MCC shall, through MCC Board, make the MCC Board Recommendation, and shall include such MCC Board Recommendation in this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus, and use its commercially reasonable efforts to (x) solicit from the MCC Stockholders proxies in favor of MCC Stockholder approval, and (y) take all other action necessary or advisable to secure MCC Stockholder approval.

In connection with the MCC Special Meeting, the MCC Board is permitted to adjourn, delay or postpone the MCC Special Meeting in accordance with applicable law (but not beyond March 31, 2019) (i) to the extent necessary to allow reasonable additional time for the filing and mailing of any supplemental or amended disclosure which the MCC Board has determined in good faith after consultation with outside counsel is reasonably likely to be necessary or appropriate under applicable law and for such supplemental or amended disclosure to be disseminated and reviewed by the MCC Stockholders prior to the MCC Special Meeting, (ii) if there are insufficient shares of MCC Common Stock represented (either in person or by proxy) to constitute a quorum necessary to conduct the business of the MCC Special Meeting, or (iii) to allow reasonable additional time to solicit additional proxies reasonably necessary in order to obtain MCC Stockholder approval.

Sierra Special Meeting and Sierra Board Recommendation

The Sierra Board has approved and declared to be advisable the MCC Merger Agreement and the transactions contemplated thereby, including the MCC Merger, and made the Sierra Board Recommendation. As it relates to the Sierra Board Recommendation, the Sierra Merger Agreement provides that, except as discussed below, neither the Sierra Board nor any committee thereof shall (i) withhold, withdraw or modify or qualify, or propose publicly to withhold, withdraw or modify or qualify the Sierra Board Recommendation, (ii) fail to publicly announce, within 15 business days after a tender offer or exchange relating to the securities of Sierra shall have been commenced, a statement disclosing that Sierra Board recommends rejection of such tender offer or exchange offer, or (iii) approve, determine to be advisable, or recommend, or propose publicly to approve, determine to be advisable, or recommend, any “MCC Merger Competing Proposal,” as defined below under “— Nonsolicitation of Competing Transaction Proposals” (any of the foregoing (i) through (iii) being referred to as an “Sierra MCC Merger Adverse Recommendation Change”).

Notwithstanding the foregoing, the Sierra Board may make a Sierra MCC Merger Adverse Recommendation Change in the circumstances described below under “— Nonsolicitation of Competing Transaction Proposals.” However, unless the Sierra Board has appropriately made a Sierra MCC Merger Adverse Recommendation Change, Sierra shall, through Sierra Board, make the Sierra Board Recommendation, and shall include such Sierra Board Recommendation in this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus, and use its commercially reasonable efforts to (x) solicit from the Sierra Stockholders proxies in favor of Sierra Stockholder approval, and (y) take all other action necessary or advisable to secure Sierra Stockholder approval.

In connection with the Sierra Special Meeting, the Sierra Board is permitted to adjourn, delay or postpone the Sierra Special Meeting in accordance with applicable law (but not beyond March 31, 2019) (i) to the extent necessary to allow reasonable additional time for the filing and mailing of any supplemental or amended disclosure which the Sierra Board has determined in good faith after consultation with outside counsel is reasonably likely to be necessary or appropriate under applicable law and for such supplemental or amended disclosure to be disseminated and reviewed by the Sierra Stockholders prior to the Sierra Special Meeting, (ii) if there are insufficient shares of Sierra Common Stock represented (either in person or by proxy) to constitute a quorum necessary to conduct the business of the Sierra Special Meeting, or (iii) to allow reasonable additional time to solicit additional proxies reasonably necessary in order to obtain the Sierra Stockholder approval.

Exchange Listing

Under the MCC Merger Agreement, Sierra has agreed to (a) take all steps as may be reasonably necessary to cause the outstanding Sierra Common Stock, the MCC Merger Shares and the shares of Sierra Common Stock to be issued in the MDLY Merger to be listed for trading on the NYSE, and (b) use its commercially reasonable efforts to cause the outstanding Sierra Common Stock, the MCC Merger Shares and the shares of Sierra Common Stock to be issued in the MDLY Merger to be listed for trading on the Tel Aviv Stock Exchange.

Indemnification; Directors' and Officers' Insurance.

In the event of any threatened or actual claim against any individual who is now, or has been at any time prior to the date of the MCC Merger Agreement, or who becomes prior to the MCC Effective Time, a director or officer of MCC or any of its subsidiaries or who is or was serving at the request of MCC or any of its subsidiaries as a director or officer of another person (the “MCC Indemnified Parties”), based in whole or in part on, or arising in whole or in part out of, or pertaining to (i) the fact that he or she is or was a director or officer of MCC or any of its subsidiaries prior to the MCC Merger Effective Time or (ii) the MCC Merger Agreement or any of the transactions contemplated by the MCC Merger Agreement, whether asserted or arising before or after the MCC Merger Effective Time, each of the parties has agreed to cooperate and use their commercially reasonable efforts to defend against and respond thereto. In addition, all rights to indemnification and exculpation from liabilities for acts or omissions occurring at or prior to the MCC Merger Effective Time existing on the date of the MCC Merger Agreement in favor of any MCC Indemnified Party as provided in their respective organizational documents and any existing indemnification agreements set forth in a schedule to the MCC Merger Agreement shall survive the MCC Merger as a contractual obligation of Sierra, as the surviving company in the MCC Merger set forth in a schedule to the MCC Merger Agreement, and shall continue in full force and effect in accordance with their terms for a period of six years from the MCC Merger Closing Date and shall not be amended, repealed or otherwise modified in any manner that would adversely affect the rights of the MCC Indemnified Parties thereunder; provided, that such existing indemnification agreements may be amended prior to the MCC Merger Effective Time as expressly permitted by the MCC Merger Agreement if such amendments are in form reasonably acceptable to Sierra; and provided further, that the foregoing obligations do not require any amendment to the Sierra Charter (or, if the Sierra Stockholders adopt the Sierra Charter Amendments, the New Sierra Charter) or the Amended and Restated Sierra Bylaws, as the surviving company in the MCC Merger.

In addition, for a period of six years from the MCC Merger Closing Date, Sierra, in its capacity as the surviving company in the MCC Merger, has agreed to indemnify, defend and hold harmless, and provide advancement of expenses to, each Indemnified Party against all losses, claims, damages, costs, expenses, liabilities or judgments or amounts that are paid in settlement of or in connection with any claim based in whole or in part on or arising in whole or in part out of the fact that such person is or was a director or officer of MCC or any of its subsidiaries and pertaining to any matter existing or occurring, or any acts or omissions occurring, at or prior to the MCC Merger Closing; provided, that, subject to certain exceptions in the event of conflicts of interest, the surviving company (a) shall not be liable for any amounts paid in the settlement of any claim without its prior written consent, which shall not be unreasonably withheld, and (b) shall be obligated to pay the fees and expenses of only one counsel for all MCC Indemnified Parties with respect to any single claim (each such counsel to be approved in advance by the surviving company, such consent not to be unreasonably withheld) unless the surviving company assumes the defense of such claim, in which case it shall not be liable for any fees and expenses of counsel to the MCC Indemnified Parties in respect of such claim.

MCC has agreed, at its sole cost, to cause the individuals serving as officers and directors of MCC or any of its subsidiaries immediately at or prior to the MCC Merger Effective Time to be covered for a period of six years from the MCC Merger Effective Time by the directors' and officers' liability insurance policy maintained by MCC through the purchase of so-called "tail" insurance with respect to acts or omissions occurring prior to the MCC Merger Effective Time that were committed by such officers and directors in their capacity as such.

The provisions of the MCC Merger Agreement relating to indemnification are intended to be for the benefit of, and may be enforced by, each MCC Indemnified Party and his or her heirs and representatives.

Advice of Changes

Each of MCC and Sierra has agreed to promptly advise the other of any change or event (i) having or reasonably likely to have an MCC Merger Material Adverse Effect on it, (ii) that it believes would or would be reasonably likely to cause or constitute a breach of any of its representations, warranties or covenants contained in the MCC Merger Agreement that would result in the conditions to the MCC Merger Closing not being satisfied; provided, however, that no such notification shall affect the representations, warranties, covenants or agreements of the parties (or remedies with respect thereto) or the conditions to the obligations of the parties under the MCC Merger Agreement.

Exemption from Liability Under Section 16(b)

Each of MCC and Sierra has agreed, prior to the MCC Merger Effective Time, to take all such steps as may be necessary or appropriate to cause any disposition of shares of MCC Common Stock or conversion of any derivative securities in respect of such shares of MCC Common Stock in connection with the consummation of the transactions contemplated by the MCC Merger Agreement to be exempt under Rule 16b-3 promulgated under the Exchange Act to the extent permitted thereunder.

Nonsolicitation of Competing Transaction Proposals

Each of MCC and Sierra has agreed to, and to use its commercially reasonable efforts to cause its representatives to, immediately cease and cause to be terminated any existing solicitation of, or discussions or negotiations with, any third party relating to any MCC Merger Competing Proposal or any inquiry, discussion, offer or request that could reasonably be expected to lead to an MCC Merger Competing Proposal. In addition, subject to certain exceptions discussed below, each of MCC and Sierra has agreed, until the earlier of the MCC Merger Effective Time and termination of the MCC Merger Agreement in accordance with its terms, to not, and to not permit its subsidiaries to, and to use commercially reasonable efforts to cause its representatives not to, directly or indirectly,

- initiate, solicit, induce or knowingly encourage or facilitate any inquiry with respect to the making of any proposal or offer with respect to an MCC Merger Competing Proposal; or
- engage in negotiations or discussions with, or furnish any material nonpublic information to, or enter into any agreement, arrangement or understanding with, any third party relating to an MCC Merger Competing Proposal or any inquiry or proposal that could reasonably be expected to lead to an MCC Merger Competing Proposal.

Notwithstanding the foregoing, each of MCC and Sierra may inform third parties of provisions of the MCC Merger Agreement that governs MCC Merger Competing Proposals and may grant a waiver of, or terminate, any “standstill” or similar obligation of any third party with respect to MCC or Sierra, as applicable, in order to allow such third party to submit an MCC Merger Competing Proposal, if the MCC Board or Sierra Board, as applicable, determines in good faith (after consultation with such party’s legal counsel) that a failure to take such action with respect to such standstill or similar obligation could reasonably be expected to be inconsistent with its duties under applicable law. The confidentiality agreements entered into by MDLY in connection with its exploration of strategic alternatives include customary standstill provisions pursuant to which potential bidders agreed, except as requested or consented to by MDLY, not to take certain actions regarding strategic transactions or management or control of MDLY, its subsidiaries, Sierra or MCC and, subject to an exception to permit confidential requests for waivers following the public announcement of an acquisition transaction, not to request waivers of those standstill provisions, in each case during the relevant standstill period. As of the date of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus, the standstill provisions in 23 of the 31 confidentiality agreements have expired, and an additional 2 will expire prior to the scheduled date of the Special Meetings. In addition, even where standstill provisions remain in effect, all counterparties subject to such standstill provisions are permitted to confidentially seek a waiver of the standstill provisions in order to privately submit a competing proposal with respect to MDLY, its subsidiaries, Sierra and/or MCC.

In addition, if at any time prior to the date that MCC Stockholder approval is obtained (in the case of MCC) or Sierra Stockholder approval is obtained (in the case of Sierra), in the event that MCC (or its representatives on MCC’s behalf) or Sierra (or its representatives on Sierra’s behalf) receives an MCC Merger Competing Proposal from any third party,

- MCC and its representatives or Sierra and its representatives, as applicable, may contact such third party to clarify any ambiguous terms and conditions thereof (without the MCC Board or Sierra Board, as applicable, being required to make the determination set forth in the following bullet point), and
- subject to satisfaction of certain procedural requirements (including without limitation the requirement that such third party (if not already bound) enter into a confidentiality agreement with MCC or Sierra, as applicable, on terms no less favorable than the existing confidentiality agreement between MCC and Sierra (unless MCC or Sierra, as applicable, agrees to amend the existing confidentiality agreement to reflect such more favorable terms); provided that the confidentiality agreement with the third party need not restrict the making of competing proposals to MCC or the MCC Board or to Sierra or the Sierra Board, as applicable), MCC and the MCC Board and its representatives or Sierra and the Sierra Board and its representatives, as applicable, may engage in negotiations or substantive discussions with, or furnish any information and other access to, any third party making such MCC Merger Competing Proposal and its representatives and affiliates if the MCC Board or Sierra Board, as applicable, determines in good faith (after consultation with its outside financial advisors and legal counsel) that:
- such MCC Merger Competing Proposal either constitutes an MCC Merger Superior Proposal (as defined below) or could reasonably be expected to lead to an MCC Merger Superior Proposal, and
- failure to consider such MCC Merger Competing Proposal could reasonably be expected to be inconsistent with the fiduciary duties of the directors of MCC or Sierra, as applicable, under applicable law, provided that such receipt of such MCC Merger Competing Proposal did not result from any material breach by the receiving party of any of the non-solicitation provisions of the MCC Merger Agreement and certain other procedural requirements are satisfied.

In addition, until the earlier of the MCC Merger Effective Time and termination of the MCC Merger Agreement, each of MCC and Sierra has agreed, as promptly as reasonably practicable, and in any event within two business days of receipt by it or any of its representatives of any MCC Merger Competing Proposal or any inquiry that could reasonably be expected to lead to an MCC Merger Competing Proposal, to deliver to the other party a written notice setting forth: (A) the identity of the third party making such MCC Merger Competing Proposal or inquiry (to the extent not prohibited by any applicable confidentiality agreement existing prior to the date of the MCC Merger Agreement) and (B) the material terms and conditions of any such MCC Merger Competing Proposal. Thereafter, MCC and Sierra are obligated to keep the other party reasonably informed of any material amendment or modification of any such MCC Merger Competing Proposal on a prompt basis, and in any event within two business days following such material amendment or modification.

Sierra and MCC further agreed that, except as described below:

- the MCC Board would not effect an MCC Adverse Recommendation Change and the Sierra Board would not effect a Sierra Merger Agreement Adverse Recommendation Change (each, an “MCC Merger Adverse Recommendation Change”);
- the MCC Board would not approve or recommend, or allow MCC to execute or enter into, any letter of intent, memorandum of understanding or definitive merger or similar agreement with respect to any MCC Merger Competing Proposal (other than a confidentiality agreement in accordance with the terms of the MCC Merger Agreement), and
- the Sierra Board would not approve or recommend, or allow Sierra to execute or enter into, any letter of intent, memorandum of understanding or definitive merger or similar agreement with respect to any MCC Merger Competing Proposal (other than a confidentiality agreement in accordance with the terms of the MCC Merger Agreement).

Notwithstanding the foregoing, if at any time prior to the receipt of MCC Stockholder approval (in the case of MCC) or the Sierra Stockholder approval (in the case of Sierra), MCC or Sierra, as the case may be, has received an MCC Merger Competing Proposal that its board of directors has determined in good faith (after consultation with its outside financial advisor and legal counsel) constitutes an MCC Merger Superior Proposal, the MCC Board or Sierra Board, as applicable, may (a) make an MCC Merger Adverse Recommendation Change in connection with such MCC Merger Superior Proposal if the board of directors effecting the MCC Merger Adverse Recommendation Change determines in good faith (after consultation with its outside financial advisor and legal counsel) that failure to make an MCC Merger Adverse Recommendation Change could reasonably be expected to be inconsistent with the fiduciary duties of the MCC Board or Sierra Board, as applicable, under applicable law, and/or (b) authorize, adopt or approve such MCC Merger Superior Proposal and cause or permit MCC or Sierra, as applicable, to enter into a definitive agreement with respect to such MCC Merger Superior Proposal concurrently with the termination of the MCC Merger Agreement, but in each case only after providing notice to the other party of its intention to make an MCC Merger Adverse Recommendation Change and/or to accept an MCC Merger Superior Proposal, as applicable, and entering into good faith negotiations to eliminate the need for such MCC Merger Adverse Recommendation Change and/or to cause such MCC Merger Superior Proposal to no longer constitute an MCC Merger Superior Proposal.

An “MCC Merger Competing Proposal” is defined as any inquiry, proposal or offer made by any third party: (a) to purchase or otherwise acquire, directly or indirectly, in one transaction or a series of transactions (including any merger, consolidation, tender offer, exchange offer, stock acquisition, asset acquisition, binding share exchange, business combination, recapitalization, liquidation, dissolution, joint venture or similar transaction), (i) beneficial ownership (as defined under Section 13(d) of the Exchange Act) of 20% or more of any class of equity securities of MCC or Sierra, as applicable, or (ii) any one or more assets or businesses of MCC or its subsidiaries or Sierra or its subsidiaries that constitute 20% or more of the revenues or assets of MCC and its subsidiaries, taken as a whole, or Sierra and its subsidiaries, taken as a whole, as applicable; or (b) any liquidation of MCC or Sierra, in each case other than the MCC Merger and the other transactions to occur at the MCC Merger Closing in accordance with the MCC Merger Agreement.

An “MCC Merger Superior Proposal” is defined as a bona fide written MCC Merger Competing Proposal (but with all references to “20%” in the definition of MCC Merger Competing Proposal being increased to “50%” to the extent relevant to the MCC Merger Competing Proposal in question) made by a third party that the MCC Board or the Sierra Board, as applicable, determines in good faith, after consultation with its outside financial advisors and legal counsel, and taking into account the terms and conditions of such proposal, the party making such proposal, all financial, legal, regulatory and other aspects of such proposal, as well as the likelihood of consummation of the MCC Merger Competing Proposal relative to the MCC Merger and such other factors as the MCC Board or Sierra Board, as applicable, considers to be appropriate, is more favorable to the MCC Stockholders or the Sierra Stockholders, as applicable, from a financial point of view than the MCC Merger and the other transactions contemplated by the MCC Merger Agreement (including any revisions to the terms of the MCC Merger Agreement committed to by Sierra or MCC, as applicable, to the other party in writing in response to such MCC Merger Competing Proposal made to Sierra or MCC, as applicable).

Outstanding Indebtedness

Each of MCC and Sierra has agreed to use commercially reasonable efforts to take or cause to be taken all actions with respect to their respective indebtedness and the indebtedness of their respective subsidiaries that is necessary or advisable in connection with the MCC Merger, including without limitation, obtaining all necessary consents of the holders of such indebtedness, executing and delivering all documents, instruments, certificates and opinions of counsel required under the terms of such indebtedness, making all necessary filings, and taking all other actions that the respective boards of directors or officers of MCC and Sierra determine to be necessary or advisable in connection with such indebtedness, including any assumption, refinancing or consolidation of such indebtedness.

Takeover Statutes

Each of MCC and Sierra has agreed to use their respective commercially reasonable efforts (a) to take all action necessary so that no applicable takeover statute is or becomes applicable to the MCC Merger or any of the other transactions contemplated by the MCC Merger Agreement, and (b) if any such takeover statute is or becomes applicable to any of the foregoing, to take all action necessary so that the MCC Merger and the other transactions contemplated by the MCC Merger Agreement may be consummated as promptly as reasonably practicable on the terms contemplated by the MCC Merger Agreement and otherwise to eliminate or minimize the effect of such takeover statute on the MCC Merger and the other transactions contemplated by the MCC Merger Agreement.

Litigation

Each of MCC and Sierra has agreed, between the date of the MCC Merger Agreement and the MCC Merger Effective Time, to use its commercially reasonable efforts to consult with the other party on outstanding litigation, including stockholder litigation regarding the MCC Merger Agreement or the MCC Merger, provided that such other party shall have no right to participate in, or obligation to cooperate in, the defense of such litigation.

Dividend Reinvestment Plan; Stock Repurchases

Under the MCC Merger Agreement, (a) MCC agreed to terminate promptly any feature of its dividend reinvestment plan (the "MCC Dividend Reinvestment Plan") providing for the issuance of shares by MCC of MCC Common Stock, and (b) Sierra agreed to suspend promptly any share repurchase program or offers to repurchase Sierra Common Stock.

Interaction with MDLY Merger

Sierra has agreed that, without the consent of MCC, Sierra will not agree to any waiver or amendment of the MDLY Merger Agreement to the extent such waiver or amendment would adversely affect the economic or other rights or interests of MCC and MCC Stockholders under the MCC Merger Agreement and the MDLY Merger Agreement in any material respect.

Transaction Expenses

Under the MCC Merger Agreement, all fees and expenses incurred in connection with the MCC Merger, the MCC Merger Agreement, and the transactions contemplated by the MCC Merger Agreement are to be paid by the party incurring such fees or expenses; provided, that the costs and expenses of preparing, filing, printing and mailing this Form N-14 Registration Statement and this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus, all other filing fees and amounts paid to the SEC in connection with the MCC Merger, and the fees of any HSR Act filing shall be borne equally by MCC and Sierra.

Conditions to the MCC Merger

MCC and Sierra will not be obligated to complete the MCC Merger unless a number of conditions are satisfied or waived, including:

- the receipt of MCC Stockholder approval;
- the receipt of Sierra Stockholder approval;
- the Form N-14 Registration Statement shall have been declared effective by the SEC under the Securities Act and no stop order suspending the effectiveness of the Form N-14 Registration Statement shall have been issued and no proceedings for that purpose shall have been initiated or threatened by the SEC;
- the outstanding shares of Sierra Common Stock, the MCC Merger Shares and the shares of Sierra Common Stock to be issued in the MDLY Merger shall have been authorized for listing on the NYSE, subject to official notice of issuance;
- the exemptive relief from the SEC shall have been granted and be in full force and effect as of the MCC Merger Closing Date;
- MCC shall have obtained from the SBA such approvals as may be necessary for the debentures issued by the SBIC Subsidiary to remain outstanding in accordance with their terms following the MCC Merger Effective Time;
- Sierra shall have made or obtained such filings and approvals as are required to be made or obtained under the securities or “blue sky” laws of various states in connection with the issuance of the MCC Merger Shares;
- no order, injunction or decree issued by any court or agency of competent jurisdiction or other law preventing or making illegal the consummation of the MCC Merger or any of the other transactions contemplated by the MCC Merger Agreement shall be in effect;
- any applicable waiting period (and any extension thereof) applicable to the MCC Merger under the HSR Act shall have expired or been terminated;
- each of the conditions to the MDLY Merger Closing shall have been satisfied or appropriately waived, and the MDLY Merger shall be consummated simultaneously with the MCC Merger;
- Sierra and MCC Advisors shall have executed and delivered the Combined Company Investment Advisory Agreement, to be effective as of the MCC Merger Effective Time, and such agreement shall have been approved by the Sierra Board and received requisite Sierra Stockholder approval each in accordance with all applicable requirements of Section 15 of the Investment Company Act;
- MCC and MCC Advisors shall have executed a termination agreement terminating the existing investment management agreement between MCC and MCC Advisors, effective as of the MCC Merger Closing Date;
- Sierra and SIC Advisors shall have executed a termination agreement terminating the Sierra Investment Advisory Agreement, effective as of the MCC Merger Closing Date;
- Sierra or MCC, as the case may be, shall have obtained certain consents and approvals relating to their respective joint venture arrangements;
- in connection with the MDLY Merger Agreement, MDLY shall have obtained written consents to the continuation, following the MDLY Merger Effective Time (as defined below), of the advisory relationship with private funds and managed accounts representing 65% of MDLY’s total revenues from private funds and managed accounts for the 12-month period ended as of June 30, 2018;
- the equity of Merger Sub, as the surviving company in the MDLY Merger, being treated as a portfolio investment of Sierra and reflected in Sierra’s consolidated financial statements at fair value for accounting purposes, and that such surviving company’s financial results will not be consolidated into the financial statements of Sierra;

- there shall be no pending suit, action or proceeding by any governmental entity, (i) challenging the acquisition by Sierra of any MCC Common Stock, seeking to restrain or prohibit the consummation of the MCC Merger or any other transaction contemplated by the MCC Merger Agreement or seeking to obtain from MCC or Sierra any damages that are material in relation to MCC and its subsidiaries taken as a whole, or (ii) seeking to prohibit Sierra or any of its subsidiaries from effectively controlling in any material respect the business or operations of MCC and its subsidiaries;
- the parties shall have received the written opinion of Eversheds Sutherland (US) LLP (or such other counsel as may be reasonably satisfactory to the parties), dated as of the MCC Merger Closing Date and in form and substance reasonably satisfactory to the parties, to the effect that, on the basis of facts, representations and assumptions set forth or referred to in such opinion, the MCC Merger will qualify as a reorganization within the meaning of Section 368(a) of the Code; and
- Seth Taube shall have resigned from the Sierra Board.

In addition, the obligations of Sierra to effect the MCC Merger are subject to the satisfaction or waiver of additional conditions, including:

- the accuracy of the representations and warranties of MCC (subject to the interpretive standards set forth in the MCC Merger Agreement), and the receipt by Sierra of a certificate signed by the MCC chief executive officer or chief financial officer certifying such accuracy;
- the performance by MCC, in all material respects, of all obligations required to be performed by MCC under the MCC Merger Agreement, and the receipt by Sierra of a certificate signed by the MCC chief executive officer or chief financial officer certifying such performance;
- MCC shall have delivered to Sierra fully executed copies of all consents and approvals required in order to keep the amounts outstanding under MCC's debt documents, other than with respect to MCC's revolving loan and term loan, outstanding following the MCC Merger Effective Time and to keep the MCC debt documents, other than with respect to MCC's revolving loan and term loan, in full force and effect in accordance with their terms as of the date of the MCC Merger Agreement without any breach or violation thereof; and
- MCC shall have made the Final MCC Dividend, if required.

In addition, the obligations of MCC to effect the MCC Merger are subject to the satisfaction or waiver of additional conditions, including:

- the accuracy of the representations and warranties of Sierra (subject to the interpretive standards set forth in the MCC Merger Agreement), and the receipt by MCC of a certificate signed by the Sierra chief executive officer or chief financial officer certifying such accuracy;
- the performance by Sierra, in all material respects, of all obligations required to be performed by Sierra under the MCC Merger Agreement, and the performance by Sierra, in all respects, of its covenants and obligations relating to amendments and waivers to the MDLY Merger Agreement, and the receipt by MCC of a certificate signed by the Sierra chief executive officer or chief financial officer certifying such performance;
- Sierra shall have terminated all share repurchase programs or offers to repurchase Sierra Common Stock;
- Sierra shall have taken all actions, and executed all documents, reasonably required of Sierra by the MCC debt documents, other than with respect to MCC's revolving loan and term loan, in order to keep the indebtedness thereunder outstanding after the MCC Merger Effective Time and to keep the MCC debt documents in full force and effect in accordance with their terms as of the date of the MCC Merger Agreement without any breach or violation thereof;
- Sierra shall have entered into amended and restated Sierra revolving loan documents and taken such other actions as may be required in order to assume the obligations under such MCC revolving loan documents and the MCC term loan documents and to keep such amounts outstanding as of the MCC Merger Effective Time; and
- Sierra shall have taken all actions, and executed all documents, reasonably required of Sierra in order to keep its existing indebtedness outstanding and the related debt documents in full force and effect in accordance with their terms as of the date of the MCC Merger Agreement without any breach or violation thereof.

Termination of the MCC Merger Agreement

The MCC Merger Agreement generally may be terminated, whether before or after the receipt of the MCC Stockholder approval or the Sierra Stockholder approval:

- (a) by the mutual written agreement of MCC and Sierra;
- (b) by either MCC or Sierra, if any governmental entity whose consent or approval is a condition to the MCC Merger Closing has denied the granting of any such consent or approval and such denial has become final and nonappealable, or any governmental entity of competent jurisdiction shall have issued a final and nonappealable order, injunction or decree permanently enjoining or otherwise prohibiting or making illegal the consummation of the transactions contemplated by the MCC Merger Agreement;
- (c) by either MCC or Sierra, if the MCC Merger shall not have been consummated on or prior to the MCC Merger Outside Date, unless the failure of the MCC Merger Closing to occur by such date shall be due to the failure of the party seeking to terminate the MCC Merger Agreement to perform or observe the covenants and agreements of such party set forth in the MCC Merger Agreement; provided that the terminating party is not then in material breach of any representation, warranty, covenant or other agreement contained herein, and such breach has caused or resulted in the failure of the MCC Merger Closing to occur by or prior to the MCC Merger Outside Date;
- (d) by either Sierra or MCC, at any time prior to the MCC Merger Effective Time, in the event that (i) MCC or Sierra, as the case may be, shall have failed to obtain the MCC Stockholder approval or the Sierra Stockholder approval, as applicable, at the MCC Special Meeting or the Sierra Special Meeting, respectively, at which a vote is taken on the MCC Merger, or (ii) the MDLY Merger Agreement shall have been terminated;
- (e) by either MCC or Sierra (provided that the terminating party is not then in material breach of any representation, warranty, covenant or other agreement contained in the MCC Merger Agreement), if there shall have been a breach of any of the covenants or agreements or any of the representations or warranties set forth in the MCC Merger Agreement on the part of MCC, in the case of a termination by Sierra, or Sierra, in the case of a termination by MCC, which breach, either individually or in the aggregate, would result in, if occurring or continuing on the MCC Merger Closing Date, the failure of certain closing conditions set forth in the MCC Merger Agreement, as the case may be, and which is not cured within 30 days following written notice to the party committing such breach or by its nature or timing cannot be cured within such time period;
- (f) by Sierra, (i) within 10 business days after the MCC Board shall have effected an MCC Adverse Recommendation Change prior to receipt of MCC Stockholder approval, (ii) in the event MCC Board shall have approved or authorized MCC or any of its subsidiaries to enter into a merger agreement, letter of intent, acquisition agreement, purchase agreement or other similar agreement with respect to an MCC Merger Competing Proposal or (iii) MCC fails to include the MCC Board Recommendation in this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus; and

- (g) by MCC, in the event that (i) (A) MCC shall have received an MCC Merger Superior Proposal, (B) subject to MCC's compliance with the MCC Merger Agreement as it relates to negotiating in good faith with Sierra regarding the potential amendment of the MCC Merger Agreement, MCC Board or any authorized committee thereof shall have authorized MCC to enter into a definitive agreement to consummate the transaction contemplated by such MCC Merger Superior Proposal, and (C) concurrently with the termination of the MCC Merger Agreement, MCC pays Sierra the MCC Merger Termination Fee (as described below) and enters into the definitive agreement to consummate the transaction contemplated by such MCC Merger Superior Proposal; or (ii) the MCC Board or any authorized committee thereof shall have effected an MCC Adverse Recommendation Change in accordance with the applicable provisions of the MCC Merger Agreement;
- (h) by MCC, (i) within 10 business days after the Sierra Board shall have effected a Sierra MCC Merger Adverse Recommendation Change prior to receipt of Sierra Stockholder approval, (ii) in the event the Sierra Board shall have approved, or authorized Sierra or any of its subsidiaries to enter into, a merger agreement, letter of intent, acquisition agreement, purchase agreement or other similar agreement with respect to an MCC Merger Competing Proposal or (iii) Sierra fails to include the Sierra Board Recommendation in this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus; and
- (i) by Sierra, in the event that: (i) (A) Sierra shall have received an MCC Merger Superior Proposal, (B) subject to Sierra's compliance with its obligations under the MCC Merger Agreement as it relates to negotiating in good faith with MCC regarding the potential amendment of the MCC Merger Agreement, the Sierra Board or any authorized committee thereof shall have authorized Sierra to enter into a definitive agreement to consummate the transaction contemplated by such MCC Merger Superior Proposal, and (C) concurrently with the termination of the MCC Merger Agreement, Sierra pays MCC the Termination Fee and enters into the definitive agreement to consummate the transaction contemplated by such MCC Merger Superior Proposal; or (ii) the Sierra Board or any authorized committee thereof shall have effected a Sierra MCC Merger Adverse Recommendation Change in accordance with the applicable provisions of the MCC Merger Agreement.

Termination Fees

MCC will pay Sierra the MCC Merger Termination Fee in an amount equal to $6,000,000 in the event the MCC Merger Agreement is terminated by Sierra in accordance with paragraph (f) under "Termination of the MCC Merger Agreement" above or by MCC in accordance with paragraph (g) thereunder, provided in either case that Sierra was not in material breach of its representations, warranties, covenants or agreements hereunder at the time of termination.

Sierra will pay MCC an amount equal to the MCC Merger Termination Fee in the event the MCC Merger Agreement is terminated by MCC in accordance with paragraph (h) under "Termination of the MCC Merger Agreement" above or by Sierra in accordance with paragraph (i) thereunder, provided in either case that MCC was not in material breach of its representations, warranties, covenants or agreements hereunder at the time of termination.

The MCC Merger Termination Fee, if applicable, shall be payable (a) no later than two business days after the date on which the MCC Merger Agreement is terminated by Sierra pursuant to paragraph (f) under "Termination of the MCC Merger Agreement" above or by MCC pursuant to paragraph (h) thereunder, and (b) immediately prior to the time of termination of the MCC Merger Agreement by MCC pursuant to paragraph (g) under "Termination of the MCC Merger Agreement" above or by Sierra pursuant to paragraph (i) thereunder. The MCC Merger Agreement provides that in no event shall any party be required to pay the MCC Merger Termination Fee on more than one occasion.

Effect of Termination

Following termination of the MCC Merger Agreement, none of MCC, Sierra, any of their respective subsidiaries or any of the officers or directors of any of them shall have any liability of any nature whatsoever under the MCC Merger Agreement, or in connection with the MCC Merger, except that (a) provisions regarding confidentiality, effect of termination, fees and expenses, including the MCC Merger Termination Fee, and the provisions of Article X (General Provisions) of the MCC Merger Agreement shall survive termination of the MCC Merger Agreement, and (b) except as otherwise provided in the MCC Merger Agreement, neither MCC nor Sierra shall be relieved or released from any liabilities or damages arising out of its fraud or knowing and intentional breach of any provision of the MCC Merger Agreement.

Remedies; Specific Performance

Except as otherwise provided in the MCC Merger Agreement, any and all remedies expressly conferred upon a party pursuant to the MCC Merger Agreement will be deemed cumulative with and not exclusive of any other remedy conferred by the MCC Merger Agreement, or by law or equity upon such party, and the exercise by a party of any one remedy will not preclude the exercise of any other remedy.

The parties further agreed that irreparable damage would occur in the event that any provision of the MCC Merger Agreement to be performed by either party was not performed in accordance with its specific terms or was otherwise breached, and that money damages or other legal remedies would not be an adequate remedy for any such damages. Accordingly, the parties acknowledged and agreed that in the event of any breach or threatened breach by either party of any of its respective covenants or obligations set forth in the MCC Merger Agreement, the non-breaching party shall be entitled to an injunction or injunctions to prevent or restrain breaches or threatened breaches of the MCC Merger Agreement and to specifically enforce the terms and provisions of the MCC Merger Agreement to prevent breaches or threatened breaches of, or to enforce compliance with, the covenants and obligations of the other under the MCC Merger Agreement. Each party agreed not to raise any objections to the availability of the equitable remedy of specific performance to prevent or restrain breaches or threatened breaches of the MCC Merger Agreement by such party, and to specifically enforce the terms and provisions of the MCC Merger Agreement to prevent breaches or threatened breaches of, or to enforce compliance with, the covenants and obligations of such party under the MCC Merger Agreement. The parties further agreed that (i) by seeking the remedies provided for in the MCC Merger Agreement, neither party shall in any respect waive its right to seek any other form of relief that may be available to a party under the MCC Merger Agreement (including monetary damages) in the event that the MCC Merger Agreement has been terminated or in the event that the remedies provided for in the MCC Merger Agreement are not available or otherwise are not granted, and (ii) nothing set forth in the provision of the MCC Merger Agreement governing equitable remedies shall require either party to institute any proceeding for (or limit such party's right to institute any proceeding for) specific performance or as a condition to exercising any termination right under the MCC Merger Agreement (and pursuing damages after such termination), nor shall the commencement of any legal proceeding restrict or limit such party's right to terminate the MCC Merger Agreement or pursue any other remedies under the MCC Merger Agreement that may be available then or thereafter.

Notwithstanding anything to the contrary contained in the MCC Merger Agreement, the parties expressly acknowledged and agreed that the right to receive the MCC Merger Termination Fee in the circumstances in which the MCC Merger Termination Fee is payable shall be the sole remedy with respect to termination of the MCC Merger Agreement in those circumstances, and to the extent Sierra or MCC is entitled to receive the MCC Merger Termination Fee, the receipt of such amounts shall be deemed to be full and final payment for any and all losses or damages suffered or incurred by Sierra or MCC, as applicable, or any of their respective affiliates or any other person in connection with the MCC Merger Agreement (and the termination thereof), the transactions contemplated thereby (and the abandonment thereof) or any matter forming the basis for such termination, and none of Sierra nor any of its affiliates, or MCC or any of its affiliates, as applicable, or any other person shall be entitled to bring or maintain any other claim against MCC or Sierra, as applicable, or any of their affiliates arising out of the MCC Merger Agreement, any of the transactions contemplated by the MCC Merger Agreement or any matters forming the basis for such termination.

Amendment and Waiver

The MCC Merger Agreement may be amended by the parties, by action taken or authorized by the MCC Board and Sierra Board, at any time before or after receipt of MCC Stockholder approval or Sierra Stockholder approval; provided, however, that after receipt of MCC Stockholder approval or Sierra Stockholder approval, there may not be, without further approval of such stockholders, any amendment of the MCC Merger Agreement that requires further approval of the MCC Stockholders or Sierra Stockholders under applicable law. The MCC Merger Agreement may not be amended except by an instrument in writing signed on behalf of each of the parties.

Governing Law; Jurisdiction

The MCC Merger Agreement is governed and construed in accordance with the internal laws of the State of Delaware applicable to contracts made and wholly performed within such state, without regard to any applicable conflicts of law principles. Under the MCC Merger Agreement, each of MCC and Sierra irrevocably and unconditionally submitted, for itself and its property, to the exclusive jurisdiction of the Delaware Court of Chancery, or, if (and only if) such court lacks subject matter jurisdiction, any Federal court of the United States of America sitting in the State of Delaware, and the respective appellate courts from the foregoing (all of the foregoing, collectively, the "Delaware Courts"), in any action or proceeding arising out of or relating to the MCC Merger Agreement or the agreements delivered in connection therewith or the transactions contemplated by the MCC Merger Agreement or such other agreements or for recognition or enforcement of any judgment relating thereto, and each of the parties irrevocably and unconditionally (i) agreed not to commence any such action or proceeding except in the applicable Delaware Court, (ii) agreed that any claim in respect of any such action or proceeding may be heard and determined in the applicable Delaware Court, (iii) waived, to the fullest extent it may legally and effectively do so, any objection that it may now or hereafter have to the laying of venue of any such action or proceeding in the applicable Delaware Court, and (iv) waived, to the fullest extent permitted by applicable law, the defense of an inconvenient forum to the maintenance of such action or proceeding in the applicable Delaware Court. Each of the parties further agreed that a final judgment in any such action or proceeding shall be conclusive and may be enforced in other jurisdictions by suit on the judgment or in any other manner provided by applicable law, and irrevocably consented to service of process in the manner provided for by applicable law.

DESCRIPTION OF THE MDLY MERGER AGREEMENT

Explanatory Note Regarding the MDLY Merger Agreement

The following summary describes the material provisions of the MDLY Merger Agreement. The descriptions of the MDLY Merger Agreement in this summary and elsewhere in this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus are not complete and are qualified in their entirety by reference to the MDLY Merger Agreement, a copy of which is attached to this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus as Appendix B and incorporated by reference in its entirety into this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus. You should read the MDLY Merger Agreement carefully and in its entirety because this summary may not contain all the information about the MDLY Merger Agreement that is important to you.

The representations, warranties and covenants of Sierra and MDLY contained in the MDLY Merger Agreement have been made solely for the benefit of the parties thereto. In addition, the representations and warranties contained in the MDLY Merger Agreement (a) have been made only for purposes of the MDLY Merger Agreement, (b) have been qualified by (i) matters specifically disclosed in Sierra's and MDLY's filings with the SEC filed or furnished since December 31, 2014, and (ii) confidential disclosures made in the disclosure schedules delivered in connection with the MDLY Merger Agreement, (c) are subject to applicable materiality qualifications contained in the MDLY Merger Agreement which may differ from what may be viewed as material by investors, (d) were made only as of the date of the MDLY Merger Agreement or such other date as is specified in the MDLY Merger Agreement, and (e) have been included in the MDLY Merger Agreement for the purpose of allocating risk between the contracting parties rather than establishing matters as fact. Accordingly, the MDLY Merger Agreement is included with this filing only to provide investors with information regarding the terms of the MDLY Merger Agreement, and not to provide investors with any other factual information regarding MDLY or Sierra or their respective businesses. Investors should not rely on the representations and warranties or any descriptions thereof as characterizations of the actual state of facts or condition of MDLY or Sierra or any of their respective subsidiaries or affiliates. Moreover, information concerning the subject matter of the representations and warranties may change after the date of the MDLY Merger Agreement, which subsequent information may or may not be fully reflected in Sierra's or MDLY's public disclosures. The representations and warranties in the MDLY Merger Agreement and the description of them in this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus should not be read alone but instead should be read in conjunction with the other information contained in this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus and the other reports, statements and filings Sierra and MDLY file publicly with the SEC.

The MDLY Merger

Pursuant to the MDLY Merger Agreement, subject to certain conditions described therein, at the MDLY Merger Closing, MDLY will merge with and into Merger Sub, and the separate corporate existence of MDLY shall cease. Merger Sub shall be the surviving company in the MDLY Merger and shall continue its existence as a corporation under the laws of the State of Delaware and a wholly owned subsidiary of Sierra. The MDLY Merger will become effective at the MDLY Merger Effective Time set forth in a certificate of merger (the "MDLY Certificate of Merger") to be filed with the Delaware Secretary.

The MDLY Board, acting upon the recommendation of a the MDLY Special Committee, has unanimously (a) determined that the MDLY Merger Agreement and the transactions contemplated thereby, including without limitation the MDLY Merger, are advisable and fair to, and in the best interests of, MDLY and the MDLY Stockholders, (b) approved and declared advisable the MDLY Merger Agreement and the transactions contemplated thereby, including without limitation the MDLY Merger, (c) resolved to submit the MDLY Merger Agreement to the MDLY Stockholders for its adoption, and (d) recommended that the MDLY Stockholders approve the adoption of the MDLY Merger Agreement (the "MDLY Board Recommendation").

The Merger Sub Board has (a) determined that the MDLY Merger Agreement and the transactions contemplated thereby, including the MDLY Merger, are advisable and fair to, and in the best interests of, Merger Sub and its sole stockholder, (b) approved and declared advisable the MDLY Merger Agreement and the transactions contemplated thereby, including the MDLY Merger, (c) resolved to submit the MDLY Merger Agreement to the sole stockholder of Merger Sub for its adoption, and (d) recommended that the sole stockholder of Merger Sub approve the adoption of the MDLY Merger Agreement. Sierra, in its capacity as the sole stockholder of Merger Sub, has approved the adoption of the MDLY Merger Agreement.

The Sierra Board, acting upon the recommendation of the Sierra Special Committee, unanimously (a) determined that the MDLY Merger, the MDLY Merger Agreement, the issuance of the MDLY Merger Shares and the other transactions contemplated by the MDLY Merger Agreement are advisable to and in the best interests of Sierra and Sierra Stockholders, (b) approved the MDLY Merger, the Sierra Charter Amendments, and any other matters required to be approved or adopted by the Sierra Stockholders in order to effect the MDLY Merger, the related issuance of the MDLY Merger Shares, and the other transactions contemplated by the MDLY Merger Agreement (collectively, the “SIC-MDLY Matters”) and (c) directed that the SIC-MDLY Matters be submitted to the Sierra Stockholders for approval and adoption at the Sierra Special Meeting, together with the recommendation of the Sierra Board that the stockholders approve and adopt the SIC Matters (the “Sierra Board Recommendation”).

Merger Consideration

In the MDLY Merger, each share of MDLY Class A Common Stock, issued and outstanding immediately prior to the MDLY Merger Effective Time (other than Dissenting Shares (as defined and discussed below) and shares of MDLY Class A Common Stock held by MDLY, Sierra or their respective wholly owned subsidiaries (“Excluded MDLY Shares”)), will be converted into the right to receive (i) 0.3836 shares of Sierra Common Stock; provided that cash will be paid in lieu of fractional shares of Sierra Common Stock; plus (ii) cash in an amount equal to $3.44 per share; plus (iii) the First Dividend Shortfall Amount (as defined and discussed below), if any and if applicable; plus (iv) the Second Dividend Shortfall Amount (as defined and discussed below), if any and if applicable.

Under the MDLY Merger Agreement, (a) MDLY shall cause Medley LLC to declare a dividend to all Medley LLC Unitholders, including MDLY, in an amount equal to the lesser of (i) $0.35 per Medley LLC Unit, and (ii) the maximum dividend per Medley LLC Unit that Medley LLC may make based on its available cash at the time of such declaration of such dividend, and (b) the MDLY Board shall declare a dividend to all holders of shares of MDLY Class A Common Stock in an amount per share equal to the lesser of (i) $0.35 per share of MDLY Class A Common Stock, and (ii) the maximum dividend per share of MDLY Class A Common Stock that MDLY may make based on its available cash at the time of declaration of such dividend (collectively, the “First Special Dividend”) with the amounts payable in respect of each Medley LLC Unit and each share of MDLY Class A Common Stock in all events being equal, and (c) the MDLY Board will declare prior to the MDLY Merger Effective Time, and pay after the MDLY Merger Effective Time, a dividend (the “Second Special Dividend”) in an amount equal to the lesser of (i) $0.30 per share of MDLY Class A Common Stock and (ii) the maximum dividend per share of MDLY Class A Common Stock that MDLY may make based on its available cash at the time of declaration of such dividend.

The record date for determining the Medley LLC Unitholders or shares of MDLY Class A Common Stock entitled to payment of the First Special Dividend shall be the close of business on the second business day immediately preceding the MDLY Merger Closing Date and the First Special Dividend shall be paid (either by Medley LLC or MDLY, but without duplication as to the recipients thereof) on the business day immediately prior to the MDLY Merger Closing Date. Holders of outstanding MDLY RSUs will receive Dividend Equivalent Rights with respect to the First Special Dividend in accordance with the terms of the MDLY Incentive Plan and the related restricted stock unit award agreements. The record date for determining the holders of shares of MDLY Class A Common Stock entitled to payment of the Second Special Dividend shall be the close of business on the business day immediately preceding the MDLY Merger Closing Date and the Second Special Dividend shall be payable on the business day immediately following the MDLY Merger Closing Date.

In the event the First Special Dividend is less than $0.35 per share, the Medley LLC Unitholders and MDLY Class A Common Stock issued and outstanding on the record date for the First Special Dividend and certain MDLY RSUs issued and outstanding on the payment date for the First Special Dividend (and, in each case, who hold MDLY Class A Common Stock issued and outstanding immediately preceding the MDLY Merger Effective Time) shall, as part of the consideration to be paid in the MDLY Merger, be entitled to a cash payment in an amount equal to the difference between $0.35 per share and the actual per share amount of the First Special Dividend (the “First Dividend Shortfall Amount”). In the event the Second Special Dividend is less than $0.30 per share, the holders of MDLY Class A Common Stock issued and outstanding on the record date for the Second Special Dividend (and who hold MDLY Class A Common Stock immediately preceding the MDLY Merger Effective Time) shall, as part of the consideration to be paid in the MDLY Merger, be entitled to a cash payment in an amount equal to the difference between $0.30 per share and the actual per share amount of the Second Special Dividend (the “Second Dividend Shortfall Amount”). The shares of Sierra Common Stock to be issued in the MDLY Merger, together with the cash to be paid in lieu of fractional shares, the cash payment per share of MDLY Class A Common Stock, the First Dividend Shortfall Amount (if any) and the Second Dividend Shortfall Amount (if any) are referred to collectively as the “MDLY Merger Consideration.”

The net effect of the provisions in the MDLY Merger Agreement and related agreements relating to the First Special Dividend and the Second Special Dividend is that holders of MDLY Class A Common Stock (as of the applicable record dates and with respect to such shares issued and outstanding as of immediately prior to the MDLY Merger Effective Time) will receive $0.65 per share in cash dividends (or additional merger consideration) and the Medley LLC Unitholders, Medley Restricted Units and MDLY RSUs will receive $0.35 per share (or equivalent) in cash dividends, Dividend Equivalent Rights, or additional merger consideration.

Also in the MDLY Merger, each share of MDLY Class B Common Stock, other than Dissenting Shares, issued and outstanding immediately prior to the MDLY Merger Effective Time shall be cancelled and shall cease to exist and no MDLY Merger Consideration or other amounts or consideration shall be delivered in exchange therefor.

The MDLY Merger Agreement provides that MDLY will take (and will cause Medley LLC to take) all steps necessary to cause all Medley LLC Units held by members of Medley LLC, other than MDLY, issued and outstanding immediately prior to the MDLY Merger Effective Time to be converted into shares of MDLY Class A Common Stock as of immediately prior to the MDLY Merger Effective Time, pursuant to the Exchange Agreement. In addition, each Medley LLC Restricted Unit outstanding and not previously forfeited shall become fully vested, all restrictions with respect to such Medley LLC Restricted Units shall lapse and the resulting Medley LLC Units shall be exchanged for MDLY Class A Common Stock in accordance with the Exchange Agreement immediately prior to the MDLY Merger Effective Time. All MDLY Class A Common Stock resulting from the exchange of Medley LLC Units (other than Medley LLC Units that immediately prior to the MDLY Merger Effective Time represented Medley LLC Restricted Units) shall participate in the MDLY Merger on the same terms applicable to all other shares of MDLY Class A Common Stock, other than the right to receive the Second Special Dividend or the Second Dividend Shortfall Amount. All MDLY Class A Common Stock resulting from the exchange of Medley LLC Units that immediately prior to the MDLY Merger Effective Time represented Medley LLC Restricted Units shall participate in the MDLY Merger on the same terms applicable to all other shares of MDLY Class A Common Stock, other than the right to receive the Second Special Dividend or the Second Dividend Shortfall Amount.

Also as of the MDLY Merger Effective Time, each MDLY RSU outstanding and not previously forfeited under the MDLY Incentive Plan, other than MDLY RSUs held by non-management directors of MDLY, shall be converted into 0.8532 restricted stock units under the Sierra Incentive Plan ("Sierra RSUs"). Each Sierra RSU (or portion thereof) into which a MDLY RSU will be converted shall have identical terms as it relates to vesting and forfeiture. In addition, as of immediately prior to the MDLY Merger Effective Time, the restrictions on each MDLY RSU outstanding and not previously forfeited under the MDLY Incentive Plan held by non-management directors of MDLY shall lapse and the relevant MDLY RSU will be converted into a share of MDLY Class A Common Stock that shall participate in the MDLY Merger on the same basis as the other individual holders of shares of MDLY Class A Common Stock other than the right to receive the Second Special Dividend or the Second Dividend Shortfall Amount.

Appraisal Rights

The MDLY Merger Agreement provides that Dissenting Shares shall not be converted into or represent the right to receive the MDLY Merger Consideration in accordance with the MDLY Merger Agreement, but shall be entitled only to such rights as are granted by the DGCL to a holder of Dissenting Shares (and at the MDLY Merger Effective Time, such Dissenting Shares shall no longer be outstanding and shall automatically be canceled and shall cease to exist, and such holder shall cease to have any rights with respect thereto, except the rights set forth in Section 262 of the DGCL), unless and until such holder shall have failed to perfect or shall have effectively withdrawn or otherwise lost such holder's right to appraisal under the DGCL. If any Dissenting Shares shall lose their status as such (by the holder thereof effectively withdrawing, failing to perfect, or otherwise losing such holder's appraisal rights under the DGCL with respect to such shares), then, as of the later of the MDLY Merger Effective Time or the date of loss of such status, such shares shall thereupon be deemed to have been converted as of the MDLY Merger Effective Time into the right to receive the applicable MDLY Merger Consideration in accordance with the MDLY Merger Agreement, without interest, and shall not thereafter be deemed to be Dissenting Shares.

Under the MDLY Merger Agreement, “Dissenting Shares” are defined as shares of MDLY Common Stock issued and outstanding immediately prior to the MDLY Merger Effective Time that are held by a holder who has not voted in favor of the MDLY Merger or consented thereto in writing and properly demands appraisal rights of such shares pursuant to, and who is complying in all respects with, the provisions of Section 262 of the DGCL (until such time as such holder effectively withdraws, fails to perfect or otherwise loses such holder’s appraisal rights under the DGCL with respect to such shares, at which time such shares shall cease to be Dissenting Shares).

The MDLY Merger Agreement provides that MDLY shall give Sierra notice of any MDLY Stockholder who has not voted in favor of the MDLY Merger or consented thereto in writing and has properly demanded appraisal rights pursuant to, and who is complying in all respects with, the provisions of Section 262 of the DGCL and Sierra has the right to participate in all negotiations and proceedings with respect to any such demands. MDLY has agreed that it will not, except with the prior written consent of Sierra, voluntarily make any payment with respect to, or settle or offer to settle, any such demand for payment. Sierra has agreed that it will contribute or cause to be contributed to the Combined Company funds sufficient from time to time to make all payments with respect to the Dissenting Shares.

Sierra Charter and Bylaws

Pursuant to the MDLY Merger Agreement, the Sierra Board reviewed and approved the Sierra Charter Amendments, which Sierra Charter Amendments were reasonably acceptable to the MDLY Board, including the MDLY Special Committee, in order to remove terms inconsistent with, and to add terms advisable to reflect, the publicly traded nature of the Combined Company following the MDLY Merger Closing. The Third Amended and Restated Sierra Charter and the Articles of Amendment to the Third Amended Restated Sierra Charter, which comprise the Sierra Charter Amendments, are attached to this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus as Appendix H and Appendix I. Sierra Stockholders are being asked to vote to adopt the Sierra Charter Amendments. See “Sierra Proposal #5: Adoption of Sierra Charter Amendments.”

The Sierra Board has also reviewed and approved the Amended and Restated Sierra Bylaws, which Amended and Restated Sierra Bylaws were reasonably acceptable to the MDLY Board, including the MDLY Special Committee, in order to remove terms inconsistent with, and to add terms advisable to reflect, the publicly traded nature of the Combined Company following the MDLY Merger Closing. The Amended and Restated Sierra Bylaws are attached to this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus as Appendix J.

Officers and Directors of the Surviving Company

Under the MDLY Merger Agreement, the officers and directors of Merger Sub immediately prior to the MDLY Merger Effective Time shall be the officers and directors of Merger Sub, as the surviving company in the MDLY Merger, from and after the MDLY Merger Effective Time until their respective successors shall have been duly elected and qualified or until their respective earlier death, resignation or removal in accordance with Merger Sub Certificate and applicable law.

The identities of the individuals who will serve as the officers and directors of Sierra following the MDLY Merger Effective Time are described under “Information about the Combined Company — Management.”

Closing of the MDLY Merger

Unless extended by mutual agreement of MDLY and Sierra, the MDLY Merger Closing will take place at 10:00 A.M. on a date and at a place to be specified by the parties, which shall be no later than five business days following the satisfaction or waiver (subject to applicable law) of the latest to occur of the conditions to the MDLY Merger Closing (as set forth in the MDLY Merger Agreement and as described in the section of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus captioned “The MDLY Merger Agreement — Conditions to the MDLY Merger”), other than conditions that by their terms are to be satisfied at the MDLY Merger Closing and subject to the satisfaction or waiver of such conditions.

Contemporaneously with the MDLY Merger Closing, Sierra shall file or cause to be filed the MDLY Certificate of Merger with the Delaware Secretary. The MDLY Merger shall become effective at the MDLY Merger Effective Time set forth in the Certificate of Merger.

Delivery of MDLY Merger Consideration

Prior to the MDLY Merger Effective Time, Sierra shall appoint a bank or trust company, or Sierra's transfer agent, in each case reasonably acceptable to MDLY, pursuant to an agreement to act as exchange agent (the "MDLY Merger Exchange Agent") under the MDLY Merger Agreement. At or prior to the MDLY Merger Effective Time, Sierra shall (i) authorize the MDLY Merger Exchange Agent to issue an aggregate number of shares of Sierra Common Stock equal to the aggregate number of MDLY Merger Shares and (ii) deposit, or cause to be deposited with, the MDLY Merger Exchange Agent sufficient cash to pay the MDLY Merger Cash Consideration, the First Dividend Shortfall Amount (if any), the Second Dividend Shortfall Amount (if any), and the payments to holders of shares of MDLY Class A Common Stock in lieu of fractional shares of Sierra Common Stock (collectively, the "MDLY Exchange Fund"). The MDLY Merger Exchange Agent shall invest any cash included in the MDLY Exchange Fund as directed by Sierra; provided, however, that no gain or loss thereon shall affect the amounts payable to former holders of shares of MDLY Class A Common Stock pursuant to the MDLY Merger Agreement. Any interest or other income resulting from such investments shall be the sole property of Sierra.

As soon as reasonably practicable after the MDLY Merger Effective Time, the MDLY Merger Exchange Agent shall mail to each holder of record of a certificate(s) which immediately prior to the MDLY Merger Effective Time represented outstanding shares of MDLY Class A Common Stock (other than Excluded MDLY Shares) (i) a letter of transmittal (which shall specify that delivery shall be effected, and risk of loss and title to such certificate(s) shall pass, only upon delivery of such certificate(s) (or affidavits of loss in lieu of such certificates)) to the MDLY Merger Exchange Agent and shall be substantially in such form and have such other provisions as shall be prescribed by the MDLY Merger Exchange Agent Agreement (the "MDLY Letter of Transmittal") and (ii) instructions for use in surrendering such certificate(s) in exchange for the MDLY Merger Consideration and any dividends or distributions to which such holder is entitled pursuant to the MDLY Merger Agreement; provided, however, any holder of book-entry shares shall not be required to deliver a certificate or an executed MDLY Letter of Transmittal to the MDLY Merger Exchange Agent to receive the MDLY Merger Consideration that such holder is entitled to receive as a result of the MDLY Merger. In lieu thereof, each holder of record of one or more book-entry shares (other than Excluded MDLY Shares) shall upon receipt by the MDLY Merger Exchange Agent of an "agent's message" in customary form (it being understood that the holders of book-entry shares shall be deemed to have surrendered such shares upon receipt by the MDLY Merger Exchange Agent of such "agent's message" or such other evidence, if any, as the MDLY Merger Exchange Agent may reasonably request), be entitled to receive, and Sierra shall cause the MDLY Merger Exchange Agent to pay and deliver as promptly as reasonably practicable after the MDLY Merger Effective Time, the MDLY Merger Consideration such holder is entitled to receive as a result of the MDLY Merger, and the book-entry shares so surrendered shall forthwith be cancelled. No interest will be paid or accrued on any amount payable upon due surrender of the book-entry shares.

Upon surrender to the MDLY Merger Exchange Agent of its certificate or certificates, accompanied by a properly completed MDLY Letter of Transmittal, a holder of shares of MDLY Class A Common Stock (other than Excluded MDLY Shares) will be entitled to receive the MDLY Merger Consideration in respect of the shares of MDLY Class A Common Stock represented by its certificate or certificates, as well as any dividends payable with respect to such shares of MDLY Class A Common Stock at the time of surrender, and any dividends with respect to shares of Sierra Common Stock to which such holder is entitled. Until so surrendered, each such certificate shall represent after the MDLY Merger Effective Time, for all purposes, only the right to receive, without interest, the MDLY Merger Consideration upon surrender of such certificate in accordance with, together with any dividends or distributions to which such holder is entitled pursuant to, the MDLY Merger Agreement.

No dividends or other distributions declared with respect to Sierra Common Stock to stockholders of record on or after the MDLY Merger Effective Time shall be paid to the holder of any unsurrendered certificate with respect to the shares of Sierra Common Stock to which the holder of such certificate is entitled upon exchange thereof in accordance with the MDLY Merger Agreement, in each case unless and until the holder thereof shall surrender such certificate. Subject to the effect of applicable abandoned property, escheat or similar laws, following surrender of any such certificate in accordance with the MDLY Merger Agreement, the record holder thereof shall be entitled to receive, without interest, (i) the amount of dividends or other distributions with a record date after the MDLY Merger Effective Time theretofore payable with respect to the whole shares of Sierra Common Stock represented by such certificate and not paid prior to the date of surrender, and/or (ii) at the appropriate payment date, the amount of dividends or other distributions payable with respect to whole shares of Sierra Common Stock represented by such certificate with a record date after the MDLY Merger Effective Time (but before such surrender date) and with a payment date subsequent to the surrender date.

If any MDLY Merger Consideration is to be issued or paid in a name other than that in which a certificate formerly representing MDLY Class A Common Stock surrendered in exchange therefor is registered, it shall be a condition to the issuance or payment of such MDLY Merger Consideration that such certificate shall be properly endorsed or otherwise be in proper form for transfer, and the person requesting such payment or issuance shall pay any transfer or other similar taxes required by reason of the payment or issuance to a person other than the registered holder of the certificate or establish to the satisfaction of Sierra that the tax has been paid or is not applicable.

The MDLY Merger Exchange Agent (or, subsequent to the earlier of (x) the one-year anniversary of the MDLY Merger Effective Time and (y) the expiration or termination of the MDLY Merger Exchange Agent Agreement, Sierra) shall be entitled to deduct and withhold from any MDLY Merger Consideration otherwise payable pursuant to the MDLY Merger Agreement to any holder of shares of MDLY Class A Common Stock such amounts as the MDLY Merger Exchange Agent or Sierra, as the case may be, is required to deduct and withhold under the Code, or any provision of state, local or foreign Tax law, with respect to the making of such payment. To the extent the amounts are so withheld by the MDLY Merger Exchange Agent or Sierra, as the case may be, and timely paid over to the appropriate governmental entity, such withheld amounts shall be treated for all purposes of the MDLY Merger Agreement as having been paid to the holder of shares of MDLY Class A Common Stock in respect of whom such deduction and withholding was made by the MDLY Merger Exchange Agent or Sierra, as the case may be.

