

Restrictions on Buying and Selling Stock and Securities (Insider Trading Policy)

1. Policy Statement

Employees, consultants, contractors, officers, members of the Board of Directors and entities (such as trusts, limited partnerships and corporations) over which such individuals have or share voting control (individually referred to as a “person” and collectively referred to as “persons”) of Nexvet Biopharma, plc, its divisions and majority-owned or controlled subsidiaries (collectively, “Nexvet”) are prohibited, while aware of material nonpublic information, directly or indirectly through family members or other persons or entities, from engaging in transactions involving Nexvet securities, except as otherwise provided for under this policy.

2. Questions

To the extent you have any questions related to this policy or the topics addressed hereby, please contact Nexvet’s Chief Financial Officer or one of his or her designees.

3. Companies Covered

In addition, the restrictions imposed by this policy extend to transactions involving securities of other public companies, such as customers or suppliers of Nexvet and companies with which Nexvet may be negotiating major transactions, such as an acquisition, joint venture, investment or sale. Information that is not material to Nexvet may nevertheless be material to the other company. Therefore, a person who is aware of material nonpublic information about another public company, whether or not the person obtained the information in the course of working for or providing services to Nexvet, is subject to restrictions on trading in securities of that company or communicating that information to others.

4. Transactions Covered

“Trading” includes purchases and sales of securities such as stock, bonds, debentures, options, puts, calls and any other securities. Examples of the types of covered transactions include:

A. Open Market Transactions

A person is prohibited from trading, while aware of material nonpublic information, in any securities in the open market.

B. Stock Options

A person is prohibited, while aware of material nonpublic information, from selling in the open market (e.g., in a broker-assisted cashless exercise or any other market sale for the purpose of generating the cash needed to pay the exercise price or taxes or for any other purpose) any of the underlying shares of the stock option.

However, while aware of material nonpublic information about Nexvet, a person may receive a stock option grant and grants of stock options may vest. In addition, a person may exercise a stock option while aware of material nonpublic information, but only if the person pays the exercise price and applicable taxes in cash or with shares.

C. Restricted Shares and Restricted Share Units

A person is prohibited, while aware of material nonpublic information, from selling in the open market any of the underlying shares of restricted share award or restricted share units awarded to that person.

However, while aware of material nonpublic information about Nexvet, a person may receive an award of restricted stock or restricted share units. In addition, awards of restricted stock or restricted share units may vest while a person is aware of material nonpublic information, and Nexvet may withhold shares to cover taxes due upon vesting.

5. No Trading by Others on a Person's Behalf

When a person is prohibited from trading in Nexvet securities because he or she is aware of material nonpublic information, he or she may not have a third party trade in securities on his or her behalf or disclose such information to any third party, other than on a need-to-know basis. Any trades made by a third party on behalf of a person will be attributed to that person. Thus, trades in Nexvet shares held in street name in a person's account or for his or her benefit at a brokerage firm are also prohibited if the person is otherwise prohibited from trading in Nexvet securities. If a person invests in a "managed account" or arrangement (other than a Rule 10b5-1 plan discussed below), he or she should instruct the broker or advisor not to trade in Nexvet securities on his or her behalf.

6. No Tipping

When a person is prohibited from trading in Nexvet securities because he or she is aware of material nonpublic information, he or she may not disclose material nonpublic information about Nexvet to a third party unless the third party (a) owes a duty of confidence to Nexvet (e.g., an attorney, auditor or investment banker retained by Nexvet) or (b) is subject to a confidentiality agreement in favor of Nexvet in which the person has agreed or is obligated to keep the information confidential. If that third party trades in Nexvet securities, the person who communicated the information (as well as the third party) may be held personally liable under U.S. federal (or state) law for violation of securities laws. This practice, known as "tipping," violates the securities laws and also can result in the same civil and criminal penalties that apply to insider trading, whether or not the person personally derives any benefit from the third party's actions. This prohibition includes giving trading advice without actually disclosing material nonpublic information, such as a general statement like, "I would sell now if I were you, but I can't tell you why." As with each of the prohibitions on trading while aware of material nonpublic information discussed in this policy, the prohibition on tipping also applies to material nonpublic information regarding securities of other public companies.

