Boost for SkyCity shares

SKYCITY'S share price got a small boost after it said revenue in the first two months of 2009 was tracking well.

The casino, hotel and cinema operator's share price closed up 3 cents at $2.80. Revenue for January and February was marginally ahead of the same period last year.

Revenue from Australian casino operations was up by 14 per cent, while Auckland gaming machine revenue was up by 4 per cent for the three months from December to February, SkyCity chief executive Nigel Morrison said. Revenue from the international high roller business was down for January and February compared with the year before.