After the MDLY Merger Effective Time, there shall be no transfers on the stock transfer books of MDLY of the shares of MDLY Class A Common Stock that were issued and outstanding immediately prior to the MDLY Merger Effective Time other than to settle transfers of MDLY Class A Common Stock that occurred prior to the MDLY Merger Effective Time. If, after the MDLY Merger Effective Time, certificates or book-entry shares representing such shares of MDLY Class A Common Stock are presented for transfer to the MDLY Merger Exchange Agent, they shall be cancelled and exchanged for the MDLY Merger Consideration payable and issuable in respect of such certificates or book-entry shares, together with any dividends and distributions to which such holder is entitled in accordance with the MDLY Merger Agreement.

Any portion of the MDLY Exchange Fund that remains unclaimed by the MDLY Stockholders as of the first anniversary of the MDLY Merger Effective Time may be paid to Sierra. In such event, any former MDLY Stockholders who have not theretofore complied with the MDLY Merger Agreement shall thereafter look only to Sierra with respect to the MDLY Merger Consideration and any unpaid dividends and distributions in respect of each share of Sierra Common Stock such stockholder is entitled to, as determined pursuant to the MDLY Merger Agreement, in each case, without any interest thereon. Notwithstanding the foregoing, none of Sierra, the surviving company, the MDLY Merger Exchange Agent or any other person shall be liable to any former holder of shares of MDLY Class A Common Stock for any amount delivered in good faith to a public official pursuant to applicable abandoned property, escheat or similar laws.

In the event any certificate shall have been lost, stolen or destroyed, upon the making of an affidavit of that fact by the person claiming such certificate to be lost, stolen or destroyed and, if reasonably required by Sierra or the MDLY Merger Exchange Agent, the posting by such person of a bond in such amount as Sierra may determine is reasonably necessary as indemnity against any claim that may be made against it with respect to such certificate, the MDLY Merger Exchange Agent will issue in exchange for such lost, stolen or destroyed certificate the MDLY Merger Consideration and any unpaid dividends or distributions deliverable in respect thereof pursuant to the MDLY Merger Agreement.

Representations and Warranties

The MDLY Merger Agreement contains certain representations and warranties made by MDLY to Sierra including, but not limited to, representations regarding:

Many of the representations and warranties contained in the MDLY Merger Agreement are qualified by materiality or the “Material Adverse Effect” standard. For purposes of the MDLY Merger Agreement, “Material Adverse Effect” is defined to mean, with respect to Sierra or MDLY, as the case may be, any occurrence, change, event, effect or development that, individually, or taken together with all other occurrences, changes, events, effects or developments, has or would reasonably be likely to have, a material adverse effect on (a) the financial condition, results of operations, properties, assets or business of such party and its subsidiaries taken as a whole; or (b) the ability of such party to timely consummate the transactions contemplated by the MDLY Merger Agreement; provided, however, that, with respect to subsection (a) above, the determination of whether a “Material Adverse Effect” exists or has occurred shall not include effects to the extent attributable to:

- (i) changes, after the date of the MDLY Merger Agreement, in GAAP or regulatory accounting requirements applicable generally to companies in the industry in which such party and its Subsidiaries operate;
- (ii) changes, after the date of the MDLY Merger Agreement, in laws, rules or regulations or interpretations thereof of general applicability to companies in the industry in which such party and its Subsidiaries operate;
- (iii) actions or omissions taken with the prior written consent of the other party;
- (iv) changes, after the date of the MDLY Merger Agreement, in global or national political conditions or general economic or market conditions generally affecting other companies in the industry in which such party and its Subsidiaries operate;
- (v) conditions arising out of acts of terrorism, war, weather conditions or other force majeure events;
- (vi) the public disclosure of the MDLY Merger Agreement or the transactions contemplated thereby; or
- (vii) any legal proceedings made or brought by any of the current or former stockholders of such party (on their own behalf or on behalf of such party) arising out of or related to the MDLY Merger Agreement or any of the transactions contemplated by the MDLY Merger Agreement,

except, with respect to clauses (i), (ii), (iv) and (v) above, to the extent that the effects of such change are disproportionately adverse to the financial condition, results of operations, properties, assets or business of such party and its subsidiaries, taken as a whole, as compared to other companies in the industry in which such party and its subsidiaries operate.

Covenants Relating to the Conduct of the Business

Under the MDLY Merger Agreement, Sierra and MDLY have agreed that, except as expressly contemplated by or permitted by the MDLY Merger Agreement or the MCC Merger Agreement or with the prior written consent of the other party, during the period from the date of the MDLY Merger Agreement to the MDLY Merger Effective Time, (a) each of Sierra and MDLY shall, and shall cause each of its respective subsidiaries to, (i) conduct its business in the ordinary course in all material respects, as such business is being conducted as of the date of the MDLY Merger Agreement, and (ii) use commercially reasonable efforts to maintain and preserve intact its business organization and advantageous business relationships and retain the services of its key officers and key employees, and (b) each of Sierra and MDLY shall, and shall cause each of its respective subsidiaries to, take no action that is intended to or would reasonably be expected to adversely affect or materially delay the ability of Sierra or MDLY either to obtain any necessary approvals of any self-regulatory organization or governmental entity required for the transactions contemplated by the MDLY Merger Agreement or to perform its covenants and agreements under the MDLY Merger Agreement or to consummate the transactions contemplated thereunder.

In addition, MDLY has agreed, except as expressly contemplated or permitted by the MDLY Merger Agreement or as set forth in a schedule to the MDLY Merger Agreement, without the written consent of Sierra (which may not be unreasonably withheld, conditioned or delayed), to not, and to not permit its subsidiaries to:

- other than borrowings under MDLY’s existing credit facility with City National Bank, incur any indebtedness for borrowed money, assume, guarantee, endorse or otherwise as an accommodation become responsible for the obligations of any other individual, corporation or other entity, or, make any loan or advance or capital contribution to, or investment in, any person or entity;
- adjust, split, combine or reclassify any of its capital stock;

- make, declare or pay any dividend, other than (i) its regular quarterly dividend consistent with past practice of no more than $0.20 per share, and (ii) dividends paid by any MDLY's subsidiaries (other than Medley LLC) to any of its wholly owned subsidiaries;
- make any other distribution on, or directly or indirectly redeem, purchase or otherwise acquire, any shares of its capital stock or other ownership interests or any securities or rights convertible (whether currently convertible or convertible only after the passage of time or the occurrence of certain events) into or exchangeable for any shares of its capital stock or other ownership interest;
- grant any stock options or restricted shares or restricted units or restricted stock units, or grant any person or entity any right to acquire any shares of its capital stock or other ownership interests or other securities or issue or sell any additional shares of capital stock or other ownership interests or securities or rights convertible (whether currently convertible or convertible only after the passage of time or the occurrence of certain events) into or exchangeable for any shares of its capital stock or other ownership interest (except as reasonably necessary to evidence the carried interest awards previously approved by the MDLY Board on May 10, 2018);
- sell, transfer, pledge, lease, license, mortgage, encumber or otherwise dispose of any material amount of its properties or assets (including pursuant to securitizations) to any person or entity other than a wholly owned subsidiary or cancel, release or assign any material amount of indebtedness owed to or any claims held by MDLY or any of its subsidiaries, in each case other than pursuant to contracts in force as of the date of the MDLY Merger Agreement and set forth in MDLY's disclosure schedule to the MDLY Merger Agreement;
- take any action, or knowingly fail to take any action, which action or failure to act is reasonably likely to prevent the MDLY Merger from qualifying as a reorganization within the meaning of Section 368(a) of the Code or take any action, or knowingly fail to take any action, inconsistent with the treatment of the MDLY Merger as a reorganization for U.S. federal income tax purposes;
- amend the MDLY Certificate or the MDLY Bylaws or the organizational documents of any subsidiary of MDLY, or take any action to exempt any person or entity (other than Sierra or its subsidiaries) or any action taken by any person or entity from any applicable takeover statute or similarly restrictive provisions of its organizational documents;
- enter into, renew, modify, amend or terminate, or waive, release, compromise or assign any rights or claims under, any material contract (as defined in the MDLY Merger Agreement) of MDLY (or any contract that, if existing as of the date of the MDLY Merger Agreement, would be a material contract of MDLY), other than (i) any termination or renewal in accordance with the terms of any existing material contract that occurs automatically without any action (other than notice of renewal) by MDLY or any of its subsidiaries, (ii) the entry into any modification or amendment of, or waiver or consent under, any material contract as required or necessitated to obtain any required approval in connection with the MDLY Merger, (iii) the termination of a material contract of MDLY specifically contemplated by the MDLY Merger Agreement or (iv) amendments, waivers or consents to or under the existing debt documents of MDLY in the ordinary course of business consistent with past practice;
- form any entity that would comprise a subsidiary or dissolve or liquidate any subsidiary;
- except as required pursuant to the terms of a MDLY employee benefit plan in effect as of the date of the MDLY Merger Agreement, or as otherwise required by applicable law, (i) increase the rate of compensation or benefits payable to any partner, director, executive officer, employee or other service provider of MDLY or any of its subsidiaries (except, for employees who are not executive officers or partners, increases in annual salary or wage rate in the ordinary course of business consistent with past practice that do not exceed 10% in the aggregate), (ii) establish, adopt, materially amend or terminate any MDLY benefit plan or any plan, agreement or arrangement that would be a MDLY benefit plan if in effect on the date of the MDLY Merger Agreement, (iii) take any action to accelerate the vesting, accrual or payment of, or to fund or in any other way secure the payment, of compensation or benefits under any MDLY benefit plan, except as otherwise provided in the MDLY Merger Agreement, or (iv) hire any senior management employee or partner or terminate the employment or services of any senior management employee or partner other than for cause;

- (i) except for the Tax Receivables Termination Agreement (as defined below), enter into, amend or modify any MDLY “tax protection agreement” (as defined in the MDLY Merger Agreement), (ii) materially amend any income tax return or any other material tax return, (iii) settle or compromise any material U.S. federal, state, local or foreign income tax liability, audit, claim or assessment or (iv) enter into any material closing agreement related to taxes, except, in each case, unless required by Tax law or necessary or appropriate to preserve the status of any Subsidiary of MDLY as a disregarded entity or partnership for U.S. federal income tax purposes;
- acquire the assets, business, or properties of any non-affiliated entity, or make any loans, advances or capital contributions to, or investments in, any person or entity (other than any wholly owned subsidiary of MDLY);
- allow the lapse or termination of policies of insurance covering material assets and businesses (other than the replacement of existing policies with substantially comparable policies);
- take any action or willfully fail to take any action that is intended or may reasonably be expected to result in any of the conditions to the MDLY Merger not being satisfied;
- implement or adopt any change in its tax accounting or financial accounting principles, practices or methods, other than as may be required by applicable law, GAAP or regulatory guidelines;
- take any action that would be reasonably expected to prevent, materially impede or delay beyond March 31, 2019 (the “MDLY Merger Outside Date”) the consummation of the transactions contemplated by the MDLY Merger Agreement; or
- agree to take, or publicly announce an intention to take, any of the foregoing actions.

In addition, Sierra has agreed, except as expressly contemplated or permitted by the MDLY Merger Agreement or as set forth in a schedule to the MDLY Merger Agreement, without the written consent of MDLY (which may not be unreasonably withheld, conditioned or delayed), to not, and to not permit its subsidiaries to:

- adjust, split, combine or reclassify any of its capital stock;
- make, declare or pay any dividend, other than (i) its regular quarterly dividend consistent with past practice, (ii) dividends paid by any of Sierra’s subsidiaries to Sierra or to any of its wholly owned subsidiaries and (iii) any dividend necessary to comply with Subchapter M of Chapter 1 of the Code;
- make any other distribution on, or directly or indirectly redeem, purchase or otherwise acquire, any shares of its capital stock or other ownership interests or any securities or obligations other than in the ordinary course of business consistent with past practice or as required by the Sierra Charter or the Sierra Bylaws or under Subchapter M of Chapter 1 of the Code;
- grant any stock options or restricted shares or restricted stock units, or grant any person or entity any right to acquire any shares of its capital stock, or other ownership interests or other securities or issue or sell any additional shares of capital stock or other ownership interests or securities or rights convertible (whether currently convertible or convertible only after the passage of time or the occurrence of certain events) into or exchangeable for any shares of its capital stock or other ownership interest, other than in the ordinary course of business consistent with past practice or as contemplated by Sierra’s SEC reports;
- issue any additional shares of capital stock or other securities other than in the ordinary course of business consistent with past practice or as contemplated by Sierra’s SEC reports;

- sell, transfer, pledge, lease, license, mortgage, encumber or otherwise dispose of any material amount of its properties or assets (including pursuant to securitizations) to any person or entity other than a wholly owned subsidiary or cancel, release or assign any material amount of indebtedness owed to or any claims held by any such person or entity, in each case other than pursuant to contracts in force at the date of the MDLY Merger Agreement, except in furtherance of its investment objective as set forth in Sierra’s SEC reports;
- take any action, or knowingly fail to take any action, which action or failure to act is reasonably likely to prevent the MDLY Merger from qualifying as a “reorganization” within the meaning of Section 368(a) of the Code;
- except as discussed above under “— Sierra Charter and Bylaws,” amend, repeal or otherwise modify any provision of the Sierra Charter, the Sierra Bylaws, or the Merger Sub Certificate or the Merger Sub Bylaws in a manner that would adversely affect MDLY, the MDLY Stockholders or the transactions contemplated by the MDLY Merger Agreement;
- take any action, or permit the taking of any action, that will result in Sierra not having in cash or cash equivalents amounts sufficient to make payment of the cash portion of the MDLY Merger Consideration due at the MDLY Merger Closing;
- take any action or willfully fail to take any action that is intended or may reasonably be expected to result in any of the conditions to the MDLY Merger not being satisfied;
- take any action that would be reasonably expected to prevent, materially impede or delay beyond the MDLY Merger Outside Date the consummation of the transactions contemplated by the MDLY Merger Agreement; or
- agree to take, or publicly announce an intention to take, any of the foregoing actions.

Additional Covenants

MDLY and Sierra have agreed to additional covenants between the execution of the MDLY Merger Agreement and the MDLY Merger Closing including, but limited to, the following matters:

Regulatory Matters

MDLY and Sierra have agreed to, and to cause their respective subsidiaries to, cooperate with each other and use their respective commercially reasonable efforts to promptly prepare and file all necessary documentation, to effect all applications, notices, petitions and filings with any third-party or governmental entity and to take any further actions reasonably requested by the other party to obtain as promptly as practicable the approvals required under the MDLY Merger Agreement and other consents required to be obtained in connection with the MDLY Merger and the other transactions contemplated by the MDLY Merger Agreement. Without limiting the foregoing, MDLY and Sierra have agreed to the following as it relates to regulatory matters:

- N-14 Registration Statement/Joint Proxy Statement and Schedule 13E-3

Each of MDLY and Sierra has agreed to use its reasonable best efforts to prepare and file this N-14 Registration Statement, and have this N-14 Registration Statement declared effective under the Securities Act and to obtain clearance of the Schedule 13E-3 from the SEC as promptly as practicable after such filing, and MDLY and Sierra shall promptly mail or deliver the Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus to their respective stockholders upon such effectiveness. Sierra and MDLY also agreed to give notice of, convene and hold, as promptly as practicable, the Sierra Special Meeting and the MDLY Special Meeting following the effectiveness of this N-14 Registration Statement. In addition, Sierra and MDLY agreed to take additional steps in order to ensure the accuracy of the information contained in this N-14 Registration Statement, the related Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus and the Schedule 13E-3, Sierra agreed to use its reasonable best efforts to obtain all necessary state securities law or “blue sky” permits required to issue the MDLY Merger Shares, and MDLY agreed to use reasonable best efforts to furnish all information concerning MDLY and the holders of shares of MDLY Class A Common Stock as may be reasonably requested in connection with any such action.

- HSR Act Filing Matters

Each of Sierra and MDLY have agreed to file with the FTC and the DOJ, if and to the extent required, a notification and report form relating to the MDLY Merger Agreement and the transactions contemplated thereby as required by the HSR Act, and to take all other actions reasonably necessary to cause the expiration or termination of any applicable waiting period under the HSR Act applicable to the MDLY Merger as soon as practicable.

- SEC Exemptive Relief

MDLY and Sierra agreed to submit an application for the exemptive relief to the Staff and thereafter provide all such supplemental information reasonably requested by the Staff in connection therewith and to use its commercially reasonable efforts to obtain the SEC Exemptive Relief. In connection therewith, if the SEC conditions the granting of exemptive relief upon a change to the transaction structure or other matters contemplated by the MDLY Merger Agreement and the MCC Merger Agreement, each of MDLY and Sierra has agreed to work together in good faith to make such changes and, if and to the extent necessary, to amend the MDLY Merger Agreement to reflect such modified terms. However, in no event shall either party be obligated to agree to any term that adversely changes the economic terms of the MDLY Merger Agreement in any material respect or is inconsistent with the assumptions or other provisions set forth in the opinions of such party's financial advisor. Moreover, in addition to any other approvals required by applicable law or the MDLY Merger Agreement, any changes to the transaction structure or other matters contemplated by the MDLY Merger Agreement (including, without limitation, any amendments to the MDLY Merger Agreement) are subject to the prior approval of the MDLY Special Committee and the Sierra Special Committee.

Access to Information; Filing of Reports

Upon reasonable notice and subject to applicable laws relating to the confidentiality of information, each of MDLY and Sierra has agreed to, and has agreed to cause each of its subsidiaries to, give the other party and its respective officers, employees, accountants, counsel, advisors, agents and other representatives, reasonable access, during normal business hours during the period prior to the MDLY Merger Effective Time, to its properties, books, contracts, commitments and records, and to make available, and to cause its subsidiaries to make available, to the other party a copy of each report, schedule, registration statement and other document filed or received by it during such period pursuant to the requirements of federal securities laws (other than reports or documents that such party is not permitted to disclose under applicable law) and otherwise provide the other party with such information concerning its business, properties and personnel as the other party may reasonably request. However, in no event will a party or its subsidiaries be required to provide access to or to disclose information where such access or disclosure would jeopardize the attorney-client privilege or contravene any applicable law, fiduciary duty or binding confidentiality agreement with a third party entered into prior to the date of the MDLY Merger Agreement. In the event the foregoing restrictions apply, the parties have agreed to make appropriate substitute disclosure arrangements. In addition, each of MDLY and Sierra has agreed to file all periodic reports required to be filed by it between the date of the MDLY Merger Agreement and the MDLY Merger Effective Time, and each such filing shall be prepared in accordance with the applicable forms, rules and regulations of the SEC and shall satisfy the standard for the relevant party in the MDLY Merger Agreement applicable to MDLY SEC Reports or Sierra SEC Reports, as applicable.

MDLY Special Meeting and MDLY Board Recommendation

The MDLY Board has approved and declared advisable the MDLY Merger Agreement and the transactions contemplated thereby, including the MDLY Merger, and made the MDLY Board Recommendation. As it relates to the MDLY Board Recommendation, the MDLY Merger Agreement provides that, except as discussed below, neither the MDLY Board nor any committee thereof shall (i) withhold, withdraw or modify or qualify, or propose publicly to withhold, withdraw or modify or qualify the MDLY Board Recommendation, (ii) fail to publicly announce, within 15 business days after a tender offer or exchange relating to the securities of MDLY shall have been commenced, a statement disclosing that the MDLY Board recommends rejection of such tender offer or exchange offer, or (iii) approve, determine to be advisable, or recommend, or propose publicly to approve, determine to be advisable, or recommend, any "MDLY Merger Competing Proposal," as defined below under "— Nonsolicitation of Competing Transaction Proposals" (any of the foregoing (i) through (iii) being referred to as an "MDLY Adverse Recommendation Change").

Notwithstanding the foregoing, the MDLY Board may make a MDLY Adverse Recommendation Change in the circumstances described below under “— Nonsolicitation of Competing Transaction Proposals.” However, unless the MDLY Board has appropriately made a MDLY Adverse Recommendation Change, MDLY shall, through the MDLY Board, make the MDLY Board Recommendation, and shall include such MDLY Board Recommendation in this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus, and use its commercially reasonable efforts to (x) solicit from MDLY Stockholders proxies in favor of MDLY Stockholder approval, and (y) take all other action necessary or advisable to secure MDLY Stockholder approval.

In connection with the MDLY Special Meeting, the MDLY Board is permitted to adjourn, delay or postpone the MDLY Special Meeting in accordance with applicable law (but not beyond March 31, 2019) (i) to the extent necessary to allow reasonable additional time for the filing and mailing of any supplemental or amended disclosure which the MDLY Board has determined in good faith after consultation with outside counsel is reasonably likely to be necessary or appropriate under applicable law and for such supplemental or amended disclosure to be disseminated and reviewed by the MDLY Stockholders prior to the MDLY Special Meeting, (ii) if there are insufficient shares of MDLY Class A Common Stock represented (either in person or by proxy) to constitute a quorum necessary to conduct the business of the MDLY Special Meeting, or (iii) to allow reasonable additional time to solicit additional proxies to the extent the MDLY Board or any committee thereof reasonably believes necessary in order to obtain the MDLY Stockholder approval.

Sierra Special Meeting and Sierra Board Recommendation

The Sierra Board has approved and declared to be advisable the MDLY Merger Agreement and the transactions contemplated thereby, including the MDLY Merger, and made the Sierra Board Recommendation. As it relates to the Sierra Board Recommendation, the Sierra Merger Agreement provides that, except as discussed below, neither the Sierra Board nor any committee thereof shall (i) withhold, withdraw or modify or qualify, or propose publicly to withhold, withdraw or modify or qualify, the Sierra Board Recommendation, (ii) fail to publicly announce, within 15 business days after a tender offer or exchange relating to the securities of Sierra shall have been commenced, a statement disclosing that the Sierra Board recommends rejection of such tender offer or exchange offer, or (iii) approve, determine to be advisable, or recommend, or propose publicly to approve, determine to be advisable, or recommend, any “MDLY Merger Competing Proposal,” as defined below under “— Nonsolicitation of Competing Transaction Proposals” (any of the foregoing (i) through (iii) being referred to as an “Sierra MDLY Merger Adverse Recommendation Change”).

Notwithstanding the foregoing, the Sierra Board may make a Sierra MDLY Merger Adverse Recommendation Change in the circumstances described below under “— Nonsolicitation of Competing Transaction Proposals.” However, unless the Sierra Board has appropriately made a Sierra MDLY Merger Adverse Recommendation Change, Sierra shall, through the Sierra Board, make the Sierra Board Recommendation, and shall include such Sierra Board Recommendation in this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus, and use its commercially reasonable efforts to (x) solicit from the Sierra Stockholders proxies in favor of Sierra Stockholder approval, and (y) take all other action necessary or advisable to secure Sierra Stockholder approval.

In connection with the Sierra Special Meeting, the Sierra Board is permitted to adjourn, delay or postpone the Sierra Special Meeting in accordance with applicable law (but not beyond March 31, 2019) (i) to the extent necessary to allow reasonable additional time for the filing and mailing of any supplemental or amended disclosure which the Sierra Board has determined in good faith after consultation with outside counsel is reasonably likely to be necessary or appropriate under applicable law and for such supplemental or amended disclosure to be disseminated and reviewed by the Sierra Stockholders prior to the Sierra Special Meeting, (ii) if there are insufficient shares of Sierra Common Stock represented (either in person or by proxy) to constitute a quorum necessary to conduct the business of the Sierra Special Meeting, or (iii) to allow reasonable additional time to solicit additional proxies reasonably necessary in order to obtain the Sierra Stockholder approval.

Exchange Listing

Under the MDLY Merger Agreement, Sierra has agreed to (a) take all steps as may be reasonably necessary to cause the outstanding Sierra Common Stock, the MDLY Merger Shares and the shares of Sierra Common Stock to be issued in the MCC Merger to be listed for trading on the NYSE, and (b) use its commercially reasonable efforts to cause the outstanding Sierra Common Stock, the MDLY Merger Shares and the shares of Sierra Common Stock to be issued in the MCC Merger to be listed for trading on the Tel Aviv Stock Exchange.

Conversion of Medley LLC Units

MDLY has agreed to take, and shall cause Medley LLC to take, all such steps as may be necessary to cause the Medley LLC Units (including Medley Restricted Units that have vested) held by members of Medley LLC, other than MDLY, to be converted into MDLY Class A Common Stock in accordance with the Exchange Agreement as of immediately prior to the MDLY Merger Effective Time. The MDLY Merger Agreement expressly provides that in no event shall any exchange of Medley LLC Units occur prior to the record date for both the First Special Dividend and the Second Special Dividend, such that the shares of MDLY Class A Common Stock issued in connection with such exchange will not be entitled to any portion of the First Special Dividend or the Second Special Dividend. No Dividend Equivalent Right payments will be made on Medley Restricted Units for the First Special Dividend or the Second Special Dividend; provided, however, that each holder of Medley Restricted Units is entitled to distributions from Medley LLC on account of the First Special Dividend.

Indemnification; Directors' and Officers' Insurance.

In the event of any threatened or actual claim against any individual who is now, or has been at any time prior to the date of the MDLY Merger Agreement, or who becomes prior to the MDLY Effective Time, a director or officer of MDLY or any of its subsidiaries or who is or was serving at the request of MDLY or any of its subsidiaries as a director or officer of another entity (the "MDLY Indemnified Parties"), based in whole or in part on, or arising in whole or in part out of, or pertaining to (i) the fact that he or she is or was a director or officer of MDLY or any of its subsidiaries prior to the MDLY Merger Effective Time or (ii) the MDLY Merger Agreement or any of the transactions contemplated by the MDLY Merger Agreement, whether asserted or arising before or after the MDLY Merger Effective Time, each of the parties has agreed to cooperate and use commercially reasonable efforts to defend against and respond thereto. In addition, all rights to indemnification and exculpation from liabilities for acts or omissions occurring at or prior to the MDLY Merger Effective Time existing on the date of the MDLY Merger Agreement in favor of any MDLY Indemnified Party as provided in their respective organizational documents or in any existing indemnification agreements identified to Sierra shall survive the MDLY Merger as a contractual obligation of Merger Sub, as the surviving company in the MDLY Merger, and shall continue in full force and effect in accordance with their terms for a period of six years from the MDLY Merger Closing Date and shall not be amended, repealed or otherwise modified in any manner that would adversely affect the MDLY Indemnified Parties for acts or omissions occurring at or prior to the MDLY Merger Effective Time or taken at the request of Sierra pursuant to the MDLY Merger Agreement; provided, that the foregoing obligations do not require any amendment to the Merger Sub Certificate or the Merger Sub Bylaws.

In addition, for a period of six years from the MDLY Merger Closing, Merger Sub has agreed to indemnify, defend and hold harmless, and provide advancement of expenses (subject to an undertaking, in such form as may be reasonably required by the surviving company, to reimburse the portion (if any) of any expenses advanced to the MDLY Indemnified Party relating to claims as to which it shall ultimately be adjudged that the standard of conduct has not been met by the MDLY Indemnified Party for entitlement to such indemnification) to, each MDLY Indemnified Party against all losses, claims, damages, costs, expenses, liabilities or judgments or amounts that are paid in settlement of or in connection with any claim based in whole or in part on or arising in whole or in part out of the fact that such person is or was a director or officer of MDLY or any of its subsidiaries and pertaining to any matter existing or occurring, or any acts or omissions occurring, at or prior to the MDLY Merger Closing, whether asserted or claimed prior to, or at or after, the MDLY Merger Effective Time (including matters, acts or omissions occurring in connection with the approval of the MDLY Merger Agreement and the consummation of the transactions contemplated thereby) or taken at the request of Sierra pursuant to the MDLY Merger Agreement; provided, that the surviving company (i) shall not be liable for any amounts paid in the settlement of any claim without its prior written consent, (ii) shall be obligated to pay the fees and expenses of only one counsel (approved in advance by the surviving company) for all MDLY Indemnified Parties (except with respect to the MDLY Special Committee, which may retain its own separate counsel in its sole discretion) with respect to any single claim unless the surviving company assumes the defense of such claim, in which case it shall not be liable for any fees and expenses of counsel to the MDLY Indemnified Parties in respect of such claim (except for any fees and expenses of any separate counsel to the MDLY Special Committee); and (iii) shall not be liable to the extent that a judgment of a court of competent jurisdiction determines that any claim is the result of the gross negligence or willful misconduct or results from a decision made by the MDLY Indemnified Party when he or she had no good faith belief that he or she was acting in the best interests of MDLY or any of its subsidiaries.

Sierra has agreed, at its sole cost, to cause the individuals serving as officers and directors of MDLY or any of its subsidiaries immediately prior to the MDLY Merger Effective Time to be covered for a period of six years from the MDLY Merger Effective Time by the directors' and officers' liability insurance policy maintained by MDLY through the purchase of so-called "tail" insurance (provided that Sierra or the surviving company may substitute therefor policies of at least the same coverage and amounts containing terms and conditions that are not less advantageous in any material respect than such policy) with respect to acts or omissions occurring prior to the MDLY Merger Effective Time that were committed by such officers and directors in their capacity as such; provided that, in connection with obtaining such tail insurance policy, Sierra shall not be required to expend in the aggregate for the entire six-year period an amount in excess of 300% of the annual premiums currently paid by MDLY for such insurance.

Notwithstanding the foregoing, and except to the extent required by applicable law, in no event shall Sierra or Merger Sub indemnify any MDLY Indemnified Party with respect to any claim arising with respect to acts or omissions by such MDLY Indemnified Party taken prior to the MDLY Merger Effective Time pursuant to the Sierra Investment Advisory Agreement, the Sierra Administration Agreement, the MCC Investment Management Agreement or the MCC Administration Agreement for which such MDLY Indemnified Party is not entitled to indemnification under such agreements.

The provisions of the MDLY Merger Agreement relating to indemnification are intended to be for the benefit of, and may be enforced by, each MDLY Indemnified Party and his or her heirs and representatives.

Advice of Changes

Each of MDLY and Sierra has agreed to promptly advise the other of any change or event (i) having or reasonably likely to have a MDLY Merger Material Adverse Effect on it, (ii) that it believes would or would be reasonably likely to cause or constitute a breach of any of its representations, warranties or covenants contained in the MDLY Merger Agreement that would result in the conditions to the MDLY Merger Closing not being satisfied; provided, however, that no such notification shall affect the representations, warranties, covenants or agreements of the parties (or remedies with respect thereto) or the conditions to the obligations of the parties under the MDLY Merger Agreement.

Exemption from Liability Under Section 16(b)

Each of MDLY and Sierra has agreed, prior to the MDLY Merger Effective Time, to take all such steps as may be necessary or appropriate to cause any disposition of shares of MDLY Class A Common Stock or conversion of any derivative securities in respect of such shares of MDLY Class A Common Stock in connection with the consummation of the transactions contemplated by the MDLY Merger Agreement to be exempt under Rule 16b-3 promulgated under the Exchange Act to the extent permitted thereunder.

Nonsolicitation of Competing Transaction Proposals

Each of MDLY and Sierra has agreed to, and to use its commercially reasonable efforts to cause its representatives to, immediately cease and cause to be terminated any existing solicitation of, or discussions or negotiations with, any third party relating to any MDLY Merger Competing Proposal or any inquiry, discussion, offer or request that could reasonably be expected to lead to a MDLY Merger Competing Proposal. In addition, subject to certain exceptions discussed below, each of MDLY and Sierra has agreed, until the earlier of the MDLY Merger Effective Time and termination of the MDLY Merger Agreement in accordance with its terms, to not, and to not permit its subsidiaries to, and to use commercially reasonable efforts to cause its representatives not to, directly or indirectly,

- initiate, solicit, induce or knowingly encourage or facilitate any inquiry with respect to the making of any proposal or offer with respect to a MDLY Merger Competing Proposal; or
- engage in negotiations or discussions with, or furnish any material nonpublic information to, or enter into any agreement, arrangement or understanding with, any third party relating to a MDLY Merger Competing Proposal or any inquiry or proposal that could reasonably be expected to lead to a MDLY Merger Competing Proposal.

Notwithstanding the foregoing, each of MDLY and Sierra may inform third parties of provisions of the MDLY Merger Agreement that governs MDLY Merger Competing Proposals and may grant a waiver of, or terminate, any “standstill” or similar obligation of any third party with respect to MDLY or Sierra, as applicable, in order to allow such third party to submit a MDLY Merger Competing Proposal, if the MDLY Board (or the MDLY Special Committee) or Sierra Board (or the Sierra Special Committee), as applicable, determines in good faith (after consultation with such party’s legal counsel) that a failure to take such action with respect to such “standstill” or similar obligation could reasonably be expected to be inconsistent with its duties under applicable law. The confidentiality agreements entered into by MDLY in connection with its exploration of strategic alternatives include customary standstill provisions pursuant to which potential bidders agreed, except as requested or consented to by MDLY, not to take certain actions regarding strategic transactions or management or control of MDLY, its subsidiaries, Sierra or MCC and, subject to an exception to permit confidential requests for waivers following the public announcement of an acquisition transaction, not to request waivers of those standstill provisions, in each case during the relevant standstill period. As of the date of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus, the standstill provisions in 23 of the 31 confidentiality agreements have expired, and an additional 2 will expire prior to the scheduled date of the Special Meetings. In addition, even where standstill provisions remain in effect, all counterparties subject to such standstill provisions are permitted to confidentially seek a waiver of the standstill provisions in order to privately submit a competing proposal with respect to MDLY, its subsidiaries, Sierra and/or MCC.

In addition, if at any time prior to the date that MDLY Stockholder approval is obtained (in the case of MDLY) or Sierra Stockholder approval is obtained (in the case of Sierra), in the event that MDLY (or its representatives on MDLY’s behalf) or Sierra (or its representatives on Sierra’s behalf) receives a MDLY Merger Competing Proposal from any third party,

- MDLY and its representatives or Sierra and its representatives, as applicable, may contact such third party to clarify any ambiguous terms and conditions thereof (without the MDLY Board or Sierra Board, as applicable, being required to make the determination set forth in the following bullet point), and
- subject to satisfaction of certain procedural requirements (including without limitation the requirement that such third party (if not already bound) enter into a confidentiality agreement with MDLY or Sierra, as applicable, on terms no less favorable than the existing confidentiality agreement between MDLY and Sierra (unless MDLY or Sierra, as applicable, agrees to amend the existing confidentiality agreement to reflect such more favorable terms); provided that the confidentiality agreement with the third party need not restrict the making of competing proposals to MDLY or the MDLY Board or to Sierra or the Sierra Board, as applicable), MDLY and the MDLY Board (or the MDLY Special Committee) and its representatives or Sierra and the Sierra Board (or the Sierra Special Committee) and its representatives, as applicable, may engage in negotiations or substantive discussions with, or furnish any information and other access to, any third party making such MDLY Merger Competing Proposal and its representatives and affiliates if the MDLY Board (or the MDLY Special Committee) or Sierra Board (or the Sierra Special Committee), as applicable, determines in good faith (after consultation with its outside financial advisors and legal counsel) that:
- such MDLY Merger Competing Proposal either constitutes a MDLY Merger Superior Proposal (as defined below) or could reasonably be expected to lead to a MDLY Merger Superior Proposal, and

- failure to consider such MDLY Merger Competing Proposal could reasonably be expected to be inconsistent with the fiduciary duties of the directors of MDLY or Sierra, as applicable, under applicable law, provided that such receipt of such MDLY Merger Competing Proposal did not result from any material breach by the receiving party of any of the non-solicitation provisions of the MDLY Merger Agreement and certain other procedural requirements are satisfied.

In addition, until the earlier of the MDLY Merger Effective Time and termination of the MDLY Merger Agreement, each of MDLY and Sierra has agreed, as promptly as reasonably practicable, and in any event within two business days of receipt by it or any of its representatives of any MDLY Merger Competing Proposal or any inquiry that could reasonably be expected to lead to a MDLY Merger Competing Proposal, to deliver to the other party a written notice setting forth: (A) the identity of the third party making such MDLY Merger Competing Proposal or inquiry (to the extent not prohibited by any applicable confidentiality agreement existing prior to the date of the MDLY Merger Agreement) and (B) the material terms and conditions of any such MDLY Merger Competing Proposal. Thereafter, MDLY and Sierra are obligated to keep the other party reasonably informed of any material amendment or modification of any such MDLY Merger Competing Proposal on a prompt basis, and in any event within two business days following such material amendment or modification.

Sierra and MDLY further agreed that, except as described below:

- the MDLY Board shall not effect a MDLY Adverse Recommendation Change and the Sierra Board shall not effect a Sierra MDLY Merger Adverse Recommendation Change (each, an “MDLY Merger Adverse Recommendation Change”);
- the MDLY Board shall not approve or recommend, or allow MDLY to execute or enter into, any letter of intent, memorandum of understanding or definitive merger or similar agreement with respect to any MDLY Merger Competing Proposal (other than a confidentiality agreement in accordance with the terms of the MDLY Merger Agreement), and
- the Sierra Board shall not approve or recommend, or allow Sierra to execute or enter into, any letter of intent, memorandum of understanding or definitive merger or similar agreement with respect to any MDLY Merger Competing Proposal (other than a confidentiality agreement in accordance with the terms of the MDLY Merger Agreement).

Notwithstanding the foregoing, if at any time prior to the receipt of MDLY Stockholder approval (in the case of MDLY) or the Sierra Stockholder approval (in the case of Sierra), the MDLY Board or the Sierra Board, as the case may be, may (a) make a MDLY Merger Adverse Recommendation Change in connection with such MDLY Merger Superior Proposal if the board of directors effecting the MDLY Merger Adverse Recommendation Change (or the MDLY Special Committee or Sierra Special Committee, as applicable) determines in good faith (after consultation with its outside financial advisor and legal counsel) that failure to make a MDLY Merger Adverse Recommendation Change could reasonably be expected to be inconsistent with the fiduciary duties of the MDLY Board or Sierra Board, as applicable, under applicable law, or (b) if MDLY or Sierra, as the case may be, has received a MDLY Merger Competing Proposal that its board of directors (or the MDLY Special Committee or the Sierra Special Committee, as applicable) has determined in good faith (after consultation with its outside financial advisor and legal counsel) constitutes a MDLY Merger Superior Proposal, the MDLY Board or Sierra Board, as applicable, authorize, adopt or approve such MDLY Merger Superior Proposal and cause or permit MDLY or Sierra, as applicable, to enter into a definitive agreement with respect to such MDLY Merger Superior Proposal concurrently with the termination of the MDLY Merger Agreement, but in each case only after providing notice to the other party of its intention to make a MDLY Merger Adverse Recommendation Change and/or to accept a MDLY Merger Superior Proposal, as applicable, and entering into good faith negotiations to eliminate the need for such MDLY Merger Adverse Recommendation Change or to cause such MDLY Merger Superior Proposal to no longer constitute a MDLY Merger Superior Proposal.

An “MDLY Merger Competing Proposal” is defined as any inquiry, proposal or offer made by any third party: (a) to purchase or otherwise acquire, directly or indirectly, in one transaction or a series of transactions (including any merger, consolidation, tender offer, exchange offer, stock acquisition, asset acquisition, binding share exchange, business combination, recapitalization, liquidation, dissolution, joint venture or similar transaction), (i) beneficial ownership (as defined under Section 13(d) of the Exchange Act) of 20% or more of any class of equity securities of MDLY or Sierra, as applicable, or (ii) any one or more assets or businesses of MDLY or its subsidiaries or Sierra or its subsidiaries that constitute 20% or more of the revenues or assets of MDLY and its subsidiaries, taken as a whole, or Sierra and its subsidiaries, taken as a whole, as applicable; or (b) any liquidation of MDLY or Sierra, in each case other than the MDLY Merger and the other transactions to occur at the MDLY Merger Closing in accordance with the MDLY Merger Agreement.

An “MDLY Merger Superior Proposal” is defined as a bona fide written MDLY Merger Competing Proposal (but with all references to “20%” in the definition of MDLY Merger Competing Proposal being increased to “50%” to the extent relevant to the MDLY Merger Competing Proposal in question) made by a third party that the MDLY Board or the MDLY Special Committee or the Sierra Board or Sierra Special Committee, as applicable, determines in good faith, after consultation with its outside financial advisors and legal counsel, and taking into account the terms and conditions of such proposal, the party making such proposal, all financial, legal, regulatory and other aspects of such proposal, as well as the likelihood of consummation of the MDLY Merger Competing Proposal relative to the MDLY Merger and such other factors as the MDLY Board (or MDLY Special Committee) or Sierra Board (or Sierra Special Committee), as applicable, considers to be appropriate, is more favorable to the MDLY Stockholders or the Sierra Stockholders, as applicable, from a financial point of view than the MDLY Merger and the other transactions contemplated by the MDLY Merger Agreement (including any revisions to the terms of the MDLY Merger Agreement committed to by Sierra or MDLY, as applicable, to the other party in writing in response to such MDLY Merger Competing Proposal made to Sierra or MDLY, as applicable).

Outstanding Indebtedness

Under the MDLY Merger Agreement, MDLY agreed to cause the termination of its credit facility with City National Bank on or prior to the MDLY Merger Closing Date; however, subsequent to the date of the MDLY Merger Agreement, Sierra waived that obligation in order to allow the City National Bank credit facility to remain in effect if mutually agreeable terms regarding such continuation are reached between MDLY and City National Bank. In addition, except as it relates to the credit facility with City National Bank, each of MDLY and Sierra has agreed to use its commercially reasonable efforts to take or cause to be taken all actions with respect to their respective indebtedness and the indebtedness of their respective subsidiaries that is necessary or advisable in connection with the MDLY Merger, including without limitation, obtaining all necessary consents of the holders of such indebtedness, executing and delivering all documents, instruments, certificates and opinions of counsel required under the terms of such indebtedness, making all necessary filings, and taking all other actions that the respective boards of directors or officers of MDLY and Sierra determine to be necessary or advisable in connection with such indebtedness, including any assumption, refinancing or consolidation of such indebtedness.

Takeover Statutes

Each of MDLY and Sierra has agreed to use their respective commercially reasonable efforts (a) to take all action necessary so that no applicable takeover statute is or becomes applicable to the MDLY Merger or any of the other transactions contemplated by the MDLY Merger Agreement, and (b) if any such takeover statute is or becomes applicable to any of the foregoing, to take all action necessary so that the MDLY Merger and the other transactions contemplated by the MDLY Merger Agreement may be consummated as promptly as reasonably practicable on the terms contemplated by the MDLY Merger Agreement and otherwise to eliminate or minimize the effect of such takeover statute on the MDLY Merger and the other transactions contemplated by the MDLY Merger Agreement.

Litigation

Each of MDLY and Sierra agreed to cooperate and consult with one another between the date of the MDLY Merger Agreement and the MDLY Merger Effective Time in connection with any proceeding, including by either party’s stockholders and other stakeholders against any of them or any of their respective directors, officers or affiliates with respect to the MDLY Merger Agreement, the MDLY Merger and/or the transactions contemplated by the MDLY Merger Agreement, and to use its respective commercially reasonable efforts to prevail in any such stockholder or stakeholder proceeding so as to permit the consummation of the MDLY Merger and/or the transactions contemplated by the MDLY Merger Agreement in the manner contemplated by the MDLY Merger Agreement.

Section 15(f) of the Investment Company Act

The MDLY Merger Agreement provides that, subject to applicable law and the fiduciary duties of the Sierra Board, Sierra shall, to the extent within its control, not take any action, or omit to take any action, that would have the effect of causing the requirements of any of the provisions of Section 15(f) of the Investment Company Act (which governs the receipt of a profit in connection with the sale of an investment adviser to a registered investment fund) not to be met in respect of the transactions contemplated by the MDLY Merger Agreement.

Employment Matters

At the MDLY Merger Closing, MDLY shall cause Medley Capital LLC to enter into employment agreements, substantially in the form attached to the MDLY Merger Agreement (the “MDLY Employment Agreements”), with certain individuals, as specified in the MDLY Merger Agreement (the “MDLY Executives”). The identity of those individuals, and the related terms of the employment agreements, are set forth under “Information about the Combined Company — Arrangements with Management — Employment Matters.” In addition, prior to the MDLY Merger Closing, the Sierra Board will adopt the Sierra Incentive Plan, which will contain substantially the same terms as the MDLY Incentive Plan. See “Sierra Proposal #4: The Adoption of the Sierra Incentive Plan.”

Interaction with MCC Merger

Sierra has agreed that, without the consent of MDLY, Sierra will not agree to any waiver or amendment of the MCC Merger Agreement to the extent such waiver or amendment would adversely affect the economic or other rights or interests of MDLY and MDLY Stockholders under the MCC Merger Agreement or the MDLY Merger Agreement in any material respect.

Transaction Expenses

Under the MDLY Merger Agreement, all fees and expenses incurred in connection with the MDLY Merger, the MDLY Merger Agreement, and the transactions contemplated by the MDLY Merger Agreement are to be paid by the party incurring such fees or expenses; provided, that the costs and expenses of preparing, filing, printing and mailing the Form N-14 Registration Statement and this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus, all other filing fees and amounts paid to the SEC in connection with the MDLY Merger, and the fees of any HSR Act filing shall be borne equally by MDLY and Sierra.

Conditions to the MDLY Merger

MDLY and Sierra will not be obligated to complete the MDLY Merger unless a number of conditions are satisfied or waived, including:

- the receipt of MDLY Stockholder approval;
- the receipt of Sierra Stockholder approval;
- the Form N-14 Registration Statement shall have been declared effective by the SEC under the Securities Act and no stop order suspending the effectiveness of the Form N-14 Registration Statement shall have been issued and no proceedings for that purpose shall have been initiated or threatened by the SEC;
- the outstanding shares of Sierra Common Stock, the MDLY Merger Shares and the shares of Sierra Common Stock to be issued in the MCC Merger shall have been authorized for listing on the NYSE, subject to official notice of issuance;
- the exemptive relief from the SEC shall have been granted and be in full force and effect as of the MDLY Merger Closing Date;
- Sierra shall have made or obtained such filings and approvals as are required to be made or obtained under the securities or “blue sky” laws of various states in connection with the issuance of the MDLY Merger Shares;

Table of Contents

- no order, injunction or decree issued by any court or agency of competent jurisdiction or other law preventing or making illegal the consummation of the MDLY Merger or any of the other transactions contemplated by the MDLY Merger Agreement shall be in effect;
- any applicable waiting period (and any extension thereof) applicable to the MDLY Merger under the HSR Act shall have expired or been terminated;
- all issued and outstanding Medley LLC Units (including Medley Restricted Units that have vested) other than Medley LLC Units held by MDLY, shall have been converted into MDLY Class A Common Stock in accordance with the Exchange Agreement on (and not sooner than) the MDLY Merger Closing Date;
- the Tax Receivable Termination Agreement, to be effective as of the MDLY Merger Effective Time, shall have been executed and delivered by all necessary parties;
- each of the conditions to the MCC Merger Closing shall have been satisfied or appropriately waived, and the MCC Merger shall be consummated simultaneously with the MDLY Merger;
- MDLY shall have obtained written consents to the continuation, following the MDLY Merger Effective Time, of the advisory relationship with private funds and managed accounts representing 65% of MDLY's total revenues from private funds and managed accounts for the 12-month period ended as of June 30, 2018;
- the SEC shall have confirmed in a manner reasonably acceptable to the parties that the equity of Merger Sub, as the surviving company in the MDLY Merger, will be treated as a portfolio investment of Sierra and reflected in Sierra's consolidated financial statements at fair value for accounting purposes, and that Merger Sub's financial results will not be consolidated into the financial statements of Sierra;
- there shall be no pending suit, action or proceeding by any governmental entity, (i) challenging the acquisition by Sierra of any MDLY Common Stock, seeking to restrain or prohibit the consummation of the MDLY Merger or any other transaction contemplated by the MDLY Merger Agreement or seeking to obtain from MDLY or Sierra any damages that are material in relation to MDLY and its subsidiaries taken as a whole, or (ii) seeking to prohibit Sierra or any of its subsidiaries from effectively controlling in any material respect the business or operations of MDLY and its subsidiaries; and
- the parties shall have received the written opinion of Eversheds Sutherland (US) LLP (or such other counsel as may be reasonably satisfactory to the parties), dated as of the MDLY Merger Closing Date and in form and substance reasonably satisfactory to the parties, to the effect that, on the basis of facts, representations and assumptions set forth or referred to in such opinion, the MDLY Merger will qualify as a reorganization within the meaning of Section 368(a) of the Code.

In addition, the obligations of Sierra to effect the MDLY Merger are subject to the satisfaction or waiver by Sierra of additional conditions, including:

- the accuracy of the representations and warranties of MDLY (subject to the interpretive standards set forth in the MDLY Merger Agreement), and the receipt by Sierra of a certificate signed by the MDLY chief executive officer or chief financial officer certifying such accuracy;
- the performance by MDLY, in all material respects, of all obligations required to be performed by MDLY under the MDLY Merger Agreement, and the receipt by Sierra of a certificate signed by the MDLY chief executive officer or chief financial officer certifying such performance;
- MDLY shall have delivered to Sierra fully executed copies of all consents and approvals required in order to keep the Medley LLC indebtedness outstanding and the Medley LLC debt documents in full force and effect in accordance with their terms as of the date of the MDLY Merger Agreement without any breach or violation thereof; and
- Each of the MDLY Executives shall have entered into the relevant MDLY Employment Agreement, effective as of the MDLY Merger Effective Time.

In addition, the obligations of MDLY to effect the MDLY Merger are subject to the satisfaction or waiver by MDLY of additional conditions, including:

- the accuracy of the representations and warranties of Sierra (subject to the interpretive standards set forth in the MDLY Merger Agreement), and the receipt by MDLY of a certificate signed by the Sierra chief executive officer or chief financial officer certifying such accuracy;
- the performance by Sierra, in all material respects, of all obligations required to be performed by Sierra under the MDLY Merger Agreement, and the performance by Sierra, in all respects, of its covenants and obligations relating to amendments and waivers to the MDLY Merger Agreement, and the receipt by MDLY of a certificate signed by the Sierra chief executive officer or chief financial officer certifying such performance;
- Sierra shall have taken all actions, and executed all documents, reasonably required of Sierra by the holders of Medley LLC indebtedness in order to keep the Medley LLC indebtedness outstanding and the Medley LLC debt documents in full force and effect in accordance with their terms as of the date of the MDLY Merger Agreement without any breach or violation thereof; provided, however, neither Sierra nor any of its subsidiaries shall be obligated to provide any guarantees or other credit support for any such Medley LLC indebtedness; and
- Sierra shall have taken all actions, and executed all documents, reasonably required of Sierra in order to keep the indebtedness represented by the Sierra debt documents outstanding and the Sierra debt documents in full force and effect in accordance with their terms as of the date of the MDLY Merger Agreement without any breach or violation thereof.

Termination of the MDLY Merger Agreement

The MDLY Merger Agreement generally may be terminated, whether before or after the receipt of the MDLY Stockholder approval or the Sierra Stockholder approval:

- (a) by the mutual written agreement of MDLY and Sierra;
- (b) by either MDLY or Sierra, if any governmental entity whose consent or approval is a condition to the MDLY Merger Closing has denied the granting of any such consent or approval and such denial has become final and nonappealable, or any governmental entity of competent jurisdiction shall have issued a final and nonappealable order, injunction or decree permanently enjoining or otherwise prohibiting or making illegal the consummation of the transactions contemplated by the MDLY Merger Agreement;
- (c) by either MDLY or Sierra, if the MDLY Merger shall not have been consummated on or prior to the MDLY Merger Outside Date, unless the failure of the MDLY Merger Closing to occur by such date shall be due to the failure of the party seeking to terminate the MDLY Merger Agreement to perform or observe the covenants and agreements of such party set forth in the MDLY Merger Agreement; provided that the terminating party is not then in material breach of any representation, warranty, covenant or other agreement contained herein, and such breach has caused or resulted in the failure of the MDLY Merger Closing to occur by or prior to the MDLY Merger Outside Date;
- (d) by either Sierra or MDLY, at any time prior to the MDLY Merger Effective Time, in the event that (i) MDLY or Sierra, as the case may be, shall have failed to obtain the MDLY Stockholder approval or the Sierra Stockholder approval, as applicable, at the MDLY Special Meeting or the Sierra Special Meeting, respectively, at which a vote is taken on the MDLY Merger, or (ii) the MCC Merger Agreement shall have been terminated;
- (e) by either MDLY or Sierra (provided that the terminating party is not then in material breach of any representation, warranty, covenant or other agreement contained in the MDLY Merger Agreement), if there shall have been a breach of any of the covenants or agreements or any of the representations or warranties set forth in the MDLY Merger Agreement on the part of MDLY, in the case of a termination by Sierra, or Sierra, in the case of a termination by MDLY, which breach, either individually or in the aggregate, would result in, if occurring or continuing on the MDLY Merger Closing Date, the failure of certain closing conditions set forth in the MDLY Merger Agreement, as the case may be, and which is not cured within 30 days following written notice to the party committing such breach or by its nature or timing cannot be cured within such time period;

- (f) by Sierra, (i) within 10 business days after the MDLY Board shall have effected a MDLY Adverse Recommendation Change prior to receipt of the MDLY Stockholder approval, (ii) in the event the MDLY Board shall have approved or authorized MDLY or any of its subsidiaries to enter into a merger agreement, letter of intent, acquisition agreement, purchase agreement or other similar agreement with respect to a MDLY Merger Competing Proposal or (iii) MDLY fails to include the MDLY Board Recommendation in this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus;
- (g) by MDLY (at the direction of the MDLY Board or the MDLY Special Committee), in the event that (i) (A) MDLY shall have received a MDLY Merger Superior Proposal, (B) subject to MDLY's compliance with the MDLY Merger Agreement as it relates to negotiating in good faith with Sierra regarding the potential amendment of the MDLY Merger Agreement, the MDLY Board or any authorized committee thereof shall have authorized MDLY to enter into a definitive agreement to consummate the transaction contemplated by such MDLY Merger Superior Proposal, and (C) concurrently with the termination of the MDLY Merger Agreement, MDLY pays Sierra the MDLY Merger Termination Fee (as described below) and enters into the definitive agreement to consummate the transaction contemplated by such MDLY Merger Superior Proposal; or (ii) the MDLY Board (whether at the direction of the MDLY Special Committee or otherwise) shall have effected a MDLY Adverse Recommendation Change in accordance with the applicable provisions of the MDLY Merger Agreement;
- (h) by MDLY, (i) within 10 business days after the Sierra Board shall have effected a Sierra MDLY Merger Adverse Recommendation Change prior to receipt of Sierra Stockholder approval, (ii) in the event the Sierra Board shall have approved, or authorized Sierra or any of its subsidiaries to enter into, a merger agreement, letter of intent, acquisition agreement, purchase agreement or other similar agreement with respect to a MDLY Merger Competing Proposal or (iii) Sierra fails to include the Sierra Board Recommendation in this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus; and
- (i) by Sierra (at the direction of the Sierra Board or the Sierra Special Committee), in the event that: (i) (A) Sierra shall have received a MDLY Merger Superior Proposal, (B) subject to Sierra's compliance with its obligations under the MDLY Merger Agreement as it relates to negotiating in good faith with MDLY regarding the potential amendment of the MDLY Merger Agreement, the Sierra Board or any authorized committee thereof shall have authorized Sierra to enter into a definitive agreement to consummate the transaction contemplated by such MDLY Merger Superior Proposal, and (C) concurrently with the termination of the MDLY Merger Agreement, Sierra pays MDLY the MDLY Merger Termination Fee and enters into the definitive agreement to consummate the transaction contemplated by such MDLY Merger Superior Proposal; or (ii) the Sierra Board or any authorized committee thereof shall have effected a Sierra MDLY Merger Adverse Recommendation Change in accordance with the applicable provisions of the MDLY Merger Agreement.

Termination Fees

MDLY will pay Sierra the MDLY Merger Termination Fee in an amount equal to $5,350,000 in the event:

- the MDLY Merger Agreement is terminated by Sierra in accordance with paragraph (f) under "Termination of the MDLY Merger Agreement" above or by MDLY in accordance with paragraph (g) thereunder, provided in either case that Sierra was not in material breach of its representations, warranties, covenants or agreements under the MDLY Merger Agreement at the time of termination; or
- (i) prior to the MDLY Special Meeting, a third party (the "MDLY Pre-Meeting Offeror") makes a MDLY Merger Competing Proposal to MDLY and/or its stockholders, or such MDLY Merger Competing Proposal is otherwise publicly announced, and in each case such MDLY Merger Competing Proposal not withdrawn prior to the MDLY Special Meeting, (ii) the MDLY Merger Agreement is validly terminated by either Sierra or MDLY by reason of the failure to obtain MDLY Stockholder approval, and (iii) within 12 months following the date of such termination, MDLY consummates a MDLY Merger Competing Proposal with the MDLY Pre-Meeting Offeror (provided that for these purposes, the references to "20%" in the definition of MDLY Merger Competing Proposal is replaced with references to "50%") (a "MDLY Tail Transaction").

Sierra will pay MDLY an amount equal to the MDLY Merger Termination Fee in the event:

- the MDLY Merger Agreement is terminated by MDLY in accordance with paragraph (h) under “Termination of the MDLY Merger Agreement” or by Sierra in accordance with paragraph (i) thereunder, provided in either case that MDLY was not in material breach of its representations, warranties, covenants or agreements under the MDLY Merger Agreement at the time of termination; or
- (i) prior to the Sierra Special Meeting, a third party (the “Sierra Pre-Meeting Offeror”) makes a MDLY Merger Competing Proposal to Sierra and/or its stockholders, or such MDLY Merger Competing Proposal is otherwise publicly announced, and in each case such MDLY Merger Competing Proposal not withdrawn prior to the Sierra Special Meeting, (ii) the MDLY Merger Agreement is validly terminated by either Sierra or MDLY by reason of the failure to obtain Sierra Stockholder approval, and (iii) within 12 months following the date of such termination, Sierra consummates a MDLY Merger Competing Proposal with the Sierra Pre-Meeting Offeror (provided that for these purposes, the references to “20%” in the definition of MDLY Merger Competing Proposal is replaced with references to “50%”) (a “Sierra Tail Transaction”).

The MDLY Merger Termination Fee, if applicable, shall be payable (a) no later than two business days after the date on which the MDLY Merger Agreement is terminated by Sierra pursuant to paragraph (f) under “Termination of the MDLY Merger Agreement” above or by MDLY pursuant to paragraph (h) thereunder; (b) immediately prior to the time of termination of the MDLY Merger Agreement by MDLY pursuant to paragraph (g) under “Termination of the MDLY Merger Agreement” above or by Sierra pursuant to paragraph (i) thereunder; and (c) in the case of a MDLY Tail Transaction or a Sierra Tail Transaction within three business days of the date on which MDLY consummates the MDLY Tail Transaction or Sierra consummates the Sierra Tail transaction, as applicable. The MDLY Merger Agreement provides that in no event shall any party be required to pay the MDLY Merger Termination Fee on more than one occasion.

Effect of Termination

Following termination of the MDLY Merger Agreement, none of MDLY, Sierra, any of their respective subsidiaries or any of the officers or directors of any of them shall have any liability of any nature whatsoever under the MDLY Merger Agreement, or in connection with the transactions contemplated by the MDLY Merger Agreement, except that (a) provisions regarding the parties’ confidentiality agreement, effect of termination, fees and expenses, including the MDLY Merger Termination Fee, and the provisions of Article X (General Provisions) of the MDLY Merger Agreement shall survive termination of the MDLY Merger Agreement, and (b) except as provided in Section 10.9(c) of the MDLY Merger Agreement (relating to termination of the MDLY Merger Agreement), neither MDLY nor Sierra shall be relieved or released from any liabilities or damages arising out of its fraud or knowing and intentional breach of any provision of the MDLY Merger Agreement.

Notwithstanding anything in the MDLY Merger Agreement to the contrary, Sierra will not be considered in breach of any of its representations, warranties, covenants or other agreements contained in the MDLY Merger Agreement to the extent such breach was or should reasonably have been known to MDLY as of the date of the MDLY Merger Agreement or arose as a result of any act or omission by MDLY or any of its subsidiaries not in compliance with their duties under the Sierra Investment Advisory Agreement and the Sierra Administration Agreement.

Remedies; Specific Performance

Except as otherwise provided in the MDLY Merger Agreement, any and all remedies expressly conferred upon a party pursuant to the MDLY Merger Agreement will be deemed cumulative with and not exclusive of any other remedy conferred by the MDLY Merger Agreement, or by law or equity upon such party, and the exercise by a party of any one remedy will not preclude the exercise of any other remedy.

The parties further agreed that irreparable damage would occur in the event that any provision of the MDLY Merger Agreement to be performed by either party was not performed in accordance with its specific terms or was otherwise breached, and that money damages or other legal remedies would not be an adequate remedy for any such damages. Accordingly, the parties acknowledged and agreed that in the event of any breach or threatened breach by either party of any of its respective covenants or obligations set forth in the MDLY Merger Agreement, the non-breaching party shall be entitled to an injunction or injunctions to prevent or restrain breaches or threatened breaches of the MDLY Merger Agreement and to specifically enforce the terms and provisions of the MDLY Merger Agreement to prevent breaches or threatened breaches of, or to enforce compliance with, the covenants and obligations of the other under the MDLY Merger Agreement. Each party agreed not to raise any objections to the availability of the equitable remedy of specific performance to prevent or restrain breaches or threatened breaches of the MDLY Merger Agreement by such party, and to specifically enforce the terms and provisions of the MDLY Merger Agreement to prevent breaches or threatened breaches of, or to enforce compliance with, the covenants and obligations of such party under the MDLY Merger Agreement. The parties further agreed that (i) by seeking the remedies provided for in the MDLY Merger Agreement, neither party shall in any respect waive its right to seek any other form of relief that may be available to a party under the MDLY Merger Agreement (including monetary damages) in the event that the MDLY Merger Agreement has been terminated or in the event that the remedies provided for in the MDLY Merger Agreement are not available or otherwise are not granted, and (ii) nothing set forth in the provision of the MDLY Merger Agreement governing equitable remedies shall require either party to institute any proceeding for (or limit such party's right to institute any proceeding for) specific performance or as a condition to exercising any termination right under the MDLY Merger Agreement (and pursuing damages after such termination), nor shall the commencement of any legal proceeding restrict or limit such party's right to terminate the MDLY Merger Agreement or pursue any other remedies under the MDLY Merger Agreement that may be available then or thereafter.