Regardless of whether a person covered by this policy is aware of material nonpublic information, the person is prohibited from posting messages about Nexvet or its securities in Internet chat rooms, bulletin boards, blogs or other similar means of electronic distribution, whether under actual or fictitious names.

7. Persons Covered

The restrictions set forth in this policy that apply to a person also apply to the person's family members who reside with the person, anyone else who lives in his or her household or are financially dependent on the person, and any family members who do not live in his or her household but whose transactions in Nexvet or other securities are directed by the person or are subject to his or her influence or control (such as parents or children who consult the person before they trade in Nexvet or other securities). Every person is responsible for ensuring that trading in any securities by any such third party complies with this policy.

8. Definition of Material Nonpublic Information

A. Material Information

Information is material if there is a substantial likelihood that a reasonable investor would consider it important in making an investment decision (i.e., deciding whether to buy, hold or sell a security). Therefore, any information that could reasonably be expected to affect the price of the security is potentially material. Both positive and negative information can be material. Common examples of information that may be material are:

- (i) Projections of future earnings or losses;
- (ii) Earnings that are inconsistent with external guidance from Nexvet or with market expectations;

- (iii) Significant regulatory actions, including receipt or denial of a significant regulatory application for clearance or approval of products;
 - (iv) News of a pending or proposed merger, acquisition or tender offer;
 - (v) News of a significant sale of assets or the expansion or curtailment of operations (including a significant new contract or loss of business);
 - (vi) Significant changes in dividend policies or the declaration of a stock split;
 - (vii) Significant changes in senior management or membership of the Board of Directors;
 - (viii) Significant new products or discoveries;
 - (ix) The gain or loss of, or a significant change to the terms of Nexvet's relationship with, a substantial customer or supplier;
 - (x) The commencement of, or significant development regarding, any significant litigation;
 - (xi) A decision by Nexvet to borrow a significant amount of money;
 - (xii) A decision by Nexvet to offer securities in a public or private offering or repurchase or redeem any Nexvet securities currently owned by the public;
 - (xiii) A significant change in Nexvet's capital expenditure program; and
 - (xiv) Significant shifts in operating or financial circumstances.

The foregoing are merely examples and should not be treated as an all-inclusive list. Other developments not listed above may be material as well.

The materiality of information is determined on a case-by-case basis in light of all the facts and circumstances. All securities transactions will be viewed after-the-fact with the benefit of hindsight. As a result, before engaging in any transaction, a person should carefully consider how regulators and others might view his or her transaction in hindsight.

B. Nonpublic Information

"Non-public" information is information that Nexvet, or another company if applicable, has not released publicly, either by a press release or a filing with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission (the "SEC"), or is not otherwise available publicly. As a general rule, information is not considered to be "public" until the end of the second-trading day after an announcement by Nexvet is broadly disseminated. Therefore, a person who was aware of the material information prior to its public release should not engage in any open market transactions in Company securities until at least the opening of trading on the NASDAQ Stock Exchange ("Nasdaq") on the third-trading day after such information is publicly released (i.e., the next trading day after two full trading days has elapsed since the release of such information), whether through a report filed with the SEC or through major news wire services, or recognized news services. For example, if an announcement is made on a Monday before trading on the Nasdaq opens (i.e., before 9:00 a.m. (Eastern time)), a person who was aware of the information in the announcement prior to its public release would not be able to trade until the opening of trading on the Nasdaq on Wednesday. If an announcement is made after trading on the Nasdaq closes on a Monday, but before trading on the Nasdaq opens on Tuesday (i.e., before 9:00 a.m. (Eastern time)), such person would not be able to trade until the opening of trading on the Nasdaq on Thursday.

