

Raytheon supports approximately 14,000 contracts through a unique level of technology and innovation in three areas: our core markets, a commitment to Mission Assurance, and our Mission Systems Integration capability.

In our core markets, Raytheon's Sensing, C3I, Effects and Mission Support capabilities all serve a single purpose — to help our customers overcome every challenge and achieve success on their own terms.

By taking an integrated approach across the company, we have brought our Mission Assurance promise of NoDoubt™ performance to unprecedented levels.

Mission Systems Integration refers to the integration of multiple systems to deliver a single solution that meets our customers' most urgent mission needs. As a leader in technologies that are critical to customer success, our domain knowledge enables solutions that allow us to identify the elements that need to be connected, while our systems engineering capabilities help our customers connect the elements to achieve the mission.

On the following pages, you will learn more about each of our businesses and the services and solutions they provide to meet the diverse needs of our customers.