Notwithstanding anything to the contrary contained in the MDLY Merger Agreement, the parties expressly acknowledged and agreed that the right to receive the MDLY Merger Termination Fee in the circumstances in which the MDLY Merger Termination Fee is payable shall be the sole remedy with respect to termination of the MDLY Merger Agreement in those circumstances, and to the extent Sierra or MDLY is entitled to receive the MDLY Merger Termination Fee, the receipt of such amounts shall be deemed to be full and final payment for any and all losses or damages suffered or incurred by Sierra or MDLY, as applicable, or any of their respective affiliates or any other person in connection with the MDLY Merger Agreement (and the termination thereof), the transactions contemplated thereby (and the abandonment thereof) or any matter forming the basis for such termination, and none of Sierra nor any of its affiliates, or MDLY or any of its affiliates, as applicable, or any other person shall be entitled to bring or maintain any other claim against MDLY or Sierra, as applicable, or any of their affiliates arising out of the MDLY Merger Agreement, any of the transactions contemplated thereby or any matters forming the basis for such termination.

Amendment and Waiver

The MDLY Merger Agreement may be amended by the parties, by action taken or authorized by the MDLY Board, the MDLY Special Committee, the Sierra Board and the Sierra Special Committee, at any time before or after receipt of MDLY Stockholder approval or the Sierra Stockholder approval; provided that, following receipt of MDLY Stockholder approval or Sierra Stockholder approval, there may not be, without further approval of such stockholders, any amendment of the MDLY Merger Agreement that requires further approval of the MDLY Stockholders or Sierra Stockholders under applicable law. The MDLY Merger Agreement may not be amended except by an instrument in writing signed on behalf of each of the parties.

Governing Law; Jurisdiction

The MDLY Merger Agreement is governed and construed in accordance with the internal laws of the State of Delaware applicable to contracts made and wholly performed within such state, without regard to any applicable conflicts of law principles. Under the MDLY Merger Agreement, each of Sierra, Merger Sub and MDLY irrevocably and unconditionally submitted, for itself and its property, to the exclusive jurisdiction of the Delaware Court of Chancery, or, if (and only if) such court lacks subject matter jurisdiction, any Federal court of the United States of America sitting in the State of Delaware, and the respective appellate courts from the foregoing (all of the foregoing, collectively, the “Delaware Courts”), in any action or proceeding arising out of or relating to the MDLY Merger Agreement or the agreements delivered in connection therewith or the transactions contemplated by the MDLY Merger Agreement or such other agreements or for recognition or enforcement of any judgment relating thereto, and each of the parties irrevocably and unconditionally (i) agreed not to commence any such action or proceeding except in the applicable Delaware Court, (ii) agreed that any claim in respect of any such action or proceeding may be heard and determined in the applicable Delaware Court, (iii) waived, to the fullest extent it may legally and effectively do so, any objection that it may now or hereafter have to the laying of venue of any such action or proceeding in the applicable Delaware Court, and (iv) waived, to the fullest extent permitted by applicable law, the defense of an inconvenient forum to the maintenance of such action or proceeding in the applicable Delaware Court. Each of the parties further agreed that a final judgment in any such action or proceeding shall be conclusive and may be enforced in other jurisdictions by suit on the judgment or in any other manner provided by applicable law, and irrevocably consented to service of process in the manner provided for by applicable law.

Other Agreements

In connection with the MDLY Merger Agreement, MDLY, Medley LLC, Medley Group LLC, the Medley LLC Unitholders and Sierra entered into a Termination, Waiver and Lockup Agreement (the “Tax Receivables Termination Agreement”) pursuant to which the relevant parties agreed that:

- the Tax Receivable Agreement will be terminated, effective as of the MDLY Merger Effective Time;
- the existing registration rights agreement (the “Registration Rights Agreement”) between MDLY, Medley Group LLC and the Medley LLC Unitholders (other than MDLY) will be terminated, effective as of the MDLY Merger Effective Time;
- the Medley LLC Unitholders (other than MDLY) waived any right they may have to sell or exchange Medley LLC Units except as contemplated by the MDLY Merger Agreement;
- the Medley LLC Unitholders agreed to not sell the shares of Sierra Common Stock to be received by them in connection with the MDLY Merger for one year from the MDLY Merger Effective Date, subject to certain exceptions specified therein; and
- the parties agreed to mutual releases with respect to the Exchange Agreement, the Tax Receivable Agreement and the Registration Rights Agreement.

In addition, also in connection with the MDLY Merger Agreement, parties to existing Unit Award Agreements relating to Medley Restricted Units entered into amendments of such agreements in order to reflect provisions in such agreements that are consistent with the treatment set forth in the MDLY Merger Agreement.

ACCOUNTING TREATMENT

The following describes the accounting treatment for both the MCC Merger and the MDLY Merger. The Mergers are intended to qualify as tax-free reorganizations for U.S. federal income tax purposes under Section 368(a) of the Code.

The MCC Merger

The MCC Merger will be accounted for in accordance with ASC 805, Business Combinations, which requires the determination of whether the transaction should be accounted for as a business combination or as an asset acquisition. Sierra will treat the MCC Merger as an asset acquisition, and Sierra will account for the asset acquisition by allocating the purchase price to the acquired assets and liabilities assumed based on their relative acquisition-date fair values. The transaction costs incurred in the MCC Merger are considered a component of the consideration transferred and, as such, will be capitalized as a component of the cost of the net assets acquired. Accounting for the MCC Merger as an asset acquisition will not give rise to any goodwill.

Under the MCC Merger Agreement, MCC Stockholders will receive 0.8050 shares of Sierra Common Stock for each share of MCC Common Stock. In asset acquisition transactions in which the consideration given is not in the form of cash, the measurement of the consideration transferred is based on the fair value of the consideration given or the fair value of the net assets acquired, whichever is more clearly evident and, thus, a more reliable measure. As of the date of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus, management has determined that the fair value of the consideration given is more clearly evident and reliable. Therefore, Sierra expects to measure the consideration transferred at the MCC Merger Closing Date based on Sierra's latest available NAV per share as of the MCC Merger Closing Date multiplied by the number of shares to be issued to acquire all of the outstanding shares of MCC. Management will continue to monitor for available information leading up to the MCC Merger that would indicate the fair value of the net assets acquired is more clearly evident and a more reliable measure than the fair value of the consideration given. The final determination of the fair value of the consideration transferred ultimately will be determined as of the MCC Merger Closing Date.

The MDLY Merger

Sierra will account for its acquisition of its interest in MDLY as an investment at fair value on its statement of assets and liabilities, in accordance with ASC 946-320, "Financial Services – Investment Companies – Investments – Debt and Equity Securities." Sierra will apply the guidance in ASC 946-810, "Financial Services – Investment Companies – Application of Consolidation Guidance," in determining whether to consolidate an investee that is not an investment company. Consistent with the guidance in ASC 946-810, the Combined Company will not consolidate Merger Sub following the Mergers based on the fact that Merger Sub will not be an investment company and the initial determination that Merger Sub will not be providing substantially all of its services to the Combined Company following the Mergers. Sierra will measure the purchase price at its transaction cost. Therefore, Sierra expects to measure the purchase price on the MDLY Merger Closing Date based on Sierra's latest available NAV per share as of the MDLY Merger Closing Date multiplied by the number of shares to be issued to acquire all of the outstanding shares of MDLY Class A Common Stock, as well as the cash consideration given and transaction costs incurred.

Subsequent to the MDLY Merger, management will continue to evaluate whether Merger Sub provides substantially all of its services to the Combined Company on an ongoing basis. As long as it is determined that Merger Sub is not providing substantially all of its services to the Combined Company, the Combined Company expects to continue to account for its investment in Merger Sub at fair value with any changes in fair value recognized in net income and dividends received by the Combined Company from Merger Sub recognized as dividend income on the ex-dividend date, to the extent they do not represent a return of capital. However, if management determines in the future that Merger Sub is providing substantially all of its services to the Combined Company, the Combined Company may be required to consolidate Merger Sub in the future.

MATERIAL U.S. FEDERAL INCOME TAX CONSEQUENCES

Scope of Discussion

The following is a general discussion of the material U.S. federal income tax consequences of the Mergers to holders of MCC Common Stock and MDLY Class A Common Stock that exchange their shares of such common stock for the MCC Merger Consideration or MDLY Merger Consideration, as applicable, and certain material U.S. federal income tax considerations relating to Sierra's qualification and taxation as a RIC and the ownership and disposition of Sierra Common Stock. This discussion does not purport to be a complete analysis of all potential tax effects. The effects of other U.S. federal tax laws, such as estate and gift tax laws, and any applicable state, local or non-U.S. tax laws are not discussed.

This discussion is based, and the tax opinions referred to in the following paragraphs will be based, on the Code, Treasury Regulations promulgated thereunder, judicial decisions, and published rulings and administrative pronouncements of the IRS in each case in effect as of the date of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus or the date of the tax opinion, as the case may be. These authorities may change or be subject to differing interpretations, and any such change or differing interpretation may be applied retroactively in a manner that could adversely affect a holder of MCC Common Stock, MDLY Class A Common Stock or Sierra Common Stock after the Mergers. No rulings have been or will be sought from the IRS regarding the matters discussed below, and the tax opinions of counsel to be received in connection with the Mergers will not be binding on the IRS or any court. There can be no assurance the IRS or a court will not take a contrary position to those discussed below or in the tax opinions, including regarding the tax consequences of the Mergers or any related transactions.

This discussion is limited to holders of MCC Common Stock, MDLY Class A Common Stock and Sierra Common Stock that hold their respective MCC Common Stock, MDLY Class A Common Stock or Sierra Common Stock as a "capital asset" within the meaning of Section 1221 of the Code (generally, property held for investment) as of the date of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus. This discussion does not address all U.S. federal income tax consequences of the Mergers or other tax matters relevant to a holder's particular circumstances, including the impact of the Medicare contribution tax on net investment income. In addition, it does not address consequences relevant to a holder of MCC Common Stock, MDLY Class A Common Stock or Sierra Common Stock subject to special rules, including, without limitation:

- U.S. expatriates and former citizens or long-term residents of the U.S.;
- persons subject to the alternative minimum tax;
- persons holding common stock as part of a hedge, straddle or other risk reduction strategy or as part of a conversion transaction or other integrated investment;
- banks, insurance companies, and other financial institutions;
- brokers, dealers or traders in securities;
- "controlled foreign corporations," "passive foreign investment companies," and corporations that accumulate earnings to avoid U.S. federal income tax;
- partnerships or other entities or arrangements treated as partnerships for U.S. federal income tax purposes (and investors therein);
- tax-exempt organizations or governmental organizations;
- persons deemed to sell common stock under the constructive sale provisions of the Code;
- persons who hold or receive common stock pursuant to the exercise of any employee stock option or otherwise as compensation;
- tax-qualified retirement plans;
- holders of MDLY Class B Common Stock; and
- holders of Units who convert their Units (including Medley Restricted Units) for MDLY Class A Common Stock immediately before the MDLY Merger.

If an entity or arrangement treated as a partnership for U.S. federal income tax purposes holds MCC Common Stock, MDLY Class A Common Stock or Sierra Common Stock, the tax treatment of an investor in the entity will depend on the status of the investor, the activities of the entity and certain determinations made at the investor level. Accordingly, entities or arrangements treated as partnerships for U.S. federal income tax purposes that hold MCC Common Stock, MDLY Class A Common Stock or Sierra Common Stock and the investors in such entities should consult their tax advisors regarding the U.S. federal income tax consequences to them.

THIS DISCUSSION IS FOR INFORMATIONAL PURPOSES ONLY AND IS NOT TAX ADVICE. HOLDERS OF MCC COMMON STOCK, MDLY CLASS A COMMON STOCK OR SIERRA COMMON STOCK SHOULD CONSULT THEIR TAX ADVISORS WITH RESPECT TO THE APPLICATION OF THE U.S. FEDERAL INCOME TAX LAWS TO THEIR PARTICULAR SITUATIONS AS WELL AS ANY TAX CONSEQUENCES OF THE MERGERS, INCLUDING AN INVESTMENT IN SIERRA COMMON STOCK, ARISING UNDER THE U.S. FEDERAL ESTATE OR GIFT TAX LAWS OR UNDER THE LAWS OF ANY STATE, LOCAL OR NON-U.S. TAXING JURISDICTION OR UNDER ANY APPLICABLE INCOME TAX TREATY.

For purposes of this discussion, a “U.S. holder” is any beneficial owner of MCC Common Stock, MDLY Class A Common Stock or Sierra Common Stock that is, for U.S. federal income tax purposes:

- an individual who is a citizen or resident of the U.S.;
- a corporation created or organized under the laws of the U.S., any state thereof, or the District of Columbia;
- an estate, the income of which is subject to U.S. federal income tax regardless of its source; or
- a trust that (1) is subject to the primary supervision of a U.S. court and the control of one or more “United States persons” (within the meaning of Section 7701(a)(30) of the Code), or (2) has a valid election in effect to be treated as a U.S. person for U.S. federal income tax purposes.

A “non-U.S. holder” is any beneficial owner of MCC Common Stock, MDLY Class A Common Stock or Sierra Common Stock that is neither a U.S. holder nor an entity treated as a partnership for U.S. federal income tax purposes.

As discussed previously in this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus, upon completion of the Mergers, each share of MCC Common Stock and MDLY Class A Common Stock issued and outstanding immediately prior to the MCC Merger Effective Time or the MDLY Merger Effective Time, as applicable, will be converted into the right to receive the MCC Merger Consideration or MDLY Merger Consideration, as applicable, including Sierra Common Stock.

Tax Consequences of the Mergers

Tax Consequences of the MCC Merger

In General. The parties intend for the MCC Merger to qualify as a tax-free reorganization for U.S. federal income tax purposes. Unless waived, it is a condition to each of MCC’s and Sierra’s obligations to complete the MCC Merger that they receive an opinion (the “MCC Merger Tax Opinion”) from Eversheds Sutherland (US) LLP or other acceptable counsel, dated the MCC Merger Closing Date, to the effect that the MCC Merger will qualify as a “reorganization” within the meaning of Section 368(a) of the Code. The MCC Merger Tax Opinion will be based on U.S. federal income tax law in effect on the MCC Merger Closing Date, and on representation letters provided by MCC and Sierra and on customary factual assumptions. The MCC Merger Tax Opinion will not be binding on the IRS or any court.

Table of Contents

If the MCC Merger qualifies as a reorganization within the meaning of Section 368(a) of the Code, the U.S. federal income tax consequences of the MCC Merger can be summarized as follows:

- No gain or loss will be recognized by either MCC or by Sierra reason of the MCC Merger.
- Upon exchanging shares of MCC Common Stock for shares of Sierra Common Stock, a U.S. holder or non-U.S. holder of MCC Common Stock generally will not recognize gain or loss, except a holder will recognize gain or loss with respect to cash received instead of fractional shares of Sierra Common Stock (as discussed below).
- The aggregate tax basis in the shares of Sierra Common Stock that a U.S. holder or non-U.S. holder of MCC Common Stock receives in the MCC Merger, including any fractional share interests deemed received and sold as described below, will equal such holder's aggregate adjusted tax basis in the MCC Common Stock surrendered.
- The holding period for shares of Sierra Common Stock that a U.S. holder or non-U.S. holder of MCC Common Stock receives in the MCC Merger (including a fractional share interest deemed received and sold as described below) will include such holder's holding period for the shares of MCC Common Stock that the holder surrendered in the exchange.

Holders of MCC Common Stock should consult their own tax advisers to determine the U.S. federal, state, local, and foreign tax consequences of the MCC Merger in light of their own unique circumstances.

Cash Instead of a Fractional Share. If a U.S. holder or non-U.S. holder of MCC Common Stock receives cash instead of a fractional share of Sierra Common Stock in the MCC Merger, such U.S. holder or non-U.S. holder will be treated as having received the fractional share of Sierra Common Stock pursuant to the MCC Merger and then as having sold that fractional share of Sierra Common Stock for cash. As a result, such U.S. holder or Non-U.S. holder of MCC Common Stock generally will recognize gain or loss equal to the difference between the amount of cash received and the holder's basis in the fractional share of Sierra Common Stock as set forth above. This gain or loss generally will be capital gain or loss, and will be long-term capital gain or loss if, as of the effective date of the MCC Merger, the holding period for the shares (including the holding period of MCC Common Stock surrendered therefor) is greater than one year. The deductibility of capital losses is subject to limitations.

Non-U.S. Holders of MCC Common Stock. Gain recognized by a non-U.S. holder of MCC Common Stock upon the exchange of MCC Common Stock, including any deemed sale of a fractional share of Sierra Common Stock as a result of receiving cash in lieu of such fractional share, should not be subject to U.S. federal income tax unless:

- the gain is effectively connected with a U.S. trade or business of such non-U.S. holder (and, if required by an applicable income tax treaty, the non-U.S. holder maintains a permanent establishment in the U.S. to which such gain is attributable), in which case the non-U.S. holder generally should be subject to tax on such gain in the same manner as a U.S. holder and, if the non-U.S. holder is a foreign corporation, such corporation may be subject to a branch profits tax at a rate of 30% (or such lower rate as may be specified by an applicable income tax treaty);
- the non-U.S. holder is a nonresident alien individual who is present in the U.S. for 183 days or more in the taxable year of the MCC Merger and certain other requirements are met, in which case the non-U.S. holder generally should be subject to U.S. federal income tax at a rate of 30% (or such lower rate specified by an applicable income tax treaty), which may be offset by U.S. source capital losses of the non-U.S. holder, if any, provided the non-U.S. holder has timely filed U.S. federal income tax returns with respect to such losses; or
- MCC (or Sierra with respect to any fractional share deemed sold pursuant to the MCC Merger) is or has been a "United States real property holding corporation" ("USRPHC") for U.S. federal income tax purposes at any time during the shorter of (i) the five-year period ending on the date of the MCC Merger and (ii) the non-U.S. holder's holding period in the MCC Common Stock (or Sierra Common Stock, if applicable) and the non-U.S. holder owned (directly, indirectly or constructively) more than 5% of the outstanding MCC Common Stock (or Sierra Common Stock, if applicable) at any time during the applicable period. Although there can be no assurances in this regard, neither MCC nor Sierra believes that it is or was a USRPHC for U.S. federal income tax purposes.

Non-U.S. holders of MCC Common Stock should consult their tax advisors regarding the U.S. federal, state, local, and foreign tax consequences of MCC Merger in light of their own unique circumstances.

MCC Final Dividend. If MCC declares and pays a Final MCC Dividend, such Final MCC Dividend will be taxable to U.S. holders of MCC Common Stock as ordinary income or long-term capital gain to the extent of MCC's current and accumulated earnings and profits, whether paid in cash or reinvested in additional shares of MCC Common Stock. If the Final MCC Dividend exceeds MCC's current and accumulated earnings and profits, such Final MCC Dividend first will reduce a U.S. holder's adjusted tax basis in such U.S. holder's MCC Common Stock and, after the adjusted tax basis is reduced to zero, will constitute capital gain to such U.S. holder.

To the extent the Final MCC Dividend constitutes a dividend attributable to MCC's "investment company taxable income" ("ICTI"), which is generally its net ordinary taxable income plus its net realized short-term capital gains in excess of its net realized long-term capital losses, if any, non-U.S. holders of MCC Common Stock whose distributions are not effectively connected with a U.S. trade or business (and, if an income tax treaty applies, attributable to a permanent establishment in the United States) will be subject to U.S. withholding tax at a 30% rate (subject to reduction or elimination pursuant to an applicable income tax treaty) unless an exception applies. No U.S. withholding tax will be imposed on the Final MCC Dividend to the extent such dividend is properly reported as "interest-related dividend" or "short-term capital gain dividend." No assurance can be given that any portion of the Final MCC Dividend will be reported as an interest-related or short-term capital gain dividend. To the extent the Final MCC Dividend is properly reported as a capital gain dividend, non-U.S. holders of MCC Common Stock will not be subject to U.S. withholding tax and generally will not be subject to U.S. federal income tax except as discussed above under "— Non-U.S. Holders of MCC Common Stock."

Holders of MCC Common Stock should consult their own tax advisers to determine the U.S. federal, state, local, and foreign tax consequences of the Final MCC Dividend in light of their own unique circumstances.

Tax Consequences of the MDLY Merger

In General. The parties intend for the MDLY Merger to qualify as a tax-free reorganization for U.S. federal income tax purposes. Unless waived, it is a condition to each of MDLY's, the Merger Sub's, and Sierra's obligations to complete the MDLY Merger that they receive an opinion (the "MDLY Merger Tax Opinion,") from Eversheds Sutherland (US) LLP or other acceptable counsel, dated the MDLY Merger Closing Date, to the effect that the MDLY Merger will qualify as a "reorganization" within the meaning of Section 368(a) of the Code. The MDLY Merger Tax Opinion will be based on U.S. federal income tax law in effect on the MDLY Merger Closing Date, and on representation letters provided by MDLY and Sierra and on customary factual assumptions. The MDLY Merger Tax Opinion will not be binding on the IRS or any court.

If the MDLY Merger qualifies as a reorganization within the meaning of Section 368(a) of the Code, the U.S. federal income tax consequences of the MDLY Merger can be summarized as follows:

- No gain or loss will be recognized by MDLY, Merger Sub, or Sierra by reason of the MDLY Merger.
- Upon exchanging shares of MDLY Class A Common Stock for shares of Sierra Common Stock, a U.S. holder or non-U.S. holder of MDLY Class A Common Stock generally will not recognize gain or loss, except a holder (i) will recognize gain (but not loss) in an amount equal to the lesser of the cash consideration received or the gain in such holder's MDLY Class A Common Stock surrendered in exchange for Sierra Common Stock, and (ii) will recognize gain or loss with respect to cash received instead of fractional shares of Sierra Common Stock (as discussed below).
 - For purposes of determining the amount of gain in a holder's MDLY Class A Common Stock, the Sierra Common Stock received in the exchange will have a value of $7.27 per share.
 - In addition, the First Dividend Shortfall Amount, if any, and/or the Second Dividend Shortfall Amount, if any payable to a holder of MDLY Class A Common Stock will be treated as additional cash consideration received in the MDLY Merger.

- The aggregate tax basis in the shares of Sierra Common Stock that a U.S. holder or non-U.S. holder of MDLY Class A Common Stock receives in the MDLY Merger, including any fractional share interests deemed received and sold as described below, will equal such holder's aggregate adjusted tax basis in the MDLY Class A Common Stock surrendered decreased by the amount of cash consideration received (excluding the amount of any cash received with respect to a fractional share) and increased by the amount of gain, if any, recognized as a result of the exchange (excluding the amount of any gain recognized with respect to a fractional share).
- The holding period for the shares of Sierra Common Stock that a U.S. holder or non-U.S. holder of MDLY Class A Common Stock receives in the MDLY Merger (including a fractional share interest deemed received and sold as described below) will include such holder's holding period for the shares of MDLY Class A Common Stock that the holder surrendered in the exchange.

Gain recognized by a U.S. holder or non-U.S. holder of MDLY Class A Common Stock generally will be treated as capital gain. Capital gain, if any, will be long-term capital gain or loss if, as of the effective date of the MDLY Merger, the holding period for the shares of MDLY Class A Common Stock is greater than one year. In some cases, if a holder actually or constructively owns Sierra Common Stock other than Sierra Common Stock received pursuant to the MDLY Merger, the recognized gain could be treated as having the effect of a distribution of a dividend under the tests set forth in Section 302 of the Code, in which case such gain would be treated as dividend, and would be subject to the possible application of the extraordinary dividend provisions of the Code as discussed below under “— Tax Consequences of the Special Dividends.”

Holders of MDLY Class A Common Stock should consult their own tax advisers to determine the U.S. federal, state, local, and foreign tax consequences of the MDLY Merger in light of their own unique circumstances.

Cash Instead of a Fractional Share. If a U.S. holder or non-U.S. holder of MDLY Class A Common Stock receives cash instead of a fractional share of Sierra Common Stock in the MDLY Merger, such holder will be treated as having received the fractional share of Sierra Common Stock pursuant to the MDLY Merger and then as having sold that fractional share of Sierra Common Stock for cash. As a result, such holder generally will recognize gain or loss equal to the difference between the amount of cash received and the holder's basis in the fractional share of Sierra Common Stock as set forth above. This gain or loss generally will be capital gain or loss, and will be long-term capital gain or loss if, as of the effective date of the MDLY Merger, the holding period for the shares (including the holding period of MDLY Class A Common Stock surrendered therefor) is greater than one year. The deductibility of capital losses is subject to limitations.

Non-U.S. Holders of MDLY Class A Common Stock. Gain recognized by a non-U.S. holder of MDLY Class A Common Stock upon the exchange of MDLY Class A Common Stock, including any deemed sale of a fractional share of Sierra Common Stock as a result of receiving cash in lieu of such fractional share, should not be subject to U.S. federal income tax unless:

- the gain is effectively connected with a U.S. trade or business of such non-U.S. holder of MDLY Class A Common Stock (and, if required by an applicable income tax treaty, the non-U.S. holder maintains a permanent establishment in the U.S. to which such gain is attributable), in which case the non-U.S. holder generally should be subject to tax on such gain in the same manner as a U.S. holder and, if the non-U.S. holder is a foreign corporation, such corporation may be subject to a branch profits tax at a rate of 30% (or such lower rate as may be specified by an applicable income tax treaty);
- the non-U.S. holder is a nonresident alien individual who is present in the United States for 183 days or more in the taxable year of the MDLY Merger and certain other requirements are met, in which case the non-U.S. holder generally should be subject to U.S. federal income tax at a rate of 30% (or such lower rate specified by an applicable income tax treaty), which may be offset by U.S. source capital losses of the non-U.S. holder, if any, provided the non-U.S. holder has timely filed U.S. federal income tax returns with respect to such losses; or

- MDLY (or Sierra with respect to any fractional share deemed sold pursuant to the MDLY Merger) is or has been a USRPHC for U.S. federal income tax purposes at any time during the shorter of (i) the five-year period ending on the date of the MDLY Merger and (ii) the non-U.S. holder's holding period in the MDLY Class A Common Stock (or Sierra Common Stock, if applicable) and the non-U.S. holder owned (directly, indirectly or constructively) more than 5% of MDLY's outstanding Class A Common Stock (or Sierra Common Stock, if applicable) at any time during the applicable period. Although there can be no assurances in this regard, neither MDLY nor Sierra believes that it is or was a USRPHC for U.S. federal income tax purposes.

Unless the Special Dividends or other cash consideration treated as a dividend under the tests set forth in Section 302 of the Code are treated as income effectively connected with a U.S. trade or business with respect to a non-U.S. holder (and, if required by an applicable income tax treaty, the non-U.S. holder maintains a permanent establishment in the U.S. to which such dividends are attributable), amounts received by a non-U.S. holder treated as a dividend for U.S. federal income tax purposes generally will be subject to U.S. federal withholding tax at a 30% rate (or a reduced rate specified by an applicable income tax treaty). To obtain a reduced rate of withholding, a non-U.S. holder will be required to provide a properly executed applicable IRS Form W-8BEN or IRS Form W-8BEN-E (or an acceptable substitute form) or otherwise meet documentary evidence requirements establishing such non-U.S. holder's entitlement to benefits under a treaty. A non-U.S. holder that does not timely furnish the required documentation, but that qualifies for a reduced treaty rate, may obtain a refund of any excess amounts withheld by timely filing an appropriate claim for refund with the IRS. If amounts received by a non-U.S. holder treated as a dividend for U.S. federal income tax purposes are treated as income effectively connected with a U.S. trade or business (and, if required by an applicable income tax treaty, attributable to a permanent establishment in the U.S.), such amounts will not be subject to the 30% withholding tax discussed above, but such income will be subject to U.S. federal income in the same manner as a U.S. holder of MDLY Class A Common Stock and, if the non-U.S. holder is a foreign corporation, such corporation may be subject to a branch profits tax at a rate of 30% (or such lower rate as may be specified by an applicable income tax treaty).

Non-U.S. holders of MDLY Class A Common Stock should consult their own tax advisers to determine the U.S. federal, state, local, and foreign tax consequences of the MDLY Merger and the Special Dividends in light of their own unique circumstances.

Tax Consequences of the Special Dividends. The U.S. federal income tax treatment of the Special Dividends is uncertain. The parties intend to treat the Special Dividends as dividends paid by MDLY for U.S. federal income tax purposes to the extent of MDLY's current and accumulated earnings and profits, as determined for U.S. federal income tax purposes. To the extent that the Special Dividends exceed MDLY's current and accumulated earnings and profits, the excess will first reduce your basis in the MDLY Class A Common Stock, but not below zero, and then will be treated as gain from the sale of the MDLY Class A Common Stock.

MDLY cannot precisely determine its accumulated earnings and profits and cannot precisely estimate its current year earnings and profits until the end of its taxable year. MDLY will determine its accumulated and current year earnings and profits when it is able to do so and will disclose the effects of its determination after the closing date of the Mergers. However, the parties believe that MDLY presently has no accumulated earnings and profits, that MDLY will have no earnings and profits in the current year, and that to the extent that it has earnings and profits in the year of the Special Dividends they will be small.

If you are a corporate U.S. holder of MDLY Class A Common Stock, the amount of the Special Dividends that is treated as a dividend for U.S. federal income tax purposes will be eligible for the dividends-received deduction if you meet certain holding period and other applicable requirements. In addition, if (i) you are allowed a dividends-received deduction with respect to the Special Dividends, (ii) you held your MDLY Class A Common Stock for two years or less, and (iii) such Special Dividends constitute an extraordinary dividend, then your tax basis in the Sierra Common Stock will be reduced (but not below zero) by the nontaxed portion of the Special Dividends and, if the nontaxed portion of such dividends exceeds such tax basis, such excess will be treated as gain from the sale or exchange of your MDLY Class A Common Stock. You should consult your tax advisor regarding the potential applicability of the extraordinary dividend provisions of the Code with respect to the Special Dividends.

Although the parties intend to treat the Special Dividends as dividends for U.S. federal income tax purposes to the extent of MDLY's current and accumulated earnings and profits, it is possible that the IRS could challenge this treatment and take the position that the Special Dividends are additional consideration received in the MDLY Merger. If the IRS were successful in asserting that all or any portion of the Special Dividends were additional merger consideration, the Special Dividends would be treated as additional cash consideration received in the MDLY Merger for purposes of determining the amount of gain recognized by a holder of MDLY Class A Common Stock as a result of the MDLY Merger. "— Tax Consequences of the Special Dividends."

Holders of MDLY Class A Common Stock should consult their own tax advisers to determine the U.S. federal, state, local, and foreign tax consequences of the Special Dividends in light of their own unique circumstances.

Information Reporting and Backup Withholding

A U.S. holder of MCC Common Stock or MDLY Class A Common Stock may, under certain circumstances, be subject to backup withholding with respect to the MCC Merger Consideration received pursuant to the MCC Merger, the Final MCC Dividend, the MDLY Merger Consideration received pursuant to the MDLY Merger and the Special Dividends, unless such holder properly establishes an exemption or provides its correct tax identification number and otherwise complies with the applicable requirements of the backup withholding rules. Backup withholding is not an additional tax. Any amounts withheld under the backup withholding rules may be allowed as a refund or a credit against the U.S. federal income tax liability of a U.S. holder of MCC Common Stock or MDLY Class A Common Stock, provided the required information is timely furnished to the IRS.

A non-U.S. holder of MCC Common Stock or MDLY Class A Common Stock will be subject to information reporting and, in certain circumstances, backup withholding with respect to the MCC Merger Consideration received pursuant to the MCC Merger, the Final MCC Dividend, the MDLY Merger Consideration received pursuant to the MDLY Merger and the Special Dividends, unless such holder certifies under penalties of perjury that it is a non-U.S. holder (and the payor does not have actual knowledge or reason to know that the holder is a United States person as defined under the Code) or such holder otherwise establishes an exemption from backup withholding. Backup withholding is not an additional tax. Any amounts withheld under the backup withholding rules may be allowed as a refund or a credit against the U.S. federal income tax liability of a non-U.S. holder of MCC Common Stock or MDLY Class A Common Stock, provided the required information is timely furnished to the IRS.

FATCA

Withholding taxes may be imposed under Sections 1471 to 1474 of the Code (such Sections commonly referred to as the Foreign Account Tax Compliance Act, or "FATCA") on the portion of the MCC Final Dividend treated as a dividend for U.S. federal income tax purposes, the portion of the Special Dividends treated as dividends for U.S. federal income tax purposes or other cash consideration treated as a dividend in connection with the MDLY Merger under the tests set forth in Section 302 of the Code if paid to a "foreign financial institution" ("FFI") or a "non-financial foreign entity" ("NFFE") (each as defined in the Code), unless (1) the FFI undertakes certain diligence and reporting obligations, (2) the NFFE either certifies it does not have any "substantial United States owners" (as defined in the Code) or furnishes identifying information regarding each substantial U.S. owner, or (3) the FFI or NFFE otherwise qualifies for an exemption from these rules. If the payee is a FFI and is subject to the diligence and reporting requirements in (1) above, it must enter into an agreement with the U.S. Department of the Treasury requiring, among other things, that it undertake to identify accounts held by certain "specified United States persons" or "United States-owned foreign entities" (each as defined in the Code), annually report certain information about such accounts, and withhold 30% on certain payments to non-compliant FFIs and certain other account holders. FFIs located in jurisdictions that have an intergovernmental agreement with the U.S. governing FATCA may be subject to different rules.

U.S. Federal Income Taxation of an Investment in Sierra Common Stock

Election to be Taxed as a RIC

As a BDC, Sierra has elected to be treated as a RIC under the Code. As a RIC, Sierra generally will not pay corporate-level U.S. federal income taxes on its income and net capital gains that it distributes to holders of Sierra Common Stock as dividends on a timely basis. Sierra will be subject to corporate-level U.S. federal income tax on any undistributed income and/or gains. To qualify as a RIC, Sierra must, among other things, meet certain source of income and asset diversification requirements (as described below). In addition, Sierra must distribute to holders of Sierra Common Stock for each taxable year an amount equal to at least 90% of its ICTI (the “Annual Distribution Requirement”). Sierra’s SBIC subsidiary (formerly the SBIC Subsidiary prior to the Mergers) may be limited by the Small Business Investment Act of 1958, and SBA regulations governing SBICs, from making certain distributions to Sierra that may be necessary to enable Sierra to maintain its status as a RIC. Sierra may have to request a waiver of the SBA’s restrictions for Sierra’s SBIC subsidiary to make certain distributions to maintain Sierra’s RIC status. Sierra cannot assure you that the SBA will grant such a waiver.

Taxation as a RIC

If Sierra:

- qualifies as a RIC; and
- satisfies the Annual Distribution Requirement;

then Sierra will not be subject to U.S. federal income tax on the portion of its ICTI and net capital gain (generally, net realized long-term capital gain in excess of net realized short-term capital loss) Sierra distributes (or is deemed to distribute) to holders of Sierra Common Stock. Sierra will be subject to U.S. federal income tax at the regular corporate rates on any income or capital gain not distributed (or deemed distributed) to holders of Sierra Common Stock.

Sierra will be subject to a 4% nondeductible U.S. federal excise tax on certain undistributed income unless Sierra distributes in a timely manner each calendar year an amount at least equal to the sum of (1) 98% of Sierra’s ordinary income for such calendar year, (2) 98.2% of Sierra’s capital gain net income for the one-year period ending October 31 in that calendar year and (3) any income and gains recognized, but not distributed, in preceding years and on which Sierra did not pay corporate-level U.S. federal income tax (the “Excise Tax Requirement”). Sierra generally will endeavor in each taxable year to avoid any U.S. federal excise tax on its earnings.

If Sierra borrows money, it may be prevented by loan covenants from declaring and paying dividends in certain circumstances. In addition, Sierra generally is not permitted to make distributions to holders of Sierra Common Stock while Sierra’s debt obligations and senior securities are outstanding unless certain “asset coverage” tests or other financial covenants are met. Limits on Sierra’s payment of dividends may prevent Sierra from meeting the Annual Distribution Requirement, and may, therefore, jeopardize Sierra’s qualification for taxation as a RIC, or cause it to be subject to corporate-level U.S. federal income or U.S. federal excise tax on undistributed income and gains.

To qualify as a RIC for U.S. federal income tax purposes, Sierra generally must, among other things:

- qualify to be treated as a BDC at all times during each taxable year;
- derive in each taxable year at least 90% of its gross income from (a) dividends, interest, payments with respect to certain securities loans, gains from the sale of stock or other securities or other income derived with respect to its business of investing in such stock or securities or (b) net income derived from an interest in a “qualified publicly traded partnership,” or “QPTP” (collectively, the “90% Income Test”); and
- diversify its holdings so that at the end of each quarter of the taxable year:
 - at least 50% of the value of its assets consists of cash, cash equivalents, U.S. Government securities, securities of other RICs and other securities that, with respect to any issuer, do not represent more than 5% of the value of its assets or more than 10% of the outstanding voting securities of that issuer; and
 - no more than 25% of the value of its assets is invested in the securities, other than U.S. Government securities or securities of other RICs, of (i) one issuer, (ii) two or more issuers that are controlled, as determined under applicable tax rules, by Sierra and that are engaged in the same or similar or related trades or businesses or (iii) securities of one or more QPTPs (collectively, the “Diversification Tests”).

Sierra may be required to recognize taxable income in circumstances in which it does not receive cash, such as income from hedging or foreign currency transactions. For example, if Sierra holds debt obligations that are treated under applicable tax rules as having OID (such as debt instruments with PIK interest or, in certain cases, that have increasing interest rates or that are issued with warrants), Sierra must include in income each year a portion of the OID that accrues over the life of the obligation, regardless of whether cash representing such income is received by it in the same taxable year. Because any OID or other amounts accrued will be included in Sierra's ICTI for the year of accrual, Sierra may be required to make a distribution to holders of Sierra Common Stock in order to satisfy the Annual Distribution Requirement, even though Sierra will not have received any corresponding cash amount.

Sierra's ability to raise cash from other sources in order to satisfy the Annual Distribution Requirement may be limited by its status as a BDC and the requirements of the Investment Company Act, the covenants in loan documents and other agreements, and the other requirements of maintaining its qualification as a RIC. In addition, although Sierra is authorized to sell assets to satisfy the Annual Distribution Requirement and the Diversification Tests, Sierra's ability to dispose of assets may be limited by (1) the illiquid nature of Sierra's portfolio and (2) other requirements relating to Sierra's status as a BDC or a RIC. If Sierra disposes of assets to satisfy the Annual Distribution Requirement and the Diversification Tests, Sierra may make such dispositions at times that, from an investment standpoint, are not advantageous. If Sierra is unable to raise cash from other sources or to dispose of assets to satisfy the Annual Distribution Requirement and the Diversification Tests, Sierra may fail to qualify as RIC, and therefore, become subject to corporate-level U.S. federal income tax.

Certain of Sierra's investment practices may be subject to special and complex U.S. federal income tax provisions that may, among other things, (a) disallow, suspend or otherwise limit the allowance of certain losses or deductions, (b) convert long-term capital gain (currently taxed at lower rates for non-corporate taxpayers) into higher taxed short-term capital gain or ordinary income, (c) convert an ordinary loss or a deduction into a capital loss (the deductibility of which is more limited), (d) adversely affect the time when a purchase or sale of stock or securities is deemed to occur or (e) adversely alter the characterization of certain complex financial transactions. Sierra will monitor its transactions and may make certain tax elections in order to mitigate the effects of these provisions; however, no assurance can be given that Sierra will be eligible for any such tax elections or that any elections Sierra makes will fully mitigate the effects of these provisions.

A portfolio company in which Sierra invests may face financial difficulty that requires Sierra to work-out, modify or otherwise restructure Sierra's investment in the portfolio company. Any such restructuring could, depending on the specific terms of the restructuring, result in unusable capital losses and future non-cash income.

Gain or loss recognized by Sierra from warrants acquired by Sierra as well as any loss attributable to the lapse of such warrants generally will be treated as capital gain or loss. Such gain or loss generally will be long-term or short-term, depending on how long Sierra held a particular warrant.

Sierra's investment in non-U.S. securities may be subject to non-U.S. income, withholding and other taxes. In that case, Sierra's yield on those securities would be decreased. Holders of Sierra Common Stock will generally not be entitled to claim a U.S. foreign tax credit or deduction with respect to non-U.S. taxes paid by Sierra.

If Sierra purchases shares in a “passive foreign investment company” (a “PFIC”), Sierra may be subject to U.S. federal income tax on a portion of any “excess distribution” or gain from the disposition of such shares, even if such income is distributed as a taxable dividend by Sierra to holders of Sierra Common Stock. Additional charges in the nature of interest may be imposed on Sierra in respect of deferred taxes arising from such distributions or gains. If Sierra invests in a PFIC and elects to treat the PFIC as a “qualified electing fund” under the Code (a “QEF”), in lieu of the foregoing requirements, Sierra will be required to include in income each year a portion of the ordinary earnings and net capital gain of the QEF, even if such income is not distributed to Sierra. Alternatively, Sierra may elect to mark-to-market at the end of each taxable year Sierra Common Stock in such PFIC; in this case, Sierra will recognize as ordinary income any increase in the value of such shares, and as ordinary loss any decrease in such value to the extent it does not exceed prior increases included in income. Sierra’s ability to make either election will depend on factors beyond its control, and Sierra is subject to limitations which may limit the availability or benefit of these elections. Under either election, Sierra may be required to recognize in any year income in excess of Sierra’s distributions from PFICs and Sierra’s proceeds from dispositions of PFIC stock during that year, and such income will nevertheless be subject to the Annual Distribution Requirement and will be taken into account for purposes of determining whether Sierra satisfies the Excise Tax Requirement. In addition, the IRS and U.S. Treasury Department have issued proposed regulations that provide that the income inclusions from a QEF would not be good income for purposes of the 90% Income Test except to the extent Sierra receives a cash distribution from such entity in the same year attributable to the included income. Sierra will carefully monitor its investments to avoid disqualification as a RIC.

Sierra’s functional currency is the U.S. dollar for U.S. federal income tax purposes. Under Section 988 of the Code, gains or losses attributable to fluctuations in exchange rates between the time Sierra accrues income, expenses or other liabilities denominated in a foreign currency and the time Sierra actually collects such income or pays such expenses or liabilities may be treated as ordinary income or loss. Similarly, gains or losses on foreign currency forward contracts, the disposition of debt denominated in a foreign currency and other financial transactions denominated in foreign currency, to the extent attributable to fluctuations in exchange rates between the acquisition and disposition dates, may also be treated as ordinary income or loss.

Some of the income and fees that Sierra recognizes, such as management fees, may not be good income for purposes of the 90% Income Test. In order to ensure that such income and fees do not disqualify Sierra as a RIC for a failure to satisfy the 90% Income Test, Sierra may be required to recognize such income or fees through one or more entities treated as U.S. corporations for U.S. federal income tax purposes. While Sierra expects that recognizing income through such corporations will assist Sierra in satisfying the 90% Income Test, no assurance can be given that this structure will be respected for U.S. federal income tax purposes, which could result in such income not being treated as qualifying income for purposes of the 90% Income Test. If the amount of such income were too great and Sierra were otherwise unable to mitigate this effect, it could result in Sierra’s disqualification as a RIC. If, as Sierra expects, the structure is respected, such corporations will be required to pay corporate-level U.S. federal income tax on their earnings, which ultimately will reduce the yield on such income and fees.

If Sierra fails to satisfy the Annual Distribution Requirement or otherwise fail to qualify as a RIC in any taxable year, and is not eligible for relief as described above, Sierra will be subject to corporate-level U.S. federal tax in that year on all of its taxable income, regardless of whether Sierra makes any distributions to holders of Sierra Common Stock. In that case, the amount available to be distributed to holders of Sierra Common Stock would be reduced by the amount of tax paid. In addition, none of its dividends would be eligible to be reported as capital gain dividends, interest-related dividends, or short-term capital gain dividends. In contrast, assuming Sierra qualifies as a RIC, Sierra’s corporate-level U.S. federal income tax should be substantially reduced or eliminated. See “Election to Be Taxed as a RIC” above and “Risk Factors — Risks Relating to Sierra—U.S. Federal Income Tax Risks—Sierra will be subject to corporate-level U.S. federal income tax if it is unable to qualify for the tax treatment applicable to RICs under Subchapter M of the Code or to satisfy RIC distribution requirements.”

If Sierra fails to satisfy the Annual Distribution Requirement or otherwise fail to qualify as a RIC in any taxable year, and is not eligible for relief as described above, Sierra will be subject to corporate-level U.S. federal tax in that year on all of its taxable income, regardless of whether Sierra makes any distributions to holders of Sierra Common Stock. In that case, the amount available to be distributed to holders of Sierra Common Stock would be reduced by the amount of tax paid. In addition, none of its dividends would be eligible to be reported as capital gain dividends, interest-related dividends, or short-term capital gain dividends. In contrast, assuming Sierra qualifies as a RIC, Sierra’s corporate-level U.S. federal income tax should be substantially reduced or eliminated. See “Election to Be Taxed as a RIC” above and “Risk Factors — Risks Relating to Sierra’s Business — Sierra may be subject to additional corporate-level U.S. federal income taxes if it fails to maintain its status as a RIC.”

Taxation of Sierra Management, Inc.

Following the MDLY Merger, Sierra Management, Inc. is expected to be taxed as an ordinary C corporation. Consequently, it will be subject to corporate-level U.S. federal income tax on its net taxable income. Any distributions from Sierra Management, Inc. to Sierra will be treated as dividends to the extent of Sierra Management, Inc.'s current and accumulated earnings and profits. If Sierra qualifies as a RIC, distributions of such income by Sierra will generally be eligible to be treated as qualified dividend income (subject to holding period and other requirements) by U.S. holders of Sierra Common Stock as discussed below.

Net Operating Losses, Capital Loss Carryforwards and Unrealized Losses

For net capital losses realized in taxable years beginning on or after January 1, 2011, the excess of Sierra's net short-term capital loss over its net long-term capital gain is treated as a short-term capital loss arising on the first day of Sierra's next taxable year and the excess of Sierra's net long-term capital loss over its net short-term capital gain is treated as a long-term capital loss arising on the first day of Sierra's next taxable year. If future capital gain is offset by carried-forward capital losses, such future capital gain is not subject to corporate-level U.S. federal income tax, regardless of whether distributed to holders of Sierra Common Stock. A RIC cannot carry back or carry forward any net operating losses.

It is believed that transactions Sierra has undertaken, including the MCC Merger and MDLY Merger, have resulted in a limitation on Sierra's ability to use both its own and MCC's capital loss carryforwards and, potentially, to use unrealized capital losses inherent in the tax basis of Sierra's own pre-acquisition assets and MCC's assets Sierra acquired. These limitations, imposed by Section 383 of the Code and based on the principles of Section 382 of the Code, are imposed on an annual basis. Losses in excess of the limitation may be carried forward, subject to the overall eight-year limitation. The Section 382 limitation applied to Sierra's and MCC's losses generally will equal the product of the NAV of each corporation immediately prior to the MCC Merger, respectively, and the "long-term tax-exempt rate," published by the IRS, in effect at such time. As of September 2018, the long-term tax-exempt rate was 2.32%. Additionally, under Section 384 of the Code, Sierra may also be prohibited from using MCC's loss carryforwards and unrealized losses against any of Sierra's unrealized gains at the time of the MCC Merger, to the extent such gains are realized within five years following the MCC Merger. Future transactions Sierra enters into may further limit its ability to utilize losses.

Taxation of U.S. Holder of Sierra Common Stock

Whether an investment in the shares of Sierra Common Stock is appropriate for a U.S. holder will depend upon that person's particular circumstances. An investment in the shares of Sierra Common Stock by a U.S. holder may have adverse tax consequences. The following summary generally describes certain U.S. federal income tax consequences of an investment in shares of Sierra Common Stock by taxable U.S. holders and not by U.S. holders that generally are exempt from U.S. federal income taxation. U.S. holders of Sierra Common Stock should consult their own tax advisors before investing in shares of Sierra Common Stock.

Distributions on Sierra Common Stock

Distributions by Sierra generally are taxable to U.S. holders as ordinary income or long-term capital gain. Distributions of Sierra's ICTI will be taxable as ordinary income to U.S. holders to the extent of Sierra's current and accumulated earnings and profits, whether paid in cash or reinvested in additional shares of Sierra Common Stock. Distributions of Sierra's net capital gain (which generally is the excess of Sierra's net long-term capital gain over its net short-term capital loss) properly reported by Sierra as "capital gain dividends" will be taxable to U.S. holders as long-term capital gains (which, under current law, are taxed at preferential rates in the case of individuals, trusts or estates). This is true regardless of U.S. holders' holding periods for their Sierra Common Stock and regardless of whether the dividend is paid in cash or reinvested in additional Sierra Common Stock. Distributions in excess of Sierra's earnings and profits first will reduce a U.S. holder's adjusted tax basis in such holder's Sierra Common Stock and, after the adjusted tax basis is reduced to zero, will constitute capital gain to such U.S. holder of Sierra Common Stock. Sierra has made distributions in excess of its earnings and profits and may continue to do so in the future. As a result, a U.S. holder of Sierra Common Stock will need to consider the effect of Sierra's distributions on such U.S. holder's adjusted tax basis in Sierra Common Stock in their individual circumstances.

A portion of Sierra's ordinary income dividends, but not capital gain dividends, paid to corporate U.S. holders may, if certain conditions are met, qualify for the dividends-received deduction to the extent that Sierra has received dividends from certain corporations during the taxable year, but only to the extent such ordinary income dividends are treated as paid out of Sierra's earnings and profits. Sierra expects only a small portion of its dividends to qualify for this deduction. Corporate U.S. holders of Sierra Common Stock should consult their own tax advisors in determining the application of these rules in their particular circumstances.

In general, "qualified dividend income" realized by non-corporate U.S. holders of Sierra Common Stock is taxable at the same rate as net capital gain. As long as certain requirements are met, Sierra's dividends paid to non-corporate U.S. holders attributable to qualified dividend income may be treated by such U.S. holders as qualified dividend income, but only to the extent such ordinary income dividends are treated as paid out of Sierra's earnings and profits. Generally, qualified dividend income is dividend income attributable to certain U.S. and foreign corporations, as long as certain holding period requirements are met. Sierra expects only a small portion of its dividends to qualify as qualified dividend income.

Although Sierra currently intends to distribute all of its net capital gain for each taxable year on a timely basis, Sierra may in the future decide to retain some or all of its net capital gain, and may designate the retained amount as a "deemed distribution." In that case, among other consequences, Sierra will pay tax on the retained amount, each U.S. holder of Sierra Common Stock will be required to include such holder's share of the deemed distribution in income as if it had been actually distributed to the U.S. holder, and the U.S. holder will be entitled to claim a credit equal to such holder's allocable share of the tax paid thereon by Sierra. The amount of the deemed distribution net of such tax will be added to the adjusted tax basis of a U.S. holder's Sierra Common Stock. If the amount of tax that holders will be treated as having paid and for which they will receive a credit would exceed the tax they owe on the retained net capital gain, such excess generally may be claimed as a credit against other U.S. federal income tax obligations of a U.S. holder of Sierra Common Stock or may be refunded to the extent it exceeds the holder's liability for U.S. federal income tax. A U.S. holder of Sierra Common Stock that is not subject to U.S. federal income tax or otherwise is not required to file a U.S. federal income tax return would be required to file a U.S. federal income tax return on the appropriate form in order to claim a refund for its share of the taxes Sierra paid. In order to utilize the deemed distribution approach, Sierra must provide a written statement to holders of Sierra Common Stock designating the deemed distribution after the close of the relevant taxable year. Sierra cannot treat any of its ICTI as a "deemed distribution."

For purposes of determining (1) whether the Annual Distribution Requirement is satisfied for any year and (2) the amount of dividends paid deduction for that year, Sierra may, under certain circumstances, elect to treat a dividend that is paid during the following taxable year as if it had been paid during the taxable year in question. If Sierra makes such an election, the U.S. holder of Sierra Common Stock will still be treated as receiving the dividend in the taxable year in which the distribution is made. However, any dividend declared by Sierra in October, November or December of any calendar year, payable to holders of record on a specified date in such a month and actually paid during January of the following year, will be treated as if it had been received by U.S. holders of Sierra Common Stock on December 31 of the year in which the dividend was declared.

Sierra has the ability to declare a large portion of a dividend in shares of its stock. As long as a portion of such dividend is payable in cash at the election of holders of Sierra Common Stock and certain requirements are met, the entire distribution will be treated as a dividend for U.S. federal income tax purposes. As a result, U.S. holders of Sierra Common Stock will be taxed on 100% of the fair market value of the dividend on the date the dividend is received in the same manner as a cash dividend, even though most of the dividend was paid in shares of Sierra stock, which may result in U.S. holders of Sierra Common Stock having to pay U.S. federal income tax on such dividends, even if no cash is received.

If investors purchase shares of Sierra Common Stock shortly before the record date of a distribution, the price of the shares will include the value of the distribution and the investors will be subject to U.S. federal income tax on the distribution even though it represents a return of their investment. Sierra has built-up or has the potential to build up large amounts of unrealized gain which, when realized and distributed, could have the effect of a taxable return of capital to holders of Sierra Common Stock.

Sale or Other Disposition of Sierra Common Stock

A U.S. holder of Sierra Common Stock generally will recognize taxable gain or loss if the U.S. holder of Sierra Common Stock sells or otherwise disposes of such holder's shares of Sierra Common Stock. The amount of gain or loss will be measured by the difference between such holder's adjusted tax basis in the stock sold and the amount of the proceeds received in exchange. Any gain arising from such sale or disposition generally will be treated as long-term capital gain or loss if the U.S. holder of Sierra Common Stock has held its shares for more than one year. Otherwise, such gain or loss will be classified as short-term capital gain or loss. However, any capital loss arising from the sale or disposition of shares of Sierra Common Stock held for six months or less will be treated as long-term capital loss to the extent of the amount of capital gain dividends received, or undistributed capital gain deemed received, with respect to such shares. In addition, all or a portion of any loss recognized upon a disposition of shares of Sierra Common Stock may be disallowed if substantially identical stock or securities are purchased (whether through reinvestment of distributions or otherwise) within 30 days before or after the disposition.

In general, U.S. holders of Sierra Common Stock that are individuals, trusts or estates are taxed at preferential rates on their net capital gain (generally, the excess of net long-term capital gain over net short-term capital loss for a taxable year, including long-term capital gain derived from an investment in Sierra Common Stock). Such rate is lower than the maximum rate on ordinary income currently payable by individuals. Corporate U.S. holders of Sierra Common Stock currently are subject to U.S. federal income tax on net capital gain at the same maximum rate that also applies to ordinary income. Non-corporate U.S. holders of Sierra Common Stock with net capital losses for a year (i.e., capital loss in excess of capital gain) generally may deduct up to $3,000 of such losses against their ordinary income each year; any net capital losses of a non-corporate U.S. holder of Sierra Common Stock in excess of $3,000 generally may be carried forward and used in subsequent years as provided in the Code. Corporate U.S. holders of Sierra Common Stock generally may not deduct any net capital losses for a year, but may carry back such losses for three years or carry forward such losses for five years.

Taxation of Non-U.S. holders of Sierra Common Stock

Whether an investment in shares of Sierra Common Stock is appropriate for a non-U.S. holder will depend upon that person's particular circumstances. An investment in shares of Sierra Common Stock by a non-U.S. holder may have adverse tax consequences and, accordingly, may not be appropriate for a non-U.S. holder. The following summary generally describes certain U.S. federal income tax consequences of an investment in shares of Sierra Common Stock by a Non-U.S. holder. Non-U.S. holders of Sierra Common Stock should consult their own tax advisors before investing in Sierra Common Stock.

Distributions on Sierra Common Stock

Distributions of Sierra's ICTI to non-U.S. holders of Sierra Common Stock will be subject to U.S. withholding tax at a rate of 30% (unless lowered or eliminated by an applicable income tax treaty) to the extent payable from Sierra's current and accumulated earnings and profits unless an exception applies. In general, no U.S. withholding taxes will be imposed on dividends paid by Sierra to non-U.S. holders of Sierra Common Stock to the extent the dividends are properly reported by Sierra as "interest-related dividends" or "short-term capital gain dividends." Under this exemption, interest-related dividends and short-term capital gain dividends generally represent distributions of net interest income or net short-term capital gain that would not have been subject to U.S. withholding tax at the source if they had been received directly by a non-U.S. holder of Sierra Common Stock, and that satisfy certain other requirements. No assurance can be given that Sierra will report any of its distributions as interest-related or short-term capital gain dividends.

If a distribution of Sierra's ICTI to non-U.S. holders of Sierra Common Stock is effectively connected with a U.S. trade or business of the non-U.S. holder (and, if an income tax treaty applies, attributable to a permanent establishment in the U.S. of such non-U.S. holder), such distributions generally will be subject to U.S. federal income tax at the rates applicable to U.S. persons to the extent paid out of the Sierra's current or accumulated earnings and profits. In that case, Sierra will not be required to withhold U.S. federal income tax if the non-U.S. holder of Sierra Common Stock complies with applicable certification and disclosure requirements. Special certification requirements apply to a non-U.S. holder of Sierra Common Stock that is a foreign trust and such entities are urged to consult their own tax advisors.

Actual or deemed distributions of Sierra's net capital gain (which generally is the excess of Sierra's net realized long-term capital gain over its net realized short-term capital loss) to a non-U.S. holder of Sierra Common Stock, and gains recognized by a non-U.S. holder of Sierra Common Stock upon the sale of Sierra Common Stock, will not be subject to withholding of U.S. federal income tax and generally will not be subject to U.S. federal income tax unless (a) the distributions or gains, as the case may be, are effectively connected with a U.S. trade or business of the non-U.S. holder of Sierra Common Stock (and, if an income tax treaty applies, are attributable to a permanent establishment maintained by the non-U.S. holder in the U.S.) or (b) the non-U.S. holder of Sierra Common Stock is an individual, has been present in the U.S. for 183 days or more during the taxable year, and certain other conditions are satisfied.

For a corporate non-U.S. holder of Sierra Common Stock, distributions (both actual and deemed), and gains recognized upon the sale of Sierra Common Stock that are effectively connected with a U.S. trade or business may, under certain circumstances, be subject to an additional "branch profits tax" at a rate of 30% (unless lowered or eliminated by an applicable income tax treaty). Non-U.S. holders of Sierra Common Stock are encouraged to consult their own advisors as to the applicability of an income tax treaty in their individual circumstances.

If Sierra distributes its net capital gain in the form of deemed rather than actual distributions (which Sierra may do in the future), a non-U.S. holder of Sierra Common Stock will be entitled to a U.S. federal income tax credit or tax refund equal to the non-U.S. holder's allocable share of the tax Sierra pays on the capital gain deemed to have been distributed. In order to obtain the refund, the non-U.S. holder of Sierra Common Stock must obtain a U.S. taxpayer identification number (if one has not been previously obtained) and file a U.S. federal income tax return even if the non-U.S. holder would not otherwise be required to obtain a U.S. taxpayer identification number or file a U.S. federal income tax return.

Sierra has the ability to declare a large portion of a dividend in shares of its stock. As long as a portion of such dividend is payable in cash at the election of holders of Sierra Common Stock and certain requirements are met, the entire distribution will be treated as a dividend for U.S. federal income tax purposes. As a result, non-U.S. holders of Sierra Common Stock will be taxed on 100% of the fair market value of the dividend on the date the dividend is received in the same manner as a cash dividend (including the application of withholding tax rules described above), even though all or a portion of the dividend was paid in shares of Sierra Common Stock.

Information Reporting and Backup Withholding

Sierra or the applicable withholding agent will send to each U.S. holder of Sierra Common Stock, after the end of each calendar year, a notice reporting the amounts includible in such U.S. holder's taxable income for such year as ordinary income, long-term capital gain, and qualified dividend income (if any). In addition, the U.S. federal tax status of each year's distributions generally will be reported to the IRS.

Sierra (or the applicable withholding agent) may be required to withhold U.S. federal income tax from all distributions to any non-corporate U.S. holder of Sierra Common Stock (1) who fails to furnish Sierra with a correct taxpayer identification number or a certificate that such non-corporate U.S. holder is exempt from backup withholding or (2) with respect to whom the IRS notifies Sierra (or the applicable withholding agent) has failed to properly report certain interest and dividend income to the IRS and to respond to notices to that effect. An individual's taxpayer identification number is his or her social security number. Backup withholding is not an additional tax. Any amount withheld under backup withholding is allowed as a credit against the U.S. federal income tax liability of a U.S. holder of Sierra Common Stock and may entitle such holder to a refund, provided that proper information is timely provided to the IRS.

A non-U.S. holder of Sierra Common Stock who is otherwise subject to withholding of U.S. federal income tax may be subject to information reporting and backup withholding of U.S. federal income tax on dividends unless the non-U.S. holder of Sierra Common Stock provides Sierra or the dividend paying agent with an IRS Form W-8BEN or IRS Form W-8BEN-E (or an acceptable substitute form) or otherwise meets documentary evidence requirements for establishing that it is a non-U.S. holder or otherwise establishes an exemption from backup withholding.

