NEW YORK, November 12, 2007 – AIG Environmental®, a division of the property and casualty subsidiaries of American International Group, Inc. (AIG), today announced AIG Environmental Portal<sup>SM</sup>, an online tool designed to streamline the underwriting process and provide easy access to insurance policy information for environmental insurance policyholders with multi-site real estate portfolios.

AIG Environmental Portal will simplify tracking, searching, organizing and analyzing a multi-site real estate portfolio's insurance and risk information. It can facilitate secure online collaboration which optimizes insurance policy management for brokers, clients and AIG Environmental® underwriters alike. Specifically, AIG Environmental Portal:

- Enables users to store, search and retrieve documents, including charts, plans, drawings, photos and pictures, related to their environmental insurance policies, including endorsements, applications, environmental reports, and development, remediation and O&M plans;
- Allows underwriters, risk managers and brokers to share and distribute information quickly and efficiently through a web-based portal available from any internet accessible computer;
- Facilitates review of policy and site submissions;
- Provides real-time information on the status of submissions, including any required "next-steps";
- Organizes information and documents by account, policy and property, enabling users to quickly locate and access information; and
- Enables companies to restrict access to specific information by user, providing a secure environment for the storage and exchange of sensitive information.

"With AIG Environmental Portal, we've streamlined and expedited the process of managing environmental insurance data by making information accessible through a single system.
