

Tuesday, February 12

Time: 12:30- 1:30PM

Place: 300

Montgomery Street

Topic: Earnings Guidance

The number of companies providing earnings guidance is shrinking. Which side of this issue are you? Come listen to Matthew Orsagh, co-author of "Breaking the Short-Term Cycle" which makes a very strong case for corporate leaders, asset managers, investors, and analysts to refocus on long term value creation rather than decision making based on short-term earnings expectations. This will be a joint, box-lunch meeting with the CFA Society of San Francisco. Seating will be limited and you will want to register early if interested.

Event Organizer: Phyllis Proffer