FATCA

Withholding taxes may be imposed under FATCA on any dividends on Sierra Common Stock and, after December 31, 2018, the gross proceeds from a sale of Sierra Common Stock if paid to a FFI or a NFFE, unless (1) the FFI undertakes certain diligence and reporting obligations, (2) the NFFE either certifies it does not have any “substantial United States owners” (as defined in the Code) or furnishes identifying information regarding each substantial U.S. owner, or (3) the FFI or NFFE otherwise qualifies for an exemption from these rules. If the payee is a FFI and is subject to the diligence and reporting requirements in (1) above, it must enter into an agreement with the U.S. Department of the Treasury requiring, among other things, that it undertake to identify accounts held by certain “specified United States persons” or “United States-owned foreign entities” (each as defined in the Code), annually report certain information about such accounts, and withhold 30% on certain payments to non-compliant FFIs and certain other account holders. FFIs located in jurisdictions that have an intergovernmental agreement with the U.S. governing FATCA may be subject to different rules.

Reportable Transactions

Under U.S. Treasury regulations, if a holder of Sierra Common Stock recognizes a loss with respect to shares of $2 million or more for a non-corporate holder or $10 million or more for a corporate holder in any single taxable year (or a greater loss over a combination of years), the holder must file with the IRS a disclosure statement on Form 8886. Direct holders of certain portfolio securities in many cases are excepted from this reporting requirement, but under current guidance, holders of a RIC are not excepted. Future guidance may extend the current exception from this reporting requirement to holders of most or all RICs. The fact that a loss is reportable under these regulations does not affect the legal determination of whether the taxpayer’s treatment of the loss is proper. Significant monetary penalties apply to a failure to comply with this reporting requirement. States may also have a similar reporting requirement. Holders of Sierra Common Stock should consult their own tax advisors to determine the applicability of these regulations in light of their individual circumstances.

Failure to Qualify as a RIC

If Sierra were unable to qualify for treatment as a RIC, and relief were not available as discussed above, Sierra would be subject to tax on all of its taxable income at regular corporate rates. Sierra would not be able to deduct distributions to holders of Sierra Common Stock and would not be required to make distributions for tax purposes. Distributions generally would be taxable to holders of Sierra Common Stock as ordinary dividend income to the extent of Sierra’s current and accumulated earnings and profits. Subject to certain limitations under the Code, corporate U.S. holders of Sierra Common Stock would be eligible for the dividends-received deduction. Distributions in excess of Sierra’s current and accumulated earnings and profits would be treated first as a return of capital to the extent of the holder’s tax basis, and any remaining distributions would be treated as a capital gain. If Sierra were to fail to meet the RIC requirements for more than two consecutive years and then sought to requalify as a RIC, Sierra would be subject to tax on any unrealized net built-in gains in the assets held by Sierra during the period in which Sierra failed to qualify as a RIC that are recognized within the subsequent 5 years, unless Sierra makes a special election to pay corporate-level U.S. federal income tax on such built-in gains at the time of its requalification as a RIC.

Possible Legislative or Other Actions Affecting Tax Considerations

Prospective investors should recognize that the present U.S. federal income tax treatment of an investment in shares of Sierra Common Stock may be modified by legislative, judicial or administrative action at any time, and that any such action may affect investments and commitments previously made. The rules dealing with U.S. federal income taxation are constantly under review by persons involved in the legislative process and by the IRS and the U.S. Treasury Department, resulting in revisions of regulations and revised interpretations of established concepts as well as statutory changes. Revisions in U.S. federal tax laws and interpretations thereof could adversely affect the U.S. federal income tax consequences of an investment in Sierra.

UNAUDITED PRO FORMA CONDENSED CONSOLIDATED FINANCIAL STATEMENTS

Under the MCC Merger Agreement, subject to the completion of both the MCC Merger and the MDLY Merger, MCC Stockholders will receive 0.8050 shares of Sierra Common Stock for each share of MCC Common Stock, subject to the payment of cash in lieu of fractional shares, resulting in approximately 43.9 million shares of Sierra Common Stock being issued in exchange for approximately 54.5 million shares of MCC Common Stock. The unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated financial statements have been derived from and should be read in conjunction with the historical consolidated financial statements and the related notes thereto of Sierra, MCC and MDLY, which are included elsewhere in this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus. See “Index to Financial Statements.”

Under the MDLY Merger Agreement, subject to the completion of both the MCC Merger and the MDLY Merger, each share of MDLY Class A Common Stock issued and outstanding immediately prior to the MDLY Merger Effective Time (other than Dissenting Shares and Excluded MDLY Shares) will be converted into the right to receive 0.3836 shares of Sierra Common Stock and cash in an amount equal to $3.44 per share. Medley LLC Unitholders will convert their Medley LLC Units into shares of MDLY Class A Common Stock and such shares (to the extent issued and outstanding immediately prior to the MDLY Merger Effective Time, and other than any Dissenting Shares and any Excluded MDLY Shares) will be converted into the right to receive 0.3836 shares of Sierra Common Stock and $3.44 per share of cash consideration. In addition, holders of MDLY Class A Common Stock as of the applicable record dates (as further described in the section entitled “Description of the MDLY Merger Agreement”) also are entitled to receive special cash dividends, together with the First Dividend Shortfall Amount and the Second Dividend Shortfall Amount (if any and if applicable), in the aggregate amount of up to $0.65 per share of MDLY Class A Common Stock issued and outstanding as of such applicable record dates. In addition, Medley LLC Unitholders as of the applicable record date (as further described in the section entitled “Description of the MDLY Merger Agreement”) also are entitled to receive a special cash distribution, together with the First Dividend Shortfall Amount (if any and if applicable), in the aggregate amount of up to $0.35 per Medley LLC Unit outstanding as of such applicable record date. Each share of MDLY Class B Common Stock issued and outstanding immediately prior to the MDLY Merger Effective Time (other than Dissenting Shares) will be canceled without consideration therefor. This results in total cash consideration of $118.2 million and approximately 11.7 million shares of Sierra Common Stock issued in exchange for approximately 30.6 million shares of MDLY Common Stock. The unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated financial statements have been derived from and should be read in conjunction with the historical consolidated financial statements and the related notes of MDLY and Sierra, which are included elsewhere in this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus. See “Index to Financial Statements.”

The following unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated financial statements present the combination of the historical financial statements of MCC and Sierra adjusted to give effect to the MCC Merger with Sierra treated as the accounting acquirer. The unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated statements of operations for the year ended December 31, 2017, and for the nine months ended September 30, 2018, combine the historical statements of operations of Sierra and MCC, giving effect to the Mergers and related transactions as if they had been consummated on January 1, 2017, the beginning of the earliest period presented in these financial statements. The unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated statement of assets and liabilities combines the historical balance sheets of Sierra and MCC as of September 30, 2018, giving effect to the Mergers as if it had been consummated on September 30, 2018. In connection with the MDLY Merger, Sierra will account for its acquisition of MDLY as an investment at fair value on its statement of assets and liabilities. As such, the unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated financial statements have been adjusted to reflect MDLY as an investment at its estimated transaction cost as of September 30, 2018, and do not reflect the historical statements of operations of MDLY for the nine months ended September 30, 2018, the twelve months ended December 31, 2017 or historical consolidated balance sheet as of September 30, 2018.

The unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated financial statements are presented for illustrative purposes only and do not necessarily indicate the results of operations or the combined financial position that would have resulted had the Mergers been completed at the beginning of the applicable period presented, nor the impact of any cost savings or other operational efficiencies that may be realized as a result of the Mergers. In addition, as explained in more detail in the accompanying notes to the unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated financial statements, the determination and allocation of the pro forma purchase price reflected in the unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated financial statements involves estimates, is subject to adjustment, and may vary significantly from the actual determination and allocation of purchase price that will be recorded upon completion of the Mergers. Additionally, the unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated financial statements do not include any estimated increase or decrease in net assets resulting from operations, portfolio investment acquisitions or dispositions, or other factors that may occur between September 30, 2018 and the completion of the Mergers.

Sierra, MCC, and MDLY cannot assure you that the Mergers will be completed as scheduled, or at all. See “Special Factors,” “Description of the MCC Merger Agreement” and “Description of the MDLY Merger Agreement” for a description of the terms of the Mergers, and “Risk Factors” for a description of the principal risks relating to the Mergers, the Combined Company following the successful completion of the Mergers, Sierra, MCC, and MDLY.

Notes to Unaudited Pro Forma Condensed Consolidated Financial Statements

1. Description of the Mergers and Basis of Pro Forma Presentation

The unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated financial statements are based on the historical financial statements of Sierra, MCC and MDLY after giving effect to the completion of the Mergers and the assumptions described in the accompanying notes. The unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated statement of assets and liabilities as of September 30, 2018 gives effect to the Mergers as if they occurred on September 30, 2018. The unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated statements of operations for the nine months ended September 30, 2018 and twelve months ended December 31, 2017 give effect to the Mergers as if they occurred on January 1, 2017.

On August 9, 2018, Sierra, MCC and MDLY entered into definitive agreements for Sierra to acquire MCC and MDLY. MCC will merge with and into Sierra, with Sierra as the surviving company. The MCC Merger will be accounted for as an asset acquisition in accordance with ASC 805, Business Combinations. Simultaneously, MDLY will merge with and into Merger Sub, a wholly owned subsidiary of Sierra. Sierra will account for its acquisition of MDLY as an investment at fair value on its statement of assets and liabilities in accordance with ASC 946-320, Financial Services - Investment Companies — Investments — Debt and Equity Securities. Accordingly, Sierra will not consolidate MDLY in its financial statements. See Accounting Treatment for additional information.

On August 27, 2013, Sierra, through its wholly owned financing subsidiary, Arbor, entered into a TRS with Citibank that is indexed to a basket of loans. Sierra is currently in the process of winding down the position in the TRS, and it expects to complete that process prior to the closing of the Mergers. As such, a summary of the TRS reference assets for the pro forma Combined Company is not reflected in the pro forma schedule of investments as of September 30, 2018.

The unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated financial statements presented in this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus are for illustrative purposes only and do not necessarily indicate the results of operations or the consolidated financial position that would have resulted had the Mergers been completed at the beginning of the applicable period presented, nor the impact of any cost savings, other operational efficiencies or other factors that may be realized as a result of the Mergers. The unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated financial statements are not indicative of the results of operations in future periods or the future financial position of the Combined Company.

Use of Estimates

The preparation of the unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated financial statements requires management to make estimates and assumptions that affect the reported amounts of assets and liabilities, and disclosure of contingent assets and liabilities at the date of the financial statements and the reported amounts of revenues and expenses during the reporting period. Actual results could differ from those estimates.

Valuation of Portfolio Investments

Sierra applies fair value accounting to all of its financial instruments in accordance with the Investment Company Act and ASC Topic 820 - Fair Value Measurements and Disclosures ("ASC 820"). ASC 820 defines fair value, establishes a framework used to measure fair value and requires disclosures for fair value measurements. In accordance with ASC 820, Sierra has categorized its financial instruments carried at fair value, based on the priority of the valuation technique, into a three-level fair value hierarchy. These tiers include: Level 1, defined as observable inputs such as quoted prices in active markets; Level 2, which includes inputs such as quoted prices for similar securities in active markets and quoted prices for identical securities where there is little or no activity in the market; and Level 3, defined as unobservable inputs for which little or no market data exists, therefore requiring an entity to develop its own assumptions. Fair value is a market-based measure considered from the perspective of the market participant who holds the financial instrument rather than an entity specific measure. Therefore, when market assumptions are not readily available, Sierra's own assumptions are set to reflect those that management believes market participants would use in pricing the financial instrument at the measurement date.

Investments for which market quotations are readily available are valued at such market quotations, which are generally obtained from an independent pricing service or multiple broker-dealers or market makers. Sierra weighs the use of third-party broker quotations, if any, in determining fair value based on management's understanding of the level of actual transactions used by the broker to develop the quote and whether the quote was an indicative price or binding offer. However, debt investments with remaining maturities within 60 days that are not credit impaired are valued at cost plus accreted discount, or minus amortized premium, which approximates fair value. Investments for which market quotations are not readily available are valued at fair value as determined by the Sierra Board based upon input from management and third party valuation firms. Because these investments are illiquid and there may not be any directly comparable companies whose financial instruments have observable market values, these loans are valued using a fundamental valuation methodology, consistent with traditional asset pricing standards, that is objective and consistently applied across all loans and through time.

Investments in investment companies are valued at fair value. Fair values are generally determined utilizing the NAV supplied by, or on behalf of, management of each investment company, which is net of management and incentive fees or allocations charged by the investment company and is in accordance with the "practical expedient," as defined by ASC 820. NAVs received by, or on behalf of, management of each investment company are based on the fair value of the investment company's underlying investments in accordance with policies established by management of each investment company, as described in each of their financial statements and offering memorandum.

Income Taxes

Sierra has elected to be treated as a RIC under Subchapter M of the Code, and intends to qualify annually, for the tax treatment applicable to RICs. In order to continue to qualify as a RIC, among other things, Sierra is required to meet certain source of income and asset diversification requirements and timely distribute to its stockholders at least 90% of the sum of its investment company taxable income ("ICTI") including PIK, as defined by the Code, and net tax-exempt interest income (which is the excess of Sierra's gross tax-exempt interest income over certain disallowed deductions) for each taxable year in order to be eligible for tax treatment under Subchapter M of the Code. Depending on the level of ICTI earned in a tax year, Sierra may choose to carry forward ICTI in excess of current year dividend distributions into the next tax year. Any such carryover ICTI must be distributed before the end of that next tax year through a dividend declared prior to filing the final tax return related to the year which generated such ICTI.

Sierra will be subject to a nondeductible U.S. federal excise tax of 4% on undistributed income if it does not distribute at least 98% of its ordinary income in any calendar year and 98.2% of its capital gain net income for each one-year period ending on October 31 of such calendar year. To the extent Sierra determines that its estimated current year annual taxable income will be in excess of estimated current year dividend distributions for U.S. federal excise tax purposes, it will accrue U.S. federal excise tax, if any, on estimated excess taxable income as taxable income is earned.

Transaction Costs

Both Sierra and MCC will incur direct transaction costs resulting from the MCC Merger. Sierra, as the acquirer in the asset acquisition, will capitalize its transaction costs and such costs will be reflected as an adjustment to the purchase price of MCC. MCC will expense its transaction costs as incurred. Sierra expects to incur $3.4 million in estimated transaction costs, which will be capitalized and be included as part of the purchase price of MCC's net assets. Of the estimated $3.4 million, $2.0 million of transaction costs were capitalized and were included as a component of other assets on the condensed consolidated statement of assets and liabilities as of September 30, 2018. MCC expects to incur $5.8 million in estimated transaction costs, of which $2.9 million was incurred during the nine months ended September 30, 2018. Additional estimated costs of $1.4 million for Sierra and the $2.9 million of estimated costs of MCC are presented as pro forma adjustments to cash and cash equivalents on the pro forma condensed consolidated statement of assets and liabilities.

Both Sierra and MDLY will incur direct transaction costs resulting from the MDLY Merger. Sierra will capitalize its transaction costs and such costs will be reflected as an adjustment to the purchase price of its investment in MDLY. MDLY will expense its transaction costs as incurred. Sierra expects to incur $5.1 million in estimated transaction costs, which will be capitalized and be included as part of the purchase price of its investment in MDLY. Of the estimated $5.1 million, $3.0 million of transaction costs were capitalized and were included as a component of other assets on the condensed consolidated statement of assets and liabilities as of September 30, 2018. Additional estimated costs of $2.1 million for Sierra are presented as pro forma adjustments to cash and cash equivalents on the pro forma condensed consolidated statement of assets and liabilities.

Accounting periods presented

MCC and Sierra have different fiscal years. MCC's fiscal year ends on September 30th, whereas Sierra's fiscal year ends on December 31st. The unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated statement of assets and liabilities and statements of operations have been prepared utilizing the same periods as Sierra in accordance with Rule 11-02 of Regulation S-X. As both MCC and Sierra are investment companies subject to Regulation S-X Rules 6-01 to 6.10, the periods covered by the pro forma statements must be the same. The unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated statement of assets and liabilities as of September 30, 2018 combines MCC's statement of assets and liabilities as of September 30, 2018 with Sierra's statement of assets and liabilities as of September 30, 2018. The unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated statement of operations combines the historical results of MCC for the twelve months ended December 31, 2017 and the historical results of Sierra for the year ended December 31, 2017. MCC's results for its twelve months ended December 31, 2017 were derived by adding the results of the three month period ended December 31, 2017 to its statement of operations for the year ended September 30, 2017 and subtracting the results of the three month period ended December 31, 2016. MCC's results for its nine months ended September 30, 2018 were derived by subtracting the results of the three month period ended December 31, 2017 to its statement of operations for the twelve months ended September 30, 2018.

2. Preliminary Purchase Price and Purchase Price Allocation

The MCC Merger

Under the MCC Merger Agreement, subject to the completion of both the MCC Merger and MDLY Merger, MCC Stockholders will receive 0.8050 shares of Sierra Common Stock for each share of MCC Common Stock. In an asset acquisition transaction in which the consideration given is not in the form of cash, the measurement of the purchase price is based on either the cost, which is measured based on the fair value of the consideration given, or the fair value of the net assets acquired, whichever is more clearly evident and, thus, a more reliable measure. As of the date of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus, management has determined that the fair value of the consideration given is more clearly evident and reliable. Therefore, Sierra expects to measure the consideration transferred at the MCC Merger Closing Date based on Sierra's latest available NAV per share as of the MCC Merger Closing Date multiplied by the number of shares to be issued to acquire all of the outstanding shares of MCC Common Stock.

Table of Contents

The calculation of the purchase price and the allocation of the purchase price to the assets acquired and liabilities assumed, is as follows (in thousands, except share and per share data):

Calculation of MCC purchase price:

MCC Common Stock issued and outstanding	54,474,211
MCC Exchange Rate	0.8050
Sierra Common Stock to be issued	43,851,740
Sierra net asset value per share as of September 30, 2018	$ 7.05
Value of equity consideration	$ 309,155
Add:
Transaction costs incurred by Sierra	3,389
Total purchase price	$ 312,544

Allocation of purchase price to assets acquired:

Cash and cash equivalents	$ 72,766
Investments	652,318
Other assets	10,145
Total assets acquired	735,229

Allocation of purchase price to liabilities assumed:

Debt	(412,082)
Other liabilities	(10,603)
Total liabilities assumed	(422,685)
Net assets acquired	$ 312,544

The total purchase price of $312.5 million is less than the acquisition date fair value of MCC's net assets acquired of $315.6 million as of September 30, 2018. The difference of $3.1 million was allocated to the investments acquired which resulted in Sierra recording MCC's investments below their fair value. Assuming there are no changes in the fair value of such investments, Sierra would record an unrealized gain of $3.1 million to mark such investments to their fair value at the end of the next reporting period. The pro forma condensed consolidated statement of assets and liabilities as of September 30, 2018 includes a pro forma adjustment to reflect this unrealized gain of $3.1 million as of September 30, 2018. Further, this $3.1 million unrealized gain resulting from the subsequent write-up in investment values will be excluded from future calculations of incentive fees. The final purchase price of MCC's net assets could differ materially from the amounts presented in the unaudited condensed consolidated pro forma financial statements due changes in the NAV of Sierra. A sensitivity analysis related to the fluctuation in the NAV per share of Sierra was performed to assess the impact of a hypothetical change of 10% in Sierra's NAV as of September 30, 2018. A 10% increase or decrease in the NAV per share of Sierra would result in an increase or decrease to the total purchase price of $30.9 million. The final purchase price could differ significantly from the amounts presented in the unaudited condensed consolidated pro forma financial statements due to increases or decreases in net assets resulting from operations, portfolio investment acquisitions or dispositions, changes in fair value, or other factors that may occur between September 30, 2018 and the completion of the MCC Merger.

The MDLY Merger

Under the MDLY Merger Agreement, subject to the completion of both the MCC Merger and MDLY Merger, each share of MDLY Class A Common Stock issued and outstanding immediately prior to the MDLY Merger Effective Time (other than Dissenting Shares and Excluded MDLY Shares) will be converted into the right to receive 0.3836 shares of Sierra Common Stock and cash in an amount equal to $3.44 per share. Medley LLC Unitholders will convert their Medley LLC Units into shares of MDLY Class A Common Stock and such shares (to the extent issued and outstanding immediately prior to the MDLY Merger Effective Time, and other than any Dissenting Shares and any Excluded MDLY Shares) will be converted into the right to receive 0.3836 shares of Sierra Common Stock and $3.44 per share of cash consideration. In addition, holders of MDLY Class A Common Stock as of the applicable record dates (as further described in the section entitled "Description of the MDLY Merger Agreement") also are entitled to receive special cash dividends, together with the First Dividend Shortfall Amount and the Second Dividend Shortfall Amount (if any and if applicable), in the aggregate amount of up to $0.65 per share of MDLY Class A Common Stock issued and outstanding as of such applicable record dates. In addition, Medley LLC Unitholders as of the applicable record date (as further described in the section entitled "Description of the MDLY Merger Agreement") also are entitled to receive a special cash distribution, together with the First Dividend Shortfall Amount (if any and if applicable), in the aggregate amount of up to $0.35 per Medley LLC Unit outstanding as of such applicable record date. Each share of MDLY Class B Common Stock issued and outstanding immediately prior to the MDLY Merger Effective Time (other than Dissenting Shares) will be canceled without consideration therefor. For the complete terms relating to the purchase price consideration, see "Description of the MDLY Merger Agreement — Merger Consideration."

Table of Contents

MDLY will merge into a wholly owned subsidiary of Sierra and Sierra will account for such subsidiary in its financial statements as an investment at fair value on its statement of assets and liabilities. The purchase price and initial carrying value of Sierra's investment in MDLY, is as follows (in thousands, except share and per share amounts):

Calculation of MDLY purchase price:

MDLY Class A Common Stock issued and outstanding	5,693,814
Medley LLC Units and Restricted Units held by members, other than MDLY, outstanding ⁽¹⁾	24,839,302
Director held MDLY RSUs outstanding ⁽¹⁾	53,523
	30,586,639
MDLY Exchange Rate	0,3836
Sierra Common Stock to be issued	11,733,035
Sierra net asset value per share as of September 30, 2018	$ 7.05
Value of equity consideration	$ 82,718
Add:
Payment of cash consideration of $3.44 per share of MDLY Class A Common Stock	105,218
Payment of cash consideration relating to the First Dividend Shortfall Amount and the Second Dividend Shortfall Amount	12,980
Transaction costs incurred by Sierra	5,083
Total purchase price and initial carrying value of Sierra's investment in MDLY	$ 205,999

(1) Will convert to MDLY Class A Common Stock immediately prior to MDLY Merger.

The final purchase price of Sierra's investment in MDLY could differ significantly from the amounts presented in the unaudited condensed consolidated pro forma financial statements due changes in the NAV of Sierra. A sensitivity analysis related to the fluctuation in the NAV per share of Sierra was performed to assess the impact of a hypothetical change of 10% in Sierra's NAV as of September 30, 2018. A 10% increase or decrease in the NAV per share of Sierra would result in an increase or decrease to the total purchase price of $8.3 million. The final purchase price could differ significantly from the amounts presented in the unaudited condensed consolidated pro forma financial statements due to increases or decreases in net assets resulting from operations, portfolio investment acquisitions or dispositions, changes in fair value, or other factors that may occur between September 30, 2018 and the completion of the MDLY Merger.

3. Preliminary Unaudited Pro Forma Adjustments for the MCC Merger

The unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated financial statements are not necessarily indicative of what the results of operations or the consolidated financial position actually would have been had the MCC Merger been completed at the date indicated. Such information includes adjustments which are preliminary and may be revised. Such revisions may result in material changes. The results of operations and financial position shown herein is not necessarily indicative of what the results of operations and past financial position of the Combined Company would have been, nor necessarily indicative of the results of operations and financial position of the post-MCC Merger periods.

The following pro forma adjustments have been reflected in the unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated statement of assets and liabilities:

(A) Cash and cash equivalents

The adjustment to cash and cash equivalents reflects the payment of estimated transaction costs directly related to the MCC Merger by Sierra and MCC in the amount of $1.5 million and $2.9 million, respectively. These amounts have not been reflected in the unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated statements of operations as they would not meet the continuing impact criterion due to their nonrecurring nature.

(B) Other assets

The adjustment reflects the reclassification of Sierra's deferred transaction costs of $1.9 million to net assets and the write off of MCC's deferred offering costs of $0.4 million because the asset has no economic value.

(C) Debt

The adjustment to debt reflects (i) the write off of $10.3 million of debt issuance costs related to the MCC's revolving credit facility, notes payable and SBA debentures payable offset by (ii) an adjustment of $8.0 million to reflect MCC's notes payable at fair value.

(D) Other liabilities

The adjustment to other liabilities reflects the impact of the pro forma adjustments on the management fee calculation and the resulting change in management fees payable as a result of recalculating the management and incentive fee expense in accordance with the Sierra Investment Advisory Agreement. Refer to 3(H) for additional information.

Table of Contents

(E) Net assets

The adjustment to net assets represents the elimination of the historical assets of MCC and the issuance of Sierra Common Stock to finance the MCC Merger as follows (in thousands):

Fair value of net assets acquired of MCC	$ 315,656
Adjustment to acquisition date fair value to represent purchase price of net assets acquired in accordance with the acquisition method of accounting	(3,112)
Net assets acquired – See Note 2	312,544
Less historical value of net assets of MCC as of September 30, 2018	(321,179)
	(8,635)
Unrealized gain associated with difference between purchase price and acquisition date fair value of net assets acquired	3,112
Reclassification of deferred transactions costs from other assets	(1,989)
Decrease in Sierra cash to reflect the payment of estimated transaction costs	(1,469)
Pro forma adjustment on the management fee calculation	899
Pro forma adjustment to net assets	$ (8,082)

(F) Total shares outstanding

The adjustment to total shares outstanding as of September 30, 2018 represents the elimination of the historical shares outstanding of MCC Common Stock and the issuance of Sierra Common Stock to acquire the outstanding shares of MCC Common Stock as follows:

Elimination of historical shares outstanding of MCC Common Stock	(54,474,211)
Incremental shares issued by Sierra in connection with the MCC Merger	43,851,740
Pro forma adjustment to total shares outstanding	(10,622,471)

The following pro forma adjustments have been reflected in the unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated statement of operations:

(G) Interest and financing expenses

The adjustment to interest and financing expenses represents the elimination of MCC's historical amortization of debt issuance costs and the pro forma impact of the recording amortization relating to the pro forma fair value adjustment to debt.

	For the Nine Months Ended September 30, 2018	For the Year Ended December 31, 2017
	(in thousands)
Elimination of MCC's historical amortization of debt issuance costs	$ (2,940)	$ (4,238)
Amortization of pro forma fair value adjustment to debt which resulted in recording the debt at a discount	778	1,040
Estimated adjustment to interest and financing expenses	$ (2,162)	$ (3,198)

(H) Base management fees

Historical base management fees for Sierra is calculated at an annual rate of 1.75% of Sierra's gross assets (which includes any assets acquired with the proceeds of leverage) and is payable quarterly in arrears. The base management fee is calculated based on Sierra's gross assets at the end of each completed calendar quarter. Historical base management fees for MCC is calculated at an annual rate of 1.75% of up to $1.0 billion of MCC's gross assets and 1.50% of any amounts over $1.0 billion of MCC's gross assets, and is payable quarterly in arrears. The base management fee is calculated based on the average value of MCC's gross assets at the end of the two most recently completed calendar quarters. On May 4, 2018, MCC Advisors voluntarily elected to waive $0.4 million of the base management fee payable for the quarter ended March 31, 2018, which is reflected on the Consolidated Statement of Operations for the nine months ended September 30, 2018. The pro-forma adjustment to base management fees represents base management fees of both Sierra and MCC as calculated in accordance with the Sierra Investment Advisory Agreement after taking into account the impact of the pro forma adjustments in 3(A) and 3(B). On a pro forma basis, an adjustment was also made to eliminate the impact of MCC's nonrecurring management fee waiver.

Table of Contents

(I) Incentive fees

Incentive fees were calculated in accordance with the Sierra Investment Advisory Agreement.

(J) Other expenses

The adjustment to other expenses reflects the removal of $0.4 million and $2.9 million of one-time costs incurred during the nine months ended September 30, 2018 by Sierra and MCC, respectively, that directly relate to the MCC Merger, as well as, the removal of $2.6 million and $3.5 million of duplicative costs for the nine months ended September 30, 2018 and twelve months ended December 31, 2017, respectively. Such duplicative costs consist of professional fees associated with audit, tax, valuation and legal services, transfer agent fees, board of director fees, director and officer insurance, administrator expenses and other public company related expenses.

(K) Weighted average common stock outstanding

The adjustment to total weighted average common stock outstanding as of September 30, 2018 and December 31, 2017 represents the elimination of the historical weighted average shares of MCC Common Stock outstanding and the issuance of Sierra Common Stock to acquire the outstanding shares of MCC Common Stock as follows:

	For the Nine Months Ended September 30, 2018	For the Year Ended December 31, 2017
Elimination of MCC's weighted average shares outstanding	(54,474,211)	(54,474,211)
Estimated shares issued by Sierra in connection with the MCC Merger reflected as outstanding shares for the periods presented	43,851,740	43,851,740
Adjustment to Sierra's weighted average shares outstanding	(10,622,471)	(10,622,471)

4. Preliminary Unaudited Pro Forma Adjustments for the MDLY Merger

The unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated financial statements are not necessarily indicative of what the results of operations or the consolidated financial position actually would have been had the MDLY Merger been completed on the date indicated. Such information includes adjustments which are preliminary and may be revised. Such revisions may result in material changes. The results of operations and financial position shown herein is not necessarily indicative of what the results of operations and past financial position of the Combined Company would have been, nor necessarily indicative of the results of operations and financial position of the post-MDLY Merger periods.

The following pro forma adjustments have been reflected in the unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated statement of assets and liabilities:

(A) Investments, at fair value

The pro forma adjustment to investments, at fair value, represents Sierra's acquisition of MDLY. Sierra will account for its acquisition of MDLY as an investment in accordance with ASC 946, Financial Services – Investment Companies. Accordingly, Sierra will not consolidate MDLY in its financial statements. Refer to Note 2 for the calculation of the initial carrying value of Sierra's investment in MDLY.

Table of Contents

(B) Cash and cash equivalents

Sierra anticipates using its cash on hand as well as $50.0 million of debt financing to fund the cash portion of the purchase price of MDLY Class A Common Stock. The pro forma adjustment is comprised of the following components:

	(in thousands)
Payment of cash consideration of $3.44 per share of MDLY Class A Common Stock	$ (105,218)
Payment of cash consideration relating to the First Dividend Shortfall Amount and the Second Dividend Shortfall Amount	(12,980)
Estimated remaining transaction costs to be incurred by Sierra	(2,204)
Proceeds from debt financing	50,000
Pro forma adjustment to cash and cash equivalents	$ (70,402)

(C) Other assets

The adjustment reflects the reclassification of Sierra's deferred transaction costs of $3.0 million to net assets.

(D) Debt

The pro forma adjustment reflects $50.0 million of debt financing necessary to finance the acquisition.

(E) Other liabilities

The adjustment to other liabilities reflects the impact of the pro forma adjustments on the management fee calculation and the resulting change in management fees payable as a result of recalculating the management and incentive fee expense in accordance with the Sierra Investment Advisory Agreement. Refer to 4(I) for additional information.

(F) Total Shares Outstanding

The adjustment to total shares outstanding as of September 30, 2018 represents the issuance of Sierra Common Stock to acquire the outstanding shares of MDLY Class A Common Stock as follows:

Issued and outstanding shares of MDLY Class A Common Stock	5,693,814
Medley LLC Units and Restricted Units held by members, other than MDLY, outstanding	24,839,302
Director held MDLY RSUs outstanding	53,523
	30,586,639
Exchange ratio	0.3836
Sierra shares issued by Sierra in connection with MDLY Merger	11,733,035

The following pro forma adjustments have been reflected in the unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated statement of operations:

(G) Interest and dividend income

The adjustment to interest and dividend income represents distributions Sierra would have received had it owned MDLY during the periods present which do not represent a return of capital.

(H) Interest and financing expenses

The pro forma adjustment reflects the additional interest expense related to $50.0 million of debt financing at an interest rate of 4.63%.

Table of Contents

(I) Base management fees

The pro forma adjustment to base management fees reflects the impact of the increase in total assets on the management fee calculation as the result of Sierra's accounting for its acquisition in MDLY as an investment at fair value on its condensed consolidated statement of assets and liabilities after taking into account the pro forma adjustments in 4(B) and 4(C).

(J) Incentive fees

Incentive fees were calculated in accordance with the Sierra Investment Advisory Agreement.

(K) Weighted average common stock outstanding

The adjustment to the weighted average shares outstanding as of September 30, 2018 represents the issuance of Sierra Common Stock to acquire the outstanding shares of MDLY Class A Common Stock.

(1) Relates to MDLY employee RSUs outstanding which will be converted into 0.8532 Sierra RSUs under the Sierra Incentive Plan. These RSUs contain non-forfeitable rights to dividend equivalent payments and, as such, are participating securities and are included in the computation of both basic and diluted earnings per share. The amount reflected in the table above represents the outstanding amount of MDLY employee RSUs as of September 30, 2018 of 1,505,969 multiplied by the conversion ratio of 0.8532.

CAPITALIZATION

The following table sets forth (1) Sierra's and MCC's actual capitalization at September 30, 2018 and (2) the Combined Company's pro forma capitalization as adjusted (a) to reflect the effects of the MCC Merger and (b) to give effect to the MDLY Merger, including $50.0 million in debt financing to finance part of the MDLY Merger. You should read this table together with Sierra's, MCC's, and MDLY's historical audited and unaudited consolidated financial statements and the pro forma financial information included elsewhere in this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus.

Sierra will account for its interest in Merger Sub, the surviving company in the MDLY Merger as an investment at fair value on its statement of assets and liabilities, in accordance with ASC 946-320, "Financial Services — Investment Companies — Investments - Debt and Equity Securities." Accordingly, Sierra will not consolidate Merger Sub in its financial statements. Sierra made this determination based on the fact that MDLY is not an investment company and Merger Sub will not be providing substantially all of its services to Sierra after the Mergers. For more information, see "Accounting Treatment — The MDLY Merger." Therefore, the cash and cash equivalents, debt and equity of MDLY are not presented in the table below, but its impact on the pro forma Combined Company are reflected below.

- (a) The pro forma adjustment to cash and cash equivalents reflects the payment of (i) cash consideration of $118.2 million related to the MDLY Merger, (ii) remaining estimated transaction costs related to the Mergers by Sierra and MCC in the amount of $3.7 million and $2.9 million, respectively, offset by (iii) $50.0 million of proceeds from debt financing.
- (b) The pro forma adjustment to total debt reflects (i) the write off of $10.3 million of debt issuance costs related to MCC's notes payable and SBA debentures payable, (ii) $50.0 of debt financing necessary to finance the MDLY Merger, offset by (iii) an adjustment of $8.0 million to reflect MCC's debt at fair value.
- (c) The pro forma adjustment to common stock reflects (i) the elimination of the historical shares of MCC Common Stock in the amount of $54,000, offset by (ii) the par value of 43,851,740 shares of Sierra Common Stock issued in connection with the MCC Merger and (iii) the par value of 11,733,035 shares of Sierra Common Stock issued in connection with the MDLY Merger.
- (d) The pro forma adjustment to capital in excess of par value reflects the sum of fair value of MCC's net assets acquired and the purchase price of Sierra's investment in MDLY less the par value of shares of Sierra Common Stock issued in connection with the Mergers.
- (e) The pro forma adjustment to total distributable earnings/(loss) reflects (i) the elimination of the historical loss of MCC in the amounts of $377.5 million, (ii) the unrealized gain of $3.1 million associated with the difference between the purchase price of MCC's net assets acquired and the acquisition date fair value of MCC's net assets acquired, offset by (iii) $8.7 million of transaction costs related to the Mergers and (iv) management fee adjustment of $0.9 million.
- (f) The pro forma adjustment to total shares outstanding reflects (i) the elimination of MCC's historical total shares outstanding of 54,474,211 offset by (ii) the issuance of 43,851,740 shares of Sierra Common Stock issued in connection with the MCC Merger and (iii) the issuance of 11,733,035 shares of Sierra Common Stock issued in connection with the MDLY Merger.

SIERRA PROPOSAL # 1: APPROVAL OF THE MCC MERGER

Sierra is asking Sierra Stockholders to consider and approve the MCC Merger. Approval of the MCC Merger by the Sierra Stockholders is necessary to complete the MCC Merger. Completion of the MCC Merger is conditioned upon the consummation of the MDLY Merger. See “Description of the MCC Merger Agreement” for more information.

BASED UPON THE RECOMMENDATION OF THE SIERRA SPECIAL COMMITTEE, THE SIERRA BOARD HAS UNANIMOUSLY APPROVED THE MCC MERGER AGREEMENT, INCLUDING THE TRANSACTIONS CONTEMPLATED THEREUNDER, DECLARED THE MCC MERGER TO BE ADVISABLE UPON THE TERMS AND SUBJECT TO THE CONDITIONS AND LIMITATIONS SET FORTH IN THE MCC MERGER AGREEMENT, AND UNANIMOUSLY RECOMMENDS THAT SIERRA STOCKHOLDERS VOTE “FOR” THE APPROVAL OF THE MCC MERGER.

Sierra Stockholders may vote “FOR” or “AGAINST,” or they may “ABSTAIN” from voting on, the proposal to approve the MCC Merger. A majority of the outstanding shares of Sierra Common Stock as of the Sierra Record Date must affirmatively vote “FOR” the proposal in order for it to be approved. Because the vote on the proposal is based on the total number of shares outstanding, abstentions and “broker non-votes” will have the same effect as voting “AGAINST” the approval of the proposal.

SIERRA PROPOSAL #2: APPROVAL OF THE MDLY MERGER

Sierra is asking Sierra Stockholders to consider and approve the MDLY Merger. Approval of the MDLY Merger by the Sierra Stockholders is necessary to complete the MDLY Merger. Completion of the MDLY Merger is conditioned upon the consummation of the MCC Merger. See “Description of the MDLY Merger Agreement” for more information.

Sierra Stockholders may vote “FOR” or “AGAINST,” or they may “ABSTAIN” from voting on, the proposal to approve the MDLY Merger. A majority of the outstanding shares of Sierra Common Stock as of the Sierra Record Date must affirmatively vote “FOR” the proposal in order for it to be approved. Because the vote on the proposal is based on the total number of shares outstanding, abstentions and “broker non-votes” will have the same effect as voting “AGAINST” the approval of the proposal.

SIERRA PROPOSAL #3: ISSUANCE OF THE SHARES OF SIERRA COMMON STOCK TO BE ISSUED PURSUANT TO EACH OF THE MCC MERGER AGREEMENT AND THE MDLY MERGER AGREEMENT AT A PRICE BELOW ITS THEN CURRENT NAV PER SHARE, IF APPLICABLE

Sierra is asking Sierra Stockholders to approve the issuance of the shares of Sierra Common Stock to be issued pursuant to each of the MCC Merger Agreement and the MDLY Merger Agreement at a price below its then current NAV per share, if applicable. It is a condition to completion of the Mergers that Sierra issue shares of Sierra Common Stock to MCC Stockholders and MDLY Stockholders pursuant to the MCC Merger Agreement and the MDLY Merger Agreement, respectively. Upon completion of the Mergers, and subject to the terms and conditions of each of the MCC Merger Agreement and the MDLY Merger Agreement, each share of MCC Common Stock and each share of MDLY Class A Common Stock issued and outstanding immediately prior to the effective time will be converted into the right to receive, in accordance the MCC Merger Agreement and the MDLY Merger Agreement, respectively, the MCC Merger Consideration and the MDLY Merger Consideration, respectively, as described in the sections entitled “Description of the MCC Merger Agreement — Merger Consideration” and “Description of the MDLY Merger Agreement — Merger Consideration.” For more information on the Sierra Stockholder vote required for approval of the proposal under the Investment Company Act, see “The Special Meeting of Sierra — Vote Required — Sierra Proposal #3: Issuance of the Shares of Sierra Common Stock to be Issued Pursuant to Each of the MCC Merger Agreement and the MDLY Merger Agreement at a Price Below its Then Current NAV Per Share, if applicable.”

Under the MCC Merger Agreement, the exchange ratio of 0.8050 shares of Sierra Common Stock for each share of MCC Common Stock to be exchanged in the MCC Merger was fixed on August 9, 2018, the date of the signing of the MCC Merger Agreement. Under the MDLY Merger Agreement, the exchange ratio of 0.3836 shares of Sierra Common Stock, and the amount of cash merger consideration and other payments, for each share of MDLY Class A Common Stock was fixed on August 9, 2018, the date of the signing of the MDLY Merger Agreement. Each exchange ratio was determined taking into account the NAV per share of Sierra Common Stock as of June 30, 2018, and is not subject to adjustment based on changes in the NAV per share of Sierra Common Stock, MCC Common Stock or MDLY Common Stock. In that regard, regardless of the date on which the Mergers are consummated and the resulting date on which the shares of Sierra Common Stock are issued, the exchange ratios upon which the shares of Sierra Common Stock will be issued pursuant to each of the MCC Merger Agreement and the MDLY Merger Agreement will still be based upon the NAV per share of Sierra Common Stock as of June 30, 2018. Notwithstanding the fact that the exchange ratios upon which the shares of Sierra Common Stock will be issued is fixed, if, on the date that the Sierra Common Stock is issued, the per share value of either the MCC Common Stock or MDLY Class A Common Stock were to decrease from their respective per share values as of June 30, 2018 and the NAV of Sierra Common Stock remained the same, then Sierra could be deemed to be issuing shares at a price below its then current NAV per share.

Notwithstanding the foregoing, for the avoidance of doubt, Sierra is seeking approval for the issuance of the shares of Sierra Common Stock to be issued pursuant to each of the MCC Merger Agreement and the MDLY Merger Agreement at a price below its then current NAV per share in the event that at the time of such issuance, Sierra’s then current NAV per share is greater than the value of the shares of MCC Common Stock or MDLY Class A Common Stock being exchanged.

The issuance of shares of Sierra Common Stock to MCC Stockholders and MDLY Stockholders at a price below Sierra’s then current NAV per share, if applicable, is necessary to complete the Mergers. The approval of the proposal is required for completion of the Mergers if the issuance of shares of Sierra Common Stock pursuant to each of the MCC Merger Agreement and the MDLY Merger Agreement is deemed to be at a price below Sierra’s then current NAV per share.

BASED UPON THE RECOMMENDATION OF THE SIERRA SPECIAL COMMITTEE, THE SIERRA BOARD UNANIMOUSLY RECOMMENDS THAT SIERRA STOCKHOLDERS VOTE “FOR” THE APPROVAL OF THE ISSUANCE OF THE SHARES OF SIERRA COMMON STOCK TO BE ISSUED PURSUANT TO EACH OF THE MCC MERGER AGREEMENT AND THE MDLY MERGER AGREEMENT AT A PRICE BELOW ITS THEN CURRENT NAV PER SHARE, IF APPLICABLE.

Sierra Stockholders may vote “FOR” or “AGAINST,” or they may “ABSTAIN” from voting on, Sierra Proposal #3. Sierra Proposal #3 will be approved if a majority of the holders of (1) the outstanding shares of Sierra Common Stock and (2) the outstanding shares of Sierra Common Stock held by persons who are not affiliated persons of Sierra, each must affirmatively vote “FOR” the proposal. The vote of holders of a “majority,” as defined in the Investment Company Act, means the vote of the holders of the lesser of (1) 67% or more of the outstanding shares of Sierra Common Stock present or represented by proxy at the Sierra Special Meeting if the holders of more than 50% of the shares of Sierra Common Stock are present or represented by proxy or (2) more than 50% of the outstanding shares of Sierra Common Stock. In order to issue shares at a price below NAV pursuant to this approval, the Sierra Board would need to make certain determinations as required under the Investment Company Act. Abstentions and “broker non-votes” will have the effect of a vote “AGAINST” the proposal.

SIERRA PROPOSAL #4: THE ADOPTION OF THE SIERRA INCENTIVE PLAN

Based upon the recommendation of the Sierra Special Committee, the Sierra Board unanimously recommends that Sierra Stockholders consider and adopt the Sierra Incentive Plan, which the Sierra Board adopted on November 6, 2018.

In connection with the Mergers, Sierra's investment management function will be internalized and adoption of the Sierra Incentive Plan by the Sierra Stockholders will be necessary to complete the Mergers.

On November 6, 2018, the Companies submitted an exemptive application to the SEC to permit the Combined Company to, among other things: (i) issue restricted shares and restricted stock units as part of the compensation package for certain of its employees, and directors (the "Participants") through the Sierra Incentive Plan; (ii) withhold shares of Sierra Common Stock or purchase shares of Sierra Common Stock from Participants to satisfy tax withholding obligations relating to the vesting of restricted shares or restricted stock units or the exercise of options that will be granted pursuant to the Sierra Incentive Plan; and (iii) permit Participants to pay the exercise price of options that will be granted to them pursuant to the Sierra Incentive Plan with shares of Sierra Common Stock. The Companies cannot provide any assurance that any exemptive relief from the SEC will be granted. For more information about the exemptive relief, see "Regulatory Approvals Required for the Mergers—Request for SEC Exemptive Relief."

Sierra is seeking the approval of Sierra Stockholders in order to comply with the Investment Company Act and the listing rules of the NYSE and to permit issuance of incentive stock options under Section 422 of the Code.

Reasons for the Proposal

The Sierra Board, including the Sierra Special Committee, believes that, because the market for superior investment professionals is highly competitive, Sierra's successful performance depends on its ability to offer fair compensation packages to its key professionals that are competitive with those offered by other lending businesses and investment management businesses. The highly specialized nature of Sierra's business, the competitiveness of the markets in which Sierra operates, and the skills and the importance of its employees and directors make retention even more critical. Historically, Sierra has not issued any equity-based compensation. In connection with Sierra internalizing its investment management function, Sierra is seeking to offer equity-based compensation to its employees and directors. Sierra believes that its ability to offer equity-based compensation to its employees and directors, which both aligns employee and director interests with stockholder interests and provides a valuable retention tool, is vital to Sierra's future growth and success.

Sierra believes that stock-based compensation would advance the interests of the Combined Company, but, as a BDC, the Combined Company would be restricted under the Investment Company Act in the forms of incentive compensation that it can provide to its employees and directors.

Summary of the Sierra Incentive Plan

The following is a summary of the material features of the Sierra Incentive Plan. It may not contain all of the information important to Sierra Stockholders. Sierra Stockholders are encouraged to read the Sierra Incentive Plan, a copy of which is attached as Appendix G to this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus.

General. The Sierra Incentive Plan authorizes the grant of options, restricted shares, restricted stock units, other stock-based awards, and dividend equivalent rights (collectively called "Awards"). Options granted under the Sierra Incentive Plan may be either "incentive stock options," as defined in Section 422 of the Code, or nonqualified stock options, as determined by the Combined Company Board and/or the Combined Company Compensation Committee.

Participants. As of December 20, 2018, assuming completion of the Mergers, there would have been approximately 75 persons eligible to participate in the Sierra Incentive Plan. The basis of participation in the Sierra Incentive Plan will be the discretionary determination by the Combined Company Board or the Combined Company Compensation Committee from time to time. For information about the MDLY RSUs that will be converted into restricted stock units for Sierra Common Stock under the Sierra Incentive Plan, see "Description of the MDLY Merger Agreement – Merger Consideration."

Number of Shares Authorized. Subject to certain adjustments, the maximum aggregate number of shares of stock that may be authorized for issuance under Awards granted under the Sierra Incentive Plan is ten percent (10%) of the outstanding shares of the Combined Company as of the date the Plan becomes effective, as adjusted for subsequent changes in capitalization.

If any Award expires or otherwise terminates or is settled in cash, in whole or in part, the shares of stock will again become available for issuance under the Sierra Incentive Plan. In the event that withholding tax liabilities arising from an Award (other than an option) are satisfied by the Combined Company withholding shares, the shares of stock withheld will again be available for issuance under the Sierra Incentive Plan. The following shares of stock will not again be available for issuance: (i) shares tendered by the participant by the Combined Company in payment of the exercise price of an option or other purchase price of an Award; (ii) shares tendered by the participant by the Combined Company to satisfy any tax withholding obligation with respect to an Award, and (iii) shares reacquired by the Combined Company on the open market or otherwise using cash proceeds from the exercise of options or settlement of an Award.

Limits on Individual Grants. The maximum number of shares for which any employee or director may be granted in Awards in any calendar year is two and one-half percent (2.5%) of the outstanding shares of the Combined Company as of the date the Plan becomes effective, as adjusted for subsequent changes in capitalization.

Administration. The Combined Company Board has delegated its authority to administer the Sierra Incentive Plan to the Combined Company Compensation Committee. Subject to the other provisions of the Sierra Incentive Plan, the Combined Company Board and/or the Combined Company Compensation Committee has the power to:

- Select participants;
- Determine when and how each Award will be granted and documented;
- Determine the type or combination of Awards to be made to participants;
- Determine the provisions of each Award granted;
- Interpret the Sierra Incentive Plan and Awards;
- Establish and amend rules and regulations relating to the Sierra Incentive Plan, including adoption of sub-plans for Awards to non-United States persons; and
- Make all other determinations it deems necessary or advisable for the administration of the Sierra Incentive Plan.

Eligibility. The Sierra Incentive Plan provides that Awards may be granted to current or prospective employees, officers, directors (including non-employee directors), advisors or consultants of the Combined Company or its affiliates.

Each Award granted under the Sierra Incentive Plan will be evidenced by an agreement between the participant and Combined Company, which will describe the Award and state the terms and conditions to which the Award is subject. The principal terms and conditions of each particular type of Award are described below.

Options. An option is the right to purchase shares of Sierra Common Stock for a specified period of time at a fixed price (the “exercise price”). Each option agreement will contain the terms and conditions that the Combined Company Compensation Committee deems appropriate. Each grant of options will be separately designated as incentive stock options or nonqualified stock options at the time of grant.

Exercise Price. The exercise price of each option will not be less than 100% of the fair market value of Sierra Common Stock subject to the option on the date the option is granted. However, any optionee who owns more than 10% of the combined voting power of all classes of the Combined Company's outstanding Sierra Common Stock (a "10% Stockholder") will not be eligible for the grant of an incentive stock option unless the exercise price of the incentive stock option is at least 110% of the fair market value of the Sierra Common Stock on the date of grant.

No action will be taken that would be treated as a repricing under applicable listing rules or to the extent otherwise prohibited by the Investment Company Act.

Consideration. The exercise price for shares issued upon exercise of an option will be paid in full at the time of exercise either (i) in cash or (ii) if so permitted by the Combined Company Compensation Committee and if permitted by the Investment Company Act and otherwise legally permissible (A) through a broker-assisted exercise program, (B) by withholding shares from the shares otherwise to be received upon exercise of the option, (C) by the delivery of Sierra Common Stock, (D) any other means of payment as may be acceptable to the Compensation Committee or (E) any combination of the foregoing methods.

Term of the Option. Generally, no option will be exercisable after the expiration of ten years from the date of grant. In the case of an option granted to a 10% Stockholder, the term of an incentive stock option will be for no more than five years from the date of grant.

Restricted Shares. An Award of restricted shares is a grant to the recipient of a specified number of shares of Sierra Common Stock that are subject to forfeiture upon specified events during the restriction period. Each grant of restricted shares will specify the length of the restriction period and will include restrictions on transfer to third parties during the restriction period, will contain other terms and conditions that the Combined Company Compensation Committee deems appropriate and may be made in exchange for past services or other lawful consideration.

In connection with each non-employee director's election or re-election to the Combined Company Board, the director automatically will be granted the number of restricted shares as set forth in his or her respective award agreement. Such restricted shares will be granted to the non-employee director on the date of the annual meeting of stockholders at which such non-employee director is elected or re-elected to the Combined Company Board. The restricted shares shall be subject to forfeiture restrictions that generally will lapse in three equal installments on the first, second and third anniversaries of the date of grant.

Restricted Stock Units. An Award of a restricted stock unit is a grant to the recipient of the right to receive, on the date of settlement, one share or an amount equal to the fair market value of one share of Sierra Common Stock. Restricted stock units may be settled in cash, shares or any combination thereof. Each grant of restricted stock units will contain the terms and conditions that the Combined Company Compensation Committee deems appropriate and will contain restrictions on assignability. Participants may be eligible to elect to defer the receipt of all or a portion of the shares to be issued in settlement of the vested portion of a restricted stock unit, subject to procedures that the Combined Company Compensation Committee, in its sole discretion, may require.

For information about the MDLY RSUs that will be converted into restricted stock units under the Sierra Incentive Plan, see "Description of the MDLY Merger Agreement – Merger Consideration."

Performance-Based Awards. Performance-based Awards may be made under the Sierra Incentive Plan and will contain the terms and conditions that the Combined Company Compensation Committee deems appropriate. A grant of performance-based Awards will vest and become payable to the participant upon the Combined Company's or individual's attainment of specified performance objectives during a specified performance period. Performance objectives may be established on a company-wide basis or relate to the performance of the individual participant or an affiliate, division, department or function within the Combined Company in which the participant is performing services, and may be expressed in either absolute terms or relative to the performance of one or more comparable companies or an index covering multiple companies. The Combined Company Compensation Committee may adjust performance objectives in whole or in part if, in the sole judgment of the Combined Company Compensation Committee, events or transactions have occurred after the grant date that are unrelated to the performance of the participant and result in distortion of the performance objectives or the related minimum acceptable level of achievement.

General Provisions

Vesting. The Combined Company Compensation Committee may determine the time or times at which an option, restricted shares and restricted stock units will vest or become payable or exercisable, as applicable. Performance-based Awards will vest based on the Combined Company's or individual's attainment of specified performance objectives over a specified performance period.

Dividends, Dividend Equivalents and Ownership Rights. The Combined Company Compensation Committee may provide for the payment of amounts in lieu of cash dividends or other cash distributions with respect to stock subject to an Award. No participant will be deemed to be the holder of, or to have any of the rights of a holder with respect to, any shares of stock subject to an option or restricted stock unit unless and until such Award has been delivered to the participant. The Combined Company Compensation Committee may grant dividend equivalents in connection with an Award, to be settled in cash or shares. Dividend equivalents granted in connection with a restricted stock unit will be settled and delivered on the date the restricted stock units to which they relate are settled and delivered if, and only to the extent that, the related restricted stock units vest. Unless otherwise determined by the Combined Company Compensation Committee, holders of restricted shares will have all the rights of a holder upon issuance of the Award.

Nontransferability of Awards. In general, during a participant's lifetime, his or her Awards shall be exercisable only by the participant and shall not be transferable other than by will or laws of descent and distribution. However, the Combined Company Compensation Committee may provide for limited lifetime transfers of Awards, other than incentive stock options, to certain family members. In addition, no Awards will be transferrable for consideration.

Termination of Employment or Other Service. Unless the Combined Company Compensation Committee expressly provides otherwise, immediately upon the cessation of a participant's continuous service with the Combined Company, the unvested portion, if any, of an Award held by the participant will immediately terminate.

Acceleration. The Combined Company Compensation Committee will have the power to accelerate the time at which an Award or any portion thereof vests or may first be exercised.

Change of Control Transactions. Except as otherwise provided in the participant's Award agreement, in the event of a Change in Control (as defined below) in which there is an acquiring or surviving entity, the Combined Company Compensation Committee may provide for the assumption of some or all of the outstanding Awards, or for the grant of new Awards in substitution therefor, by the acquiror or survivor.

A "Change in Control" is defined in the Sierra Incentive Plan as:

- (i) the acquisition (whether by purchase, merger, consolidation, combination or other similar transaction) by any Person of beneficial ownership (within the meaning of Rule 13d-3 promulgated under the Exchange Act) of more than fifty percent (50%) (on a fully diluted basis) of either (A) the then outstanding shares of Sierra Common Stock, taking into account as outstanding for this purpose such Sierra Common Stock issuable upon the exercise of options or warrants, the conversion of convertible stock or debt, and the exercise of any similar right to acquire such Sierra Common Stock, or (B) the combined voting power of the then outstanding voting securities of the Combined Company entitled to vote generally in the election of directors; provided, however, that for purposes of the Sierra Incentive Plan, the following acquisitions shall not constitute a Change in Control: (I) any acquisition by the Combined Company or any affiliate; (II) any acquisition by any employee benefit plan sponsored or maintained by the Combined Company or any affiliate; or (III) in respect of an Award held by a particular Participant, any acquisition by the Participant or any group of Persons including the Participant (or any entity controlled by the Participant or any group of persons including the Participant);

- (ii) during any period of twenty-four (24) months, individuals who, at the beginning of such period, constitute the Combined Company Board (the “Incumbent Directors”) cease for any reason to constitute at least a majority of the Combined Company Board, provided that any person becoming a director subsequent to the date hereof, whose election or nomination for election was approved by a vote of at least two-thirds (2/3rds) of the Incumbent Directors then on the Combined Company Board (either by a specific vote or by approval of the proxy statement of the Combined Company in which such person is named as a nominee for director, without written objection to such nomination) shall be an Incumbent Director; provided, however, that no individual initially elected or nominated as a director of the Combined Company as a result of an actual or threatened election contest, as such terms are used in Rule 14a-12 of Regulation 14A promulgated under the Exchange Act, with respect to directors or as a result of any other actual or threatened solicitation of proxies or consents by or on behalf of any person other than the Combined Company Board shall be deemed to be an Incumbent Director;
- (iii) the sale, transfer or other disposition of all or substantially all of the assets of the Combined Company to any person that is not an affiliate of the Combined Company; or
- (iv) a change in the management structure of the Combined Company from an internally managed BDC to an externally managed BDC pursuant to which the Combined Company enters into an investment advisory agreement with a third-party adviser.

Effective Date, Amendments, and Termination of the Sierra Incentive Plan. The Sierra Incentive Plan will become effective upon approval by the Sierra Stockholders and following the closing of the Mergers, provided that the Sierra Incentive Plan will not be effective with respect to an Award unless the Combined Company receives an exemptive order from the SEC, which the Combined Company is in the process of seeking to obtain. The Combined Company Board may at any time or any times amend the Sierra Incentive Plan or any outstanding Award for any purpose that may at the time be permitted by law. The Combined Company Board may at any time terminate the Sierra Incentive Plan as to future grants of Awards. However, the Combined Company Board may not, without a participant’s consent, alter the terms of an Award so as to affect substantially and adversely the participant’s right under the Award, unless the Combined Company Board reserves the right to do so in the Award agreement. Any amendments to the Sierra Incentive Plan will be conditioned upon stockholder approval only to the extent, if any, such approval is required by law (including the Code and applicable securities exchange requirements), as determined by the Combined Company Board. Unless sooner terminated, the Sierra Incentive Plan shall terminate on the tenth anniversary of the date the Sierra Incentive Plan becomes effective.

Certain Federal Income Tax Considerations. The following discussion is a summary of certain federal income tax considerations that may be relevant to participants in the Sierra Incentive Plan. The discussion is for general informational purposes only and does not purport to address specific federal income tax considerations that may apply to a participant based on his or her particular circumstances, nor does it address foreign, state or local income tax or other tax considerations that may be relevant to a participant.

PARTICIPANTS ARE URGED TO CONSULT THEIR OWN TAX ADVISORS WITH RESPECT TO THE PARTICULAR FEDERAL INCOME TAX CONSEQUENCES TO THEM OF PARTICIPATING IN THE SIERRA INCENTIVE PLAN, AS WELL AS WITH RESPECT TO ANY APPLICABLE FOREIGN, STATE OR LOCAL INCOME TAX OR OTHER TAX CONSIDERATIONS.

Nonqualified Options. A participant recognizes no taxable income and the Combined Company is not entitled to a deduction when a nonqualified option is granted. Upon exercise of a nonqualified option, a participant will recognize compensation income equal to the excess of the fair market value of the shares received over the exercise price of the nonqualified option and, subject to Section 162(m) of the Code, the Combined Company will be entitled to a corresponding deduction. A participant’s tax basis in the shares of common stock received upon exercise of a nonqualified option will be equal to the fair market value of such shares on the exercise date, and the participant’s holding period for such shares will begin at that time. Upon sale of the shares of common stock received upon exercise of a nonqualified option, the participant will recognize short-term or long-term capital gain or loss, depending upon whether the shares have been held for more than one year. The amount of such gain or loss will be equal to the difference between the amount realized in connection with the sale of the shares, and the participant’s tax basis in such shares.

Under the Sierra Incentive Plan, nonqualified options may, if so permitted by the Combined Company Compensation Committee, be exercised in whole or in part with shares of common stock held by the participant. Payment in common stock will be treated as a tax-free exchange of the shares surrendered for an equivalent number of shares of common stock received, and the equivalent number of shares received will have a tax basis equal to the tax basis of the surrendered shares. The fair market value of shares of common stock received in excess of the number of shares surrendered will be treated as compensation income and such shares have a tax basis equal to their fair market value on the date of the exercise of the nonqualified option.