9. Short-Term or Speculative Transactions

All directors and Section 16 officers are strictly prohibited from engaging in short-term or speculative transactions involving Nexvet securities, such as publicly traded options, short sales, puts and calls, and hedging transactions. This prohibition also applies to holding Nexvet securities in a margin account and "short sales against the box," which are sales of Nexvet securities where a person does not deliver the shares he or she owns to settle the transaction but instead delivers other shares that his or her broker has borrowed from others. All other employees must obtain the specific prior authorization of the Chief Executive Officer and the Chief Financial Officer before engaging in short-term or speculative transactions involving Nexvet securities.

10. Post-Termination Transactions

If a person is aware of material nonpublic information about Nexvet when his or her employment terminates, this policy's restrictions on trading and communicating material nonpublic information will continue to apply. Such a person may not trade in Nexvet securities until that information has become public or is no longer material. In addition, since stock options generally expire 90 days after termination, the person should refer to the stock option section above for guidance regarding exercising stock options that may expire while he or she is aware of material nonpublic information. A person also may contact the Chief Financial Officer or his or her designee to further discuss their alternatives in this circumstance.

11. Blackout Period

Directors, Section 16 officers and certain other persons designated by the Chief Financial Officer ("Covered Individuals") may not trade in securities in the open market during a no-trade period ("Blackout Period"). An exception to this prohibition may apply for transactions effected pursuant to a pre-approved Rule 10b5-1 plan as discussed below. The quarterly Blackout Period begins on the last calendar day of the second month of every fiscal quarter and continues until the second-trading day after Nexvet's earnings for that quarter are publicly released. The Chief Financial Officer may impose additional Blackout Periods for all or some Covered Individuals and other employees when Nexvet may be aware of material nonpublic information as the Chief Financial Officer deems necessary or appropriate. All Covered Individuals also are subject to all other restrictions in this policy.

In addition, the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002 prohibits all trades of Nexvet securities by directors and Section 16 officers of Nexvet during a "pension fund blackout period." A pension fund blackout period exists whenever 50% or more of the participants in a Nexvet benefit plan, if applicable, are unable to conduct transactions in their Nexvet ordinary share accounts for more than three (3) consecutive business days. These blackout periods typically occur when there is a change in the benefit plan's trustee, record keeper or investment manager. Individuals that are subject to any such blackout periods will be contacted when these periods are instituted from time to time.

12. Pre-Clearance for Directors, Section 16 Officers and Covered Individuals

Each director, Section 16 officer and Covered Individual must obtain pre-clearance from the Chief Financial Officer or one of his or her designees and the approval from the Audit Committee before engaging in the following transactions (including any transactions by their immediate family members) in Nexvet securities: purchases; sales; transactions in his or her 401(k) plan or deferred compensation plan; transactions in an IRA or Roth IRA; and for Section 16 officers, any other transactions that are required to be reported under Section 16 of the Securities Exchange Act.

13. Rule 10b5-1 Plans

Under SEC Rule 10b5-1, a person may have an affirmative defense to insider trading liability for transactions in Nexvet securities that are effected pursuant to a written contract or plan meeting certain requirements. In short, the rule presents an opportunity for a person to pre-arrange a sale or purchase of Nexvet securities (including an option exercise), provided that, at the time the person establishes such a plan, he or she is not aware of material nonpublic information.

In order to satisfy Rule 10b5-1, a plan must:

- (a) Be documented in writing to instruct another person who is not aware of material nonpublic information to execute the transactions;
- (b) Be established in good faith and at a time when the person is not aware of material nonpublic information; and

(c) Specify objective criteria (date, price threshold, etc.) used to determine the timing and terms of the purchase or sale, and otherwise not be subject to any influence or discretion from the person establishing the plan.

In addition, Nexvet requires pre-approval by the Chief Financial Officer or one of his or her designees and the approval of the Audit Committee of all Rule 10b5-1 plans relating to Nexvet securities established by directors, Section 16 officers and other Covered Individuals. The Chief Financial Officer will not approve a Rule 10b5-1 plan if a director, Section 16 officer or Covered Individual intends to enter into such plan during a Blackout Period.

14. Responsible Party

Nexvet's Chief Financial Officer is responsible for administering this policy. Nexvet's Chief Financial Officer may designate one or more persons to assist in administering any provision of this policy.