Incentive Stock Options. A participant recognizes no taxable income and the Combined Company is not entitled to a deduction when an incentive stock option is granted or exercised. Provided the participant meets the applicable holding period requirements for the shares received upon exercise of an incentive stock option (two years from the date of grant and one year from the date of exercise), gain or loss recognized by a participant upon sale of the shares received upon exercise will be long-term capital gain or loss, and the Combined Company will not be entitled to a deduction. If, however, the participant disposes of the shares before meeting the applicable holding period requirements (a “disqualifying disposition”), the participant will recognize ordinary income at that time equal to the excess of the fair market value of the shares on the exercise date over the exercise price of the incentive stock option and, subject to Section 162(m) of the Code, the Combined Company will be entitled to a corresponding deduction for the taxable year in which the disqualifying disposition occurred. Any amount recognized upon a disqualifying disposition in excess of the fair market value of the shares on the exercise date of the incentive stock option will be treated as capital gain and will be treated as long-term capital gain if the shares have been held for more than one year. If the sales price is less than the sum of the exercise price of the incentive stock option and the amount included in ordinary income due to the disqualifying disposition, this amount will be treated as a short-term or long-term capital loss, depending upon whether the shares have been held for more than one year. Notwithstanding the above, individuals who are subject to the alternative minimum tax may recognize ordinary income upon exercise of an incentive stock option.

Under the Sierra Incentive Plan, incentive stock options may, at the option of the Board and with certain limitations under the tax law, be exercised in whole or in part with shares of common stock held by the participant. Such an exercise generally will be treated as a tax-free exchange of the shares of common stock surrendered (assuming the surrender of the previously-owned shares does not constitute a disqualifying disposition of those shares) for an equivalent number of shares of common stock received, and the equivalent number of shares received will have a tax basis equal to the tax basis of the surrendered shares. Shares of common stock received in excess of the number of shares surrendered generally will have a tax basis of zero.

Restricted Shares. Restricted shares received pursuant to Awards will be considered subject to a substantial risk of forfeiture for federal income tax purposes. Any participant who receives such restricted shares who does not make the election described below recognizes no taxable income upon the receipt of the restricted shares and the Combined Company is not entitled to a deduction at such time. When the forfeiture restrictions with respect to the restricted shares lapse the participant will recognize compensation income equal to the fair market value of the shares at that time and, subject to Section 162(m) of the Code, the Combined Company will be entitled to a corresponding deduction. A participant’s tax basis in restricted shares will be equal to their fair market value when the forfeiture restrictions lapse, and the participant’s holding period for the shares will begin when the forfeiture restrictions lapse. Upon sale of the shares, the participant will recognize short-term or long-term gain or loss, depending upon whether the shares have been held for more than one year at the time of sale. Such gain or loss will be equal to the difference between the amount realized upon the sale of the shares and the tax basis of the shares in the participant’s hands.

Participants receiving restricted shares may make an election under Section 83(b) of the Code with respect to the shares. By making a Section 83(b) election, the participant elects to recognize compensation income with respect to the restricted shares when the shares are received rather than at the time the forfeiture restrictions lapse. The amount of such compensation income will be equal to the fair market value of the shares when the participant receives them (valued without taking the restrictions into account), and the Combined Company will be entitled to a corresponding deduction at that time. By making a Section 83(b) election, the participant will recognize no additional compensation income with respect to the shares when the forfeiture restrictions lapse, and will instead recognize gain or loss with respect to the shares when they are sold. The participant’s tax basis in the shares with respect to which a Section 83(b) election is made will be equal to their fair market value when received by the participant, and the participant’s holding period for such shares begins at that time. If, however, the shares are subsequently forfeited to the Combined Company, the participant will not be entitled to claim a loss with respect to the shares to the extent of the income recognized by the participant upon the making of the Section 83(b) election. To make a Section 83(b) election, a participant must file an appropriate form of election with the IRS and with his or her employing entity, each within 30 days after restricted shares are received.

Restricted Stock Units. Any participant who receives restricted stock units recognizes no taxable income upon the receipt of the restricted stock unit Award and the Combined Company is not entitled to a deduction at such time. When the restricted stock units are settled the participant will recognize compensation income equal to the fair market value of the shares at that time and, subject to Section 162(m) of the Code, the Combined Company will be entitled to a corresponding deduction. A participant's tax basis in the shares received in settlement of restricted stock units will be equal to their fair market value when the shares are delivered to the participant in settlement of the restricted stock units, and the participant's holding period for the shares will begin when such shares are delivered to the Participant. Upon sale of the shares, the participant will recognize short-term or long-term gain or loss, depending upon whether the shares have been held for more than one year at the time of sale. Such gain or loss will be equal to the difference between the amount realized upon the sale of the shares and the tax basis of the shares in the participant's hands.

Dividend and Dividend Equivalents. The full amount of dividends or other distributions of property made with respect to restricted shares before the lapse of any applicable restrictions will constitute compensation income, and the Combined Company is entitled to a deduction at the same time and in the same amount as the income is realized by the participant (unless an election under Section 83(b) of the Code has been made). Dividend equivalents on restricted stock units (or other stock-based awards) will be taxed as additional compensation income at settlement, and the Combined Company will be entitled to a deduction at the same time and in the same amount.

Section 162(m) Limitations. Section 162(m) of the Code generally limits the deductibility of compensation in excess of $1,000,000 paid to certain executive officers. The officers covered by Section 162(m) include the principal executive officer, the principal financial officer, and the highest paid three officers whose total compensation is (or was) required to be disclosed to shareholders in the current year or a prior year (beginning in 2017).

Withholding. The Combined Company has the right to deduct from the payment of any Award all applicable income and employment taxes required by federal, state, local or foreign law to be withheld, or may require the participant to pay such withholding taxes to the Combined Company as a condition of receiving payment of the Award. The participant has the right to satisfy his or her withholding tax obligations by transferring to the Combined Company shares owned by the participant.

New Plan Benefits. Because benefits under the Sierra Incentive Plan are discretionary and will depend on the actions of the Combined Company Compensation Committee or the Combined Company Board and the value of the Combined Company Common Stock, it is not possible to determine the value of the benefits that will be received.

BASED UPON THE RECOMMENDATION OF THE SIERRA SPECIAL COMMITTEE, THE SIERRA BOARD UNANIMOUSLY RECOMMENDS THAT SIERRA STOCKHOLDERS VOTE "FOR" THE ADOPTION OF THE SIERRA INCENTIVE PLAN.

Sierra Stockholders may vote "FOR" or "AGAINST," or they may "ABSTAIN" from voting on, the proposal. A majority of the votes cast by the holders of Sierra Common Stock as of the Sierra Record Date present or represented by proxy at the Sierra Special Meeting must affirmatively vote "FOR" the proposal in order for it to be approved (meaning the number of shares voted "FOR" a proposal must exceed the number of shares voted "AGAINST" such proposal). Abstentions have the same effect as votes cast against the proposal, while "broker non-votes" will not be included in determining the number of votes cast and, as a result, do not affect the outcome.

SIERRA PROPOSAL #5: ADOPTION OF SIERRA CHARTER AMENDMENTS

To consider and vote upon the following proposals to amend the Sierra Charter to reflect amendments described in this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus, which will become effective immediately after consummation of the Mergers, to:

- conform certain provisions in the Sierra Charter more closely to provisions in the charters of other BDCs whose securities are listed and publicly traded on a national securities exchange (“Listed BDCs”) by removing provisions previously required by the Omnibus Guidelines promulgated by the North American Securities Administrators Association, Inc. (the “NASAA Guidelines”) and removing certain provisions that could impose unnecessary administrative burdens and expenses on Sierra arising from potential inconsistencies with the MGCL, the Investment Company Act and the listing rules of the NYSE, including amending provisions regarding (i) Sierra’s investment adviser, (ii) certain affiliated transactions, (iii) the offering of stock on a deferred-payment basis, (iv) distributions, (v) stockholder suitability and admission, (vi) share repurchase obligations, (vii) investment objectives and limitations, (viii) roll-ups, (ix) exculpation, indemnification, advancement of expenses and insurance, (x) stockholder access to reports and inspection of books and records, and (xi) certain conforming changes and other ministerial modifications (Charter Amendment Proposals A(i) through A(xi));
- eliminate certain voting rights of Sierra Stockholders, including the right to direct that the Sierra Board cause Sierra to (i) amend the Sierra Charter, (ii) dissolve Sierra, (iii) approve the sale of all or substantially all of the assets of Sierra, or (iv) cause the merger or other reorganization of Sierra (Charter Amendment Proposal B);
- eliminate the ability of the Sierra Stockholders to cause the dissolution of Sierra without the necessity for concurrence by the Sierra Board (Charter Amendment Proposal C);
- permit the Sierra Stockholders, in addition to the Sierra Board, to adopt, alter or repeal any provision of the Sierra Bylaws and make new bylaws if such action is approved by the affirmative vote of a majority of all votes entitled to be cast on the matter (Charter Amendment Proposal D); and
- remove language pertaining to the resolution of any conflict between the MGCL, the Sierra Charter and the Sierra Bylaws, on the one hand, and the NASAA Guidelines, on the other hand, from that section of the Sierra Charter delegating such authority to the Sierra Board (Charter Amendment Proposal E).

SIERRA PROPOSAL #5: APPROVAL OF CHARTER AMENDMENT PROPOSALS

On November 6, 2018, the Sierra Board considered certain matters in connection with the proposed Mergers and the obligations of Sierra under each of the MCC Merger Agreement and the MDLY Merger Agreement pertaining to the amendment of the Sierra Charter in anticipation of the listing of shares of Sierra Common Stock on the NYSE (the “Listing”) in connection with the Mergers. In light of the Mergers and the Listing, Sierra is proposing to amend the Sierra Charter. The proposed amendments contemplated by Charter Amendment Proposal A through Charter Amendment Proposal E, which are described in more detail below, make certain changes that the Sierra Board believes are appropriate for a Listed BDC. If approved, these changes to the Sierra Charter will go into effect immediately after the Mergers. Sierra has agreed to permit Sierra Stockholders to vote on each of Charter Amendment Proposal A through Charter Amendment Proposal E independently. If any of Charter Amendment Proposal A through Charter Amendment Proposal D are not approved by the required vote, the corresponding amendment to the Sierra Charter will not be included in the resulting amended and restated charter submitted to SDAT. If Charter Amendment Proposal E is not approved by the required vote, the amendment described in the “Articles of Amendment” as identified below will not be submitted to SDAT. For the avoidance of doubt, the effectiveness of the amendments is conditional on the consummation of the Mergers, and will not become effective if the Mergers do not occur.

The following discussion summarizes the principal changes that Sierra is asking Sierra Stockholders to approve in connection with Sierra Proposal #5. This summary description is qualified in its entirety by the complete text of the proposed Third Articles of Amendment and Restatement of Sierra, a copy of which is attached as Appendix H to this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus (the “New Sierra Charter”) and the Articles of Amendment to the New Sierra Charter, a copy of which is attached as Appendix I to this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus (the “Articles of Amendment”). The New Sierra Charter attached as Appendix H is marked to show the changes made to the Sierra Charter and reflect the modifications proposed to be made by Charter Amendment Proposal A through Charter Amendment Proposal D (each as more fully described below). The Articles of Amendment attached as Appendix I would further amend the New Sierra Charter and reflect the modifications proposed to be made by Charter Amendment Proposal E (as more fully described below).

SIERRA PROPOSAL #5(A): APPROVAL OF CHARTER AMENDMENT PROPOSAL A REMOVING PROVISIONS REQUIRED BY NASAA GUIDELINES

Background

Sierra conducted a continuous public offering of shares of Sierra Common Stock beginning on April 16, 2012, which was terminated on July 31, 2018, during which time period the shares of Sierra Common Stock were not listed on any securities exchange. As such, Sierra was required to register its continuous public offering with state securities administrators in each state in which Sierra desired to offer such shares. As a BDC, several states where Sierra wished to offer shares required Sierra to include various limitations imposed by the NASAA Guidelines in Sierra’s governing documents, including the Sierra Charter. As Sierra will no longer seek to offer shares pursuant to the NASAA Guidelines, Sierra is proposing to amend and restate the Sierra Charter to conform certain provisions of the Sierra Charter more closely to provisions in the charters of other Listed BDCs. The proposed amendments to the Sierra Charter would remove the limitations imposed by the NASAA Guidelines because they could impose an unnecessary administrative burden and expense on Sierra, are no longer required, and could put Sierra at a competitive disadvantage relative to its Listed BDC competitors whose charters do not contain these restrictions. Below are a number of proposals to remove the limitations imposed by the NASAA Guidelines from the Sierra Charter. Sierra has agreed to permit Sierra Stockholders to vote on each of such proposed amendments to the Sierra Charter independently.

The affirmative vote by the holders of shares of Sierra Common Stock entitled to cast a majority of all the votes entitled to be cast as of the Sierra Record Date is necessary for approval of Charter Amendment Proposals A(i) through A(xi), which Sierra refers to collectively as “Charter Amendment Proposal A”.

Provisions Regarding Sierra's Investment Adviser

Charter Amendment Proposal A(i): Relationship Between Sierra and its Investment Adviser

As of the date of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus, Sierra is externally managed by SIC Advisors, which is registered as an investment adviser with the SEC. Under the overall supervision and oversight of the Sierra Board, SIC Advisors has provided its investment advisory services under the Sierra Investment Advisory Agreement. As described in more detail above, following consummation of the Mergers, Sierra intends to list the Sierra Common Stock on the NYSE. Further, if the Mergers are approved, the Combined Company's investment management function will become internalized and Merger Sub will become a wholly owned subsidiary of the Combined Company.

Article VIII and Article X of the Sierra Charter include a number of provisions that govern the relationship between Sierra and its investment adviser and the affiliates of such investment adviser. Among other things, the Sierra Charter requires the Sierra Board to monitor its investment adviser, limits the amount of fees Sierra can pay, and expenses that Sierra can reimburse, to its investment adviser, and requires that the term of Sierra's investment advisory agreements be terminable by a majority of Sierra's independent directors on 60 days' notice or by the applicable investment adviser on 120 days' notice, in each case, without penalty.

The New Sierra Charter removes the provisions pertaining to Sierra's investment adviser because (i) these provisions, while customary for BDCs that are not listed on a public exchange and required to observe the NASAA Guidelines, would be atypical for a Listed BDC and (ii) the proposed Mergers will cause Sierra to become an internally-managed BDC, which will further render a number of these provisions superfluous.

Charter Amendment Proposal A(ii): Certain Affiliated Transactions

The Sierra Charter also contains numerous provisions that limit Sierra's ability to engage in specific transactions with its investment advisers and their respective affiliates. These provisions were required to be included in the Sierra Charter under the NASAA Guidelines. In general, these provisions require that such transactions, which Sierra refers to as "affiliated transactions," be approved by a majority of Sierra's directors (including a majority of its independent directors). These provisions address a number of transactions, including joint ventures, sales and leases to and from Sierra, loans to and from Sierra, as well as general restrictions on affiliated transactions with Sierra's investment advisers and their respective affiliates. The New Sierra Charter removes these limitations.

The MGCL and the Investment Company Act contain provisions relating to Sierra's ability to engage in related party transactions. Under the MGCL, a transaction with any of Sierra's directors or any other entity in which any of its directors is a director or has a material financial interest is not avoidable solely because of the interest so long as, subject to certain disclosure requirements, the transaction is (a) approved by (1) a majority of the disinterested directors, even if they constitute less than a quorum, or (2) a majority of the votes entitled to be cast by Sierra Stockholders entitled to vote on the matter other than votes of shares owned by the interested person or entity or (b) fair and reasonable to Sierra. In addition, under the Investment Company Act, Sierra generally is prohibited from participating in transactions with certain of its affiliates without the prior approval of a majority of its independent directors, and in some cases, the SEC. Therefore, charters of Listed BDCs do not typically contain additional provisions that address affiliated transactions.

There are potential risks to this proposed amendment, as the removal of these provisions could increase the likelihood that Sierra would pursue affiliated transactions such as those described above, which, if such transactions involve overreaching by the Combined Company or their respective affiliates, could adversely affect the Combined Company's results of operations and the value of an investment in the Combined Company. However, the Sierra Board does not believe that the removal of the limitations related to Sierra's investment advisers and their respective affiliates will have a material or adverse effect on the Combined Company because of the protections otherwise afforded by applicable law, particularly because after the consummation of the Mergers, the Combined Company's investment management function will become internalized and, as a result, the risks posed to Sierra of conflicts of interest as a result of transactions with its investment adviser and its affiliates will be reduced or eliminated. Further, the Combined Company has no current intention to enter in to any affiliated transactions that currently are prohibited under the Sierra Charter.

Provisions Regarding the Issuance of Stock

Charter Amendment Proposal A(iii): Provisions Regarding Deferred Payments

The Sierra Charter limits Sierra's ability to issue shares of Sierra Common Stock on a deferred-payment basis or other similar arrangement, unless certain enumerated conditions are met. If Charter Amendment Proposal A(iii) is approved, these restrictions will be removed and the Sierra Board will be able to issue stock in any manner permitted by the MGCL, the New Sierra Charter and the Investment Company Act. The Sierra Board recommends this change because it removes limitations on issuances of stock that the Sierra Board in the future could determine to be in the best interest of Sierra and the Sierra Stockholders. Although Sierra believes this flexibility is advantageous, this proposed amendment does increase the likelihood that Sierra will issue securities in exchange for a deferred payment, such as a promissory note, which could negatively impact the value of a Sierra Stockholder's investment. However, Sierra has no current intention to issue any stock for a deferred payment, the issuance of which currently is prohibited under the Sierra Charter.

Charter Amendment Proposal A(iv): Provisions Regarding Distributions

As required by the NASAA Guidelines, the Sierra Charter includes specific provisions governing the investment adviser's and the Sierra Board's responsibilities relating to distributions and limiting the Sierra Board's ability to authorize distributions-in-kind. The New Sierra Charter removes these provisions and, as a result, the MGCL would govern Sierra's ability to pay distributions. The MGCL, among other things, permits stock dividends. Sierra believes that the removal of these provisions will conform the Sierra Charter more closely to charters of other Listed BDCs. In addition, as some BDCs have also paid stock dividends to preserve cash while satisfying applicable Code distribution requirements, the removal of the additional limitations on the Sierra Board's ability to authorize distributions-in-kind may be advantageous to Sierra in the future.

Charter Amendment Proposal A(v): Provisions Regarding Stockholder Suitability and Admission

The Sierra Charter imposes certain suitability and minimum investment requirements on investors in Sierra Common Stock in accordance with the NASAA Guidelines. As provided in the Sierra Charter, these provisions will be of no further force or effect upon, among other events, the Listing. In the absence of the Listing, removal of these provisions would eliminate any potential confusion as to whether they apply following the Listing. Because these provisions pertaining to suitability and minimum investment requirements terminate upon the Listing, Sierra believes this amendment will have no practical effect on Sierra Stockholders.

Charter Amendment Proposal A(vi): Provisions Regarding Share Repurchase Obligations

Article V, Section 5.10 of the Sierra Charter describes the terms of Sierra's share repurchase program, which provides liquidity to Sierra Stockholders in the absence of a public market for their shares. Article V, Section 5.11 of the Sierra Charter obligates Sierra to repurchase shares of Sierra Common Stock, at NAV, upon the death or disability of the holder thereof. Upon approval of the Mergers and following the Listing, shares of Sierra Common Stock will be traded on the NYSE and Sierra Stockholders will be able to obtain liquidity in the public market. As provided in the Sierra Charter, these provisions will be of no further force or effect upon, among other events, the Listing. The New Sierra Charter, if adopted, would remove provisions regarding Sierra's share repurchase obligations. Share repurchase programs and mandatory repurchase obligations are not typically the subject of charter provisions of Listed BDCs or of other publicly traded corporations. Further, because these provisions terminate upon the Listing, Sierra believes this amendment will have no practical effect on Sierra Stockholders. Although Sierra believes this amendment is in the best interests of Sierra and Sierra Stockholders, if these provisions are removed, in the event that shares of Sierra Common Stock trade at a discount to NAV, holders of Sierra Common Stock may receive less for their shares in the public market than they otherwise would have received under the current provisions of the Sierra Charter.

Charter Amendment Proposal A(vii): Provisions Regarding Investment Objectives and Limitations

As required by the NASAA Guidelines, the Sierra Charter includes specific provisions governing Sierra's investment objectives and investment strategies. The New Sierra Charter removes these provisions. As a result, after the New Sierra Charter becomes effective, the limitations on Sierra's investment strategies will be provided by the MGCL and the provisions of the Investment Company Act applicable to BDCs, or as otherwise determined by the Sierra Board. Sierra believes that the removal of these provisions will conform the Sierra Charter more closely to charters of other Listed BDCs and will provide Sierra with the same flexibility that other Listed BDCs have to change their investment objectives and investment strategies for the benefit of Sierra Stockholders.

Charter Amendment Proposal A(viii): Provisions Regarding Roll-ups

Article XII of the Sierra Charter imposes procedural protections relating to transactions in which Sierra Stockholders must exchange their shares for securities of another entity, which Sierra refers to as “roll-up transactions.” These protections were required to be included in the Sierra Charter under the NASAA Guidelines. Among other protections and requirements, an appraisal of Sierra’s assets as of a date immediately prior to the announcement of the proposed roll-up transaction must be obtained from an independent expert in connection with any roll-up transaction. Sierra Stockholders who vote against any proposed roll-up transaction must be given the choice of (1) accepting the securities of the roll-up entity or (2) either (a) remaining Sierra Stockholders and preserving their interests therein on the same terms and conditions as existed previously or (b) receiving cash in an amount equal to their proportionate share of the appraised value of Sierra. In addition, Sierra is prohibited from participating in any roll-up transaction in which certain stockholder rights in the roll-up entity, such as voting and access to records, are less advantageous than those currently provided to Sierra Stockholders. Further, if the roll-up transaction is not approved by Sierra Stockholders, the costs of the roll-up transaction may not be borne by Sierra. If Charter Amendment Proposal A(viii) is approved and the Sierra Stockholders vote to approve a roll-up transaction, Sierra Stockholders will no longer receive the benefit of these protections. Sierra recommends this change to increase Sierra’s flexibility to enter into a roll-up transaction that the Sierra Board has determined to be in the best interest of Sierra and Sierra Stockholders and to conform the Sierra Charter more closely to charters of other Listed BDCs. Moreover, these restrictions are not typical of other Listed BDCs and could put Sierra at a disadvantage relative to its Sierra BDC competitors as it relates to roll-up transactions.

Charter Amendment Proposal A(ix): Provisions Regarding Exculpation, Indemnification, Advancement of Expenses and Insurance

The Sierra Charter provides for exculpation of Sierra’s directors and officers, and provides for indemnification of, and advancement of expenses to, its directors and officers, but contains certain limitations on exculpation and indemnification consistent with the limitations set forth in the NASAA Guidelines. In order to conform the Sierra Charter more closely to charters of other Listed BDCs, and to improve Sierra’s ability to retain and recruit qualified and experienced directors and officers, Sierra is proposing to remove these limitations and instead provide that it shall exculpate its directors and officers and shall have the power to indemnify its directors and officers, in each case, to the maximum extent permitted by the MGCL. The MGCL permits a Maryland corporation to include in its charter a provision limiting the liability of directors and officers to the corporation and its stockholders for money damages, except for liability resulting from (1) actual receipt of an improper benefit or profit in money, property or services or (2) active and deliberate dishonesty established by a final judgment and which is material to the cause of action. The MGCL also permits a Maryland corporation (unless its charter provides otherwise, which the New Sierra Charter will not) to indemnify its present and former directors and officers, among others, against judgments, penalties, fines, settlements and reasonable expenses actually incurred by them in connection with any proceeding to which they may be made or threatened to be made a party by reason of their service in those or other capacities unless it is established that (a) the act or omission of the director or officer was material to the matter giving rise to the proceeding and (i) was committed in bad faith or (ii) was the result of active and deliberate dishonesty, (b) the director or officer actually received an improper personal benefit in the form of money, property or services or (c) in the case of any criminal proceeding, the director or officer had reasonable cause to believe that the act or omission was unlawful. In addition, the MGCL permits a Maryland corporation to advance reasonable expenses to a director or officer upon receipt of (x) a written affirmation by the director or officer of his or her good faith belief that he or she has met the standard of conduct necessary for indemnification and (y) a written undertaking by him or her or on his or her behalf to repay the amount paid or reimbursed if it is ultimately determined that the standard of conduct was not met. These provisions will provide Sierra’s directors and officers with broader and more comprehensive exculpation and indemnification rights than those that are currently included in the Sierra Charter, subject to the limitations of the Investment Company Act.

Although the Sierra Board believes that this change will improve its ability to retain and attract qualified directors and officers, the proposed amendment increases the likelihood that Sierra and Sierra Stockholders will not be able to recover monetary damages from Sierra's directors if they fail to meet the statutory standard of conduct as a result of negligence or misconduct (as to any interested directors) and gross negligence or willful misconduct (as to any independent directors) or from its officers if they fail to satisfy their duties under the MGCL. In addition, the proposed amendment would permit indemnification of Sierra's directors and officers in circumstances where indemnification is currently limited by the Sierra Charter. The reduced ability to recover from directors and officers and the enhanced right to indemnification would apply not only to future acts or omissions of directors or officers but also to acts or omissions prior to the date of the amendment. The proposed amendment also increases the possibility that Sierra will incur significant defense costs that might have otherwise been borne by its directors, officers or Sierra's investment advisers and their respective affiliates. Notwithstanding these considerations, these changes will place Sierra in accord with its Listed BDC competitors, particularly those Listed BDCs in Maryland.

Charter Amendment Proposal A(x): Provisions Regarding Stockholder Access to Reports and Inspection of Books and Records

The New Sierra Charter removes provisions from the Sierra Charter relating to Sierra Stockholders' ability to receive reports from Sierra, which currently are included in the Sierra Charter to meet requirements imposed by the NASAA Guidelines. These provisions are inconsistent with the provisions of charters of other Maryland corporations, which generally rely on the MGCL and their bylaws to govern reports to stockholders. These provisions are also inconsistent with the provisions of charters of Listed BDCs, which generally rely upon state law, the Investment Company Act and the Exchange Act to govern reports to stockholders.

If Charter Amendment Proposal A(x) is approved, Sierra will no longer be subject to a charter requirement to distribute an annual report with certain information required by the NASAA Guidelines. As a public reporting company, however, Sierra will continue to be subject to the rules and regulations promulgated by the SEC related to annual reports as well as the general provisions of the MGCL requiring Sierra to prepare an annual statement of affairs. Thus, Sierra expects to continue distributing an annual report to Sierra Stockholders disclosing the information required under the rules and regulations of the SEC and the MGCL.

In addition, the New Sierra Charter removes provisions under the Sierra Charter relating to Sierra Stockholders' ability to inspect the books and records of Sierra, which were included in the Sierra Charter to meet requirements consistent with the NASAA Guidelines. Under the New Sierra Charter, the rights of Sierra Stockholders to inspect the books and records of Sierra will be limited to the rights provided for under the MGCL. The MGCL allows any stockholder of a corporation to inspect the corporation's bylaws, minutes of stockholder proceedings, annual statements of affairs and voting trust agreements on file at the corporation's principal office and to request a statement showing all stock and securities issued by the corporation during a specified period of not more than 12 months before the date of the request. However, the MGCL permits only stockholders who for at least six months have been stockholders of record of at least 5% of the outstanding stock of any class of the corporation to inspect the corporation's books of account and stock ledger, to request a statement of the corporation's affairs and to request a stockholder list. Sierra believes these changes will conform its charter more closely to the charters of other Listed BDCs incorporated in Maryland. Sierra believes the changes also enhance its anti-takeover defenses by making it more difficult for a potential acquirer to acquire shares of Sierra Common Stock or to contact Sierra Stockholders for the purpose of trying to influence Sierra's management. Although Sierra believes the changes are in the best interest of Sierra, the proposed changes to the Sierra Charter may discourage others from trying to acquire control of Sierra, which may reduce the ability of Sierra Stockholders to liquidate an investment in Sierra or to receive a control premium for their shares of Sierra Common Stock. The proposed changes may also make it more difficult for Sierra Stockholders to communicate with each other to influence management, which could result in policies, actions or Board composition that are not as favorable to Sierra Stockholders as they might otherwise would be.

Charter Amendment Proposal A(xi): Conforming Changes and Other Ministerial Modifications

The New Sierra Charter reflects a number of changes and other modifications of a ministerial nature that are necessary in light of the changes described above that are being proposed in Charter Amendment Proposal A. These changes and modifications include, among other things, deletion and revision of definitions, references and cross-references and other provisions which are no longer applicable to Sierra or which need to be updated, and the necessary re-numbering and re-lettering of remaining provisions. These changes will be made as necessary to reflect the amendments proposed in Charter Amendment Proposals A(i) through A(x) that are approved by the Sierra Stockholders at the Sierra Special Meeting.

Summary of Specific Changes

Listed below, in summary form, are the specific changes that will be made to the Sierra Charter pursuant to Charter Amendment Proposal A if each of Charter Amendment Proposals A(i) through (x) is approved by Sierra Stockholders at the Sierra Special Meeting. The below summary does not identify certain non-substantive changes to the Sierra Charter or changes that are described as part of Charter Amendment Proposal B through Charter Amendment Proposal E. Please see the marked version of the New Sierra Charter attached as Appendix H, which reflects all the changes proposed to be made to the Sierra Charter.

- Revision to Section 4.1(f) to provide that Sierra elects to be subject to the provisions of Section 3-804(c) of the MGCL, which provides that only a majority of the Sierra Board may fill vacancies on the Sierra Board. This provision was previously accomplished by the filing of articles supplementary with SDAT.
- Deletion of Section 5.5 of the Sierra Charter to remove the NASAA Guidelines provisions regarding limitations on Sierra's ability to make arrangements for deferred payments on account of the purchase price of Sierra Common Stock.
- Deletion of Section 5.6 of the Sierra Charter to remove the NASAA Guidelines provisions regarding the investment advisers' responsibilities relating to distributions and regarding limitations on the Sierra Board's ability to authorize distributions.
- Deletion of Section 5.8 of the Sierra Charter to remove the NASAA Guidelines provisions regarding the suitability of Sierra Stockholders.
- Deletion of Section 5.9 of the Sierra Charter to remove the NASAA Guidelines provisions regarding the limitations imposed on the admission of stockholders.
- Deletion of Sections 5.10 and 5.11 of the Sierra Charter to remove the provisions regarding Sierra's repurchase obligations.
- Revision to Sections 7.2 and 7.3(a) of the Sierra Charter, and the deletion of Sections 7.3(b), 7.3(c) and 7.4 of the Sierra Charter, to remove the NASAA Guidelines restrictions on (a) exculpation and indemnification of, and advancement of expenses to, directors and officers, and (b) Sierra's ability to incur the cost of certain insurance for Sierra's investment advisers.
- Deletion of Article VIII of the Sierra Charter to remove the NASAA Guidelines provisions regarding certain conflicts of interest and the supervision of, and payment of enumerated fees to, Sierra's investment advisers and related provisions.
- Deletion of Article IX of the Sierra Charter to remove the NASAA Guidelines provisions limiting Sierra's investment objectives and limitations and investment strategies.

Table of Contents

- Deletion of Article X of the Sierra Charter to remove the NASAA Guidelines provisions restricting certain transactions between Sierra and its investment advisers, any director and their respective affiliates.
- Deletion of Sections 11.2 and 11.4 to remove the NASAA Guidelines provisions regarding certain stockholder rights.
- Deletion of Section 11.3 to eliminate certain additional stockholder rights of inspection beyond those provided by the MGCL.
- Deletion of Article XII of the Sierra Charter to remove the NASAA Guidelines provisions regarding limitations on roll-up transactions.
- Deletion of definitions in Article XIII that will no longer be applicable as a result of the removal of certain provisions from the Sierra Charter.
- Deletion of Section 14.1 of the Sierra Charter, which provides that the duration of the corporation is perpetual, as unnecessary under the MGCL.

THE SIERRA BOARD UNANIMOUSLY RECOMMENDS A VOTE “FOR” CHARTER AMENDMENT PROPOSALS A(I) THROUGH A(XI).

The affirmative vote by the holders of shares of Sierra Common Stock entitled to cast a majority of all the votes entitled to be cast as of the Sierra Record Date is necessary for approval of each of Charter Amendment Proposals A(i) through A(xi). You may vote for or against or abstain on each of Charter Amendment Proposals A(i) through A(xi). Abstentions and broker non-votes will not count as affirmative votes cast and will therefore have the same effect as votes against each of Charter Amendment Proposals A(i) through A(xi). Proxies received will be voted “FOR” the approval of each of Charter Amendment Proposals A(i) through A(xi) unless Sierra Stockholders designate otherwise.

SIERRA PROPOSAL #5(B): APPROVAL OF CHARTER AMENDMENT PROPOSAL B PROVISIONS REGARDING VOTING RIGHTS OF SIERRA STOCKHOLDERS

Article XI, Section 11.1 of the Sierra Charter provides certain voting rights for Sierra Stockholders, including the right to direct that the Sierra Board cause Sierra to (i) amend the Sierra Charter, (ii) dissolve Sierra, (iii) approve the sale of all or substantially all of the assets of Sierra, or (iv) cause the merger or other reorganization of Sierra. These provisions may conflict with the MGCL because, in each case, under the MGCL the underlying corporate action requires that the Sierra Board first exercise its independent business judgment pursuant to the standard of conduct applicable to directors under Maryland law to declare such action advisable. Except in limited circumstances not applicable here, it is not clear that the MGCL permits a Maryland corporation to grant to its stockholders the power to compel the board of directors to make such a declaration without the directors exercising their independent business judgment. The New Sierra Charter removes the language permitting the Sierra Stockholders to cause the Sierra Board to (i) amend the Sierra Charter, (ii) dissolve Sierra, (iii) approve the sale of all or substantially all of the assets of Sierra, or (iv) cause the merger or other reorganization of Sierra. If the MGCL does not permit the grant of this power to a Maryland corporation's stockholders, these amendments will have no effect. But if the MGCL permits a Maryland corporation to grant to the stockholders the power to compel the board of directors to make such a declaration and take the corresponding action without the directors exercising their independent business judgment, Sierra believes that Section 11.1 in the Sierra Charter dramatically weakens its anti-takeover defenses by making it significantly easier for a potential acquirer to acquire control of Sierra. Therefore, Sierra believes that the elimination of Section 11.1 enhances its anti-takeover defenses by making it more difficult for a potential acquirer to acquire control of Sierra. In addition, these provisions are atypical in a Listed BDC. Although Sierra believes that the changes are in the best interest of Sierra, the proposed changes to the Sierra Charter may discourage others from trying to acquire control of Sierra, which may reduce a Sierra Stockholder's ability to liquidate an investment in Sierra or to receive a control premium for Sierra Common Stock.

Summary of Specific Change

Listed below is the specific change that will be made to the Sierra Charter pursuant to Charter Amendment Proposal B if Charter Amendment Proposal B is approved by Sierra Stockholders at the Sierra Special Meeting.

- Deletion of Section 11.1 of the Sierra Charter.

THE SIERRA BOARD UNANIMOUSLY RECOMMENDS A VOTE
"FOR" CHARTER AMENDMENT PROPOSAL B.

The affirmative vote by the holders of shares of Sierra Common Stock entitled to cast a majority of all the votes entitled to be cast as of the Sierra Record Date is necessary for approval of Charter Amendment Proposal B. You may vote for or against or abstain on Charter Amendment Proposal B. Abstentions and broker non-votes will not count as affirmative votes cast and will therefore have the same effect as votes against Charter Amendment Proposal B. Proxies received will be voted "FOR" the approval of Charter Amendment Proposal B unless Sierra Stockholders designate otherwise.

SIERRA PROPOSAL #5(C): APPROVAL OF CHARTER AMENDMENT PROPOSAL C PROVISIONS REGARDING VOTING RIGHTS OF SIERRA STOCKHOLDERS

Article XIV, Section 14.2 of the Sierra Charter purports to permit the Sierra Stockholders to voluntarily dissolve Sierra. This provision may conflict with the MGCL. Under the MGCL, a Maryland corporation registered as a closed-end investment company under the Investment Company Act may, among other things, include in its charter a requirement that the corporation submit to its stockholders a proposal to, among other things, dissolve even if its board of directors fails to recommend the proposal or declare the proposal advisable (or recommends that the stockholders reject it). In all other circumstances, the MGCL requires that the Sierra Board first exercise its independent business judgment consistent with the standard of conduct applicable to directors under Maryland law and declare that dissolution is advisable. It is not clear that the MGCL permits a BDC, which is not a registered closed-end fund under the Investment Company Act, to grant to its stockholders in its charter the power to dissolve the corporation without the board of directors first declaring the action advisable. The New Sierra Charter removes this language to ensure consistency with the MGCL. Further, the New Sierra Charter removes this language to discourage potential acquirers who might seek to explore short term discounts to NAV at the expense of the long-term best interests of Sierra and Sierra Stockholders.

If the MGCL does not permit the grant of this power to the Sierra Stockholders, these changes will have no effect. But if the MGCL permits a Sierra to grant to the Sierra Stockholders in the Sierra Charter the power to dissolve the corporation without the board of directors first declaring the action advisable, although Sierra believes that the changes are in the best interest of Sierra, the proposed changes to the Sierra Charter eliminate the ability of Sierra Stockholders to cause the dissolution of the corporation, which will delete an alternative to eliminate any trading discount to NAV and may discourage others from trying to acquire control of Sierra, which may reduce the a Sierra Stockholders' ability to liquidate an investment in Sierra or to receive a control premium for Sierra Common Stock.

Summary of Specific Change

Listed below is the specific change that will be made to the Sierra Charter pursuant to Charter Amendment Proposal C if Charter Amendment Proposal C is approved by Sierra Stockholders at the Sierra Special Meeting.

- Deletion of Section 14.2 of the Sierra Charter.

THE SIERRA BOARD UNANIMOUSLY RECOMMENDS A VOTE “FOR” CHARTER AMENDMENT PROPOSAL C.

The affirmative vote by the holders of shares of Sierra Common Stock entitled to cast a majority of all the votes entitled to be cast on the matter as of the Sierra Record Date is necessary for approval of Charter Amendment Proposal C. Sierra Stockholders may vote for or against or abstain on Charter Amendment Proposal C. Abstentions and broker non-votes will not count as affirmative votes cast and will therefore have the same effect as votes against Charter Amendment Proposal C. Proxies received will be voted “FOR” the approval of Charter Amendment Proposal C unless Sierra Stockholders designate otherwise.

SIERRA PROPOSAL #5(D): APPROVAL OF CHARTER AMENDMENT PROPOSAL D PROVIDING SIERRA STOCKHOLDERS THE RIGHT TO AMEND THE SIERRA BYLAWS

Background

The Sierra Board recommends for your approval an amendment to the Sierra Charter to provide that the Sierra Bylaws may be amended by the vote of a majority of the entire Sierra Board or by the Sierra Stockholders by the affirmative vote of a majority of all the votes entitled to be cast on the matter, subject to certain limitations. Currently, Article V, Section 5.7 of the Sierra Charter provides that the Sierra Board has the exclusive power to make, alter, amend or repeal the Sierra Bylaws.

The Sierra Board is committed to strong and effective corporate governance and monitors regularly its corporate governance policies and practices. After careful consideration, the Sierra Board believes that allowing the Sierra Stockholders the right to amend the Sierra Bylaws by the affirmative vote of a majority of all the votes entitled to be cast on the matter is in Sierra's best interests and in the best interests of the Sierra Stockholders. If this Charter Amendment Proposal D is approved by the Sierra Stockholders, the Sierra Board intends to similarly amend the Sierra Bylaws. If this Charter Amendment Proposal D is not approved by the Sierra Stockholders, then Sierra will not amend the Sierra Charter to provide this right to Sierra Stockholders and the New Sierra Charter will continue to provide that the Sierra Board has the exclusive power to make, alter, amend or repeal the Sierra Bylaws.

Summary of Specific Change

Listed below is the specific change that will be made to the Sierra Charter pursuant to Charter Amendment Proposal D if Charter Amendment Proposal D is approved by Sierra Stockholders at the Sierra Special Meeting.

- Addition of provision in Section 5.5 (formerly Section 5.7), following the deletion of Sections 5.5 and 5.6 of the Sierra Charter, permitting the Sierra Stockholders, in addition to the Sierra Board, to adopt, alter or repeal any provision of the Sierra Bylaws and make new bylaws if such action is approved by the affirmative vote of a majority of all votes entitled to be cast on the matter, except that the Sierra Stockholders shall not have the power to alter or repeal any provision of the Sierra Bylaws (a) subjecting Sierra to the Investment Company Act or (b) providing indemnification or advancement rights to any person.

THE SIERRA BOARD UNANIMOUSLY RECOMMENDS A VOTE
"FOR" CHARTER AMENDMENT PROPOSAL D.

The affirmative vote by the holders of shares of Sierra Common Stock entitled to cast a majority of all the votes entitled to be cast on the matter as of the Sierra Record Date is necessary for approval of Charter Amendment Proposal D. Sierra Stockholders may vote for or against or abstain on Charter Amendment Proposal D. Abstentions and broker non-votes will not count as affirmative votes cast and will therefore have the same effect as votes against Charter Amendment Proposal D. Proxies received will be voted "FOR" the approval of Charter Amendment Proposal D unless Sierra Stockholders designate otherwise.

SIERRA PROPOSAL #5(E): APPROVAL OF CHARTER AMENDMENT PROPOSAL E PROVISIONS REGARDING DETERMINATIONS BY THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS

Article IV, Section 4.6 of the Sierra Charter provides that, with certain limitations, determinations as to certain matters made in good faith by the Sierra Board shall be final and conclusive and binding upon Sierra and Sierra Stockholders. The Articles of Amendment remove language pertaining to the resolution of any conflict between the MGCL, the Sierra Charter and the Sierra Bylaws, on the one hand, and the NASAA Guidelines, on the other hand, from Section 4.6 of the Sierra Charter. Sierra will no longer be subject to the NASAA Guidelines and this language is unnecessary.

Summary of Specific Change

Listed below is the specific change that will be made to the Sierra Charter through the Articles of Amendment pursuant to Charter Amendment Proposal E if Charter Amendment Proposal E is approved by Sierra Stockholders at the Sierra Special Meeting.

- Deletion of references to the NASAA Guidelines in Section 4.6 of the Sierra Charter.

THE SIERRA BOARD UNANIMOUSLY RECOMMENDS A VOTE “FOR” CHARTER AMENDMENT PROPOSAL E.

The affirmative vote by the holders of shares of Sierra Common Stock entitled to cast at least two-thirds of all the votes entitled to be cast as of the Sierra Record Date is necessary for approval of Charter Amendment Proposal E. You may vote for or against or abstain on Charter Amendment Proposal E. Abstentions and broker non-votes will not count as affirmative votes cast and will therefore have the same effect as votes against Charter Amendment Proposal E. Proxies received will be voted “FOR” the approval of Charter Amendment Proposal E unless Sierra Stockholders designate otherwise.

SIERRA PROPOSAL #6: APPROVAL OF THE COMBINED COMPANY INVESTMENT ADVISORY AGREEMENT

Background

SIC Advisors currently provides investment advisory services to Sierra pursuant to the Sierra Investment Advisory Agreement. The Sierra Investment Advisory Agreement was initially approved by the Sierra Board on April 5, 2012. Most recently, the Sierra Board held an in-person meeting on March 8, 2018, in order to consider and approve the annual approval and continuation of the Sierra Investment Advisory Agreement, which was approved for a period of one additional year, which will expire on April 17, 2019.

In the MCC Merger, MCC would, on the terms and subject to the conditions set forth in the MCC Merger Agreement, merge with and into Sierra, with Sierra continuing as the surviving company in the MCC Merger. In the MDLY Merger, MDLY would, on the terms and subject to the conditions set forth in the MDLY Merger Agreement, merge with and into Merger Sub, with Merger Sub continuing as the surviving company in the MDLY Merger. As a result of the foregoing, the investment management function of the Combined Company will become internalized, and the Combined Company's wholly owned registered investment adviser will serve as its investment adviser. As a result of the Mergers and the change of the entity serving as investment adviser to the Combined Company, an assignment of the Sierra Investment Advisory Agreement will occur under the Investment Company Act. This assignment will result in the automatic termination of the Sierra Investment Advisory Agreement, as required by Section 15 of the Investment Company Act and the terms of the Sierra Investment Advisory Agreement.

If approved by the Sierra Stockholders, MCC Advisors will serve as the investment adviser to the Combined Company following the completion of the Mergers. In order for MCC Advisors to serve as the investment adviser to the Combined Company upon the closing of the Mergers, the Investment Company Act requires that the Combined Company Investment Advisory Agreement be approved by both (i) a majority of the members of the Sierra Board who are not "interested persons," as defined by Section 2(a)(19) of the Investment Company Act (the "Non-Interested Directors"), and (ii) holders of "a majority of its outstanding voting securities," as such term is defined under the Investment Company Act. At an in-person meeting of the Sierra Board on November 6, 2018, based upon the recommendation of the Sierra Special Committee, the Sierra Board, including all of the Non-Interested Directors, voted unanimously to (i) approve the Combined Company Investment Advisory Agreement, the terms and conditions of which are identical to those of the Sierra Investment Advisory Agreement in all material respects, and (ii) recommend that the Sierra Stockholders approve the Combined Company Investment Advisory Agreement.

If approved by the Sierra Stockholders, the Combined Company Investment Advisory Agreement will be executed on behalf of the Combined Company and become effective upon the closing of the Mergers. The closing of the MCC Merger is conditioned upon, among other things, approval of the Combined Company Investment Advisory Agreement by the Sierra Stockholders.

The Sierra Stockholders are being asked to approve the Combined Company Investment Advisory Agreement between Sierra and MCC Advisors. The terms and conditions of the Combined Company Investment Advisory Agreement are substantially identical to those of the Sierra Investment Advisory Agreement. The primary differences between the Sierra Investment Advisory Agreement and the Combined Company Investment Advisory Agreement is that the latter eliminates certain provisions relating to Sierra's continuous offering that was terminated effective as of July 31, 2018, and reflects an expense reimbursement structure that more closely aligns with that of a listed BDC, rather than a non-traded BDC. The Sierra Board believes the approval of the Combined Company Investment Advisory Agreement will provide continuity of advisory services to Sierra, and believes it to be in the best interests of Sierra and the Sierra Stockholders.

Following the completion of the Mergers, the Combined Company will maintain Sierra's current investment objective, which is to generate current income, and to a lesser extent, long-term capital appreciation by primarily lending to and investing in the debt of privately-owned U.S. middle-market companies. The Combined Company also will continue to pursue the same principal investment strategies as Sierra, which focuses primarily on sourcing investments in private U.S. companies as it seeks to construct a portfolio that generates what it believes to be superior risk adjusted returns, and is centered around three principles including (i) disciplined due diligence of each company's credit fundamentals; (ii) a detailed and customized structuring process for directly originated investments and (iii) regular and ongoing monitoring of the portfolio and proactive risk management.

If the Mergers are not consummated, SIC Advisors will continue to serve as Sierra's investment adviser pursuant to the Sierra Investment Advisory Agreement, subject to the supervision of the Sierra Board.

Summary of the Terms and Conditions of the Sierra Investment Advisory Agreement and the Combined Company Investment Advisory Agreement

A copy of the Combined Company Investment Advisory Agreement is attached to this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus as Appendix K. The following description of the terms and conditions of the Combined Company Investment Advisory Agreement is only a summary of its material terms. You should refer to Appendix K for the Combined Company Investment Advisory Agreement, and the description of the Combined Company Investment Advisory Agreement set forth in this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus is qualified in its entirety by reference to Appendix K.

SIC Advisors has served as the investment adviser to Sierra since the commencement of Sierra's operations in April 2012, pursuant to the terms of the Sierra Investment Advisory Agreement, as renewed from time to time by the Sierra Board. If approved by the Sierra Stockholders at the Sierra Special Meeting, MCC Advisors will provide the same advisory services pursuant the terms of the Combined Company Investment Advisory Agreement as SIC Advisors currently provides pursuant to the Sierra Investment Advisory Agreement. The terms and conditions of the Combined Company Investment Advisory Agreement are substantially identical in all material respects to the Sierra Investment Advisory Agreement. Following approval by the Sierra Stockholders in the manner required by the Investment Company Act, the Combined Company Investment Advisory Agreement will become effective immediately following the closing of the Mergers. The Combined Company Investment Advisory Agreement will remain in effect for a period of two years. Unless earlier terminated, the Combined Company Investment Advisory Agreement will remain in effect from year-to-year thereafter if approved annually at an in-person meeting of the Combined Company Board by a majority of Combined Company's Non-Interested Directors, and either the Combined Company Board or the holders of a majority of the Combined Company's outstanding voting securities.

Advisory and Other Services

The terms and conditions of the Sierra Investment Advisory Agreement and the Combined Company Investment Advisory Agreement are substantially identical in all material respects. Under the terms of the Combined Company Investment Advisory Agreement, subject to the supervision of the Combined Company Board, MCC Advisors will manage the Combined Company's day-to-day operations and provide investment advisory services to the Combined Company, in each case in accordance with the Combined Company's investment objectives, policies, and restrictions. Under the terms of the Combined Company Investment Advisory Agreement, MCC Advisors will be responsible for the following:

- determining the composition and allocation of the Combined Company's investment portfolio, the nature and timing of any changes to its portfolio and the manner of implementing such changes;
- identifying and evaluating the structure of the investments made by the Combined Company;
- performing due diligence on prospective portfolio companies;
- executing, closing, servicing and monitoring the Combined Company's investments;
- determining the securities and other assets that the Combined Company will purchase, retain or sell;
- providing the Combined Company with such other investment advisory, research and related services as it may, from time to time, reasonably require for the investment of its funds; and
- to the extent permitted under the Investment Company Act and the Advisers Act, on the Combined Company's behalf, and in coordination with any sub-adviser and administrator, providing significant managerial assistance to those portfolio companies to which the Combined Company is required to provide such assistance under the Investment Company Act, including utilizing appropriate personnel of MCC Advisors to, among other things, monitor the operations of the Combined Company's portfolio companies, participate in board and management meetings, consult with and advise officers of portfolio companies and provide other organizational and financial consultation.

Under the Combined Company Investment Advisory Agreement, MCC Advisors will have a fiduciary responsibility for the safeguarding and use of all of the Combined Company's funds and assets. MCC Advisors would also be subject to liability under both the Investment Company Act and the Advisers Act for a breach of these fiduciary duties.

MCC Advisors will be primarily responsible for initially identifying, evaluating and structuring the Combined Company's investments. These activities will be carried out by its investment teams and subject to the oversight of MCC Advisors' senior investment personnel. Each investment that the Combined Company makes will require the approval of MCC Advisors before the investment may be made.

The services MCC Advisors will provide to the Combined Company will not be exclusive, and MCC Advisors may engage in any other business or render similar services to other entities so long as its services to Sierra are not impaired.

Management Fees

The management fees under the Combined Company Investment Advisory Agreement will be calculated in a manner identical to that of the Sierra Investment Advisory Agreement. The Combined Company will pay MCC Advisors a fee for its services under the Combined Company Investment Advisory Agreement consisting of two components: a base management fee and an incentive fee. Sierra believes that this fee structure will benefit the Combined Company's stockholders by aligning the compensation of MCC Advisors with the Combined Company's overall investment performance. The cost of both the base management fee and the incentive fee will ultimately be borne by the Combined Company's stockholders.

Base Management Fee

The base management fee is calculated at an annual rate of 1.75% of the Combined Company's gross assets and is payable quarterly in arrears. For purposes of calculating the base management fee, the term "gross assets" includes any assets acquired with the proceeds of leverage. As a result, MCC Advisors will receive a higher base management fee when the Combined Company incurs debt or uses leverage. The base management fee is calculated based on the Combined Company's gross assets at the end of each completed calendar quarter. Base management fees for any partial quarter will be appropriately pro-rated.

Incentive Fee

The incentive fee is divided into two parts: (i) a subordinated incentive fee on income and (ii) an incentive fee on capital gains. Each part of the incentive fee is outlined below.

The subordinated incentive fee on income for each quarter will be calculated as follows:

- No subordinated incentive fee on income is payable in any calendar quarter in which the pre-incentive fee net investment income does not exceed a quarterly return to stockholders of 1.75% per quarter on the Combined Company's net assets at the end of the immediately preceding fiscal quarter. The Combined Company refers to this as the preferred quarterly return.
- All of the Combined Company's pre-incentive fee net investment income, if any, that exceeds the preferred quarterly return, but is less than or equal to 2.1875% on the Combined Company's net assets at the end of the immediately preceding fiscal quarter in any quarter, is payable to MCC Advisors. The Combined Company refers to this portion of its subordinated incentive fee on income as the catch up. It is intended to provide an incentive fee of 20% on all of the Combined Company's pre-incentive fee net investment income when its pre-incentive fee net investment income exceeds 2.1875% on the Combined Company's net assets at the end of the immediately preceding fiscal quarter in any quarter.

- For any quarter in which the Combined Company's pre-incentive fee net investment income exceeds 2.1875% on the Combined Company's net assets at the end of the immediately preceding fiscal quarter, the subordinated incentive fee on income shall equal 20% of the amount of the Combined Company's pre-incentive fee net investment income, because the preferred return and catch up will have been achieved.
- Pre-incentive fee net investment income is defined as interest income, dividend income and any other income accrued during the calendar quarter, minus the Combined Company's operating expenses for the quarter, including the base management fee, expenses payable under its administration agreement, any interest expense and dividends paid on any issued and outstanding preferred stock, but excluding the incentive fee. Pre-incentive fee net investment income does not include any realized capital gains, realized capital losses or unrealized capital appreciation or depreciation.

An incentive fee on capital gains will be earned on investments sold and shall be determined and payable in arrears as of the end of each calendar year during which the Combined Company Investment Advisory Agreement is in effect. If the Combined Company Investment Advisory Agreement is terminated, the incentive fee on capital gains will become payable as of the effective date of such termination. The incentive fee on capital gains is based on the Combined Company's realized capital gains on a cumulative basis from inception, computed net of all realized capital losses and unrealized capital depreciation on a cumulative basis, which the Combined Company refers to as "net realized capital gains." The incentive fee on capital gains equals 20% of the Combined Company's net realized capital gains, less the aggregate amount of any previously paid incentive fee on capital gains.

Expenses

Under the Combined Company Investment Advisory Agreement, the Combined Company shall bear costs and expenses, including (without limitation): all direct and indirect costs and expenses incurred by MCC Advisors for office space rental, office equipment, utilities and other non-compensation related overhead allocable to performance of investment advisory services by MCC Advisors under the Combined Company Investment Advisory Agreement; corporate, organizational and offering expenses relating to offerings of shares of the Combined Company Common Stock, subject to limitations included in the Combined Company Investment Advisory Agreement; the cost of calculating the Combined Company's NAV, including the cost of any third-party valuation firms; offerings of the Combined Company Common Stock and other securities; fees and expenses associated with performing due diligence reviews of prospective investments; transfer agent and custodial fees; fees and expenses associated with marketing efforts (including attendance at investment conferences and similar events); federal and state registration fees; all costs of registration and listing the shares of the Combined Company Common Stock on any securities exchange; federal, state and local taxes; independent directors' fees and expenses; brokerage commissions for the Combined Company's investments; costs of proxy statements, stockholders' reports and notices; fidelity bond, directors and officers/errors and omissions liability insurance and other insurance premiums; direct costs such as printing, mailing, long distance telephone and staff costs associated with the Combined Company's reporting and compliance obligations under the Investment Company Act and applicable federal and state securities laws, including compliance with the Sarbanes-Oxley Act; fees and expenses associated with accounting, independent audits and outside legal costs; all other expenses incurred by the Combined Company or MCC Advisors in connection with administering the Combined Company's business, including expenses incurred by the Combined Company's administrator, Medley Capital LLC, in performing administrative services for the Combined Company; and the reimbursement of the compensation of the Combined Company's Chief Financial Officer and Chief Compliance Officer and their respective staffs paid by Medley Capital LLC.

Term, Continuance and Termination

The continuance and termination provisions under the Combined Company Investment Advisory Agreement are identical to the continuance and termination provisions under the Sierra Investment Advisory Agreement. The Combined Company Investment Advisory Agreement provides that it will remain in effect for two years from its effective date, and thereafter from year-to-year, subject to approval by the Combined Company Board or a vote of a majority of the outstanding voting securities of the Combined Company and by approval of a majority of the Combined Company's Non-Interested Directors. The Combined Company Investment Advisory Agreement may be terminated at any time, without the payment of any penalty, by the vote of a majority of the Combined Company's Non-Interested Directors or by a vote of a majority of the Combined Company's outstanding voting securities, on 60 days' prior written notice to MCC Advisors, or by MCC Advisors at any time, without the payment of any penalty, on 120 days' prior written notice to the Combined Company.

Indemnification

The indemnification provisions under the Combined Company Investment Advisory Agreement will be identical to the indemnification provisions under the Sierra Investment Advisory Agreement. The Combined Company Investment Advisory Agreement provides that MCC Advisors and each of its directors, officers, stockholders or members (and their stockholders or members, including the owners of their stockholders or members), agents, employees, controlling persons (as determined under the Investment Company Act) and any other person or entity affiliated with, or acting on behalf of, MCC Advisors shall not be liable to the Combined Company for any action taken or omitted to be taken by MCC Advisors in connection with the performance of any of their duties or obligations under the Combined Company Investment Advisory Agreement (except to the extent specified in Section 36(b) of the Investment Company Act concerning loss resulting from a breach of fiduciary duty with respect to the receipt of compensation for services), and the Combined Company shall indemnify, defend and protect such person or entities and hold them harmless from and against all losses, damages, liabilities, costs and expenses (including reasonable attorneys' fees and amounts reasonably paid in settlement) incurred by them in or by reason of any pending, threatened or completed action, suit, investigation or other proceeding (including an action or suit by or in the right of the Combined Company or its stockholders) arising out of or otherwise based upon the performance of any of such persons' duties or obligations under the Combined Company Investment Advisory Agreement to the extent such losses, damages, liabilities, cost and expenses are not fully reimbursed by insurance and otherwise to the fullest extent such indemnification would not be inconsistent with the New Sierra Charter, the Investment Company Act, or the laws of the State of Maryland.

The Combined Company Investment Advisory Agreement also provides that MCC Advisors shall indemnify the Combined Company, and its affiliates and controlling persons (as determined under the Investment Company Act), for any losses, damages, liabilities, costs and expenses (including reasonable attorneys' fees and amounts reasonably paid in settlement) that the Combined Company or its affiliates and controlling persons may sustain as a result of MCC Advisors' willful misfeasance, bad faith, gross negligence, reckless disregard of its duties under the Combined Company Investment Advisory Agreement or violation of applicable law, including, without limitation, the federal and state securities laws.

The Combined Company Investment Advisory Agreement further provides that MCC Advisors and its directors, officers, stockholders or members (and their stockholders or members, including the owners of their stockholders or members), agents, employees, controlling persons (as determined under the Investment Company Act), and any other person or entity affiliated with, or acting on behalf of MCC Advisors are not entitled to indemnification from the Combined Company for any liability or loss suffered by them, nor will they be held harmless for any loss or liability suffered by the Combined Company, unless all of the following conditions are met: (i) the indemnified party has determined, in good faith, that the course of conduct which caused the loss or liability was in the Combined Company's best interests; (ii) the indemnified party was acting on behalf of or performing services for the Combined Company; (iii) such liability or loss was not the result of willful misfeasance, bad faith, gross negligence or reckless disregard of its duties under the Combined Company Investment Advisory Agreement; and (iv) such indemnification or agreement to hold harmless is recoverable only out of the Combined Company's net assets and not from Combined Company's stockholders.

Board Consideration of Approval of the Combined Company Investment Advisory Agreement

Based upon the recommendation of the Sierra Special Committee, the Sierra Board, including all of the Non-Interested Directors, unanimously approved the Combined Company Investment Advisory Agreement on November 6, 2018.

In evaluating the Combined Company Investment Advisory Agreement, the Sierra Board reviewed certain materials furnished separately by MCC Advisors and Eversheds Sutherland relevant to its decision. Those materials included a copy of the Combined Company Investment Advisory Agreement; a memorandum from Eversheds Sutherland outlining the legal principles that are applicable to consideration of the approval of the Combined Company Investment Advisory Agreement by the Sierra Board; MCC Advisors' response to certain questions to assist in the Sierra Board's consideration of the approval of the Combined Company Investment Advisory Agreement; and other supporting documents and attachments. Representatives of the MCC Advisors discussed with the Sierra Board the Combined Company Investment Advisory Agreement, and indicated their belief that, as a consequence of the Combined Company Investment Advisory Agreement, the operations of MCC Advisors and its ability to provide advisory services to the Combined Company would not be adversely affected.

In its consideration of the Combined Company Investment Advisory Agreement, the Sierra Board as well as the Sierra Special Committee focused on information it had received relating to, among other things: (a) the nature, quality and extent of the advisory and other services to be provided to the Combined Company by MCC Advisors; (b) the investment performance of MCC Advisors; (c) comparative data with respect to advisory fees or similar expenses paid by other BDCs with similar investment objectives; (d) the Combined Company's projected operating expenses and expense ratio compared to BDCs with similar investment objectives; (e) any existing and potential sources of indirect income to MCC Advisors from its relationships with the Combined Company and the profitability of those relationships; (f) information about the services to be performed and the personnel performing such services under the Combined Company Investment Advisory Agreement; (g) the organizational capability and financial condition of MCC Advisors and its affiliates; (h) possible economies of scale arising from the Combined Company's size and/or anticipated growth; and (i) possible alternative fee structures or bases for determining fees. The Sierra Special Committee took into consideration that that investment performance of Sierra and MCC generally was below that of BDCs with similar investment objectives and that their advisory fees and operating expenses generally were higher than those of BDCs with similar investment objectives. The Sierra Special Committee also considered management's discussion of Sierra's and MCC's relative investment performance and expenses.

The Sierra Special Committee met in executive session with S&W regarding the approval of the Combined Company Investment Advisory Agreement. Based on the information reviewed and discussions held with respect to each of the foregoing items, the Special Committee concluded in light of all the Combined Company's surrounding circumstances that the compensation payable to MCC Advisors under the Combined Company Investment Advisory Agreement was reasonable in relation to the services to be provided by MCC Advisors to the Combined Company.

After these deliberations, the Sierra Board, including all of the Non-Interested Directors, approved the Combined Company Investment Advisory Agreement as being in the best interests of the Combined Company and its stockholders. The Sierra Board then directed that the Combined Company Investment Advisory Agreement be submitted to the Sierra Stockholders for approval with the Sierra Board's recommendation that Sierra Stockholders vote to approve the Combined Company Investment Advisory Agreement.

The Sierra Board did not assign relative weights to the above factors or the other factors considered by it. Individual members of the Sierra Board may have given different weights to different factors.

Principal Executive Offices

The principal executive office of each of Sierra and MCC Advisors is 280 Park Ave, 6th Floor East, New York, New York 10017. Upon the approval of the Combined Company Investment Advisory Agreement, the principal executive offices of each of the Combined Company and MCC Advisors will remain at the locations set forth above.

BASED UPON THE RECOMMENDATION OF THE SIERRA SPECIAL COMMITTEE, THE SIERRA BOARD UNANIMOUSLY RECOMMENDS THAT SIERRA STOCKHOLDERS VOTE "FOR" THE COMBINED COMPANY INVESTMENT ADVISORY AGREEMENT.

Sierra Stockholders may vote "FOR" or "AGAINST," or they may "ABSTAIN" from voting on, Sierra Proposal #6. Sierra Proposal #6 will be approved if a majority of the holders of (1) the outstanding shares of Sierra Common Stock as of the Sierra Record Date and (2) the outstanding shares of Sierra Common Stock as of the Sierra Record Date held by persons who are not affiliated persons of Sierra, each must affirmatively vote "FOR" the proposal. The vote of holders of a "majority," as defined in the Investment Company Act, means the vote of the holders of the lesser of (1) 67% or more of the outstanding shares of Sierra Common Stock present or represented by proxy at the Sierra Special Meeting if the holders of more than 50% of the shares of Sierra Common Stock are present or represented by proxy or (2) more than 50% of the outstanding shares of Sierra Common Stock. Because the vote on the proposal is based on the total number of shares outstanding, abstentions and "broker non-votes" will have the same effect as voting "AGAINST" the approval of the proposal.

SIERRA PROPOSAL #7: POSSIBLE ADJOURNMENT TO SOLICIT ADDITIONAL PROXIES, IF NECESSARY OR APPROPRIATE

The Sierra Special Meeting may be adjourned to another time and place to permit further solicitation of proxies, if necessary or appropriate, to obtain additional proxies if there are not sufficient votes to approve the foregoing proposals.

Sierra is asking Sierra Stockholders to authorize the holder of any proxy solicited by the Sierra Board to vote in favor of any adjournment of the Sierra Special Meeting, if necessary or appropriate, to solicit additional proxies if there are not sufficient votes at the time of the Sierra Special Meeting to approve the foregoing proposals.

BASED UPON THE RECOMMENDATION OF THE SIERRA SPECIAL COMMITTEE, THE SIERRA BOARD UNANIMOUSLY RECOMMENDS THAT SIERRA STOCKHOLDERS VOTE “FOR” THE ADJOURNMENT OF THE SIERRA SPECIAL MEETING FOR THE PURPOSE OF SOLICITING ADDITIONAL PROXIES IF THERE ARE NOT SUFFICIENT VOTES AT THE TIME OF THE SIERRA SPECIAL MEETING TO APPROVE THE FOREGOING PROPOSALS.

Sierra Stockholders may vote “FOR” or “AGAINST,” or they may “ABSTAIN” from voting on, the proposal. A majority of the votes cast by the holders of Sierra Common Stock as of the Sierra Record Date present or represented by proxy at the Sierra Special Meeting must affirmatively vote “FOR” the proposal in order for it to be approved (meaning the number of shares voted “FOR” a proposal must exceed the number of shares voted “AGAINST” such proposal). Abstentions and “broker non-votes” are not considered votes cast on the adjournment proposal, and will have no effect on the vote for the proposal.

MCC PROPOSAL #1: APPROVAL OF THE ADOPTION OF THE MCC MERGER AGREEMENT

MCC is asking MCC Stockholders to consider and adopt the MCC Merger Agreement. Approval of the adoption of the MCC Merger Agreement by the MCC Stockholders is necessary to complete the MCC Merger. See “Description of the MCC Merger Agreement” for more information.

BASED UPON THE RECOMMENDATION OF THE MCC SPECIAL COMMITTEE, THE MCC BOARD HAS UNANIMOUSLY APPROVED THE MCC MERGER AGREEMENT, INCLUDING THE TRANSACTIONS CONTEMPLATED THEREUNDER, INCLUDING THE MCC MERGER, UPON THE TERMS AND SUBJECT TO THE CONDITIONS AND LIMITATIONS SET FORTH IN THE MCC MERGER AGREEMENT, AND UNANIMOUSLY RECOMMENDS THAT MCC STOCKHOLDERS VOTE “FOR” THE APPROVAL OF THE ADOPTION OF THE MCC MERGER AGREEMENT.

MCC Stockholders may vote “FOR” or “AGAINST,” or they may “ABSTAIN” from voting on, the proposal to approve the adoption of the MCC Merger Agreement. A majority of the outstanding shares of MCC Common Stock as of the MCC Record Date must affirmatively vote “FOR” the proposal in order for it to be approved. Because the vote on the proposal is based on the total number of shares outstanding, abstentions and “broker non-votes” will have the same effect as voting “AGAINST” the approval of the proposal.

MCC PROPOSAL #2: POSSIBLE ADJOURNMENT TO SOLICIT ADDITIONAL PROXIES, IF NECESSARY OR APPROPRIATE

The MCC Special Meeting may be adjourned to another time and place to permit further solicitation of proxies, if necessary or appropriate, to obtain additional proxies if there are not sufficient votes to approve the adoption of the MCC Merger Agreement.

MCC is asking MCC Stockholders to authorize the holder of any proxy solicited by the MCC Board to vote in favor of any adjournment of the MCC Special Meeting, if necessary or appropriate, to solicit additional proxies if there are not sufficient votes at the time of the MCC Special Meeting to approve the adoption of the MCC Merger Agreement.

BASED UPON THE RECOMMENDATION OF THE MCC SPECIAL COMMITTEE, THE MCC BOARD UNANIMOUSLY RECOMMENDS THAT MCC STOCKHOLDERS VOTE “FOR” THE ADJOURNMENT OF THE MCC SPECIAL MEETING FOR THE PURPOSE OF SOLICITING ADDITIONAL PROXIES IF THERE ARE NOT SUFFICIENT VOTES AT THE TIME OF THE MCC SPECIAL MEETING TO APPROVE THE ADOPTION OF THE MCC MERGER AGREEMENT.

MCC Stockholders may vote “FOR” or “AGAINST,” or they may “ABSTAIN” from voting on, the proposal. A majority of the votes cast by the holders of MCC Common Stock as of the MCC Record Date present or represented by proxy at the MCC Special Meeting must affirmatively vote “FOR” the proposal in order for it to be approved (meaning the number of shares voted “FOR” a proposal must exceed the number of shares voted “AGAINST” such proposal). Abstentions and “broker non-votes” are not considered votes cast on the adjournment proposal, and will have no effect on the vote for the proposal.

MDLY PROPOSAL #1: APPROVAL OF THE ADOPTION OF THE MDLY MERGER AGREEMENT

MDLY is asking MDLY Stockholders to consider and adopt the MDLY Merger Agreement. Approval of the adoption of the MDLY Merger Agreement by the MDLY Stockholders is necessary to complete the MDLY Merger. Completion of the MDLY Merger is conditioned upon the consummation of the MCC Merger. See "Description of the MDLY Merger Agreement" for more information.

BASED UPON THE RECOMMENDATION OF THE MDLY SPECIAL COMMITTEE, THE MDLY BOARD HAS UNANIMOUSLY APPROVED AND DECLARED ADVISABLE THE MDLY MERGER AGREEMENT AND THE TRANSACTIONS CONTEMPLATED THEREBY, INCLUDING, WITHOUT LIMITATION, THE MDLY MERGER, AND UNANIMOUSLY RECOMMENDS THAT MDLY STOCKHOLDERS VOTE "FOR" THE APPROVAL OF THE ADOPTION OF THE MDLY MERGER AGREEMENT.

MDLY Stockholders may vote "FOR" or "AGAINST," or they may "ABSTAIN" from voting on, the proposal to approve the adoption of the MDLY Merger Agreement. The holders of a majority of the voting power of the outstanding shares of MDLY Common Stock as of the MDLY Record Date must affirmatively vote "FOR" the proposal in order for it to be approved. Because the vote on the proposal is based on the total number of shares outstanding, abstentions and "broker non-votes" will have the same effect as voting "AGAINST" the approval of the proposal.

MDLY PROPOSAL #2: POSSIBLE ADJOURNMENT TO SOLICIT ADDITIONAL PROXIES, IF NECESSARY OR APPROPRIATE

The MDLY Special Meeting may be adjourned to another time and place to permit further solicitation of proxies, if necessary or appropriate, to obtain additional proxies if there are not sufficient votes to approve the adoption of the MDLY Merger Agreement.

MDLY is asking MDLY Stockholders to authorize the holder of any proxy solicited by the MDLY Board to vote in favor of any adjournment of the MDLY Special Meeting, if necessary or appropriate, to solicit additional proxies if there are not sufficient votes at the time of the MDLY Special Meeting to approve the adoption of the MDLY Merger Agreement.

BASED UPON THE RECOMMENDATION OF THE MDLY SPECIAL COMMITTEE, THE MDLY BOARD UNANIMOUSLY RECOMMENDS THAT MDLY STOCKHOLDERS VOTE “FOR” THE ADJOURNMENT OF THE MDLY SPECIAL MEETING FOR THE PURPOSE OF SOLICITING ADDITIONAL PROXIES IF THERE ARE NOT SUFFICIENT VOTES AT THE TIME OF THE MDLY SPECIAL MEETING TO APPROVE THE ADOPTION OF THE MDLY MERGER AGREEMENT.

MDLY Stockholders may vote “FOR” or “AGAINST,” or they may “ABSTAIN” from voting on, the proposal. A majority of the votes cast by the holders of shares of MDLY Common Stock as of the MDLY Record Date present in person or by proxy at the MDLY Special Meeting must affirmatively vote “FOR” the proposal in order for it to be approved (meaning the number of shares voted “FOR” a proposal must exceed the number of shares voted “AGAINST” such proposal). Abstentions and “broker non-votes” are not considered votes cast on the adjournment proposal, and will have no effect on the vote for the proposal.

MARKET PRICE, DIVIDEND AND DISTRIBUTION INFORMATIONSierra

There is currently no publicly traded market for Sierra Common Stock. If the Mergers are successfully consummated, Sierra Common Stock will be listed on the NYSE under the symbol “SRA” and is expected to be listed on the TASE, with such listings expected to be effective as of the closing date of the Mergers. It is not possible to predict whether the Combined Company Common Stock will trade at, above, or below NAV following the completion of the Mergers. See “Risk Factors — Risks Relating to the Combined Company — There has been no public market for Sierra Common Stock, and the Companies cannot assure you that the market price of Sierra Common Stock will not decline following the closing of the Mergers” and “Risk Factors — Risks Relating to the Combined Company — Shares of the Sierra Common Stock may trade at a discount from NAV.”

Sierra’s distributions, if any, are determined by the Sierra Board. Sierra has elected, and intends to qualify annually, to be treated as a RIC under Subchapter M of the Code. To maintain RIC tax treatment, Sierra must timely distribute at least 90% of its net ordinary income and net short-term capital gains in excess of its net long-term capital losses, if any. Sierra will be subject to a 4% nondeductible U.S. federal excise tax on its undistributed income unless it distributes in a timely manner an amount at least equal to the sum of (1) 98% of its ordinary income for each calendar year, (2) 98.2% of its capital gain net income (both long-term and short-term) for the one-year period ending October 31 in that calendar year and (3) any income realized, but not distributed, in preceding years and on which it did not pay U.S. federal income tax.

The following table reflects the cash distributions per share that Sierra has declared or paid to Sierra Stockholders for the years ended December 31, 2017 and 2016 and the current fiscal year to date. Stockholders of record as of each respective semi-monthly record date were entitled to receive the distribution.

The Sierra Distribution Reinvestment Plan is an “opt in” distribution reinvestment plan pursuant to which Sierra Stockholders may elect to have the full amount of any cash distributions reinvested in additional shares of Sierra Common Stock. As a result, if Sierra declares a cash dividend or other distribution, each Sierra Stockholder that has “opted in” to the Sierra Distribution Reinvestment Plan will have their distributions automatically reinvested in additional shares of Sierra Common Stock rather than receiving cash distributions. Sierra Stockholders who receive distributions in the form of shares of Sierra Common Stock will be subject to the same federal, state and local tax consequences as if they received cash distributions. See “Sierra Distribution Reinvestment Plan.”

In connection with the Mergers, on November 6, 2018, the Sierra Board approved a distribution guidance framework that set forth a target distribution rate for the Combined Company. In that regard, the Sierra Board determined that for each of the twelve months following the consummation of the Mergers, and subject to legally available funds, the Combined Company expects to pay monthly cash distributions to the holders of the Combined Company Common Stock equal to 5.500 cents per share, which will consist of a regular base distribution per share of 4.500 cents and a supplementary distribution per share of 1.000 cents and which is an increase from the monthly distribution of 5.334 cents per share currently paid by Sierra. Thereafter, the distribution will be determined subject to Sierra’s distribution policy and such distributions could decrease after the twelve month period.

In connection with the Mergers, Sierra intends to amend the Sierra Distribution Reinvestment Plan (the “Amended Sierra DRIP”) to, among other things, modify the terms pursuant to which shares are issued under the Sierra Distribution Reinvestment Plan. Under the Amended Sierra DRIP, if the Combined Company Common Stock is trading at or above NAV the number of shares of Combined Company Common Stock to be issued to a stockholder will be determined by dividing the total dollar amount of the distribution payable to such stockholder by the greater of (i) NAV per share, and (ii) 95% of the market price per share of the Combined Company Common Stock at the close of regular trading on the NYSE on the payment date fixed by the Combined Company Board for such distribution. The market price per share on that date shall be the closing price for such shares on the NYSE or, if no sale is reported for such day, at the average of their electronically-reported bid and asked prices. If, on the other hand, the Combined Company Common Stock is trading below NAV, the plan administrator may be instructed not to credit accounts with newly-issued shares and instead to buy shares in the market (in which case there would be no discount available to stockholders) if (1) the price at which newly-issued shares are to be credited does not exceed 110% of the last determined NAV per share; or (2) the Combined Company advises the plan administrator that since such NAV was last determined, the Combined Company has become aware of events that indicate the possibility of a material change in per share NAV as a result of which the NAV of the shares on the payment date might be higher than the price at which the plan administrator would credit newly-issued shares to stockholders.

MCC

MCC Common Stock began trading on January 20, 2011, and is currently traded on the NYSE under the symbol “MCC” and the TASE. MCC Common Stock has historically traded at prices both above and below its respective NAV. The following table sets forth, for each fiscal quarter during the last two fiscal years and the current fiscal year, the NAV per share of MCC Common Stock, the high and low closing sales price for the MCC Common Stock, the high sales price as a premium (discount) to NAV, the low sales price as a premium (discount) to NAV, and the dividends declared by MCC. On December 14, 2018, the last reported actual sales price of MCC Common Stock on the NYSE was $3.22 per share, which represented a discount of approximately (45.42%) to the NAV per share reported by MCC as of September 30, 2018.

(1) NAV per share is determined as of the last day in the relevant quarter and therefore may not reflect the NAV per share on the date of the high and low sales prices. The NAVs shown are based on outstanding shares at the end of each period.

(2) Calculated as of the respective high or low closing sales price divided by the quarter end NAV and subtracting 1.

(3) Represents the cash dividend declared for the specified quarter.

* Not determinable at the time of filing.

MCC’s dividends, if any, are determined by the MCC Board. MCC has elected, and intends to qualify annually, to be treated as a RIC under Subchapter M of the Code. To maintain RIC tax treatment, MCC must timely distribute at least 90% of its net ordinary income and net short-term capital gains in excess of its net long-term capital losses, if any. The MCC Dividend Reinvestment Plan provides for reinvestment of MCC's dividends and other distributions on behalf of MCC Stockholders, unless a MCC Stockholder elects to receive cash. As a result, if the MCC Board authorizes, and MCC declares, a cash dividend or other distribution, then MCC Stockholders who have not "opted out" of the MCC Dividend Reinvestment Plan will have their cash distribution automatically reinvested in additional shares of MCC Common Stock, rather than receiving the cash distribution. See "MCC Dividend Reinvestment Plan."

MDLY

MDLY Class A Common Stock began trading on September 24, 2014, and is currently traded on the NYSE under the symbol "MDLY." There is no publicly traded market for MDLY Class B Common Stock, which is held by Medley Group, LLC.

The following table sets forth the high and low intra-day sales prices per share of the MDLY Class A Common Stock, for the periods indicated, as reported by the NYSE:

	Sales Price

Dividend Policy

Through December 14, 2018 of fiscal year 2018, MDLY paid quarterly dividends of $0.20 per share to holders of the MDLY Class A Common Stock on March 7, 2018, May 24, 2018, August 23, 2018 and December 12, 2018. During fiscal year 2017, MDLY paid quarterly dividends of $0.20 per share to holders of the MDLY Class A Common Stock on March 6, 2017, May 31, 2017, September 6, 2017 and December 6, 2017. During fiscal year 2016, MDLY paid quarterly dividends of $0.20 per share to holders of the MDLY Class A Common Stock on March 4, 2016, June 2, 2016, September 6, 2016 and December 5, 2016.

The declaration, amount and payment of any future dividends on shares of MDLY Class A Common Stock will be at the sole discretion of the MDLY Board and MDLY may reduce or discontinue entirely the payment of such dividends at any time. The MDLY Board may take into account general and economic conditions, its financial condition and operating results, its available cash and current and anticipated cash needs, capital requirements, contractual, legal, tax and regulatory restrictions and implications on the payment of dividends by MDLY to MDLY Stockholders or by its subsidiaries to MDLY, and such other factors as the MDLY Board may deem relevant.

MDLY is a holding company and has no material assets other than its ownership of Medley LLC Units. MDLY intends to cause Medley LLC to make distributions to MDLY in an amount sufficient to cover cash dividends, if any, declared by MDLY. If Medley LLC makes such distributions to MDLY, Medley LLC Unitholders will also be entitled to receive distributions pro rata in accordance with the percentages of their respective LLC interests.

Any financing arrangements that MDLY enters into in the future may include restrictive covenants that limit its ability to pay dividends. In addition, Medley LLC is generally prohibited under the DGCL from making a distribution to a member to the extent that, at the time of the distribution, after giving effect to the distribution, liabilities of Medley LLC (with certain exceptions) exceed the fair value of its assets. Subsidiaries of Medley LLC are generally subject to similar legal limitations on their ability to make distributions to Medley LLC. In addition, MDLY's revolving credit facility limits the ability of Medley LLC to pay distributions to MDLY. See "Management's Discussion and Analysis of Financial Condition and Results of Operations of MDLY—Liquidity and Capital Resources — Debt Instruments — Revolving Credit Facility."

Because MDLY must pay taxes and make payments under the Tax Receivable Agreement, amounts ultimately distributed to holders of the MDLY Class A Common Stock are expected to be less than the amounts distributed by Medley LLC to its members on a per LLC Unit basis.

Medley LLC's historical distributions include compensatory payments and other benefits paid to its senior professionals who are members of Medley LLC, which have historically been accounted for as distributions on the equity held by such senior professionals rather than as employee compensation. Following MDLY's IPO, guaranteed payments and other benefits paid to MDLY's senior professionals who are members of Medley LLC are accounted for as employee compensation.

For the nine months ended September 30, 2018, Medley LLC made distributions to its pre-IPO owners in the amount of $15.4 million. For the years ended December 31, 2017, 2016 and 2015, Medley LLC made distributions to its pre-IPO owners in the amount of $23.2 million, $22.7 million and $32.7 million, respectively.

BUSINESS OF SIERRA

Set forth below is the current description of the business and administrative operations of Sierra. This Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus document relates to the Sierra Common Stock to be issued to the MCC Stockholders and the MDLY Stockholders in connection with the MCC Merger and the MDLY Merger, respectively. If the Mergers are successfully consummated, Sierra Common Stock will be listed on the NYSE under the symbol "SRA" and the TASE, with such listings expected to be effective as of the closing date of the Mergers. Upon completion of the Mergers, the investment portfolios of MCC and Sierra would be combined, Merger Sub, as a successor to MDLY, would be a wholly owned subsidiary of the Combined Company, and the Combined Company would be internally managed by its wholly controlled adviser subsidiary. Following the completion of the Mergers, the Combined Company will continue to pursue the same principal investment strategy and investment approach as Sierra, as described in detail below. For more information about the business and administrative operations of the Combined Company if the Mergers are successfully consummated, see "Information about the Combined Company."

Sierra is currently an externally managed, non-diversified closed-end management investment company that has elected to be regulated as a BDC under the Investment Company Act. Sierra is externally managed by SIC Advisors, which is a registered investment adviser with the SEC under the Advisers Act, and a majority owned subsidiary of Medley. SIC Advisors is responsible for sourcing potential investments, conducting due diligence on prospective investments, analyzing investment opportunities, structuring investments and monitoring Sierra's portfolio on an ongoing basis. Sierra has elected, and intends to qualify annually, to be treated for U.S. federal income tax purposes, as a RIC under Subchapter M of the Code. Sierra's investment objective is to generate current income, and to a lesser extent, long-term capital appreciation. Sierra intends to meet its investment objective by primarily lending to, and investing in the debt of privately owned U.S. middle market companies, which it defines as companies with annual revenue between $50 million and $1 billion. Sierra intends to focus primarily on making investments in first lien senior secured debt, second lien secured debt, and to a lesser extent, subordinated debt, of middle market companies in a broad range of industries. Sierra expects that the majority of its debt investments will bear interest at floating interest rates, but its portfolio may also include fixed-rate investments. Sierra currently originates transactions sourced through SIC Advisors' existing network, and, to a lesser extent, acquires debt securities through the secondary market. Sierra may make equity investments in companies that it believes will generate appropriate risk adjusted returns, although it does not expect such investments to be a substantial portion of its portfolio. During its offering period, which was terminated as of July 31, 2018, and thereafter, if SIC Advisors deems it appropriate and to the extent permitted by the Investment Company Act, Sierra expects to invest in more liquid debt securities, some of which may trade on a national securities exchange.

Sierra believes that the current market environment presents a significant opportunity for its strategy. The trend of bank consolidation that has occurred over the last 20 years has reduced the amount of capital available for middle market borrowers, which it defines as borrowers with annual revenues of $50 million to $1 billion. At the same time, demand for capital from these borrowers remains strong. Sierra believes that this favorable supply and demand dynamic will allow it to earn wider spreads with increased equity upside while taking less risk than in recent business cycles. Sierra intends to capitalize on this opportunity through what it believes to be a disciplined and consistent investment approach focused on principal protection.

As of September 30, 2018, SIC Advisors, through Medley, has access to 72 employees, including origination, credit management, operations, marketing and distribution professionals, each with extensive experience in their respective disciplines.

Sierra leverages what it believes to be SIC Advisors' seasoned team and broad network to source compelling investment opportunities. Sierra evaluates these opportunities through an investment approach that emphasizes strong fundamental credit analysis and active portfolio monitoring. Sierra intends to be disciplined in selecting investments and focus on opportunities that it perceives offer favorable risk/reward characteristics.

Sierra may use debt within the levels permitted by the Investment Company Act when the terms and conditions available are favorable to long-term investing and well-aligned with its investment strategy and portfolio composition. In determining whether to borrow money, Sierra will analyze the maturity, covenant package and rate structure of the proposed borrowings, as well as the risks of such borrowings within the context of its investment outlook and the impact of leverage on its investment portfolio. Sierra may use leverage to fund new transactions, alleviating the timing challenges of raising new equity capital through a continuous offering, and to enhance stockholder returns. The amount of leverage that Sierra employs is subject to oversight by the Sierra Board, including a majority of independent directors with no material interests in such transactions.

On July 2, 2018, the Sierra Board determined to terminate the offering of the Sierra Common Stock, effective as of July 31, 2018. Prior to such date, Sierra issued shares of Sierra Common Stock through the offering, each share of which has equal rights to distributions, voting, liquidation, and conversion. Sierra Common Stock is non-assessable, meaning that there is no liability for calls or assessments, nor are there any preemptive rights in favor of existing Sierra Stockholders. Sierra's distributions are determined by the Sierra Board in its sole discretion.

SIC Advisors

Sierra's investment activities are managed by its investment adviser, SIC Advisors. SIC Advisors is an affiliate of Medley and is based in New York. In exchange for the provision of certain non-investment advisory services to SIC Advisors, and pursuant to a joint venture agreement, Strategic Capital, an affiliate of the dealer manager owned 20% of SIC Advisors and was entitled to receive distributions of up to 20% of the gross cash proceeds received by SIC Advisors from the management and incentive fees payable by Sierra net of certain expenses. The purpose of this arrangement was to permit SIC Advisors to capitalize upon the expertise of the executives of Strategic Capital and its affiliates in providing administrative and operational services with respect to non-exchange traded investment vehicles similar to Sierra. Strategic Capital provided certain services to, and on behalf of, SIC Advisors, including consulting and non-investment advisory services related to administrative and operational services. On August 9, 2018, Medley LLC exercised its right to redeem Strategic Partners interests in SIC Advisors. As payment of the purchase price for these interests, through June 30, 2022, SIC Advisors is obligated to pay to Strategic Capital an amount equal to up to 20% of the gross cash proceeds received by SIC Advisors from the management and incentive fees payable by Sierra net of certain expenses.

On November 25, 2013, Sierra received an exemptive order from the SEC that permits Sierra to participate in negotiated co-investment transactions with certain affiliates, each of whose investment adviser is Medley, LLC or an investment adviser controlled by Medley, LLC in a manner consistent with Sierra's investment objective, strategies and restrictions, as well as regulatory requirements and other pertinent factors (the "Prior Exemptive Order"). On March 29, 2017, Sierra, SIC Advisors and certain other affiliated funds and investment advisers received an exemptive order (the "Exemptive Order") for a co-investment order that supersedes the Prior Exemptive Order and allows affiliated registered investment companies to participate in co-investment transactions with Sierra that would otherwise be prohibited under Section 17(d) and 57(a)(4) of the Investment Company Act and Rule 17d-1 thereunder. On October 4, 2017, Sierra, SIC Advisors and certain of its affiliates received an exemptive order that supersedes the Exemptive Order (the "Current Exemptive Order") and allows, in addition to the entities already covered by the Exemptive Order, Medley LLC and its subsidiary, Medley Capital LLC, to the extent they hold financial assets in a principal capacity, and any direct or indirect, wholly- or majority-owned subsidiary of Medley LLC that is formed in the future, to participate in co-investment transactions with Sierra that would otherwise be prohibited by either or both of Sections 17(d) and 57(a)(4) of the Investment Company Act. The terms of the Current Exemptive Order are otherwise substantially similar to the Exemptive Order. Co-investment under the Current Exemptive Order is subject to certain conditions therein, including the condition that, in the case of each co-investment transaction, the Sierra Board determines that it would be in its best interest to participate in the transaction. However, neither Sierra nor the affiliated funds are obligated to invest or co-invest when investment opportunities are referred to Sierra or them. If the Mergers are successfully consummated, the Combined Company and certain of its affiliates will not be able to rely on the Current Exemptive Order. In this regard, on November 19, 2018, Sierra and certain of its affiliates submitted an exemptive application to the SEC that requests an exemptive order that would supersede the Current Exemptive Order and would permit the Combined Company to participate in negotiated co-investment transactions with certain affiliates. For more information, see "Information about the Combined Company — Operational Plans of the Combined Company — Co-Investments."

In situations where co-investments with other clients of Medley or its affiliates is not permitted or appropriate, such as when there is an opportunity to invest in different securities of the same issuer or where the different investments could be expected to result in a conflict between Sierra's interests and those of other Medley clients, SIC Advisors and the Medley affiliate will need to decide which client will proceed with the investment. SIC Advisors and the Medley affiliate will make these determinations based on its policies and procedures, which generally require that such opportunities be offered to eligible accounts on an alternating basis that are fair and equitable over time. Moreover, except in certain circumstances, Sierra is unable to invest in any issuer in which a fund managed by Medley or its affiliates has previously invested. Similar restrictions limit Sierra's ability to transact business with its officers or directors or their affiliates.

Sierra believes Medley's senior management team has a significant amount of experience in the credit business, including origination, underwriting, principal investing and loan structuring. SIC Advisors' investment team, which is provided for by Medley, is responsible for sourcing investment opportunities, conducting industry research, performing diligence on potential investments, structuring Sierra's investments and monitoring its portfolio companies on an ongoing basis. SIC Advisors' investment team draws on its expertise in a range of sectors, including, but not limited to industrial and transportation, energy and natural resources, financials, healthcare, media and telecom and real estate. In addition, SIC Advisors seeks to diversify its portfolio by company type, asset type, transaction size, industry and geography.

Medley Capital LLC serves as Sierra's administrator, provides office space to Sierra and provides it with equipment and office services. The responsibilities of Sierra's administrator include overseeing its financial records, preparing reports to Sierra Stockholders and reports filed with the SEC, and generally monitoring the payment of its expenses and the performance of administrative and professional services rendered to it by others. See "Administration Agreement and Fees" below.

Investment Strategy

Sierra's investment strategy focuses primarily on sourcing investments in private U.S. companies as it seeks to construct a portfolio that generates what it believes to be superior risk adjusted returns. Sierra's investment process is centered around three principles:

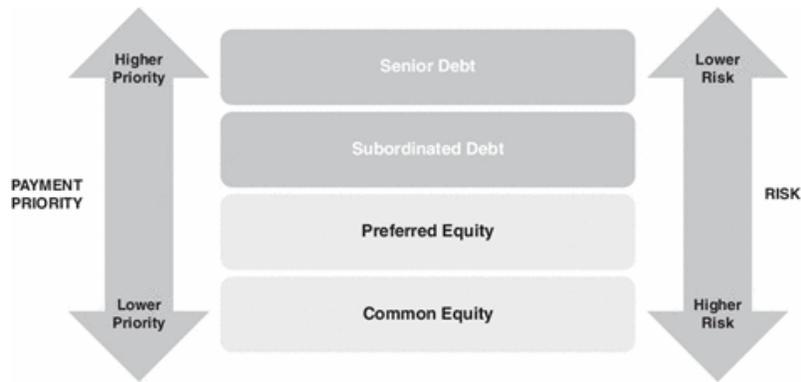

- first, disciplined due diligence of each company's credit fundamentals;
- second, a detailed and customized structuring process for directly originated investments; and
- third, regular and ongoing monitoring of the portfolio and proactive risk management.

While the construction of Sierra's portfolio will vary over time, its portfolio is comprised primarily of investments in first lien senior secured debt, second lien secured debt, and to a lesser extent, subordinated debt, of middle market companies in a broad range of industries. Sierra expects that the majority of its debt investments will bear interest at floating interest rates, but its portfolio may also include fixed-rate investments. Sierra currently originates the majority of its investments through Medley's direct origination platform, and in particular through negotiated co-investment transactions with certain of Medley's affiliates pursuant to the Current Exemptive Order.

Notwithstanding the foregoing, Sierra may purchase interests in loans through secondary market transactions. Sierra may also invest in equity securities in the form of common or preferred equity in its target companies or receive equity interests such as warrants or options as additional consideration in connection with its debt investments. In addition, a portion of Sierra's portfolio may be comprised of other securities such as corporate bonds, mezzanine debt, CLOs and other debt investments. However, such investments are not expected to comprise a significant portion of Sierra's portfolio.

Investment Types

Sierra's investment approach focuses primarily on investments in first lien senior secured debt securities and second lien secured debt securities, but also includes investments in subordinated debt securities. As a result, Sierra's debt investments may have various levels of security or may be unsecured. Sierra may seek to invest in common or preferred equity as deemed appropriate by SIC Advisors. Such equity investments may take the form of either non-controlling or controlling positions. SIC Advisors will seek to manage its allocation between investment types as market conditions change. The diagram below outlines the range of securities in a typical portfolio company's capital structure.

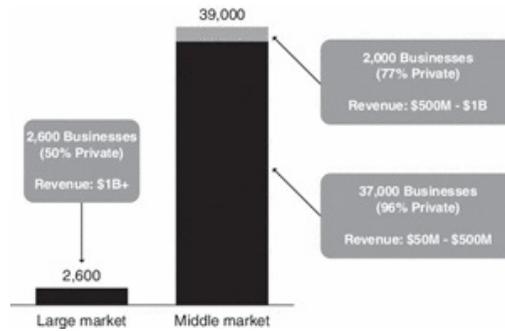

In addition to the investments noted above, Sierra may invest up to 30% of its portfolio in opportunistic investments, including, but not limited to, the securities of larger public companies and foreign securities which, for purposes of the Investment Company Act, may be deemed to be “non-qualifying assets.” All investments by Sierra are subject to oversight by the Sierra Board, a majority of whom are independent directors with no material interests in such transactions.

Market Opportunity

Sierra believes the middle-market private debt industry is undergoing structural shifts that are creating significant opportunities for non-bank lenders and investors. The underlying drivers of these structural changes, which are outlined below, include: a large addressable market, reduced participation by banks in the private debt markets, particularly within the middle-market, and demand for private debt created by committed and uninvested private equity capital. Sierra intends to focus on taking advantage of this structural shift by lending directly to companies that are underserved by the traditional banking. Sierra expects to source investment opportunities through a variety of channels including direct relationships with companies, financial intermediaries such as national, regional and local bankers, accountants, lawyers and consultants, as well as through financial sponsors that Medley has cultivated over the past eight years. As a leading provider of private debt, Medley is often sought out as a preferred financing partner.

Large Addressable Market. Private debt capital plays an important role in financing U.S. middle-market companies. These companies typically borrow capital to facilitate growth, invest in physical plants and equipment, fund acquisitions, refinance capital structures and provide liquidity to existing shareholders. This financing flexibility enables borrowers to grow without sacrificing equity ownership or control of their businesses. The U.S. middle-market consists of approximately 39,000 businesses with revenues ranging from $50 million to $1 billion. Medley targets private debt investment and lending opportunities to these firms, the largest and most opportune segment of the market.

De-Leveraging of the Global Banking System. After an extended period of increasing leverage, commercial and investment banks have been de-leveraging since 2008. Bank consolidation, more prudent balance sheet discipline, changing regulatory capital requirements and the increasing cost and complexity of regulatory compliance have led banks to meaningfully withdraw from markets such as non-investment grade middle market and commercial real estate lending. This has created a significant opportunity for non-bank direct lenders like SIC Advisors.

The structural changes in the lending market are evidenced by the decline in the number of banks in the U.S. and the decline in bank participation in the private debt market. According to the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, or FDIC, since 1994, the number of FDIC-insured commercial banking institutions in the United States has declined by over 50%, from approximately 10,500 in 1994 to approximately 4,880 as of March 31, 2018.

Simultaneously, bank participation in the non-investment grade lending market has declined from approximately 70% to approximately 16% over the same time period.

In addition to the continued secular trend of bank consolidations, banks are operating under a new paradigm of increased risk management, focus on capital conservation and continued deleveraging. The ramifications of the difficult economic environment from 2007 to 2011 have constrained the amount of liquidity available to the middle-market and have led to the greatest restructuring of the financial services industry since the Great Depression. The combination of bank consolidation and financial regulatory changes in the wake of the global financial crisis has increasingly driven the larger banks away from the middle-market in favor of larger corporate clients. The smaller regional and community banks continue to struggle with legacy real estate assets, new regulatory burdens and increased Tier 1 capital requirements. As a result of this continued structural shift in the financial services landscape, middle-market corporate borrowers have turned to the private credit markets as an alternative source of capital to fund business growth and expansion. Further highlighting the difficulty of middle-market borrowers to access the public credit markets, the volume of both high-yield and second-lien loan issuances have declined significantly from their highest levels.

Attractive Attributes of Middle Market Debt. As a result of the decline of traditional financing sources, the attractiveness of providing capital in the middle-market has increased. A meaningful gap exists between public and private market debt spreads, primarily due to the fact that liquidity has not returned to the private lending markets in the same way it has returned to the public debt markets. As such, lenders to private middle-market companies should continue to benefit from attractive pricing.

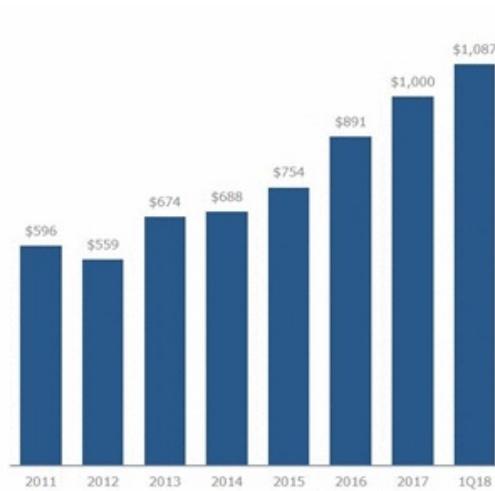

In addition, as seen in the charts below, middle market loans have lower default rates and higher recovery rates. Sierra believes the combination of these attributes results in attractive risk adjusted returns on a relative basis. The data highlighted below considers loan sizes less than $249 million and greater than $250 million. This shows middle market loans have historically had lower default rates than large market loans (3.8% vs. 4.7%). At the same time, middle market loans have a higher recovery rate than large market loans (87.5% vs. 82.4%).

Unfunded Private Equity Commitments Drive Demand for Debt Capital. According to Preqin, an industry research firm, the total amount of committed and uninvested private equity capital at March 31, 2018 is approximately $1.1 trillion, which Sierra believes will drive significant demand for private debt financing in the coming years. Lending to private companies acquired by financial sponsors requires lenders to move quickly, perform in-depth due diligence and have significant credit and structuring experience. In order to successfully serve this market, lenders need to commit to hold all, or the significant majority of, the debt needed to finance such transactions. Sierra believes that banks, due to the regulatory environment, will continue to reduce their exposure to middle market private loans. Sierra believes this creates a significant supply/demand imbalance for middle market credit, and Sierra is well positioned to bridge the gap.

Potential Competitive Strengths

Sierra believes that it represents an attractive investment opportunity for the following reasons:

Experienced Team. Sierra believes SIC Advisors' investment team has a significant amount of experience in the credit business, including origination, underwriting, principal investing and loan structuring. SIC Advisors, through Medley, has access to over 70 employees, including origination, credit management, operations, marketing and distribution professionals, each with extensive experience in their respective disciplines. Medley employs an integrated and collaborative investment process that leverages the skills and knowledge of its investment and credit management professionals. Sierra believes that this is an important competitive advantage that will allow it to deliver attractive risk-adjusted returns to its investors over time.

Direct Origination, Disciplined Underwriting and Active Credit Management. Sierra believes that the combination of Medley's direct origination platform, disciplined underwriting and active credit management is an important competitive advantage and helps Sierra preserve capital and generate attractive risk-adjusted returns for its investors. SIC Advisors' ability to directly originate, structure and lead deals enables Sierra to be more opportunistic and less reliant on traditional sources of origination. It also enables Sierra to control the loan documentation process, including negotiation of covenants, which provides consistent underwriting standards. In addition, Sierra expects to employ active credit management and interact frequently with its borrowers.

Benefits of the Broader Platform. Sierra believes that it benefits from being a part of the broader Medley platform as Sierra is able to co-invest alongside other vehicles managed by Medley and its affiliates under the Current Exemptive Order. This allows Sierra access to investments that it may not otherwise have been able to pursue if it were not part of a larger platform.

Investment Process

Sierra believes SIC Advisors, which is provided for by Medley, has cultivated a disciplined and repeatable process for executing, monitoring, structuring and exiting investments.

Identification and Sourcing. SIC Advisors' experience and reputation have allowed it to generate a substantial and continuous flow of attractive investment opportunities. SIC Advisors maintains a strong and diverse network which results in sustained and high quality deal flow. Sierra believes that the breadth and depth of experience of SIC Advisors' Investment Team across strategies and asset classes, coupled with significant relationships built over the last 20 years, make them particularly qualified to uncover, evaluate and aggressively pursue attractive investment opportunities. Sierra believes that SIC Advisors' investment team has compiled a robust pipeline of transactions ready for possible inclusion in its portfolio by leveraging the broader Medley platform's deal flow network.

Disciplined Underwriting. SIC Advisors' investment team performs thorough due diligence and focuses on several key criteria in its underwriting process, including strong underlying business fundamentals, a meaningful equity cushion, experienced management, conservative valuation and the ability to deleverage through cash flows. Sierra expects to often be the agent for the loans it originates and accordingly controls the loan documentation and negotiation of covenants, which will allow Sierra to maintain consistent underwriting standards. SIC Advisors' underwriting process also involves engagement of industry experts and third party consultants.

Prior to making an investment, SIC Advisors' investment team subjects each potential borrower to an extensive credit review process, which typically begins with an analysis of the market opportunity, business fundamentals, company operating metrics and historical and projected financial analysis. SIC Advisors' investment team also compares liquidity, operating margin trends, leverage, free cash flow and fixed charge coverage ratios for each potential investment to industry metrics. Areas of additional underwriting focus include management or sponsor (typically a private equity firm) experience, management compensation, competitive landscape, regulatory environment, pricing power, defensibility of market share and tangible asset values. Background checks are conducted and tax compliance information may also be requested on management teams and key employees. In addition, the Investment Team contacts customers, suppliers and competitors and performs on-site visits as part of a routine business due diligence process.

SIC Advisors' investment team routinely uses third party consultants and market studies to corroborate valuation and industry specific due diligence, as well as provide quality of earnings analysis. Experienced legal counsel is engaged to evaluate and mitigate regulatory, insurance, tax or other company-specific risks.

After SIC Advisors' investment team completes its final due diligence, each proposed investment is presented to the SIC Advisors' investment committee and subjected to extensive discussion and follow-up analysis, if necessary. A formal memorandum for each investment opportunity typically includes the results of business due diligence, multi-scenario financial analysis, risk-management assessment, results of third-party consulting work, background checks (where applicable) and structuring proposals. The SIC Advisors' investment committee requires a majority vote to approve any investment, although unanimous agreement is sought.

Active Credit Management. SIC Advisors employs active credit management. SIC Advisors' process includes frequent interaction with management, monthly or quarterly review of financial information and attendance at the Sierra Board's meetings as observers. Investment professionals with deep restructuring and workout experience support Sierra's credit management effort. SIC Advisors' investment team also evaluates financial reporting packages provided by portfolio companies that detail operational and financial performance. Data is entered in SIC Advisors' asset management system ("AMS"), a best-practice investment management software program.

AMS creates a centralized, dynamic electronic repository for all of Sierra's portfolio company data. SIC Advisors' AMS generates comprehensive, standardized reports which aggregate operational updates, portfolio company financial performance, asset valuations, macro trends, management call notes and account history. AMS enables SIC Advisors' Investment Team to have real-time access to the most recent information on Sierra's portfolio investments.

In addition to the data provided by Sierra's borrowers, SIC Advisors may also utilize various third parties to provide checks and balances throughout the credit management process. Independent valuation firms may be engaged to provide appraisals of asset and collateral values or external forensic accounting groups may be engaged to verify portfolio company financial reporting or perform cash reconciliation. SIC Advisors believes this hands-on approach to credit management is a key contributor to Sierra's investment performance.

Managerial Assistance

As a BDC, Sierra will offer, and must provide upon request, managerial assistance to certain of its portfolio companies. This assistance could involve, among other things, monitoring the operations of its portfolio companies, participating in board and management meetings, consulting with and advising officers of portfolio companies and providing other organizational and financial guidance. Sierra may receive fees for these services and will reimburse Medley Capital LLC, as its administrator, for its allocated costs in providing such assistance subject to review and approval by the Sierra Board. Medley will provide such managerial assistance on Sierra's behalf to portfolio companies that request this assistance.

Properties

Sierra does not own any real estate or other physical properties materially important to its operation. Sierra's headquarters are currently located at 280 Park Ave, 6th Floor East, New York, NY 10017. Sierra's administrator furnishes Sierra with office space and Sierra reimburses it for such costs on an allocated basis.

Legal Proceedings

There are no material pending legal proceedings to which Sierra or any of its subsidiaries are a party or of which any of its property or any of its subsidiaries' property is the subject.

Competition

Sierra's primary competitors to provide financing to private and middle-market companies are public and private funds, commercial banks, commercial finance companies, other BDCs, small business investment companies and private equity and hedge funds. Some competitors may have access to funding sources that are not available to Sierra. In addition, some of Sierra's competitors may have higher risk tolerances or different risk assessments, which could allow them to consider a wider variety of investments and establish more relationships than Sierra. Furthermore, many of its competitors are not subject to the regulatory restrictions that the Investment Company Act imposes on Sierra as a BDC or to the distribution and other requirements it must satisfy to maintain its favorable RIC tax treatment.

Staffing

Sierra does not currently have any employees. Services necessary for its business are provided by individuals who are employees of SIC Advisors and Medley, pursuant to the terms of the Sierra Investment Advisory Agreement and the Sierra Administration Agreement. Sierra’s day-to-day investment operations are managed by SIC Advisors. In addition, Sierra reimburses Medley for its allocable portion of expenses incurred by it in performing its obligations under the Sierra Administration Agreement, including its allocable portion of the cost of the Chief Financial Officer and the Chief Compliance Officer and their respective staffs.

Administration

Sierra has entered into an administration agreement with Medley Capital LLC (the “Sierra Administration Agreement”) pursuant to which Medley Capital LLC furnishes Sierra with administrative services necessary to conduct its day-to-day operations. Medley Capital LLC is reimbursed for administrative expenses it incurs on Sierra’s behalf in performing its obligations. Such costs are reasonably allocated to Sierra on the basis of assets, revenues, time records or other reasonable methods. Sierra does not reimburse Medley Capital LLC for any services for which it receives a separate fee or for rent, depreciation, utilities, capital equipment or other administrative items allocated to a controlling person of Medley Capital LLC. Medley Capital LLC is an affiliate of SIC Advisors. See “Administration Agreement and Fees” below.

Investments

Sierra has built an investment portfolio that includes senior secured first lien term loans, senior secured second lien term loans, senior secured first lien notes, subordinated notes and equity/warrants.

The following table shows the investment portfolio composition by industry classification at fair value as of September 30, 2018, exclusive of the underlying TRS portfolio:

Industry Classification	Amortized Cost	Percentage	Fair Value	Percentage
Multi-Sector Holdings	$ 171,218,537	16.5%	$ 163,285,388	16.9%

Investment Advisory Agreement and Fees

Sierra's investment process is currently provided through the efforts of SIC Advisors and benefits from the business and specific industry knowledge, transaction expertise and deal-sourcing capabilities of Medley. SIC Advisors is responsible for the overall management of Sierra's activities and for the day-to-day management of Sierra's investment portfolio. SIC Advisors provides its services under the Sierra Investment Advisory Agreement with Sierra. The activities of SIC Advisors are subject to the supervision and oversight of the Sierra Board.

Advisory Services

Under the terms of the Sierra Investment Advisory Agreement, SIC Advisors is currently responsible for the following:

- determining the composition and allocation of Sierra's portfolio, the nature and timing of the changes to Sierra's portfolio and the manner of implementing such changes;
- identifying, evaluating, negotiating and structuring the investments Sierra makes;
- performing due diligence on prospective portfolio companies;
- executing, closing, servicing and monitoring the investments Sierra makes;
- determining the securities and other assets that Sierra will purchase, retain or sell; and
- providing Sierra with such other investment advisory, research and related services as Sierra may, from time to time, reasonably require for the investment of its capital.

Under the Sierra Investment Advisory Agreement, SIC Advisors has a fiduciary responsibility for the safeguarding and use of all of Sierra's funds and assets. SIC Advisors is also subject to liability under both the Investment Company Act and the Advisers Act for a breach of these fiduciary duties.

Currently, SIC Advisors is primarily responsible for initially identifying, evaluating, negotiating and structuring Sierra's investments. These activities will be carried out by its investment teams and subject to the oversight of SIC Advisors' senior investment personnel. Each investment that Sierra makes will require the approval of SIC Advisors before the investment may be made. Certain affiliated co-investment transactions may require the additional approval of Sierra's independent directors.

SIC Advisors' services under the Sierra Investment Advisory Agreement are not exclusive, and it is free to furnish similar services to other entities so long as its services to Sierra are not impaired.

Term; Effective Date

The Sierra Investment Advisory Agreement was initially approved by the Sierra Board on April 5, 2012 and, pursuant to the Investment Company Act, remained in effect for a period of two years. Unless earlier terminated as described below, the Sierra Investment Advisory Agreement will remain in effect from year-to-year thereafter if approved annually at an in-person meeting of the Sierra Board by a majority of Sierra's directors who are not "interested persons" as defined in the Investment Company Act, of Sierra or SIC Advisors, and either the Sierra Board or the holders of a majority of Sierra's outstanding voting securities. Most recently, the Sierra Board held an in-person meeting on March 8, 2018, in order to consider and approve the annual approval and continuation of the Sierra Investment Advisory Agreement.

In its consideration of the Sierra Investment Advisory Agreement, the Sierra Board focused on information it had received relating to, among other things: (a) the nature, quality and extent of the advisory and other services to be provided to Sierra by SIC Advisors; (b) the investment performance of SIC Advisors; (c) comparative data with respect to advisory fees or similar expenses paid by other BDCs with similar investment objectives; (d) Sierra's projected operating expenses and expense ratio compared to BDCs with similar investment objectives; (e) any existing and potential sources of indirect income to SIC Advisors from its relationships with Sierra and the profitability of those relationships; (f) information about the services to be performed and the personnel performing such services under the Sierra Investment Advisory Agreement; (g) the organizational capability and financial condition of SIC Advisors and its respective affiliates; (h) possible economies of scale arising from Sierra's size and/or anticipated growth; and (i) possible alternative fee structures or bases for determining fees.

Based on the information reviewed and the discussion thereof, the Sierra Board, including a majority of the non-interested directors, concluded that the investment management fee rates and terms are reasonable in relation to the services to be provided and approved the Sierra Investment Advisory Agreement for a period of one additional year, which will expire on April 17, 2019.

The Sierra Investment Advisory Agreement will automatically terminate in the event of its assignment. In accordance with the Investment Company Act, Sierra may terminate the Sierra Investment Advisory Agreement with SIC Advisors upon 60 days' written notice. The decision to terminate the agreement may be made by a majority of Sierra's independent directors or the holders of a majority of the outstanding shares of Sierra Common Stock. In addition, SIC Advisors may terminate the Sierra Investment Advisory Agreement with Sierra upon 120 days' written notice.

Annual Board Approval of the Investment Advisory Agreement

The Sierra Board, including a majority of independent directors, annually reviews the compensation Sierra pays to Medley to determine that the provisions of the Sierra Investment Advisory Agreement are carried out satisfactorily and to determine, among other things, whether the fees payable under such agreement are reasonable in light of the services provided. The Sierra Board reviews the methodology employed in determining how the expenses are allocated to Sierra and the proposed allocation of administrative expenses among Sierra and certain affiliates of Medley. The Sierra Board then assesses the reasonableness of such reimbursements for expenses allocated to Sierra based on the breadth, depth and quality of such services as compared to the estimated cost to Sierra of obtaining similar services from third-party service providers known to be available. In addition, the Sierra Board considers whether any single third-party service provider would be capable of providing all such services at comparable cost and quality. Finally, the Sierra Board compares the total amount paid to Medley for such services to amounts paid by other comparable BDCs to their investment advisers for similar services.

Investment Advisory Fees

Sierra pays SIC Advisors a fee for its services under the Sierra Investment Advisory Agreement consisting of two components: a management fee and an incentive fee. Sierra believes that this fee structure benefits Sierra Stockholders by aligning the compensation of SIC Advisors with Sierra's overall investment performance. The cost of both the management fee and the incentive fee are ultimately borne by Sierra Stockholders.

Base Management Fee

The base management fee is calculated at an annual rate of 1.75% of Sierra's gross assets payable quarterly in arrears. For purposes of calculating the base management fee, the term "gross assets" includes any assets acquired with the proceeds of leverage. SIC Advisors will benefit when Sierra incurs debt or uses leverage. The base management fee is calculated based on Sierra's gross assets at the end of each completed calendar quarter. Base management fees for any partial quarter will be appropriately pro-rated.

Incentive Fee

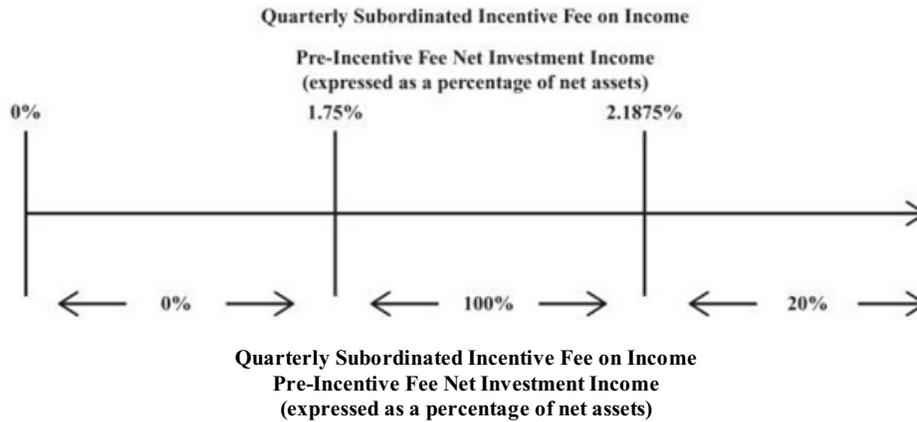

The incentive fee is divided into two parts: (i) a subordinated incentive fee on income and (ii) an incentive fee on capital gains. Each part of the incentive fee is outlined below.

The subordinated incentive fee on income is earned on pre-incentive fee net investment income and is determined and payable in arrears as of the end of each calendar quarter during which the Sierra Investment Advisory Agreement is in effect. If the Sierra Investment Advisory Agreement is terminated, the fee will also become payable as of the effective date of the termination.

The subordinated incentive fee on income for each quarter will be calculated as follows:

- No subordinated incentive fee on income is payable in any calendar quarter in which the pre-incentive fee net investment income does not exceed a quarterly return to investors of 1.75% per quarter on Sierra's net assets at the end of the immediately preceding fiscal quarter. Sierra refers to this as the preferred quarterly return.
- All of Sierra's pre-incentive fee net investment income, if any, that exceeds the preferred quarterly return, but is less than or equal to 2.1875% on Sierra's net assets at the end of the immediately preceding fiscal quarter in any quarter, is payable to SIC Advisors. Sierra refers to this portion of its subordinated incentive fee on income as the catch up. It is intended to provide an incentive fee of 20% on all of Sierra's pre-incentive fee net investment income when Sierra's pre-incentive fee net investment income exceeds 2.1875% on its net assets at the end of the immediately preceding fiscal quarter in any quarter.
- For any quarter in which Sierra's pre-incentive fee net investment income exceeds 2.1875% on its net assets at the end of the immediately preceding fiscal quarter, the subordinated incentive fee on income shall equal 20% of the amount of Sierra's pre-incentive fee net investment income, because the preferred return and catch up will have been achieved.
- Pre-incentive fee net investment income is defined as interest income, dividend income and any other income accrued during the calendar quarter, minus Sierra's operating expenses for the quarter, including the base management fee, expenses payable under the Sierra Administration Agreement, any interest expense and dividends paid on any issued and outstanding preferred stock, but excluding the incentive fee. Pre-incentive fee net investment income does not include any realized capital gains, realized capital losses or unrealized capital appreciation or depreciation.

The following is a graphical representation of the calculation of the quarterly subordinated incentive fee on income:

Percentage of Pre-Incentive Fee Net Investment Income Allocated to Quarterly Incentive Fee

The incentive fee on capital gains is earned on investments sold and shall be determined and payable in arrears as of the end of each calendar year during which the Sierra Investment Advisory Agreement is in effect. In the case the Sierra Investment Advisory Agreement is terminated, the fee will also become payable as of the effective date of such termination. The fee equals 20% of Sierra’s realized capital gains, less the aggregate amount of any previously paid incentive fee on capital gains. The incentive fee on capital gains is equal to Sierra’s realized capital gains on a cumulative basis from inception, computed net of all realized capital losses and unrealized capital depreciation on a cumulative basis.

Because of the structure of the subordinated incentive fee on income and the incentive fee on capital gains, it is possible that Sierra may pay such fees in a quarter where it incurs a net loss. For example, if Sierra receives pre-incentive fee net investment income in excess of the 1.75% on its net assets at the end of the immediately preceding fiscal quarter for a quarter, Sierra will pay the applicable incentive fee even if it has incurred a net loss in the quarter due to a realized or unrealized capital loss. SIC Advisors will not be under any obligation to reimburse Sierra for any part of the incentive fee it receives that is based on prior period accrued income that Sierra never receives as a result of a subsequent decline in the value of its portfolio.

The fees that are payable under the Sierra Investment Advisory Agreement for any partial period will be appropriately pro-rated. The fees will also be calculated using a detailed policy and procedure approved by SIC Advisors and the Sierra Board, including a majority of the independent directors, and such policy and procedure will be consistent with the description of the calculation of the fees set forth above.

SIC Advisors may elect to defer or waive all or a portion of the fees that would otherwise be paid to it in its sole discretion. Any portion of a fee not taken as to any month, quarter or year will be deferred without interest and may be taken in any such other month prior to the occurrence of a liquidity event as SIC Advisors may determine in its sole discretion.

Below are examples of the two-part incentive fee:

Example — Subordinated Incentive Fee on Income, Determined on a Quarterly Basis

Assumptions

First Quarter:	Pre-incentive fee net investment income equals 0.5500%
Second Quarter:	Pre-incentive fee net investment income equals 1.9500%
Third Quarter:	Pre-incentive fee net investment income equals 2.8000%

The subordinated incentive fee on income in this example would be:

First Quarter:	Pre-incentive fee net investment income does not exceed the 1.75% preferred return rate, therefore there is no catch up or split incentive fee on pre-incentive fee net investment income
Second Quarter:	Pre-incentive fee net investment income falls between the 1.75% preferred return rate and the catch up of 2.1875%, therefore the incentive fee on pre-incentive fee net investment income is 100% between the 1.75% preferred return and 1.95%
Third Quarter:	Pre-incentive fee net investment income exceeds the 1.75% preferred return and the 2.1875% catch up provision. Therefore the catch up provision is fully satisfied by the 2.8% of pre-incentive fee net investment income above the 1.75% preferred return rate and there is a 20% incentive fee on pre-incentive fee net investment income above the 2.1875% “catch up”

Example — Incentive Fee on Capital Gains (Millions)

Alternative 1 — Assumptions

Year 1:	$20 million investment made in company A (“Investment A”), and $30 million investment made in company B (“Investment B”)
Year 2:	Investment A sold for $50 million and fair market value, or FMV, of Investment B determined to be $32 million
Year 3:	FMV of Investment B determined to be $25 million
Year 4:	Investment B sold for $31 million

The capital gains portion of the incentive fee would be:

Year 1:	None, because no investments were sold
Year 2:	Capital gains incentive fee of $6 million ($30 million realized capital gains on sale of Investment A multiplied by 20%)
Year 3:	None, because no investments were sold
Year 4:	Capital gains incentive fee of $200,000 ($6.2 million ($31 million cumulative realized capital gains multiplied by 20%) less $6 million (capital gains fee taken in Year 2))

Alternative 2 — Assumptions

Year 1:	$20 million investment made in Company A (“Investment A”), $30 million investment made in Company B (“Investment B”), $25 million investment made in Company C (“Investment C”) and the cost basis of Other Portfolio Investments is $25 million
Year 2:	Investment A sold for $50 million ($20 million cost basis to be reinvested into Other Portfolio Investments and the $30 million capital gain is available for distribution), fair market value, or FMV, of Investment B determined to be $25 million (creates $5 million in unrealized capital depreciation), the FMV of Investment C determined to be $25 million and FMV of Other Portfolio Investments determined to be $25 million
Year 3:	FMV of Investment B determined to be $27 million (creates $3 million in unrealized capital depreciation), Investment C sold for $30 million ($25 million cost basis to be reinvested into Other Portfolio Investments and the $5 million capital gain is available for distribution) and FMV of Other Portfolio Investments determined to be $45 million

Year 4:	FMV of Investment B determined to be $30 million and FMV of Other Portfolio Investments determined to be $45 million
Year 5:	Investment B sold for $20 million ($20 million cost basis to be reinvested into Other Portfolio Investments and $10 million capital loss) and FMV of Other Portfolio Investments determined to be $45 million
Year 6:	Total Portfolio is sold for $80 million ($15 million capital gain computed based on a cumulative cost basis in Other Portfolio Investments of $65 million)

The incentive fee on capital gains in this example would be:

Year 1:	None, because no investments were sold
Year 2:	$5 million incentive fee on capital gains (20% multiplied by $25 million ($30 million realized capital gains on Investment A less unrealized capital depreciation on Investment B))
Year 3:	$1.4 million incentive fee on capital gains ($6.4 million (20% multiplied by $32 million ($35 million cumulative realized capital gains less $3 million unrealized capital depreciation))) less $5 million incentive fee on capital gains paid in Year 2
Year 4:	None, because capital gains incentive fees are paid on realized capital gains only
Year 5:	None, because $5 million (20% multiplied by $25 million (cumulative realized capital gains of $35 million less realized capital losses of $10 million)) is less than $6.4 million cumulative incentive fee on capital gains paid in prior years
Year 6:	$1.6 million incentive fee on capital gains (20% multiplied by $40 million ($25 million cumulative realized capital gains plus $15 million realized capital gains)) less $6.4 million cumulative incentive fee on capital gains received in prior years

Prohibited Activities

The Sierra Charter prohibits the following activities between Sierra, SIC Advisors and its affiliates:

- Sierra may not purchase or lease assets in which SIC Advisors or its affiliates has an interest unless (i) Sierra discloses the terms of the transaction to the Sierra Stockholders, the terms are fair to Sierra and the price does not exceed the lesser of cost or fair market value, as determined by an independent expert or (ii) such purchase or lease of assets is consistent with the Investment Company Act or an exemptive order under the Investment Company Act issued to Sierra by the SEC;
- Sierra may not invest in general partnerships or joint ventures with affiliates and non-affiliates unless certain conditions are met;
- SIC Advisors and its affiliates may not acquire assets from Sierra unless approved by Sierra Stockholders in accordance with the Sierra Charter;
- Sierra may not lease assets to SIC Advisors or its affiliates unless it discloses the terms of the transaction to Sierra Stockholders and such terms are fair and reasonable to Sierra;
- Sierra may not make any loans to SIC Advisors or its affiliates except for the advancement of funds as permitted by the Sierra Charter;
- Sierra may not acquire assets in exchange for Sierra Common Stock;

Table of Contents

- Sierra may not pay a commission or fee, either directly or indirectly to SIC Advisors, its affiliates, except as otherwise permitted by the Sierra Charter, in connection with the reinvestment of cash flows from operations and available reserves or of the proceeds of the resale, exchange or refinancing of Sierra's assets;
- SIC Advisors and its affiliates may not charge duplicate fees to Sierra; and
- SIC Advisors and its affiliates may not provide financing to Sierra with a term in excess of 12 months.

In addition, the Sierra Investment Advisory Agreement prohibits SIC Advisors and its affiliates from receiving or accepting any rebate, give-up or similar arrangement that is prohibited under federal or state securities laws. SIC Advisors and its affiliates are also prohibited from participating in any reciprocal business arrangement that would circumvent provisions of federal or state securities laws governing conflicts of interest or investment restrictions. Finally, SIC Advisors and its affiliates are prohibited from entering into any agreement, arrangement or understanding that would circumvent restrictions against dealing with affiliates or promoters under applicable federal or state securities laws.

Indemnification of SIC Advisors

The Sierra Investment Advisory Agreement provides that SIC Advisors and its officers, directors, persons associated with SIC Advisors, Sierra Stockholders (and owners of the stockholders), controlling persons and agents are entitled to indemnification from Sierra for any damages, liabilities, costs and expenses (including reasonable attorneys' fees and amounts reasonably paid in settlement) incurred by them in or by reason of any pending, threatened or completed action, suit, investigation or other proceedings arising out of or otherwise based on the performance of any of SIC Advisors' duties or obligations under the Sierra Investment Advisory Agreement, as applicable, or otherwise as SIC Advisors, (i) to the extent such damages, liabilities, cost and expenses (A) are not fully reimbursed by insurance and (B) do not arise by reason of willful misfeasance, bad faith, or gross negligence in SIC Advisors' performance of such duties or obligations, or SIC Advisors' reckless disregard of such duties or obligations, and (ii) otherwise to the fullest extent such indemnification is consistent with the provisions of the Sierra Charter, the Investment Company Act, the MGCL and other applicable law.

The Sierra Investment Advisory Agreement further provides that SIC Advisors and its officers, directors, persons associated with SIC Advisors, Sierra Stockholders (and owners of the stockholders), controlling persons and agents are not entitled to indemnification for any liability or loss suffered by them, nor will they be held harmless for any loss or liability suffered by Sierra, unless (i) the indemnified party has determined, in good faith, that the course of conduct which caused the loss or liability was in Sierra's best interests; (ii) SIC Advisors was acting on behalf of or performing services for Sierra; (iii) such liability or loss was not the result of misconduct or negligence by SIC Advisors; and (iv) such indemnification or agreement to hold harmless is recoverable only out of Sierra's net assets and not from Sierra Stockholders.

Administration Agreement and Fees

Administrative Services

Under the terms of the Sierra Administration Agreement, and on Sierra's behalf, Medley Capital LLC performs or oversees the performance of various administrative services that Sierra requires. These include investor services, general ledger accounting, fund accounting, maintaining required financial records, calculating Sierra's NAV, filing tax returns, preparing and filing SEC reports, preparing, printing and disseminating stockholder reports and generally overseeing the payment of Sierra's expenses and the performance of administrative and professional services rendered to Sierra by others. Medley provides Sierra with facilities and access to personnel necessary for Sierra's business and these services. For providing these services, facilities and personnel, Sierra reimburses Medley Capital LLC for administrative expenses it incurs in performing its obligations.

Additionally, as a BDC, Sierra offers, and must provide upon request, managerial assistance to its portfolio companies. This managerial assistance may include monitoring the operations of Sierra's portfolio companies, participating in board and management meetings, consulting with and advising officers of Sierra's portfolio companies and providing other organizational and financial guidance. Medley Capital LLC will make available such managerial assistance, on Sierra's behalf, to Sierra's portfolio companies whether or not they request this assistance. Sierra may receive fees for these services and will reimburse Medley Capital LLC for its allocated costs in providing such assistance, subject to review and approval by the Sierra Board.

Term; Effective Date

The Sierra Administration Agreement became effective on April 17, 2012, the date that Sierra met its minimum offering requirement. Pursuant to its terms, and unless earlier terminated as described below, the Sierra Administration Agreement will remain in effect from year-to-year if approved annually by a majority of Sierra's directors who are not "interested persons" as defined in the Investment Company Act, of Sierra or Medley Capital LLC, and either the holders of a majority of Sierra's outstanding voting securities or the Sierra Board. Most recently, on March 8, 2018, the Sierra Board held an in-person meeting in order to consider the annual approval and continuation of the Sierra Administration Agreement. Based on the information relating to the terms of the Sierra Administration Agreement and the discussions held, the Sierra Board, including a majority of the non-interested directors, approved the Sierra Administration Agreement as being in the best interests of Sierra Stockholders. Specifically the Sierra Board approved the extension of the Sierra Administration Agreement for a period of one additional year, which will expire on April 17, 2019.

Sierra may terminate the Sierra Administration Agreement with Medley Capital LLC on 60 days' written notice without penalty. Medley Capital LLC may terminate the Sierra Administration Agreement on 120 days' written notice without penalty.

Regulation

General

Sierra is an externally managed, non-diversified closed-end management investment company that has elected to be regulated as a BDC under the Investment Company Act. BDCs are closed-end funds that elect to be regulated as BDCs under the Investment Company Act. As such, BDCs are subject to only certain provisions of the Investment Company Act. BDCs are provided greater flexibility under the Investment Company Act than are other investment companies in dealing with their portfolio companies, issuing securities, and compensating their managers. BDCs can be internally or externally managed and may elect to be treated as RICs for U.S. federal income tax purposes. The Investment Company Act contains prohibitions and restrictions relating to transactions between BDCs and their affiliates (including any investment advisers or sub-advisers), principal underwriters, and affiliates of those affiliates or underwriters. The Investment Company Act requires that a majority of a BDC's directors be persons other than "interested persons," as that term is defined in the Investment Company Act. In addition, the Investment Company Act provides that Sierra may not change the nature of its business so as to cease to be, or withdraw its election as a BDC unless approved by a majority of its outstanding voting securities. The Investment Company Act defines "a majority of the outstanding voting securities" as the lesser of: (1) 67% or more of the voting securities present at a meeting if the holders of more than 50% of its outstanding voting securities are present or represented by proxy or (2) more than 50% of its voting securities.

Sierra is generally not able to issue and sell the Sierra Common Stock at a price below NAV per share. Sierra may, however, sell the Sierra Common Stock, or warrants, options, or rights to acquire the Sierra Common Stock, at a price below the then-current NAV of the Sierra Common Stock if the Sierra Board determines that such sale is in its best interests and the best interests of Sierra Stockholders, and the Sierra Stockholders approve such sale. In addition, Sierra may generally issue new shares of Sierra Common Stock at a price below NAV in rights offerings to existing stockholders, in payment of dividends, and in certain other limited circumstances.

Sierra may invest up to 100% of its assets in securities acquired directly from issuers in privately negotiated transactions. With respect to such securities, Sierra may, for the purpose of public resale, be deemed an "underwriter" as that term is defined in the Securities Act. Sierra does not intend to acquire securities issued by any investment company that exceed the limits imposed by the Investment Company Act.

BDC Regulation: Qualifying Assets

Under the Investment Company Act, a BDC may not acquire any asset other than assets of the type listed in Section 55(a) of the Investment Company Act, which are referred to as qualifying assets, unless, at the time the acquisition is made, qualifying assets represent at least 70% of the BDC's total assets. As discussed in greater detail below, the Investment Company Act defines qualifying assets as principally including certain investments by a BDC in eligible portfolio companies. An eligible portfolio company is defined under the Investment Company Act as any issuer which:

1. is organized under the laws of, and has its principal place of business in, the United States;
2. is not an investment company (other than a small business investment company wholly owned by the BDC) or a company that would be an investment company but for certain exclusions under the Investment Company Act; and
3. satisfies any of the following:
 - a. does not have any class of securities that is traded on a national securities exchange;
 - b. has a class of securities listed on a national securities exchange, but has an aggregate market value of outstanding voting and non-voting common equity of less than $250 million;
 - c. is controlled by a BDC, either alone or as part of a group acting together, and the BDC has an affiliated person who is a director of the eligible portfolio company; or
 - d. is a small and solvent company having total assets of not more than $4 million and capital and surplus of not less than $2 million.

As relevant to Sierra's proposed business, the principal categories of qualifying assets under the Investment Company Act are the following:

1. Securities purchased in transactions not involving any public offering from the issuer of such securities, which issuer (subject to certain limited exceptions) is an eligible portfolio company, or from any person who is, or has been during the preceding 13 months, an affiliated person of an eligible portfolio company, or from any other person, subject to such rules as may be prescribed by the SEC.
2. Securities of any eligible portfolio company that Sierra controls.
3. Securities purchased in a private transaction from a U.S. issuer that is not an investment company or from an affiliated person of the issuer, or in transactions incident thereto, if the issuer is in bankruptcy and subject to reorganization or if the issuer, immediately prior to the purchase of its securities was unable to meet its obligations as they came due without material assistance other than conventional lending or financing arrangements.
4. Securities of an eligible portfolio company purchased from any person in a private transaction if there is no ready market for such securities and Sierra already owns 60% of the outstanding equity of the eligible portfolio company.
5. Securities received in exchange for or distributed on or with respect to securities described in (1) through (4) above, or pursuant to the exercise of warrants or rights relating to such securities.
6. Cash, cash equivalents, U.S. government securities, or high-quality debt securities maturing in one year or less from the time of investment.

In addition, a BDC must have been organized and have its principal place of business in the U.S. and be operated for the purpose of making investments in the types of securities described in (1), (2) or (3) above.

For purposes of Section 55(a) under the Investment Company Act, Sierra currently treats each asset underlying the TRS as a qualifying asset if the obligor on such asset is an eligible portfolio company and as a non-qualifying asset if the obligor is not an eligible portfolio company. Sierra may, however, accord different treatment to the TRS in the future in accordance with any applicable new rules or interpretations adopted by the staff of the SEC.

Business Development Company Regulation: Control and Managerial Assistance to Portfolio Companies

BDCs generally must offer to make available to the issuer of the securities significant managerial assistance, except in circumstances where either (i) the BDC controls such issuer of securities or (ii) the BDC purchases such securities in conjunction with one or more other persons acting together and one of the other persons in the group makes available such managerial assistance. Making available managerial assistance includes any arrangement whereby the BDC, through its directors, officers, or employees, offers to provide, and, if accepted, does so provide, significant guidance and counsel concerning the management, operations or business objectives and policies of a portfolio company.

Temporary Investments

Pending investment in other types of “qualifying assets,” as described above, Sierra’s investments may consist of cash, cash equivalents, U.S. government securities, or high-quality debt securities maturing in one year or less from the time of investment so that 70% of its total assets are qualifying assets. Typically, Sierra intends to invest in U.S. Treasury bills or in repurchase agreements, provided that such agreements are fully collateralized by cash or securities issued by the U.S. government or its agencies. A repurchase agreement involves the purchase by an investor, such as Sierra, of a specified security and the simultaneous agreement by the seller to repurchase it at an agreed-upon future date and at a price that is greater than the purchase price by an amount that reflects an agreed-upon interest rate. There is no percentage restriction on the proportion of its assets that may be invested in such repurchase agreements. However, if more than 25% of its total assets constitute repurchase agreements from a single counterparty, Sierra may not meet the diversification requirements in order to qualify to be taxed as a RIC for U.S. federal income tax purposes. Thus, Sierra does not intend to enter into repurchase agreements with a single counterparty in excess of this limit. Sierra currently expects that SIC Advisors will monitor the creditworthiness of the counterparties with which Sierra enters into repurchase agreement transactions.

Warrants and Options

Under the Investment Company Act, a BDC is subject to restrictions on the amount of warrants, options, restricted stock or rights to purchase shares of capital stock that it may have outstanding at any time. Under the Investment Company Act, Sierra may generally only offer warrants provided that (i) the warrants expire by their terms within ten years, (ii) the exercise or conversion price is not less than the current market value at the date of issuance, (iii) Sierra Stockholders authorize the proposal to issue such warrants, and the Sierra Board approves such issuance on the basis that the issuance is in the best interests of Sierra and the Sierra Stockholders and (iv) if the warrants are accompanied by other securities, the warrants are not separately transferable unless no class of such warrants and the securities accompanying them has been publicly distributed. The Investment Company Act also provides that the amount of Sierra’s voting securities that would result from the exercise of all outstanding warrants, as well as options and rights, at the time of issuance may not exceed 25% of its outstanding voting securities. In particular, the amount of capital stock that would result from the conversion or exercise of all outstanding warrants, options or rights to purchase capital stock cannot exceed 25% of the BDC’s total outstanding shares of capital stock.

Senior Securities

Sierra is permitted, under specified conditions, to issue multiple classes of debt and one class of stock senior to the Sierra Common Stock if its asset coverage, as defined in the Investment Company Act, is at least equal to 200% (or 150% if, pursuant to the Investment Company Act, certain requirements are met) immediately after each such issuance. In addition, while any senior securities remain outstanding, Sierra must prohibit any distribution to Sierra Stockholders or the repurchase of such securities or shares unless Sierra meets the applicable asset coverage ratios at the time of the distribution or repurchase. Sierra may also borrow amounts up to 5% of the value of its total assets for temporary or emergency purposes without regard to asset coverage.

For purposes of the asset coverage ratio test applicable to Sierra as a BDC, Sierra will treat the outstanding notional amount of the TRS, less the initial amount of any cash collateral required to be posted by Arbor under the TRS, as a senior security for the life of that instrument. Sierra may, however, accord different treatment to the TRS in the future in accordance with any applicable new rules or interpretations adopted by the staff of the SEC.

Code of Ethics

Sierra has adopted a code of ethics, which it calls the “Code of Business Conduct and Ethics,” which covers ethics and business conduct. The Code of Business Conduct and Ethics applies to Sierra’s directors, officers and employees. The Code of Business Conduct and Ethics is publicly available on the Corporate Governance section of Sierra’s website under “Corporate Governance” at <http://www.sierraincomecorp.com/CorporateGovernance.html>. Sierra will report any amendments to or waivers of a required provision of the Code of Business Conduct and Ethics on Sierra’s website or in a Current Report on Form 8-K. You may read and copy any materials that Sierra file with the SEC at the SEC’s Public Reference Room at 100 F Street, NE, Washington, DC 20549. You may obtain information regarding the Public Reference Room by calling the SEC at 1-800-SEC-0330. Information contained on Sierra’s website is not incorporated by reference into this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus, and you should not consider that information to be part of this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus.

Compliance Policies and Procedures

Sierra and SIC Advisors have each adopted and implemented written compliance policies and procedures reasonably designed to prevent violation of the federal securities laws and are required to review these compliance policies and procedures annually for their adequacy and the effectiveness of their implementation. Sierra’s Chief Compliance Officer is responsible for administering Sierra’s compliance policies and procedures and SIC Advisors’ Chief Compliance Officer is responsible for administering the compliance policies and procedures for SIC Advisors.

Proxy Voting Policies and Procedures

Sierra has delegated its proxy voting responsibility to SIC Advisors. SIC Advisors will vote proxies according to its proxy voting policies and procedures which are set forth below. These policies and procedures are reviewed periodically by SIC Advisors as well as the Sierra Board, and, accordingly, are subject to change.

As an investment adviser registered under the Investment Company Act, SIC Advisors has a fiduciary duty to act solely in the best interests of its clients. As part of this duty, it recognizes that it must vote client securities in a timely manner free of conflicts of interest and in the best interests of its clients. These policies and procedures for voting proxies for the investment advisory clients of SIC Advisors are intended to comply with Section 206 of the Advisers Act and Rule 206(4)-6 thereunder.

Proxy Policies

SIC Advisors will vote proxies relating to its securities in a manner that it believes, in its discretion, to be in the best interest of Sierra Stockholders. It will review on a case-by-case basis each proposal submitted for a stockholder vote taking into account relevant factors, including: (1) the impact on the value of the securities; (2) the anticipated costs and benefits associated with the proposal; (3) the effect on liquidity; and (4) customary industry and business practices. Although SIC Advisors will generally vote against proposals that may have a negative impact on its clients’ portfolio securities, it may vote for such a proposal if there exists compelling long-term reasons to do so.

Table of Contents

The proxy voting decisions of SIC Advisors are made by its portfolio managers and investment professionals under the supervision of SIC Advisors legal/compliance department. To ensure that its vote is not the product of a conflict of interest, it will require that: (a) the recommended vote be approved by a member of SIC Advisors legal/compliance department prior to being submitted to the custodian; (b) associates involved in the decision making process or vote administration are prohibited from revealing how SIC Advisors intends to vote on a proposal in order to reduce any attempted influence from interested parties; and (c) where a material conflict of interest exists, the Chief Compliance Officer designates an individual or group who can impartially help decide how to resolve such conflict.

Proxy Voting Records

You may obtain information, without charge, regarding how SIC Advisors voted proxies with respect to Sierra's portfolio securities by making a written request for proxy voting information to: Chief Compliance Officer, c/o Sierra Income Corporation at 280 Park Ave, 6th Floor East, New York, NY 10017.

Securities Exchange Act and Sarbanes-Oxley Act

Sierra is subject to the reporting and disclosure requirements of the Exchange Act, including the filing of quarterly, annual and current reports, proxy statements and other required items. In addition, Sierra is subject to the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002, which imposes a wide variety of regulatory requirements on publicly-held companies and their insiders. Many of these requirements will affect Sierra. For example:

- pursuant to Rule 13a-14 of the Exchange Act, Sierra's Chief Executive Officer and Chief Financial Officer are required to certify the accuracy of the financial statements contained in its periodic reports;
- pursuant to Item 307 of Regulation S-K, Sierra's periodic reports are required to disclose its conclusions about the effectiveness of its disclosure controls and procedures;
- pursuant to Rule 13a-15 of the Exchange Act, Sierra's management is required to prepare a report regarding its assessment of its internal control over financial reporting; and
- pursuant to Item 308 of Regulation S-K and Rule 13a-15 of the Exchange Act, Sierra's periodic reports must disclose whether there were significant changes in its internal control over financial reporting or in other factors that could significantly affect these controls subsequent to the date of their evaluation, including any corrective actions with regard to significant deficiencies and material weaknesses.

The Sarbanes-Oxley Act requires Sierra to review its policies and procedures to determine whether it complies with the Sarbanes-Oxley Act and its regulations. Sierra intends to monitor its compliance with all regulations that are adopted under the Sarbanes-Oxley Act and will take actions necessary to ensure that it is in compliance.

Other

Sierra is required to provide and maintain a bond issued by a reputable fidelity insurance company to protect it against larceny and embezzlement.

Election to Be Taxed as a RIC

Sierra has elected, and intends to qualify annually, to be treated as a RIC under Subchapter M of the Code. As a RIC, Sierra generally does not have to pay corporate-level U.S. federal income taxes on any income that it distributes to Sierra Stockholders from its tax earnings and profits. To maintain its qualification as a RIC, Sierra must, among other things, meet certain source-of-income and asset diversification requirements (as described below). In addition, in order to obtain and maintain RIC tax treatment, Sierra must distribute to Sierra Stockholders, for each taxable year, at least 90% of its "investment company taxable income," which is generally its net ordinary income plus the excess, if any, of realized net short-term capital gains over realized net long-term capital losses, or the Annual Distribution Requirement.

Taxation as a RIC

If Sierra:

- maintains its qualification as a RIC; and
- satisfies the Annual Distribution Requirement,

then Sierra will not be subject to U.S. federal income tax on the portion of its income it distributes (or is deemed to distribute) to Sierra Stockholders. Sierra will be subject to U.S. federal income tax at the regular corporate rates on any income or capital gains not distributed (or deemed distributed) to Sierra Stockholders.

Sierra will be subject to a 4% nondeductible U.S. federal excise tax on certain undistributed income unless it distributes in a timely manner an amount at least equal to the sum of (1) 98% of its net ordinary income for each calendar year, (2) 98.2% of its capital gain net income for the one-year period ending October 31 in that calendar year and (3) any income recognized, but not distributed, in preceding years and on which it paid no U.S. federal income tax, or the Excise Tax Avoidance Requirement. Sierra generally will endeavor in each taxable year to avoid any U.S. federal excise tax on its earnings.

In order to maintain its qualification as a RIC for U.S. federal income tax purposes, Sierra must, among other things:

- continue to qualify as a BDC under the Investment Company Act at all times during each taxable year;
- derive in each taxable year at least 90% of its gross income from dividends, interest, payments with respect to certain securities, loans, gains from the sale of stock or other securities, net income from certain “qualified publicly traded partnerships,” or other income derived with respect to its business of investing in such stock or securities, or the 90% Income Test; and
- diversify its holdings so that at the end of each quarter of the taxable year:
 - at least 50% of the value of its assets consists of cash, cash equivalents, U.S. Government securities, securities of other RICs, and other securities if such other securities of any one issuer do not represent more than 5% of the value of its assets or more than 10% of the outstanding voting securities of the issuer; and
 - no more than 25% of the value of its assets is invested in the securities, other than U.S. government securities or securities of other RICs, of one issuer, of two or more issuers that are controlled, as determined under applicable Code rules, by Sierra and that are engaged in the same or similar or related trades or businesses or of certain “qualified publicly traded partnerships,” or the Diversification Tests.

For U.S. federal income tax purposes, Sierra may be required to recognize taxable income in circumstances in which it does not receive a corresponding payment in cash. For example, if Sierra holds debt obligations that are treated under applicable tax rules as having OID (such as debt instruments with PIK interest or, in certain cases, increasing interest rates or debt instruments that were issued with warrants), Sierra must include in income each year a portion of the OID that accrues over the life of the obligation, regardless of whether cash representing such income is received by Sierra in the same taxable year. Sierra may also have to include in income other amounts that it has not yet received in cash, such as deferred loan origination fees that are paid after origination of the loan or are paid in non-cash compensation such as warrants or stock. Sierra anticipates that a portion of its income may constitute OID or other income required to be included in taxable income prior to receipt of cash.

Because any OID or other amounts accrued will be included in its investment company taxable income for the year of the accrual, Sierra may be required to make a distribution to Sierra Stockholders in order to satisfy the Annual Distribution Requirement, even though Sierra will not have received any corresponding cash amount. As a result, Sierra may have difficulty meeting the annual distribution requirement necessary to maintain RIC tax treatment under the Code. Sierra may have to sell some of its investments at times and/or at prices it would not consider advantageous, raise additional debt or equity capital or forgo new investment opportunities for this purpose. If Sierra is not able to obtain cash from other sources, it may fail to qualify for RIC tax treatment and thus become subject to corporate-level U.S. federal income tax. Sierra's ability to dispose of assets to meet its distribution requirements may be limited by (1) the illiquid nature of its portfolio and/or (2) other requirements relating to its status as a BDC or a RIC, including the Diversification Tests. If Sierra disposes of assets in order to meet the Annual Distribution Requirement or the Excise Tax Avoidance Requirement, it may make such dispositions at times that, from an investment standpoint, are not advantageous.

Under the Investment Company Act, Sierra is not permitted to make distributions to Sierra Stockholders while its debt obligations and other senior securities are outstanding unless certain "asset coverage" tests are met. See "— Senior Securities" above. As a result, Sierra may be prohibited from making distributions necessary to satisfy the Annual Distribution Requirement. Even if Sierra is not prohibited from making distributions, its ability to raise additional capital to satisfy the Annual Distribution Requirement may be limited. If Sierra is not able to make sufficient distributions to satisfy the Annual Distribution Requirement, it may fail to qualify for RIC tax treatment and thus become subject to corporate-level U.S. federal income tax.

Certain of its investment practices may be subject to special and complex U.S. federal income tax provisions that may, among other things, (1) treat dividends that would otherwise constitute qualified dividend income as non-qualified dividend income, (2) disallow, suspend or otherwise limit the allowance of certain losses or deductions, (3) convert lower-taxed long-term capital gain into higher-taxed short-term capital gain or ordinary income, (4) convert an ordinary loss or a deduction into a capital loss (the deductibility of which is more limited), (5) cause Sierra to recognize income or gain without receipt of a corresponding distribution of cash, (6) adversely affect the time as to when a purchase or sale of stock or securities is deemed to occur, (7) adversely alter the characterization of certain complex financial transactions and (8) produce income that will not be qualifying income for purposes of the 90% Income Test. Sierra intends to monitor its transactions and may make certain tax elections to mitigate the potential adverse effect of these provisions, but there can be no assurance that any adverse effects of these provisions will be mitigated.

If Sierra purchases shares in a "passive foreign investment company" (a "PFIC"), it may be subject to U.S. federal income tax on its allocable share of a portion of any "excess distribution" received on, or any gain from the disposition of, such shares even if its allocable share of such income is distributed as a taxable dividend to Sierra Stockholders. Additional charges in the nature of interest generally will be imposed on Sierra in respect of deferred taxes arising from any such excess distribution or gain. If Sierra invests in a PFIC and elects to treat the PFIC as a "qualified electing fund" under the Code (a "QEF"), in lieu of the foregoing requirements, Sierra will be required to include in income each year its proportionate share of the ordinary earnings and net capital gain of the QEF, even if such income is not distributed by the QEF. Alternatively, Sierra may be able to elect to mark-to-market at the end of each taxable year its shares in a PFIC; in this case, Sierra will recognize as ordinary income its allocable share of any increase in the value of such shares, and as ordinary loss its allocable share of any decrease in such value to the extent that any such decrease does not exceed prior increases included in its income. Under either election, Sierra may be required to recognize in a year income in excess of distributions from PFICs and proceeds from dispositions of PFIC stock during that year, and such income will nevertheless be subject to the Annual Distribution Requirement and will be taken into account for purposes of the 4% U.S. federal excise tax. In addition, under recently proposed regulations, income required to be included as a result of a QEF election would not be qualifying income for purposes of the 90% Income Test unless Sierra receives a distribution of such income from the PFIC in the same taxable year to which the inclusion relates.

Failure to Maintain Sierra's Qualification as a RIC

If Sierra fails to satisfy the 90% Income Test or the Diversification Tests for any taxable year, it may nevertheless continue to qualify as a RIC for such year if certain relief provisions are applicable (which may, among other things, require Sierra to pay certain corporate-level U.S. federal income taxes or to dispose of certain assets).

If Sierra were unable to qualify for treatment as a RIC and the foregoing relief provisions are not applicable, it would be subject to tax on all of its taxable income at regular corporate rates, regardless of whether it makes any distributions to Sierra Stockholders. Distributions would not be required, and any distributions made would be taxable to Sierra Stockholders as ordinary dividend income. Subject to certain limitations, non-corporate stockholders may be eligible for a 20% maximum U.S. federal income tax rate to the extent of its current and accumulated earnings and profits provided certain holding period and other requirements were met. Subject to certain limitations under the Code, corporate distributees would be eligible for the dividends-received deduction. Distributions in excess of its current and accumulated earnings and profits would be treated first as a return of capital to the extent of the Sierra Stockholder's tax basis, and any remaining distributions would be treated as a capital gain. To requalify as a RIC in a subsequent taxable year, Sierra would be required to satisfy the RIC qualification requirements for that year and dispose of any earnings and profits from any year in which it failed to qualify as a RIC. Subject to a limited exception applicable to RICs that qualified as such under Subchapter M of the Code for at least one year prior to disqualification and that requalify as a RIC no later than the second year following the nonqualifying year, Sierra could be subject to tax on any unrealized net built-in gains in the assets held by it during the period in which it failed to qualify as a RIC that are recognized within the subsequent 5 years, unless Sierra made a special election to pay corporate-level U.S. federal income tax on such built-in gain at the time of its requalification as a RIC.

MANAGEMENT'S DISCUSSION AND ANALYSIS OF FINANCIAL CONDITION AND RESULTS OF OPERATIONS OF SIERRA

The information contained in this section should be read in conjunction with the "Selected Financial and Other Data of Sierra," the "Unaudited Selected Pro Forma Consolidated Financial Data," the "Unaudited Pro Forma Condensed Consolidated Financial Statements" and Sierra's, MCC's and MDLY's financial statements and notes thereto appearing elsewhere in this Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus.

Sierra cannot assure you that the Mergers will be completed as scheduled, or at all. See "Special Factors," "Description of the MCC Merger Agreement," "Description of the MDLY Merger Agreement" and "Risk Factors" for a description of the principal risks relating to the Mergers, the Combined Company following the successful completion of the Mergers, Sierra, MCC, and MDLY.

Overview

Sierra is an externally managed non-diversified closed-end management investment company that has elected to be treated as a BDC under the Investment Company Act. Sierra is externally managed by SIC Advisors, which is a registered investment adviser under the Advisers Act. SIC Advisors is responsible for sourcing potential investments, conducting due diligence on prospective investments, analyzing investment opportunities, structuring investments and monitoring Sierra's portfolio on an ongoing basis. In addition, Sierra has elected, and intends to qualify annually to be treated, for U.S. federal income tax purposes, as a RIC under Subchapter M of the Code.

Under the Sierra Investment Advisory Agreement, Sierra pays SIC Advisors a base management fee as well as an incentive fee based on its investment performance. Also, under the Sierra Administration Agreement, Sierra reimburses Medley for the allocable portion of overhead and other expenses incurred by Medley Capital LLC in performing its obligations under the Sierra Administration Agreement, including Sierra's allocable portion of the costs of compensation and related expenses of its Chief Compliance Officer, Chief Financial Officer and their respective staffs.

Sierra intends to meet its investment objective by primarily lending to, and investing in, the debt of privately owned U.S. middle market companies, which Sierra defines as companies with annual revenue between $50 million and $1 billion. Sierra intends to focus primarily on making investments in first lien senior secured debt, second lien secured debt, and to a lesser extent, subordinated debt, of middle market companies in a broad range of industries. Sierra expects that the majority of its debt investments will bear interest at floating interest rates, but its portfolio may also include fixed-rate investments. Sierra will originate transactions sourced through SIC Advisors' existing network, and, to a lesser extent, expect to acquire debt securities through the secondary market. Sierra may make equity investments in companies that it believes will generate appropriate risk adjusted returns, although Sierra does not expect such investments to be a substantial portion of its portfolio.

The level of Sierra's investment activity depends on many factors, including the amount of debt and equity capital available to prospective portfolio companies, the level of merger, acquisition and refinancing activity for such portfolio companies, the availability of credit to finance transactions, the general economic environment and the competitive environment for the types of investments it makes. Based on prevailing market conditions, Sierra anticipates that it will invest the proceeds from each subscription closing generally within 30-90 days. The precise timing will depend on the availability of investment opportunities that are consistent with Sierra's investment objectives and strategies.

As a BDC, Sierra is required to comply with certain regulatory requirements. For instance, Sierra generally has to invest at least 70% of its total assets in "qualifying assets," including securities of private or thinly traded public U.S. companies, cash, cash equivalents, U.S. government securities and high-quality debt investments that mature in one year or less. In addition, Sierra is only allowed to borrow money such that its asset coverage, as defined in the Investment Company Act, equals at least 200% (or 150% if, pursuant to recent legislation, certain requirements are met) after such borrowing, with certain limited exceptions. To obtain and maintain its RIC status, Sierra must meet specified source-of-income and asset diversification requirements. To be eligible for RIC tax treatment under Subchapter M for U.S. federal income tax purposes, Sierra must distribute at least 90% of its net ordinary income and realized net short-term capital gains in excess of realized net long-term capital losses, if any, for the taxable year.

Agreements and Plan of Mergers

On August 9, 2018 Sierra entered into definitive agreements to acquire MCC and MDLY. Pursuant to the MCC Merger Agreement, MCC will merge with and into Sierra, with Sierra as the surviving entity. MCC Stockholders will receive 0.805 shares of Sierra Common Stock for each share of MCC Common Stock they hold.

Simultaneously, pursuant to the MDLY Merger Agreement, MDLY will merge with and into the Merger Sub, and MDLY's existing asset management business will continue to operate as a wholly owned subsidiary of Sierra. MDLY Stockholders will receive 0.3836 shares of Sierra Common Stock, $3.44 per share of cash consideration and $0.65 per share in special cash dividends for each share of MDLY Class A Common Stock they hold. Medley LLC Unitholders will convert their units into shares of MDLY Class A Common Stock and will receive 0.3836 shares of Sierra Common Stock, $3.44 per share of cash consideration and $0.35 per share in a special cash dividend for each share of MDLY Class A Common Stock they hold.

As a condition to closing, Sierra Common Stock will be listed to trade on the NYSE and the TASE. The Mergers are cross conditioned upon each other and are subject to approval by Sierra Stockholders, MCC and MDLY, regulators, including the SEC, other customary closing conditions and third party consents. Accordingly, Sierra can provide no assurance that the Mergers will be completed, that the Mergers will not be delayed or that the terms of the Mergers will not change.

Revenues

Sierra generates revenue in the form of interest on the debt securities that it holds and distributions and capital gains on other interests that it acquires in its portfolio companies. Sierra expects that the senior debt it invests in will generally have stated terms of three to ten years and that the subordinated debt it invests in will generally have stated terms of five to ten years. Sierra's senior and subordinated debt investments bear interest at a fixed or floating rate. Interest on debt securities is generally payable monthly, quarterly or semiannually. In addition, some of Sierra's investments provide for deferred interest payments or PIK interest. The principal amount of the debt securities and any accrued but unpaid interest generally will become due at the maturity date. In addition, Sierra may generate revenue in the form of commitment and other fees in connection with transactions. OIDs and market discounts or premiums will be capitalized, and Sierra will accrete or amortize such amounts as interest income. Sierra will record prepayment premiums on loans and debt securities as fee income. Dividend income, if any, will be recognized on an accrual basis to the extent that Sierra expects to collect such amounts.

Expenses

Sierra's primary annual operating expenses consist of the payment of advisory fees and the reimbursement of expenses under the Sierra Investment Advisory Agreement with SIC Advisors and the Sierra Administration Agreement with Medley Capital LLC. Sierra bears other expenses, which include, among other things:

- corporate, organizational and offering expenses relating to offerings of Sierra Common Stock, subject to limitations included in the Sierra Investment Advisory Agreement;
- the cost of calculating Sierra's NAV, including the related fees and cost of any third-party valuation services;
- the cost of effecting sales and repurchases of shares of Sierra Common Stock and other securities;
- fees payable to third parties relating to, or associated with, monitoring Sierra's financial and legal affairs, making investments, and valuing investments, including fees and expenses associated with performing due diligence reviews of prospective investments;
- interest payable on debt, if any, incurred to finance Sierra's investments;
- transfer agent and custodial fees;

Table of Contents

- fees and expenses associated with marketing efforts subject to limitations included in the Sierra Investment Advisory Agreement;
- federal and state registration fees and any stock exchange listing fees;
- federal, state and local taxes;
- Sierra's independent directors' fees and expenses, including travel expenses;
- costs of director and stockholder meetings, proxy statements, Sierra Stockholders' reports and notices;
- costs of fidelity bonds, directors and officers/errors and omissions liability insurance and other types of insurance;
- direct costs, including those relating to printing of Sierra Stockholder reports and advertising or sales materials, mailing, long distance telephone and staff subject to limitations included in the Sierra Investment Advisory Agreement;
- fees and expenses associated with independent audits and outside legal costs, including compliance with the Sarbanes-Oxley Act, the Investment Company Act and applicable federal and state securities laws;
- brokerage commissions for Sierra's investments;
- all other expenses incurred by Sierra or SIC Advisors in connection with administering Sierra's investment portfolio, including expenses incurred by SIC Advisors in performing certain of its obligations under the Sierra Investment Advisory Agreement; and
- the reimbursement of the compensation of Sierra's Chief Financial Officer and Chief Compliance Officer, whose compensation is paid by Medley Capital LLC, to the extent that each such reimbursement amount is annually approved by Sierra's independent director committee and subject to the limitations included in the Sierra Administration Agreement.

Administrative Services

Sierra reimburses Medley Capital LLC for the administrative expenses necessary for its performance of services to Sierra. However, such reimbursement is made at an amount equal to the lower of Medley Capital LLC's actual costs or the amount that Sierra would be required to pay for comparable administrative services in the same geographic location. Also, such costs will be reasonably allocated to Sierra on the basis of assets, revenues, time records or other reasonable methods. Sierra will not reimburse Medley Capital LLC for any services for which it receives a separate fee or for rent, depreciation, utilities, capital equipment or other administrative items allocated to a controlling person of Medley Capital LLC.

Portfolio and Investment Activity

The following table shows the amortized cost and the fair value of Sierra's investment portfolio as of September 30, 2018:

SIC Advisors regularly assesses the risk profile of Sierra's portfolio investments and rates each of them based on the categories set forth below, which Sierra refers to as SIC Advisors' investment credit rating. Credit Ratings are assigned to each of the investments in Sierra's portfolio that are directly held by Sierra, but exclude any off-balance sheet interests of Sierra, such as the loans underlying the TRS:

Investment Credit Rating	Definition
1	Investments that are performing above expectations.
2	Investments that are performing within expectations, with risks that are neutral or favorable compared to risks at the time of origination or purchase. All new loans are rated '2'.
3	Investments that are performing below expectations and that require closer monitoring, but where no loss of interest, dividend or principal is expected. Companies rated '3' may be out of compliance with financial covenants, however, loan payments are generally not past due.
4	Investments that are performing below expectations and for which risk has increased materially since origination or purchase. Some loss of interest or dividend is expected, but no loss of principal. In addition to the borrower being generally out of compliance with debt covenants, loan payments may be past due (but generally not more than 180 days past due).
5	Investments that are performing substantially below expectations and whose risks have increased substantially since origination or purchase. Most or all of the debt covenants are out of compliance and payments are substantially delinquent. Some loss of principal is expected.

Investment Income

Total investment income decreased $3,163,616, or 11.4%, to $24,477,122 for the three months ended September 30, 2018, compared to $27,640,738 for the three months ended September 30, 2017. Total investment income consisted primarily of portfolio interest, which decreased $3,388,217, or 12.9%, to $22,974,658 for the three months ended September 30, 2018, compared to $26,362,875 for the three months ended September 30, 2017. This decrease was primarily due to a $79.5 million, or 7.1%, decrease in Sierra's average investment portfolio. Fee income increased $160,663, or 13.1%, to $1,388,794 for the three months ended September 30, 2018, compared to $1,228,131 for the three months ended September 30, 2017, primarily due to an increase in fees associated with loan originations and loan prepayments.

Total investment income decreased $4,847,509, or 6.2%, to $73,728,045 for the nine months ended September 30, 2018, compared to $78,575,554 for the nine months ended September 30, 2017. Total investment income consisted primarily of portfolio interest, which decreased $3,866,709, or 5.2%, to $70,555,287 for the nine months ended September 30, 2018, compared to $74,421,996 for the nine months ended September 30, 2017. This decrease was primarily due to a $40.0 million or 76.7% increase in Sierra's cost basis of non-accrual portfolio investments. Fee income decreased $1,087,360, or 26.7%, to $2,980,935 for the nine months ended September 30, 2018, compared to $4,068,295 for the nine months ended September 30, 2017, primarily due to a decrease in fees associated with loan originations and loan prepayments.

Total expenses decreased $2,019,265, or 14.3%, to $12,119,753 for the three months ended September 30, 2018, as compared to $14,139,018 for the three months ended September 30, 2017, primarily due to a decrease in management fees, incentive fees and offering costs. Total expenses decreased $1,523,283, or 3.9%, to $37,695,619 for the nine months ended September 30, 2018, as compared to $39,218,902 for the nine months ended September 30, 2017, primarily due to a decrease in management fees, incentive fees and offering costs.

Base management fees decreased $696,318, or 12.9%, to $4,681,915 for the three months ended September 30, 2018, as compared to $5,378,233 for the three months ended September 30, 2017, primarily due to a decrease in Sierra's quarter-end gross assets of $159.2 million, or 12.9%. Base management fees decreased $1,515,842, or 9.45%, to $14,520,226 for the nine months ended September 30, 2018, as compared to $16,036,068 for the nine months ended September 30, 2017, primarily due to a decrease in Sierra's average gross assets of $115.5 million, or 9.5%.

Interest and financing expenses increased $1,018,653, or 23.0%, to $5,453,365 for the three months ended September 30, 2018, as compared to $4,434,712 for the three months ended September 30, 2017, primarily due to an increase in the weighted average interest rate, as a result of an increase in LIBOR rates, of Sierra's credit facilities of 0.7%, or a 15.9% increase. Interest and financing expenses increased $2,566,051, or 19.3%, to 15,845,574 for the nine months ended September 30, 2018, as compared to $13,279,523 for the nine months ended September 30, 2017, primarily due to an increase in the weighted average interest rate, as a result of an increase in LIBOR rates, of Sierra's credit facilities of 0.7%, or a 16.7% increase.

Expense Support and Reimbursement Agreement

From June 29, 2012 through December 31, 2016, Sierra was party to an Expense Support and Reimbursement Agreement with SIC Advisors (the "Expense Support Agreement"). During the term of the Expense Support Agreement, SIC Advisors reimbursed Sierra for operating expenses in an amount equal to the difference between its distributions paid to Sierra Stockholders in each month, less the sum of its net investment income, net realized capital gains and dividends paid to Sierra from Sierra portfolio companies, not included in net income and net realized capital gains, during such period ("Expense Support Reimbursement"). To the extent that no dividends or other distributions were paid to Sierra Stockholders in any given month, then the Expense Support Reimbursement for such month was equal to such amount necessary in order for available operating funds for the month to equal zero. From April 1, 2016 until the expiration of the Expense Support Agreement on December 31, 2016, SIC Advisors made expense support payments on a discretionary basis by making an election on the last day of each month to fund an expense support payment in an amount equal to the difference between Sierra's distributions paid to Sierra Stockholders during such month less the sum of Sierra's net investment income, net realized capital gains and dividends paid to Sierra from its portfolio companies, not included in net income and net realized capital gains during such period.

The purpose of the Expense Support Agreement was to cover distributions to Sierra Stockholders so as to ensure that the distributions did not constitute a return of capital for GAAP purposes and to reduce operating expenses until Sierra had raised sufficient capital to be able to absorb such expenses. The Expense Support Agreement expired on December 31, 2016.

Pursuant to the Expense Support Agreement, Sierra will reimburse SIC Advisors for expense support payments it previously made following any calendar quarter for which Sierra received net investment income, net realized capital gains and dividends from its portfolio companies (not included in net income and net realized capital gains) in excess of the distributions paid to Sierra Stockholders during such calendar quarter (the "Excess Operating Funds"). Any such reimbursement will be made within three years of the date that the expense support payment obligation was incurred by SIC Advisors, subject to the conditions described below. The amount of the reimbursement during any calendar quarter will equal the lesser of (i) the Excess Operating Funds received during the quarter and (ii) the aggregate amount of all expense payments made by SIC Advisors that have not yet been reimbursed. In addition, Sierra will only make reimbursement payments to the extent Sierra's current annualized "operating expense ratio" is equal to or less than Sierra's operating expense ratio for the quarter during which the corresponding expense obligation was incurred and to the extent the annualized rate of its regular cash dividends to Sierra Stockholders for the month is equal to or greater than the annualized rate of Sierra's regular cash distributions to Sierra Stockholders for the month during which the corresponding expense payment was incurred.

Net Realized Gains/Losses on Investments

Sierra measures realized gains or losses by the difference between the net proceeds from the disposition and the amortized cost basis of an investment, without regard to unrealized gains or losses previously recognized. For the three and nine months ended September 30, 2018, Sierra recognized net realized loss on investments of $18,244,576 and $49,080,881, respectively, primarily due to certain non-cash restructuring transactions net of realized gains on the TRS. For the three and nine months ended September 30, 2017, Sierra recognized net realized loss of $2,140,704 and $22,951,047, primarily due to certain non-cash restructuring transactions net of realized gains on the TRS.

Net Unrealized Appreciation/Depreciation on Investments

Net change in unrealized appreciation/depreciation on investments reflects the net change in the fair value of Sierra's total investments including the TRS and provision for deferred taxes. For the three and nine months ended September 30, 2018, Sierra recorded a net change in unrealized appreciation of $181,103 and a net change in unrealized appreciation of $1,002,001, respectively. For the three and nine months ended September 30, 2017, Sierra recorded a net change in unrealized depreciation of $7,972,642 and a net change in unrealized appreciation of $3,578,530, respectively.

Changes in Net Assets from Operations

For the three and nine months ended September 30, 2018, Sierra recorded a net decrease in net assets resulting from operations of $5,706,104 and $12,046,454, respectively. Based on 97,047,494 and 97,142,433 weighted average Sierra Common Stock outstanding for the three and nine months ended September 30, 2018, respectively, Sierra's per share net decrease in net assets resulting from operations was $0.06 and $0.12, respectively. For the three and nine months ended September 30, 2017, Sierra recorded a net increase in net assets resulting from operations of $3,388,374 and $19,984,135, respectively. Based on 96,474,233 and 96,078,793 weighted average common shares outstanding for the three and nine months ended September 30, 2017, respectively, Sierra's per share net increase in net assets resulting from operations was $0.04 and $0.21 respectively.

Investment Income

Total investment income increased $7,395,041, or 7.4%, to $107,175,537 for the year ended December 31, 2017, compared to $99,780,496 for the year ended December 31, 2016. Total investment income consisted primarily of portfolio interest, which increased $8,603,934, or 9.5%, to $99,623,107 for the year ended December 31, 2017, compared to $91,019,173 for the year ended December 31, 2016. This increase was primarily due to a $115 million, or 11.3%, increase in Sierra's average investment portfolio. Fee income decreased $1,300,459, or 14.9%, to $7,403,437 for the year ended December 31, 2017, compared to $8,703,896 for the year ended December 31, 2016, primarily due to a decrease in fees associated with loan originations and loan prepayments.

Total investment income increased $14,140,796, or 16.5%, to $99,780,496 for the year ended December 31, 2016, compared to $85,639,700 for the year ended December 31, 2015. Total investment income consisted primarily of portfolio interest, which increased $16,032,803, or 21.4%, to $91,019,173 for the year ended December 31, 2016, compared to $74,986,370 for the year ended December 31, 2015. This increase was primarily due to a $185.9 million, or 22.3%, increase in Sierra's average investment portfolio. Fee income decreased $1,947,361, or 18.3%, to $8,703,896 for the year ended December 31, 2016, compared to $10,651,257 for the year ended December 31, 2015, primarily due to a decrease in fees associated with loan originations and loan prepayments.

Operating Expenses

The following table shows operating expenses for the years ended December 31, 2017, 2016 and 2015:

	2017	2016	2015
Base management fees	$ 21,233,065	$ 19,928,802	$ 17,234,293

Organizational and offering costs reimbursed to Affiliate	—	—	443,687
Total expenses	$ 54,436,125	$ 55,909,153	$ 45,422,524

Total expenses decreased $1,473,028, or 2.6%, to $54,436,125 for the year ended December 31, 2017, as compared to $55,909,153 for the year ended December 31, 2016, primarily due to lower incentive fees. Total expenses increased $10,486,629, or 23.1%, to $55,909,153 for the year ended December 31, 2016, as compared to $45,422,524 for the year ended December 31, 2015, primarily due to an increase in base management fees and interest and financing expenses.

Base management fees increased $1,304,263, or 6.5%, to $21,233,065 for the year ended December 31, 2017, as compared to $19,928,802 for the year ended December 31, 2016, primarily due to an increase in Sierra's average gross assets of $75 million, or 6.5%.

Base management fees increased $2,694,509, or 15.6%, to $19,928,802 for the year ended December 31, 2016, as compared to $17,234,293 for the year ended December 31, 2015, primarily due to an increase in Sierra's average gross assets of $154.0 million, or 15.6%.

Interest and financing expenses increased $3,446,129, or 23.3%, to $18,258,556 for the year ended December 31, 2017, as compared to $14,812,427 for the year ended December 31, 2016, primarily due to an increase in the weighted average interest on Sierra's credit facilities of 0.5%, or a 13.5% increase. Interest and financing expenses increased $3,621,548, or 32.4%, to $14,812,427 for the year ended December 31, 2016, as compared to $11,190,879 for the year ended December 31, 2015, primarily due to an increase in the weighted average borrowings on Sierra's credit facilities of $58 million, or an 18.5% increase.

Expense Support and Reimbursement Agreement

From June 29, 2012 through December 31, 2016, Sierra was a party to an Expense Support and Reimbursement Agreement with SIC Advisors (the “Expense Support Agreement”). During the term of the Expense Support Agreement, SIC Advisors reimbursed Sierra for operating expenses in an amount equal to the difference between its distributions paid to stockholders in each month, less the sum of its net investment income, net realized capital gains and dividends paid to Sierra from its portfolio companies, not included in net income and net realized capital gains, during such period (“Expense Support Reimbursement”). To the extent that no dividends or other distributions were paid to Sierra Stockholders in any given month, then the Expense Support Reimbursement for such month was equal to such amount necessary in order for available operating funds for the month to equal zero. From April 1, 2016 until the expiration of the Expense Support Agreement on December 31, 2016, SIC Advisors made expense support payments on a discretionary basis by making an election on the last day of each month to fund an expense support payment in an amount equal to the difference between Sierra’s distributions paid to Sierra Stockholders during such month less the sum of Sierra’s net investment income, net realized capital gains and dividends paid to Sierra from its portfolio companies, not included in net income and net realized capital gains during such period.

The purpose of the Expense Support Agreement was to cover distributions to Sierra Stockholders so as to ensure that the distributions did not constitute a return of capital for GAAP purposes and to reduce operating expenses until Sierra had raised sufficient capital to be able to absorb such expenses. The Expense Support Agreement expired on December 31, 2016.

Pursuant to the Expense Support Agreement, Sierra will reimburse SIC Advisors for expense support payments it previously made following any calendar quarter for which Sierra received net investment income, net realized capital gains and dividends from its portfolio companies (not included in net income and net realized capital gains) in excess of the distributions paid to Sierra Stockholders during such calendar quarter (the “Excess Operating Funds”). Any such reimbursement will be made within three years of the date that the expense support payment obligation was incurred by SIC Advisors, subject to the conditions described below. The amount of the reimbursement during any calendar quarter will equal the lesser of (i) the Excess Operating Funds received during the quarter and (ii) the aggregate amount of all expense payments made by SIC Advisors that have not yet been reimbursed. In addition, Sierra will only make reimbursement payments to the extent Sierra’s current annualized “operating expense ratio” is equal to or less than its operating expense ratio for the quarter during which the corresponding expense obligation was incurred and to the extent the annualized rate of its regular cash dividends to Sierra Stockholders for the month is equal to or greater than the annualized rate of Sierra’s regular cash distributions to Sierra Stockholders for the month during which the corresponding expense payment was incurred.

As of December 31, 2016, Sierra recorded $7,314,867 in its consolidated statement of assets and liabilities as due from affiliate relating to the Expense Support Agreement. For the year ended December 31, 2016, Sierra recorded a net expense support reimbursement of $16,093,129 on the consolidated statement of operations. For the year ended December 31, 2016, gross expenses before expense reimbursement from SIC Advisors pursuant to the Expense Support Agreement were $55,909,153 and net expenses after taking into account the expense reimbursement from SIC Advisors were $39,816,024.

Net Realized Gains/Losses on Investments

Sierra measures realized gains or losses by the difference between the net proceeds from the disposition and the amortized cost basis of an investment, without regard to unrealized gains or losses previously recognized.

During the years ended December 31, 2017, 2016 and 2015, Sierra recognized net realized losses of $26,062,342, net realized losses of $13,120,398 and net realized gains of $11,309,852, respectively, on total investments.

Net Unrealized Appreciation/Depreciation on Investments

Net change in unrealized appreciation/depreciation on investments reflects the net change in the fair value of Sierra's total investments including the TRS and provision for deferred taxes. For the years ended December 31, 2017, 2016 and 2015, Sierra had unrealized depreciation of $13,935,972, unrealized appreciation of $22,484,721 and unrealized depreciation of $67,923,168, respectively, on total investments.

Changes in Net Assets from Operations

For the year ended December 31, 2017, Sierra recorded a net increase in net assets resulting from operations of $12,505,156 versus a net increase in net assets resulting from operations of $69,328,795 for the year ended December 31, 2016. Based on 96,248,024 and 90,424,090 weighted average common shares outstanding for the years ended December 31, 2017 and 2016, respectively, Sierra's per share net increase in net assets resulting from operations was $0.13 for the year ended December 31, 2017 versus a per share net increase in net assets from operations of $0.77 for the year ended December 31, 2016.

For the year ended December 31, 2016, Sierra recorded a net increase in net assets resulting from operations of $69,328,795 versus a net decrease in net assets resulting from operations of $10,112,813 for the year ended December 31, 2015. Based on 90,424,090 and 70,648,292 weighted average Sierra Common Stock outstanding for the years ended December 31, 2016 and 2015, respectively, Sierra's per share net increase in net assets resulting from operations was $0.77 for the year ended December 31, 2016 versus a per share net decrease in net assets from operations of $0.14, for the year ended December 31, 2015.

Financial Condition, Liquidity and Capital Resources

As a BDC, Sierra distributes substantially all of its net income to Sierra Stockholders and has an ongoing need to raise additional capital for investment purposes. To fund growth, Sierra has a number of alternatives available to increase capital; including raising equity, increasing debt, and funding from operational cash flow.

Sierra's liquidity and capital resources have been generated primarily from the net proceeds of its public offering of Sierra Common Stock, use of Sierra's credit facilities and its TRS.

As of September 30, 2018 and December 31, 2017, Sierra had $38,250,681 and $64,909,759, respectively, in cash and cash equivalents. In the future, Sierra may generate cash from future offerings of securities, future borrowings and cash flows from operations, including interest earned from the temporary investment of cash in U.S. government securities and other high-quality debt investments that mature in one year or less. Sierra's primary use of funds is investments in its targeted asset classes, cash distributions to Sierra Stockholders, and other general corporate purposes.

In order to satisfy the Code requirements applicable to a RIC, Sierra intends to distribute to Sierra Stockholders substantially all of its taxable income, but Sierra may also elect to periodically spillover certain excess undistributed taxable income from one tax year into the next tax year. In addition, as a BDC, Sierra generally is required to meet a coverage ratio of total assets to total senior securities, which include borrowings and any preferred stock Sierra may issue in the future, of at least 200%. This requirement limits the amount that Sierra may borrow.

The following table shows Sierra's net borrowings as of September 30, 2018 and December 31, 2017:

	September 30, 2018			December 31, 2017
	Total Commitment	Balance Outstanding	Unused Commitment	Total Commitment	Balance Outstanding	Unused Commitment

On August 12, 2016, Sierra amended its ING Credit Facility pursuant to the Revolving Credit Agreement with certain lenders party thereto from time to time and ING Capital LLC, as administrative agent. The ING Credit Facility matures on August 12, 2020 and is secured by substantially all of Sierra's assets, subject to certain exclusions as further set forth in the Security Agreement entered into in connection with the Revolving Credit Agreement, among Sierra, the Subsidiary Guarantors party thereto, ING Capital LLC, as Administrative Agent, each Financial Agent and Designated Indebtedness Holder party thereto and ING Capital LLC, as Collateral Agent. The ING Credit Facility also includes usual and customary representations, covenants and events of default for senior secured revolving credit facilities of this nature. On February 13, 2015, commitments to the ING credit facility were expanded from $150 million to $170 million. On August 12, 2016, commitments to the ING credit facility were expanded from $170 million to $175 million. On April 20, 2017, commitments to the ING Credit Facility were expanded from $175 million to $220 million.

The ING Credit Facility allows for Sierra, at its option, to borrow money at a rate of either (i) an alternate base rate plus 1.50% per annum or (ii) LIBOR plus 2.50% per annum. The interest rate margins are subject to certain step-downs upon the satisfaction of certain conditions described in the Revolving Credit Agreement. The alternate base rate will be the greatest of (i) the U.S. Prime Rate set forth in the Wall Street Journal, (ii) the federal funds effective rate plus 1/2 of 1%, and (iii) three month LIBOR plus 1%. As of September 30, 2018 and December 31, 2017, the commitment under the ING Credit Facility was $220 million and includes an accordion feature that allows for potential future expansion of the ING Credit Facility up to a total of $500 million. Availability of loans under the ING Credit Facility is linked to the valuation of the collateral pursuant to a borrowing base mechanism.

Sierra is also required to pay a commitment fee to the lenders based on the daily unused portion of the aggregate commitments under the ING Credit Facility. The commitment fee is (i) 1.50% if the used portion of the aggregate commitments is less than or equal to 40%, (ii) 0.75% if the used portion of the aggregate commitments is greater than 40% and less than or equal to 65% or (iii) 0.50% if the used portion of the aggregate commitments is greater than 65%. The ING Credit Facility provides that Sierra may use the proceeds of the facility for general corporate purposes, including making investments in accordance with its investment objective and strategy. As of September 30, 2018, Sierra's borrowings under the ING Facility totaled $130,000,000 and were recorded as part of revolving credit facility payable on its consolidated statements of assets and liabilities.

On September 29, 2017, Sierra's wholly owned, special purpose financing subsidiary, Alpine, amended its existing revolving credit facility (the "Alpine Credit Facility") pursuant to an Amended and Restated Loan Agreement (the "Amendment") with JPMorgan Chase Bank, National Association ("JPMorgan"), as administrative agent and lender, the Financing Providers from time to time party thereto, SIC Advisors, as the portfolio manager, and the Collateral Administrator, Collateral Agent and Securities Intermediary party thereto (the "Loan Agreement"). The Loan Agreement was amended to, among other things, (i) extend the reinvestment period until December 29, 2020, (ii) extend the scheduled termination date until March 29, 2022, (iii) decrease the applicable margin for advances to 2.85% per annum and (iv) increase the compliance condition for net advances to 55% of NAV. Alpine's obligations to JPMorgan under the Alpine Credit Facility are secured by a first priority security interest in substantially all of the assets of Alpine, including its portfolio of loans. The obligations of Alpine under the Alpine Credit Facility are non-recourse to Sierra.

Borrowings under the Alpine Credit Facility are subject to compliance with a NAV coverage ratio with respect to the current value of Alpine's portfolio and various eligibility criteria must be satisfied with respect to the initial acquisition of each loan in Alpine's portfolio. Any amounts borrowed under the Alpine Credit Facility will mature, and all accrued and unpaid interest thereunder will be due and payable, on March 29, 2022. As of September 30, 2018, Alpine's borrowings under the Alpine Credit Facility totaled $240,000,000 and were recorded as part of revolving credit facility payable on Sierra's consolidated statements of assets and liabilities.

Contractual Obligations

The following table shows Sierra's payment obligations for repayment of debt, which total its contractual obligations at September 30, 2018:

	Payment Due By Period
	Total	Less than 1 Year	1 - 3 Years	3 - 5 Years	More than 5 Years
ING Credit Facility	$ 130,000,000	$ —	$ 130,000,000	$ —	$ —
Alpine Credit Facility	240,000,000	—	—	240,000,000	—
Total Contractual Obligations	$ 370,000,000	$ —	$ 130,000,000	$ 240,000,000	$ —

Sierra has entered into certain contracts under which Sierra has material future commitments. On April 5, 2012, Sierra entered into the Sierra Investment Advisory Agreement with SIC Advisors in accordance with the Investment Company Act. The Sierra Investment Advisory Agreement became effective as of April 17, 2012, the date that Sierra met the minimum offering requirement. Pursuant to the Investment Company Act, the initial term of the Sierra Investment Advisory Agreement was for two years from its effective date, with one-year renewals subject to approval by the Sierra Board, a majority of whom must be independent directors. On March 8, 2018, the Sierra Board approved the renewal of the Sierra Investment Advisory Agreement for an additional one-year term at an in-person meeting. SIC Advisors serves as Sierra's investment adviser in accordance with the terms of the Sierra Investment Advisory Agreement. Payments under the Sierra Investment Advisory Agreement in each reporting period consist of (i) a management fee equal to a percentage of the value of Sierra's gross assets and (ii) an incentive fee based on Sierra's performance.

On April 5, 2012, Sierra entered into the Sierra Administration Agreement with Medley Capital LLC with an initial term of two years, pursuant to which Medley Capital LLC furnishes Sierra with administrative services necessary to conduct its day-to-day operations. On March 8, 2018, the Sierra Board approved the renewal of the Sierra Administration Agreement for an additional one-year term at an in-person meeting. Medley Capital LLC is reimbursed for administrative expenses it incurs on Sierra's behalf in performing its obligations. Such costs are reasonably allocated to Sierra on the basis of assets, revenues, time records or other reasonable methods. Sierra does not reimburse Medley Capital LLC for any services for which it receives a separate fee or for rent, depreciation, utilities, capital equipment or other administrative items allocated to a controlling person of Medley Capital LLC.

If any of Sierra's contractual obligations discussed above are terminated, Sierra's costs may increase under any new agreements that it enters into as replacements. Sierra would also likely incur expenses in locating alternative parties to provide the services it expects to receive under the Sierra Investment Advisory Agreement and Sierra Administration Agreement. Any new investment advisory agreement would also be subject to approval by Sierra Stockholders.

Off-Balance Sheet Arrangements

On August 27, 2013, Arbor, a wholly owned financing subsidiary of Sierra, entered into a TRS with Citibank.

On September 29, 2017, Arbor entered into the Fifth Amended Confirmation Letter Agreement with Citibank. The Fifth Amended Confirmation Agreement reduced the maximum portfolio notional (determined at the time each such loan becomes subject to the TRS) from $300,000,000 to $180,000,000, through incremental reductions of $60,000,000 on October 3, 2017 and $20,000,000 on each of November 3, 2017, December 3, 2017 and January 3, 2018. The Fifth Amended Confirmation Agreement also decreases the interest rate payable to Citibank from LIBOR plus 1.65% per annum to LIBOR plus 1.60% per annum. Other than the foregoing, the Fifth Amended Confirmation Agreement did not change any of the other material terms of the TRS.

The TRS with Citibank enables Arbor to obtain the economic benefit of the loans underlying the TRS, despite the fact that such loans will not be directly held or otherwise owned by Arbor, in return for an interest-type payment to Citibank. Accordingly, the TRS is analogous to Arbor utilizing leverage to acquire loans and incurring an interest expense to a lender.

SIC Advisors acts as the investment manager of Arbor and has discretion over the composition of the basket of loans underlying the TRS. The terms of the TRS are governed by an ISDA 2002 Master Agreement, the Schedule thereto and Credit Support Annex to such Schedule, and the Confirmation exchanged thereunder, between Arbor and Citibank, which collectively establish the TRS, and are collectively referred to herein as the "TRS Agreement."

Transactions in TRS contracts during the three and nine months ended September 30, 2018 and 2017 were as follows:

	Three Months Ended September 30,		Nine Months Ended September 30,
	2018	2017	2018	2017
Interest income and settlement from TRS portfolio	$ 1,463,986	$ 2,348,862	$ 4,123,660	$ 6,746,607
Traded gains/(loss) on TRS loan sales	(364,450)	785,847	(2,589,178)	(8,482,509)
Net realized gains/(loss) on TRS portfolio	$ 1,099,536	$ 3,134,709	$ 1,534,482	$ (1,735,902)

Sierra's derivative asset from Citibank, net of amounts available for offset under a master netting agreement as of September 30, 2018, was $3,727, which is recorded on the consolidated statements of assets and liabilities as a receivable due on total return swap.

The volume of Sierra's derivative transactions for the three and nine months ended September 30, 2018 and 2017 were as follows:

	Three Months Ended September 30,		Nine Months Ended September 30,
	2018	2017	2018	2017
Average notional amount of contracts	$ 169,697,701	$ 246,554,568	$ 169,769,243	$ 248,738,019

On March 27, 2015, Sierra and GALIC entered into a limited liability company operating agreement to co-manage Sierra JV. All portfolio and other material decisions regarding Sierra JV must be submitted to Sierra JV's board of managers, which is comprised of four members, two of whom are selected by Sierra and the other two are selected by GALIC. Sierra has concluded that it does not operationally control Sierra JV. As Sierra does not operationally control Sierra JV, it does not consolidate the operations of Sierra JV within the consolidated financial statements. As a practical expedient, Sierra uses NAV to determine the fair value of its investment in Sierra JV; therefore, this investment has been presented as a reconciling item within the fair value hierarchy (see Note 4).

As of September 30, 2018, the Sierra JV had total assets of $304.3 million and the portfolio was comprised of 100.0% senior secured first lien term loans to 58 different portfolio companies with one portfolio company on non-accrual status. As of December 31, 2017, Sierra JV's portfolio was comprised of 100% of senior secured first lien term loans to 52 different portfolio companies with one portfolio company on non-accrual status.

As of September 30, 2018 and December 31, 2017, Sierra JV had total capital commitments of $116 million and 100 million, respectively, with Sierra providing $101.5 million and $87.5 million, respectively, and GALIC providing $14.5 and $12.5 million, respectively. Approximately $105.2 million and $91.2 million was funded as of September 30, 2018 and December 31, 2017, relating to these commitments, of which $92.1 million and $79.8 million were from Sierra, respectively. Sierra does not have the right to withdraw any of their respective capital commitment, unless in connection with a transfer of its membership interests. Sierra may transfer full membership interests as long as it is approved by all members and transferred in a transaction exempt from the registration requirements of the Securities Act, or applicable state securities laws.

On August 4, 2015, Sierra JV entered into a senior secured revolving credit facility the ("JV Facility") led by Credit Suisse, AG ("CS") with commitments of $100 million subject to certain leverage and borrowing base restrictions. On December 29, 2015, the JV Facility was amended and the total commitments were increased to $135 million. On March 30, 2017, Sierra amended the JV Facility previously administered by CS and facilitated the assignment of all rights and obligations of CS under the JV Facility to Deutsche Bank AG, New York Branch, ("DB") and increased the total loan commitments to $240 million. On May 26, 2017 commitments to the JV facility were increased from $240 million to $250 million. The JV Facility bears interest at a rate of LIBOR (with no minimum) plus 2.50% per annum. The JV Facility reinvestment period ends on March 30, 2019 and the stated maturity date is March 30, 2022. As of September 30, 2018 and December 31, 2017, there were $204.9 million and $180.0 million outstanding under the JV Facility, respectively.

Sierra has determined that the Sierra JV is an investment company under ASC 946, however in accordance with such guidance, Sierra will generally not consolidate its investment in a company other than a wholly owned investment company subsidiary or a controlled operating company whose business consists of providing services to Sierra. Accordingly, Sierra does not consolidate its interest in the Sierra JV.

Distributions

Sierra has elected, and intends to qualify annually, to be treated, for U.S. federal income tax purposes, as a RIC under Subchapter M of the Code. To maintain RIC tax treatment, Sierra must, among other things, distribute at least 90% of its net ordinary income and net short-term capital gains in excess of net long-term capital losses, if any, to Sierra Stockholders. In order to avoid certain U.S. federal excise taxes imposed on RICs, Sierra must distribute during each calendar year an amount at least equal to the sum of: (i) 98% of its ordinary income for the calendar year, (ii) 98.2% of its capital gains in excess of capital losses for the one-year period generally ending on October 31 of the calendar year (unless an election is made by Sierra to use its taxable year) and (iii) any ordinary income and net capital gains for preceding years that were not distributed during such years and on which Sierra paid no U.S. federal income tax.

While Sierra intends to distribute any income and capital gains in the manner necessary to minimize imposition of the 4% U.S. federal excise tax, sufficient amounts of Sierra's taxable income and capital gains may not be distributed to avoid entirely the imposition of the tax. In that event, Sierra will be liable for the tax only on the amount by which Sierra does not meet the foregoing distribution requirement. Sierra currently intends to distribute net capital gains (i.e., net long-term capital gains in excess of net short-term capital losses), if any, at least annually out of the assets legally available for such distributions. However, Sierra may decide in the future to retain such capital gains for investment and elect to treat such gains as deemed distributions to you. If this happens, you will be treated for U.S. federal income tax purposes as if you had received an actual distribution of the capital gains that Sierra retained and reinvested the net after tax proceeds in Sierra. In this situation, you would be eligible to claim a tax credit (or, in certain circumstances, a tax refund) equal to your allocable share of the tax Sierra paid on the capital gains deemed distributed to you. Sierra can offer no assurance that Sierra will continue to achieve results that will permit the payment of any cash distributions and, if Sierra issues senior securities, Sierra may be prohibited from making distributions if doing so causes it to fail to maintain the asset coverage ratios stipulated by the Investment Company Act or if distributions are limited by the terms of any of Sierra's borrowings.

Subject to the Sierra Board's discretion and applicable legal restrictions, Sierra expects to authorize and pay monthly distributions to Sierra Stockholders. Any distributions to Sierra Stockholders will be declared out of assets legally available for distribution. Sierra expects to continue making monthly distributions unless its results of operations, its general financial condition, general economic conditions, or other factors prohibit Sierra from doing so. From time to time, but not less than quarterly, Sierra will review its accounts to determine whether distributions to Sierra Stockholders are appropriate. Sierra has not established limits on the amount of funds it may use from available sources to make distributions. From the commencement of its offering through September 30, 2016, a portion of Sierra's distributions were comprised in part of expense support payments made by SIC Advisors that may be subject to repayment by Sierra within three years of the date of such support payment. The purpose of this arrangement was to cover distributions to Sierra Stockholders so as to ensure that the distributions did not constitute a return of capital for GAAP purposes. In the future, Sierra may have distributions which could be characterized as a return of capital. Such distributions are not based on Sierra's investment performance and can only be sustained if Sierra achieves positive investment performance in future periods and/or SIC Advisors elects to make expense support payments under an expense support agreement. Any future reimbursements to SIC Advisors will reduce the net investment income that may otherwise be available for distribution to Sierra Stockholders. There can be no assurance that Sierra will achieve the performance necessary to sustain its distributions or that Sierra will be able to pay distributions at all. SIC Advisors has no obligation to enter into a renewed expense support agreement.

Sierra's distributions may exceed its earnings, which Sierra refers to as a return of capital, especially during the period before Sierra has invested substantially all of the proceeds of its offering. As a result, a portion of the distributions Sierra makes may represent a return of capital. Sierra's use of the term "return of capital" merely means distributions in excess of its earnings and as such may constitute a return on your individual investments and does not mean a return on capital. Therefore Sierra Stockholders are advised that they should be aware of the differences with Sierra's use of the term "return of capital" and "return on capital."

Sierra has adopted an “opt in” distribution reinvestment plan pursuant to which Sierra Common Stockholders may elect to have the full amount of any cash distributions reinvested in additional shares of Sierra Common Stock. As a result, if Sierra declares a cash distribution, Sierra Stockholders that have “opted in” to the Sierra Distribution Reinvestment Plan will have their distribution automatically reinvested in additional shares of Sierra Common Stock rather than receiving cash dividends. Sierra Stockholders who receive distributions in the form of shares of Sierra Common Stock will be subject to the same federal, state and local tax consequences as if they received cash distributions.

Each year a statement on IRS Form 1099-DIV (or such successor form) identifying the source of the distribution (i.e., paid from ordinary income, paid from net capital gain on the sale of securities, or a return of capital) will be mailed to Sierra Stockholders. The tax basis of shares must be reduced by the amount of any return of capital distributions, which will result in an increase in the amount of any taxable gain (or a reduction in any deductible loss) on the sale of shares.

Related Party Transactions

On October 19, 2011, SIC Advisors entered into a subscription agreement to purchase 110.80 shares of common stock for cash consideration of $1,000. The consideration represents $9.025 per share.

On April 17, 2012, SIC Advisors purchased 1,108,033.24 shares of Sierra Common Stock for aggregate gross proceeds of $10,000,000. The consideration represents $9.025 per share.

Sierra has entered into the Sierra Investment Advisory Agreement with SIC Advisors in which Sierra senior management holds an equity interest and is party to the Expense Support Agreement through December 31, 2016. Members of Sierra's senior management also serve as principals of other investment managers affiliated with SIC Advisors that do, and may in the future, manage investment funds, accounts or other investment vehicles with investment objectives similar to Sierra.

Sierra has entered into the Sierra Administration Agreement with Medley Capital LLC, pursuant to which Medley Capital LLC furnishes Sierra with administrative services necessary to conduct its day-to-day operations. Medley Capital LLC is reimbursed for administrative expenses it incurs on Sierra's behalf. Sierra does not reimburse Medley Capital LLC for any services for which it receives a separate fee or for rent, depreciation, utilities, capital equipment or other administrative items allocated to a controlling person of Medley Capital LLC. Medley Capital LLC is an affiliate of SIC Advisors.

Sierra has entered into a dealer manager agreement with SC Distributors, LLC who receives a dealer manager fee of up to 2.50% of gross proceeds raised in the offering. An affiliated entity of SC Distributors, LLC owns an equity interest in SIC Advisors, which provides the right to receive a fixed percentage of the management fees received by SIC Advisors.

On March 20, 2017, Sierra, SIC Advisors, and SC Distributors, LLC agreed to remove any dealer manager fee payable to SC Distributors, LLC by investors with respect to shares of Sierra Common Stock sold to investors under a placement agreement through a registered investment adviser. In connection with any such sales, SIC Advisors has agreed to pay SC Distributors LLC a platform placement fee in an amount equal to 1.50% of the gross offering proceeds from such sales.

On June 15, 2017, Sierra, SIC Advisors and SC Distributors LLC entered into the First Amendment to the Second Amended and Restated Dealer Manager Agreement (the "First Amendment"). The terms of the First Amendment became effective with respect to subscriptions of Class A shares submitted beginning on June 16, 2017. Pursuant to the First Amendment, the upfront selling commission was reduced from 7.00% of gross proceeds to up to 3.00% of gross proceeds and the dealer manager fee was reduced from 2.75% of gross proceeds to up to 2.50% of gross proceeds. Further, in connection with the sale of Class A shares by participating broker-dealers, SC Distributors LLC will reallocate and pay participating broker-dealers up to: (a) 3.00% of the gross proceeds from their allocated sales of Class A shares; and (b) 2.50% of the gross proceeds for dealer manager fees of Class A shares. In addition, SIC Advisors will pay the SC Distributors LLC, without reimbursement from Sierra, an ongoing distribution and stockholder servicing fee that accrues daily in an amount equal to 1/365th of up to 1.0% of the NAV per Class A share as of the end of each quarterly period following the date of purchase on a continuous basis from year to year for certain services.

On July 2, 2018, the Sierra Board determined to terminate Sierra's offering effective as of July 31, 2018. As a result, the dealer manager agreement with SC Distributors, LLC, and any amendments thereto, has been terminated by its terms.

On August 9, 2018, Sierra entered into the MCC Merger Agreement pursuant to which MCC will, on the terms and subject to the conditions set forth in the MCC Merger Agreement, merge with and into Sierra, with Sierra as the surviving company in the MCC Merger Agreement. Under the MCC Merger, each share of MCC Common Stock issued and outstanding immediately prior to the MCC Merger Effective Time, other than shares of MCC Common Stock held by MCC, Sierra or its respective wholly owned subsidiaries, will be converted into the right to receive 0.8050 shares of Sierra Common Stock. In addition, on August 9, 2018, Sierra entered into the MDLY Merger Agreement, pursuant to which MDLY will on the terms and subject to the conditions set forth in the MDLY Merger Agreement, merge with and into Merger Sub, with Merger Sub as the surviving company in the MDLY Merger Agreement. In the MDLY Merger, each share of MDLY Class A Common Stock, issued and outstanding immediately prior to the MDLY Merger Effective Time, other than Dissenting Shares (as defined in the MDLY Merger Agreement) and shares of MDLY Class A Common Stock held by MDLY, Sierra or its respective wholly owned subsidiaries, will be converted into the right to receive (i) 0.3836 shares of Sierra Common Stock; plus (ii) cash in an amount equal to $3.44 per share. In addition, MDLY Stockholders will have the right to receive certain dividends and/or other payments. The Mergers will occur simultaneously and, as a result of the foregoing, the investment management function relating to the operation of Sierra, as the surviving company in the Mergers, will be internalized.

The Mergers are subject to the satisfaction or waiver of closing conditions, including, but not limited to: (a) the approval of the MCC Merger and the MDLY Merger by Sierra Stockholders by the affirmative vote of at least a majority of all Sierra Stockholders, the approval of the adoption of the MCC Merger Agreement by MCC Stockholders, and the approval of the adoption of the MDLY Merger Agreement by MDLY Stockholders, voting separately at their respective special meetings; (b) the receipt of an exemptive order from the SEC, an exemptive application for which has been filed by Sierra, MCC and MDLY and certain of their subsidiaries; and (c) the approval by the SBA relating to the transfer of MCC's Small Business Investment Company license. No assurance can be given that such SEC exemptive order will be issued or SBA approval will be received or that any of the other closing conditions will be satisfied or waived.

Sierra has entered into a license agreement with SIC Advisors under which SIC Advisors has agreed to grant Sierra a non-exclusive, royalty-free license to use the name "Sierra" for specified purposes in Sierra's business. Under this agreement, Sierra will have a right to use the "Sierra" name, subject to certain conditions, for so long as SIC Advisors or one of its affiliates remains Sierra's investment adviser. Other than with respect to this limited license, Sierra will have no legal right to the "Sierra" name.

Management Fee

Sierra pays SIC Advisors a fee for its services under the Sierra Investment Advisory Agreement. The fee consists of two components: a base management fee and an incentive fee.

The base management fee is calculated at an annual rate of 1.75% of Sierra's gross assets and is payable quarterly in arrears. The incentive fee consists of:

- An incentive fee on net investment income ("subordinated incentive fee on income") is calculated and payable quarterly in arrears and is based upon pre-incentive fee net investment income for the immediately preceding quarter. No subordinated incentive fee on income is payable in any calendar quarter in which pre-incentive fee net investment income does not exceed a quarterly return to stockholders of 1.75% per quarter on Sierra's net assets at the end of the immediately preceding fiscal quarter, or the preferred quarterly return. All pre-incentive fee net investment income, if any, that exceeds the preferred quarterly return, but is less than or equal to 2.1875% of net assets at the end of the immediately preceding fiscal quarter in any quarter, will be payable to SIC Advisors. Sierra refers to this portion of its subordinated incentive fee on income as the catch up. It is intended to provide an incentive fee of 20% on pre-incentive fee net investment income when pre-incentive fee net investment income exceeds 2.1875% of net assets at the end of the immediately preceding quarter in any quarter. For any quarter in which Sierra's pre-incentive fee net investment income exceeds 2.1875% of net assets at the end of the immediately preceding quarter, the subordinated incentive fee on income shall equal 20% of the amount of pre-incentive fee net investment income, because the preferred return and catch up will have been achieved.

- A capital gains incentive fee will be earned on realized investments and shall be payable in arrears as of the end of each calendar year during which the Sierra Investment Advisory Agreement is in effect. If the Sierra Investment Advisory Agreement is terminated, the fee will become payable as of the effective date of such termination. The capital gains incentive fee is based on Sierra's realized capital gains on a cumulative basis from inception, computed net of all realized capital losses and unrealized capital depreciation on a cumulative basis, which Sierra refers to as "net realized capital gains." The capital gains incentive fee equals 20% of net realized capital gains, less the aggregate amount of any previously paid capital gains incentive fee.

Under the terms of the Sierra Investment Advisory Agreement, SIC Advisors bears all organization and offering expenses on Sierra's behalf. Since June 2, 2014, the date that Sierra raised $300 million in gross proceeds in connection with the sale of shares of Sierra Common Stock, SIC Advisors has no longer been obligated to bear, pay or otherwise be responsible for any ongoing organization and offering expenses on Sierra's behalf, and Sierra has been responsible for paying or otherwise incurring all such organization and offering expenses. Pursuant to the terms of the Sierra Investment Advisory Agreement, Sierra has agreed to reimburse SIC Advisors for any such organizational and offering expenses incurred by SIC Advisors not to exceed 1.25% of the gross subscriptions raised by Sierra over the course of the offering period, which was initially scheduled to terminate two years from the initial offering date, unless extended. At a meeting held on March 8, 2018, the Sierra Board approved an extension of Sierra's offering for an additional year, which extended the offering through April 17, 2019. Most recently, on July 2, 2018, the Sierra Board determined to terminate Sierra's offering effective as of July 31, 2018. Notwithstanding the foregoing, in the event that organizational and offering expenses, together with sales commissions, the dealer manager fee and any discounts paid to members of the Financial Industry Regulatory Authority, exceed 15% of the gross proceeds from the sale of shares of Sierra Common Stock pursuant to Sierra's registration statement or otherwise at the time of the completion of Sierra's offering, then SIC Advisors shall be required to pay or, if already paid by Sierra, reimburse Sierra for amounts exceeding such 15% limit.

Critical Accounting Policies

This discussion of Sierra's expected operating plans is based upon its expected consolidated financial statements, which will be prepared in accordance with GAAP. The preparation of these consolidated financial statements will require Sierra's management to make estimates and assumptions that affect the reported amounts of assets, liabilities, revenues and expenses. Changes in the economic environment, financial markets and any other parameters used in determining such estimates could cause actual results to differ. In addition to the discussion below, Sierra will describe its critical accounting policies in the notes to its future consolidated financial statements.

Valuation of Investments

Sierra applies fair value accounting to all of its financial instruments in accordance with the Investment Company Act and ASC Topic 820 — Fair Value Measurements and Disclosures (“ASC 820”). ASC 820 defines fair value, establishes a framework used to measure fair value and requires disclosures for fair value measurements. In accordance with ASC 820, Sierra has categorized its financial instruments carried at fair value, based on the priority of the valuation technique, into a three-level fair value hierarchy as identified below and discussed in Note 4.

- Level 1 — Quoted prices are available in active markets for identical investments as of the reporting date. Publicly listed equities and publicly listed derivatives will be included in Level 1. In addition, securities sold, but not yet purchased and call options will be included in Level 1. Sierra will not adjust the quoted price for these investments, even in situations where Sierra holds a large position and a sale could reasonably affect the quoted price.
- Level 2 — Pricing inputs are other than quoted prices in active markets, which are either directly or indirectly observable as of the reporting date, and fair value is determined through the use of models or other valuation methodologies. In certain cases, debt and equity securities are valued on the basis of prices from an orderly transaction between market participants provided by reputable dealers or pricing services. In determining the value of a particular investment, pricing services may use certain information with respect to transactions in such investments, quotations from dealers, pricing matrices, market transactions in comparable investments, and various relationships between investments. Investments which are generally expected to be included in this category include corporate bonds and loans, convertible debt indexed to publicly listed securities, and certain over-the-counter derivatives.
- Level 3 — Pricing inputs are unobservable for the investment and include situations where there is little, if any, market activity for the investment. The inputs into the determination of fair value require significant judgment or estimation. Investments that are expected to be included in this category are Sierra’s private portfolio companies.

Fair value is a market-based measure considered from the perspective of the market participant who holds the financial instrument rather than an entity specific measure. Therefore, when market assumptions are not readily available, Sierra’s own assumptions are set to reflect those that management believes market participants would use in pricing the financial instrument at the measurement date.

Investments for which market quotations are readily available are valued at such market quotations, which are generally obtained from an independent pricing service or multiple broker-dealers or market makers. Sierra weighs the use of third-party broker quotes, if any, in determining fair value based on Sierra’s understanding of the level of actual transactions used by the broker to develop the quote and whether the quote was an indicative price or binding offer. However, debt investments with remaining maturities within 60 days that are not credit impaired are valued at cost plus accreted discount, or minus amortized premium, which approximates fair value.

Investments for which market quotations are not readily available are valued at fair value as determined by the Sierra Board based upon input from management and third party valuation firms. Because these investments are illiquid and because there may not be any directly comparable companies whose financial instruments have observable market values, these loans are valued using a fundamental valuation methodology, consistent with traditional asset pricing standards, that is objective and consistently applied across all loans and through time.

Sierra uses third-party valuation firms to assist the Sierra Board in the valuation of its portfolio investments. The valuation reports generated by the third-party valuation firms consider the evaluation of financing and sale transactions with third parties, expected cash flows and market based information, including comparable transactions, performance multiples, and movement in yields of debt instruments, among other factors. Based on market data obtained from the third-party valuation firms, Sierra uses a combined market yield analysis and an enterprise model of valuation. In applying the market yield analysis, the value of Sierra's loans are determined based upon inputs such as the coupon rate, current market yield, interest rate spreads of similar securities, the stated value of the loan, and the length to maturity. In applying the enterprise model, Sierra uses a waterfall analysis which takes into account the specific capital structure of the borrower and the related seniority of the instruments within the borrower's capital structure into consideration. To estimate the enterprise value of the portfolio company, Sierra weighs some or all of the traditional market valuation methods and factors based on the individual circumstances of the portfolio company in order to estimate the enterprise value. The methodologies for performing investments may be based on, among other things: valuations of comparable public companies, recent sales of private and public comparable companies, discounting the forecasted cash flows of the portfolio company, third party valuations of the portfolio company, considering offers from third parties to buy the company, estimating the value to potential strategic buyers and considering the value of recent investments in the equity securities of the portfolio company. For non-performing investments, Sierra may estimate the liquidation or collateral value of the portfolio company's assets and liabilities using an expected recovery model. Sierra may estimate the fair value of warrants based on a model such as the Black-Scholes model or simulation models or a combination thereof.

Sierra undertakes a multi-step valuation process each quarter when valuing investments for which market quotations are not readily available, as described below:

- Sierra's quarterly valuation process begins with each portfolio investment being initially valued by the valuation professionals;
- conclusions are then documented and discussed with senior management; and
- an independent valuation firm engaged by the Sierra Board prepares an independent valuation report for approximately one third of the portfolio investments each quarter on a rotating quarterly basis on non fiscal year-end quarters, such that each of these investments will be valued by an independent valuation firm at least twice per annum when combined with the fiscal year-end review of all the investments by independent valuation firms, exclusive of the TRS underlying portfolio.

In addition, all of Sierra's investments are subject to the following valuation process:

- management reviews preliminary valuations and their own independent assessment;
- the audit committee of the Sierra Board reviews the preliminary valuations of senior management and independent valuation firms; and
- the Sierra Board discusses valuations and determines the fair value of each investment in Sierra's portfolio in good faith based on the input of SIC Advisors, the respective independent valuation firms and the audit committee.

Due to the inherent uncertainty of determining the fair value of investments that do not have a readily available market value, the fair value of Sierra's investments may differ significantly from the values that would have been used had a readily available market value existed for such investments, and the differences could be material.

The valuation procedures described are generally applied to the loans underlying the TRS, except that such assets are not reviewed by independent third party valuation firms. Sierra will value the TRS in accordance with the TRS Agreement. Pursuant to the TRS Agreement, the value of the TRS will be based on the increase or decrease in the value of the assets underlying the TRS, together with accrued interest income, interest expense and certain other expenses incurred under the TRS. The assets underlying the TRS will be valued by Citibank. Citibank will base its valuation on the indicative bid prices provided by an independent third-party pricing service. Bid prices reflect the highest price that market participants may be willing to pay. These valuations are sent to Sierra for review and testing. The Sierra Board will review and approve the value of the TRS, as well as the value of the assets underlying the TRS, on a quarterly basis as part of their quarterly determination of NAV. To the extent the Sierra Board has any questions or concerns regarding the valuation of the assets underlying the TRS, such valuation will be discussed or challenged pursuant to the terms of the TRS. For additional disclosures on the TRS, see "Off-Balance Sheet Arrangements."

Sierra's investments in subordinated notes are carried at fair value, which is based on a discounted cash flow model. The discounted cash flow model models both the underlying collateral ("assets") and the liabilities of the CLO capital structure. The discounted cash flow model uses a set of assumptions including projected default rates, recovery rates, reinvestment rates and prepayment rates in order to arrive at estimated cash flows of the assets. The discounted cash flow model distributes the asset cash flows to the liability structure based on the payment priorities and discounts them back using appropriate market discount rates based on discount rates for comparable CLOs. The assumptions are based on available market data as well as management estimates. Additional data is used to validate the results from the discounted cash flow method, such as analysis of relevant data observed in the CLO market, review of quotes, where available, recent acquisitions and observable transactions in the subordinated notes, among other factors.

Revenue Recognition

Sierra records interest income on an accrual basis to the extent that Sierra expects to collect such amounts. For loans and debt securities with contractual PIK interest, which represents contractual interest accrued and added to the principal balance, Sierra generally will not accrue PIK interest for accounting purposes if the portfolio company valuation indicates that such PIK interest is not collectible. Sierra does not accrue as a receivable interest on loans and debt securities or accounting purposes if Sierra has reason to doubt its ability to collect such interest. OIDs, market discounts or premiums are accreted or amortized using the effective interest method as interest income. Sierra records prepayment premiums on loans and debt securities as fee income. Dividend income, if any, is recognized on an accrual basis to the extent that Sierra expects to collect such amount.

Net Realized Gains or Losses and Net Change in Unrealized Appreciation or Depreciation

Sierra measures net realized gains or losses by the difference between the net proceeds from the repayment or sale and the amortized cost basis of the investment, without regard to unrealized appreciation or depreciation previously recognized. Net change in unrealized appreciation or depreciation reflects the change in portfolio investment values during the reporting period, including any reversal of previously recorded unrealized appreciation or depreciation, when gains or losses are realized.

Payment-in-Kind Interest

Sierra has investments in its portfolio that contain a PIK interest provision. Any PIK interest is added to the principal balance of such investments and is recorded as income, if the portfolio company valuation indicates that such PIK interest is collectible. In order to maintain Sierra's status as a RIC, substantially all of this income must be paid out to Sierra Stockholders in the form of dividends, even if Sierra has not collected any cash.

Organization and Offering Expenses

Sierra has been responsible for all ongoing organization and offering expenses since June 2, 2014. Sierra's offering was terminated effective as of July 31, 2018.

U.S. Federal Income Taxes

Sierra has elected, and intends to qualify annually, to be treated for U.S. federal income tax purposes as a RIC under Subchapter M of the Code. As a RIC, Sierra generally will not have to pay corporate-level U.S. federal income taxes on any ordinary income or capital gains that it distributes to Sierra Stockholders from its tax earnings and profits. To obtain and maintain Sierra's RIC tax treatment, Sierra must, among other things, meet specified source-of-income and asset diversification requirements and distribute annually at least 90% of its ordinary income and realized net short-term capital gains in excess of realized net long-term capital losses, if any.

Recent Developments

On October 17, 2018, the Sierra Board declared a series of semi-monthly distributions for October, November and December 2018 in the amount of $0.02667 per share. Sierra Stockholders of record as of each respective semi-monthly record date will be entitled to receive the distribution. Below are the details for each respective distribution:

Record Date	Payment Date	Amount per share
October 15 and 31, 2018	October 31, 2018	$0.02667
November 15 and 30, 2018	November 30, 2018	0.02667
December 14 and 31, 2018	December 31, 2018	0.02667

In connection with the Mergers, on November 6, 2018, the Sierra Board approved a distribution guidance framework that set forth a target distribution rate for Sierra if the Mergers are successfully consummated. In that regard, the Sierra Board determined that for each of the twelve months following the consummation of the Mergers, and subject to legally available funds, Sierra expects to pay monthly cash distributions to the holders of Sierra Common Stock equal to 5.500 cents per share, which is an increase from the monthly distribution of 5.333 cents per share currently paid by Sierra.

In addition, in connection with the Mergers, Sierra intends to amend the DRIP (the "Amended DRIP") to, among other things, modify the terms pursuant to which shares are issued under the DRIP. Under the Amended DRIP, if Sierra Common Stock is trading at or above NAV the number of shares of Sierra Common Stock to be issued to a Sierra Stockholder will be determined by dividing the total dollar amount of the distribution payable to such Sierra Stockholder by the greater of (i) NAV per share, and (ii) 95% of the market price per share of Sierra Common Stock at the close of regular trading on the NYSE on the payment date fixed by the Sierra Board for such distribution. The market price per share on that date shall be the closing price for such shares on the NYSE or, if no sale is reported for such day, at the average of their electronically-reported bid and asked prices. If, on the other hand, Sierra Common Stock is trading below NAV, the plan administrator may be instructed not to credit accounts with newly-issued shares and instead to buy shares in the market (in which case there would be no discount available to Sierra Stockholders) if (1) the price at which newly-issued shares are to be credited does not exceed 110% of the last determined NAV per share; or (2) Sierra advises the plan administrator that since such NAV was last determined, Sierra has become aware of events that indicate the possibility of a material change in per share NAV as a result of which the NAV of the shares on the payment date might be higher than the price at which the plan administrator would credit newly-issued shares to Sierra Stockholders.

In connection with the Mergers, on November 6, 2018, the Sierra Board approved a share repurchase program pursuant to which Sierra could purchase up to an aggregate amount of $100.0 million of Sierra Common Stock between the period of the effective date of the Mergers and the one-year anniversary of such date. This share repurchase program may be limited or terminated at any time without prior notice. Even if the Mergers are consummated, there can be no assurance that Sierra will conduct any repurchases of Sierra Common Stock.

- (1) Total amount of each class of senior securities outstanding at the end of the period presented. The TRS amount is comprised of the outstanding notional amount of the TRS, less the initial amount of any cash collateral required to be posted by Arbor under the TRS.
- (2) The asset coverage per unit is the ratio of the carrying value of Sierra's total consolidated assets for regulatory purposes, which includes the underlying fair value of net TRS, less all liabilities and indebtedness not represented by senior securities to the aggregate amount of senior securities representing indebtedness and the implied leverage on the TRS. Asset coverage per unit is expressed in terms of dollars per $1,000 of indebtedness. For the years ended December 31, 2017, December 31, 2016, 2015, 2014, and 2013, Sierra's Asset Coverage Per Unit including unfunded commitments was $2,054, $2,355, $2,318, $2,141, and $5,480, respectively. For the nine months ended September 30, 2018, Sierra's Asset Coverage Per Unit including unfunded commitments was $2,119.
- (3) The amount to which such class of senior security would be entitled upon the involuntary liquidation of the issuer in preference to any security junior to it.
- (4) Information that the SEC expressly does not require to be disclosed for certain types of senior securities.
- (5) Not applicable as these classes of securities are not registered for public trading.

MANAGEMENT OF SIERRA

Sierra's business and affairs are managed under the direction of the Sierra Board. The responsibilities of the Sierra Board include, among other things, the oversight of Sierra's investment activities, the quarterly valuation of its assets, oversight of its financing arrangements and corporate governance activities. The Sierra Board consists of five members, three of whom are not "interested persons" of Sierra or of SIC Advisors as defined in Section 2(a)(19) of the Investment Company Act and are "independent," as determined by the Sierra Board. Sierra refers to these individuals as its independent directors. The Sierra Board elects its executive officers, who serve at the discretion of the Sierra Board.

Board of Directors

Under the Sierra Charter, Sierra's directors are divided into three classes. Each class of directors holds office for a three-year term. However, the initial members of the three classes have initial terms of one, two and three years, respectively. At each annual meeting of Sierra Stockholders, the successors to the class of directors whose terms expire at such meeting will be elected to hold office for a term expiring at the annual meeting of Sierra Stockholders held in the third year following the year of their election. Each director will hold office for the term to which he or she is elected and until his or her successor is duly elected and qualified.

Directors

Information regarding the Sierra Board is as follows:

Name	Age	Position	Director Since	Expiration of Term
Interested Directors:
Seth Taube	48	Director, Chairman of the Sierra Board and Chief Executive Officer	2012	2021
Brook Taube	48	Director	2012	2020
Non-interested Directors:
Oliver T. Kane	68	Director	2014	2019
Valerie Lancaster-Beal	64	Director	2012	2021
Stephen R. Byers	65	Director	2012	2020

The address for each director is c/o Sierra Income Corporation, 280 Park Ave, 6th Floor East, New York, NY 10017.

Executive Officers Who are not Directors

Information regarding Sierra's executive officers who are not directors is as follows:

Name	Age	Position	Executive Officer Since
Richard T. Allorto, Jr.	47	Chief Financial Officer, Treasurer and Secretary	2018
Jeff Tonkel	48	President	2013
John D. Fredericks	54	Chief Compliance Officer	2014
Dean C. Crowe	55	Chief Operating Officer	2015

The address for each executive officer is c/o Sierra Income Corporation, 280 Park Ave, 6th Floor East, New York, NY 10017.

Biographical Information

The following is information concerning the business experience of the Sierra Board and executive officers. Sierra's directors have been divided into two groups — interested directors and independent directors. Interested directors are "interested persons" as defined in the Investment Company Act.

Interested Directors

Seth Taube has served as Chairman of the Sierra Board and Chief Executive Officer of Sierra since its inception in April 2012. He has also served on the MCC Board since its inception in January 2011 and as a Trustee on the Board of Trustees of Sierra Total Return Fund since January 2016. Mr. Taube co-founded Medley in 2006 and has served as co-Chief Executive Officer since then and as co-Chairman of the MDLY Board since its formation in June 2014. Prior to forming Medley in 2006, Mr. Taube was a Partner with CN Opportunity Fund, T3 Group, a principal and advisory firm focused on distressed asset and credit investments, and Griphon Capital Management. Mr. Taube previously worked with Tiger Management and held positions with Morgan Stanley & Co. in its Investment Banking and Institutional Equity Divisions. Mr. Taube received a B.A. from Harvard University, an M.Litt. in Economics from St. Andrew's University in Great Britain, where he was a Rotary Foundation Fellow, and an M.B.A. from the Wharton School at the University of Pennsylvania.

Sierra believes that Mr. Taube's broad and extensive experience in asset and credit management and finance industries and his service as portfolio manager for several Medley affiliates supports his appointment to the Sierra Board.

Brook Taube has served on the Sierra Board since its inception in April 2012. In addition, Mr. Taube has served as the Chief Executive Officer, Chairman of the MCC Board and Chief Investment Officer of MCC since its inception in January 2011, a Trustee on the Board of Trustees of Sierra Total Return Fund since August 2016 and serves on the investment committee for SIC Advisors. Prior to forming MDLY in 2006, Mr. Taube was a Partner with CN Opportunity Fund, T3 Group, a principal and advisory firm focused on distressed asset and credit investments, and Griphon Capital Management. Mr. Taube began his career in leveraged finance at Bankers Trust in 1992. Mr. Taube received a B.A. from Harvard University.

Sierra believes that Mr. Taube's broad and extensive experience in asset and credit management and finance industries and his service as portfolio manager for several Medley affiliates supports his appointment to the Sierra Board.

Independent Directors

Oliver T. Kane has served as a director since October 2014. Since January 21, 2016 Mr. Kane has served as Sierra's lead independent director. From November 2010 to December 2012, Mr. Kane was Chairman of the Board of Trustees of the Ashmore Funds, a U.S. mutual fund complex registered with the SEC under the Investment Company Act. From 1999 to 2005, he was a founding partner of Ashmore Investment Management, Limited, a specialist emerging markets investment firm based in London, England. Prior to Ashmore, Mr. Kane served as president and chief executive officer of ANZ Securities, Inc. from 1993 to 1998. Earlier in his career with J.P. Morgan and Co. from 1972 until 1987, and then Equitable Capital Management Corp., from 1987 until 1993, Mr. Kane specialized in lending and providing financial advice to corporations in the US, UK/Europe and North and Southeast Asia. Mr. Kane received his P.M.D. from Harvard Business School, and his B.A. from Harvard College.

Sierra believes that Mr. Kane's substantial executive experience in the investment management industry, including his work with developed economies and emerging markets in the fields of credit and banking, debt, equity and special situation investments, and corporate finance/private equity will make him a valuable addition to the Sierra Board.

Valerie Lancaster-Beal has served as a director since February 2012. Ms. Lancaster-Beal is also the President and Chief Executive Officer of VLB Associates, a management consulting firm she founded in January 2014 that provides financial and operational advisory services to middle-market businesses, investment firms and non-profit organizations. She also serves as the Chief Financial Officer of Odyssey Media since 2014 and previously served as the Chief Administrative and Finance Director of Data Capital Management from 2015 to 2018. Prior to this, she served as Managing Director at M.R. Beal & Company until 2014, which she co-founded in April 1988. Ms. Lancaster-Beal served as a Trustee on the Board of the City University of New York from 2000 to 2014 where she chaired the Faculty, Staff and Administration Committee. Previously, Ms. Lancaster-Beal served on the Board of Regents of Georgetown University from 2006 to 2010. Ms. Lancaster-Beal also served as Senior Vice President of Drexel Burnham Lambert from 1985 to 1988 and as Vice President of Citicorp Investment Bank from 1978 to 1985. Ms. Lancaster-Beal holds a B.A. in Economics from Georgetown University and an M.B.A. from the Wharton School of Business of the University of Pennsylvania.

Sierra believes that Ms. Lancaster-Beal's 30 years of investment banking experience at M.R. Beal & Company, Citicorp Investment Bank and Drexel Burnham Lambert support her appointment to the Sierra Board.

Stephen R. Byers has served as a director since February 2012. He is also an independent trustee of the Deutsche Bank DBX ETF Trust (the “DBX ETF Trust”), where he presently serves as the independent chairman (since November 2016) and as a member of the Audit and Nominating Committees. Mr. Byers served the DBX ETF Trust as chair of the Audit Committee and Nominating Committee from December 2010 to February 2015, and as lead independent trustee from February 2015 to November 2015 and continues to be designated as audit committee financial expert for DBX ETF Trust (since December 2010). Since June 2016, Mr. Byers has served as a board member of the Mutual Fund Directors Forum (“MFDF”), which is an independent, non-profit organization that serves independent directors of U.S. funds registered with the SEC under the Investment Company Act. The MFDF enhances the governance of registered investment companies by educating independent directors and providing them with a voice in key policy issues affecting these funds and their shareholders. Since 2014, Mr. Byers has been engaged periodically as an independent consultant to provide expert report and opinion in financial and investment related matters. Mr. Byers served as a Trustee for the College of William and Mary Graduate School of Business from 2002 to 2012. In addition, Mr. Byers was an investment executive with The Dreyfus Corporation (“Dreyfus”) from 2000 to 2006 and served as Vice Chairman, Executive Vice President, Chief Investment Officer, member of the Board of Directors and Executive Committee, and fund officer of 90 investment companies, responsible for investment performance of approximately $200 billion in assets under management. Prior to joining Dreyfus, he served as an Executive Vice President, Partner, Chief Financial Officer, Treasurer and member of the Board of Directors of Gruntal & Co., LLC, from 1998 to 1999. Mr. Byers served in executive positions at PaineWebber Group (PWG) from 1986 to 1997, and served in such capacities as chairman of the Investment Policy and Risk-Oversight Committee, Capital Markets Director of Risk and Credit Management, and was NASD registered as General Principal, Financial and Operations Principal and Branch Principal. Prior to PaineWebber, Mr. Byers was an executive at Citibank/Citicorp from 1979 to 1986. Mr. Byers received his M.B.A. in Finance from Roth Graduate School of Business, Long Island University and his B.A. in Economics from Long Island University. In December 2014, Mr. Byers was recognized by the National Association of Corporate Directors as a Board Leadership Fellow.

Sierra believes that Mr. Byers’ broad and extensive experience with a variety of financial, accounting, management, regulatory and operational issues through his involvement on DBX ETF Trust’s board and experience in senior management positions support his appointment to the Sierra Board.

Executive Officers Who are not Directors

Richard T. Allorto, Jr. Mr. Allorto has served as the Chief Financial Officer, Treasurer and Secretary of Sierra from April 2012 until November 2016 and was re-appointed to such positions in July 2018. Mr. Allorto has also served as the Chief Financial Officer and Secretary of MCC since its inception in 2011, and as Chief Financial Officer of MDLY since July 2010. Mr. Allorto is also responsible for the financial operations of the various private funds managed by MDLY. Prior to joining Medley, Mr. Allorto held various accounting and finance positions at GSC Group, Inc., a registered investment adviser, including most recently as Chief Financial Officer of a publicly traded business development company that was externally managed by GSC Group. Mr. Allorto was an Audit Supervisor at Arthur Andersen. Mr. Allorto received a B.S. in Accounting from Seton Hall University and is a licensed CPA.

Jeff Tonkel has served as President of Sierra since July 2013. Mr. Tonkel joined Medley in January 2011 and has served as President and as a member of the MDLY Board since its formation in June 2014. He has also served as a member of the MCC Board since February 2014 and as President of Sierra Total Return Fund since August 2016. Prior to joining Medley, Mr. Tonkel was a Managing Director with JP Morgan from January 2010 to November 2011, where he was Chief Financial Officer of a global financing and markets business. Prior to JP Morgan, Mr. Tonkel was a Managing Director, Principal Investments, with Friedman Billings Ramsey, where he focused on merchant banking and corporate development investments in diversified industrials, energy, real estate and specialty finance. Mr. Tonkel began his investment career with Summit Partners. Mr. Tonkel received a B.A. from Harvard University and an M.B.A. from Harvard Business School.

John D. Fredericks has served as the Chief Compliance Officer of Sierra since February 2014. Mr. Fredericks has also served as the Chief Compliance Officer of MCC since February 2014 and Sierra Total Return Fund since August 2016 and as General Counsel of Medley since June 2013. Prior to joining Medley, Mr. Fredericks was a partner with Winston & Strawn, LLP from February 2003 to May 2013, where he was a member of the firm's restructuring and insolvency and corporate lending groups. Before joining Winston & Strawn, LLP, Mr. Fredericks was a partner with Murphy Sheneman Julian & Rogers from 2000 to 2003 and an associate at Murphy, Weir & Butler from 1993 to 2000. Mr. Fredericks was admitted to the California State Bar in 1993. Mr. Fredericks received a B.A. from the University of California Santa Cruz and a J.D. from University of San Francisco.

Dean Crowe has served as Sierra's Chief Operating Officer since August 2015, a Senior Portfolio Manager of Sierra since April 2012, and as a Senior Managing Director of Medley since March 2011. Prior to joining Medley, Mr. Crowe was a Portfolio Manager with UBS O'Connor, the Alternative Investment subsidiary of UBS Asset Management, where he managed corporate credit investments and the O'Connor Credit Arbitrage Fund. Before joining UBS, Mr. Crowe held various positions at Merrill Lynch in New York, where he managed proprietary credit trading. Mr. Crowe began his career with Salomon Brothers in New York, where he traded and invested in privately placed corporate debt. Mr. Crowe received a BBA in Accounting from James Madison University.

Committees of the Board of Directors

The Sierra Board currently has three committees: an audit committee, a nominating and corporate governance committee, and a special committee.

Audit Committee. The Audit Committee operates pursuant to a charter approved by the Sierra Board. The Audit Committee charter sets forth the responsibilities of the Audit Committee. The primary function of the Audit Committee is to serve as an independent and objective party to assist the Sierra Board in fulfilling its responsibilities for overseeing and monitoring the quality and integrity of Sierra's financial statements, the adequacy of its system of internal controls, the review of the independence, qualifications and performance of its registered public accounting firm, and the performance of its internal audit function. The Audit Committee's responsibilities include selecting Sierra's independent registered public accounting firm, reviewing with such independent registered public accounting firm the planning, scope and results of its audit of its financial statements, pre-approving the fees for services performed, reviewing with the independent registered public accounting firm the adequacy of internal control systems and reviewing its financial statements and periodic reports. The Audit Committee also establishes guidelines and makes recommendations to the Sierra Board regarding the valuation of Sierra's investments. The Audit Committee is responsible for aiding the Sierra Board in determining the fair value of debt and equity securities that are not publicly traded or for which current market values are not readily available. The Audit Committee is presently composed of three persons, including Oliver T. Kane, Valerie Lancaster-Beal and Stephen R. Byers. The Sierra Board has elected Mr. Byers as the chair of the Audit Committee. The Sierra Board has determined that Mr. Byers qualifies as an "audit committee financial expert" as defined in Item 407 of Regulation S-K under the Exchange Act. Each of the members of the Audit Committee meet the independence requirements of Rule 10A-3 of the Exchange Act and, in addition, is not an "interested person" of Sierra or of SIC Advisors as defined in Section 2(a)(19) of the Investment Company Act.

Nominating and Corporate Governance Committee. The Nominating and Corporate Governance Committee is responsible for selecting, researching, and nominating directors for election by the Sierra Stockholders, selecting nominees to fill vacancies on the Sierra Board or a committee of the Sierra Board, developing and recommending to the Sierra Board a set of corporate governance principles and overseeing the evaluation of the Sierra Board and its management. The Nominating and Corporate Governance Committee will consider Sierra Stockholders’ proposed nominations for directors. The Nominating and Corporate Governance Committee will consider qualified nominees properly recommended by the Sierra Stockholders in accordance with the Sierra Charter, Sierra Bylaws and applicable law. When evaluating director-nominees, the Nominating and Corporate Governance Committee considers factors it deems appropriate in accordance with the Sierra Charter, including the overall business expertise of the candidate, the current composition of the Sierra Board, including the backgrounds and diversity of the existing directors, whether the composition of the Sierra Board of directors will contain a majority of independent directors as determined under the Investment Company Act, the candidate’s character and integrity, whether the candidate possesses the ability to work well with others, conflicts of interest interfering with the proper performance of the responsibilities of a director, and whether the candidate would have sufficient time to devote to the affairs of Sierra, including consistent attendance at Sierra Board and committee meetings and advance review of materials and whether each candidate can be trusted to act in the best interests of Sierra and all of the Sierra Stockholders. The Nominating and Corporate Governance Committee consists of Valerie Lancaster-Beal, Oliver T. Kane and Stephen R. Byers, all of whom are considered independent for purposes of the Investment Company Act. No member of the Nominating and Corporate Governance Committee is an “interested person,” as such term is defined in Section 2(a)(19) of the Investment Company Act, of SIC Advisors or Sierra. Valerie Lancaster-Beal serves as the chair of the Nominating and Corporate Governance Committee.

Special Committee. The Sierra Special Committee was granted the authority to, among other things, evaluate and review the terms and conditions of the Mergers or any alternative thereto and determine whether the Mergers or any alternative thereto is advisable and is fair to, and in the best interests of, Sierra and the Sierra Stockholders (or any subset of the Sierra Stockholders that the Sierra Special Committee determines to be appropriate) in connection with the Mergers. The Sierra Special Committee had the authority to select and retain, in its sole discretion, any advisers that they deemed appropriate, including their own independent financial and legal advisors. The current members of the Sierra Special Committee are Valerie Lancaster-Beal, Oliver T. Kane and Stephen R. Byers, all of whom are considered independent for purposes of the Investment Company Act. No member of the Sierra Special Committee is an “interested person,” as such term is defined in Section 2(a)(19) of the Investment Company Act, of SIC Advisors or Sierra. Oliver T. Kane serves as the chair of the Sierra Special Committee.

Compensation of Directors

The following table sets forth compensation of Sierra’s directors, for the year ended December 31, 2017:

Name	Fees Earned or Paid in Cash ⁽¹⁾	All Other Compensation	Total
Interested Directors

(1) For a discussion of the independent directors’ compensation, see below.

As compensation for serving on the Sierra Board, effective January 1, 2017, Sierra’s independent directors receive an annual retainer of $85,000 each, and further receive a fee of $3,000 ($1,000 for telephonic attendance) for each regularly scheduled board meeting attended, a fee of $2,500 ($1,000 for telephonic attendance) for each regularly scheduled Audit Committee meeting attended and a fee of $2,000 ($1,000 for telephonic attendance) for each special board meeting attended, as well as reimbursement of reasonable and documented out-of-pocket expenses incurred in connection with attending each board or committee meeting. In addition, the Chair of the Audit Committee receives an annual retainer of $15,000, while the Chair of any other committee receives an annual retainer of $5,000. The Lead Independent Director will receive an annual retainer of $10,000. The independent directors are encouraged to participate actively in director education programs throughout the year and are reimbursed for reasonable expenses related to attending these programs. In addition, Sierra purchases directors’ and officers’ liability insurance on behalf of its directors and officers.

Prior to January 1, 2017, independent directors received an annual retainer fee of $50,000 each. Prior to January 1, 2017, independent directors also received $4,000 ($2,000 for telephonic attendance) for attending each regularly scheduled board meeting, and a fee of $2,000 for each special board meeting and all committee meetings attended, as well as reimbursement of reasonable and documented out-of-pocket expenses incurred in connection with attending each board or committee meeting.

Staffing

Sierra does not currently have any employees and does not expect to have any employees. Services necessary for Sierra's business are provided by individuals who are employees of SIC Advisors and Medley, pursuant to the terms of the Sierra Investment Advisory Agreement and the Sierra Administration Agreement. Sierra's day-to-day investment operations are managed by SIC Advisors. In addition, Sierra reimburses Medley Capital LLC for Sierra's allocable portion of expenses incurred by it in performing its obligations under the Sierra Administration Agreement, including its allocable portion of the cost of its Chief Financial Officer and Chief Compliance Officer and their respective staffs.

Compensation of Executive Officers

None of Sierra's officers receive direct compensation from Sierra. The compensation of Sierra's Chief Financial Officer and Chief Compliance Officer is paid by Medley Capital LLC, subject to reimbursement by Sierra of an allocable portion of such compensation for services rendered by them to Sierra. To the extent that Medley Capital LLC outsources any of its functions, Sierra will pay the fees associated with such functions on a direct basis without profit to Medley Capital LLC.

Board Leadership Structure

Sierra's business and affairs are managed under the direction of the Sierra Board. Among other things, the Sierra Board sets broad policies for Sierra and approves the appointment of its investment adviser, administrator and officers. The role of the Sierra Board, and of any individual director, is one of oversight and not of management of Sierra's day-to-day affairs.

Under the Sierra Bylaws, the Sierra Board may designate one of Sierra's directors as chair to preside over meetings of the Sierra Board and meetings of Sierra Stockholders, and to perform such other duties as may be assigned to him or her by the Sierra Board. Presently, Seth Taube serves as chairman of the Sierra Board and is an "interested person" by virtue of his role as Sierra's Chief Executive Officer and Chief Executive Officer of SIC Advisors. Sierra believes that it is in the best interests of the Sierra Stockholders for Seth Taube to serve as chair of the Sierra Board because of Sierra's belief in his significant experience in matters of relevance to its business.

Sierra is aware of the potential conflicts that may arise when a non-independent director is chairman of the Sierra Board, but believes these potential conflicts are offset by Sierra's strong corporate governance policies. Sierra's corporate governance policies include regular meetings of the independent directors in executive session without the presence of interested directors and management, the establishment of the Audit Committee, the Nominating and Corporate Governance Committee, and the Sierra Special Committee, each comprised solely of independent directors and the appointment of a chief compliance officer, with whom the independent directors meet at least once a year without the presence of interested directors and other members of management, for administering Sierra's compliance policies and procedures.

Sierra recognizes that different board leadership structures are appropriate for companies in different situations. Sierra re-examines its corporate governance policies on an ongoing basis to ensure that they continue to meet its needs. On January 21, 2016, at the recommendation of the Nominating and Corporate Governance Committee, the Sierra Board elected Oliver T. Kane to serve as lead independent director of Sierra. Mr. Kane also serves on Sierra's Audit Committee and Nominating and Corporate Governance Committee.

All of the independent directors play an active role on the Sierra Board. The independent directors compose a majority of the Sierra Board and are closely involved in all material deliberations related to Sierra. The Sierra Board believes that, with these practices, each independent director has an equal involvement in the actions and oversight role of the Sierra Board and equal accountability to Sierra and the Sierra Stockholders. Sierra's independent directors are expected to meet separately (i) as part of each regular Sierra Board meeting and (ii) with Sierra's Chief Compliance Officer, as part of at least one board meeting each year.

The Sierra Board believes that its leadership structure is the optimal structure for Sierra at this time. The Sierra Board, which will review its leadership structure periodically as part of its annual self-assessment process, further believes that its structure is presently appropriate to enable it to exercise its oversight of Sierra.

Board Role in Risk Oversight

The Sierra Board oversees Sierra's business and operations, including certain risk management functions. Risk management is a broad concept comprising many disparate elements (for example, investment risk, issuer and counterparty risk, compliance risk, operational risk, disclosure risk, diversification risk and business continuity risk). The Sierra Board implements its risk oversight function both as a whole and through its committees. In the course of providing oversight, the Sierra Board and its committees receive reports on Sierra and SIC Advisors' activities, including reports regarding Sierra's investment portfolio and financial accounting and reporting. The Sierra Board also receives a quarterly report from Sierra's Chief Compliance Officer, who reports on Sierra's compliance with the federal and state securities laws and its internal compliance policies and procedures as well as those of SIC Advisors and Sierra's dealer manager, administrator and transfer agent. The Audit Committee's meetings with Sierra's independent public accounting firm also contribute to its oversight of certain internal control risks. In addition, the Sierra Board meets periodically with SIC Advisors to receive reports regarding Sierra's operations, including reports on certain investment and operational risks, and its independent directors are encouraged to communicate directly with senior members of Sierra's management.

The Sierra Board believes that this role in risk oversight is appropriate. Sierra believes that it has robust internal processes in place and a strong internal control environment to identify and manage risks. However, not all risks that may affect Sierra can be identified or eliminated, and some risks are beyond the control of Sierra, SIC Advisors and Sierra's other service providers.

Portfolio Management

The management of Sierra's investment portfolio is the responsibility of SIC Advisors and its Investment Committee, which is comprised of a minimum of three members, including senior members of Medley as well as members of SIC Advisors' Investment Team. Approval of an investment requires a majority vote of the Investment Committee, although unanimous agreement is sought. The members of SIC Advisors' Investment Committee are not employed by Sierra, and receive no compensation from Sierra in connection with their portfolio management activities.

Investment Personnel

As of September 30, 2018, SIC Advisors, through Medley, is currently staffed with 72 employees, including the investment personnel noted above. In addition, SIC Advisors may retain additional investment personnel in the future based upon its needs.

Mr. Liao has served on the board of directors, either as a representative or observer, of the following companies: Varel International, Castex Energy, DHS Drilling Company, Universal Pegasus, Invicta Financial, Greenbrier Minerals and Energy Maintenance Services. Mr. Liao received a BSBA from Georgetown University and an MBA from UCLA Anderson School of Management.

CERTAIN RELATIONSHIPS AND RELATED TRANSACTIONS OF SIERRA

Sierra has entered into the Sierra Investment Advisory Agreement with SIC Advisors, in which Sierra's senior management has ownership and financial interests. Members of Sierra's senior management also serve as principals of other investment advisers affiliated with SIC Advisors that do and may in the future manage investment funds, accounts or other investment vehicles with investment objectives similar to ours. Sierra's senior management team holds equity interests in SIC Advisors.

In addition, Sierra's executive officers and directors and the members of SIC Advisors and members of the Investment Committee serve or may serve as officers, directors or principals of entities that operate in the same, or related, line of business as Sierra does or of investment funds, accounts or other investment vehicles managed by Sierra's affiliates. These investment funds, accounts or other investment vehicles may have investment objectives similar to Sierra's investment objective. For example, affiliates of SIC Advisors currently manages private funds and managed accounts that are seeking new capital commitments and will pursue an investment strategy similar to Sierra's strategy. Sierra may compete with entities managed by SIC Advisors and its affiliates for capital and investment opportunities. As a result, Sierra may not be given the opportunity to participate in certain investments made by investment funds, accounts or other investment vehicles managed by SIC Advisors or its affiliates or by members of the Investment Committee. However, in order to fulfill its fiduciary duties to each of its clients, SIC Advisors intends to allocate investment opportunities on an alternating basis in a manner that is fair and equitable over time and is consistent with SIC Advisors' allocation policy, investment objectives and strategies so that Sierra is not disadvantaged in relation to any other client. SIC Advisors has agreed with the Sierra Board that allocations among Sierra and other investment funds affiliated with SIC Advisors will be made based on capital available for investment in the asset class being allocated. In addition, Sierra believes that SIC Advisors and its affiliates have sufficient professionals to fully discharge their responsibilities to the affiliates of SIC Advisors and to Sierra in accordance with SIC Advisors' fiduciary duty to Sierra. Sierra expects that its available capital for investments will be determined based on the amount of cash on-hand, existing commitments and reserves, if any, and the targeted leverage level and targeted asset mix and diversification requirements and other investment policies and restrictions set by the Sierra Board or as imposed by applicable laws, rules, regulations or interpretations.

Co-Investment Opportunities

The Investment Company Act generally prohibits Sierra from making certain negotiated co-investments with certain affiliates unless Sierra receives an exemptive order from the SEC permitting it to do so. On November 25, 2013, Sierra received an exemptive order from the SEC that permits it to participate in negotiated co-investment transactions with certain affiliates, each of whose investment adviser is Medley LLC or an investment adviser controlled by Medley LLC in a manner consistent with Sierra's investment objective, strategies and restrictions, as well as regulatory requirements and other pertinent factors (the "Prior Exemptive Order"). On March 29, 2017, Sierra, SIC Advisors and certain other affiliated funds and investment advisers received an exemptive order (the "Exemptive Order") for a co-investment order that supersedes the Prior Exemptive Order and allows affiliated registered investment companies to participate in co-investment transactions with Sierra that would otherwise be prohibited under Section 17(d) and 57(a)(4) and Rule 17d-1. On October 4, 2017, Sierra, SIC Advisors and certain of Sierra's affiliates received an exemptive order that supersedes the Exemptive Order (the "Current Exemptive Order") and allows, in addition to the entities already covered by the Exemptive Order, Medley LLC and its subsidiary, Medley Capital LLC, to the extent they hold financial assets in a principal capacity, and any direct or indirect, wholly- or majority-owned subsidiary of Medley LLC that is formed in the future, to participate in co-investment transactions with Sierra that would otherwise be prohibited by either or both of Sections 17(d) and 57(a)(4) of the Investment Company Act. The terms of the Current Exemptive Order are otherwise substantially similar to the Exemptive Order. Co-investment under the Current Exemptive Order is subject to certain conditions therein, including the condition that, in the case of each co-investment transaction, the Sierra Board determines that it would be in Sierra's best interest to participate in the transaction. However, neither Sierra nor the affiliated funds are obligated to invest or co-invest when investment opportunities are referred to Sierra or them. If the Mergers are successfully consummated, the Combined Company and certain of its affiliates will not be able to rely on the Current Exemptive Order. In this regard, Sierra and certain of its affiliates have submitted an exemptive application to the SEC that requests an exemptive order that would supersede the Current Exemptive Order and would permit the Combined Company to participate in negotiated co-investment transactions with certain affiliates. For more information, see "Information about the Combined Company."
